DAILY, ONE CENT. SUNDAY, THREE CENTS.

"All the News That's Fit to Print"

The New York Times.

THE WEATHER.
Rain at night, increasing southeasterly winds.

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. XLIX...NO. 15,568. NEW YORK, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1899.—TWELVE PAGES. ONE CENT in Greater New York; Elsewhere and Jersey City. TWO CENTS.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

FOREIGN.—Gen. Methuen was wounded at the battle of Modder River. Advices from Col. Baden-Powell, dated Nov. 20, announce that at that time Mafeking was holding out. Gen. Joubert is said to be falling back before Gen. Buller. The Boer killed at Belmont and Gras Pan, it is claimed, aggregated 140 and 400, respectively. Joseph Chamberlain, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, in a speech at Leicester, alluded to the better understanding between Great Britain and the United States, and declared that an Anglo-German-American alliance would insure the peace of the world. He spoke of the recent attacks on Queen Victoria in foreign newspapers, remarking, in reference to the obscene cartoon which appeared in a French humorous journal, "This may have serious consequences if our neighbors do not mend their ways." Sir Thomas Lipton, in a speech in London, alluded in generous terms to the treatment he received in this country before and during the recent races for the America's Cup. M. J. Sampson, the former Chicago auditor, arrested in Ireland at the request of the Chicago authorities on a charge of embezzlement, was remanded in London until to-morrow. The Colombian revolution is spreading. The German Emperor arrived at Potsdam, and spent the day conferring with Cabinet officers.—Pages 3 and 7.

Page 1.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company opened a new steel mill at Birmingham, Ala.

The Carlisle Indians defeated the Columbia team at football on Manhattan Field by the score of 45 to 0.

Gov. Roosevelt Wednesday began a course of training in wrestling under the guidance of a professional teacher.

It is expected that the State Board will issue a certificate of election to Goebel as Governor of Kentucky, although Gov. Bradley will recognize Taylor.

Page 2.

Senator Thomas C. Platt will leave this city for Washington to-day to attend the opening of Congress. He will confer with Gov. Roosevelt on his return.

The six passengers killed in Wednesday's wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western near Paterson include an entire family of four persons. No others are likely to die. The company officials lay the blame for the collision on the engineer of the train which crashed into the express, John Riordan.

Page 3.

The school authorities of Manhattan and the Bronx are preparing to establish a truant farm on the cottage dormitory plan.

A housekeeper and her employer, an old man, were seriously wounded in Boston yesterday by an axe, which, the police claim, was wielded by the janitor of the building.

Page 4.

Prizes were awarded to many pet dogs at the Thanksgiving Day session of the American Pet Dog Club's annual bench show in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Page 7.

Louis H. Geissmann, a driver for R. H. Macy & Co., was killed at Mount Vernon in attempting to prevent his team from running away.

The electrotype plates of the Lippincott Company were in the vaults and were not injured in the big fire of Wednesday. The company's loss will not exceed $450,000.

Page 8.

Aurelius S. Sharp, a tailor in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, accuses his son of robbing him of $9,000.

At the Knickerbocker Athletic Club's carnival of sports and games, held at the Madison Square Garden, George W. Orton, ex-intercollegiate champion, won the ten-mile run for the A. A. U. championship, and W. S. Edwards and A. F. Duffy each equaled the world's record in the sixty-yards handicap run.

Page 10.

On the Lakewood links yesterday Walter J. Travis led the field and captured the gold medal for the best performance of the day.

Page 12.

The friends of H. Walter Webb are rejoicing at the promise of his complete restoration to health. He had no tubercular disease.

The Brooklyn police have evidence tending to show that William F. Miller was not unmindful that the collapse of the Franklin Syndicate must come soon.

Architect Cass Gilbert has informed Collector Bidwell that the new Custom House will be built within the appropriation of $2,750,000. It is expected that work on the foundations will be commenced in March.

Assistant District Attorney John F. McIntyre accused Frank Moss, counsel to the Mazet Committee, of subornation of perjury, and threatened to make public certain facts of which he said he was in possession, which would be damaging to his reputation. Mr. Moss made light of the matter.

Amusements.—Page 7.
Arrivals at Hotels and Out-of-Town Buyers.—Page 2.
Court Calendars.—Page 10.
Marine Intelligence and Foreign Mails.—Page 3.
Markets.—Page 9.
News of the Railroads.—Page 8.
Real Estate.—Page 10.
Weather Report.—Page 2.
Yesterday's Fires.—Page 2.

BIG FIRE IN ST. PAUL.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 30.—At 10 o'clock to-night fire was discovered on the second floor of the large wholesale grocery of Griggs, Cooper & Co., adjoining the Union station on East Third Street, one of the largest and best known concerns in the West. The flames spread rapidly and the whole Fire Department was called out.

The firm carried a stock worth at least $500,000, which was well insured. They recently opened a cracker factory of their own in opposition to the cracker trust, and this was located in the burned portion of the building.

At midnight the flames broke through the first fire wall in Griggs, Cooper & Co.'s building, and another section of the building seems likely to go.

WASHINGTON'S RACE WAR.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The war between the colored population and the Grand Opera House is waxing in vigor. The principal events, so far, have been the arrest of the managers of the theatre for putting out one negro, the subsequent arrest of a teacher in the colored high school for refusing to be put out, and the second arrest of one of the managers and two policemen for ejecting the latter.

Last night a mass meeting of colored people was held in the Vermont Avenue Baptist Church to denounce the theatre for putting negroes out. One of the speakers, a lawyer, named Thomas L. Jones, talked in general terms about the wrongs to which the negro is everywhere subjected, and counseled the colored people to organize. Manager Chase and the two policemen were arraigned yesterday, and were held in $200 bail.

NEW YORK SALESMAN ROBBED.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Last night S. E. McClelland, traveling salesman for the Moore & Schaefer Clothing Company of New York City, lost his pocketbook, containing $2,000, and his diamond stud, worth $500. He thinks he lost them while watching the newsboys eat a Thanksgiving dinner in Wolf's store.

Mr. McClelland arrived in Chicago yesterday. In the evening he met a friend and the two went into a State Street saloon. McClelland took a bill from his pocketbook to pay for the drinks, then placed the book in his hip pocket. The men left the saloon and went to see the feast of the newsboys, afterward returning to the saloon. It was then that McClelland was made aware of his loss.

Southern Ry. for Florida, Aiken, Augusta, New Orleans, Memphis, commercial and resort South and Southwest. Schedule Page 11.—Adv.

WHAT GILLMORE SAID WHEN FACING DEATH

"I Protest Against Being Shot with My Hands Tied."

PARTY SAVED BY AGUINALDO

First Detailed Account of the Capture of the Yorktown's Men.

MANILA, Dec. 1—12:50 A. M.—"As an American officer and gentleman, I protest against being shot with my hands tied."

So spoke Lieut. James C. Gillmore, of the United States gunboat Yorktown, when, after being captured by the insurgents with his men, he was standing up to be shot at San Isidro.

The execution did not take place. Gen. Luna had ordered it, but Aguinaldo interfered, just in time to save the Americans' lives.

When the landing party from the United States battleship Oregon, under Lieut. Commander McCrackin, took the town of Vigan, Province of South Ilocos, last Sunday, they found there an escaped prisoner, A. L. Sonnenshein, who furnished the first authentic account of the experience of Lieut. Gillmore, who, with a party of the Yorktown, was captured by the insurgents near Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, last April, while making an examination of the mouth of the river in an armed boat.

Mr. Sonnenshein was imprisoned at Abra for a long time with Lieut. Gillmore and seven sailors, but contrived to escape, carrying a concealed note, written in naval cipher, dated Abra, Nov. 19, addressed to "Any Naval Officer," and saying: "You may have perfect confidence in anything the bearer says." The note was signed "Gillmore."

According to Mr. Sonnenshein, when Lieut. Gillmore's launch entered the river, from Baler Harbor, under cover of Ensign W. H. Standley's gun, the party were received with three volleys. Two of the Americans were killed and two mortally wounded. Every man was hit. Lieut. Gillmore received a flesh wound in the leg, and his foot stuck fast in the mud. It was a choice between surrender and being slaughtered.

Lieut. Gillmore asked the terms of release. The insurgents proposed that he should procure the delivery to them of the arms and munitions of the Spanish garrison, undertaking, if this were accomplished, to send the Spaniards and Americans to the Yorktown.

A sailor of Lieut. Gillmore's party carried this proposition to the garrison. The Spanish commandant replied that it was an insult to Spanish arms, and expelled the sailor, a Spanish soldier firing upon him as he went.

The Americans were then bound hand and foot and taken to San Isidro, where Gen. Luna ordered their execution. They were marched to the plaza, and, in the presence of a great crowd, were aligned to be executed. Lieut. Gillmore then made the protest already quoted.

Aguinaldo interfered and prevented the execution. When Gen. Lawton approached San Isidro last June the Americans were removed to Abra, where they were kept confined in cells for two months. Subsequently they were allowed greater liberty, but the report that Lieut. Gillmore had a house and servant is untrue. He had the same quarters as the men, and the Americans received the same allowance as the Spanish prisoners—5 cents a day with which to buy rice and bananas, virtually the only rations.

FILIPINOS BEATEN AT PAVIA.

A Captain and a Private of the Eighteenth Regiment Killed—Enemy Retreated to Mountains.

MANILA, Nov. 30.—Dispatches just received from Iloilo, Island of Panay, say that at o'clock on the evening of Sunday, Nov. 26, at Pavia the Eighteenth Regiment encountered an entrenched force of the enemy, who opened a heavy fire.

The leading battalion replied, and after several volleys the Nineteenth Regiment flanked the Filipinos, driving them out of their trenches. The enemy retreated to the mountains.

At the beginning of the fight one Captain and one private of the Eighteenth Regiment were killed.

CORRALLING THE INSURGENTS.

Movements of American Troops to Cut Off Filipinos' Escape—Latter in a Terrified Condition.

MANILA, Dec. 1.—12:50 A. M.—Gen. MacArthur is now in Bayambang (or Bayamban) preparing to sweep the country on both sides of the Manila-Dagupan Railroad. Gen. Wheaton is at San Fabian and Gen. Lawton is at Tayug.

The cordon from San Fabian to San Isidro covers all the roads and occupies all the towns on the line. The American policy is to prevent any more insurgents escaping to the north, and to force them toward the country west of the railroad.

Major March, with a battalion of the Thirty-third Infantry, occupies Vigan, having made a forced march from San Fabian. The remainder of the regiment is on the way to Vigan. Gen. Young, with a handful of cavalry and the Macabebes, is there, and Lieut. Col. Howze, with four decimated companies of the Thirty-fourth Infantry, barefooted and fagged, is struggling toward Vigan from Aliga (Alliaga?) When last reported he was within fifty miles of his destination.

There are 5,000 Spanish prisoners in Abra Province whose release through the military operations is expected soon.

It is learned that Aguinaldo had a large amount of stores at Bayombong, Province of Nueva Vizcaya, which Gen. Lawton's troops have probably captured. The steamer Francisco Reyes has taken a cargo of supplies to Dagupan, where a base will be established. Hospitals have been equipped at San Isidro, Cabanatuan, and Tayug. Many of the American troops are suffering from exhaustion, fever, or dysentery, and are in need of hospital treatment.

In the terrified temper of the insurgents, who run at the sight of an American, a single company might go anywhere in the north now, according to Capt. Fowler. No prisoners except officers and civil leaders are retained by the Americans. Their policy is to release all others almost immediately.

Major Johnson of Gen. MacArthur's staff brought here by special train Churibian, Secretary of the Treasury in the so-called Filipino Government, and Mariana Lin-Gap, a Chinese half-breed. Director of Railways and Post Offices, both of whom surrendered in Bayambang, with their families and servants. Their goods filled four cars. Churibian maintained that civilians were exempt from imprisonment; and he was deeply chagrined when he found himself placed incommunicado with Buencamino.

Major Ortez of the last Filipino commission to Gen. Otis is a harmless character, a kind of burlesque soldier, and the American officers to whom he surrendered have declined to imprison him. He yearns to pose as a martyr in Manila.

CAPT. FOWLER'S BRAVERY.

His Company Might Have Been Exterminated at Mangatarem.

MANILA, Dec. 1—12:50 A. M.—Capt. Fowler's march after Gen. Alejandrino's brigade with one company of the Thirty-third Regiment was one of the bravest incidents of the war. The company left Dagupan alone, under orders to locate the enemy. Capt. Fowler had been warned by the natives that he and his men would be exterminated. The guides deserted them before Mangatarem (or Mangalaren) was reached.

All of Alejandrino's artillery was focused upon the main street, along which the Americans advanced. The guns were manned by Spaniards, who said afterward that they had fired over the heads of the Americans, as they desired that the latter should win, hoping thus to gain their own freedom.

AGUINALDO'S MOTHER IN MANILA.

Her Son Escaped Being Sold to the Americans by Bandits.

MANILA, Dec. 1—12:50 A. M.—Aguinaldo's mother has arrived here, and shelter has been given to her by Señor Legarde, a prominent amigo, who was Secretary of the Treasury before the outbreak and who resigned when it came.

It seems that Buencamino's party took refuge in a bandit village, which had offered Aguinaldo an asylum, intending to sell him to the Americans. The bandits assassinated half of Buencamino's guard and proposed to keep Aguinaldo's mother for ransom.

FATE OF URDANETA'S CREW.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—A dispatch to the Navy Department from Admiral Watson, at Manila, received to-day gives additional details of the fate of the crew of the gunboat Urdaneta, which was attacked and destroyed by insurgents some time since. The dispatch follows:

Manila, Nov. 30.

Oregon's force turned over Vigan to portion of Wheaton's command on 28th. Returned here with 106 recaptured Spanish prisoners. Taking of Vigan creditable to naval force.

Coxswain Greene and Apprentice Powers of Urdaneta's crew escaped insurgents, reported on flagship. Report Cadet Woods mortally wounded, died fifteen minutes. Mitchell, Drummond, Stone, and Grey killed outright. Bodies of Woods and Grey only recovered. Burial place unknown; will endeavor to locate.

Farley, Herbert, and Burke alive and well Oct. 30. Present whereabouts unknown. Chinaman killed insurgent spears. Urdaneta fought till guns failed; made gallant fight; date Sept. 17.

REPORT ON THE MANAUENSE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The Quartermaster General has received a detailed report by telegraph from Lieut. Col. O. F. Long, in charge of the transport service at San Francisco, on the transport Manauense, which recently arrived at Manila after undergoing frightful hardships in a Pacific typhoon. The report, which was requested because of the statements of the unfitness of the vessel for transport service, is as follows:

San Francisco, Nov. 29.

In reference to your telegram to-day, transport Manauense sailed Oct. 25 for Manila via Honolulu. Her capacity was 28 officers and 530 enlisted men. She carried 17 officers and 380 enlisted men. She was inspected by Capt. Metcalf, Surveyor of Lloyds Register, who officially reported vessel "in good order and condition when she left this port, both in hull and machinery." She is classed a number one, star one, Lloyds. Also was thoroughly inspected here by Treasury Department Inspector of Hulls and Boilers, who reported her in brilliant condition. Official reports of these officers are on file and recorded.

Treasury officials would not allow any unseaworthy ship, whether Government or otherwise, to leave port, would not grant clearance, consequently expert opinion pronounced Manauense perfectly seaworthy.

She was provided with all life-saving apparatus, even more than Treasury Department regulations required. Her crew under ordinary circumstances numbers 32 men. She actually carried from San Francisco a crew of 49 men, which fully met requirements of Treasury officials. She carried 55 days' provisions for 400 enlisted men, and was provisioned for crew and army officers by agents of vessel for 160 days. Besides, she had in her hold 900 tons' measurement of bacon, flour, canned goods, and other commissary supplies.

Manauense was also thoroughly inspected by Colo. Garlington and Maus, Inspector Generals, and by Capt. Barneson, Marine Superintendent, and by other transport officials. Lieut. Col. Hayes also frequently inspected transport previous to departure. All expressed themselves thoroughly satisfied with every arrangement and provision made here. The ship met Lloyds requirements, which are highest known among shipping people. This in itself should be a sufficient guarantee of seaworthiness.

The vessel made an average speed of ten knots from Honolulu to Manila. Had her machinery been seriously impaired she certainly could not have made the distance covered in the time she did. I believe, and all our officials connected with the transport service here concur, when Manauense left here she was perfectly seaworthy, fully manned, and amply provisioned.

Commenting on this report, Col. Ballinger, in charge of the transport service here, said it seemed clear that the utmost vigilance had been used by every one connected with the inspection of transports at San Francisco, and, as the commissary branch had also shown the care used by them, such hardships as had occurred must be attributable to the elements, against which no amount of care could prevail with absolute assurance. Officers here had received Honolulu newspapers showing that the Manauense was all right when she arrived there, so that the trouble must have occurred between Honolulu and Manila.

New Orleans Gains on the Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The cruiser New Orleans has arrived at Colombo on her way to Manila. This brings her up to the cruiser Brooklyn for the first time since the ocean race to the Philippines began. The Brooklyn arrived at Colombo yesterday, and will coal probably in time to get away ahead of the New Orleans. The latter has been gaining of late, however, and has bettered her position by two days against the Brooklyn since leaving Aden. At this rate the indications are that the New Orleans will be the first to arrive at Manila.

AID FOR SICK SOLDIERS ASKED.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 30.—An appeal was issued to-day, through Mrs. Jessie Van Zile Belden, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, from a society of women being formed at Manila through the efforts of Mrs. Lawton, wife of Gen. Lawton, for supplies for the sick soldiers at Manila.

The articles urgently asked for include bed linen, pajamas, bedroom slippers, (large size,) books, papers, magazines, stamped envelopes, pads, lead pencils, games, playing cards, and lemons.

Everything should be sent to the Depot Quartermaster, San Francisco, to be sent on a United States transport, and directed to Mrs. Henry W. Lawton, Soldiers' Relief Society, Manila, P. I., and also marked "For Miss Rust." Miss Rust is a member of the family of Dr. Charles Lynch, an army Surgeon at Manila. Mrs. Belden urges all members of the organization to respond to the appeal.

The Forty-second Starts for Manila.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—The transports Dalnyvostock and Columbia sailed for Manila this evening with the Forty-second Infantry on board.

Pawtucket's Mayor Dead.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 30.—Mayor William J. Cronin of Pawtucket died at Asheville, N. C., to day of consumption. He was taken ill shortly after his inauguration, last January, and since that time he had been unable to attend to his official duties. Mr. Cronin was born in Malden, Mass., April 10, 1868.

The Twentieth Century Railway Train is indicated by the Pennsylvania Limited. Stenographer, stock reports, library, barber shop, bath room, and a ladies' maid are some of its novel and exclusive features. See time table.—Adv.

Poland! Poland! Poland! Poland! Is the purest natural spring water in the world. —Adv.

Cleveland a Suburb of New York.

Leave New York 5:30 P. M., arrive Cleveland next morning for breakfast, by Lake Shore Limited of New York Central. Superb service; no excess fare.—Adv.

Poland! Poland! Poland! Poland! Recommended by eminent physicians for purity. —Adv.

MARK HANNA TO RETIRE?

Chicago Newspaper Prints the Prediction from Washington that He Will Not Be Chairman.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 30.—The Washington correspondent of The Chicago Times-Herald, the editor of which paper is a close friend of President McKinley, wires the following:

"Senator Hanna will not be the manager of the Republican campaign next year. He is to retire from the Chairmanship of the National Committee on account of his health. His retirement will be voluntary and not the result of any lack of confidence in him on the part of the President. Mr. Hanna will remain Chairman of the committee till after the next National Convention, and the new committee chosen at that convention will elect his successor.

"It is thought here that Representative Dick of Ohio may be the new Chairman. Henry C. Payne of Milwaukee could have the post if he thinks the condition of his health would warrant his acceptance of it. The rule is that the nominee for President chooses the Chairman of the National Committee, and in this instance it is not necessary to say that President McKinley would name Senator Hanna if Mr. Hanna cared for the place. But Mr. Hanna does not want it, and while he is not yet ready to announce his voluntary retirement, he will do so in good time."

GOV. ROOSEVELT A WRESTLER.

New York's Executive Starts on a Course of Athletic Training with a Professional Teacher.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Gov. Roosevelt last night began his course of physical training under the guidance of Prof. M. J. Dwyer, the Cornish champion wrestler. The Governor entered into the sport with zest, and for thirty minutes worked enthusiastically. The billiard room of the Executive Mansion was fitted up for the lesson, a large wrestling mat having been provided for the occasion. The Governor was attired in regulation wrestling costume of tights and trunk. His chest was bare.

The instruction was begun with an illustration of the art of securing holds in catch-as-catch-can wrestling. Mr. Dwyer found that his pupil was no novice in the sport, and was surprised by any attempt on the part of the Governor at a cross-buttock, a trick which is common in the West.

The Governor will also take boxing lessons, as will his boys, Theodore and Kermit. To-morrow night the Governor will try some Cornish wrestling.

NEW STEEL WORKS IN ALABAMA

Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company Opens Its Mills at Birmingham.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 30.—Alabama fittingly rejoices on this Thanksgiving Day at its emancipation from thralldom as a purveyor of raw materials to other districts. To-day, by the entrance on the manufacture of steel by another industrial giant, the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, at Ensley, a suburb of Birmingham, the State opens a new chapter in its history.

This company, with its half million acres of mineral land, its twenty blast furnaces, and thirty collieries, opened its steel works to-day without ceremony. No invited guests, champagne, or speeches graced the day, momentous to the South for the first manufacture of steel on a commercial scale.

Only the officers of the company and President Smith of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad were present when the turn of a lever threw the hydraulic pressure on the first of the ten fifty-ton open-hearth furnaces and tilted it gradually over. The furnace contained a mixture of basic pig and scrap heated with brown iron ore and limestone, all being the products of the company.

All the materials were gathered within sight of the works. In fact, within this charmed circle one mile in diameter lie the collieries, the coke ovens, the blast furnaces, the casting machine, the steel works, the rod, wire, and nail works, the steel castings foundry, and the rail mill. The ore comes four miles. With that exception, the mill circle contains everything, even to fabrikes for repairs. Every part of the plant worked like a charm, and gave no indication that it was the first trial. The heated metal was poured direct from the furnace to the ingot molds without the usual intervention of a ladle. This was accomplished by the use of a forehearth with two nozzles, thus pouring two ingots at once, and saving the time of handling and filling a big ladle.

The plant, costing $1,500,000, was started July 14 of last year, and will withdraw from the general foundry market 1,000 tons per day of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company's pig iron. This tonnage will be sold henceforth as billets, slabs, and rails, and a large part will be used by the Alabama Steel and Wire Company for wire, rods, nails, wire fence, &c. Arrangements have been made to deliver the billets red-hot to its mill.

Special prominence will be given to the export trade, as Birmingham is nearer tide water than either Pittsburg or Chicago.

DEWEY AIDS A GUNNER'S MATE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Edward Murphy, a gunner's mate on the Olympia during the battle of Manila, ate his Thanksgiving turkey in Chicago. He also read over again a letter received yesterday from Admiral Dewey, wishing him a happy Thanksgiving.

Murphy was ordered from New York to San Francisco. When he arrived here he discovered that he had lost his ticket. He wrote to Admiral Dewey, and received promptly a letter expressing sympathy and saying the department would send a duplicate ticket. The letter closed with the wish that the recipient might spend a pleasant Thanksgiving and reach his destination without further mishap.

ELOPED TO GET MARRIED HERE.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—"Love will find the way" should be the motto of the Capp and McElroy families, who are convinced of the truth of the adage by the marriage of Seth Bunker Capp and Miss Katherina McElroy in Trinity Church, New York, yesterday. Both Mr. Capp and his wife are residents of this city. Mrs. Capp is a granddaughter of Matthias Baldwin, the founder of the locomotive works. She has an annual income.

The engagement of the two young persons—Mr. Capp is twenty-one and his wife is only eighteen years old—was announced several weeks ago. The announcement was received with much opposition by the relatives of Miss McElroy, indeed they declared she never should become Mrs. Capp. Without the consent of her guardians she could not get married in this State. Moreover, they might possibly withhold her income until she became of age. But she wanted to marry Mr. Capp, and before the end of the three years insisted upon by her relatives.

During that time, so her guardian and relatives thought, the girl's affection for Mr. Capp might grow cold. But, whatever else may be said, no one will fail to give Mr. Capp credit for having perseverance. He arranged with Miss McElroy to go to New York, where the matrimonial laws are less harsh with young lovers, and be married in that city.

According to Mrs. Clayton McElroy, Mrs. Capp's sister-in-law, with whom the girl has been living since her mother's death two years ago, Miss McElroy left the house at 2012 Pine Street yesterday morning. Mr. one there knew where she was going. Mr. Capp's relatives refuse to discuss the elopement and its probable consequences. His sister, Mrs. Damon, however, heartily approves of the match.

"OLD SARATOGA" Whiskey, made by Rosskam, Gerstley & Co., has been on the market for over a quarter of a century and has not found its equal. Acker, Merrall & Condit sell it.—Adv.

HOGG TO RUN WITH BRYAN

Texas's ex-Governor Suggested for the Vice Presidency.

NEBRASKAN FAVORS THE IDEA

Boom Started in an Obscure Southwestern Town, but Is Well Received by Friends of the Silver Leader.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 30.—While William J. Bryan and other politicians were making rear-end train speeches at Elgin, near this city, a boom was started for ex-Gov. James Hogg of Texas for second place on the National Democratic ticket, and Mr. Bryan warmly applauded the proposition.

Mr. Bryan, accompanied by Gov. Sayers, ex-Gov. Hogg, and Attorney General Smith, left to-day for Waco, where Mr. Bryan will speak to-morrow. They went via Elgin, a town of some 5,000 inhabitants, a few miles to the south of this city, to make the Waco connection. Arriving at Elgin, the party was received by almost the entire population of the town. Mr. Bryan addressed the crowd for ten or fifteen minutes.

He reviewed the past war briefly, and asserted that the public did not want, nor would they tolerate, the saddling of a large standing army on the Nation. He spoke cheerfully of the campaign for 1900. He assured his hearers that he was in Texas to recuperate and prepare himself for the coming campaign, and announced that the Democrats of the country would find him as loyal to the 16-to-1 theory as ever, and that it should have precedence over everything else if he had his way.

Upon the conclusion of his address, ex-Gov. Hogg spoke briefly along the same lines. Gov. Sayers followed in a like manner, and then the surprise was sprung on the crowd by Attorney Gen. Smith. He extolled Mr. Bryan as a great leader and assured the audience that he would be elected President in 1900. Mr. Smith added that he hoped to see, and knew that he would see, ex-Gov. Hogg occupying the second place on the National ticket, as he would make an excellent running mate for Mr. Bryan.

This created great enthusiasm, and Mr. Bryan applauded heartily with the remainder of the crowd. Cries for Hogg brought him to the front again, and he announced that the honor sought to be thrust upon him was more than he expected; that he did not want any office, and was not looking for any; that he thought the Vice Presidency should go to a Western man.

THE NEBRASKA SENATORSHIP.

Mr. Hayward Is Sinking Very Rapidly and Speculation as to His Successor Is Active.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 30.—Reports received at the capital this evening indicate that Senator-elect M. L. Hayward has but a few hours to live. He will probably die before morning. Politicians have been busy in Nebraska for some time figuring out the successor to be appointed. There have been thus far four names mentioned prominently for the position—ex-Senator W. V. Allen, W. J. Bryan, Gilbert A. Hitchcock, and Gov. Poynter.

The probabilities are that the Fusionists will have considerable trouble in filling the position. Senator Allen is entitled to the appointment, as the rank and file of the Populists look at it, because Hayward defeated him for the position when he was the most active candidate of the Fusionists. Mr. Hitchcock's claims rest on his service as an editor. His paper, The Daily World-Herald of Omaha has been an independent Fusion organ for years. It was with this paper that Bryan sought employment several years ago. The editor was mentioned indifferently for the position at the time Mr. Hayward was stricken, but not until a day or so ago was he seriously considered.

Another story reports Gov. Poynter as preparing to resign in favor of the Lieutenant Governor, who in turn will appoint him to the position. Gossip further reports that Bryan will have to accept the appointment to bring peace to the warring factions. In any event the result is likely to cause trouble in the ranks of Fusionists.

The friends of Editor Hitchcock urge that Senator Allen has filled the office six years and is now occupying a position by appointment, as District Judge in the State. They say that he should be satisfied with what he has received for the present, and wait until next year, taking his chances for election to the position of Senator if a fusion Legislature is elected. The row has become a very animated one. In the meantime Senator-elect Hayward is not dead.

Bryan is said to be keeping out of the fight and favoring neither faction.

BRYAN WILL NOT AID SULZER.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 30.—William J. Bryan's attention having been called to a report from Washington that it was hinted there that he was inclined to favor the nomination of Sulzer for Speaker by the Democratic Congressional contingent, expressed himself as follows in the matter:

"I have not said or written anything for or against any candidate for Speaker. I have not taken any part in the contest and shall not. The Democrats in Congress are entirely competent to settle the question of leadership for themselves, and I have no doubt that the caucus will make a wise selection."

WANTS CONVENTION HERE.

The movement to secure the Republican National Convention for New York next year has a warm supporter in Senator Thomas C. Platt.

"This is the best place to hold the convention," he said last evening, "and I will do all in my power to get it here. The sentiment in the past has always been in favor of the conventions being held in Western cities, but the conditions this time are somewhat different from those which usually exist in Presidential campaigns.

"This time the question of nomination is settled in advance. There is no opposition to the renomination of President McKinley, which prevents the old cry of the selection of a certain city in which to hold the nominating convention as being to the advantage of this or that candidate. I will co-operate with the committee appointed by the Board of Trade and Transportation to bring the convention to New York."

Senator Hanna, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, who has been at the Waldorf-Astoria for several days, has declined to say what city he favors for the holding of the convention, and to all questioners has said that the claims of all cities in the race for the prize will be considered by the National Committee at its meeting on Dec. 15. The impression is general, however, that Chicago will be the successful bidder.

Regarding the Currency bill, which was made public at Washington a few days ago, Senator Platt said:

"The bill which was published the other day is the House bill. I am a member of the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Finance, which drew the financial measure last Summer. At that time we agreed not to discuss the matter until after the introduction of the bill in the Senate. I will say this much about the Senate bill. It differs in many ways from the House bill, except that in the provision for the gold standard is the same."

"What do you think of the objection raised by some of the local bankers to the proposed tax of 1-5 of 1 per centum on their capital stock, surplus, and undivided profits?" he was asked.

"In view of all the circumstances, I do not think it proper for me to discuss the matter at all at this time," he answered.

Senator Platt will be present at the meeting of the sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Finance which will be held in Washington to-morrow morning. The Senate bill will then be prepared for submission to the full committee before being presented to the Senate.

SENATOR McMILLAN'S VIEWS.

Deprecates Trifling with Currency—The Next Vice President.

United States Senator James McMillan of Michigan, who is staying at the Holland House, said last night that he did not believe in trifling too much with the currency.

"I like some of the features of the Senate bill," he went on. "The House measure differs materially from that prepared by the Senate committee, and a conference will be necessary to agree on a uniform bill. If too much is attempted nothing will be accomplished.

"I am of the opinion that the coming session of Congress will complete arrangements for territorial governments in Puerto Rico and Hawaii. Nothing in that direction will be done for some time yet for Cuba or the Philippines, however.

"I do not know who will be nominated for the Vice Presidency at the Republican Convention, but the impression seems to prevail that the choice will fall on a New York man."

THE CRISIS IN KENTUCKY.

State Board Expected to Issue Certificate to Goebel, but Gov. Bradley Will Recognize Taylor.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 30.—The Goebelites no longer make it a secret that they are confident of, being able to control the State Board of Election Commissioners and to compel the issuance of certificates of election to Goebel and the other Democratic candidates. They are betting freely on the outcome and give every other indication that a majority of the board has been brought into line to throw out the votes of the contested counties, and, on the face of the showing left, issue the certificates.

The Republicans have accepted the challenge and are ready for the battle. They realize the almost hopeless fight they would have to make against a board controlled by Goebel, and will resist in every legal way the seating of the Democrats. Gov. Bradley, as already announced, will not recognize the State Board as having any power, and on the face of the returns showing the Republicans to have a majority will recognize Taylor as the Governor and will seat him.

What the Goebelites will do in this contingency has not been developed, but it is safe to predict that having gone so far they will not hesitate to use force to bring the Democratic candidates to the Capitol and seat them. Gov. Bradley has the militia on his side. The force of the Goebelites has not been shown, but it is known that all the Goebel partisans have been urged to be in Frankfort on the day of the inauguration.

There is a bare possibility that the State Board will refuse to do Goebel's bidding, and will issue the certificates to those lawfully elected, but the confidence of the Goebelites and their willingness to back up their confidence with money is generally taken to mean that the two men necessary have given their pledge to do as Goebel commands. This brings Kentucky almost face to face with a revolution.

The meeting of the State Election Commission to canvass the vote of Nov. 7, called for Saturday, Dec. 2, has been postponed till Monday, Dec. 4.

GOV. BRADLEY IS DENOUNCED.

Kentucky Democratic Congressional Convention Also Indorses Goebel.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 30.—The Seventh District Congressional Convention, which was expected to sound the ante-election keynote for the Goebel Democracy as well as to nominate a candidate to succeed Evan Settle, deceased, convened to-day, but owing to a tie-up in the Committee on Resolutions it accomplished nothing this afternoon. The hitch in the committee arose over the question of reaffirming the platform of the Louisville Convention at which Goebel was nominated.

It is understood that John R. Allen, leading candidate for the Congressional nomination, while he supported Goebel, is a dissenter from the platform as to the indorsement of the Goebel election law. Speeches of the leaders breathed denunciation against Gov. Bradley for military interference and also against Judge Toney of Louisville for interfering with the Louisville election by injunction.

Two members of the Committee on Resolutions who objected to reaffirming the Louisville platform gave in, and the platform reaffirmed both the Chicago platform of 1896 and the Louisville platform, together with a denunciation of Gov. Bradley, which was adopted.

The resolutions say:

We condemn in unqualified terms the interference with elections by military power or Federal authorities, and further condemn the use of the injunction or mandamus to control elections. We think such interference by any of the above agencies unconstitutional and destructive of free Government. Such interference invalidates the election wherever used. We believe that on a fair ascertainment of the result of the late election, the entire Democratic ticket was elected, and we have faith and confidence in the fairness, integrity, and fitness of the State Electoral Commission in arriving at the true results of the election.

The convention adjourned till to-morrow after taking sixty-three ballots without a nomination.

THIRD AVENUE POWER FAILS.

Iron in the Conduits Diverts the Current—Cars Stalled and Passengers Inconvenienced.

There were many annoying delays on the Third Avenue surface road yesterday. These began early in the afternoon, and continued well into the night. The main scene of the trouble was south of Chatham Square, although there was more or less annoyance between the latter point and Sixth Street.

Officials of the road, when asked for an explanation, attributed the trouble to the presence of a lot of iron which had been left in the conduits. This served to draw off and divert the current. Employes of the company will be busy for the next few days removing all the unnecessary iron.

The trouble began about 4 o'clock, the cars stopping at various points. This happened at intervals of a few minutes for several hours. Workmen were sent all along the line to ascertain the cause. To increase the power the lights were extinguished, and the good-natured passengers sat in the darkened cars until patience ceased to be a virtue.

There was much switching at Chatham Square, Grand Street, and Sixth Street, and this permitted the operation of the road above the last-mentioned thoroughfare. Some of the cars south of Chatham Square were practically stalled for nearly five hours.

One of the peculiar results of the trouble was that the cars of the Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery Railway Company were sandwiched in between the stalled cars in Park Row and also had to come to a standstill, a circumstance that called forth from passengers emphatic remarks. Many were on their way to dinner and most of these left the stranded cars and sought other means of transportation.

At the outset the persons in the cars got plenty of exercise. The electric energy would return when least expected and the cars, moving with a sudden jerk, sent the annoyed occupants in all directions. This feature of the blockade threatened serious results, and the motormen were instructed to keep their switches closed and to test them at brief intervals until power was found to be on.

Poland! Poland! Poland! Poland! Try it. Poland Water Depot, 8 Park Pl., N. Y. —Adv.

EVANS' ALE. —Adv.

Fast Train Service to Chicago and St. Louis Via Pennsylvania Railroad. Through solid vestibule trains of Pullman palace cars and coaches. See time table in another column.

er was sent against left tackle for five yards. Seneca then found a hole at right tackle and carried the ball to Columbia's thirty-yard line. It was a splendid run. Weeks got in his way, but Seneca sent him reeling to the ground, and then jumped over him. Morley managed to get him when a touch-down seemed imminent. Miller tried the line without a gain, and then Hudson dropped back five yards for a goal from the field, but failed.

Morley kicked from Columbia's twenty-five-yard line to the centre. Here Metoxen grabbed the ball and rushed it back ten yards. He fumbled, but managed to recover the ball. Miller gained four yards between Wright and Longacre, and Metoxen gained another yard at the same place in the line. A moment later Seneca skirted left end, and with only Weeks in front of him made a dash for a touch-down. Weeks downed him on Columbia's ten-yard line, making a brilliant tackle. The play that netted this gain of thirty yards was an entirely new formation to the experts on the side lines. It was a double formation, ten men directing the attack against one side of the line, and the man with the ball running alone and without interference. The play completely outwitted the Columbia men.

On the Indians' next play Miller got around right for three yards, and then Hudson dropped back to the 20-yard line and kicked a goal from the field.

On the kick-off Bruce sent the ball to the Indians' 20-yard line and Hudson rushed it back ten yards. After Seneca had made four yards through the line Wheelock punted to Weeks on Columbia's 40-yard line. Weeks made a splendid run back of fifteen yards. Successive gains by Weeks and Larendon netted Columbia six yards. Then on a double pass Morley, aided by Larendon's good interference, got around the Indians' left end for twenty-five yards. This was Columbia's first good gain. On the next play, however, Morley fumbled the ball and Hudson fell on it for the Indians.

BRILLIANT TACKLE BY WEEKS.

The first play tried by the Indians was the same double formation that succeeded early in the half. Ten players charged the line and swept it back while Seneca unaided ran around left end. Weeks was the only opposing player in Seneca's path. He made a beautiful tackle after Seneca had run forty-five yards. Indeed, the tackle was so hard that the runner lost the ball and Smyth fell on it for Columbia on her 40-yard line. Wilson immediately kicked the ball to the Indians' 30-yard line. Hudson caught the ball, but was downed by Slocovitch before he could start. Seneca then carried the ball twenty yards around left end. Neidlinger seemed to be unable to stop plays around this end of the line, and he was taken out, McCaskell going to left end. In the last play Morley had his hand cut, but he continued to play.

Metoxen gained five yards near centre, but on the next play Miller was thrown for a loss. Wheelock then kicked to Wilson on Columbia's 30-yard line and Wilson returned the ball to the centre of the field. On the next play the ball was passed to Seneca, and, aided by the interference, well formed, of Metoxen, Scholder, and Hudson, he ran around left end for fifty-five yards and a touch-down. Wheelock kicked a goal. Score: Indians 11, Columbia 0.

The gains that were being made around Columbia's left end did not please Coach Sanford, and Slocovitch was placed at left end to break up these plays. Bruce kicked to Pierce on the Indians' twenty-yard line, and the ball was carried by fifteen yards. After Metoxen had hit the line for five yards, Seneca tried for another one of his long runs around left end, but this time Larendon and Slocovitch got into the play, and Seneca was downed for a small loss.

On the next play Columbia obtained the ball, Weeks and Larendon made gains that netted eight yards. Wilson then tried for a goal from the field. The ball fell short, Miller gathering it up on the twenty-yard line. He ran it back to the forty-yard line, where there was a fierce scrimmage, Miller gaining two yards, and he and Morley being temporarily laid out. The Indians advanced the ball to the centre, and lost it on downs. Columbia then tried a double pass, but lost ground, and Wilson punted to the Indians' forty-yard line. Rodgers brought the ball back to Columbia's thirty-seven-yard line, making a splendid run of about thirty-five yards. There was a fumble on the next play, the Indians losing three yards. Hudson again tried for a goal, and failed. After the exchange of punts Columbia finally got the ball on her thirty-five-yard line, Wheelock easily outpunting Wilson.

THE INDIANS RUSH THINGS.

The Indians then began rushing the ball, and soon had it within one yard of Columbia's goal. In one of these plays Seneca went through the left end of the line for ten yards, dragging three Columbia men with him. With only one yard to a touch-down Metoxen was pushed over the line. Hudson kicked goal. It was a drop kick, no one holding the ball. Score: Indians, 17; Columbia, 0.

The Indians scored again before the half ended. They got the ball on their fifty-yard line after a punt, and used every conceivable line and open play with success. Miller was pushed over for a touch-down. Hudson again kicked a goal without aid. In one of the plays, in which Wheelock gained five yards, he and Morley had a collision, and Morley was badly battered, but he would not quit. Weeks, by some splendid tackling, stopped at least two touchdowns; downing a runner each time when he apparently had a clean field. Previous to the last touch-down Hudson made an unsuccessful attempt at a goal from the field after Wheelock and Miller in two runs had carried the ball from the centre to Columbia's twenty-yard line. The score at the end of the first half was: Indians, 23; Columbia, 0.

The Columbia players, particularly Morley, were pretty badly used up. Morley was taken out of the game soon after the second half opened, and Denman put in his place. Wilson tried for a goal when Columbia got the ball on her forty-yard line. It was a poor attempt. The ball fell on the Indians' twenty-yard line, where Seneca grabbed it and carried it back twenty yards. Seneca then made another sensational run of thirty-five yards around Columbia's left end, and Miller and Metoxen carried the ball ten yards further into Columbia's territory. Miller, Seneca, and Metoxen made successive gains, which brought the ball to Columbia's fifteen-yard line, and then Miller got between left end and tackle, scoring a touch-down. Hudson kicked goal. Score: Indians, 29; Columbia, 0.

THE PLAY BECOMES ROUGH.

The play was getting very rough. Larendon had to give way to Berrian, and Smyth, who was fast losing strength, was relieved by Williams. The new men made a good impression for a few plays, but the Indians' line braced up again and became well-nigh impregnable. After a succession of line plays and punts by both teams, a forward pass gave the ball to the Indians on Columbia's fifty-yard line. The Indians found a soft spot in Columbia's line at left tackle, where Williams, a substitute, was playing. Miller on the first play broke through and ran forty yards, Weeks making a brilliant tackle. Miller soon had the ball over for another touch-down. Hudson this time failed to kick goal. Score: Indians, 34; Columbia, 0.

Miller was now relieved by Johnson. The latter was used as soon as the Indians obtained the ball after the kick-off. Johnson, Seneca, Metoxen, and Wheelock were sent against the line for good gains on play after play. The exhausted Columbia team was doing its best, but it was a useless resistance, the ball finally resting on Columbia's seven-yard line. Here the Indians had a short breathing spell, and then Seneca got around left end for three yards. On the following play Johnson ran around right end for another touch-down. Hudson kicked a goal, and the score was 40 to 0.

Wilson, Columbia's Captain, who was now staggering around the field, was forced to quit, and Putnam went in to run the team. Wilson was a picture of despair, and for a while could not be consoled. Hudson, who had done excellent work for the Indians, was replaced by Roberts.

About three minutes before the game ended Putnam fumbled a punt and the Indians got the ball on Columbia's forty-five-yard line. In this play Slocovitch used up Scholder, the Indians' right end, and he was compelled to quit. Sickles taking his place. After Johnson and Seneca had advanced the ball eighteen yards Roberts got it on a double pass and carried it around Columbia's left end to the five-yard line. Weeks, by a fine tackle, stopping the run. Rodgers on the next play scored a touch-down. Roberts failed to kick goal. Score: Indians, 45; Columbia, 0.

Just before time was called Wheelock had carried the ball from Columbia's forty-five-yard line around left end to within eighteen yards of a touch-down. The game ended before the teams could line up.

The teams played as follows:

Columbia.	Positions.	Indians.
Neidlinger, McKaskell, Slocovitch	Left end	Rodgers
Smyth, Williams	Left tackle	Pierce, Scott
Longacre	Left guard	Redwater
Wright	Centre	Smith
Miller	Right guard	Warren
Bruce, Slocovitch, McKaskell	Right tackle	Wheelock
	Right end	Scholder, Sickles
Wilson, Putnam	Quarter back	Hudson, Roberts
Weeks	Left half back	Seneca
Morley, Berrian	Right half back	Miller, Johnson
Larendon, Denman	Full back	Metoxen

Score—Indians, 45; Columbia, 0. Touch-downs—Seneca, 2; Miller, 2; Metoxen, Johnson, Rodgers. Goal from field—Hudson. Goals from touch-downs—Hudson, 4; Wheelock. Referee—E. D. Wrightington. Umpire—Dr. Bouvard.

THE LACKAWANNA WRECK

No Additions Likely to the List of Six Collision Victims.

TRYING TO PLACE THE BLAME

The Railroad Men Censure Engineer Riordan—No Block-Signal System on the Line.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 30.—The number of those who lost their lives in last night's collision on the Boonton branch of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, just west of the road's depot at Barclay Street, this city, has not been swelled to-day, although at least one other death was feared. There is now a reasonable probability that there will be no addition to the list. Among the six who were killed was an entire family, composed of parents and two children, who were on their way to spend Thanksgiving with friends in New York. The revised list of dead is as follows:

ALEXANDER CRAIG, forty-two years old, business manager of the Scranton Tribune, Scranton, Penn.

ESTHER SANDFORD CRAIG, forty years old, wife of Alexander Craig.

ESTHER CRAIG, fifteen years old, their daughter.

JESSIE CRAIG, eleven years old, also their daughter.

MRS. MAY BURT ROE, wife of David Roe, Jr., a dry goods merchant of Ithaca, N. Y., who is in St. Joseph's Hospital here.

WALTER J. WELLBROCK, nineteen years old, a Cornell University student, son of Henry Wellbrock of 899 West End Avenue, New York.

The bodies of all but Mrs. Roe were shipped away from here to-day. There are at least twenty-four persons seriously or painfully hurt as a result of the collision, though some of them have left St. Joseph's Hospital and some whose injuries have not yet been publicly noticed are being cared for by friends. The two survivors most seriously injured are Sterling S. Smith, who has a wife in Minnesota, but is making his home now with his mother, Mrs. J. J. Smith, at 173 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, and Francis H. White, a druggist of Ithaca, N. Y. Both are in St. Joseph's Hospital. The former's left leg has been amputated and the latter is suffering from internal injuries. Mr. Smith will recover unless unforeseen complications develop in his case, and Mr. White's condition looks much more favorable to-night than it did twenty-four hours ago.

GEN. WHEELER'S GRITTY NEPHEW.

Mr. Smith, who is Gen. Joseph Wheeler's nephew, resembles that veteran fighter in the possession of grit. When the rescuers went to lift his maimed body from the wreckage his first words were: "Don't bother about me now. There are some ladies underneath. Take them first." He had been in the hospital but a few moments when it was decided that his left leg must be amputated just below the knee, and the surgeons told him the operation would be necessary. "Gentlemen," he replied, "I have lost a good many things in my life before, but this is the first time for me to lose a leg." Then he took cocaine and was operated upon by Drs. J. S. Smith and Henry Park. He has been able to-day to see his mother and another caller.

A wrecking crew got to work with a derrick about 2 o'clock this morning at the scene of the disaster, and daylight saw the debris practically all cleared away. The broken lumber had been burned to furnish light for the rescuers to work by, and portions of the smashed cars, still attached to the trucks, were hauled to Kingsland, where there are the shops of the company. The iron wreckage was removed on flat cars, and ashes and gravel were spread over the roadbed at the point of collision. Holiday idlers by the hundreds have visited the spot to-day and have hunted pretty industriously for mementoes, but there was little left to reward their search.

The matter of fixing the blame for the accident is soon to be taken up. County Physician C. F. McBride has directed Coroner Yates to hold an inquest upon the body of Mrs. Roe, and this will take place in the County Court House before a jury of six men within two or three weeks. It has not yet been decided to make any arrest in the case.

Engineer John Riordan of the train which crashed into the express is in no condition to testify now. He is in a state of collapse at his home in Newark, and no one but his doctor and nurse is allowed to see him. In fact it is feared that the strain he is under may make him insane. The railroad authorities are also making an investigation of the tragedy, having meanwhile suspended the crew of Train No. 96, which struck the express. Officials of the road place the blame altogether on the shoulders of the engineer of No. 96, yet Riordan has been railroading thirty years without having had an accident before and is considered uncommonly cautious.

HOW THE WRECK OCCURRED.

The circumstances of the wreck, as further investigation has developed them to-day, were peculiar. The east-bound express train, No. 6, consisting of nine cars, two passenger coaches being on the rear end, had slowed up just west of the Barclay Street Station, waiting for the west-bound train, No. 7, which is due here at 7:42 P. M., and had got in just about on time, to pull out. No. 6 was fifty minutes late, and No. 96, the local from Phillipsburg, which crashed into it from behind, was nearly twenty-five minutes late, and had been trying to make up time. As No. 6 lay waiting west of the station it was hidden not only by a sharp curve, but by the shoulder of a big hill, around which the track runs from the engineer of No. 96.

Riordan, who stuck to his post till the last, reversing his lever and putting on the air brakes hard, has said that he did not know that No. 6 was due to stop at Paterson, though employes of the road say he ought to have known it. Very few of the Lackawanna trains pass here without stopping. The company officials say Riordan should have known that No. 6 was just ahead, because both at Dover and Lincoln Park he had been stopped by the flagman of No. 6, and had picked him up. The second delay, that at Lincoln Park, was due to the fact that No. 6 developed a hot box. When No. 6 finally stopped here, railroad officials say, the flagman ran back to signal No. 96, and he had only got past two telegraph poles when the local came rushing around the curve and the crash occurred.

County Physician McBride declined to-night to express his opinion as to where the blame belonged, though he said he had formed one. "If I did not think the collision was due to negligence," said he, "I should not have ordered the inquest."

STATEMENTS OF OFFICIALS.

General Superintendent E. G. Russell of the Lackawanna yesterday gave out the following official statement in regard to the wreck:

"Train 96 overtook No. 6 at Dover and picked up a flagman who had been sent back. It overtook No. 6 again at Lincoln Park, a few miles west of Paterson, and the No. 6 flagman returned to his train. Those in charge of Train 96 were fully cognizant of the whereabouts of No. 6. Notwithstanding this, No. 96 seems to have entered Paterson at a careless rate of speed and to have run into No. 6, which was doing her regular discharging of passengers.

"I understand that the head of No. 6, which was a long train, was at the station. The cars telescoped were day coaches, but the five ahead were a sleeper, two chair coaches, a baggage car and a smoker. Under the circumstances those in charge of No. 96 seem to be wholly culpable. All the crew have been suspended, and the fullest investigation will be made."

Division Superintendent R. Du Puy, who will conduct the company's investigation, said that it would not be commenced for a day or two. "All our energies," he said, "are bent now on making it as comfortable as can be for the people who were hurt. After that it will be our care to find out as much as possible about this disaster, so as to prevent, if possible, the occurrence of another one under similar circumstances."

NO BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM.

Mr. Du Puy said that there was no block signal system on the section of the road where the disaster occurred, though the work of installing the Hall automatic block signal system, which is used on several of the greatest railroads in the United States, had been in progress for several weeks, and it would shortly have been in operation. This was undertaken by the new management of the road. The line is protected by the system as far as Morristown, on the Morris and Essex Division, but nowhere else.

"All that any block signal system does," said Mr. Du Puy, "is to signal the engineer by a red bar held horizontally over the track, or some similar signal, that the preceding train has not yet left the block upon which he is about entering. There is nothing to prevent him from running by the signal, and in this case Engineer Riordan was as effectually 'blocked'—in fact, more so—than had the block signal been in operation, for the flagman had climbed upon his engine and told him that the train was ahead.

"Within the last two weeks," Mr. Du Puy continued, "we have inaugurated another safeguard, called the 'fusee.' The orders are that when a train is stopped and goes ahead again one of these should be lighted and left between the rails. It burns with a brilliant green light for ten minutes. It seems the flagman did not do this, and for this he is to blame." The flagman was carried for no other purpose than to guard against a rear-end collision, Mr. Du Puy said. William Snedeker, the flagman, lives in Scranton, and is believed to have gone to his home.

Mr. Chapman, Chief Clerk to Superintendent Russell, said that the company's report showed that the express train came to a halt about 7:45 P. M. "The rules of the company require," said he, "that on the double-track system, while a train is in a station, approaching trains shall keep well outside the station. So far as we can learn there were eight or ten people in the rear coach of the express train and forty in the next one.

Snedeker, the flagman, dropped off while the train was still in motion, and ran back with his lantern. He says that No. 6 had not stopped more than forty-five seconds before No. 96 ran into her. Riordan is evidently to blame. He disobeyed the rule of the company that an engineer must have his train under control when coming into the station."

DISPOSING OF THE DEAD.

The bodies of the persons killed were all taken from the wreck to the undertaking rooms of Dufford & Vandervoort, at 271 Main Street, where friends identified them. Little Jessie Craig was the only victim who was alive when taken out, so far as can be ascertained, and she only lived a few moments. The Craigs were identified by Mrs. Lambert S. Quackenbush of 3 East Ninety-fourth Street, New York, with whom they were to have eaten their Thanksgiving dinner, as they had for several years past.

There also came to identify them James Craig, brother of Alexander Craig, and Mr. Sandford, father of Mrs. Alexander Craig, both of New Haven, Conn., where the dead man's woman formerly resided. Levi S. Richard, editor of the Scranton Tribune, and his entire staff also came to town, and he identified the Craigs. The bodies of the entire family were shipped to New Haven to-day, and the funeral service will be held there on Sunday.

Young Wellbrock's body was shipped to New York to-day. He was on his way home to spend Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wellbrock, of 899 West End Avenue. He was born in Jersey City, and for several years attended Trinity and Dwight Schools. He entered Cornell University this Fall. His funeral will take place on Saturday.

Mrs. Roe's body will be shipped to Chester, N. Y., the home of John W. Roe, her father-in-law, where the funeral will take place at 10 o'clock on Saturday. She and her husband were on their way from Ithaca to visit her sister, Mrs. William E. Sayer of Newburgh, N. Y., who is dangerously ill, and who has not learned of Mrs. Roe's death.

HIS WIFE KILLED BESIDE HIM.

David Roe, Jr., who is suffering chiefly from contusions, was seen to-day in St. Joseph's Hospital. Although he lamented piteously at first over his wife's death, he is quite calm now, and spoke quietly of the disaster. He is still confined to bed, but hopes to be able to go on to the funeral of his wife.

"We were sitting near the Craigs," said he, "and chatting when the crash occurred, and we were jammed violently forward. The lights went out in an instant. I was pinned down as in a vise, one of my legs being caught between a cushion and a seat rail and the other between two cushions. I knew that my wife was dead because she never made a murmur. And there I had to stay for a full half hour, my dead wife beside me, in pitch darkness and with people groaning, screaming, cursing, and praying all about me, as their different dispositions moved them. Finally they came and cut me out and put me on a stretcher and carried me to the ambulance."

Charles Spittel, formerly of this town, but now manager of a silk plant at Scranton, Penn., is in bed suffering from bruises and shock, and so is Mrs. Spittel, at the home of her brother, Samuel Smith, 159 Fair Street. They had come on with their little boy, Ronald, to spend Thanksgiving with friends here, and were in the next to the last car of the express, the one in which all the fatalities occurred. The Spittels had been chatting with the Craigs, and had stepped to the vestibule platform when the train stopped, thinking the station had been reached.

Mr. Spittel stood on the platform, the vestibule being open, when the sudden crash sent him violently against the door jamb, and then threw him off the platform, so that he fell between the cars. His wife fell back on the floor of the car. The Spittels were removed to the office of J. T. Gillson, and then sent to Mr. Smith's. Their boy was not hurt. They all realize that they missed death very narrowly.

The only person on Train No. 96 who was stunned by the collision, though many were cut by flying glass, was William H. Dickinson of 146 East Thirty-first Street, Paterson. He was on his way to the door when knocked down by the crash, and was revived by some one throwing ice water in his face. He received severe contusions.

J. M. Howe, Jr., son of Register-elect Howe, left St. Joseph's Hospital for his home in Brooklyn to-day. Another who went home from the hospital is Samuel Mendelsohn of Wilkesbarre, Penn., whose mother came after him. William Burritt and Daniel Maxwell, respectively the fireman and conductor of Train No. 96, are still in the hospital and quite badly injured.

NARROW ESCAPE OF FIVE MEN.

Horse of a Newark Shooting Party Killed at a Railway Crossing.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 30.—There was a narrow escape from a serious accident at Bunns crossing of the New York and Greenwood Lake Division of the Erie Railroad early to-day. Five men were in a wagon driving from Newark for a day's shooting at Midvale. It was not yet daylight when they reached the crossing, which is a dangerous one. They drove upon the rails, and just as their horse stepped upon the tracks he was hit by a locomotive drawing an east-bound train. The horse was killed. The wagon was overturned, but the men rolled clear of the wheels of the train and escaped serious injury.

The men were Henry Hepburn of 8 Mount Prospect Avenue, Newark; his brother, John, of the same address; Edward Ellis, Joseph McGuire, and William Hess. Henry Hepburn received several severe cuts. The horse killed was borrowed by the men from Dr. A. G. Voght of Newark.

Two months ago Juliette Rafferty was killed at the same crossing. She, with three relatives, was in a surrey. They drove upon the rails at the crossing in front of a train. All were severely injured and Miss Rafferty died.

Lord Mayor Presents a Flag.

Lord Mayor Daniel T. Tallon and John E. Redmond witnessed a largely attended drill and flag presentation of the Irish Volunteers at Sulzer's Harlem River Park last night. After the regiment was reviewed by Col. Lynch, Miss Nora Maloney of 164 East One Hundred and Seventh Street presented a silk Irish flag to the Lord Mayor, who said that he was grateful in being permitted to present the flag to the volunteers. An engrossed copy of the resolutions adopted by the Municipal Assembly, giving the Lord Mayor and Mr. Redmond the freedom of the city, was then presented to them by Alderman John T. McMahon.

Many Chicago Bankrupts.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The month just closed shows the largest business in bankruptcy matters ever conducted in the United States District Court here. Since Nov. 1 the number of petitions in bankruptcy filed with Clerk T. C. MacMillan amounted to 252, compared with 187 the preceding month. The number filed since the first of the year up to Aug. 1 was 1,450. During the month of November the total of indebtedness scheduled by the petitioners was about $7,000,000.

Farewell Sermon Causes Tears.

The Rev. William Henry Brown, pastor of the Chapel of St. Paul, at College Point, L. I., preached his farewell sermon yesterday. Many of the congregation were moved to tears. After the service the congregation met in the Sunday school room, and on its behalf F. E. Snyder presented the retiring pastor with a silver communion service. The Rev. Mr. Brown will on Sunday next preach his first sermon as rector of St. Barnabas's Church, in Brooklyn.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

WEBER PIANOS

"A harmonious creation of art."
"An inspiration to a musical temperament."
"Supports the voice most admirably."

"The achievements of Albert Weber, Senior, in the realm of tone production, like the violin masterpieces of Cremona, still stand unrivalled."

In addition to the regular styles of Grands and Uprights in the choicest woods, we are displaying some special designs in LOUIS XIV., RENAISSANCE, and COLONIAL cases, and will give estimate on other designs conforming to any architectural requirements.

Inspection Invited. Correspondence Solicited. Old Instruments taken in exchange.

WEBER WAREROOMS,
Corner Fifth Ave. and 16th St., N. Y.
605 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

PLATT OFF TO WASHINGTON

Leaves New York To-day to Attend the Opening of Congress.

ODELL TO ACT IN HIS ABSENCE

Republican Leader Will Confer with S. F. Nixon Before He Goes and with the Governor on His Return.

United States Senator Thomas C. Platt will go to Washington some time this afternoon in order to be on hand for the opening of Congress next Monday. Before he leaves New York he will have a talk with S. Fred Nixon of Chautauqua County, who is coming down to see his political chief for the purpose of learning his wishes concerning the appointments to the Chairmanships of the various Assembly committees, which Mr. Nixon will have at his disposal when he is re-elected Speaker of the lower house of the New York Legislature.

It is not expected by the Republican leaders that a final decision will be reached at this conference, although it is thought that the preliminary programme will be well outlined. The Chairmanship of the Cities Committee probably will be settled before Mr. Platt leaves. Two names have been prominently mentioned in connection with this place, a position of great importance at every session of the Legislature, but which promises to be more than usually so during the coming Winter because of the number of proposed bills which will affect the cities of the State.

The two Assemblymen named for the place are Edward H. Fallows, who represents the Twenty-first District in this city, and Merton E. Lewis of Monroe County. Some weeks ago Mr. Platt declared in favor of the appointment of Mr. Fallows, but since that time it has become known that Mr. Fallows may not accept.

According to certain of his friends he wants to learn the character of some of the proposed Republican legislation before he determines to place himself in a position which would perhaps bring him considerable abuse and criticism as well as hard work. At the last election Mr. Fallows was supported by the Citizens' Union as well as by the organization Republicans, and it is understood that he desires to give the former body consideration during his coming term.

Some of the more radical Republicans have been demanding sweeping changes in the charter of this city, as well as other legislation, which would affect New York, and it is said that Mr. Fallows wants to know exactly what would be expected of him should he become the head of the Cities Committee. He will see Mr. Nixon to-day.

Mr. Platt said last night:

"I will see Mr. Nixon before I go to Washington to-morrow and we will have a little talk about legislative matters."

He was told that a rumor was in circulation that a general conference of Republican leaders would be held before his departure, at which all the proposed measures would be discussed. Mr. Platt declared that there was no foundation for this report, and that he did not expect to see Gov. Roosevelt and other State leaders until the latter part of next week.

He expects to come over from Washington a week from to-morrow night, and it is understood that he will see the Governor on the following day and have a further talk about the State Constabulary bill which Mr. Platt wants to see become a law before the Legislature adjourns next Spring.

Chairman Odell will come down from his home in Newburg to-day to assume charge of State affairs during the absence of Mr. Platt. If he gets here in time he will be present at the talk between Mr. Platt and Mr. Nixon.

It is expected that many members of the Assembly who are anxious to secure good committee places will see Mr. Nixon during his stay in the city.

Senator Platt was at the Hoffman House last evening for the first time. He was looking for a friend from the country who was expected, but did not arrive. After shaking hands with James Oliver of Paradise Park, Senator Platt returned to the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

UP-TOWN POST OFFICE BILL.

Measure to be Introduced in Congress Is Being Drafted.

United States Attorney Burnett is drafting the bill to be introduced in Congress by Senator Platt, providing for a Post Office up town, to relieve the congestion of mails at the present down-town office.

Postmaster Van Cott wants the new building near the Grand Central Station, where it will also be handy to ferries, over which the mails are transferred. His idea embraces the forwarding of mails for the down-town business section from the up-town office to the present office by pneumatic tubes.

TO REBUILD LUZON RAILROAD.

Locomotives and Material Bought—Capt. Michaels to Take Charge.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 30.—Capt. K. S. Michaels, United States Volunteers, sails to-morrow for Manila via San Francisco to report to Gen. Otis for duty in rebuilding the railroad in Luzon, now in the hands of the War Department.

Two locomotive have been sent from the east to Manila, and just before Capt. Michaels left Washington he purchased on Government account, twelve miles of heavy steel rails, which will be used in rebuilding the portions of the line destroyed by the insurgents during the hostilities about Manila. The road is to be standardized and furnished with modern equipment.

Capt. Michaels was Secretary of War Alger's Master of Railroad Transportation at Tampa during the Spainsh-American war.

BEST & CO
LILLIPUTIAN BAZAAR

Our Boys' Clothing

Is made right, because made by Boys' Tailors.

It is made economically, because made in large quantities.

Therefore, you are not only sure here of correct style, perfect fit, and best wear, but lowest prices as well.

Sailor Suits, serges and handsome mixed cheviots, $5.75 to $7.75. Double-breasted Suits, fancy cheviots, all wool, $5.00 to $8.50. Youths' Suits, (Long Trousers), newest designs of cheviots and worsteds, $10.00 to $16.50.

60-62 West 23d St.

TURNED KEY ON THIEVES.

Herman Buek Saved Upper Rooms from Invasion, but Lost Silverware and Thanksgiving Dinner.

The house of Herman Buek, a retired merchant, living at 1,019 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, was robbed late on Wednesday night. The thieves took a quantity of old silver, linen, clothing, and the material for a Thanksgiving dinner stored in the cupboard. Such of the material as was cooked was eaten at once, an dthis was washed down with a gallon of choice wine, set aside for the family feast.

Then the thieves gathered up the valuables, and in doing so made so much noise that Mr. Buek heard them. He stole quietly down the basement stairs, and, locking the door at the foot of them, hastened back to his bedroom on the second floor and retired to await daylight.

When he had heard the burglars leave the house he went down again and found that the door was still locked, but that the burglars had tried to force it open.

Yesterday morning, after getting through with their night's labors at the Elizabeth Street Station, Detectives Finley and Germerhauser strolled up the Bowery, and on the way met "Nigger" Turner, whose real name is John Travis, twenty-seven years old, and who lives at 12 Pell Street, with John Foley, a white man, twenty-three years old, of 180 Park Row, coming down the street. The men were loaded with bundles and somewhat the worse for liquor.

The detectives arrested the men and took them to the police station, where the bundles were opened and examined. The prisoners could give no satisfactory account of the possession of such valuable property as they contained, and they were taken to the Centre Street Police Court yesterday and remanded by Magistrate Pool back to the police to enable them to look for an owner of the booty.

In the afternoon a general alarm was sent out from Brooklyn Police Headquarters to the effect that the house of Mr. Buek had been robbed, with a list of what had been taken.

This description tallied with the things found in the possession of the two prisoners and they were confronted by Mr. Buek at the Elizabeth Street station last night. He at once recognized the colored man as one who formerly worked for him at the house and one whom he had long known. He told the police that his house had been entered on Wednesday night last. The prisoners will be taken to Brooklyn for trial.

THE ARREST OF M. J. SAMPSON.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Michael J. Sampson, arrested at a village near Limerick last Tuesday on the request of the Chief of Detectives of Chicago, charged with embezzlement, was arraigned at the Bow Street Police Court here to-day. A representative of the United States Embassy said the Embassy had no knowledge of the affair, and asked for a remand to enable the Embassy to communicate with Washington as to whether the authorities there wished for the prisoner's extradition. A remand until Saturday was granted.

It is understood that Sampson is a defaulting ex-auditor of the City of Chicago. A receipt for 2,800 lire paid for jewelry purchased in Rome and pledged in Dublin was found on him.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The police authorities to-day telegraphed to Secretary of State Hay at Washington asking if extradition papers for Michael J. Sampson had been honored by the British Government. The message was sent upon the receipt of a cablegram from the Inspector of Police of Tipperary, Ireland, announcing the arrest there of Sampson, and requesting the sending of an officer with the necessary extradition papers.

Sampson is wanted here to answer a charge of embezzlement of city funds while auditor of the Waterworks Department.

November Sea Bathing to Win Bet.

Miss May Yerby, a High School graduate, and who lives at 463a Prospect Avenue, Brooklyn, went in bathing at the foot of Twentieth Street, Bath Beach, on Wednesday and again yesterday. She states that it was done to win wagers of candy and gloves with some friends, who said that she would not dare go into the water.

Passengers on the Germanic.

Among the passengers who arrived last night on the steamer Germanic were Austin Corbin, Capt. O. Danielson, Major Frewen, Prof. L. J. B. Lincoln, J. B. Pitchford, and F. L. Webster.

Answers to Correspondents.

"X."—The poem "The Old Haunts" was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Nov. 13. It was taken from and credited to F. Colburn Clarke, in The Other Side, a Chicago publication.

"SUBSCRIBER."—There is no fast steamer due this week from either Hamburg or Bremen. At this season many of the German line's fast steamers are put on the Mediterranean service.

"READER."—Should President McKinley die, he would be succeeded by the Secretary of State. The order of succession after the Secretary of State is, according to law, as follows: Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary of War, Attorney General, Postmaster General, Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of the Interior.

"ISAAC LEIGH."—There have been three calls for troops made by Great Britain since the war began. The first portion of the reserves were ordered to be in readiness for mobilization shortly before war was declared. After this had been done (by President Krüger's demand that the British troops retire from the borders of the Transvaal) the reserves were ordered out at the same time that Parliament was summoned to vote funds. Since then there have been two further calls for troops, the last being announced a few days ago. If, in addition to these, Great Britain wants more men she will be forced to ask for volunteers or to impress citizens into the army.

Theodore A. Kohn & Son,
JEWELERS,
56 West 23d Street.
Invite your inspection of their choice stock of Fine Diamond Jewelry.

SHOT GIRL WHO REFUSED HIM.

Then Puts Mortally Wounded Himself—The Girl Will Recover.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 30.—Nicholas Putz, a laborer, shot Mary Wielgosznska, who resisted his attentions, and then turned the weapon upon himself, to-night. The girl was shot through the neck and will recover. Putz shot himself in each breast and cannot live until morning.

Ten days ago Putz made threats to kill Miss Wielgosznska unless she would marry him and was arrested. The girl refused to prosecute. To-night Putz accosted her at the corner of Adams and Superior Streets. She appealed to passers-by, as Putz had a revolver in his hand. She was told to seek safety in a cigar store at the corner. Putz flashed his weapon in the faces of those who would restrain him, entered the store, fired once at the girl, and then shot himself.

MAIL SAVED FROM FIRE.

Sub-Station D of the Post Office, located at 25 and 27 Third Avenue, and extending through to 3 St. Mark's Place, was damaged by fire to the extent of $1,200 last evening. Much mail matter that was in danger of being destroyed by the flames was saved and taken to the General Post Office Building, where it will have to be reassorted.

George Davidson, a letter carrier, discovered the fire and gave an alarm. Joseph Gans, Chief Clerk, telephoned to the General Post Office and near-by sub-stations for help to remove the mail matter. The police of the Fifth Street Station were notified, and Sergt. Todd with forty policemen were soon at the fire.

The flames spread from the basement to the first floor, and for several minutes burned fiercely. Owing to the location of two ponderous machines used in the pneumatic-tube service, which were on the second floor directly above the fire, the firemen, under the leadership of Deputy Chief Burns, were much handicapped, as they feared the machines would crash through to the basement. The flames, however, were extinguished before they did much damage to the second floor.

The Chief Clerk, after the fire, said that the station would undoubtedly be closed for the next two or three days, and its patrons would have to use the station at Fifth Avenue and Thirteenth Street or the one on Grand Street. He said that the reassorting of the mail that was in the building would cause a delay in its delivery of twenty-four hours.

The fire, which is supposed to have been started by the dropping of some oily waste among some hot ashes, will necessitate the tearing out of the entire first floor of the building.

St. Vincent's Children's Ward.

The Sisters of St. Vincent's Hospital have opened a children's ward. They are now able to care for a number of children over two years old. Up to the present time several boys have been received, but no girls. The sisters would like to have about an equal number of each. The outdoor patient department is also in operation, and will be opened between 10 and 12 and from 2 to 5.

AT THE HOTELS.

BUCKINGHAM—Dr. William Appleton, Boston.

CAMBRIDGE—Baron C. Alecti, Rome, Italy.

FIFTH AVENUE—Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, Rhode Island; Senator R. F. Pettigrew, South Dakota.

GRAND—Capt. P. McKay Cadell, Eighty-first Regiment, London.

HOFFMAN—Commander W. H. Driggs, United States Navy.

HOLLAND—William M. Elkins, Jr., Philadelphia; W. J. Whyte, London.

IMPERIAL—Dr. J. D. Yost, United States Army.

MANHATTAN—James M. Belden, Syracuse.

SAVOY—Max Kaufmann, Frankfort-on-Main.

WALDORF—S. B. Elkins, Jr., West Virginia; James M. Magee, Pittsburg; Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Mrs. Miles, and Miss Miles, Washington.

ARRIVAL OF BUYERS.

Representatives of Out-of-Town Firms Now in the City.

Fox, Greenwald & Co., Cleveland, Ohio; H. Greenwald, clothing; Belvedere House.

Hart & Co., Cleveland, Ohio; F. W. Hart, millinery; W. F. Hart, millinery; 621 Broadway; Murray Hill Hotel.

Wanamaker, John, Philadelphia, Penn.; W. P. Sackett, silverware, Broadway and Tenth Street; St. Denis Hotel.

Krauskopff, S., Savannah, Ga., millinery; Westminster Hotel.

Finley, J. B., Memphis, Tenn., dry goods; St. Denis Hotel.

Strauss, E. E., Memphis, Tenn., clothing; St. Denis Hotel.

Shaw & Sassman Company, Toledo, Ohio; E. C. Shaw, linens and white goods; Hotel Marlborough.

Michaels, Wand & Co., San Francisco, Cal.; J. Wand, white goods, laces, and ladies' and infants' wear; Stuart House.

Butler, William S. & Co., Boston, Mass.; S. Liesner, cotton underwear; Hotel Vendome.

Larrabee, B. F., Boston, Mass.; J. B. Hill, stationery; Hotel Vendome.

Judson, J. L., Albany, N. Y.; A. L. Judson, piece goods; Hotel Imperial.

Weller, E., & Sons, Pittsburg, Penn.; E. Weller, clothing; Hotel Imperial.

Scowcroft, John, & Sons, Co., Ogden, Utah; J. Scowcroft, notions and furnishing goods; Hotel Imperial.

Marks, S., Pittsburg, Penn.; dry goods and notions; Hotel

LADYSMITH UNDER FIRE

Boer Artillery Fiercely Bombards Gen. White's Position.

METHUEN'S WOUND SLIGHT

Believed in London that His Army Is Already Pushing On to Relieve the Garrison at Kimberley.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Times publishes the following dispatch from Frere, Natal, dated Monday, Nov. 27:

"Ladysmith was heavily bombarded to-day."

Beyond the report from Estcourt that firing was heard in the direction of Ladysmith on Monday, there is not a shred of news of any kind from the seat of war. A semi-official statement has been issued that Lord Methuen's wound is not serious, and that he is expected to be all right in the course of a few days. It is certain, however, that the wound will prevent his being in the saddle, and there is great anxiety to know whether he will be compelled temporarily to abandon the personal direction of affairs.

His next in command is Col. Colville, commanding the Guards Brigade. He has a reputation as an excellent officer.

As men are needed in all directions, Lord Wolseley's announcement that a new division will be embarked without delay has been received with the greatest satisfaction. The transports will soon be returning from the Cape, and it is hoped that the men will be despatched speedly. On this point The Morning Post says:

"The sooner we can make up our minds as to the magnitude of the work in hand the sooner it will be accomplished."

Lieut. Col. Stopford's death ends a most promising career. He was the officer mainly responsible for working out the details of the mobilization scheme.

It is officially announced that Gen. Methuen was among those wounded at the battle of Modder River.

It developed later that he was slightly injured by a bullet which inflicted a flesh wound in the thigh.

The following officers were also wounded: Capt. Von Hugel, Engineers; Lieut. Travers, Third Grenadiers; Lieuts. Elwes and Hill, Scots Guards; Lieut. Flint, Lancashires; Majors Earle and Ottley and Lieut. Fox, Second Yorkshires; Lieuts. Baker-Carr and Neilson, Argyll Highlanders.

The War Office has received from the General commanding at Cape Town the following:

"Received from Modder River Nov. 30: Killed—Staff, Col. H. P. Northcott; Second Coldstreams, Lieut. Col. H. R. Stopford, Capt. S. Earle, Lieut. Long.

Wounded—Artillery, Major W. Lindsay, Capt. Farrell, Lieut. Dunlop, Lieut. Furse; Third Grenadiers, Major Count Gleichen, Lieut. the Hon. E. H. Lygon; Coldstreams, Lieut. Viscount Acheson; Medical Corps, Capt. G. A. Moore.

"The casualties among the officers of the Ninth Brigade and the men of the division will follow."

Although telegraphic and railroad communication is open with Modder River, no further news of Gen. Methuen's movements or the big fight was given out this afternoon. This is generally taken to indicate that Gen. Methuen is again on the march, and that, as heretofore, he will not again be heard from until he has fought another battle and gained another stage. That the General anticipated dogged resistance on his northward march is shown by the speech which he delivered to his troops Nov. 27 after the battle of Gras Pan, reports of which have just arrived here.

After reading a telegram from Gov. Milner, congratulating the troops and sympathizing with the wounded, Gen. Methuen personally congratulated the troops on the work done and expressed appreciation of the manner in which they had endured the hardships. The work, he said, was the most severe encountered by the British Army for many a long day. They had in front of them, he added, an enemy to whom they could not afford to give a single point. Their tactics had been excellent and he recognized and admired their courage.

Continuing, Gen. Methuen said that when called upon to fight for his country he preferred to fight a foe worthy of its steel than savages, whose sole recommendation was bravery. He then expressed the hope that he and his men had gained each other's confidence, and would all do their duty to their country, as Englishmen should.

Gen. Methuen also described as "dastardly" the conduct of the Boers in firing on ambulance wagons, the shooting of a British officer by a wounded Boer, and the Boers' use of dum-dum bullets. But he refused to believe that these acts were characteristic of the Boers. He gave them credit, until convinced to the contrary, that they, like the British, wished to fight fare and square.

Those who are acquainted with Gen. Methuen think his terse description of the battle of Modder River forecasts "a fearful butcher's bill."

Little attention was paid here to the flimsy fabrication announcing the fall of Ladysmith. The dispatch caused frenzies of joy in Paris, but it is impossible to make a Briton believe that, after withstanding the siege so long, Gen. White, with the thunder of Gen. Clery's guns at Colenso, telling of the coming relief, would yield his position while a round of ammunition or a man was left. The news of the British successes will speedily spread far and wide among the Boers.

Gen. Buller's dispatch from Pietermaritzburg yesterday would hardly have dealt with belated details of the situation at Ladysmith if there was anything serious to report. Since then has come the dispatch from Estcourt saying Gen. Joubert is hastening back to oppose Col. Baden-Powell. This is incomprehensible here, and it is generally supposed that names have been mixed up. But, in some quarters conjectures are ventured that the besiegers of Mafeking have withdrawn southward and permitted Col. Baden-Powell to leave that place, and that he is now, in conjunction with Col. Plumer of Fort Tuli, traversing the Transvaal.

It is claimed that if Gen. Joubert is traveling in an omnibus, he must be sick or wounded.

WOUNDED OFFICERS' RECORDS.

Albert Edward Wilfred, Count Gleichen, Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, who was wounded at Modder River, is the only son of the late Prince Victor of Hohenlohe Langenburg, who married an Englishwoman, Miss Laura Seymour. The morganatic marriage was disapproved by the Prince's relatives, and after it he made his home in England, his son being born in London on Jan. 15, 1863. Count Gleichen was educated, like young Englishmen of position, at the public schools. After leaving Charterhouse he entered the Royal Military College at Sandhurst, and in 1881 became a subaltern in the Grenadier Guards. Three years later he took part in the Nile expedition as a member of one of the camel regiment of guards. He distinguished himself in several engagements. On his return to England he was appointed to an office in the Intelligence Department of the War Office, and in 1890 became connected with the Staff College.

In 1893 Count Gleichen accompanied Sir West Ridgeway's mission to Morocco, and in 1896 attended the Hon. Rennell Rodd in the latter's famous mission to King Menelek of Abyssinia. After his return he wrote an account of the mission, which is regarded as an accurate work on Abyssinia. Other works of Count Gleichen are "With the Camel Corps up the Nile," issued in 1888, and a translation of "The Armies of Europe." He has also written a number of official works, and has been a frequent contributor to the magazines.

Count Gleichen lives in St. James's Palace, the historical royal residence. He is a member of several of the most exclusive clubs in London.

Lieut. Viscount Acheson, reported as wounded in the battle at Modder's River, is Archibald Charles Montagu Brabazon, eldest son of the fourth Earl of Gosford. He was born May 26, 1877, and was educated at Harrow and the Royal Military College at Sandhurst. After leaving Sandhurst he entered the Third Battalion of the Coldstream Guards as a subaltern.

The earldom of Gosford, to which Viscount Acheson is heir, carries with it an enormous rent roll, together with Gosford Castle, a magnificent historical place in County Armagh, Ireland. Lord Acheson is a cousin of the Duke of Manchester, his mother being the Lady Louise Augusta Beatrice Montagu, daughter of the seventh Duke. She married the Earl of Gosford in 1876. Lord Gosford is Lord of the Bedchamber to the Prince of Wales and Lord Lieutenant of Armagh.

Another wounded officer, Col. Northcott, participated in the Sherbro expedition, West Africa, in 1883, where he was desperately wounded; in the Zulu war, the Ashantee expedition, and the Karagwe expedition, 1898, for which he was made a Companion of the Bath. Recently he commanded in the Northern Gold Coast territories.

Lieut. E. H. Lygon, wounded, is the Hon. Edward Hugh Lygon, brother of Earl Beauchamp, and heir if he does not die before the present Earl. He is the second son of the sixth Earl, who died in 1891. The present holder of the title is unmarried, and Lieut. Lygon is therefore the heir apparent.

Lieut. Lygon was born July 17, 1873. His mother was a daughter of the fifth Earl Stanhope. He is a Doctor of Laws and a Justice of the Peace for the County of Dorcestershire.

The Lygons are one of the oldest families in England, being directly descended from Walter de Beauchamp, Steward of the Household of King Edward I., and a famous soldier and crusader.

CECIL RHODES CHEERS UP.

News of Approaching Relief Gladdens Kimberley's Population.

KIMBERLEY, Nov. 24.—There were a few rifle shots early to-day from the direction of Wright's farm, but this is regarded as merely one of the numerous Boer tricks to draw our men out by inducing us to believe that the relieving forces are drawing near. This afternoon the Boers blew up two large culverts near the rifle butts on the railway line toward Spytfontein.

The news of the proximity of the relieving forces greatly cheers the garrison and the inhabitants. A few Boers were seen today, but it is believed that the enemy is in only small bands around Kimberley, lots of fifty or so, the greater part having gone to Spytfontein, where firing is believed to have been heard about noon.

From Kafir sources comes a report that there are two large Boer laagers at Olifant's Dam, with 150 wagons for water supply. The Boers have cut the dam three miles distant, allowing the water to run down toward their laagers into an old dry dam on the farm. This is believed to be the Free State base of operations on the western border.

The official estimate places the number of Boer shells fired during the bombardment of Kimberley at about 1,000, and ours at no fewer than 600. As the enemy's shells so frequently hit soft, sandy ground, the explosive effect is greatly neutralized.

All our wounded are in a very satisfactory condition.

An armored train proceeded toward Dronfield to reconnoitre, but this immediately aroused the enemy's cordite gun, and the train returned after the fifth shell had been fired.

The Boers are now firing on the reservoir fort from Wimbledon.

NEWS FROM COL. BADEN-POWELL.

Reported Mafeking as Holding Out on Nov. 20.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Col. Baden-Powell, under date of Mafeking, Nov. 20, has sent the following to the War Office, through Gen. Forestier-Walker, at Cape Town:

"All well here. Cronje has gone with a commando, and with about twenty wagons, to Riceter's, Transvaal, leaving most of the guns here with the Marico and Lichtenburg contingents, with orders to shell us into submission. Bombardment and sniping continue, with very small results.

"The enemy's sentries drew us out Saturday by making a show of going away and leaving a big gun, apparently in a state of being dismantled. Our scouts found the enemy hidden in force. So we sat tight.

"The enemy's ninety-four-pounder became damaged, and has been replaced by another, more efficient. I am daily pushing out our advance work, with good effect. The health of the garrison is good. No casualties to report."

GEN. JOUBERT IS FALLING BACK.

Reported to be Retreating in the Direction of Colenso.

ESTCOURT, Nov. 27.—The Twelfth Lancers are reported to have attacked Piet Retief's force at Weenen, and to have inflicted great loss on the Boers. Gen. Hildyard's troops bivouacked last night at Frere.

Two Boers have been captured. One of them, a doctor, entered the British camp under the belief that it was a Boer bivouac.

Gen. Joubert is reported to have retreated to Colenso yesterday, by way of Chieveley. He traveled in an omnibus, drawn by six horses. It is rumored that he is hurrying back to oppose Col. Baden-Powell.

Two Estcourt trains arrived at Frere yesterday evening. There is great rejoicing at the reopening of the line.

Boer prisoners report that Gen. Hildyard's night attack with cold steel paralyzed the burghers, whose loss was thirty killed and over a hundred wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The authorities here are unable to explain the reference to Col. Baden-Powell contained in the Estcourt dispatch.

BOER LOSSES SAID TO BE HEAVY.

Reported 140 and 400 Killed at Belmont and Gras Pan Respectively.

ORANGE RIVER, Nov. 27.—Boer prisoners here report that the number of Boers killed at Belmont is believed to be 140, and at Gras Pan, 400.

Among the prisoners are several with enormous red crosses on their sleeves. It is reported that they fought with the artillery.

MORE TROOPS, SAYS WOLSELEY.

Another Division Will Be Sent to South Africa.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Lord Wolseley, speaking in London this evening, eulogized the conduct of the British troops in South Africa, and confirmed the semi-official announcement that another division of the Second Army Corps would be called out. This division, he said, would soon be on the way to the Cape.

He expressed himself as confident that the reserves would respond to the call with the same obedience and pride that had marked the responses to previous calls.

Expect Ladysmith to be Relieved.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The War Office officials to-day reiterate that they have received absolutely nothing to indicate the slightest likelihood of Ladysmith surrendering, while, on the other hand, they expect the place will be relieved shortly.

TWO LIVES CRUSHED OUT.

Brooklyn Children the Victims of a Ralph Avenue Trolley Car and an Ash Cart.

Thanksgiving was a sad day in two Brooklyn homes yesterday because of the death of two boys, who were killed while playing in the streets. One was crushed beneath the wheels of an ash cart, and the other was mangled under a trolley car.

The little fellows were Robert Clarke, the nine-year-old son of Harry M. Clarke, of 12 Cornelia Street, and five-year-old Albert Moore, whose parents live at 325 Wyckoff Avenue.

Robert Clarke was the eldest of three children. The father is a sheet-iron worker employed by the J. L. Mott Iron Works at Cliff and Beekman Streets, Manhattan.

On Wednesday night Mrs. Clarke bought Robert a mask at his request and gave it to him yesterday, so that he might march with his playmates in the charivari. The eyes of the mask were so small that Mrs. Clarke cut the apertures larger, fearing some accident might happen through her son's failure to see properly. Mrs. Clarke had a great dread of trolley cars, because the life of one of the younger children had been imperiled three years ago. When she gave the mask to the boy he refused to take it.

Robert promised to be careful of the cars, and hastily ran to join his little friends at Halsey and Hancock Streets, first, however, with a burned cork transferring to his face the semblance of a mask, in lieu of the one he scorned. While attempting to cross Ralph Avenue, near Halsey Street, the boy was run down by Car 1,322 of the Ralph Avenue line, in charge of Motorman John Doppel. His left leg and arm were severed and he received other injuries of a fatal character. He was carried into a store and a "hurry call" was sent to St. Mary's Hospital, where the boy was taken by Surgeon Rutz. He died an hour later. He was conscious until the end, and several times asked for his mother and father.

Motorman Doppel was arrested and taken to the Ralph Avenue Police Station, where he was charged with homicide. He declared that he did not see the boy, and knew nothing of the accident until his attention was called to it by a stranger who shouted to him from the sidewalk.

Little Albert Moore was the son of a bartender, who lives at 325 Wyckoff Avenue. Shortly after noon the boy, with two elder brothers, set out to see the masked paraders. At Flushing and Irving Avenues he became separated from his brothers, and started to cross the street in front of an approaching loaded ashcart driven by Henry Danenhauser of 77 Starr Street. The boy was knocked down, and before the driver could check the speed of the horses the wheels of the cart had crushed out his life. Danenhauser was arrested, and released on bail by the Coroner.

CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
The Kind You Have Always Bought

CHOATE ON THE BOER WAR

At London Dinner He Voices American Sympathy for Britain.

"WOMEN CANNOT BE NEUTRAL"

The Ambassador Also Alludes to Friendship Between America and Germany—The "Open Door."

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The annual Thanksgiving banquet of the American Society in London was attended by 275 guests, and was marked by enthusiastic demonstrations of friendship for England in the war against the Boers. A striking speech by Ambassador Choate along that line, and the presence of the uniformed nurses and doctors of the American hospital ship Maine were the features of the occasion.

Mr. Choate, in response to a toast to his own health, which was received with loud cheering, said there could not be a better prelude to what he had to say than a remark that had been made to him, "Let England and America clasp hands across the sea, and the peace of the world is absolutely secure." He referred sympathetically to the losses sustained by British families through the war, and went on to say:

"Fortunately, Englishmen have not far to look for living proofs of this human sympathy. Neutral as America must be, her women could not be neutral. To neutralize them would be to spoil them. Those American women in London who have fitted up a hospital ship have done a deed that will live for all time as a blessing to our common humanity."

After declaring that the action of the United States in endeavoring to look after British interests in the Transvaal was merely an endeavor to reciprocate kindness exhibited during the war with Spain, Mr. Choate said:

"Unfortunately, the local authorities at Pretoria seemed to think that this would not be quite the proper thing. Yet I can but hope that the prohibition will ultimately be removed, so that we may be permitted to act in this errand of mere humanity."

Dealing with the commercial prosperity of the United States and the necessity for a mercantile marine, Mr. Choate remarked:

"Carrying trade is the white man's burden, and we must do our full share. The supreme interest of the United States is to preserve the peace of the world. I still believe that a majority of the American people continue to uphold Washington's maxim about no entangling alliances, but I have no fear of any quarrel between the three greatest commercial nations, England, Germany, and the United States.

"Our one aim is to increase our commerce with the great kindred nations which, for three generations, have settled amicably every question, however great and trying, that has ever arisen between them. How can we ever have any dispute again while the great stream of German blood continues to flow in our veins, and while New York and Chicago stand among the greatest German cities in the world? How can we fail to believe that we will be able to maintain absolute amity with these great nations?"

After tracing the progress of the United States in the Far East, Mr. Choate exclaimed:

"There is now only one step further—the 'open door'; and who shall slam that door in our face?"

The other speakers included Robert P. Porter, J. Walter Earle, President of the society; James Boyle, United States Consul at Liverpool; Moreton Frewen, Morgan Richards, and Mr. F. C. Van Duzer.

Among others present were the members of the embassy staff, Hiram Maxim, and almost all the principal members of the American colony. Owing to a slight indisposition Mrs. Choate was unable to be present.

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS.

NEW SPUYTEN DUYVIL DRAW.

Central Railroad Structure to be Completed About Feb. 1.

The new draw of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad at Spuyten Duyvil, to connect the main system with the Thirtieth Street branch, which serves the freight and stock yards, will be completed about Feb. 1, 1900. It will cost about $250,000 and will replace an old and inadequate "cellar door" or flap draw.

The distance between the stone abutments of the draw and its approaches will be a little more than 600 feet. The piers of the draw, whose foundations reach solid rock 30 feet below the bed of the mouth of Spuyten Duyvil Creek, and which were laid and built in caissons, are now above high-water mark. The draw will be a swing span on a drum, and when open will give two clear waterways, each 100 feet wide. The draw span will be 286 feet 3 inches long. Three other fixed spans will each have a length of 106 feet 3 inches. All the old trestle work will be done away with. Work on the new draw was begun last Spring.

It is hinted that the width of the new waterways suggests that the ship canal from North River part, Marble Hill, and the Speedway is to be deepened and widened sooner or later to permit of the passage of craft of greater draught than at present.

Grand Central Station Changes.

The temporary waiting room arranged in the Grand Central Station for the accommodation of passengers of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad will be used for the first time Dec. 10. The entrance to the new waiting room will be on Vanderbilt Avenue. When it is put in service the New Haven waiting room at the south end of the station will be dismantled, reconstructed and extended, and a general waiting room for the accommodation of passengers of the Central, Harlem, and New Haven Roads will be formed.

SENATE STANDING COMMITTEES.

No Change to be Made for the Coming Session at Albany.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—Senator Timothy Ellsworth, Speaker pro tem. of the Senate, is authority for the statement that the present standing committees of the upper branch of the Legislature will remain the same for the coming session.

PRIZEFIGHT ROW IN TRENTON.

Men Refuse to Appear Without Pay and the Crowd Wrecks the Hall.

TRENTON, Nov. 30.—"Australian Billy" Edwards and George Cole were to have fought twenty rounds here to-night before the New Jersey Athletic Association.

After the crowd had waited for two hours for the contest to begin, Edwards and Cole appeared in the ring and made a statement to the effect that William B. Hannigan had left the clubroom, taking with him the evening's receipts, and that they were therefore unwilling to go on. The crowd became angry, and did a great deal of damage in the way of breaking up seats, and also carried off hundreds of chairs.

Hannigan's absence is not understood, as he is a man of considerable means. It is said that early in the evening he had a dispute with the managers of the club and Edwards because the guarantee money had not been posted. Hannigan, it is said, expressed a willingness to pay the money after the fight. This was not acceptable, and he then left the hall and did not return.

Naphtha Yacht Selba's Long Voyage.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 30.—The naphtha yacht Selba of New Orleans, having on board Capt. E. W. Demming and his two daughters, arrived here this evening after a journey of 6,007 miles. The Selba left New Orleans on July 8, went up the Mississippi River and tributaries to the great lakes, thence through the Erie Canal to the Hudson, and down to New York. Then she went down the Atlantic Coast and into the Gulf of Mexico and up to this city. Coming through the inland passage of East Pass Nov. 24 the yacht was blown by a storm high and dry on the beach. After hard work, she was floated last Tuesday. She will sail to-morrow for New Orleans.

Apply Soon

to be sure of securing a pack of those superb new Army and Navy Playing Cards, just issued by the Malt-Nutrine Dept. of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n., St. Louis, U. S. A. Sent everywhere for ten 2-cent stamps. Admiral Dewey is King of Hearts. Other heroes on each face card. Gilt edged. Elegant backs. Finest cards out.—Adv.

"Standard of Highest Merit."
FISCHER PIANOS.
ARTISTICALLY and MUSICALLY PERFECT.
World-renowned for
Purity and Power of Tone, Durability and Tone-Sustaining Quality.
Catalogue Mailed to Any Address.
FISCHER PIANO WAREROOMS
33 Union Square—West.
Between 16th and 17th Streets, New York

ATKINSON TO FIND A SHELTER

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The Silver Republicans, in conference here Tuesday and Wednesday, planned, it is announced, to ally themselves with and to make use of the "anti-imperialism" agitation, especially in Eastern States, where the silver issue does not attract. Co-operation with Edward Atkinson's following will be sought. The purpose of the Silver Republicans is to gain if possible with this new issue a foothold in Eastern States, so that their party can more truly claim to be a National organization, and thus become a more effective whip for holding the Democrats to the Bryan and 16 to 1 line. This is one reason why the Silver Republicans want to hold a big National convention of 2,000 or more delegates next year. Confirmation of this plan came to-day from Fred J. Dubois, formerly Senator from Idaho and Chairman of the Silver Republican Executive Committee.

"There is no place for the Republican anti-imperialists of New England and the coast to go except into our party," said Mr. Dubois. "The assured composition of the United States Senate for several years convinces them that silver legislation cannot be passed for many years yet. On anti-imperialism and kindred questions, they are one with us. I am satisfied they will come to us. I expect to see ex-Gov. Boutwell of Massachusetts, Edward Atkinson, and men like them sitting as delegates in our convention.

"We have planned for a big convention of 2,000 or more. Our convention, if held at the same place and time as the Democratic Convention, will be a powerful stimulus against any concession by that party to the forces of unrighteousness. We have not much to fear on this score, however. We are pretty well satisfied that the Democrats will reaffirm the platform of 1896 and renominate Mr. Bryan. That will be enough. If, however, they should seek to evade or subordinate the silver issue, we'll not be their allies. In such case we will do what many Silver Republicans wanted to do in 1896—establish a separate organization and nominate a separate ticket.

TO SELL LIGHT IN THE SOUTH.

Wealthy Wall Street Men Said to be in a New Company.

Articles of incorporation of the Columbus Electric Light Company, which was organized in Jersey City Tuesday evening, will be filed in the Hudson County Clerk's office and at Trenton to-day. The purpose of the company is to furnish light to cities in the Southern States. The capital stock is $800,000. Several of the wealthiest men in Wall Street are said to be in the enterprise.

The incorporators are Charles N. King, in whose office at York and Washington Streets, Jersey City, the company was organized; John J. Mulvaney, a lawyer, and Albert McMahon, all of Jersey City. The incorporators admit they are but "dummies."

EFFORTS TO FREE REESE.

United Mine Workers Will Do Everything Possible to Aid Him.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 30.—National Organizer Christopher Evans of the United Mine Workers and Editor W. C. Scott of The United Mine Workers' Journal to-day declared that everything within the power of the National order will be done to free Executive John P. Reese, who is now undergoing a three months' jail sentence at Fort Scott, Kan., for contempt of court in violating an order not to visit certain mines.

"We have over $30,000 in our National treasury," said Mr. Evans, "and no stone will be left unturned to take care of Reese. This organization since the first of the year has collected and distributed over $300,000 to suffering miners, and we don't propose to sit idle and let Reese suffer."

One of the moves which probably will be made by President Mitchell and attorneys engaged by the National order will be to have Reese's case taken to the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis. Habeas corpus proceedings may be instituted.

RACING AT HAVANA.

Successful Meeting Yesterday—Lieut. Lee Loses Principal Event.

HAVANA, Nov. 30.—To-day's races were a great success. They were witnessed by a large crowd, in which all Havana society was represented. There were nine events, with entries averaging seven.

The principal race was one for officers and club members, which resulted in a victory for the horse ridden by F. Guyol, a one-armed man, the English editor of La Lucha. Lieut. Fitzhugh Lee was second. The first attempt being a dead heat, the race was run off, and Mr. Guyol won easily, although Lieut. Lee led for the greater part of the distance each time. Both riders were heartily cheered for their skillful horsemanship.

Gen. Brooke presented to Lieut. Lee the cup he had won at the former meeting, making a graceful allusion to the fact that the recipient is the descendant of cavalry officers.

SON STABBED, FATHER HELD.

Thomas Doyle, twenty-three years old, a grocer's clerk, was stabbed three times early yesterday morning shortly after returning to his home, 23½ Gouverneur Street. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital. One of his wounds was in the groin, another in the back, penetrating the kidney, and the third in the abdomen.

An operation was performed last night, and as a late hour his condition was said to be serious.

When Doyle arrived at his home early yesterday morning, his father, Lawrence Doyle, a car driver, with whom he lives, admitted him to the house and objected to his son's late hours. A quarrel ensued and the two men clinched. William Doyle, another son, and Mamie Doyle, a daughter, twelve years old, intervened.

Thomas Doyle suddenly cried out that he was stabbed. William Doyle had his right hand cut in the struggle, and the girl complained of a blow in the face.

When the police arrived, Mrs. Doyle was bending over her son, and his father mumbled something about having been attacked by his boy and acting in self-defense. The stabbing was apparently done with a jackknife.

Lawrence Doyle was arrested, but Thomas refused to identify his father as the person who inflicted the wounds. When arraigned in the Essex Market Court yesterday he denied having stabbed his son, and the latter declared at the hospital that it was not his father who injured him. Magistrate Crane, however, held the senior Doyle in default of $1,500 bail to await the result of his son's injuries.

EX-MAYOR SCHROEDER DEAD.

Expired of Pneumonia at 1:45 o'Clock This Morning at the Hotel Margaret, in Brooklyn.

Ex-Mayor Frederick A. Schroeder of Brooklyn died at the Hotel Margaret at 1:45 o'clock this morning. His son and four of his daughters were at his bedside when he passed away, one daughter being absent. He was conscious until about three-quarters of an hour before his death.

Mr. Schroeder had been ill of pneumonia for several days, but on Tuesday his condition showed such improvement that his recovery was expected. He suffered a relapse yesterday afternoon and from that time failed rapidly.

SAVAGE ASSAULT BY JANITOR.

Boston Man Wounds a Housekeeper and Her Employer with an Axe.

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—Emma R. Samaine, a housekeeper, and John Barnard, her employer, were seriously wounded with an axe, which, the police claim, was wielded by Charles G. West, the janitor of the Barnard Block, in the Roxbury district, this morning. Mr. Barnard, who is seventy-nine years old, will probably die.

The assault was called to the attention of an officer, who was also told that the janitor of the block had gone down the street. The officer then overtook West and conducted him back to the building, where Miss Samaine was found unconscious on the floor, with three wounds on the head, and Mr. Barnard was semi-conscious in a chair, with three similar wounds.

Lillie Jennings, the family servant, stated that West, who is a nephew of Mr. Barnard, came into the basement and demanded from Miss Samaine two bank books. Upon her refusal, he seized a small axe and struck the woman over the head several times. The servant went to Miss Samaine's assistance, and succeeded in holding the man until Mr. Barnard arrived. She then ran up stairs, screaming for assistance, but before help arrived Mr. Barnard had received several cuts over the head.

Miss Samaine, who is thirty-five years old, will probably recover. Mr. Barnard's extreme age and the shock to his system renders his case very critical.

West was taken to the police station. He would not talk of the affair. He seems to be in a very excited condition, and doubts are expressed as to his sanity. He will be arraigned to-morrow.

TRUANT SCHOOL FARM SCHEME.

Proposed Home for Unruly Boys on the Cottage Dormitory Plan.

The school authorities of the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx will apply shortly to the Board of Estimate for an appropriation to cover the expense of purchasing and equipping a truant school farm, to which incorrigible children may be committed until they reform, or until they learn some useful trade.

Commissioner Miles M. O'Brien, Chairman of the Committee on Special Schools, said yesterday that it was the purpose of the committee to institute the farm school as a home where habitual truants could receive instruction, physical training and manual training, and enjoy a proportionate amount of amusement. The boys will be housed in cottage dormitories, in charge of matrons. Ten boys will be accommodated in each cottage. At one end of the oval formed by the houses the executive buildings will be placed. These will comprise the offices, school building, gymnasium, and workshops. Houses for supervisors and teachers will be erected on each side of the executive buildings, and the centre of the oval will be reserved for a playground.

Several sites for the farm have been offered to the committee, most of them in Westchester County. The plans for the buildings have been prepared by C. B. J. Snyder, the Superintendent of Buildings. They have not been finally adopted.

CUBAN PAPER'S SARCASM.

Slyly Pokes Fun at the Thanksgiving Day Celebration.

HAVANA, Nov. 30.—The Patria says to-day:

"This is Thanksgiving Day. Let us thank God for the dear, good fellows, the American soldiers, who have come here to educate us and for the healthy excitement caused by Uncle McKinley, who shakes the end of the cable whenever he wants to amuse himself. Let us also be thankful that our streets are swept and that small places are asphalted, in order to avoid anything that would disturb the slumbers of our dear rulers.

"Thanks, also, let us offer to our Italian Bishop and to Mr. Frye and Mr. Pitcher, who have so simplified justice for us. Above all let us thank Mr. Ludlow for freeing the present generation from the cares of government."

Susquehanna Mine Strike Ended.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Nov. 30.—The conference between the officials of the Susquehanna Coal Company and a committee of the striking miners, which has been in session for the past two days, ended to-night. A new wage scale was promulgated. It is satisfactory to both sides, and will terminate the long strike. The strikers now await the sanction of the officers of the United Mine Workers before returning to work. The 4,000 strikers have been idle since Aug. 5, and it is said they have lost in wages $462,000.

Somerville to Have a Hospital.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Nov. 30.—After over two years of agitation of the project of a hospital for Somerville, the promoters of the institution are in a fair way of having their hopes realized. Enough funds have been subscribed so that the necessary building can be obtained. A meeting of those interested has been held, and the following committee appointed to perfect plans of organization: N. Y. Dungan, James U. Case, Jacob Kline, Jr. Another meeting will be held to-morrow night, when it is expected definite action will be taken.

Destructive Fire at Garland, Texas.

GARLAND, Texas, Nov. 30.—Fire to-night destroyed the business part of the town. It started in The News office, and burned two dry goods stores, three groceries, a bank, two drug stores, the Post Office, two barber chops, a saddlery store, and a number of other buildings. The loss will be heavy.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

	A. M.	P. M.		A. M.
Sun rises	7:05	Sun sets	4:34	Moon rises 5:40

High Water This Day.

	A. M.		A. M.		A. M.
S. Hook	5:54	Gov. Isl'd	6:15	H. Gate	8:11
	P. M.		P. M.		P. M.
S. Hook	6:19	Gov. Isl'd	6:31	H. Gate	8:27

Outgoing Steamships.

TO-DAY, (FRIDAY,) DEC. 1.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Colorado, Brunswick	.....	8:00 P. M.
Santiago de Cuba, Santiago, &c	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.

SATURDAY, DEC. 2.

Adirondack, Jamaica, &c.	10:00 A. M. *10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Andes, Haiti	10:00 A. M. *10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Asiatic Prince, Santos	12:00 M.	2:00 P. M.
British Queen, Antwerp	.....	.....
Campania, Queenstown and Liverpool	10:30 A. M. *12:00 M.	2:00 P. M.
Caribbee, St. Thomas, &c.	9:30 A. M. *10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Colorado, Hull	.....	.....

In 31 Days 1900.
In 24 Days Xmas.
Old English SILVER
has always been an important item of our stock. It is becoming more and more scarce, and genuine desirable pieces, such as we have, are more appreciated than ever before.
Howard & Co
264 Fifth Avenue

El Rio, New Orleans	.....	3:00 P. M.
Ems, Naples, &c.	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Louisiana, New Orleans	.....	3:00 P. M.
Massilia, Naples and Marseilles	.....	.....
Mexico, Havana	11:00 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Nueces, Key West and Galveston	.....	3:00 P. M.
Sarmatian, Glasgow	.....	.....
Spaarndam, Rotterdam	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Uller, St. Kitts, &c.	10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for China and Japan, via Tacoma, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. $1, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Breconshire. Mails for Hawaii, Japan, and China, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. $8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Coptic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. $8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Australia. Mails for Australasian Colonies, (except West Australia, which go via Europe, and New Zealand, which go via San Francisco,) Hawaii, and Fiji Islands, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Nov. $25 and up to Dec. $9, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Warrimoo.

‡Registered mail closes at 6 P. M. previous day.

Incoming Steamships.

TO-DAY, (FRIDAY,) DEC. 1.

City of Macon, Savannah, Nov. 28.
El Mar, New Orleans, Nov. 25.
Evelyn, New Orleans, Nov. 21.
Matthew Bedlington, Gibraltar, Nov. 15.
Merida, Curacao, Nov. 22.
Patria, Naples, Nov. 14.
Salerno, Newcastle, Nov. 16.

SATURDAY, DEC. 2.

British Empire, Antwerp, Nov. 19.
Kansas City, Swansea, Nov. 18.
Ohio, Hull, Nov. 20.
Umbria, Liverpool, Nov. 25.

SUNDAY, DEC. 3.

Bordeaux, Havre, Nov. 21.
El Norte, New Orleans, Nov. 28.
La Champagne, Havre, Nov. 25.
Marquette, London, Nov. 23.
Pretoria, Hamburg, Nov. 21.
Rotterdam, Rotterdam, Nov. 23.
San Marcos, Galveston, Nov. 27.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

Bovic, Liverpool, Nov. 24.
Mayfield, St. Michaels, Nov. 24.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Friesland, Antwerp, Nov. 25.
Knickerbocker, New Orleans, Nov. 29.
Lyell, Gibraltar, Nov. 21.

Arrived.

SS Germanic, (Br.,) Haddock, Liverpool Nov. 22 and Queenstown 26th, with mdse. and passengers to White Star Line. Arrived at the Bar at 7:35 P. M.

SS Nicaragua, (Nor.,) Pederson, Kingston, &c., Nov. 18, with mdse. to Tweedie Trading Co. Arrived at the Bar at 7 P. M.

SS Maranzas, Rogers, Tampico Nov. 21 and Havana 25th, with mdse. and passenger to James E. Ward & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 3:52 A. M.

SS Brilliant, (Ger.,) Keller, Rotterdam Nov. 17, in ballast to Phillip Ruprecht. Arrived at the Bar at 2:30 P. M.

SS Nueces, Risk, Galveston Nov. 23, with mdse. and passengers to C. H. Mallory & Co.

SS Saginaw, Johnson, Boston, to W. P. Clyde & Co.

SS John J. Hill, Thompson, Norfolk. Is bound to New Bedford.

SS City of Augusta, Smith, Savannah Nov. 27, with mdse. and passengers to Ocean Steamship Company.

SS Princess Anne, Boaz, Norfolk and Newport News, with mdse. and passengers to Old Dominion Steamship Co.

SS Evelyn, Parse, New Orleans Nov. 21, with mdse. to J. T. Van Sickle.

SS Bolivia, (Br.,) Craig, Marseilles, &c., Oct. 22, with mdse. and passengers to Henderson Bros. Arrived at the Bar at 1:45 P. M.

SS Capri, (Ger.,) Rambusch, Rio Janeiro, &c., Nov. 8, with mdse. and passengers to Funch, Edye & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 5 A. M.

SS Cufic, (Br.,) Cavan, Li

The Wanamaker Store

And Now for Christmas

FROM hilltop to hilltop—the two great holidays, Thanksgiving and Christmas, are almost within sight of each other. There's a world of getting-ready to do in three short weeks. Our part is to help and to give you just all of the pleasure possible during these busy days.

Members of our staff have gone in person to England, France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, Holland, Russia, Turkey, China, Japan, Italy, Persia and India to gather interesting, useful, novel, decorative things for home adornment and personal wear—drew some things from Africa and South America, as well—and studied the proper uses of the things under the most favorable conditions.

The store is making news faster than we can profitably print it—but the daily talk will be wonderfully interesting for all that.

Exhibits continued to-day—

Fur Garments — Fur Rugs

(with decorative display of mounted animals)

The Stewart Laces — Antique Clocks

The Tissot Pictures

The Wanamaker Toy Store

Blest be the world of Make-Believe and the men and women, elves and fairies, strange outfittings and simple armaments that compose and equip it.

We'd be afraid to neighbor with the man or woman who was "too old for Christmas." Wouldn't you? It's getting in our very bones—this holiday feeling—we and you will have as much fun as the little folks.

And so space in the Basement, nearly half the ground area of this New York block, is a Christmas store, with ornaments for the tree, thousands of dolls and more kinds of toys than even this store ever had—for we've brought a great many from Paris this time, besides large cases-ful from the queer forest homes of the German toy makers.

And Philadelphia is becoming a contributor, too—gives us better toy pianos than we ever brought from Germany.

It isn't a question of how much? Nothing is dear; thousands of things are got with dimes and quarters—yes, with pennies. Of course, some exquisite things, too—that took days or weeks to make. A good many dollars for them.

It's cute, isn't it, to have dolls dressed at Wanamaker's, just as real live great ladies are dressed. That's what we do for the biggest dolls.

And yet there are dolls for a penny—waiting some little mother to love them.

Basement.

A Word of Clothing for Boys.

Not one store, in twenty that sells boys' clothing is in any way competent for the business, from a tailor's standpoint.

What's the difference between store clothes and tailor clothes? This: the mass of boys' clothing is no more tailored than is a girl's gingham dress. Trouble is that such carelessly-made clothing has no stays and re-inforcements, no tailoring to hold it in shape. It gets old quickly.

Being tailors, first of all, we have things done differently. More expensive? No, cheaper. Costs may be a little more, but think how the clothes last.

This is a deservedly popular clothing store for both men's and boys' wear. And every suit and overcoat is of pure wool fabric.

Suits, with an extra pair of trousers, $3.85. For ages 7 to 16.

Boys' Top Coats, for ages 4 to 16; Oxford gray, navy blue and brown frieze, $5.. Some in Oxford gray and blue at $4.50.

And on up to the finest.

Second, floor Fourth avenue.

Dress Goods We are helping some folks to a merrier Christmas — holders of little surplus lots of dress fabrics on one hand, and you and the ones you are thinking of, on the other hand. Dirt is matter out of place, and even new and pretty goods can be a woeful worry if in wrong hands.

This is the list—with the suggestion that material for a dress is a welcome gift—

BLACK DRESS GOODS

At 28c—All-wool French Surah Serge.

At 37½c—All-wool Cheviot; 50c quality.

At 50c — All-wool Diagonal Cheviot, 85c quality.

At 50c — All-wool French Granites; 75c quality.

At 50c—All-wool Surah Serges; 65c quality.

At 55c—All-wool Henrietta; 65c quality.

At 75c—French Drap d'Ete; $1.65 quality.

Fourth avenue and Tenth street, Main floor.

COLORED DRESS GOODS

At 28c—All-wool French Surah Serge; navy blue.

At 50c — All-wool Two-toned Diagonal Cheviot; $1 quality.

At 50c—All-wool Camel's-hair Cheviot; $1 quality.

At 65c—All-wool Whipcord Covert Cloth; imported; $1.50 quality.

Fourth avenue.

Women's Suits Maybe sixty of them in all — and quite a dozen styles and colorings, for these are simply reminders from various favored and quick-selling lots. Materials are homespun, cheviot and serge. There are blue, brown and gray suits—and some are full silk lined.

$7.50

though from regular $12 and $15 lots.

Second floor.

This Handkerchief Store is Singular

To a linen lover there is the beauty of art in the exquisite filmy weaves. We have plain hemstitched handkerchiefs for as much as $6.50 a piece—$78 a dozen. And even a novice would not mistake them for cheap ones, however extravagant he might deem such expenditure. But, hold; let us see how these are made. The linen is woven on hand-looms—machine jerkiness would break these spider-web-like threads; even the hand-loom spoils many—chances are that not one hannkerchief in four will be perfect. One pays for a picture—not by square-foot valuation—one buys these most elegant handkerchiefs on their mechanic-art valuation.

And we have hemstitched handkerchiefs (women's) at 5c a piece—and at pretty much every price between. And every handkerchief here is of absolutely pure linen, unless it is silk.

A bargain—A limited lot of Embroidered and Lace-edged Handkerchiefs at 15c instead of 25c.

Broadway.

Saxony Flannel

30c a yard, instead of 37½c—and quite forty styles to choose from.

"Saxony" has come to be a trade term, as is "Brussels" for carpet or "Turkish" for towels. The Germans made them first; roughed them up or "teasled" them too much, Now Yankee wit gets the effect and makes the fabric of great durability.

They are for waists and house gowns and lots of uses which their prettiness will suggest. Wool. Plaids, stripes and streaks and splotches of white or color on deeper-color grounds.

Wish we had more at the price—these will not half meet the demand.

Tenth street and Fourth avenue.

There are Christmas gifts pre-eminent, as rich fur garments and gems, or, maybe still better, a Krell Piano. The Wanamaker Piano Store is making friends rapidly.

A Store-ful of Bargains

ON THE FIFTH FLOOR

What follows is by no means a complete list of the Bargain Store's offering to-day. Only a few are specified,—the newest and most prominent. Numerous other tables and counters hold desirable goods, which, for one reason or another, are there at prices far below normal.

Handkerchiefs

Men's and Women's. By accurate count 13,618 all-linen handkerchiefs. Values range from 15c to 75c each—the higher-priced sorts in fair proportion. Choosing begins this morning at 12½c. That low price because the handkerchiefs are not strictly perfect. The fault—a heavy thread, a pinhole, a tiny knot—you'll have to hunt for it.

Silk Waists

These are of a good quality of taffeta silk, made well and prettily—stylish. All solid colors, newest shades. Black ones, of course. Front, back and tops of sleeves covered with fine cording. At $6 they'd be cheap. Still we price these at $4.75.

Petticoats at 50c

That price is just about half value. The petticoats are of cotton—Mercerized—in excellent imitation of silk. Shown in red, cerise, bluet, green. Value, $1. Price, 50c.

Dress Goods

Imported whipcord, covert cloth and Bedford cord suitings, in green shades and mixes—37½c instead of $1.25.

Austrian China

Plates and cups and saucers in various pretty, bright decorations. Some with solid color borders—red, blue, green; others have festoon borders with narrow rim of colors and gold. All of excellent quality—a kind that would be moderately priced at 50c. Choice of tea plates, bread-and-butter plates and cups and saucers at 25c each.

Jardinieres

A new shipment, and another sale. Same class of goods exactly as those that were so quickly snapped up recently—same low prices, too. 50c kinds at 30c; 85c kinds at 55c.

Silk Petticoats

Solid colors and black. Deep ruffle with rows of cording, and pinked dust ruffle. Price is $5 each—should be $6.50.

Towels

Imported a large lot of hemmed huckaback towels to sell at a less-than-usual price—12½c. Some remain—in the way—10c each now. Towels at 19c instead of 25c; at 30c instead of 40c.

Lace Curtains When the plant branches too luxuriantly we clip off pieces—however fine—for the general good. So with stocks of goods that have bumps of excess here and there. These lace curtains are perfect and quite right in every way. Too many of some, too few of others to make them safe to keep.

Will you share the accidental good fortune?

Real Renaissance Lace Curtains, three patterns, $4.75 from $6.75 a pair.

Four other patterns or designs, that were $10.50, $11.25, $12.50 and $12.75 are reduced to $8 a pair.

Four styles that were $13 to $15 are $10 a pair.

And four styles that were $17 to $19.50 are $14 a pair

Third floor.

Fans Some of them perfect pictures—and the painting duly signed. Art Nouveau—scrawly but graceful; others filmy with appliques and insects of lace. Some touched off with spangles; others richest for their carved ivory sticks.

Here is one with real amber sticks; the fan part of point lace. It is $80.

Another is of tortoise shell—rather rare pieces—and white point lace appliqued on black net. This one is $73.

And then the simpler ones, down to $9, of these Paris conjurings, while we've other pretty fans (thinking only of those for gifts) for as little as $1.

Broadway.

Knitted Underwear It is more a question of daintiness than warmth—these medium-weight merino Shirts and Drawers for Men at 75c a garment, will give all the warmth most men care for. These heavy-weight garments at $1 will meet any New York demand for warmth. Yet for finer and finer sorts the prices run up to $19.25 a garment. And we probably lead in the importation of luxurious underwear and hosiery.

So much for the men.

For Women—

Equal carefulness and enough qualities and weights to meet every demand.

Union suits and tights are best adapted for wear with gowns of present styles, and for children are much in vogue because of the sensibleness of having undergarments fit closely.

Tights, knee or ankle length, fast black; wool face, $1.

Tights, all-silk, Swiss, white or black, ankle length, $5.

Children's black merino tights, ribbed, ankle length; size 3 for 60c; advance 5c for each size.

Children's wool tights, black, ribbed, ankle length—size 1 at 75c; advance 5c for each size.

Main floor, Broadway.

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co., JOHN WANAMAKER Broadway, Fourth Ave., Ninth and Tenth Streets.

PET DOGS, PRIZE WINNERS

Large Thanksgiving Day Attendance at American Club's Show.

MRS. HOWARD GOULD'S LUCK

Championship Awards Left Over Till To-day, When the Exhibition Will Close.

When the management of the American Pet Dog Club's annual show, now in progress at the Metropolitan Opera House, decided to keep the show open on Thanksgiving Day there were many in the club who predicted that whatever might be the fate of the show on the other days of the exhibition, it would on the holiday get only a frosty reception from the members of the social world. There were so many other matters on the tapis with which society would have to busy itself, so many sporting affairs, and theatre parties, charitable organization affairs to attend to, family reunions with the regulation Thanksgiving turkey dinners that, it was argued, society would be sure to ignore the pet dogs.

But the prophets of evil were agreeably surprised yesterday when it was noticed that the attendance was larger than ever, and that the visitors seemed more interested than on the opening day of the show in what was going on in the realm of the kings and queens of dogdom.

Persons of all walks in life visited the show, and the crowd at the evening session was especially large. Society folk came to see, some of them their own pets as well as those of their friends; the theatrical visitors were interested particularly in the pets of the actresses, which were entered in the competition for the trophy offered by Anna Held for the best dog owned by an actress. By the political lights, and there were many of them present, Richard Croker's entries in the French bulldog class were sought out for inspection.

SOME HOLIDAY VISITORS.

Among the visitors during the day and evening were Mr. and Mrs. Maturin Delafield, and the Misses Delafield, Col. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. G. W. Townsend, William C. Whitney, John A. Hecksher, Chester F. Griswold, George G. Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clews, Col. and Mrs. William Jay, Gen. and Mrs. Lloyd Brice, Mr. and Mrs. J. Carroll Beckwith, Mr. and Mrs. John Riker, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bronson, Mr. and Mrs. George Rives, William K. Vanderbilt, Winfield Hoyt, George de Forrest Grant, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Kernochan, Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Pell, Frank Gray Griswold, Alexander H. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. W. Watts-Sherman, Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry and the Misses Gerry, Col. Johnston L. de Peyster, Miss Justine de Peyster, Mrs. Henry James Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills. Ogden Mills.

Usually the awards at the Pet Dog Show are all finished on the opening day, but the classes were so numerous and so well filled this year that judging went on all day yesterday, and the championship prizes were left over for to-day, the last day of the show.

Yorkshire terriers are among the "tikes" that attract a lot of attention, and while they were being judged yesterday there was considerable betting among the dog fanciers as to which the award of blue ribbons would fall. Up to this year Mrs. Senn, a Harlem exhibitor, has had practically a monopoly of the first prizes for this breed, but a new exhibitor had a prize winner there that carried all before her in the classes in which the animal was entered. This exhibitor was Mrs. George S. Thomas of Hamilton, Mass., whose entry, Little Minnie, won first prize for Yorkshires in the limit bitches, open bitches, winners' class, and in the special trophy class. Second prize in its class was given to Mrs. Howard Gould's black pug Candace.

This evening there will be a lively competition for a two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar medal, which will be awarded to the best novice dog shown.

THANKSGIVING DAY AWARDS.

The following awards were made yesterday:

CLASS 153A—Airdale terriers, open, bitches.—First prize, $15, J. Lorillard Arden's Clonmael Sensation; second prize, $10, Hastings' Barkerena; third prize, $5, Hastings Kennels' Hastings' Mona.

CLASS 179—Scottish terriers, open, dogs.—First prize, $15, Newcastle Kennels' Askley Crack; second prize, $10, Mrs. C. W. Sherman's Roxburgh; third prize, $5, Nosegay Kennels' Loyne Ruffian.

CLASS 180—Scottish terriers, open, bitches.—First prize, $15, Robert Irvine's Betsy Ross; second prize, $10, Newcastle Kennels' Newcastle Nellie; third prize, $5, W. L. Beadleston's Highland Fling.

CLASS 181—Scottish terriers, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Robert Irvine's Betsy Ross; reserve, Newcastle Kennels' Askley Crack.

CLASS 183—Welsh, Reddington, and Dandie Dinmont terriers, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, Mrs. G. S. Thomas's Red Palm; second prize, $10, John Brett's Medr '96.

CLASS 129—French bulldogs, limit, dogs.—First prize, $10, Samuel Haas's Paulus; second prize, $5, Walter J. Comstock, Jr.'s Crib, Jr.; third prize, medal, Miss S. C. Stanton's Jacques.

CLASS 53—Cocker spaniels, dogs, open, (black.)—First prize, $15, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. One; second prize, $10, Edward W. Fiske's Reveille; third prize, $5, George Dunn's Black Knight of Woodstock.

CLASS 54—Cocker spaniels, open, dogs, (other than black.)—First prize, $15, Bay View Kennels' Bay View Robbin; second prize, $10, W. T. Payne's Mohican; third prize, $5, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Cupid S.

CLASS 55—Cocker spaniels, winners, dogs.—First prize, ribbon, W. T. Payne's Romany Rye; reserve, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. One.

CLASS 17—Greyhounds, limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Terra Cotta Kennels' Hattie M.; second prize, $5, Terra Cotta Kennels' Dictator; third prize, medal, I. F. Denton's Brannock.

CLASS 21—Greyhounds, team class, best exhibit of four. First prize, entrance fees and medal, Pembroke Kennels' team.

HOW THE COLLIES FARED.

CLASS 7—Collies, puppies, bitches.—First prize, $15, H. J. Bascom and F. Hayward's White Heather; second prize, $10, George Hall's Gipsy Queen; third prize, $7, Geraghty & Carver's Newburg Gem; fourth prize, $3, Geraghty & Carver's Newburg Quetet.

CLASS 3—Collies, limit dogs.—First prize, $15, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ormskirk Galopin; second prize, $10, H. J. Bascom and F. Hayward's Ormskirk Cornishman; third prize, $5, Blanc & Hunter's Brandane Rightaway; fourth prize, medal, Blanc & Hunter's Brandane Hunter.

CLASS 4—Collies, open, dogs.—First prize, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ornament; second prize, $10, Verona Kennels' Champion Old Hall Admiral; third prize, $5, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ormskirk Galopin; fourth prize, medal, J. I. Behling's Champion Wellesbourne Wonder.

CLASS 5—Collies, Canadian or Western dogs.—First prize, $15, Verona Kennels' champion Old Hall Admiral; second prize, $10, Verona Kennels' Vernon Selection; third prize, $5, Joseph Reid's Logan Oscar; fourth prize, medal, J. I. Behling's champion Wellesbourne Wonder.

CLASS 6—Collies, winning dogs.—First prize, Collie Club medal, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ornament.

CLASS 8—Collies, novice, bitches, American bred.—First prize, $15, George Hall's Gipsy Queen; second prize, $10, Geraghty & Carver's Newburg Quetz; third prize, $7, Blanc & Hunter's Brandane Beatrice; fourth prize, $3, Joseph Reid's Logan's Apple Blossom.

CLASS 9—Collies, limit bitches.—First prize, $15, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ormskirk Connie; second prize, $10, Bropkside Farm Kennels' Brookside Betty; third prize, $5, Blanc & Hunter's Brandane Victoria; fourth prize, medal, Verona Kennels' Verona Admiral's Mint.

CLASS 10—Collies, open, bitches.—First prize, $15, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ormskirk Connie; second prize, $10, Verona Kennels' champion Heather Mint; third prize, $5, Brookside Farm Kennels' Brookside Betty; fourth prize, medal, J. Pierpont Morgan's Barwell Mystery.

CLASS 11—Collies, Canadian or Western bitches.—First prize, $15, Verona Kennels' champion Heather Mint; second prize, $10, Verona Kennels' Verona Admiral's Mint; third prize, $5, J. I. Behling's Highfield Gem; fourth prize, medal, Joseph Reid's Logan's Apple Blossom.

CLASS 12—Collies, winners, bitches.—First prize, Collie Club medal, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ormskirk Connie.

CLASS 13—Collies, seniors, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, J. Pierpont Morgan's Ornament; second prize, $10, Verona Kennels' champion Heather Mint; third prize, $7, Verona Kennels' champion Old Hall Admiral; fourth prize, $3, J. Pierpont Morgan's Barwell Mystery.

CLASS 14—Collies, other than sable or sable and white, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, C. G. Taylor's Beacon Rightaway; second prize, $10, H. J. Bascom and F. Hayward's White Heather; third prize $5, C. G. Taylor's Beacon Shep; fourth prize, medal, Black & Hunter's Brandane Rightaway.

CLASS 15—Collies, "new members'" dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, H. J. Bascom and F. Hayward's Ormskirk Cornishman; second prize, $10, J. H. Hubbell's Admiral; third prize, $5, J. I. Behling's champion Wellesbourne Wonder; fourth prize, medal, R. D. Bohannan's Challifond Hero.

OLD ENGLISH SHEEP DOGS.

CLASS 16—Old English sheep dogs, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, R. H. Williams's Sir Charles; second prize, $10, J. W. Morgan's Breeder; third prize, $5, R. H. Williams's Sir Whittaker; fourth prize, medal, R. H. Williams's Dash Elfrida.

CLASS 37—Irish water spaniels, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, T. A. Garner's Dan McCarthy.

CLASS 38—Clumber spaniels, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, Miss N. B. Douglas's Anson; second prize, $10, H. G. C. Wadsworth's Royal Rwell; third prize, $5, Miss N. B. Douglas's Jubilee John.

CLASS 37—Field spaniels, limit, dogs.—First prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Knight; second prize, $5, Mrs. D. W. Evans's Sunning Hill Bridford.

CLASS 38—Field spaniels, open, dogs, (black.)—First prize, $15, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Endcliffe Bishop; second prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Knight; third prize, $5, Mrs. D. W. Evans's Sunning Hill Bridford.

CLASS 39—Open, dogs, (other than black.)—First prize, $15, Mrs. D. W. Evans's Sunning Hill Bridford.

CLASS 40—Field spaniels, winners, dogs.—First prize, ribbon, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Endcliffe Bishop.

CLASS 41—Field spaniels, novice, bitches—First and second prizes, A. S. C. M., Marcel A. Viti's Libel.

CLASS 42—Field spaniels, limit, bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. D. W. Evans's imp. Waterlily; second prize, $10, Marcel A. Viti's Annoyance.

CLASS 43—Field spaniels, open, bitches, (black.)—First prize, $15, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Endcliffe Myrtle; second prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Jewel.

CLASS 44—Field spaniels, open, bitches, (other than black.)—First prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Banner Hazil; second prize, $5, Mrs. D. W. Evans's imp. Waterlily.

CLASS 45—Field spaniels, winners, bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Banner Hazil.

CLASS 46—Field spaniels, team class, (best exhibit of four.)—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Swiss Mountain Kennels' team.

Best field spaniel—Swiss Mountain Kennels' ch. Endcliffe Bishop.

Best brace of black puppies—Marcel A. Viti's Libel and Annoyance.

Best American-bred bitch—Marcel A. Viti's Annoyance.

COCKER SPANIELS' LUCK.

CLASS 47—Cocker spaniels, puppies, dogs.—First prize, $10, H. C. C. Wadsworth's Prince Rupert; second prize, $5, Edwin W. Fiske's Traitor; third prize, medal, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Ober.

CLASS 47A—Cocker spaniels, puppies, bitches.—First prize, George Dunn's Mira; second prize, $5, Garden Kennels' Garden Coquette; third prize, medal, Edwin W. Fiske's Dark Days.

CLASS 48—Cocker spaniels, novices, dogs, (black.)—First prize and second prize, A. S. C. M., George Dunn's Scottish Chief; second prize, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Mike.

CLASS 49—Cocker spaniels, novice, dogs, (other than black.)—First and second prizes, A. S. C. M., Bay View Kennels' Bay View Robbin; second prize, W. T. Payne's Mohican.

CLASS 50—Cocker spaniels, limit, dogs, (black.)—First prize, $10, H. G. C. Wadsworth's Dua Rey; second prize, $5, Edwin Blake's King Quality; third prize, medal, George Dunn's Care.

CLASS 51—Cocker Spaniels, limit, dogs, (any other solid color.)—First prize, $10; Bay View Kennels' Bay View Robbin; second prize, $5, H. G. C. Wadesworth's Prince Rupert; third prize, medal, Edward W. Fiske's Chum II.

CLASS 52—Cocker Spaniels, limit, dogs, (particolor.)—W. T. Payne's Romany Rye; second prize, $5, Edward W. Fiske's Sleepy Bill; third prize, medal, Kepal Kennels, Broadside Bob.

CLASS 53—Cocker Spaniels, open, dogs, (black.)—First prize, $15, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Ch. Ono; second prize, $10, Edward W. Fiske's Reveille; third prize, $5, George Dunn's Black Knight of Woodstock.

CLASS 54—Cocker spaniels, open, dogs, (other than black)—First prize, $15, Bay View Kennels' Bay View Robbin; second prize, $10, W. T. Payne's Mohican; third prize, $5, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Cupid S.

CLASS 55—Cocker spaniels, winners, (dogs.)—W. T. Payne's Romany Rye.

CLASS 149a—Airedale terriers, puppies, dogs, bitches.—First prize, $10, Brushwood Kennels' Brushwood Darkie; second prize, $5, Hastings Kennels' Hastings Cracker; third prize, medal, J. F. Denton's Jim.

CLASS 150—Airedale terriers, novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, J. Lorillard Arden's Kitty; second prize, $5, Hastings Kennels' Penroh's Mustard.

CLASS 126—French bulldogs, winners, (bitches.)—First prize, ribbon, Mrs. Amy C. Gillig's Antoinette.

CLASS 127—French bulldogs, team class, best four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Mrs. Amy C. Gillig's team.

BLACK AND TAN TERRIERS.

CLASS 167—Black and tan terriers, novice, dogs and bitches, (over seven pounds.)—First prize, $10, Mrs. William Routley's London Daily Mail; second prize, $5, H. T. Foote's Break o' Day; third prize, medal, Miss T. Lynch's Lady Flora.

CLASS 168—Black and tan terriers, limit, dogs and bitches, (over seven pounds.)—First prize, $10, H. T. Foote's Essie M.; second prize, $5, Mrs. G. S. Thomas's Edcliffe Violet; third prize, medal, Frank Croker's Foxy Quiller.

CLASS 169—Black and tan terriers, open, dogs and bitches, (over seven pounds.)—First prize, $15, H. T. Foote's ch. Brunswick Duchess; second prize, $10, J. Taylor's ch. Canadian Duchess; third prize, $5, H. T. Foote's Perfecto.

CLASS 170—Black and tan terriers, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, H. T. Foote's ch. Brunswick Duchess.

CLASS 171—Black and tan terriers, team class, best team of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, H. T. Foote's team.

CLASS 196—Pomeranians, open, dogs and bitches, (black.)—First prize, $15, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Chapple; second prize, $10, Lake Pomeranians' Lakewood Bob; third prize, $5, Mrs. F. Senn's Nubin.

CLASS 197—Pomeranians, open, dogs, (white.)—First prize, $15, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Prims; second prize, $10, Albert C. Sugden's Zi Zi; third prize, $5, Count von Feroldingen's Fleck Ive.

CLASS 197A—Pomeranians, open, bitches, (white.)—First prize, $15, Lakewood Pomeranains' Lakewood Cora.

CLASS 197B — Pomeranians, novice, dogs, (brown.)—First prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Rebel; second prize, $5, Mrs. Edward Holbrook's Will o' the Wisp; third prize, medal, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Brown Boy.

CLASS 197C—Pomeranians, novice, bitches, (brown.)—First prize, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Haughty Brownie; second prize, $5, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Connie; third prize, medal, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Dolly.

CLASS 198—Pomeranians, open, dogs and bitches, (brown.)—First prize, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Nubian Noel; second prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Naughty Brownie; third prize, $5, Mrs. Edward Holbrook's Will o' the Wisp.

CLASS 199—Pomeranians, open, dogs and bitches, (blue.)—First prize, $15, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Blue Rey; second prize, $10, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Remus.

CLASS 200—Pomeranians, open, dogs and bitches, (any other color.)—First prize, $15, Lakewood Pomeranians' Lakewood Chote; second prize, $10, Mrs. F. Senn's Za Za; third prize, $5, Miss Florence Lloyd's Foxy.

POMERANIANS' TEAM CLASS.

CLASS 201—Pomeranians' team class, best exhibitor of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Lakewood Pomeranians' Team No. 1.

CLASS 202—Pugs, novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. C. Y. Ford's Otterburn Dora; second prize, $5, Mrs. Howard Gould's Candace.

CLASS 203—Pugs, limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Eberhart Kennels' Lena Eberhart; second prize, $5, Mrs. C. Y. Ford's Otterburn Dora; third prize, medal, Frank H. Dole's Sir Martin.

CLASS 204—Pugs, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, T. A. Howard's ch. Wallis; second prize, $10, Eberhart Kennels' Lola; third prize, $5, Eberhart Kennels' ch. Trilby Eberhart.

CLASS 205—Pugs, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, T. A. Howard's ch. Wallis.

CLASS 206—Pugs, team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Eberhart Kennels' team.

CLASS 207—Italian greyhounds, novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, T. A. Howard's Byron's Countess; second prize, $5, Mrs. F. Senn's Buffie; third prize, medal, Mrs. F. Senn's Ninnie.

CLASS 208—Italian greyhounds, limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, T. A. Howard's Byron's Countess; second prize, $5, Frank H. Hoyt's Philip Silver; third prize, medal, Mrs. F. Senn's Silver.

CLASS 209—Italian greyhounds, open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $15, T. A. Howard's Byron's Countess; second prize, $10, Frank H. Hoyt's The King; third prize, $5, Mrs. F. Senn's Buff.

CLASS 210—Italian greyhounds, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, T. A. Howard's Byron's Countess.

CLASS 211—Italian greyhounds.—Team class, Mrs. F. Senn's team.

CLASS 214A—Yorkshire terriers, open, bitches.—First prize, $10, Miss Lillian C. Moeran's Ashton Marvel; second prize, $5, Miss Lillian C. Moeran's Ashton Pearl; third prize, medal, W. H. Cooper's Nan.

CLASS 215—Yorkshire terriers, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize ribbon, Mrs. C. F. Thomas's Endcliffe Midgy.

CLASS 216—Yorkshire terriers, team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Mrs. F. Senn's team.

CLASS 218—Toy black and tan terriers, novice, dogs and bitches (not exceeding seven pounds.)—First prize, $10, Gem City Kennels' Uneda; second prize, $5, Mrs. James F. Miller's Pinkie; third prize, medal, Mrs. Elizabeth Nau's Prince.

CLASS 219—Toy black and tan terriers, limit, dogs and bitches (not exceeding seven pounds.)—First prize, $10, Gem City Kennels' Uneda; second prize, $5, Gem City Kennels' Vesta, Jr.; third prize, medal, Louis Rosenfeld's Trixie.

CLASS 50—Cocker spaniels, limit, bitches, (any other solid color.)—First prize, $10, W. T. Payne's Lilith; second prize, $5, Carleton V. Ford's Otterburn Evangeline; third prize, medal, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Midge.

CLASS 60—Cocker spaniels, limit, bitches.—First prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Cigarette.

Golf at Park Club, Plainfield.

The active season at the Park Golf Club at Plainfield, N. J., closed yesterday with a men's handicap competition for the Hyde Cup and a mixed foursome. There was a very large attendance at the course all day. In the afternoon a tea was held at the clubhouse of Mrs. J. C. Peck, and Mrs. F. H. Ball presided. In the morning the qualifying round for the Hyde Cup was played. It was medal play, eighteen holes, handicap. There were twenty entries. Charles E. Faber and Herbert Crowe met in the final round, match play, in the afternoon, Crowe winning 5 up and 4 to go. In the mixed foursome of nine holes Mrs. Meredith Dryden and Meredith Dryden won with net score of 51.

Golf for the Gilbert Cup.

The last event of the season on the links of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, at Plainfield, N. J., was held yesterday afternoon. It was a mixed foursome for the Gilbert Cup. The cup goes to the young woman winning it three times. So far the winners have been Miss Evans, Miss Shepard, and Miss Grace Kaufman. W. T. Kaufman and his daughter, Miss Gladys Kaufman, made the lowest score to-day—93 net.

Nature's Remedy for Constipation

Hunyadi János

THE BEST NATURAL APERIENT WATER.

Insist on Having the Genuine.

CANARY BIRDS ON EXHIBITION.

Lyric Hall Shelters the Ornithological Society's Second Display.

Pet dogs of high degree have been having their day at the Metropolitan Opera House, and now household pets of another kind have put forward a claim to public attention at Lyric Hall. These are 500 canaries, assembled to compete in form and grace and voice at the instance of the Greater New York Ornithological Society of Canaries and Cage Birds, whose second annual exhibition opened yesterday.

All the birds, with the exception of the pairs, are of this year's breed. They are divided into two principal categories, the "long" birds, prized for their shape and pose, and the "short" birds, which are prized for their vocal talent, and that this talent is of a very high order was the opinion of all those who listened to the sweet notes that rippled and trilled in a ceaseless symphony from morn till night yesterday.

The birds that especially interested the fanciers, however, were the patrician pure-strain Belgians which form a collection that, the experts say, has never been equaled for quality in this country.

The judging in the various classes was completed yesterday, the judges being Thomas Barr and James Booth of Paterson, N. J. The result was as follows:

Belgian, Yellow Male.—First prize, William Mather of Queens Borough; second and third prizes, William Crawford of Manhattan.

Belgian, Yellow Females.—First prize, George F. Scherb of Manhattan; second prize, Henry McCabe, Manhattan; third prize, William Mather.

Belgian, Buff Male.—First prize, George F. Scherb; second prize, William Crawford; third prize, Andrew Lawler, Queens Borough.

Belgian, Buff Females.—First prize, William Mather; second prize, Andrew Lawler; third prize, William Crawford.

Begian, Pairs.—First prize, Daniel Mahoney, Manhattan; second and third prizes, George F. Scherb.

Scotch Fancy, Clean Male, Yellow or Buff.—First prize, William Crawford; second and third prizes, William Mather.

Scotch Fancy Mottled, Yellow or Buff, Male.—First prize, William Crawford; second prize, William Mather; third prize, William Crawford.

Scotch Fancy Mottled, Yellow or Buff Female.—First prize, William Mather; second prize, George Bell, Manhattan; third prize, William Crawford. These birds were awarded special prizes on points as the finest in the show.

American Fancy, Male, Yellow Mottled.—First prize, Henry McCabe; second prize, George Bell; third prize, Henry McCabe.

American Fancy, Female, Yellow Mottled.—First prize, George Bell; second and third prizes, Henry McCabe.

American Fancy, Male, Buff Mottled—First prize, George Bell; second prize, Henry McCabe; third prize, William Crawford.

American Fancy, Female, Buff Mottled.—First, second, and third prizes, Henry McCabe.

Pairs, Mottled or Green.—First and second prizes, Henry McCabe; third prize, William Crawford.

German Rollers.—First, second, and third prizes, Alphonse Hammerer, Brooklyn.

Mules, Any Variety.—First, second, and third prizes, Daniel Mahoney.

The exhibition will remain open until to-morrow night.

At the Bennings Track.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—This was the last day of the Autumn meeting of the Washington Jockey Club. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Three-year-olds and upward, non-winners of $450 in 1899; one mile and a sixteenth. Queen of Song, 104 pounds, (Dangman,) 5 to 1, won; Strangest, 101, (McIntyre,) 5 to 1 and 9 to 5, second; Alvarado II., 103, (Jenkins,) 4 to 1, third. Time—1:51 3-5. Lindula also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Maiden two-year-olds; six furlongs. Grandeur, 110 pounds, (O'Connor,) 11 to 5, won; Carsailo, 107, (Brien,) 4½ to 1, and 8 to 5, second; Jim Breeze, 107, (McIntyre,) 8 to 5, third. Time—1:17 3-5. Liebe, Matt Simpson, Charcola, Golden Sceptre, and Kindred also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Handicap, steeplechase; three-year-olds and upward; about three miles. Plato, 137 pounds, (Connolly,) 10 to 1, won; Bevel, 135, (Mr. Taylor,) 10 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; The Watchman, 137, (Brown,) 12 to 1, third. Time 6:11. Sibley, Ochiltree, Phoebus, and Tentore also ran. Plato and Ochiltree were coupled in the betting.

FOURTH RACE.—Washington Cup; three-year-olds and upward; seven pounds under the scale; $1,500 added; two miles and a quarter. Warrenton, 107 pounds, (O'Connor,) 1 to 10, won; Beau Ideal, 104, (McIntyre,) 12 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Brisk, 104, (Moody,) 7 to 10, third. Time—4:04 4-5. Our Nellie, Weller, Charagrace, Hold Up, and Maurice also ran. Warrenton and Brisk coupled in the betting. Separate prize on Brisk, 4 to 1.

FIFTH RACE.—Highweight handicap for two-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs. James, 122 pounds, (Clawson,) 5 to 1, won; Buffoon, 129, (J. Murphy,) 12 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Dan Rice, 130, (McIntyre,) 5 to 1, third. Time—1:29 4-5. Goal Runner, Sidney Lucas, Lady Lindsey, Water Crest, Tabouret, Tinkler, and Ludwigshafen also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling; three-year-olds and upward, non-winners during the meeting, at twenty pounds under the scale; one mile and fifty yards. Compensation, 96 pounds, (J. Slack,) 1 to 2, won; Plantain, 97, (Seaton,) 10 to 1 and 2½ to 1, second; The Gardner, 99, (Cowman,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:49. Tyran, Avoca, Brahmin, Dr. Parker, and Bob White also

CORNELL IS BADLY BEATEN

Pennsylvania Wins at Football by a Score of 20 to 0.

ITHACANS WEAK IN THE LINE

Only Twice During the Entire Game Were They Able to Stop the Fierce Rushes of the Quakers.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—Pennsylvania ran the Cornell men off their feet on Franklin Field this afternoon, defeating the Ithaca football team by the score of 20 to 0. That the red and blue would score a victory over the carnelian and white was confidently expected by the Pennsylvania followers, but that they would be defeated by so decisive a score was almost beyond the wildest hopes of the Pennsylvanians.

Cornell was lamentably weak, especially in the line. Only twice during the entire game did the Ithacans stop the Quakers' fierce rushes, and then only when the Pennsylvanians had almost made the necessary five yards. When Cornell had possession of the ball she showed up just as weak in advancing it as she did in trying to prevent Pennsylvania from carrying it forward. Cornell did not earn a first down, her few attempts at end skirting being promptly nipped by the Quaker ends. Her attack on the Pennsylvania's line was also very weak, it seldom gaining a foot.

On the other hand the Pennsylvanians played a superb game. The plays were gotten off rapidly and smoothly, and red and blue was seldom downed without gain. The men worked as a unit, and on the defense the team was a veritable stone wall. The Quakers gave a good exhibition of line bucking and plunging, in fact the best that has been seen here this season. Wherever they attacked the Cornell line they made big holes in it and broke through for five, ten, and fifteen yards at a time. With the exception at the end of the second half, Pennsylvania never tried to send a runner around Cornell's ends. The Quakers' terrific rushes told on the Cornell men, and the game was considerably delayed by players being injured. Three of Cornell's men were forced to leave the game, while Pennsylvania was intact throughout the contest.

Capt. Hare, McCracken, Coombs, and Teas were frequently used by Pennsylvania in her rushes, and all acquitted themselves well. Alexander was a stone wall in Cornell's line, but his colleagues were not equal to the task set by Pennsylvania. In the kicking line, Pennsylvania had a little the better of it, but both teams suffered equally from fumbles, of which there were not many.

Fully 28,000 persons saw the contest. The day was a beautiful one from a spectator's view point, but a trifle warmer for the players. There was a large contingent of Cornell rooters on the north stand, and it made a great deal of noise.

Pennsylvania made two touch-downs in the first half. The first score was made six minutes after the kick-off, Potter breaking through Cornell's line and running thirty-five yards for the touch-down. The second touch-down was made by straight line plunging from Pennsylvania's 35-yard line. Hare missed the goal.

The Quakers scored eighteen points in the second half on three touch-downs and three goals. Two of them were made by pegging away at Cornell's line, and the [illegible] made principally through Potter's running back sixty yards on Starbuck's kick-off.

Capt. Starbuck won the toss and chose the west goal, the wind being across the field, in neither side's favor. Capt. Hare kicked off and G. H. Young ran the ball back fifteen yards to his own thirty-yard line. Pennsylvania gained possession of the pigskin on a fumble, and Capt. Hare tried for a field goal from placement, but failed. Cornell kicked to Pennsylvania's thirty-five-yard line, and the Quakers by a series of rushes soon had the ball on Cornell's thirty-five-yard line. Then Potter broke through the Cornell team, and before he could be downed, planted the ball behind Cornell's goal line. Hare kicked the goal. Score: Pennsylvania, 6; Cornell, 0.

Hare ran Starbuck's kick-off back fifteen yards, and Cornell got the ball on a fumble, but immediately lost it on downs. Hare made fifteen yards on a plunge through tackle; straight line bucking added twenty yards more, and then Hare and McCracken were sent against the line until the ball was on Cornell's thirty-yard mark. Here Pennsylvania lost it for interference and Cornell kicked to Pennsylvania's thirty-yard line. Kennedy made ten yards, and McCracken took it around Cornell's left end or thirty-five to Cornell's thirty-five-yard line, where Pennsylvania lost it on a fumble.

An exchange of kicks found the ball on Cornell's forty-three-yard line, G. H. Young having run the kick back twenty yards. Another exchange of kicks brought the ball to Pennsylvania's thirty-five-yard line. The Quakers bucked the line for fifteen yards, and McCracken went through the Cornell team for twenty-two, and followed this up by making fifteen yards more on two bucks against the centre. Teas made his distance, as did also Hare, and then McCracken was pushed over the Cornell line for the second touch-down. Hare missed the goal. Score—Pennsylvania, 11; Cornell, 0.

Hare ran Cornell's kick-off back to his own twenty-four-yard line, where the ball was given to Cornell for off-side play, but Pennsylvania immediately regained it in a fumble. The Quakers by side plunges took the pigskin to Cornell's twenty-five-yard line, where it was when the half ended.

Score—Pennsylvania, 11; Cornell, 0.

There were no changes in the teams when they took the field for the second half. Cornell kicked off to Pennsylvania's forty-yard line, and in a half dozen line plunges the Quakers took the ball past midfield. Hare, McCracken, and Potter carried the ball to Cornell's thirty-yard line. A few more plunges, and the ball was on Cornell's five-yard line. Then Hare burst through the Ithaca men for the third touch-down. Potter kicked the goal. Score—Pennsylvania, 17, Cornell, 0.

Hare ran back Cornell's kick-off fifteen yards to his own 25-yard line. Cornell got the ball for holding, and Young's drop-kick for field goal was blocked, a Pennsylvanian falling on the ball on the Quakers' 15-yard mark. Hare and McCracken carried the ball to their own 50-yard line by good line bucking. Try as they would, the Cornellians could not stop the Quakers, and the ball was soon on Cornell's 15-yard line, where the Ithacans put in two fresh men. Then, for the first time, the Cornell players held and got the ball on downs. They could not advance it, however, and Starbuck punted to his own 35-yard line. Hare made five yards around Cornell's left, and centre plunges brought the ball to Cornell's 5-yard mark. The rest was easy, McCracken being rammed home for the fourth touch-down. Outland kicked the goal. Score: Pennsylvania 22, Cornell 0.

Potter caught Starbuck's kick off, and by splendid interference ran sixty yards to Cornell's fifty-yard line. Three more plunges netted 30 yards. Two more tries brought the ball to Cornell's ten-yard line, after which Hare went over the goal line for the fifth and last touch-down of the game. This touch-down was made in seven plays and in very quick time. Outland kicked the goal. Score: Pennsylvania, 29; Cornell, 0.

There remained but a short time to play, and when the game ended Pennsylvania was engaged in pushing the ball down the field having carried it from their own twenty-two yard line to their forty-nine yard mark.

The lineup:

Pennsylvania.	Positions.	Cornell.
Coombs	Left end	Davall
Shover	Left tackle	Folger, G Young
Hare, (Capt.)	Left guard	Warner
Overfield	Centre	Iserson
Teas	Right guard	Caldwell, Dorner
Wallace	Right tackle	Alexander
Outland	Right end	Faussig
Kennedy	Quarterback	G. H. Young
Potter	Left half back	Walbridge, Windsor
Gardiner	Right half back	Morrison
McCracken	Full back	Starbuck, (Capt.

Score—Pennsylvania, 29; Cornell, 0. Touch-downs—Hare, 2; McCracken, 2; Potter, 1. Goals from touch-downs—Outland, 2; Hare, 1; Potter, 1. Goal from touch-down, missed—Hare, 1. Referee—R. C. Wrenn of Harvard. Umpire—Paul J. Dashiell, Johns Hopkins. Timekeepers—John Hedges, Pennsylvania. H—Teller, Cornell. Time of halves—Thirty-five minutes.

WISCONSIN, 17; MICHIGAN, 5.

Capt. O'Dea's Great Right Leg Did Wonderful Execution.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—Before what probably was the largest crowd that ever gathered to witness a football game in the West, the eleven from the University of Wisconsin defeated the University of Michigan eleven this morning by a score of 17 to 5. The mighty right leg of Capt. O'Dea, the Wisconsin captain and full back, was a big factor in the one-sided score, as he was responsible for ten of the points scored by the Badgers. Once he lifted the ball cleanly between the goal posts from the thirty-five-yard line, and once his punt went so far that McLean misjudged it and, fumbling, gave Hyman a chance to fall on the pigskin behind Michigan's goal posts, which he did.

The second touch-down by Wisconsin was made on clean, hard football in the second half, the light but active linemen from Wisconsin opening holes in the Michigan forwards through which Peele, Larson, Curtis, and Blair plunged for big gains. The defensive work of the Wisconsin eleven was remarkable, and time and again Sweely was forced to punt, the exchanges while O'Dea was in the game always resulting in big losses for Michigan. O'Dea, however, was ruled out for slugging on the play that resulted in a touch-down by Hylan, and Driver, who took his place, was much inferior to the Michigan kickers, though he did splendid work in plunging through the line. Wisconsin was expected to show inferiority in its offensive game, but the way the Badger backs tore through was a surprise even to their most enthusiastic rooters. During most of the game Michigan was on the defensive, and poor judgment on the part of Wisconsin in the first half in attempting a fake kick when the ball was in splendid position for a kick from the field probably cost the Badgers five points.

In the second half, also, the ball was worked down the field twice to within fifteen yards of Michigan's goal line, but in both instances the Wisconsin forwards were guilty of holding in the line, and the ball went over. Wisconsin's weak point was at left end. Some of Michigan's best gains were made around Cochems, and Michigan's only touch-down was made by McLean in the second half after a beautiful run of forty-five yards, in which the fleet-footed Michigan man cleared his field without difficulty. Snow, who played against Cochems, bothered his man greatly, and frequently put him out of the place.

It was a battle royal between these two men throughout the game. Man for man, however, the Wisconsin line outclassed that of Michigan, even big Cunningham, who last year was picked for the All-Western centre, being completely outplayed by Chamberlain, whom Cunningham outweighed by at least twenty-five pounds.

Probably 21,000 people saw the struggle. Excursions trains were run from Milwaukee, Madison, and Marinette, Wis., and from Ann Arbor and Menominee, Mich. The brass bands of both universities were present, and before the game and between the halves marched around the gridiron trying to make themselves heard through the discord.

The teams lined up as follows:

Wisconsin.	Position.	Michigan.
Hyman	Right end	Snow
Curtis	Right tackle	Sheckle, White
Rodgers	Right Guard	France
Chamberlain	Centre	Cunningham
Lerum	Left guard	Siegmund
Blair	Left tackle	McDonald
Cochems	Left end	Gill
Platt, Wilmart	Quarter back	Street
Larsen	Right half back	Sweeley, Kenna
Peele	Left half back	McLean
O'Dea, Driver	Full back	Richardson

This closes the football season in the West.

ORANGE A. C. ELEVEN THE VICTORS.

Defeated the Newark Field Club in the Last Minute of Play.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 30.—The game between the elevens of the Orange Athletic Club and the Newark Field Club at the Orange Oval to-day was, as had been anticipated, a very exciting contest. Fully 3,000 persons were present. It was a stubborn battle, in which brilliant plays were shown at times, while there was also some fumbling.

Neither side had scored until within two minutes of the call of time in the last half, when the Orange boys obtained a touch-down and Reinhard kicked a goal, thus winning by a score of 6 to 0. The line-up follows:

Newark Field Club.	Position.	Orange A. C.
Mason	Left end	Kyle
Backus	Left tackle	Murray
Connery	Left guard	Estey
Mills	Centre	Mohr, (Capt.)
Daly	Right guard	Lancon
Weidenmayer, (Capt.)	Right tackle	Reinhard
English	Right end	Riemer
Truax	Quarter back	Lee
Carr	Left half back	Gibson
Miller	Right half back	Tucker
Dodd	Full back	Jeroleman

CHICAGO, 17; BROWN, 0.

Western Men Have It All Their Own Way.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—The University of Chicago finished her triumphant series today by defeating Brown by a score of 17 to 0. Only twice in the game did Brown menace the Maroon goal, and each time Chicago braced with fine spirit and saved her goal from the rushes of the Rhode Islanders. From centre to end the Maroons outpointed Brown, and gave an exhibition of consistent defense which she has seldom surpassed.

At no time was Brown able to score through the line, while Chicago found large holes at will and sent her fast backs around the visitors' ends for spectacular runs. Back of the line Richardson proved a jewel for Brown, and made the only score for the visitors. In the return of punts, both kicking and running, he showed himself to be one of the cleverest backs in the country. Hapgood also played a brilliant game for Brown, and almost scored single-handed before Chicago rallied with her back to the goal posts. Ten thousand people crowded the big stands.

The teams lined up as follows:

Chicago.	Position.	Brown.
Sheldon	Left end	Barrett
Feil	Left tackle	Hapgood
Flanagan	Right guard	Whittemore
Speed	Centre	Chesbro
Ahlswede	Right guard	Lelendly
Webb	Right tackle	Sheehan
Cassels	Right end	Slocum
Henry, Holste	Quarter back	Pratt
Eldridge, Henry	Left half back	Washburn
Hamill, Place	Right half back	Richardson
Slaker	Full back	Bates

This closes the football season in Chicago.

Polytechnic-High School Football.

The Polytechnic Institute Preparatory and Brooklyn High School teams played their annual football match at Washington Park, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. The game was exciting and well played throughout, "Poly, Prep." winning through the clever playing of A. Peil. He scored one touch-down and kicked a goal from the field. The line-up:

"Poly Prep."	Positions.	Brooklyn High.
La Montague	Left end	Rodgers
Libby, Williamson	Left tackle	Weeks, Wyckoff
Losee	Left guard	Vatet
Crane	Centre	Ward
Ross	Right guard	Gillespie
Burtenshaw	Right tackle	Bamber
E. Peil	Right end	O'Donoghue
Williams	Quarter back	Jayne
A. Peil, Begley	Left half back	Ketcham, Burk
Kernan	Right half back	Burrows
Comiskey	Full back	Schoenigahn

Score—"Poly. Prep.," 11; Brooklyn High, 0. Referee—Mr. Jones, Yale. Umpire—Mr. Van Wicklen, Yale. Touch-downs—A. Peil, Ketcham. Goals from touch-downs—A. Peil, O'Donoghue. Goal from field—A. Peil. Time—30 and 25 minute halves.

Lafayette, 36; Dickinson, 0.

EASTON, Penn., Nov. 30.—The Dickinson College football team was defeated by Lafayette this afternoon by a score of 36 to 0. Lafayette scored three touchdowns in each half. Capt. Bray kicked all the goals.

THOROUGHBRED SALE CLOSES.

Kentucky Horses Average Less Than $200 Each.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 30.—The thoroughbred sale closed to-day after disposing of 108 head for $15,218. During the week 440 have passed under the hammer for a total of $86,358. The race horse and sire Blaze sold to-day for $10, while imp. Potentate brought but $25. The American Breeders' Association has purchased seventy-one head for a total of $2,170. The dam of Blitzen and Blitzen's sister and other former great mares are among those knocked down to the association. Mares from August Belmont Nursery Stud sold well. The best prices were:

Do Do, br. m., 11, by Falsetto, dam Brocade, M. Young, $325; High Tea, ch. m., 7, by imp. Rayon D'Or, dam Ella T., George H. Whitney, $975; Armida, b. m., 10, by Sam Brown, dam Belladonna, Dr. Norwood, $725; Invermay, b. m., by imp Mortimer, dam Invermore, M. Young, $550; Leopold Ina, ch. m., by imp. Prince Leopold, dam imp. Leightonia, Dr. Norwood, $525; Golden Shore, ch. m., 7, by Spendthrift, dam Golde Ban, Williams & Radford, Cynthiana, $850; Auricola, ch. m., 13, by imp. King Ernest, dam Belinda, T. C. McDowell, $1,050; Doreen, ch. m., 5, by Uncas, dam imp. Michaelmas, Dr. J. D. Nest, $500; Cassy Frederick, b. m., 3, by imp. George Frederick, dam Maid of Honor II., T. C. McDowell, $500.

New Yorkers Buy Race Horses.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 30.—The Fasig-Tipton Company of New York has purchased of May Overton, Nashville, the brood mare Rosy Morn, dam of Boreal, the sire of Boralma, 2:13¼. Rosy Morn is by Alcantara, dam Noontide, by Harold II., dam Midnight, by Pilot, Jr. Price, $5,000. The same buyers bought yesterday the stallion Bow Bells for $10,000.

LEWIS KNOCKS OUT CONWAY.

Big Attendance at First Exhibition of Orange Lake Athletic Club.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, Nov. 30.—Tony Lewis of New York knocked out Eddie (Kid) Conway of Brooklyn at the opening exhibition of the Orange Lake Athletic Club this afternoon.

There was a large attendance. Lewis weighed 113 pounds and Conway 111. In the twelfth round Conway was felled with a right-hand swing on the jaw. "Pink" Evans of Yonkers challenged the winner to fight twenty rounds for a purse and side bet of $250, and Lewis accepted.

The club has secured a charter under the Horton law and intends to hold exhibitions weekly, having engaged some first-class metropolitan talent. A preliminary between Nelson Fraser and James Valentine, both of New York, put the audience in good humor, Fraser showing many quick moves. Casper Leon's brother seconded Conway in his bout.

Housefurnishings.

Here's the Basement's Bargain Friday Bulletin. Housekeepers will do well to look it over carefully if they would save money on articles that are needed in every home in the country. You can't buy them elsewhere at these prices.

Satin Lined Work Baskets, several pretty designs and different colors and linings, the regular 25c. kind; special at . . 15c

Japanned Steel Coal Hods, with funnel top, No. 17, the regular 45c. kind; special to-morrow at 22c

Blacking Cabinets, made of hard wood, in oak grain finish, high grade furniture polish, with carpeted top, the regular $1.50 kind; special at . . . 1.00

Five o'Clock Tea Kettles, pretty designs and shapes, in brass, copper and nickel finish, have patent asbestos filled lamps and the latest improvements, worth from $3.50 to $6.00; your choice at 2.75

Step Ladders, strong and durable, of heavy stock and nicely painted, with pail rest; 6-ft. size, special at 49c

7-ft. size, special at 59c

Gas Logs, warranted not to crack, in natural finish, a powerful heater; special to-morrow, per running inch, at . . 30c

Ready Mixed Paints, in ½ pint cans, warranted colors; special at . . 10c

Dog Collars, in a dozen different designs, assorted sizes, of finest leather, worth 40c. to 70c.; your choice at . . 20c

Tubs of white cedar, in oak grain finish, the 80c. kind; special . . . 40c

Ash Cans of the strongest kind of galvanized iron, with patent steel side protectors, none better made, our No. 70, full size, and worth $2.40; special at 1.75

Rival Ash Sifters, made of hard wood, fit over barrel, no dust or dirt, and sieve ashes perfectly; special at . . 45c

The famous Bissell's Cyco Bearing Carpet Sweeper is on inspection in our housefurnishing department, and for one day only we will offer the Columbia Sweeper at 1.35

The Crown Jewel at . . . 1.75

The Standard at . . . 1.90

The Grand Rapids at . . . 2.50

The above Sweepers are all warranted, and if not satisfactory after first usage, will be willingly exchanged.

Dish Pans of gray steel enamel ware, first quality stock, warranted, 10 qt. size; special at 22c

Rice Boilers of gray steel enamel ware, first quality stock, warranted, our No. 53; special at 32c

Dewey Cook Range, one of the handsomest, strongest and most practical ranges on the market, built of heavy iron, has nickel plated trimmings, large oven, and is guaranteed to be a good cooker and baker, equal to any ordinary No. 8, fully worth $16.00; special at 12.50

Wines and Liquors.

Just a few choice offerings for Bargain Friday—all good and pure and extremely low in price:

Claret—California Claret, vintage of 1893, per gallon, including jug . . . 59c

Very old Zinfandel, French type, per gal., including jug . . 75c

Safety brand Port and Sherry Wines, full bodied Wines, five years old, per gal., including jug, $1.25; per bot. . 30c

James E. Pepper Whiskey, per gal., including jug, $2.00; per bot. . 40c

Old Crow Whiskey, per gal., including jug, $2.65; per bot. . . . 65c

Pure Mt. Vernon Rye Whiskey, per gal., including jug, $2.75; full qts., per bot. 75c

Monogram Rye, per gal., including jug 3.00

Old Cabinet Rye Whiskey, per gal., including jug 4.00

Gloves for Men, Women and Children.

For outdoor winter-wear. Wear them and you will not be troubled with cold or chapped hands. Comfortable, of good appearance and very cheap at these special Bargain Friday prices:

Men's heavy Buckskin Gloves, lined or unlined, the well-known Hayes make, suitable for driving gloves, policemen's wear, &c. Well worth $1.25 per pair, here to-morrow at . . 85c

Men's Buckskin Gloves, the Hayes make, a very high grade, and excellent value at $1.75; here to-morrow at . . 1.39

Ladies' Cashmere Gloves, Ladies' Cashmere Mittens, Boys' Woollen Gloves, Children's Black Cashmere Mittens, ribbed tops, per pair . . . 10c — About 300 dozen in all. Your choice Bargain Friday, per pair . 19c

THE BIG STORE — A CITY IN ITSELF

SIEGEL COOPER CO.

SIXTH AVE. — MEET ME AT THE FOUNTAIN — 18TH & 19TH STS.

Another Brilliant Bargain Friday

at New York's only fireproof retail store. Another superior opportunity to save much money in first-class, clean and dependable merchandise, forcibly emphasizing that justly famous motto: Better goods for the same money or the same goods for less money than elsewhere.

Notions.

We need more room for the proper display of some of our leading lines of holiday goods, and, in order to get it quickly, we've cut the prices on some of our staple stocks—Observe our reduced prices for Bargain Friday; nothing like them offered elsewhere:

Jersey Covered Waist Forms (as shown in illustration), sizes 32 to 40; reduced in price to, each . . . 33c

5-Yard Flat Corset Laces, tipped, in gray and white, good width, worth 50c. a dozen; reduced in price to 29c. per dozen, or, each . 3c

Gray, White or Black Collar Stiffening, 2, 2½, or 3 inches wide, best grade; reduced for Friday to . . . 5c

Carpets and Rugs.

If you will only take the trouble to compare the stock and prices of The Big Store's Carpet and Rug Department with those of other stores, and particularly of exclusive carpet stores, you will be convinced that we can and do sell the best goods for the least money. Here are some quotations for to-morrow:

Good Tapestry Brussels, the 65c. per yard quality, at 45c

10-Wire Tapestry Brussels, handsome styles and colorings; worth 85c. per yard, here to-morrow at 55c

Full Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, Brussels effects, regular value 70c., at . 55c

Extra quality C. C. Extra Super Ingrain Carpet, handsome and durable, worth 60c., at 45c

AXMINSTER RUGS—

27x63 in., $1.75; 36x72 in., at . . 2.95

8 ft. 3 in. x 10 ft. 6 in., at . . 14.75

9 ft. x 12 ft., at . . . 18.75

DOUBLE-FACED SMYRNA RUGS,

9x12 feet 11.45

7½x10½ feet . . . 8.45

6x9 feet 6.45

200 only, 30x60 inches, fringed ends, worth $1.50 . . . . . 95c

ART CARPETS, woven in one piece, very heavy.

3x2½ yards 3.40

3x3 yards 4.05

3x3½ yards 4.75

3x4 yards 5.40

Clothing for Youths & Boys.

We provide for the clothing needs of the small boy and his big brother as carefully and as liberally as we do for the full grown man. From our enormous stock, we've selected these four splendid values, just to show you that we can and do sell good clothing for less money than any other store.

A Special Lot of Small Boys' 3-Garment Vestee Suits, for ages 3 to 8, in medium and dark colorings, with sailor collars and vestees of contrasting shades. Well worth $3.00, here to-morrow at . 1.85

Boys' Warm Winter Reefers, made of a good grade of blue chinchilla, in the full storm or velvet collar style, warmly lined and well made, suitable for lads aged 7 to 16 years. Worth fully $3.25, here to-morrow at 2.00

Boys' Long Trouser Suits, a very special lot of 418 suits, made of service-giving materials, in neat up-to-date colorings, splendid general purpose suits for boys aged 13 to 19, coat, vest and long trousers, worth $6.00, here to-morrow at 3.95

Boys' Rain Coats, made of pure rubber, dull finished, mounted on sheeting, won't stick or peel off, the full cut and waterproof. Worth $2.25, here to-morrow (ages 5 to 17) . . . 1.39

Dinnerware, Crockery, &c.

In order to quickly dispose of the remaining stock of one of our Dinner Ware Patterns we will place same on sale to-morrow at prices that will surely effect a speedy clearance. The goods are of first quality English semi-porcelain, in one of the latest shapes, with filled-in decoration and delicate green enamelled borders. Note the remarkably low prices:

Dessert Plates, at 5c

Dinner Plates, at 8c

Bone Dishes, at 5c

Fruit Saucers 5c

Oatmeal Bowls 10c

Cups and Saucers 10c

8-inch Meat Dishes, at . . . 20c

12-inch Meat Dishes, at . . . 35c

Coffee Cups and Saucers, at . . 12c

Sauce Boats, at 20c

Individual Butters, per dozen . . 25c

And so on throughout the whole assortment, everything at Cut Prices.

Also special for Bargain Friday: Cuspidors of first quality Austrian china, hand-painted decorations with gold lines, regular value 50c.; special to-morrow at . 25c

Bouillon Cups and Saucers, pure white china, in assorted tints, with double gold handles and gold traced, regular value 60c.; special at 25c

Vases; one table, especially arranged for this sale, containing a desirable assortment of imported vases, in a large variety of shapes and decorations; worth from $1.50 to $2.50 each, your choice to-morrow at 75c

Women's Undergarments.

In order to secure more room for Holiday Goods, an entire section of the underwear store had to be vacated. To relieve the pressure we have reduced prices sharply on some lines we have a liberal supply of—affording excellent opportunity for saving. Here is the list—it will pay you to study it:

100 Dozen Black Sateen Skirts, flannel lined, umbrella flounce trimmed with corded ruffle, here for Bargain Friday at 98c

Mercerized Sateen Skirts, of best quality, with double umbrella flounce, trimmed with forty rows of cording, a handsome garment, here for Bargain Friday at 2.50

Muslin Drawers, best quality, with wide hem and tucks, here for Bargain Friday at 19c

Masonville Muslin Gowns, with solid tucked yoke and fine embroidery trimming, here for Bargain Friday at . . 59c

Heavy Outing Flannel Nightgowns, with embroidery trimmed collar, front and sleeves, double yoke; here for Bargain Friday at 69c

A very pretty and serviceable dark full Wrapper, with braid trimmed revers and yoke; here Bargain Friday at . . 58c

Heavy quality Flannelette Wrappers, in a variety of handsome colorings, 3½ yd. skirt, attractively trimmed with fancy braids; here for Bargain Friday at 1.49

Beaded Belts, Pocket Books & Writing Tablets.

The useful and the beautiful at the most economical of prices.

500 Dozen Beaded Elastic Belts, in black jet, turquoise and jet, and a variety of other colors at the extremely low price of, each 35c

100 Dozen Beaded Belts, in all black, black and turquoise, and black and steel, very pretty and effective; worth from $1.00 to $1.50 each; here for Bargain Friday, your choice at . . . 69c

Leather Combination Pocket Books, of black and colored grain leather, double change compartment, plain or with plated corners; your choice at . . 43c

Writing Tablets of colored grain leather, a dozen different designs and styles; your choice at 48c

Sheet Music.

The Music Department's Special Bargain Friday Offering will surely interest you—for it's really a remarkable one. Sheet music published at 50c. per copy, Friday for . . . . 12c

All the latest and best compositions. A few of the titles are:

I'd Leave My Happy Home for You (the great coon song);
A Rabbi's Daughter (Chas. K. Harris's latest hit);
Rajah Waltzes (just out);
The Prize Cake Walk of the Blackville Swells;
Impecunious Davis;
A Bunch of Blackberries;
Nielsen Waltzes;
Innocent Maid (the Rogers Bros.' great success; receives many encores nightly).

Upholstery Department.

The list of Bargain Friday Specials will surely commend itself to all who need anything in that line. The goods are all fine and the prices temptingly low. Remember, this is only a partial list of the many good bargains that await you here to-morrow.

French Fish Net Curtains, 60 in. wide, 3½ yards long, extra heavy net, handsome Point Lace borders; well worth $3.25, per pair 1.95

Imitation Renaissance, Irish Point and Brussels Curtains, in fine quality Scotch nets; perfect beauties for style and effect; the regular $4.00 and $4.25 kind, per pair 2.65

Irish Point Lace Curtains, full size, handsomely worked borders, excellent quality net; value $4.50, per pair . . 3.45

Brussels, Swiss Tambour and Point Applique Lace Curtains, positively 20 per cent. below original cost, to close out 2 to 4 pair lots, $10.00, $12.00 and $15.00 curtains, per pair . . 6.90

Tapestry Portieres, 50 in. wide, 3 yds. long, heavy knotted fringes, and thoroughly reversible, the $3.50 kind, per pair 2.45

French and Oriental Tapestry Portieres, magnificent $6.00 and $7.00 goods, in small lots, to close, per pair . 4.50

Embroidered Curtain Swiss, 27 in. wide, the 15c. kind, per yd . . . 9c

French Fish Net, 36 in. wide, pretty and novel meshes, the 18c. kind, per yd 12½c

Extension Rods, 44 in., each . . 5c

Optical Goods and Jewelry.

Here is a short list, picked at random from our immense stock, just to show you how cheaply we are selling goods of this kind at the present time.

10-karat Gold-Filled Eyeglasses and Spectacles, adjustable and offset styles in eyeglasses and straight and riding bow spectacles, fitted with first quality lenses and guaranteed for ten years; here to-morrow at . . . 1.00

Our Famous Signet Eyeglasses, with extra large fine lenses, 14-karat solid gold spring; sold regularly at $1.50; here to-morrow at . . . 95c

Lamier Opera Glasses, fully achromatic, in a leatherette cover with fancy gilt trimmings; sold regularly at $3.50; here to-morrow at . . . 1.48

Rhinestone Pompadour Combs—fine cut stones mounted on imitation shell; sold regularly at $1.50; here to-morrow at 95c

Rhinestone Sidecombs—fine cut stones mounted on imitation shell; sold regularly at 50c.; here to-morrow at . 29c.

Sterling Silver Nethersole Bracelets, fancy chased and twist, the new heavy style; here to-morrow at . . 42c

Groceries. Special Prices.

Fish: Boston Codfish or Haddock, per lb. . . . 4c

Long Island Scallops, per qt. . 20c

Meats: Legs of Canada Spring Lamb, per lb. 11c

Plate or Navel Corned Beef, per lb. 5c

Fruits: Fancy Jamaica Oranges, sweet as sugar, per doz. . . 25c

Choice Malaga Grapes, 2 lb. . 25c

Fancy Cape Cod Cranberries, per qt. 7c

Fancy Messina Lemons, per doz. . 12c

TURKEYS—Choice Young Turkeys, arrived late for Thanksgiving, per lb., 12c. and 10c

Coffee: Mocha and Java Blend, a rich drinking coffee, combining the delicious flavor of the Java and the full strength of the Mocha, 25 lbs., $6.00; 4 lbs., $1.00; per lb. 28c

Teas: Famous for their excellent cup qualities, your selection of Green, Black or Mixed Teas, regular 50c. and 60c. grades; 5 lbs., $1.75; per lb. . 38c

Canned Fruits: Dulcet Brand Bartlett Pears, Wyman's Fancy Maine Blueberries, or Farrar's Fancy White Cherries; per doz., $1.40; per can . . . 12c

Canned Vegetables: Solid packed red ripe Tomatoes or Maine Sweet Sugar Corn; per pkge., 95c.; per can . . 8c

Triumph Brand Asparagus Tips; per doz., $1.40; per can 12c

Sardines: La Tour Brand, French Sardines, per doz., $1.15; per can . . 10c

Cocoa: Bulk Cocoa, fresh ground daily, absolutely pure, per lb. . . 28c

Cheese: N. Y. State Full Cream Cheese, per lb. 15c

Crackers: Nic Nacs, Ginger Snaps or Lemon Crackers, per lb. . . . 5c

Catsup: Hazel Tomato Catsup, made from rich, red, ripe tomatoes, and seasoned with the finest spices, pint bots., per doz., $2.00; per bot. . . . 17c

Cocoanut: Light flaky shredded Cocoanut, per lb. 15c

Salad Dressing: Hazel Brand, has a delicacy of flavor that cannot be excelled, pint bots., per doz., $2.70; per bot. . 23c

Dried Fruits—Fancy Loose Muscatel Raisins, large and meaty, 5 lb., 38c.; per lb. 8c

Large Fancy London Layer Table Raisins, per lb. 12c

Spices—Ground Allspice, Cloves, Ginger, Pepper, or Mustard, 2 lbs. . . 33c

Olives—Selected Queen Olives, 17-oz. bottle, per bottle 25c

Cereals—Hazel Pancake Flour or Hazel Rolled Oats, 2-lb. pkgs., per dozen, $1.15; per pkge. . . . 10c

Kitchen Supplies—Imported Ultramarine Ball Blue, 1-lb box . . . 15c

5-lb. pkg. best Laundry Starch . . 17c

Fairbank's Lion Soap, 100 cakes in box; regular wholesale price $2.65; our price, per box, $1.85; 10 cakes . . 21c

The Drug Department.

Presents for Bargain Friday the following remarkable combination offers, none of which can be procured at exclusive druggists at our prices:

Combination Offer No. 1.

Listerine has many friends and so has Antiseptine. In order that you may comprehend the superior merits of Antiseptine, we will sell you a bottle of Listerine and a bottle of Antiseptine to-morrow for 75c

(If you decide to continue to use Antiseptine in preference to Listerine, and we are sure you will after you have given it a thorough trial, you will find that it will cost you just about half the sum you have to pay for Listerine—a big saving.)

Combination Offer No. 2.

1 Bottle of Carter's Little Liver Pills and 1 bottle of Dr. Belden's Little Liver Granules for 15c

Combination Offer No. 3.

1 Cake of Cuticura Soap and 1 cake of Craddock's Medicated Blue Soap for 20c

ALSO, SPECIAL FOR BARGAIN FRIDAY:

Castoria, per bottle 23c

Castile Soap, with wash rag . . 5c

Triple Extract of Cut Roses, per oz. 20c

Bay Rum, per pint 35c

China Puff Boxes, worth up to $2; here to-morrow, your choice, at . 49c

A Special Camera Offer.

On sale to-morrow, 50 Genuine Double Lens Cycle Wizard A Cameras; takes picture 4x5 inches; has double lens, Wizard shutter, with movements from 1-5 to 1-100 part of a second, and all the good features of the high-grade camera; complete with double plate holder and carrying case, special for Friday at 6.50

CARTERET CLUB'S SHOOT.

Handicap for Maryland Cup Won by G. S. McAlpin—Doubles Developed Great Skill.

A perfect day and good birds helped to make the Thanksgiving Day shoot of the Carteret Gun Club at Garden City, L. I., a success. While the chief event of the day was the handicap for the Maryland Cup, presented by Mr. Isaac E. Emerson, the most remarkable shooting was in the doubles. In the latter event the bettors who wagered even money that both birds would not be killed were heavy losers.

It was the finest double bird shooting ever witnessed on the Carteret grounds.

In the chief event, the handicap for the Maryland Cup, Mr. H. Money, son of Capt. Money, made by far the best score. He was not eligible for the contest, however, being only a guest, and his father shot off a tie with Mr. G. S. McAlpin, the latter winning easily.

Capt. Money was somewhat out of form and unsteady in his shooting.

A good lot of birds were shown, but the experts wished for a little more wind to make them somewhat livelier. There was a large attendance of members, and the day's sport was hugely enjoyed.

The next shoot of the club will be held to-morrow. Scores:

Maryland Cup.—Conditions: All stand at 29 yards, 30 birds; entrance, $10. Allowances as follows: Men of 27 yards and forward, two misses as kills; 28 yards one miss as a kill. Ties at five birds. Allowance on ties: Men of 27 yards and forward, one miss as a kill. This is on the first tie only. Ties to be shot from regular club handicaps.

Yards.		Total.
28.	C. H. Mackay— 1 2 0 2 2 1 0 1 0 2 2 . 1 1 2 2 0	—12
30.	H. Money— 1 2 2 1 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	—20
27.	Commodore Emerson— 0 2 2 2 2 2 1 0 2 1 0 1 0 2 1 0 2 0	—12
27.	H. B. Duryea— 0 0 2 2 1 0 2 1 0	— 5
26.	R. Brooks— 2 0 1 1 2 2 2 0	— 6
30.	L. T. Davenport— 1 2 2 1 2 0 2 2 2 2 1 0	—10
28.	Mr. Williams— 2 1 2 2 2 0 0 2 0 2 1 1 2 1 2 2 1 1 0 0	—15
31.	G. S. McAlpin— 0 1 2 2 2 1 2 2 2 2 2 2

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1899.

OFFICES:

NEW YORK:
Publication Office.....141 Park Row
All American District Telegraph Offices.
WASHINGTON.....515 Fourteenth St.
LONDON: Trafalgar Buildings. Trafalgar Sq., W. C.
SWITZERLAND, Geneva: P. Drehmann, Librairie Nouvelle, Rue du Mont Blanc.
GERMANY, Mainz: Saarbach's News Agency, Agency for Germany and Austria.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

DAILY, per Month	$0.50
DAILY, per Year	6.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Year	7.50
SUNDAY, per Year	1.50
SATURDAY, with Review of Books and Art, per Year	1.00
MONDAY, with Financial Supplement, per Year	1.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Month	0.65

For postage to foreign countries add 50 cents per month.

TWELVE PAGES.

RAILROAD CONCENTRATION.

Such measures for the common control of great transportation lines as have taken place recently and are now going forward will undoubtedly attract the attention not merely of the professional and political anti-trust agitators, but of many disinterested students of the evolution of modern business who fear the encroachments of concentrated capital. It is not to be denied that these measures are liable to lead to abuse, but it is worth while to point out that they are the logical and inevitable consequence of the policy heretofore adopted by the Government to maintain competition, and also that concentrated capital is not necessarily beyond the reasonable regulation of the Government.

When the Supreme Court declared in effect that the anti-trust law and the inter-State law combined made it unlawful for transportation companies to enter into an agreement as to charges for their service we ventured the prediction that either the law would be modified or that the companies would gradually come under common control in regions where the competition sought to be enforced was most important. This prediction was based on the fact, on the one hand, that unbridled cutting of rates would rapidly destroy the earning power of properties, and on the other that the existing machinery for the regulation of rates by the Government was so weak and inadequate that it could not prevent the general discrimination and trickery in railroad management which make rate wars as bad for the public as they are for the roads. Neither the interests of the companies nor public opinion would sustain such a state of things as was made inevitable by the law and its interpretation. For the professed purpose of the law was to secure fairly uniform charges for all customers of all roads, and the interpretation of the law forbade the only means yet invented to carry out that purpose. A situation in which the roads were menaced with ruin and the business of the whole country was exposed to confusion was obviously intolerable. It was bound to be changed either by the companies or by Congress. Congress showed no sign of acting, and the companies are fairly driven to the policy that is now developing.

Probably this policy would have been necessitated sooner or later, even if Congress had permitted some form of traffic agreement, because it is in the line of the evolution of modern trade organization. It might have been guided and regulated to some extent, but hardly could have been prevented. Nor does the progress of the policy necessarily involve undue independence of legal regulation in such degree as the real interests of the public require. The authority of the United States under the inter-State clause of the Constitution is as ample if that commerce is in the hands of a few companies, or of one, as it would be if it remained in many rival hands. And if wisdom and fairness prevail in legislation the authority can more effectually be used in the former case than in the latter. In the present law competition is a means to an end, not an end in itself. The end contemplated is reasonable and fairly uniform charge for service. Unrestrained and compulsory competition, as nominally required by the present law, has not attained this and cannot attain it. In seeking to attain it under the changed conditions and with the concentrated control that is coming about, one phase of the problem will be to secure the co-operation, so far as possible, of the companies themselves. That will, of course, not be easy, but we believe that with the reserve of power actually possessed by the Government under the Constitution, it can be made to produce better results than the blind and arbitrary line of action heretofore pursued.

HOW IT IS TO BE DONE.

The conservative sentiment of the country in all sections receives the currency plan of the Republican House caucus committee with hearty approval and expressions of profound encouragement. It is not merely that the declaration of the gold standard is so clear and explicit, but the admirably simple means for maintaining that standard are seen to be adequate and permanent.

These are as follows: A reserve in gold equal to 25 per cent. of all the outstanding greenbacks and Treasury notes of 1890 is provided from the gold now held in abundance by the Treasury, and this reserve is protected absolutely from all drafts on any account whatever. The Secretary of the Treasury is required to maintain this fund at all times. In order to do so he may transfer to it any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated in excess of a standing balance of $50,000,000. He may also at his discretion, in order to maintain the fund, borrow such amount as may be necessary on 3 per cent. gold bonds of the United States. As the fund is put in the charge of a separate bureau, to be known as the Division of Issue and Redemption, it will be seen that it will be in fact and in the public mind entirely dissociated from all the ordinary operations of the Treasury, which in itself is a great advantage.

The duties of the Secretary of the Treasury are not less clearly defined than are his powers. He is "authorised and required to use said reserve fund in maintaining at all times the parity and equal value of every dollar issued or coined by the Government." He must redeem in gold any legal-tender note or Treasury note at the option of the holder, and when thus redeemed these notes cannot be paid out again except in exchange for gold. Nor is this all. If the Secretary at any time deems it necessary in order to maintain the parity and equal value of all the money of the United States he may exchange gold for any other money issued or coined by the United States.

This measure, if adopted by the Congress—and it will be if the Administration insist—will remove all doubt and difficulty as to the maintenance of gold payments. Trouble has arisen in the past from several sources. It was questioned whether the bonds and notes of the Government could not be paid in the standard silver dollar of 1878. There will be no longer any question as to that. The payment of current obligations, and especially the payment of the Treasury notes, in gold has depended on the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury. He will no longer have any discretion in the matter. The maintenance of the gold reserve has been largely dependent on the revenues of the Government, or the use of a borrowing power not specifically granted. Hereafter, if this bill be passed, no shortage in the revenues, no excess in expenditures, no necessity of the Treasury, can affect the reserve without express legislation, while the Secretary is given unlimited power to borrow in order to maintain the reserve. Finally the endless chain by which the gold reserve was constantly menaced is broken. The redeemed notes which the Secretary has heretofore been forced to pay out and keep in circulation can no longer be paid out at all except for gold.

These provisions, and especially the absolute confidence that the knowledge of them must breed in the public mind, will establish the gold standard with entire security. It is now announced that the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee will present a bill of their own as soon as the session opens. But the work of the House caucus committee has not been done in the dark and the Republicans of the Senate have been acquainted with its nature from the start. It is not to be expected, as certainly it is not to be desired, that the party will act at cross purposes in the two houses. They could not do so without justifying the strongest suspicion of bad faith.

PROGRESS IN GEORGIA.

The State of Georgia has a right to congratulate itself and to be thanked by the country for the disposition that it has made of a bill practically intended to disfranchise the ignorant blacks while leaving the ignorant among the whites with all their rights or privileges unimpaired. The striking thing about this result is that it was largely due to an appeal from the intelligent blacks sustained by the whites of the same class. The bill imposed educational tests, among which were the ability to read a clause in the Constitution and ability to understand that clause, and of this latter qualification the election officers were made the judges. There was also what is known as the "grandfather clause," which gave the vote to all who possessed it in 1867, or whose ancestors at that time possessed the vote. It will be seen that these provisions directly disfranchised the great body of the blacks while leaving the vote to the great body of the whites, or enabling the white election officers to secure it for them.

In the memorial presented to the Legislature by the blacks no objection whatever was made to the educational qualifications, which, indeed, were heartily approved, but a very strong protest was made against the actual and possible discrimination in favor of the whites of the same class as the disfranchised blacks. The memorial closed with the following temperate but eloquent words:

> We know that there are among our white fellow-citizens broad-minded men who realize that the prosperity of Georgia is bound up with the prosperity of the Georgia negro; that no nation or State can advance faster than its laboring classes, and that whatever hinders, degrades, or discourages the negroes weakens and injures the State. To such Georgians we appeal in this crisis. Race antagonism and hatred have gone too far in this State; let us stop here; let us insist that we go no further; let us countenance no measure or movement calculated to increase that deep and terrible sense of wrong under which so many to-day labor.
>
> May the twentieth century of the Prince of Peace dawn upon an era of generous sympathy and forbearance between these two great races in Georgia, and not upon a season of added injustice and antipathy.

The bill has been defeated, receiving only a handfull of votes in the Legislature. The spirit in which the appeal of the blacks was received is shown by the following remarks of the Rev. Dr. SANDRUM, pastor of one of the largest white Baptist churches in the South. We take the report from the current number of The Independent:

> Let our boys grow up with clear-cut notions as to impartiality and fairness in all the acts of legislation. * * * Unlimited use of the franchise in Georgia, or in all the States, is a crime with innumerable evils. It should be restricted, but not in such a way as will put a premium on the ignorance of the white man for the purpose of excluding the ignorance of the negro. Exclude illiteracy—white illiteracy and black illiteracy—and make suffrage the expression of intelligent citizenship. So long as the young are enslaved to ignorance, prejudice, or passion, the kingdom of God is forestalled.

SILVER SPEECH, GOLD BONDS.

Gov. JOSEPH F. JOHNSTON of Alabama is making a vigorous fight for the seat long held by JOHN T. MORGAN in the United States Senate. He charges Senator MORGAN with disloyalty to BRYAN, and the Senator, hard pressed before a constituency that he knows to be in sympathy with the extreme free-silver views of his adversary, is kept busy explaining that when he said that the Democratic Party could get along without BRYAN he really meant something else. JOHNSTON is apparently winning the fight by the exhibition of an unflagging zeal for BRYAN and free silver.

But while Gov. JOHNSTON is talking free silver to the people he is trying to refund the 5 per cent. bonds of the State of Alabama into 3½ per cent. gold bonds. He advises the voters of the State that they would be better off if the currency were on a silver basis. In the business transactions he undertakes in their behalf, however, he shows an unblushing preference for gold of the present standard of weight and fineness. Gold bonds can be placed at a lower interest rate, and, like a faithful public servant, he takes advantage of the fact.

The Atlanta Constitution is the most conspicuous and able advocate of free-silver coinage and Bryanite principles in the South. It has done much to implant in Georgia bosoms that reverence for silver and abhorrence of gold that constitute the true test of fitness to march in a W. J. Bryan procession. But, wishing to expand its prosperous and growing business, this free-silver newspaper announces an issue of "$200,000 first mortgage sinking fund 5 per cent. gold bonds" of The Constitution Publishing Company.

Gov. JOHNSTON and The Atlanta Constitution appear to be guilty of the rank inconsistency of preaching silver and practicing gold. How long will the Southern people continue to listen to and be guided by the advice of leaders who have not faith enough in the economic principles they preach to apply them to their own business transactions?

HOW WILL THE NEW BRIDGES LOOK?

It has been announced that the Board of Public Improvements has approved the plans of the two new bridges to be erected across the East River, and has sent them to Washington for the approval of the War Department. The examination at Washington will of course be limited to an inquiry whether the plans comply with the conditions laid down by the department for reducing to a minimum the interference of the bridges with the navigableness of the East River. It is safe to assume that these conditions have been complied with and that the examination will be merely formal.

But there is one respect, and a very important respect, in which the plans have been submitted to no examination of experts, and in respect to which we have no guarantee whatever that they will be creditable or even tolerable. That is, in respect of their architectural appearance.

Doubtless the bridges are designed by competent engineers. That fact gives a guarantee of safe and economical construction, but it gives no guarantee, nor does it raise any presumption, that the structures will not be eyesores. They are certain to be among the most conspicuous and characterizing of the public structures of New York. They may either embellish or deface the cities they connect. Very few buildings, if any, will have so much to do with making or marring the attractiveness of the river they span and of its banks. And yet no precautions whatever have been taken, on the part of the City of New York, as represented by its Board of Public Improvements, to insure that these bridges shall be additions to the attractiveness of New York, even to insure that they shall not be positively repulsive.

This is really an evidence of barbarism and ought to be recognized as such. Where it is a question of buildings on shore, the reputation of the architect is, to a certain degree, a guarantee that nothing very outrageous will be done. Because a certain part of an architect's professional standing and reputation is founded upon the looks of the things he has built. It is not so with an engineer. Least of all is it so with an American engineer. Some of the most unsightly erections in this country have been effected by some of its most eminent engineers. The professional standing of an American engineer is no guarantee at all that the things he builds will not be loathsome to the view. It is not unfair to describe him as a professional Goth and Vandal, whose performances, when they are not bridges in the Soudan or crossings of cañons in the remote West, ought to be most carefully scrutinized to see that they shall not be an artistic disgrace to the community which allows them to be erected. The European engineer is by no means so much of a Vandal. Such engineering structures as the Mirabeau Bridge, or the Alexander III. Bridge, in Paris, are representative of the artistic as well as of the scientific attainments of the municipality and the nation. There is no reason why such structures as the bridges across the East River, being, as they are, on a far larger scale, and hence far more conspicuous, should not be regarded in the same light here. One of the few engineers who do take some successful pains with the appearance of their work, as well as with its stability and its economy, has lately been suggesting, with much plausibility, that the appropriate treatment of the navy memorial would be the monumental design of one of the new viaducts which will be needed on the shore of the North River. But to set an ordinary "eminent engineer" at a problem like that would be recognized as a "cruel and unusual" proceeding within the Constitutional prohibition.

It happens that it is the Board of Public Improvements which will have to bear the whole responsibility. If the new bridges turn out to be disgraces to the city instead of ornaments and sources of municipal pride. Because the charter makes it the duty of the Art Commission, "when requested," to pass upon the artistic merits of the designs for bridges. That commission, in which everybody whose confidence in such a matter is worth having has confidence, has not been asked for its counsel regarding these bridges. If it approved the design of them, the public might at least be sure that nothing very outrageous would be done. It has no such assurance now. Of course Messrs. HOLAHAN, SHEA, and the others do not set themselves up for authorities on any question connected with the design of the new bridges. They have confidence in their engineers, and so far as the strength and stability of the bridges are concerned, no doubt quite rightly. Their own opinion is of no value. But, worthless as it is, it is worth quite as much as the opinion of an eminent engineer, as such, when the question is as to the looks of a proposed bridge. And the responsibility will be theirs if they do not consult those who know better, and if the new bridges turn out to be architectural monstrosities, as is extremely likely.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—War, of course, is still by far the most terrible phase of human activity, at least as regards immediate, localized results, and it is even possible that a minute description of the scenes presented by a modern battlefield would horrify sensitive ears more than would the details of ancient carnage, effected by the use of forces less powerful and of implements vastly less ingenious. Nevertheless, war, like everything else, has changed for the better with the passage of the years. The improvement is most notable in the treatment of prisoners. In days only reasonably remote the prisoner of war, if of low social rank, was slaughtered offhand or sold into slavery, just as happened to be most convenient, while captives of a superior sort could escape one of these fates only in case their friends or family were able and willing to ransom them. Now prisoners are killed nowhere except in anti-expansion pamphlets and the narratives of Kansas volunteers unlucky in the matter of promotion, and only in the rarest instances does capture, materially speaking, mean for the soldier anything worse than a longer or shorter period of well-fed idleness. Thanks to this melioration of military habits, AGUINALDO doubtless heard with perfect equanimity that his son had fallen into the hands of the American invaders, and we do not even think either of deriving any advantage from the incident or of avenging upon the son the trouble and expense to which the father has put us. Once that boy would have escaped speedy and painful death only because of a desire to use him and the natural paternal emotions as a means of enforcing hard terms on the foe. But though AGUINALDO has no reason to worry about his son's lot, how would it be if the Filipinos succeeded in getting hold of somebody as near and dear to President MCKINLEY—the amiable ABNER, for example? We fear that they might be tempted to forget their pretensions to civilization and the number of the century, and say to the people of the United States: "Now what do you offer in the way of offices and gold if we refrain from a daily trimming off of ABNER'S edges with crinkly bladed knives?" They could obtain almost anything from the distracted Nation if they brought pressure like that to bear, and the question is whether they would do it or not.

—In this city it is a decidedly serious offense to sound a false alarm of fire, and people who do it get into trouble. In Boston, when the deceiver of the firemen is a Harvard professor, perhaps it's different. The question is likely to be settled conclusively, for one day this week, while President ELIOT was visiting the university observatory, he remarked to Prof. PICKERING that he saw but poor facilities for putting out a fire, and expressed a doubt if the observatory could be saved if flames once started in it. "Prof. PICKERING," says The Boston Journal, "was not content to merely explain that the facilities were of the best, but he pressed a button at his desk, and with unusual alacrity the Cambridge Fire Department appeared on the scene. The firemen immediately began an investigation, and in the course of their vain search they came upon Prof. PICKERING laughing to himself, while President ELIOT was surprised, to say the least." The joke was good enough in itself, but firemen are a bit dense in such cases, and 'tis said that things are likely to happen.

—"Is not the word of a Methodist clergyman as good as that of a Methodist President?" asks The Sandusky Register, after quoting the remarks of Bishop NINDE on the President's alleged indulgence in wine at a recent banquet. The question seems pertinent enough, even to those of us to whom the character of the liquid with which Mr. MCKINLEY quenches his thirst is not a matter of enormous importance. But The Register does more than ask pertinent questions; it proceeds to discuss the whole subject of teetotalism in a very breezy and novel fashion. After asserting as from personal knowledge that the President does occasionally show himself to be a temperate man, as distinguished from an absolute abstainer, and that he is "about as devout a Methodist as it is possible to be and still stand in with the politicians who make men candidates and thrust greatness on them," the writer runs on in this amusing manner: "It is very easy—as easy as rolling off a log—for a Bishop to let liquor alone. Nobody expects a Bishop to drink. He is not tempted. He is not urged. He is expected not to drink. But when it comes to a man whose profession is politics and trade office seeking, that is a horse of another color, especially if he is social and yielding of disposition and loves good things, as does our Methodist brother who now so gracefully occupies the White House. Let us be charitable and make allowances and we will not be making mistakes." Whether this is a defense or an attack we will let others settle.

—We have been no less grieved than amazed at the number of people who send to this office for publication letters bearing false names and addresses. Anonymous communications do not trouble us particularly, for in the vast majority of cases they can be consigned to the waste basket after a single glance. It is different when the would-be contributor pretends to give the required guarantee of good faith and really does nothing of the kind. The contemptible ruse has occasionally succeeded, doubtless, but not very often, we hope. In many cases a consultation of the Directory is enough to excite suspicion, and in not a few others there is an indiscribable something about the letters themselves that hints at fraud or malice. Time and again such letters, remailed as "unavailable" to the address given, have been returned to us by the Post Office bearing the inscription "Not found." These experiences do not conduce to confidence in human nature, which is the dearest treasure of the editorial mind, and, as the prospect of becoming really cynical is a most alarming one, we earnestly request these petty criminals to let us alone. There is no possible excuse for such attempts at deception, THE TIMES has never revealed the identity of a correspondent except when instructed or permitted to do so, and nobody can even pretend to fear betrayal of this description at our hands. In connection with this subject, and to give it interest for others than those whom it directly concerns, we will say that the vicious habit of signing false names seems to be curiously common among people whose love of the Boers—or hatred of England—is so strong as to be content with nothing except expression in print. In at least twenty proved cases the integrity of our correspondence column has been attacked in this way, and no other topic has developed more than one or two assaults. Why this should be so we are quite at a loss to explain, but so it is.

—Proud as Chicago doubtless is of the transfer from Boston to itself of the glory of being the focus of anti-imperialism, it has yet to produce an ERVING WINSLOW, and therefore it can boast of sending out into a deeply impressed world no such triumph of patriotism and courtesy as the little Thanksgiving Proclamation which we published yesterday. Boston, still having Mr. WINSLOW, still holds her own against the metropolis of the Middle West. We doubt if even those four ex-Americans now fighting in the Filipino ranks have said or written anything quite so pleasing to their chief as are Mr. WINSLOW'S touching remarks about hunted patriots and a new brand of shame.

GENERAL NOTES.

A street-car barn 600 feet long and 200 feet wide is being built in Buffalo of discarded street-car rails, it being impossible to obtain steel within the time required. It will have a flat roof.

* * *

A recent police order in Chicago prohibits freak advertising in the streets. To one man arrested, dressed as an Irish knight of olden times and bearing a tin shield with an advertisement upon it, a Police Captain said: "Why, that rig would make an automobile balk. It shall not be permitted."

* * *

Gov. Bushnell of Ohio, it is said, will recommend to the Legislature of the State that it appropriate $52,000 for monuments to the Ohio regiments which fought at the battle of Shiloh, and Gen. R. B. Brown, President of the Shiloh Battlefield Commission, will advise that it give $5,000 for a monument to 1,055 Ohio soldiers who died in Andersonville Prison.

* * *

Boston has beaten its own highest record in the number of voters registered for the municipal election Dec. 12. There are 102,879 names on the list, which is an increase of 2,388 over the registration for the State election, Nov. 7. What are known as the Democratic wards have made the largest gains. The number of women registered for school officers' elections is 10,414, an increase of 1,691 over last year.

* * *

A National Jewish Home for Consumptives will be opened and formally dedicated to its good purpose at Denver, Col., on Sunday, Dec. 10. The idea of establishing it was first publicly suggested by The American Israelite of Cincinnati, Ohio, and that paper has been very efficient in furthering the plans for obtaining the needed support for the institution.

* * *

A collection is being made for the New Hampshire State Library of books and pamphlets relating to the State and of those written by New Hampshire authors, and it is thought that fully two-thirds of such publications have already been obtained. An effort is also being made to collect files, as complete as possible, of the old newspapers of the State, for one of which, The New Hampshire Gazette, published at Portsmouth and established there in 1756, it is claimed that it is the oldest newspaper of continuous publication in the United States.

ANTI-TAMMANY CLUB URGED.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have heard some comment among Democrats in this city on the letter signed "F. G. R.," which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Nov. 14, urging the formation in this city of an anti-Bryan, anti-Tammany Democratic association. I cordially indorse the suggestion. Col. Bryan will doubtless be nominated again for the Presidency and again defeated. Tammany having, through its leader, Richard Croker, supported this unwise nomination, will have to bear responsibility for the result. I am confident that the disgusted conservative Democrats of the city will then be eager to form an organization to oppose Tammany in municipal and other contests and to prevent its exercising influence on future National and State Conventions of the party. Why not form such an association now? Let the Democrats who care more for principle than for patronage get together. Surely evil days have fallen on the Democracy when its best men remain, as they do, in the background. Some well-known Democrat or Democrats should issue a call for a conference. Will you permit me to suggest a few names of men who I think could be induced to co-operate in the movement?

William B. Hornblower, W. Bourke Cockran, Wheeler H. Peckham, John G. Carlisle, John D. Crimmins, E. Ellery Anderson, Daniel S. Lamont, Charles J. Canda, Isaac S. Catlin, John M. Bowers, Joseph F. Daly, William R. Grace, August Belmont, J. Edward Simmons, Charles S. Fairchild, Jacob A. Cantor, William D. Bynum, Isidor Straus, Charles W. Dayton, Ashbel P. Fitch, James Stillman, Norton Chase, John A. McCall, and Joseph C. Hendrix. Who will lead?

E. S. B.

New York, Nov. 29, 1899.

THE EAST RIVER TUNNEL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I say Amen! to THE TIMES'S able editorial in the issue of yesterday on the subject of the East River tunnel. No one who is at all familiar with the subject but agrees that there is necessity for connecting, not two cities, but two great parts of one city by tunnel, and when this can be accomplished through the medium of a strong corporation and without calling on the taxpayers the case is exceptional. The improvements that will follow the building of such a tunnel are almost incalculable, for a vast territory adjacent to Atlantic Avenue, along which the line of road after leaving the tunnel extends, is now lying practically unimproved because of two things—

1. The presence of the Long Island Railroad, running cars on the surface, and
2. The lack of transit facilities.

Once build a line that will put the outlying districts of Brooklyn Borough in touch with Manhattan and the buildings that will be erected will cost millions of dollars, and add enormously to the revenue of the greater city. In no way does the enterprise conflict with the work projected on Manhattan Island, but, on the contrary, it will stimulate such by adding greatly to our population, and consequently to the number of travelers over city lines.

All this being true, why is there delay on the part of the city authorities—that is, the Municipal Assembly? Application was made to that honorable body June 27 for permission to begin work, but up to this writing there has been no response to a proposition all so favorable to the city.

Cannot something be done to hasten an affirmative vote, that the tunnel company may be in a position to begin work with the opening of the new year? I am informed that within three years from the commencement of such work cars can be operated from Manhattan to the outskirts of Brooklyn Borough. Will you not continue your good work?

H. DE SELDING.

New York, Nov. 28, 1899.

Rapid Steel Manufacture.

Written for THE NEW YORK TIMES by

JAMES BOWRON,

Vice President of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company.

One hears so much of being purified by fire from dross and being purified "as by fire," that the popular mind might easily conceive a stream of pig iron pouring from a blast furnace as being the highest emblem of purity; yet nothing could be more erroneous. Common pig iron or cast iron, as it is called, embraces as a rule from 6 to 10 per cent. of impurities; namely, carbon, silicon, manganese, phosphorus, and sulphur. These impurities or metalloids or alloys exercise different influences. The carbon, when combined with the iron, makes it hard and brittle, so that malleable iron bars or plates cannot be produced until this carbon is eliminated, which is done by the process of puddling. The silicon adds fluidity to the iron and makes it as an alloy suitable for use in foundries for the production of castings, which could not be made from pure iron alone, which might indeed be fused to the point of destruction without becoming liquid.

It is necessary, for the production of steel, not only to remove the silicon and nearly all the carbon, but also to endeavor to remove the phosphorus and sulphur, which are detrimental qualities, without any of those advantages to offset their presence which are, under certain conditions, incident to the presence of silicon and carbon. As is well known, steel is vested with such valuable qualities of greater ductility combined with tensile strength, and, owing to the method of manufacture, of greater homogeneity and purity and uniformity of quality, that its use for a decade past has been limited only by its higher price. As, however, successive methods of production have come into use, its cost has decreased until, strange to say, it is now cheaper than iron.

What is steel?

Steel is an artificial compound of pure iron and carbon. The iron gives the strength, and the amount of carbon regulates the hardness, toughness, and ductility of the compound; so that the carbon is kept low if a soft and ductile metal is desired for use in boiler plates, hoops, sheets, or wire. It is carried somewhat higher for rails and decidedly higher for tool steel, cutlery, and drills.

There are four different methods of making steel on a large scale, for we may disregard for the moment the old cementation process, where bars of refined iron are sandwiched with layers of carbon and heated together until the carbon is absorbed by the iron. We have, however, a return to first principles in the Harveyizing process of face-hardening armor plates used on our vessels to-day, the steel having been first forged in a technically "soft" condition, and afterward hardened by annealing with carbon in contact with the face, thus giving a tough back to resist cracks and a hard face to break up the shot in its impact.

The four main processes are the acid and basic Bessemer, and the acid and basic open hearth. Both depend upon purifying the iron by oxygen. The same agent is necessary that must be breathed twenty times a minute to remove the carbon from our blood, which would otherwise poison us in a few short hours, to oxidize and render innocuous the organic matter in the streams resulting from sewage pollution, or to oxidize and burn up the metalloids in conjunction with the iron which render it unfit for steel. The four processes, which are really two subdivided into four, differ in the method of introducing this oxygen.

The most simple rough-and-ready method of purifying large masses of molten iron is the Bessemer process, which consists of blowing air by powerful blowing engines through a bath of molten iron, the oxygen in its passage through the metal uniting with and burning up the carbon, silicon, and manganese. Where there is much phosphorus in the iron, if is necessary to make provision of free lime in the bath, so that as the oxygen acts as a divorce court in separating the phosphorus from the iron, it may, as it rises to the top as slag, be-cause of the lighter specific gravity of the oxide, unite with the lime instead of remaining loose and in danger of going back again to the iron. As the presence of lime for this purpose would be inconsistent with a siliceous lining in the furnace and would be destructive to it, it is necessary in such cases to line the Bessemer converter with calcareous material, and it is then called basic Bessemer, and the iron, high in phosphorus, which is treated in it is kept extremely low in silicon, as the presence of silicon in the pig would be destructive to the calcareous or basic lining of the furnace. We therefore see the irons high in silicon and low in phosphorus treated in the siliceous or acid converter, and those high in phosphorus and low in silicon treated in the basic converter; but the general principle of blowing the air through to burn up the metalloids remains the same.

The entire Bessemer process does not involve more than twenty or twenty-five minutes, and is governed by the eye of the man in charge, who stops it when he judges by the color of the smoke that the process is sufficiently perfect. If he permits it to continue a minute too long, the air, having burned out the impurities, commences to burn the iron itself, which causes waste and financial loss. If he stops a minute too soon, there is too large a proportion of silicon or of phosphorus, as the case may be, left in the metal. Therefore, the Bessemer process, while of enormous value to mankind, is yet, compared with an open-hearth process, what may be called "rough and ready."

The open-hearth process, which is similarly divided into acid and basic, on the same principles as above, which need not be repeated, does not involve the blowing of air through the molten iron, but the introduction of oxygen in solid form as oxide of iron—namely, a rich iron ore, ground and shoveled in in sufficient quantities from time to time. In the Bessemer process the combustion of the metalloids by the air passing through furnishes the necessary heat to keep the metal liquid, and great heat is necessary for this purpose, as any one will find who tries to melt a bar of iron and then pour it out. In the open-hearth process the necessary heat is supplied by melting the iron in reverberatory furnaces and passing a gas over the surface of the bath or cistern.

In Alabama the iron contains too much phosphorus to admit of being treated in acid furnaces, but not enough phosphorus to make it suitable for treatment in the basic Bessemer. Therefore, the basic open-hearth method remains the only one of the four available, and under this process the very highest quality of steel is produced that can be produced by any known method. The process requires from nine to twelve hours, and admits of samples being taken in the ladle at any time, quenched with water, and subjected to laboratory tests or hammer tests, indicating by the granulations, to an experienced eye, the degree of purity attained.

In the Ensley blast furnaces the ore is brought from the mines of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, six miles away, and the iron is at present run into large ladles and slowly poured over a series of slowly revolving molds extending in a row to the shipping track, at which point the molds automatically discharge blocks of cast iron, still at a dull red heat, on the cars to remove them to the steel works. Upon these cars are stationed wrought iron boxes, into which the blocks or slabs of hot iron fall; into other corresponding boxes are loaded by hand suitable quantities of scrap iron or steel for admixture. On being switched 400 yards to the steel works, a Wellman charging machine, operated by electricity, picks up one of these charging boxes by the end, projects it forward into the melting furnace, turns it over, emptying its contents, reverses itself, and withdraws from the charging door, all in 30 seconds.

In the open-hearth house there stand in a row ten furnaces with a very flat arched roof over each, strongly incased in iron and capable of holding fifty tons of steel at a heat per furnace. This building is 748 feet long, and when running "double turn" will produce over 1,000 tons of steel each twenty-four hours. The heat is supplied from a row of thirty-two gas producers with steam blast, and the gas is injected into the open-hearth furnace at one end, meeting with heated air and producing an intense combustion over the surface of the metal, which has been charged, as previously explained. The resultant flame, the product of combustion, passes out of the other end of the furnace through a mass of brick checker work, parting with most of its heat before it finally reaches the chimney flue and the chimney stack, there being a separate stack 150 feet high for each open-hearth furnace. At suitable intervals the valves are reversed and the air is made to enter the furnace through the brick work which has just been heated up by the escaping gas, while the flame passes out of the opposite and through a similar amount of checker work heating up the opposite end in readiness for the next reversal. This arrangement is common to open-hearth steel works, and is known as the regenerative system.

When the examination of samples dipped out from the furnace or bath or cistern of metal shows that the proper quality has been obtained by the elimination of detrimental metalloids, the furnace, by the application of hydraulic power, is tilted over on one side and the contents taken successively in ladles with a capacity of as much as twenty tons to the ladle. At this juncture a carefully calculated amount of ferro-manganese is thrown into the mixture, so that the soundness of the steel may be assured. Any surplus oxygen rising in the bath goes to the manganese, for which it has so strong an affinity, and rises to the top of the bath as scum or slag. The electric crane, with a capacity of fifty tons, running on supports along the sides of the building, picks up the ladle and moves it over a track on which stands a short train of iron cars with ingot molds standing vertically upon them. The steel is poured into the ingot molds, each ingot weighing about three tons, being six feet long and measuring at the base 18 by 20 inches.

An electric storage battery locomotive immediately switches away the train to the ingot stripper, where, as soon as the ingots are sufficiently set, the mold is lifted by suitable machinery to another car on a parallel track, and is ready to be switched back again to begin the same duty to another furnace. The ingot, red hot as it is by this time, is transferred to a long passage and passes slowly on a transfer car (submerged over its wheels in water for its protection) and operated by an endless chain. At one end of this passage is the reheating furnace, at the other end the draft stack 100 feet high. The draft stack pulls the flame from the reheating furnace, and the ingot travels through the flame, heating up again on the outside, and allowing the intensely white-hot metal on the inside to equalize itself.

In Europe this result has been attained by "soaking pits," where the ingots are put into iron molds in the ground and allowed to bask or "soak" in their own heat, being covered over to avoid radiation.

On arriving at the end of this passage or flue the ingot is picked up by another Wellman charger and placed for a few minutes in the reheating furnace and brought again to a white heat and withdrawn and delivered to the end of the blooming mill, where it is taken charge of by a number of "live rolls" or rollers turned in either direction, at the will of the attendant, propelling the heavy ingot like a feather's weight. It is thus carried to the blooming mill and "broken down" by successive passes through the massive rolls, to a "bloom" seven or eight inches square, or to a "slab," if desired for plates. Then by a hydraulic manipulator it is pushed on to the billet run, where by successive additional passes through the rolls it is reduced to perhaps four inches square. Arrangements are now making so that, later on, it can be pushed on to the other side to be finished in the rail train which will be added to the Ensley plant during the course of the next year, contracts for which have all been let for execution. At the end of the billet run the long bar four inches square is sheared by hydraulic shears into the lengths desired, and either pushed on to the conveyor that carries the billets to the cars for shipment to the open market or to the other conveyor, which carries them, still red hot, to the rolls and machinery of the wire rod and nail plant of the Alabama Steel and Wire Company, located only fifty yards away.

Thus ore mined at Ishkooda at 6 o'clock in the morning may be in the blast furnace at 9 A. M., cast at 6 A. M. the following morning into the shape of pig iron or blocks, be in the open-hearth furnace by 6:30 A. M., be poured into an ingot by 5 P. M., delivered as a billet at 6 P. M., and be cooling off as a wire rod before midnight of the day following the commencement of operations in the ore mine.

J. BOWRON.

NUGGETS.

Quite in His Way.

Bill—I see the clock dealer down the street is selling out.

Jill—Yes; he told me his business was all run down.

"And now he proposes to wind it up?"—Yonkers Statesman.

Knew the Feeling.

Jimson—I understand that the King of Madagascar is entirely without funds.

Penn I. Less—Is that so? Well, now I understand how it is to feel like a King.—Baltimore News.

Missed.

"Poor Samuel spent his Thanksgiving Day at Manila; it made me sad."

"Was he so fond of home?"

"Yes; and we never could roast turkey to suit him."—Indianapolis Journal.

PROGRESS.

From The Denver News.

Whate'er the dismal doubters say,
We're breaking from the ancient sway
Of hate and superstition gray
And creeds that fetter.
From year to year and day to day
The world grows better.

Humanity their steps have bent
Up the long, arduous ascent,
The highway of enlightenment,
With faces dawnward.
Still up that path, with high intent,
The race moves onward.

Up through the long, dark night of Time
From out the shadowed past we climb,
Above the ignorance and crime—
The gyves that bound us—
Unto an eminence sublime,
The summit round us.

SPEECH BY CHAMBERLAIN

Rejoices in the Better Understanding with America.

SHARP WARNING TO FRANCE

The Secretary Says an Anglo-German-American Alliance Would Preserve the Peace of the World.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, in a speech at a luncheon at Leicester to-day, said that ever since the great split in the Liberal Party he had found himself a mark for slanders and misrepresentations of the "baser sort of politicians." But, he added, he had found compensation in the generous appreciation of the majority of his countrymen.

Continuing, Mr. Chamberlain said he was deeply gratified that the foreign relations of Great Britain were so satisfactory, and he asserted that the country owed a debt of gratitude to Lord Salisbury for the great improvement in Great Britain's position. It was especially gratifying, he pointed out, to note the friendly relations existing between the Anglo-Saxon peoples, saying that the understanding between the United States and Great Britain was, indeed, a guarantee of the peace of the world. This statement was greeted with cheers.

It was of the utmost importance, Mr. Chamberlain further remarked, that Great Britain should not remain isolated in Europe, and her natural alliance was with the great German Empire. They had had difficulties with Germany, but their interests and sentiments were the same, and an understanding between the Teutonic and Anglo-Saxon races might do more than any combination of armies to preserve the peace of the world. The world, he asserted, was not governed entirely by interest. Sentiment was one of the greatest factors.

Referring to the attacks of the foreign press, Mr. Chamberlain said these newspapers had not even spared the "almost sacred person of the Queen." This, continued the speaker, provoked natural indignation, "which may have serious consequences if our neighbors do not mend their ways."

An outburst of cheering greeted this threat of the Colonial Secretary. [Ever since the beginning of the war with the Boers the Paris humorous papers have published cartoons showing the most intense animosity to Great Britain. These culminated last week in La Caricature, which printed a grossly obscene picture, containing a caricature of Queen Victoria, under the caption "English Correction." The insult to her Majesty was of such a character that the British Embassy in Paris, acting under instructions from the home Government, protested, and last Saturday the edition of the paper was suppressed by the French authorities.]

It was a matter for congratulation, Mr. Chamberlain afterward asserted, that the worst of these "disgraceful attacks" did not appear in the German papers.

A new Triple Alliance between the Teutonic race and the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxons, would, said the Secretary, be a potent influence in the future of the world. The speaker explained that he used the word "alliance," but, he added, it mattered little whether they had an alliance committed to paper or "an understanding which exists in the minds of the statesmen of the respective countries." A determination in every case to look for favorable motives upon the part of those with whom friendship was desired would be an enormous advantage to both the nations concerned and others.

Continuing, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I rejoice, and it is perhaps natural, for I have taken a personal interest in the matter, in the friendly feeling which I hope is now permanent between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. I have so many friends in the United States, almost as many as I have here, and I can conceive of no greater disaster to the two countries than to find themselves hostile to each other. Yet I remember when I first visited America my surprise and astonishment at the evidence given to me by statesmen and politicians and in articles in the press of constant suspicion of the objects of Great Britain, constant doubts as to her integrity, and a generally unfavorable estimate of our prospects and character.

"Once, addressing a great meeting in Philadelphia, I ventured to say that what we wanted was a new Columbus to set out from America, discover the United Kingdom and return to America and tell them something they did not know of the character of the strange inhabitants of these islands.

"This ill-feeling was due, no doubt, to many causes; due to the fact that the United States has never been at war with any great power but England; due to their traditions, extending over a century, due to a feeling that the sympathy of Great Britain was not with them in their civil war, and to the general belief that the people of Great Britain would see with satisfaction any harm that might befall them.

"It appeared to me almost useless to contradict these mistaken opinions. But what the asseverations of statesmen could not do was done by the sympathy we were able to give when the United States found itself the object of the suspicion which has so often accompanied our own transactions when engaged in a war of justice against oppression, a war in favor of civilization and good government. Our action proved to the Americans that we were indeed one people, of the same thoughts and guided by the same principles. The assurance that was given to them in the course of the Spanish war will, I believe, never be forgotten, and has placed our relations in an admirable position. The union, the alliance, if you please, the understanding between these two great nations is indeed a guarantee of the peace of the world.

"But there is something more which I think any far-seeing English statesman must have long desired, that we should not remain permanently isolated from the continent of Europe, and I think it must have appeared evident to everybody that the natural alliance is between ourselves and the great German Empire. We have had our differences, quarrels and contentions, but they have all been about petty matters. These difficulties have been gradually removed, until now I cannot conceive that any point can arise in the immediate future which can bring ourselves and Germany into antagonism of interests. On the contrary, I can foresee many things in the future which must cause anxiety to the statesmen of Europe, but in which our interests are clearly the same as Germany's, and in which the understanding of which I have spoken in the case of America might, if extended to Germany, do more perhaps than any combination of arms to preserve the peace of the world."

COMMENT ON THE SPEECH.

Majority of British Papers Approve Mr. Chamberlain's Utterances.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—It has been long since a public speech has been delivered that has excited so much comment as Mr. Chamberlain's yesterday. Every provincial paper, important or unimportant, has a leading editorial this morning discussing it.

The Liberal and Radical papers are naturally little pleased. They think that England ought to continue the policy of withholding herself from entagling alliances, and they attack Mr. Chamberlain hotly for the irritating tone he adopted toward France. They remind the public that this is only a repetition of the "splash" he made in his speech of May 13 last year, when, in the same way, he incensed Russia. One journal ironically asks whether the Foreign Secretary still exists, or whether the Foreign Office has been merged in the Colonial Office.

On the other hand, most of the Conservative and Moderate Liberal organs comment upon the speech with great approval, alleging that there never was a time when such an understanding was more essential, between nations who are natural allies, for peace and civilization.

The Daily Mail says: "Once more Mr. Chamberlain has acted as interpreter for the nation. The new alliance of England, the United States, and Germany, with perhaps Japan thrown in, and Austria and Italy in the background, is something to make these foul-mouthed Parisians shiver. If they cannot cease their insults, their colonies will be taken from them and given to Germany and Italy. England has no quarrel with the present French Government, but how long will it stand against the machinations of Dr. Leyds and the General Staff, who are deliberately seeking to make an Anglo-French war?"

The Graphic says: "The country will be glad to hear that its relations with the United States and Germany are so cordial and of so close a character as to justify Mr. Chamberlain in speaking of an understanding amounting to a new Triple Alliance."

The Standard says: "There are no other peoples who have so much in common as those which have the old Saxon blood in their veins. Great Britain and the United States can scarcely deem each other aliens, and there are few Englishmen or Americans who would not rejoice to think of Germany as associated with them in the mission of defending civilization, progress, and liberty. The alliance, or, let us say, understanding between them is a natural one, and would assuredly gratify their feelings as much as it would add to their security against external dangers."

The Daily Chronicle says: "Mr. Chamberlain's enthusiasm, like his antagonism, suffers from over-emphasis. Alliances are almost out of the question. His remarks regarding the United States, however, are distinctly happy. But the German public is in no mood for such an alliance, and Mr. Chamberlain's uncalled-for and unstatesmanlike reference to France is reprehensible."

The Daily Telegraph says: "The future may or may not see a realization of this new triple alliance, which would sway the destinies of the world. It is sufficient for the present that the understanding between the Governments of Great Britain, the United States, and Germany is more intimate and more likely to be lasting than ever before. Friendship with America, cordial relations with Germany, the reconquest of the Soudan, and the approaching federation of South Africa under the British flag—these are the results by which the Salisbury Cabinet has rendered as splendid a service to the empire as almost any Government of the century."

The Daily News, commenting in the same vein as The Daily Chronicle, says: "Obviously Mr. Chamberlain is very much gratified over his conversation with Emperor William, and some allowance for this personal factor should be made in interpreting his speech. However, the substance of what he had to say is clear and satisfactory, and it derives real significance from his interview with the Emperor. But there is a strain of exaggeration and effusiveness which will defeat its object by raising the price of German friendliness."

Complaining of the tone Mr. Chamberlain adopted toward France, The Daily News says: "If offensive cartoons are to be made political issues, we shall soon have our hands full."

The Times, which rejoices in the "disappearance of all former misunderstandings between Great Britain and America," says:

"We have no objection to urge against Mr. Chamberlain's real meaning. At the same time, the proposition as stated by him may lead to a possible misapprehension. America, like ourselves, is able by virtue of her geographical position to keep free not only from entangling alliances, but from embarrassing neighbors. Germany has powerful neighbors all around, neighbors with whom she has been in conflict, and may be again.

"This alone differentiates the situation of the two countries and would render anything resembling an alliance for general purposes exceedingly difficult, and possibly prejudicial to the interests of the British Empire."

OUR RELATIONS WITH GERMANY.

Dr. von Mumm von Schwartzenstein Interviewed in Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—Among the officials who are arriving to see the Emperor is Dr. von Mumm von Schwartzenstein, who, since his arrival from Washington, has been at his home in Baden.

Dr. von Mumm had a long conference this afternoon with Count von Buelow, the Foreign Minister, and this evening he gave, in an interview, a general summary of the present relations of Germany with the United States, speaking cautiously with reference to commercial issues, especially the meat and fruit questions. He remarked that there was a considerable difference of opinion regarding these matters, and that Germany was still justly complaining of discrimination against German sugar.

When the great difficulty of reaching a satisfactory settlement of commercial differences at the present time was mentioned, especially in view of the fact that the United States is awaiting Germany's action on meat and Germany is awaiting the new tariff schedule and also is unwilling to prejudice pending negotiations with other important countries relative to commercial treaties by prematurely concluding one with America, Dr. von Mumm did not dissent, and later in the interview he virtually adopted the suggestion.

Discussing the present political relations between the two powers, the German diplomatist spoke freely, declaring that the Samoan agreement was a cause of satisfaction to all three powers, and had removed "a powder cask" from international politics. It was nonsense, he asserted, to say that the United States still refused to ratify the Anglo-German agreement, alleging that, as a matter of fact, when he left Washington an agreement had already been reached. Dr. von Mumm remarked that the American demand in the partition project had been known all along, and was agreed to from the first—namely, the possession of Tutuila, with a safe harbor at Pago Pago, and the other islands subsidiary to it.

THE COLOMBIAN REVOLUTION.

Spreading and Gaining Great Strength Throughout the Country.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 30.—Colombian advices received here by the steamer Louisianian say the revolution is spreading throughout the Colombian Republic and gaining great strength. Details as to the movements of the Liberals are lacking, but the stereotyped censored cable dispatches relating to Government successes are discredited, the fact being that the main bodies of the insurgents are avoiding action until the revolution is thoroughly organized.

Several casual bands of recruits have been dispersed, and a few severe reverses have been suffered on the water, but the insurrection is not even fully launched yet, and is apparently awaiting further important outside aid, presumably Venezuelan, which, it is asserted, is delayed owing to the outbreak of the counter-revolution there.

LIPTON SPEAKS AT A DINNER.

Alludes in Generous Words to the Treatment He Received Here.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Sir Thomas Lipton, speaking at the annual dinner of the Temple Yacht Club, in the Hotel Cecil this evening, Lord Charles Beresford presiding, referred in generous terms to his recent visit to the United States.

"No man," said Sir Thomas, "could have had fairer or better treatment, no man could have met with a more generous welcome, than I received at the hands of the greatest and of the humblest in America. I can see no room for discouragement, and unless some one else challenges I shall certainly do so myself very soon. All I can say is that we had a fair and square race and got a fair and squre licking."

These sentiments were received with prolonged cheers, the entire company rising and singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

KAISER BACK AT POTSDAM.

Receives Reports of Military and Civil Cabinet Officers.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—With Emperor William's return to-day there was an immediate revival of political activity in Berlin. His Majesty arrived at the new palace about 8 o'clock this morning, and by 10 o'clock he was receiving the reports of his civil and military Cabinets.

The first official to be received was Gen. von Hahnke, Chief of the Military Cabinet. He was followed by the Prince Regent of Brunswick, who related his experiences in Spain a fortnight ago, while on a special mission to confer the Order of the Black Eagle upon King Alfonso.

The Kaiser remained at Potsdam all day.

The Emperor on German Colonies.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The Kolonial-Zeitung to-day publishes a letter from Emperor William, addressed to Duke Albrecht, Regent of the Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, in which his Majesty congratulates Germany on the acquisition of Samoa and expresses hopes that, with God's help, the German colonies, "sustained by the intelligent and self-sacrificing solicitude of the people and supported by a strong fleet, may, in peaceful competition with other nations, advance on the road to prosperous development and prove a blessing to the Fatherland."

Germans to Build Mills Here.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The Berliner Tageblatt, in a double-leaded paragraph this evening, says: "On account of the unsatisfactory condition of the textile trade with America, several important owners have decided to erect mills in the United States."

GEORGE W. LEDERER RESIGNS.

Gives Up the Management of the New York Theatre Owing to Poor Health and Other Duties.

Rumors that George W. Lederer had resigned the management of the New York Theatre were verified last night. Previously it had been said that Mr. Lederer's retirement was caused by some disagreement with Sire Brothers, owners of the theatre; but the manager denied this.

"My withdrawal," Mr. Lederer said last night, "is due entirely to my health. The Casino, the Columbia in Boston, and the production of 'The Belle of New York' in London are enough for me to take care of. Besides, I shall soon have charge of another venture on the other side. The relations between the Sire Brothers and myself have always been most pleasant; there has been no friction whatever."

What the "venture on the other side" was to be Mr. Lederer did not say. It is reported that he may assume large responsibilities under some English theatrical syndicate, possibly the one that recently negotiated for the purchase of certain theatres in this city.

THE SCHLEY MUSIC HALL.

To be Opened with Burlesque and Vaudeville in February.

The work of construction for the new Schley Music Hall in West Thirty-fourth Street, near Broadway, has so far progressed that the owners, Messrs. Sullivan and Kraus, are able to announce definitely that the new music hall will be opened on Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12, 1900. The auditorium will seat 500 persons; there will be 37 boxes, 29 mezzanine and 8 proscenium, seating 300, and the capacity of the balcony will be 400. The primary decoration is to be of ivory and gold, with relief work of a delicate character, all set off by the red plush upholstering of the rails, seats, and divans. The parlors back of the foyer on each floor will be in ivory and gold relief. One parlor is to be decorated in blue, another in red, and the third in green.

The entrance in Thirty-fourth Street will be of onyx and marble, with ceilings decorated with gold in relief. The chairs will be of red plush, large and commodious, and a space of three feet is to be left between each row. The policy of the owners is to offer first-class burlesque and vaudeville at popular prices.

"WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS."

New Comedy to be Presented at the Madison Square Theatre.

Charles and Daniel Frohman will make a joint production of "Wheels Within Wheels" on Dec. 11 at the Madison Square Theatre. The play is a comedy in three acts by R. C. Carton, author of "Lord and Lady Algy," and was presented in London last season. It was intended originally to stage it at the Lyceum Theatre here, but Annie Russell's continued success in "Miss Hobbs" has caused the arrangement now announced.

In theme the new comedy is similar to "The Liars" and "The Case of Rebellious Susan." Scenery for it is being made by Urtt, and Mrs. Robert Osborn is designing the female costumes. In the cast are John B. Mason, Grant Stewart, C. W. Butler, Hilda Spong, Grace Elliston, Mrs. Eva Vincent, Charles Giblyn, J. Lester, Phillip Cunningham, Robert Hilliard, and others. The rôle by James Blagdon, portrayed in London by Arthur Bonchier, has been assigned to Mr. Hilliard. Blagdon is a typical man-about-town. When Mr. Bonchier played the part in London it was claimed by a well-known personage in the British metropolis that he was being mimicked, and suits against the management of the play were threatened on the ground that the part was a wanton libel and caricature. Although much talk grew out of the matter at the time, nothing ever came of it.

"OLIVER GOLDSMITH" AT ALBANY.

Audiences Were Pleased with Stuart Robson's New Comedy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 30.—"Oliver Goldsmith," the new comedy by Augustus Thomas, produced by Stuart Robson, was well received at the Empire Theatre this afternoon and evening. The theatre was packed at both representations, and Mr. Robson had to respond to several curtain calls. The audiences applauded the climax of the second act enthusiastically, and the situations in the last act also evoked much applause.

At the fall of the curtain to-night a speech was demanded from Mr. Thomas, and Daniel V. Arthur, under whose direction the play was given, also made a few remarks.

Engaged for "The Princess Chic."

Kirk La Shelle has engaged Richard Golden to play the principal role, Chamberlin, in his forthcoming comic opera, "The Princess Chic." Joseph C. Miron is booked for the part of Brevet, a swaggering soldier of fortune. The time to be depicted in the production is 1468, when Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, was at the height of his power. Knightly encounters, the chase, love, and wine figure largely in the plot. Julian Edwards is the composer.

New Opera at the American Theatre.

"La Tarantella," a new romantic opera by Jakobowski, will be first presented here by the Castle Square Opera Company. The initial production will take place on Christmas day at the American Theatre.

THE STATENDAM AGROUND.

Holland-American Liner Must Be Lightened Before She Floats.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 30.—The Holland-America Line steamer Statendam, Capt. Bonjer, from New York Nov. 19, via Boulogne Nov. 29, for this port, is aground at Maasluis, ten miles below here, and must lighten to float.

The Statendam carried 56 passengers from New York, but 29 of them were booked for Boulogne-sur-Mer. There were aboard when she grounded, therefore, only twenty-seven, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. E. Everwyn Lange, Miss Dorothea Edye, Mrs. Richard Van Voorhis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Riffarth, Mr. and Mrs. B. Senton, and Miss Edith Bonner.

The Statendam is the latest addition to the fleet of the Holland-America Line and a sister ship of the Rotterdam. She is a twin-screw vessel of 8,300 tons.

CAPT. PRICE'S CRUSADE.

Will Close Disreputable Apartments—The "Panel Game" in Operation.

Capt. Price of the West Thirtieth Street Station has announced his purpose of ridding the Tenderloin precinct of disreputable flat houses.

Shortly after midnight yesterday morning Emma Thompson was arrested on a charge of robbing a man of $105 in the flat, 139 West Twenty-eighth street. The complainant, James B. Glasscock of Wilmington, N. C., who is staying at the St. Denis Hotel, followed the prisoner into the station house, but refused to make a complaint, as he said his money had subsequently been returned to him. He exhibited a roll of bills as proof of his assertion.

Glasscock stated that while he was in a room in the flat a hand was thrust through a panel in the room and his money taken. Glasscock made an outcry, whereupon, he says, the janitor of the flat and another man rushed in and assaulted him. He continued to call for help, and Policeman Peterson entered and arrested the woman. While they were on the way to the station house, Glasscock said, he was overtaken by the janitor and his money returned to him.

Capt. Price then directed the arrest of Glasscock on charges of disorderly conduct and compounding a felony. The latter was arrested under strong protest.

The Twenty-eighth Street flat was raided afterward, and Adam Lemonsky, the janitor, and Florence Moore were arrested. When arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court with Emma Thompson yesterday morning, they were all held in $1,000 bail for examination to-day. Glasscock was paroled until to-day.

Capt. Price stated last night that he still had the roll of bills found on Glasscock, amounting to $94. "I will go to court," he said, "and ask that this money be turned over to the property clerk to be used as evidence in this case, in order to make Glasscock press the complaint. If he is still unwilling, I shall endeavor to have Glasscock placed in the House of Detention as a witness.

"I am determined to stop this 'panel game.' A number of houses have been furnished so as to work the 'panel game' in the rooms. So far, when the victim has made a protest the money has been returned, or the complainant has failed to identify the accused persons in court or does not appear against them at all. Half a dozen arrests have been made, but no conviction has been obtained for these reasons."

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

There was absolutely nothing doing in society yesterday in town. Every one who could get away into the country left New York. There were a few dinners and some family gatherings. The theatres were well patronized and the Pet Dog Show, at the Metropolitan Opera House, was visited by some of those members of society who did not go out into the country for Thanksgiving.

***

There was a large dance at Ardsley, which concluded the festivities at that place. The entire day was devoted to golf. There were match games at Baltusrol and Harbor Hill, and a number of the Hempstead people played on the links at Garden City. Tuxedo had quite a festival. There was a small dance at the club.

***

This afternoon at Tuxedo Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, Jr., will give another of her musicales. This will be the principal entertainment in the suburbs to-day. There will be a renewal of golf to-morrow at the various links about town, and people are still slow in coming in from the country. Several New Yorkers went over to Philadelphia, where on Thanksgiving the Radnor Hunt gave a breakfast and run, which was to be the wind-up of their season.

***

This afternoon in town there will be several teas. Mrs. Robert Olyphant of 6 East Sixty-first Street will introduce her daughter, Miss Olyphant. With Miss Olyphant there will be a number of débutantes, and after the tea a dinner and an informal dance.

***

Mrs. Albert Barnes Boardman, 40 West Fifty-third Street, will also give a tea to introduce her daughter, Miss Cecil Boardman. Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, who arrives in town to-day from Lenox, will give a reception to-morrow afternoon at her residence on Madison Avenue.

***

This evening will take place at Lakewood the first of the series of dances which will be given every evening at the County Hunt and Country Club. There will be dinners at small tables for various parties, and among them will be the visiting golfers for the tournament. Mrs. George Gould has been entertaining a large house party over Thanksgiving.

***

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hotchkiss of New Haven have sent out cards for a large ball to be given at the Hotchkiss residence, 53 Hillhouse Avenue, for the début of their daughter, Miss Hotchkiss, on Tuesday evening, Dec. 12. Many guests will go from New York. This ball will be one of the handsomest which New Haven has ever witnessed.

***

Mrs. Alexander Van Nest of 31 West Thirty-seventh Street will give a series of dinners beginning on Dec. 5. The first will be for a party of young people, who will afterward go to the First Junior Cotillion. Previous to the First Assembly, Dec. 14, Mrs. May Van Nest will give a large dinner in honor of her daughter, Miss Mary Alice Van Nest.

***

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Townsend Martin of Albany have cards out for a large reception on Dec. 6 for their daughter, Miss Mabel Martin, and their niece, Miss Hannah Townsend Anderson. This affair will also take a number of people to Albany, where the reception will be held. Miss Martin is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin and a cousin of the Countess of Craven.

***

To-morrow evening at the Essex County Club there will be a large dance given, preceded, as is now the fashion, by dinner. This mode was introduced by those who have passed the Summers at Bar Harbor, and it is the most popular form of suburban entertainment this Autumn. Mrs. John Wilmerding and Mrs. Campbell will be among the patronesses.

***

The coming out reception of Miss de Peyster, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick de Peyster, will take place to-morrow afternoon at the De Peyster residence, 7 East Forty-second Street. Receiving with Miss de Peyster will be her sisters and Miss Delafield and several other débutantes of the season. Miss Edith Clark will also come out at a tea given by her mother, Mrs. Charles Clark.

***

Family dinners were given yesterday by Mrs. Robert G. Remsen, Mrs. William Schermerhorn, Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, Mrs. Lloyd Bryce, Mrs. Rhinelander Stewart, and Mrs. Frederick Bronson. A large dinner was also given by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Decker.

***

It is stated in New Orleans that Mrs. John A. Morris has been quite ill. She assisted in nursing her son, Dave Hennen Morris, who has also passed through a serious crisis in a very alarming illness. Mr. Dave Hennen Morris married Miss Alice Shepard, the daughter of Mrs. Elliott Shepard and the niece of William K. Vanderbilt.

***

Mrs. Frederick Goodridge has opened her house on Fifth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Iselin are with her for the Winter. Mrs. Ogden Mills is to arrive in town to-day for the season. Mrs. Robert Garrett of Baltimore has been at the Murray Hill Hotel for the past few weeks. Mrs. Garrett is to build a villa at Newport this Spring.

***

The date for the wedding of Miss Elsie Barker, the daughter of Mrs. Fordyce Barker, and Mr. Murray Dodge, the son of Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, is set for Feb. 6 at St. Thomas's Church.

LIPPINCOTT'S PLATES SAVED.

In the Vaults Uninjured—Company's Loss Not More Than $450,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 30.—It was learned to-day that, with few exceptions, the valuable electrotype plates stored in vaults in the J. B. Lippincott Company's building were not damaged by the fire which yesterday destroyed that publishing house.

Secretary Mortimer, of the company, said that this means a salvage of between $100,000 and $150,000. With these plates saved the loss on the contents of the building may be rightly estimated at $300,000. The building is valued at $150,000.

The only plates of importance that were in actual service and were destroyed are not numerous. Among them are "Da Costa's Diagnosis," and Anne Hollingsworth's "Salons Colonial and Republican."

SHOT HIS BOY FRIEND.

A Serious Accident Ends an Expedition for Sand Worms.

Albert Bassler, eighteen years of age, of 334 East Ninety-third Street, Manhattan, was shot in the abdomen yesterday by Charles Halfner, sixteen years of age, of 338 East Ninety-third Street. They with four others were on Berrian's Island, in the East River, at the time. The wounded boy is in a critical state at St. John's Hospital, in Long Island City.

Bassler and Halfner, with Albert Finnegan of 1,883 First Avenue, Louis Homestead of First Avenue and Ninety-third Street, Michael Joyce of 311 East Ninety-third Street, and a boy whose last name the others say they do not know, but who was known to them as "Long Tom" and who lives in Ninety-third Street, near First Avenue, crossed from Manhattan to Berrian's Island in the afternoon.

They went to gather sand worms. They had with them a small rifle of .22 calibre. According to the story told by the two principals, Halfner was shooting rats. He stood in the doorway of an old hut on the island. Bassler was digging for worms. As Halfner was firing the last cartridge he had Bassler walked in front of the rifle and the bullet hit him.

Halfner and Bassler at once crossed to Steinway in one of the two boats. Bassler, assisted by Halfner, went to Paul's drug store at 920 Steinway Avenue, where the druggist examined the wound. He saw it was dangerous and telephoned for the ambulance. Ambulance Surgeon Cassidy notified the police and Halfner was arrested. He said he left the rifle behind him on the island. At the hospital the surgeons found the wound a very dangerous one, and they fear it may be fatal. Halfner is in despair and weeps constantly.

To Reinter Gen. Hancock's Body.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—The plan to remove Gen. Hancock's remains to Arlington Cemetery has been revived. Within a few days a committee of veterans of the Second Corps of the Army of the Potomac will meet to take steps in furtherance of the scheme.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

Seligman—De Pinna.

Miss Hilda de Pinna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred de Pinna, and J. Guy Seligman were married yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, 308 West Eighty-ninth Street. Leo S. de Pinna, a brother of the bride, was best man, and Miss Emilie de Pinna was maid of honor. The ushers were Charles L. Israels, William J. Taylor, Maxwell Mannes, J. Childs Seligman, Joseph Steinan, and J. Hart. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. de Sola Mendes. After the ceremony there was a wedding reception. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Herts, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Herman, Mr. and Mrs. M. Kaufman, Louis G. Seligman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Offenbach, J. Sonneborn, Edward H. Yale, and Mr. and Mrs. I. Schloss.

Green—Pattison.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 30.—A quiet wedding occurred here yesterday at Two Elms, the residence of Mrs. I. R. Gillelan, when her cousin, Miss Emilie Marshall Pattison of Washington, and Carl Melville Green of the United States Revenue Service were married by the Rev. William G. Cassard, Chaplain of the battleship Indiana. The bride wore a dark traveling costume. Only immediate relatives were present. Mr. and Mrs. Green will reside in Philadelphia.

Waters—Strauss.

The marriage of Miss May Florence Strauss, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Strauss of 176 West Eighty-second Street, and Mortimer J. Waters took place last night at the Ellerslie, on West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Street. The Rev. Stephen S. Wise officiated. Miss Vere Luceta Rutland and Miss Norma Sylvia Waters acted as flower girls and Harold Barnett, a cousin of the bride, was the page. The wedding trip will include a visit to Old Point Comfort and Palm Beach.

Stern—Davis.

Miss Goldie Davis, daughter of Mrs. M. Davis, of 1,949 Seventh Avenue, was married to Seymour Stern yesterday noon at Sherry's, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street. The best man was E. J. Stern, a brother of the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stephen S. Wise. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served. The wedding trip will be to Washington, D. C.

PRIEST'S BODY REBURIED.

Laid in the Memorial Chapel Vault of the Mission He Founded.

The body of the late Rev. Father John C. Drumgoole, founder of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin at Great Jones Street, this city, and at Mount Loretto, S. I., was removed yesterday afternoon from the grave in the cemetery at Mount Loretto, where it had rested for eleven years, and was placed in a vault in the memorial chapel recently erected at that place. The services were witnessed by a large assemblage of clergy and persons interested in the work started by Father Drumgoole.

The procession, headed by Archbishop Corrigan, formed in the main building of the home. Father James J. Dougherty, the present head of the mission; Bishop Farley, and Bishop Randell of Helena, Mont. participated. Following the clergy were the inmates of the mission, numbering more than 1,000 boys and girls. The surpliced choir sang.

In the chapel Archbishop Corrigan offered a prayer, the choir sang, and the casket, which was placed in a new oak box, was lowered into the vault beneath the altar of the chapel. The slab was then lowered into place and the vault sealed.

Father Drumgoole founded the mission forty years ago. It had a small beginning, but is now one of the largest and most active in the city.

The memorial chapel is built of York slate and is of Grecian architecture. The floor is of marble, twenty-five feet by twenty-five feet. Special trains were run to and from the mission yesterday for the visitors.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

The Rev. Arvine Clark Bowdish.

The Rev. Arvine Clark Bowdish, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, City Island, died early Wednesday morning at his home in City Island after a lingering illness. For several years past his health had been failing, but he clung to his work. He served throughout the civil war as Chaplain of the One Hundred and Forty-ninth New York Regiment, and the hardships he endured somewhat impaired his health. Dr. Bowdish was about sixty-five years old and was born at Lowville, N. Y. He was a son of the Rev. Dr. William S. Bowdish, who was presiding elder of the Black River Conference for some years. He was educated at the Cazenovia Seminary, and later became a member of the Oneida Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His first pastorate was at Georgetown, N. Y. In 1874, on the death of his brother, the Rev. Charles Giles Bowdish, who was pastor of a church at Astoria, he was transferred from the Wyoming Conference to the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, taking the place made vacant by his brother's death, and since then he had continued a member of that Conference. Dr. Bowdish was a member of the U. S. Grant Post No. 327, G. A. R., of Brooklyn, of which he was for some time Chaplain. He was a lifelong Republican. He leaves a wife, two sons, a daughter, and two brothers. One of his brothers is the Rev. Dr. W. W. Bowdish, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Danbury, Conn., and the other is the Rev. E. S. Bowdish of Minneapolis.

Col. Joel J. Seaver.

Col. Joel J. Seaver died at his home, in Malone, N. Y., Wednesday night, aged seventy-seven years. For twenty-five years he was the chief editorial writer on The Malone Palladium and one of the proprietors for a much longer period. He was the first man in Franklin County to volunteer under President Lincoln's first call for troops, was chosen Captain of Company I, organized in Malone, and at the end of two years was Colonel of his regiment and in command of a brigade. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1867 and Postmaster of Malone during President Hayes's Administration. The Rev. F. B. Hall of Plattsburg, Chaplain of the old Sixteenth Regiment and a tentmate of Col. Seaver, will officiate at the funeral on Saturday.

Charles E. Longley.

Charles E. Longley, who for more than a score of years has been prominently identified with the clothing trade of New England and New York City, died at his residence in Pawtucket Wednesday afternoon after an illness extending over a period of several years. About twenty-three years ago he went to Providence, and with a partner opened a retail clothing house under the name of the Boston and Providence Clothing Company. The venture was at once successful, and the concern soon had branch stores established in various places in New England, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Fall River, Worcester, New Haven, and Hartford being among the number.

Mrs. Katharine Livingston W. Tucker.

Mrs. Katharine Livingston Waldo Tucker, wife of Preble Tucker, died suddenly at her home in this city yesterday. Death was due to an attack of heart disease. The funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning at St. George's Church.

Obituary Notes.

MARY E. LAMONT SPARKS, widow of John Sparks, died at her residence at Greenwich, Conn., of heart failure yesterday, aged seventy-six years. Funeral services will be held Saturday and the interment will be in Woodlawn.

DR. EDGAR MILES, one of the best known practicing physicians of Suffolk County, died at his home at Sag Harbor, L. I., yesterday morning. He was seventy-five years old, and had practiced in Sag Harbor and vicinity for fifty-five years. He was the father of Clarence C. Miles, a coroner of Suffolk County.

STANTON BARNARD, son of the late Frederick K. Barnard of Albany, N. Y., died yesterday at 32 West Thirty-second Street, this city. Mr. Barnard, who was seventy-one years old, was born in Albany and educated at Williams College. After being graduated he engaged in the lumber business with his father, and for many years was President of the Chippewa Lumber and Boom Company of Chippewa, Wis. He retired from active business about ten years ago and had since resided in New York. Mr. Barnard was a bachelor. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Norman White of 101 West Seventy-eighth Street.

MRS. HARRIET A. STRANGE, widow of E. B. Strange, formerly a well-known ribbon manufacturer of this city, died on Wednesday of heart disease, at her residence, 312 West Twenty-eighth Street. She was seventy-two years old. Mrs. Strange was Miss Harriet Archer of Tarrytown, N. Y., and was a member of an old Tarrytown family of that name. John Street and Elizabeth Street, in Tarrytown, were named after Mrs. Strange's parents. She leaves a brother, D. O. Archer of Tarrytown, who was recently President of the village.

HUNTING PENNSYLVANIA DEER.

New Yorkers Have Poor Luck in Pike and Monroe Counties—An Experience with a Wildcat.

Special to The New York Times.

STROUDSBURG, Penn., Nov. 30.—The deer season, which closed to-day in Monroe and Pike Counties, has given great sport to New York hunters. The most remarkable thing in connection with the season which has just closed is that not a single accident has occurred. In Pike County alone it is estimated that nearly 200 deer have been killed. Last year the record was a trifle over that number. In Monroe County there were quite 200 killed.

C. C. Worthington and a party of New Yorkers, including Capt. Smith, in one day's sport killed three deer. Miss Helen Brodhead, a popular society leader of the famous Delaware Water Gap, during the season killed two deer, and wins the medal among the lady hunters. Hiram Miller and three sons, who are well known Monroe County hunters, have killed seven deer since the season opened. The law allowed them to kill eight, and no more disappointed lot of men can be found than the Millers.

During one week in Pike County in Greene Township, Floyd Frisbie shot four deer, two of which he killed in one day. Pike County hunters claim that to Frisbie belongs the championship of 1899. In killing the four deer he used only four cartridges. Two boys, aged about fifteen, have established a record which Monroe County people are very proud of. Toward the close of the season the young Luckeys decided to hunt deer. They were not long out before they saw two fine specimens coming in their direction. They fired simultaneously and the two deer fell to the ground dead.

While many New Yorkers have spent considerable time in the Pike and Monroe County regions this year, they have not distinguished themselves by killing a great number of deer. J. S. Taylor of Newburg killed a fine buck at Blooming Grove Park weighing nearly 300 pounds. Theodore Bingenheimer of New York City and Jerry Greening killed a doe at Shoholo Falls. Scranton men killed three in Greene Township, Pike County.

Philadelphia hunters have been especially lucky during the season, and many prominent people from the Quaker City will not soon forget their exciting experiences. Among those from Philadelphia who have been successful are Rod Provost, a well-known hunter; Dr. William Apple, Christian Hess, and Charles Lagen. Mr. Provost has been most successful in killing game. In company with the Superintendent of the Beaver Run Club, he spent a day in the woods and at night returned to the clubhouse with two deer, both big bucks, and a number of birds. Charles Lagen killed a fat doe near Silver Lake. There were ten men in the party, one of whom shot a two-pronged buck.

In Monroe and Pike Counties some attention has been given to bears and wildcats. The bear season can hardly be said to have fairly opened until snow is on the ground. A few wildcats have been killed. Hunters do not find much sport in killing these animals. They generally show fight, and unless the gunner is on the lookout the cat is likely to come out best. Only a few days ago C. V. Terwilliger of Scranton had an interesting, not to say an exciting, experience. He was with a party of Scranton gunners looking for game. Their dogs stirred up an immense wildcat in a runway that Terwilliger was watching. The cat came upon him suddenly, and when it sa

CITY'S THANKSGIVING DAY

Propitious Weather and Bountiful Charity Make All Content.

CHARIVARI IN THE STREETS

At All Institutions the Holiday Dinner and Entertainments Were Provided—Molineux's Day.

Thanksgiving was yesterday celebrated in this city in happy, orderly, and comfortable fashion. The weather, delightfully fine for this season of the year, was no small factor in the general result. There were abundant evidences of prosperity and good times in the garb and bearing of wage-earners. Contentment appeared to reign everywhere. There was lavish incentive to be thankful. None need have gone hungry.

The chief feature of the day was the street charivari, not only of the girls and boys, but of young men and women. Thanksgiving masquerading has never been more universal. Fantastically garbed youngsters and their elders were on every corner of the city. Not a few of the maskers and mummers wore disguises that were recognized as typifying a well-known character or myth. There were Fausts, Filipinos, Mephistos, Boers, Uncle Sams, John Bulls, Harlequins, bandits, sailors, soldiers in khaki suits, Deweys, and Columbines that well supported their rôles. The mummery, as a rule, was limited to boys in women's skirts or in masks. In the poorer quarters a smear of burned cork and a dab of vermilion sufficed for babbling celebrants. Some of the masqueraders were on bicycles, others on horseback, a few in vehicles. All had a great time. The good-humored crowd abroad was generous with pennies and nickels, and the candy stores did a land-office business.

It is not possible to accurately estimate the Thanksgiving cheer dispensed privately by the fortunate to the unfortunate. Few families in New York, who had the means, neglected to inform themselves early in the week of the needs of persons with whom they were acquainted and to see to it that they did not go hungry. In all the institutions the celebration was adequate to the festival.

In the Tombs Prison Roland B. Molineux, indicted for poisoning Mrs. Katherine J. Adams, was awake when daylight streamed through the barred window of his narrow cell. He took his morning "constitutional" with the other prisoners on the exercise floor. At 9 o'clock he partook of a light breakfast of coffee and rolls and fresh eggs. He read newspapers, and studied with seeming interest the reports of the trial of which he himself is the central figure. When Molineux returned to his cell after the day's proceedings before Recorder Goff on Wednesday, he talked quite freely with the Deputy Warden, to whom he said he was glad that the jury box had been filled. At noon he ate of his Thanksgiving Day dinner in his cell.

The Thanksgiving Day supply ordered to the Tombs by Warden Hagan was 550 pounds of chicken, 250 pounds of turkey, 200 pounds of roast pork, 150 mince pies, and two barrels of apples.

At the other district jails in the city the officials provided a bountiful and appropriate dinner for the inmates.

In the different institutions of the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island and at Central Islip, 6,780 pounds of turkey and accompaniments were distributed among the patients. In the female department on the island there was a concert in the afternoon, and in the male department at night there was a vaudeville entertainment. At Islip the same programme was carried out. In the Almshouse, City Hospital, and Metropolitan Hospital 6,000 patients were provided with turkey at dinner. Religious services were held in the morning.

More than six tons of turkey and chicken and 150 barrels of apples, figs, nuts, and other fruits and vegetables were used for the Thanksgiving dinners in the various branches of the Charities Department on the islands in the East River and in the city. There were fifteen tons of edibles in all.

The patients at the hospitals were not forgotten. Bountiful Thanksgiving cheer was served at the New York, St. Vincent's, and Hudson Street institutions. Alexander Maitland provided a dinner for 325 patients, nurses, doctors, and aids at the Presbyterian Hospital.

At Bellevue Hospital the patients had turkey and the usual concomitants. The Rev. C. S. Brown, Chaplain of the institution, conducted an Episcopal service in the chapel, after which there was a distribution of nuts, figs, and other fruits.

At the Catholic Protectory 2,900 boys and girls sat down to a turkey dinner at noon. They attended mass at 6 o'clock, and after that had been allowed to remain all morning in the big playgrounds. In the evening the boys gave a stereopticon exhibition of pictures taken by them.

The nineteenth Thanksgiving Day dinner given to the poor Hebrew children who attend the Industrial School of the United Hebrew Charities, at 58 St. Mark's Place, under the auspices of the parent association, was attended by over 400 children. The dinner was also attended by the smaller children who attend the kindergarten at 58 St. Mark's Place, which is supported by the Shearith Israel Sisterhood, Seventieth Street and Central Park West. The little kindergarten children numbered nearly one hundred. Before the dinners exercises took place, at which several of the pupils of the Industrial School rendered recitations and songs.

Among the members of the committee which locked after the comforts of the little ones were Henry S. Allen, Chairman; Julian Nathan, Cyrus Sulzberger, Henry Rice, I. S. Isaacs, and Dr. Frankel. The ladies present were Mrs. Blumenthal, Mrs. S. Klingenstein, Mrs. S. Martus, Mrs. J. Hernsheim, Mrs. J. Hart, Mrs. Weinhandler, Mrs. F. Cohen, Mrs. Hart, and Miss Maud Henry. The kindergarten children were taken care of by Mrs. Ellen Levy, Miss Harry Lyon, Miss Sarah Lyon, Mrs. E. O. Belais, Mrs. Kaufman, Mrs. H. Gomez, and Miss Ellas of the Shearith Israel Sisterhood.

The inmates of the asylum of the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society ate 1,000 pounds of turkey for their Thanksgiving dinner. There was music by the asylum band, and the Trustees of the asylum, headed by President Levy of the board, were present to see that the children got all the pleasure out of the day that was possible. In the forenoon the Rev. Dr. Kaufman, the spiritual director, addressed the children and told them what Thanksgiving was. In the afternoon each child received a masquerade costume and was sent out into the playground to do as he or she pleased.

At the Home for the Friendless, 29 East Twenty-ninth Street, 143 children, under the care of the Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless, had a feast of turkey, vegetables, pudding, and fruit. In the afternoon they entertained the many friends of the institution, who filled the chapel, with a songs, recitations, calesthenics, and kindergarten exercises.

On Ellis Island, Emile Schwab supplied the immigrants' dinner yesterday. It was served on the station boat Narragansett, which is moored in the pier at Ellis Island. The polyglot exclamations of delight from the 600 immigrants as they devoured the turkey and ate the celery gratified the donor of the feast. After the dinner a half dozen musicians sent over by Mr. Schwab furnished music for dancing.

Following the usual Thanksgiving Day custom, the management of the Five Points House of Industry at 155 Worth Street yesterday afternoon made more than 1,500 people happy with a good dinner.

At the Five Points Mission at 63 Park Street more than 1,000 children were fed. In the chapel the children took part in exercises presided over by the Rev. C. W. Millard.

Tables groaned and hundreds feasted at the House of Refuge branch of the Children's Aid Society, Seventh Avenue and Thirty-first Street; the Municipal Lodging House in First Avenue, at the Gerry Society rooms; at Salvation Army headquarters in West Fourteenth Street, at the Olive Tree Inn in East Twenty-third Street, at the Manhattan East Side Mission at East Twenty-sixth Street, in the rooms of the Bowery Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, at the Florence Mission in Bleecker Street, at the branch house of the Protestant Episcopal Mission Society in Broome Street, at the House of the Lord Mission in Bleecker Street, and at the King's Daughters' Settlement, 48 Henry Street.

Carl C. Abbott, a baker at 236 Eighth Avenue, fed 500 boys with turkey and mince pie.

At all of the 1-cent coffee stands of the St. Andrew's Society of Manhattan and Brooklyn an ample dinner of turkey, roast beef, vegetables, celery, coffee, pumpkin and mince pie, and fruit was provided for all comers. At the headquarters of the association, 45 and 47 Grove Street, more than 1,000 men and boys were provided with a generous dinner. This was under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Lamadrid.

GEN. MERRITT GREETS BOYS.

High Praise for the Military Precision of Cadets of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum.

Major Gen. Wesley Merritt, U. S. A., reviewed the cadets of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum on the grounds of the institution, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street and Amsterdam Avenue, yesterday afternoon. The boys did excellent drill work, and carried themselves with the dignity of regular troops. The playground, which covers a couple of acres, was enclosed to form a hollow, and it was within this that the battalion of cadets went through its evolutions. On the south side was a small reviewing stand which Gen. Merritt and other visitors occupied, and which was prettily draped with the national colors.

Gen. Merritt, accompanied by his aide, Lieut. T. Bentley Mott and Judges Newburger and McMahon, drove into the grounds promptly at 3 o'clock, and the band which was stationed near the main building acknowledged the General's presence by three rolls of the drum. The party was met by Emanuel Lehman, President of the Board of Trustees and the other members of the board, and the visitors were escorted to the parade ground by the band and a drum corps, both of which are recruited from the inmates of the institution. After Gen. Merritt took his place in the stand the cadets marched up battalion front under the command of Dr. Cohen, the drillmaster.

After the formation Gen. Merritt doffed his hat to the flag, and when the little bandmaster came by at the head of the line, walking as straight as any soldier could, Gen. Merritt saluted him, and then the review began in earnest. Finally the battalion formed before the reviewing stand, and Capt. Landes of Company A advanced three paces to the front and delivered a speech of welcome. He told Gen. Merritt in a ringing voice how proud the battalion was to have such a famous soldier and Major General of the army come to see them.

Gen. Merritt stepped to the front and congratulated the cadets on the progress they had shown in the drill regulations. He told them that they had done finely and that their military precision spoke volumes in their favor.

"Whether you become soldiers or citizens," he said, "the discipline will do you a world of good."

After the review Gen. Merritt, Lieut. Mott, and Judge McMahon were entertained at luncheon by Judge Newburger and the other trustees. It was served in the Governors' room. Gen. Merritt held an impromptu reception, and after shaking hands for half an hour with friends of the asylum, left with his aide and Judges McMahon and Newburger. The party was entertained at dinner at the Manhattan Club by Judge McMahon.

COLONIAL TEA A SUCCESS.

Hebrew Infant Asylum Entertainment —The Superintendent's Resignation.

The Young Folks' League of the Hebrew Infant Asylum, One Hundred and Sixty-first Street and Eagle Avenue, gave a colonial tea at the institution yesterday afternoon that proved a success socially and financially. The ten young ladies who served the tea were attired in colonial costume. The tea room was decorated in pink and violet. One of the features of the tea was a raffle for a twenty-pound turkey. About $200 was cleared.

It was announced during the afternoon that Mrs. Newman, the Superintendent of the asylum, had resigned. General regret was expressed at the resignation, as Mrs. Newman, who has been with the institution since its inception, has been successful, and is greatly loved by the hundred odd children under her care. It is hoped by the officials of the asylum that Mrs. Newman can be persuaded to return to her old position after she has taken some rest.

AT THE MONTEFIORE HOME.

President Low in an Address Commends the Hebrew Charities.

The Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, Broadway and One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of its establishment yesterday. Religious services were held for the inmates in the chapel by the chaplain of the home, Rabbi Victor Freitag, at 10 o'clock A. M. The Thanksgiving dinner followed.

President Seth Low of Columbia University at 3 o'clock visited and inspected the home under the escort of President Jacob H. Schiff and Superintendent Adolph Hausmann. Dr. Low then addressed a thousand or more visitors in the home chapel. In introducing him, President Schiff paid a tribute to President Low as "the man who had by his munificence and work helped to build up Columbia University, the grandest institution of the sort in the United States."

President Low commended the Hebrew people for maintaining the Montefiore Home and the many other institutions conducted by people of their faith all over the country. He said the world marvels at the charity of the Hebrew people. An address was also made by the Rev. Samuel Schulman.

DINNER FOR 400 BOYS.

Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt Carries Out Her Custom at Newport.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 30.—This afternoon 400 boys were given a Thanksgiving dinner in Masonic Hall by Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, who was simply having her custom of former years carried out. Long before the doors opened the boys lined the street and a squad of police aided the little fellows to keep in line.

As the boys filed into the hall they heard the lively strains of an orchestra playing a march, and as they became seated order was called for by R. S. Franklin, who welcomed them for Mrs. Vanderbilt. Then the Rev. Brewer G. Boardman offered prayers and asked a blessing on the boys, Father James H. Meenon told them a few comical stories, and the feast was spread.

During the dinner the orchestra played popular airs and the boys sang the choruses. As they left the hall each one was handed a box of confections. The boys were attended by the ladies of the local circles of King's Daughters, of which Mrs. Vanderbilt is a member.

Among the cottagers who enjoyed their Thanksgiving dinner here were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Kemp, Mrs. Duncan Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. C. L. Best and Miss Best, Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Swan, and Miss Hattie Gammell.

MR. McKINLEY'S THANKSGIVING.

Goes to Church and Then Eats Grasshopper-Fed Turkey.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Thanksgiving Day was more closely observed at the Executive Mansion than for some years. The house was closed to visitors, and business was almost suspended. The President saw only a few intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Abner McKinley came over from New York to dine at the White House, and accompanied the President and Mrs. McKinley to church, attending services at the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Frank M. Bristol, the pastor, preached the sermon, which was a patriotic discourse, in which he pointed out that the high position attained by this country and its success and prosperity have been due at all times to love of God, obedience to His commands, and patriotism.

The President had several invited guests with him to dinner at the White House this evening, the centrepiece on the table being the Rhode Island twenty-five-pound grasshopper-fed turkey.

W. K. Vanderbilt in Vermont.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 30.—Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence of Groton, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr., and W. K. Vanderbilt of New York arrived at Shelburne this morning, accompanied by Dr. W. Seward Webb. The private cars of Dr. Webb and Mr. Vanderbilt were occupied by the party, who were the Thanksgiving guests of Dr. and Mrs. Webb.

Sausage for Sing Sing Convicts.

SING SING, Nov. 30.—The convicts in Sing Sing Prison did not have the poultry dinner which usually marks Thanksgiving Day. Instead they had sausage. Warden Johnson found that, owing to the limited appropriations made by the Legislature last year he would have to practice economy. To feed his large family he had 1,000 pounds of sausage, 350 mince pies, 2,400 cigars, and 8 barrels of apples.

HOLIDAY PULPIT THOUGHTS

Words from Thanksgiving Sermons at Many City Churches.

The Rev. Dr. MADISON C. PETERS, at Blobmingdale Reformed Church.—Some people and parties are like a man riding backward on a wagon—they never see anything until it is passed. The National fogyism, which shudders at the retention of the Philippines, is opposed to every step in the Nation's progress, and has just seen the wisdom of the step after opposing it. Terrible as war is, it is not as terrible as it is for a nation to go backward when God says in the name of humanity "go forward."

The Rev. Dr. W. S. RAINSFORD at St. George's Church—The cancer that ate the heart of Spain away may not yet have appeared in our body politic, but we are putting everything in a secondary position in our efforts to get on. Take a branch of the Federal Government—the Indian Bureau of the Department of the Interior. That is and has been for years a standing and lasting disgrace to this country. These are no idle words, but the results of my own observations. The same conditions have been going on under Republican and Democratic Administrations, and both parties are equally to blame.

The Rev. Dr. CHARLES H. EATON, at the Church of the Divine Paternity.—There has been a change in our paganism. Alexander, and not Christ, is the example set before us. At the bottom the war in Cuba and the Philippines also was ideals as regards militarism. The virtues of Christianity are being forgotten for those incited largely by an irresponsible press, and had for its motive, not the Christianization of barbarous nations, but the extension of markets. And now we are urged to involve ourselves in international politics, and possibility of wars, for the enlargement of trade, for the partition of China.

The Rev. Dr. GEORGE R. VAN DE WATER, at St. Andrew's Church.—We have freed the people of Cuba and Puerto Rico, and have already given them the blessings of order, education, and sanitation, and for this privilege we should thank God. As to the Philippines, the standard of this Nation has been raised there and will never be lowered. The Filipinos must be thoroughly subjugated, and we will then extend to them all the blessings of civilization. The Nation must do its duty and go forward to its destiny, and in years to come the Filipinos will be as loyal as our own citizens. For the various achievements of the army and navy we should this day be duly thankful.

The Rev. Dr. R. S. MACARTHUR, at Calvary Baptist Church.—The United States has entered the world's citizenship, and to-day we are making history with a rapidity that is astonishing. One of the best evidences of this is the fact that to-day there are Thanksgiving ceremonies being held in countries where before they had never heard of Thanksgiving Day. Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines join with us in giving thanks to God, under the inspiration of the American flag. This day will be commemorated by poets and historians as the first day of thanksgiving under the Stars and Stripes on both sides of the globe. A diviner Christianity under the influence of America dominates the world to-day.

The Rev. Dr. HOWARD DUFFIELD, at First Presbyterian Church.—The misconception of the American purpose (in the Philippines) is being refuted by the facts. A daily intensifying sentiment is spreading among the natives that the withdrawal of the American arms would mean a dire catastrophe. Misunderstanding is disappearing from our own side of the globe. Aguinaldo's American Aid Society will soon go out of business. These excellent but impractic ble descendants of the worthy Mrs. Partington, who, with a frantic eloquence and a perspiring assiduity, have been struggling to mop back the swelling tide of human progress, must ere long gather up their skirts and beat a shrieking retreat or be overwhelmed in the rising flood of an intelligent public sentiment.

The Rev. Dr. NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS, at Plymouth Church.—The history of the nineteenth century gives promise of being one of the most fascinating chapters in all the story of man's upward progress. It is the glory of our century that it stands for the rise and reign of the common people. Once men went to war at the command of an ambitious King. A century later war was waged for territory. Later still, war was to extend to commerce. When the era of our Revolution arrived war was against the injustice of rulers. As the tide rose higher, in 1812, war was for the liberty of the citizen. In the civil war battle was waged for the liberty of the slaves. And now an era has dawned when war is waged for freeing slaves in a foreign land. These ascending wars are milestones measuring man's progress.

Rabbi JOSEPH SILVERMAN, at Temple Emanu-El.—Our battles are not yet over. Our flag is not yet recognized where it should be. We are still fighting for the liberty of the oppressed and for the extension of a republican form of government. We are still battling in the cause of humanity in the Philippines. For shame be it said that there is a man in this country whose heart is so black that he cannot give justice to the colored man. For disgrace be it proclaimed that there is a man who opposes the immigration of the man who seeks a land of freedom and justice. The Americans, as well as the men of other nations, have yet to learn the lofty meaning of an ideal nation, free and equal.

The nation should be a great fraternity, of which all its members should feel that they are an integral part. It should be like a great family in which all take a special pride.

The Rev. Dr. HENRY A. STIMPSON, at West End Collegiate Church.—We are, indeed inaugurating a new phase of civilization, when patriotism shall be broader than any one country, when public spirit shall rise above party, when citizenship shall mean something more than regard for the selfish interests of one community, when the brotherhood of man shall be recognized in all lands. To-day England, foremost in the work of carrying European civilization to the distant parts of the earth, is able to announce through her foremost statesman that she has forever given up the policy of levying tribute on any colony or of using other lands for her own selfish aggrandizement. She is able to proclaim as a permanent policy what has come to be known as the "open door." God is calling upon us also to take up this work and to assist in building up that new federation of Christianity which will eventually make the Parliament of Man a reality.

The Rev. Dr. THOMAS R. SLICER, at the Church of the Messiah.—I believe in the sovereignty of the people in the great democracy, which is working out its salvation, and the salvation of the world. All men are not born equal. The declaration was a prophesy, not a declaration of fact. All men are not born equal. They are not equal in stature, in physical and mental power, in moral sense, in opportunity and social privileges; they are equal in no way, but the purpose of a democratic government is to give the unequal an equal opportunity, so that he that has force may force his way, and he that has wisdom may wisely discern; and the justification of democracy is that the unequal are equally served. If all religions were at stake, and there could be substituted for them in the common mind a simple love of country, and if for all religious and ethical standards that dominate the public mind there could be substituted one glowing heart of love for the land of one's birth, and the land of one's life as well, I should be content. Rather than lose that I should let all other standards go.

The Rev. Dr. CHARLES H. PARKHURST, at Madison Square Presbyterian Church.—A fine thing that you see forward of you means a great deal until you get it, but it is no more than fairly in your hands than it commences to cheapen, and pretty soon you will be sending off to the dumping ground the very jewel that not long ago you were pawning your life for. We had a rather particular instance in our own city almost within the remembrance of the youngest inhabitant in the shape of a town turned topsy-turvy in its herculean efforts to be decent. While that consummation was being reached and striven for, thousands of the town's citizens thought of little by day or by night except what a great thing it would be if they could have their town administered by others than the dregs and offal of humanity. The new Jerusalem above went out of sight under the apparition of the prospective Jerusalem that was to have its walls built and its gates set up close by. And we had three years of those walls and gates. It was not quite so good as the Celestial City, to be sure, and it was a celestial city compared with the Sodom we had before and the Gomorrah we have got now.

The Rev. DR. GEORGE ALEXANDER, University Place Presbyterian Church—Within the last year and a half the Nation has entered upon another and even more perilous experiment. Our flag waves over tropical lands. Our laws are enforced among peoples remote and semi-barbaric—utterly alien in speech and thought and modes of life. Those who criticised most severely the action of our Government are certainly right when they maintain that this is a wide departure from the principles of the founders of the Republic. They are certainly right when they say that the Nation is entering upon a pathway that is fraught with peril, but they fail to indicate where or when any Government could have intervened to check the progress of this Nation. The time is past when there is any advantage in looking backward, because there can be no going backward. The die is cast. Every intelligent American to-day has a wider horizon than he had two years ago. Every intelligent American has to-day a larger life and a larger responsibility than he had two years ago, and the question is simply how that responsibility is to be discharged, and whether in the more complex conditions which confront this Nation to-day there is virtue and patriotism and fear of God, and world-wide charity, that will make this Nation not the greedy recipient of the world's treasures, but the bountiful dispenser of those things wherewith the God of Providence and of grace has enriched our homes and our lives.

* * * * * * *

Certainly we do well, at least one day in the year, and for a little portion of that day, to devote the moments of meditation in the house of prayer to the cultivation of an intelligent and a devout patriotism—not to the cultivation of national egotism and boastfulness, but to tracing the guiding hand of God in the outgoings of our national history, and drawing inspiration for our common every-day life from that destiny to which the index finger of history seems to point. Certainly there is need for patriotic and devout meditation in the fact that God in his providence, and in the unfolding of history, is indicating that this land to which we belong, of which we are a part, is called to be not simply the recipient of God's mercies, but the chief almoner of his mercies, unto the ends of the earth.

MEMORIAL TO LEWIS MAY.

Unveiling of the Window in Temple Emanu-El Erected by the Congregation.

Temple Emanu-El, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, was crowded yesterday morning with a large congregation who witnessed the unveiling of the magnificent window erected in memory of Lewis May, who was for more than thirty years the President of the congregation. The Rev. Dr. Gotthell, the venerable rabbi of the temple, officiated at the service.

Upon the death of Mr. May two years ago the congregation felt that some lasting memorial should be devised to commemorate his name and his services, and, as the temple was the object of his deepest affection, it was thought best to make this a part of the edifice itself. Over the ark was a large arch, which contained as part of its ornamentation the two Mosaic tablets and other symbols, and this was chosen as the place for the memorial.

After the Rev. Dr. Silverman had preached the Thanksgiving sermon and appropriate prayers and patriotic songs had been rendered, Dr. Gotthell ascended the pulpit and reviewed briefly the services of Mr. May, naming as the chief causes of his success his piety, his devotion to the congregation, and his patriotism, saying that, although not a native American, no one was more thoroughly attached to his country than he. Then, turning around so as to face the window, he lifted up his hand and the cover which hid it fell. The doctor then dedicated it to the memory of "this good and faithful member of and servant of the congregation"; and then, turning again to the audience, he asked all to rise while the precentor, Mr. Sparger, recited the ancient memorial prayer for the departed. The service closed with the congregation standing and singing "America."

The window is of opalescent glass and is in the style which was followed by the architect of the temple. The central opening is nearly filled with the Tables of the Law, and about them can be seen a typical Palestine landscape with views of the Temple of Solomon and the walls of Jerusalem. The base has been pierced with twelve arches, in which are shown various symbols, including the High Priest's breastplate, the Scroll of the Scriptures, the Ark of the Covenant, the Pillars of the Porch of the Temple, and the Tower of David. The symbolism was suggested by Dr. Gotthell, and to Louis C. Tiffany is due the effective color scheme of the entire work.

THE NEWSBOYS' FEAST.

Nearly One Thousand Lads Fill the Lodging House and Enjoy Their Thanksgiving Dinner.

The purchasers of newspapers along Park Row and about the bridge entrance dealt largely with old women and girls yesterday afternoon. The boys had stepped around to 9 Duane Street to accept an invitation to dine at the Brace Memorial, better known as the Newsboys' Lodging House. The old dining room on the second floor presented a scene of genuine revelry from 7 o'clock until far into the evening. Nearly 1,000 urchins partook of a feast such as they certainly have not enjoyed since last Christmas. There were some in the blissful scene who had never seen the like of it in the whole short course of their lively careers.

For two days the lodging house kitchen had been a place of tremendous activity in preparation for the Thanksgiving banquet. A force of cooks was working at a great rate over pots and pans and kettles, from which floated out, mingled and blended, the delicious aroma of edibles fit for the gods. Among the articles were 700 pounds of turkey, nearly a hundred hams, three barrels of potatoes, three barrels of turnips, several barrels of celery, and pies by the barrel.

One hour before the time set for the beginning of the feast the guests began to arrive by twos and threes and scores. They gathered in the schoolroom on the third floor, and passed the time in singing, shouting, and speculating upon the chances of the viands "holding out." Long before the meal began this room was filled with a surging throng of youthful humanity, in which two big policemen circulated ponderously and benevolently, only striking out gently now and then as attempts were made to pin papers with various legends on their coattails or paper balls were shied at their helmets.

A committee had just been formed, with "Dummy" Emmons as Chairman, to remind Superintendent Heig that his guests were waiting in the ante-chamber, when the word was given that the banquet was spread. There were thirteen tables ranged side by side, capable of seating 200 diners. The boys were divided into relays of 200. The first battalion was allowed to march into the dining room between the two policemen and "Billy" Sheehan, once a newsboy, but now an expert "bag puncher." "Billy" acted as official doorkeeper and got plenty of mild exercise. The first diner to enter the banquet hall was "Swipes" Grannon, the fountain swimmer. On "Swipes's" back had been written in chalk, "Fill my plate up twice." The boys found their plates heaped high with turkey, hedged in by big breastworks of dressing and flanked by ham, boiled potatoes, mashed turnips, and the whole crowned by a complete mince pie of generous proportions and glorious flavor. The tables blossomed with big bunches of celery, and there was unlimited bread, butter, and tea.

The great feast was one with few preliminaries. A corps of chosen and envied newsboys acted as waiters and Superintendent Heig acted as a sort of referee, assisted by Mrs. Heig and Night School Principal William L. McKean. The lucky mortals of the first battalion fell to with a concerted sigh and gave their undivided attention to the matter in hand, urged on with much biting sarcasm by the head of the waiting line which was held back at the dining-room door. Some of the boys who had finished at one table, passing on toward the door, could not bear to leave the heaping plates of good things. These sat down at another table and ate again. Some began with pie and ended with turkey. Others had turkey first, then a pie, and rounded off with celery. One boy ate a pie and swapped off a turkey leg for another, which he stowed away between his jacket and his chest for future reference. He was caught in the crush going out and was seen to leave the building in the attitude of a man who has been shot in the chest. As soon as a diner passed laboriously and ponderously out of the banquet hall another was allowed to enter and the revelry went on.

There were no speeches made. It was just a grand free-for-all affair. No boy was turned away. After the diners were filled to repletion they could go up into the gymnasium, where they were permitted to remain until midnight, indulging in any kind of games they liked. Many of the boys preferred to go and sit down somewhere and rest.

The dinner is given every year, the expenses being met by a fund left for the purpose by the late Mrs. W. W. Astor.

ATHLETES IN THE GARDEN

World Record Equaled in Sixty-Yard Handicap Sprint.

ORTON WINS TEN-MILE RUN

Victory Carries with It the A. A. U. Championship—Other Knickerbocker A. C. Events.

The Knickerbocker Athletic Club held a very successful carnival of athletic sports and games yesterday afternoon and evening at the Madison Square Garden. The attendance was not all that the management could have desired, but the conflict of the opening hour with the Thanksgiving dinner time undoubtedly kept many at home.

The heavy condition of the hand-made track made record breaking an impossibility. Nevertheless, in one instance a world record was equaled and twice dead heats were run.

The chief interest of the afternoon centred on the ten-mile run for the A. A. U. championship. The winner was George W. Orton, ex-intercollegiate champion, and who won a few years ago many distance events for the University of Pennsylvania. The second man was "Dick" Grant, an old champion of Harvard, who had run on many former occasions with Orton. The lead was assumed immediately by Orton, and never lost throughout the race. For the first two or three miles R. W. Kennedy, Star Athletic Club, was second, but afterward he dropped back to fourth place, in which he finished. Before the race was half over Theodore G. McGirr, a previous winner of the event, and on whom the New York Athletic Club had built its hopes, was running in the third place, and maintained it to the end. There was a little sprinting in the fifth mile, but it didn't change the positions of the leaders.

At the end of the five miles the stop-watches registered 28 minutes 51 1-5 seconds. The positions held by the first four at the beginning of the sixth mile were not changed again during the race. Charles Maher of Stamford, Conn., was fifth throughout the latter half until the ninth mile, when Charles L. Brady of the Xavier Athletic Association superseded him. In the last two miles Grant made a gritty spurt, but Orton kept him on the outside, and finished easily several rods ahead of him. A brilliant spurt by Orton in the last mile left McGirr about a lap behind the winner at the finish. Orton's time was 57 minutes and 28 seconds.

In the finals of the sixty-yard handicap run W. S. Edwards (13 feet) and A. F. Duffy, Georgetown University, (scratch,) tied for first place. The time was 6 2-5 seconds, and is said to equal the world's record for that distance. John C. Doyle of the Brooklyn Athletic Club (16 feet) finished third. In running off the tie Edwards won in his original record time. Duffy was only a foot behind, however, and practically ran in the same time.

Another very close race was the finish of the 440-yard run, handicap. Henry Arnold, U. S. A. C., (28 yards,) won by a nose from George Meckel, U. S. A. C., (35 yards.) They were so close together that the judges disagreed at first, and finally gave the decision to Arnold because his head was slightly forward of Meckel's.

Summaries.

Ten-Mile Run.—Won by George W. Orton, Toronto Lacrosse and A. A.; time, 57:28; "Dick" Grant, Cambridge Golf and A. A., second; Theodore G. McGirr, N. Y. A. C., third; R. W. Kennedy, Star A. C., fourth; Charles L. Brady, Xavier A. A., fifth; Charles Maher, Stamford, Conn., N. E., sixth.

60-Yard Run, Novice, Scratch.—Won by W. Delgado, New York; time, 0:07; Adolph Weygandt, Jr., U. S. A. C., second; D. C. Haring, Pearl River A. A., third.

440-Yard Run, for Schoolboys, Scratch.—Won by Frank A. Breslin, St. Bartholomew A. C.; time, 1:00 3-5; H. E. Taylor, Battin H. S., second; Irving I. Lewine, Morris H. S., third.

880-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by Henry Arnold, U. S. A. C., (28 yards;) time, 0:53; George Meckel, U. S. A. C., (35 yards,) second; F. J. Falk, W. S. Y. M. C. A., (32 yards,) third.

One-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by A. Mackenzie, Shamrock Harriers, (100 yards;) time, 4:40 3-5; W. H. Christie, Fourth Regiment A. A., (85 yards,) second; D. J. Donovan, N. A. A., (50 yards,) third.

Running High Jump, Handicap.—Won by S. S. Jones, N. Y. U., (2½ inches;) actual jump, 6 feet; W. L. Drummond, C. A. C., (6 inches,) second; actual jump, 5 feet 8 inches. J. Krakower, Alliance A. C., (8 inches,) third; actual jump, 5 feet 6 inches.

Throwing 56-Pound Weight for Height; scratch; (Irish style, over a bar.)—Won by Dennis O'Connell, N. Y. S. A. C.; height, 12 feet 6 inches. John McCarthy, Pastime A. C., second; Richard J. Sheridan, P. A. C., third.

Putting 16-Pound Shot, Handicap.—Won by Dr. Robert P. Froehlich, (10 feet;) actual distance, 35 feet 2½ inches. L. E. Feuerbach, W. S. Y. M. C. A., (7 feet,) second; actual distance, 36 feet 1¼ inches. Richard J. Sheridan, P. A. C., (6½ feet,) third; actual distance, 36 feet 9⅜ inches.

The afternoon's programme closed with a football game between St. Alphonsus and the Crescent Wheelmen eleven. Neither side scored in the first half, and in the last half St. Alphonsus obtained 6 on a touchdown and a goal, while the Crescents were unable to score.

The attendance at the evening's games was very much larger than in the afternoon. In the opening game between the Pastime Athletic Club and the New West Side Athletic Club the former won by 16 to 0. In the second half Leo Smith, the New West Side centre, sustained a fractured nose. The second game was played by the Thistle Athletic Club and the Union Settlement Athletic Club according to the association rules. Neither side scored in the two fifteen-minute halves which were played.

By far the funniest and most exciting event of the evening was the exhibition of Gaelic football given by the William Barry Association of Jersey City and the C. J. Kickham Team of New York. The boisterous, rough-and-tumble plays, with the frequent friendly scrimmages in the side and the frequency with which the ball landed in the boxes, kept the large audience on their feet, cheering and laughing most of the time. No points were made till the second half, when the Kickhams made one and thereby won the game.

The closing game was a short one between the Knickerbocker Athletic Club and Rutgers College. In the first half Ludlow, the Knickerbocker right back, got through the line, under the protection of good interference, and made a touch-down. Beers kicked the goal. Steen, the Knickerbocker full back, bucked the line for a second touch-down; Beers failed to kick the goal. In the second half neither scored, although the Knickerbockers were fined five yards for off-side play three times. The final score was 11 to 0 in favor of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club.

IRISH ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

Members and Friends of the Society Celebrate Thanksgiving.

The members and friends of the Greater New York Irish Athletic Association celebrated Thanksgiving at Celtic Park, Laurel Hill, Long Island City, with a carnival of sports. It was anticipated that Lord Mayor Tallon of Dublin and John E. Redmond, M. P., would be present; but Mr. Redmond only appeared, early in the afternoon, the Lord Mayor sending word that he was not well.

The first attraction on the programme was a game of Rugby football between an eleven from the Pastime Athletic Club and an eleven of the Fifth Artillery, stationed at Fort Hamilton. The soldier boys were outplayed by the Pastime team, being defeated easily by a score of 15 to 0 in two fifteen-minute halves. Pastime made 2 touch-downs and a goal from touch-down and forced the soldiers to make two safety touch-downs.

Following the Rugby game came the old Irish game of hurling. This contest caused great enthusiasm among the spectators. There were fifteen players on each side, the two teams being the Young Irelands and the Meaghers, each armed with a heavy hurly, which was brandished with impunity, and a small rubber ball passed back and forth over the field very skilfully. The indiscriminate swinging to and fro of the heavy hurly was dodged wonderfully by the players, and the only accidents resulting from the game were bruised limbs. The Meaghers won by the score of 2 goals to the Young Ireland's 1 goal and 1 point.

The same teams then arrayed themselves for a short game of Gaelic football, which furnished constant amusement. In this game both sides managed to score 3 points, making a tie game.

After the games were concluded the President of the club, Dr. D. N. McAuliffe, invited the guests of the club to partake of a Thanksgiving dinner spread in an improvised restaurant under the grand stand. Among the guests at this dinner were Sheriff Dunn of New York, P. J. Conway, and Patrick Finn, and ex-Mayor Gleason of Long Island City.

AMERICANS MEET IN BERLIN.

The Thanksgiving Day Celebration Largely Attended.

BERLIN, Nov. 30.—The celebration of Thanksgiving Day at the Kaiserhof this evening was one of the largest and most successful in the history of the American colony in Berlin. Nearly 300 persons were present, most of them being young men and women students.

John B. Jackson, Secretary of the United States Embassy, presided, and among those present were United States Consul General Mason, Senator Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm of Cleveland, Dr. and Mrs. Norton Downs of Philadelphia, Prof. Carhart of Ann Arbor, Dr. Hammond of Cornell, and Prof. Stevens of Yale.

Prof. Stevens made the only speech, dwelling upon the debt Americans owe to German science, as testified by the number of American students in Berlin. He raised a cheer by adding that, while recognizing her debt to Germany, America would not forget the ties binding her to England. "We are England's loyal daughter," he said, "despite the fact that she has not always treated us as a mother should a child, although later she made ample reparation."

In the course of the banquet, and upon the suggestion of Mr. Jackson, a dispatch was sent to President McKinley, assuring him of the "loyalty and sympathy of the exiles." A similar dispatch was sent to Ambassador White at Alassio, Italy. After dinner there was dancing.

The American Church bazaar netted 5,000 marks.

The Day Celebrated in Rome.

ROME, Nov. 30.—Thanksgiving Day was celebrated by the American colony in Rome with the usual enthusiasm. There was a lavish display of Stars and Stripes at the Embassy, the Consulate, and the residences of Americans throughout the city. King Humbert, received Ambassador Draper in private audience.

Orphan Newsboys Dine.

Ninety homeless orphan newsboys sat down to a bountiful Th

FINANCIAL DIRECTORY.

Chemical National Bank
270 Broadway.

National Bank of Commerce
CAP. AND SUR. $8,500,000.
31 Nassau St.

Hanover National Bank
Capital $1,000,000. Surplus and profits, $2,500,000
9 and 11 Nassau St.

The Nassau Bank
Corner Beekman and Nassau Streets.

Central National Bank
320 Broadway.

Colonial Trust Company
CAPITAL & SURPLUS, $1,500,000.
ST. PAUL B'LD'G.
222 B'way.

Continental Trust Company
30 Broad St.

Washington Trust Company
Stewart Building, 280 Broadway.
PHILADELPHIA.

Fourth Street National Bank
Capital, $1,500,000. Surplus, $1,500,000.

BANKERS' CARDS.

Holmes & Co.,
EMPIRE BUILDING,
71 Broadway, New York.
Members { N. Y. Stock Exchange. N. Y. Cotton Exchange. Chicago Board of Trade.
Branch Office:
Lakewood Hotel, Lakewood, N.J.

Redmond, Kerr & Co.
BANKERS,
41 WALL ST., N. Y.
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
Transact a general banking business. Receive deposits subject to draft. Dividends and interest collected and remitted. Act as Fiscal Agent for and negotiate and issue loans of railroads, street railways, gas companies, etc. Securities bought and sold on commission.
DEAL IN High-Grade Investment Securities.
Lists of current offerings sent on application.
PHILADELPHIA CORRESPONDENTS,
GRAHAM, KERR & CO.

The Corn Exchange Bank,
William and Beaver Sts., New York.
WILLIAM A. NASH, President.
Capital and Surplus . . $3,000,000.00
Deposits 20,000,000.00
BRANCHES:
Broadway Branch, Broadway & Spring St. Hudson River Bank, 23d St & Columbus Ave.
Astor Place Bank, Astor Place. Queens County Bank, Borough of Queens.

HENRY CLEWS & CO.,
BANKERS.
11, 13, 15, & 17 Broad St.
MEMBERS N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE.
Orders executed for investment or on margin. Interest allowed on deposits subject to check at sight. Railroads reorganized and trade combinations effected. Act as Financial Agents for Corporations and Investors.
U. S. Bonds, all issues, bought and sold.
Branch Offices: 202 FIFTH AV., cor. 25th St. 487 BROADWAY, Silk Ex'ge Bldg 56 WORTH ST. & 89 Thomas St. 87 HUDSON ST., Mercantile Ex. 16 COURT ST., Brooklyn.
New York Telephone, 4914 Cortlandt. Brooklyn Telephone, 391 Brooklyn.

Geo. H. PRENTISS & Co
DEALERS IN
LOCAL SECURITIES,
37 William St., New York. 298 Montague St., Brooklyn.
MEMBERS OF N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE.
36 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK.

Fisk & Robinson
BANKERS
Investment Securities
HARVEY EDWARD FISK,
GEORGE H. ROBINSON.
Member New York Stock Exchange.

Sutro Bros. & Co.,
BANKERS,
Members New York and Philadelphia Stock Exchanges.
56 Broadway, N. Y. 121 S. 5th St., Phila.
Investment Securities
PRIVATE WIRE CONNECTION TO Phila., Baltimore, Washington, Atlantic City.

HAVEN & STOUT
Bankers and Brokers.
1 Nassau Street, Cor. Wall St.
Members of N. Y. Stock Exchange, N. Y. Cotton Exchange, N. Y. Produce Exchange, Chicago Board of Trade.
Branch Offices:
369 Broadway, cor. Duane St., New York.
64 Broadway, cor. Berry St., Brooklyn.

SIMON BORG & CO.,
BANKERS,
No. 20 Nassau St., New York,
INVESTMENT SECURITIES.

A. J. DE KANTSTEIN & CO.
Members Consolidated Stock Exchange,
30 West 23d St.
STOCKS and BONDS bought and sold for cash and carried on margin.
SPECIAL LADIES' DEPARTMENT.
DAILY MARKET LETTER ON APPLICATION.
CORRESPONDENCE INVITED.

FINANCIAL.

The Trust Co. of America,
149 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Capital and Surplus, $3,000,000.
ASHBEL P. FITCH.....President.
WILLIAM H. LEUPP, Vice-President. WILLIAM BARROUR, Vice-President.
RAYMOND CHATRY, Secretary. HENRY S. MANNING, Secretary.
ALBERT L. BANISTER, Treasurer. LAWRENCE O. MURRAY, Trust Officer.

N. Y. SECURITY & TRUST CO.
46 WALL STREET, NEW YORK.
Capital and Surplus . . . $3,000,000
CHARLES S. FAIRCHILD, President.
Wm. L. Strong, 1st V.P.; Abram M. Hyatt, 2d V.P.; Osborn W. Bright, Sec.; Zeiah Van Loan, Asst. Sec.

Produce Exchange Trust Co.,
STANDARD OIL BLDG., 26 B'WAY, N. Y. CITY.
Capital $2,500,000
Surplus & Undivided Profits..$2,630,334
TUNIS G. BLEECKER, President.
EDWIN GOULD
THOMAS A. McINTYRE, } Vice Presidents.
S. D. SCUDDER,
S. L. CHAMBERLAINE, Sec'y and Treas.
WILLIAM M. LAWS, Asst. Sec'y and Treas.

WANTED—
New Orleans City R. R. Common Stock.
WILLIAM J. WOLLMAN,
20 BROAD STREET.
Telephone Cortlandt 927.

GENTLEMAN NOW INFLUENCING LARGE private wire business, desires to make a new connection with established Stock Exchange firm of unimpeachable character, with ample capital, or would meet desirable parties to form a new firm. Address J. H. C., Clarendon Hotel, City.

"OUTSIDE" SECURITIES
DEALT IN.
DAVID PFFEIFER 18 Wall St.

GENTLEMAN RETURNING TO ENGLAND soon, and with good connections on other side, is open to negotiate the sales of American patents in Great Britain. Address PATENTS, 135 Tribune Building, New York, N. Y.

FINANCIAL.

REDEMPTION
OF
General First Mortgage Bonds
OF THE
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY,
TRUSTEE'S (FINAL) CALL NO. 25,
Maturing January 1, 1900.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Eight Hundred and Ninety-eight (898) of the General First Mortgage $5,000 REGISTERED BONDS of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, or a total par value of $4,490,000, were this day drawn for the Sinking Fund in accordance with the requirements of Articles 11 and 12 of the Trust Mortgage, numbered as follows, viz.:

$5,000 REGISTERED BONDS.

1034	1628	1883	3778	4541	5324	6875
1035	1629	1884	3779	4542	5325	6876
1036	1630	2024	3798	4543	5368	6877
1037	1631	2100	3804	4544	5369	6878
1143	1632	2136	3805	4545	5371	6906
1219	1633	2137	3806	4546	5373	6907
1220	1634	2138	3809	4547	5375	6908
1223	1718	2139	3826	4548	5374	6915
1252	1724	2140	3827	4549	5375	6933
1253	1744	2141	3828	4551	5376	6934
1301	1745	2143	3829	4552	5377	6936
1344	1746	2240	3830	4553	5378	6937
1345	1747	2241	3831	4554	5379	6935
1346	1748	2242	3832	4555	5380	6939
1347	1749	2243	3837	4556	5382	6948
1355	1750	2244	3838	4557	5383	6951
1409	1751	2303	3876	4558	5384	6981
1485	1752	2322	3882	4559	5385	6982
1486	1753	2324	3906	4560	5386	6991
1487	1754	2495	4067	4561	5387	6992
1488	1755	2535	4067	4562	5388	6998
1489	1756	2536	4085	4563	5390	6999
1490	1757	2859	4090	4564	5391	7163
1491	1758	2860	4091	4565	5406	7164
1492	1759	2872	4107	4566	5407	7165
1493	1760	2873	4112	4567	5416	7166
1494	1761	2874	4113	4568	5417	8609
1495	1762	2875	4114	4569	5448	8618
1496	1763	2876	4115	4570	5449	8619
1497	1764	2877	4116	4571	5450	8724
1498	1765	2878	4117	4572	5464	8725
1499	1766	2879	4118	4573	5468	8726
1500	1767	2880	4119	4574	5505	8965
1501	1768	2881	4120	4615	5513	9915
1502	1769	2882	4121	4617	5518	9923
1503	1770	2883	4122	4631	5519	9924
1504	1771	2884	4123	4632	5534	9925
1505	1772	2885	4124	4633	5538	12327
1506	1773	2886	4125	4634	5539	12329
1507	1774	2887	4126	4647	5540	12334
1508	1775	2888	4127	4719	5541	12335
1509	1776	2889	4128	4720	5542	12365
1510	1777	2890	4129	4728	5583	12394
1511	1778	2891	4130	4805	5614	12407
1512	1779	2892	4131	4806	5615	12408
1513	1780	2893	4132	4807	5638	12409
1514	1781	2895	4133	4808	5631	12410
1515	1782	2896	4134	4809	5670	12411
1516	1783	2897	4135	4810	5671	12412
1517	1784	2898	4136	4811	5687	12413
1518	1785	2899	4137	4812	5688	12414
1519	1786	2900	4138	4813	5689	12415
1520	1787	2901	4139	4814	5747	12416
1521	1788	2902	4140	4815	5749	12417
1522	1789	2903	4141	4816	5761	12418
1523	1790	2904	4142	4817	5762	12419
1524	1791	2905	4143	4818	5907	12423
1525	1792	2906	4144	4819	6204	12424
1526	1793	2907	4145	4820	6213	18083
1527	1794	2908	4146	4821	6218	18084
1528	1795	2909	4147	4822	6280	18080
1530	1796	2910	4148	4823	6281	18081
1531	1797	2911	4149	4824	6282	18082
1532	1798	2912	4150	4875	6292	18095
1535	1799	2913	4151	4905	6315	18096
1563	1800	2914	4152	4927	6316	18069
1564	1801	2915	4153	4928	6408	18174
1565	1802	2916	4154	4935	6441	18208
1566	1803	2917	4155	4938	6465	20463
1567	1819	2918	4156	4939	6466	20464
1568	1820	2919	4157	4940	6470	20495
1569	1825	2920	4158	4941	6472	20496
1570	1826	2921	4159	4955	6474	20502
1571	1827	2922	4160	4964	6479	20503
1572	1828	2923	4161	4965	6574	20509
1573	1829	2924	4162	4990	6575	20510
1574	1830	2925	4163	4991	6576	20517
1575	1831	2926	4164	4992	6577	20518
1576	1832	2927	4165	4993	6620	20519
1577	1833	2928	4166	4994	6621	20520
1578	1834	2929	4218	4995	6626	20521
1579	1835	2930	4219	4996	6627	20532
1580	1836	2931	4240	4997	6628	20534
1581	1837	2933	4260	4998	6629	20535
1582	1838	3000	4261	4999	6668	20536
1583	1839	3001	4322	5010	6669	20537
1584	1840	3002	4436	5029	6678	20538
1585	1841	3003	4442	5030	6707	20539
1586	1842	3004	4443	5031	6708	20540
1587	1843	3005	4446	5033	6710	20541
1588	1844	3006	4447	5033	6711	20683
1589	1845	3038	4448	5034	6712	20684
1590	1846	3046	4449	5035	6713	20859
1591	1847	3059	4450	5036	6723	20870
1592	1848	3060	4451	5037	6724	20871
1593	1849	3098	4452	5048	6725	20872
1594	1850	3099	4453	5049	6759	20873
1595	1851	3100	4454	5050	6774	20874
1596	1852	3106	4455	5051	6775	20881
1597	1853	3107	4456	5074	6781	20882
1598	1854	3108	4457	5078	6782	20883
1599	1853	3109	4458	5114	6783	20884
1600	1856	3110	4459	5127	6784	20900
1601	1857	3111	4460	5150	6799	20901
1602	1858	3112	4461	5151	6800	20902
1603	1859	3113	4462	5152	6802	20903
1604	1860	3114	4463	5153	6803	20904
1605	1861	3115	4464	5154	6804	20905
1606	1862	3116	4465	5190	6805	20906
1607	1863	3117	4487	5242	6806	20907
1609	1864	3306	4521	5250	6809	20908
1610	1865	3392	4522	5251	6810	20909
1611	1866	3397	4525	5252	6816	20914
1612	1867	3398	4526	5253	6817	20915
1613	1868	3500	4527	5297	6825	20917
1614	1869	3575	4528	5298	6826	20918
1615	1870	3579	4529	5299	6827	20919
1616	1871	3590	4530	5300	6834	20936
1617	1872	3591	4531	5301	6835	20937
1618	1873	3595	4532	5302	6836	20939
1619	1874	3616	4533	5303	6840	20941
1620	1875	3617	4534	5304	6841	20942
1621	1876	3680	4535	5305	6842	20943
1622	1877	3681	4536	5306	6843	20944
1623	1879	3685	4537	5312	6844	20945
1624	1879	3735	4538	5313	6845	20946
1625	1880	3776	4539	5320	6871	20947
1626	1881	3777	4540	5321	6872	20948
1627	1882

All the outstanding bonds (both coupon and registered) issued under said mortgage have now been called for redemption.

The bonds above designated will be paid at 110 and accrued interest on presentation at the office of the CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, No. 54 Wall Street, New York, and should be assigned to "CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, TRUSTEE, FOR REDEMPTION."

The interest on the above bonds will cease on and after January 1, 1900.

Any holder of any of the bonds above designated, upon presentation and surrender thereof, may receive payment at any time prior to January 1, 1900, at the rate of 110 and interest accrued to date of presentation.

CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK,
TRUSTEE.
By G. SHERMAN,
Vice President.
New York, November 13, 1899.

We, the undersigned, hereby certify that the 898 Registered Bonds were designated by lot in our presence as above stated.

FRED C. RANDALL,
With Central Trust Company of New York.
A. H. KENT,
Of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company.
FRANK B. SMIDT,
Notary Public, New York County.

Milwaukee & Lake Winnebago Railroad Company.

To holders of Bonds of this Company, on its Manitowoc Division, secured by Mortgage, dated July 1st, 1895, and Supplemental Mortgage, dated December 5th, 1895:

Please take notice that this Company intends to redeem on the next interest date, to wit, April 1st, 1900, all Bonds issued under its First Mortgage, dated July 1st, 1895, and Supplemental Mortgage, dated December 5th, 1895, to John A. Stewart, Edwin H. Abbot, and Rowland G. Hasard, as Trustees, by payment to the holder thereof, in gold coined money of the United States of the present standard of weight and fineness, of one hundred and ten (110) per centum of the face value thereof, together with all interest then accrued and unpaid. The Bonds may be presented for payment and redemption to Messrs. Maitland, Coppell & Co., No. 24 Exchange Place, New York City, on April 1st, 1900. This notice is given in accordance with the terms and conditions of the said Mortgages; and the principal of the said Bonds becomes due on said April 1st, 1900, and all coupons maturing thereafter become void.

Milwaukee & Lake Winnebago Railroad Company
By JOHN CROSBY BROWN, President.
New York, October 1st, 1899.

Referring to the foregoing notice, we are now prepared to buy the above Bonds on behalf of the Wisconsin Central Railway Company at one hundred and ten per cent. (110%) and accrued interest to date of presentation.

MAITLAND, COPPELL & CO.,
24 Exchange Place.
New York, October 1st, 1899.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.,
NO. 59 WALL ST.,
ISSUE COMMERCIAL AND TRAVELERS' CREDITS, AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

POWERFUL SYNDICATE IN LONDON, NOW represented in New York, is open to deal with American gold or other mining propositions in Great Britain. Principal soon going to London. Address "FINANCE," 135 Tribune Building, New York, N. Y.

FINANCIAL.

COTTON

Press of entire country advise that many stop orders were caught. Wednesday New York market broke 16 points, New Orleans 20 points, and Liverpool still lower. Largest houses all over country have called for more margins. Stop orders without number will be reached to-day. News of more far-reaching importance soon to be made public will more than verify my prediction of 100 point break.

TRUTHSEEKER,
Box 358 Times, Up Town.

FINAL NOTICE
To the Holders of Preferred Stock
OF THE Pittsburgh & Western Railway Co.

Over eighty-seven per cent. of the preferred stock of this company has been deposited with the committee under the terms of the Protective Agreement.

The holders of undeposited shares are hereby notified that in order to avail themselves of the benefits of such agreement their stock must be duly assigned to the committee and deposited under such agreement with the KNICKERBOCKER TRUST COMPANY, New York, on or before DECEMBER 1ST, 1899.

The committee reserve the right to reject the tender of any stock made after such date, or to require the payment of such penalty as they may fix.

October 21st, 1899.

A. FOSTER HIGGINS,
J. HARSEN RHOADES,
C. W. BAKER,
Committee.
HENRY CRAWFORD, Counsel. WM. B. RANDALL, Secretary.
66 Broadway.

SYNDICATE CONTROLLING SOME THIRTY first-class advertising media in Great Britain is ready to take up British agency of food proprietary articles, medicines, &c. Address "PRESS," 135 Tribune Building, New York, N. Y.

DIVIDENDS.

The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co.
16, 18, 20 & 22 William Street,
New York.

COUPONS AND DIVIDENDS DUE IN DECEMBER ARE PAYABLE AT THIS OFFICE ON AND AFTER DECEMBER 1, 1899, AS FOLLOWS:

Albion Gas Light Co.
Alliance Water Co.
Boise City & Nampa Irrigation, Land & Lumber Co.
Chattanooga Water Works Co., Cons'd Mtge.
Columbia Gas Light Co.
Commonwealth Water Co. of New Jersey.
Connellsville Water Co.
Celadon Terra Cotta Co., Limited.
Elwood Water Co., Ind.
Fairmount Coal & Coke Co.
Huntington Water Co.
Johnstown City Water Bonds.
Kearney City Water Co.
Merrill City Water Works Co.
Midland Terminal Co.
Mobile & Ohio R. R. Co. 1st Mtge. 6 per cent.
Muncie Water Co.
Napanee Water Works Co.
New Philadelphia Water Co.
New Castle Water Co., City of People's Street R'y Co., Scranton, 5 per cent. Gen'l Mtge.
Sharon Railway Co.
Sheldon Axle Co.
Scranton, City of Wichita Water Co. Cons'd Mtge.
DECEMBER 16, 1899.
St. Joseph Water Company.

OFFICE OF THE
Northern Pacific Railway Company
MILLS BUILDING.
New York, October 11, 1899.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this day there was declared from the net earnings a dividend of ONE PER CENT. on the Preferred Stock of this Company for the quarter ending December 1, 1899, the same to be paid December 5, 1899, to the holders of record of the Preferred Stock at the closing of the transfer books on November 10, 1899.

For the purpose of such dividend the transfer books of this company will be closed at 3 P. M. on November 10, 1899, and will be reopened at 10 A. M. on November 24, 1899.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
By GEORGE H. EARL, Secretary.
25 Wall Street.
New York, October 11, 1899.

The transfer books of the Voting Trustees for Preferred Stock Trust Certificates of the NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY will close in New York and Berlin at 3 P. M. on November 10, 1899, and will reopen at 10 A. M. on November 24, 1899.

On December 5, 1899, the Voting Trustees will be prepared to distribute the above dividend of One Per Cent. when received by them among the parties entitled thereto as same appear of record on their books when closed as above.

J. P. MORGAN & CO., New York.
DEUTSCHE BANK, Berlin,
Agents for Voting Trustees.

THE FOLLOWING COUPONS ARE DUE AND PAYABLE AT THE OFFICE OF Farson, Leach & Company,
35 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK.
DECEMBER 1, 1899.

Albuquerque, New Mexico, School.
Alexandria, Indiana, School.
Bluffton, Indiana, Original Waterworks.
Cleburne, Texas, School.
Connersville, Indiana, Electric Light.
Kirkwood, Illinois, Water.
Montpelier, Indiana, Funding.
Multomah County, Oregon, School District No. 31.
Northfield, Vermont, Electric Light & Power.
South Bend, Indiana, Improvement.
Spring Valley, Illinois, School.
Wallington, New Jersey, Street Improvement.
DECEMBER 15, 1899.
South Bend, Indiana, Improvement,
Tipton, Indiana, School.
DECEMBER 21, 1899.
West Indianapolis, Indiana, Funding.

KNICKERBOCKER TRUST CO.
Coupons payable at our office,
66 Broadway, December 1, 1899:
Beech Creek R. R. Equipment Trust,
Berkeley Oval 6s,
Berkeley Oval Swimming Bath & Gymnasium 1st 5s,
Goodwin Car Co.,
Judge Co. Purchase Money 4s,
National Pyrogranit Co. 6s,
Washington Central Railway Co. 1st 4s.

Columbus, O., November 24, 1899.

A dividend of One and One-half Per Cent. has this day been declared on the Preferred Stock of the Company, payable January 10, 1900, to stockholders of record at the close of business December 4, 1899.

The Preferred Stock transfer books will close at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York, at 3 P. M. on Monday, December 4, 1899, and will reopen at the same place at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, December 13, 1899.

THE HOCKING VALLEY RAILWAY CO.,
By N. MONSARRAT, President.

International Paper Company,
30 BROAD STREET, NEW YORK, N. Y.
November 22d, 1899.

The Board of Directors has this day declared the regular quarterly dividend of ONE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. (1½%) from net earnings on the Preferred Capital Stock, payable January 2nd, 1900, to Preferred Stockholders of record of December 15th, 1899. Checks will be mailed.

Transfer Books of the Preferred Stock will close at 3 P. M. on the 15th day of December, 1899, and reopen January 2d, 1900.

E. W. HYDE, Secretary.

Republic Iron and Steel Co.
November 27, 1899.

A dividend of ONE AND THREE-QUARTERS PER CENT. upon the preferred stock of this company has been declared, payable on and after January 1, 1900, to stockholders of record at the close of business on December 15, 1899.

The transfer books will close on December 15, 1899, at three o'clock P. M., and reopen on January 2, 1900, at 10 o'clock A. M.

S. J. LLEWELLYN, Secretary.

Office of the Consolidated Gas Co. of Baltimore City,
Baltimore, November 11th, 1899.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company, held this day, a Dividend of Two Per Cent. on the Capital Stock was declared, payable on December 1st, 1899, to the Stockholders of record at the close of business November 15th, 1899.

JOSEPH W. CLARKE, Treasurer.

Tennessee Coal, Iron and R. R. Co.,
No. 80 Broadway, New York, Nov. 25, 1899.

The Coupons due Dec. 1, 1899, on the bonds of the Cahaba Coal Mining Company, will be paid at maturity, at the Hanover Nat. Bank, New York City.

J. BOWRON, Treas.

DIVIDENDS.

Winslow, Lanier & Co., 17 Nassau St., N.Y. City.
THE INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS ON THE FOLLOWING BONDS AND STOCKS ARE PAYABLE AT OUR BANKING HOUSE ON AND AFTER DECEMBER 1ST, 1899:

American Cotton Oil Co. Dividend 4 p. c. Common Stock, Dividend 3 p. c. Preferred Stock.
Blackford County, Ind., Court House 5s.
Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne Ry. Co. First Mortgage 7s.
Cleveland and Pittsburgh R. R. Co. Dividend 1¾ p. c.
Decatur County, Ind., Annual 5s.
Dunkirk, Ind., Street Improvement 6s.
Evansville, Ind., School Refunding 5s.
Grant County, Ind., Gravel Road 6s.
Marion County, Ind., County 5s.
Pueblo, Col., Mortgage 6s.
Pendleton, Ind., School 6s.
Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne and Chicago Ry. Co. First Mortgage 7s, Series F; Second Mortgage 7s, Series M.
West La Fayette, Ind., Water Works Co. 6s.
December 4th.
Greenfield, Ind., Improvement Bonds.
December 7th.
Greenfield, Ind., City 6s, Series No. 2.
December 11th.
Hancock County, Ind., Funding 5s.
Marion County, Ind., Refunding 4s.
December 19th.
Greenfield, Ind., Improvement Bonds.
December 30th.
Indianapolis, Ind., Refunding 4s, Series C.

United States Mortgage and Trust Company
59 CEDAR STREET, NEW YORK.

Coupons due December 1, 1899, on the following bonds will be payable at the office of this Company on and after that date:

U. S. Mortgage and Trust Co., Series E.. 4s
Washington Traction and Electric Company, 1st..... 4½s
New York and Hoboken Ferry Co., Gen'l. 5s
Long Island Railroad Co., General..... 4s
Long Island Railroad Co., Debenture.... 5s
Long Island Railroad Co., Stewart Line. 4s
Brooklyn and Montauk, 2d..... 5s
Ohio State University..... 4½s
Garfield Water Company, 1st..... 6s
Spring Lake, N. J..... 5s
Township of Franklin, N. J., Improvem't 5s
Monroe, La., Improvement..... 5s
Norfolk, Conn., Sewer..... 4s
Territory of Arizona, Capitol Building.. 5s
Everett, Washington, Funding..... 6s
Sullivan, Ind., Water..... 5s
Nyack, New York, Water..... 4s
Potomac Electric Power Co..... 5s
American Market Co., 1st..... 6s
Snohomish County, Washington, S. D., No. 1, Funding..... 6s
Ballard, Washington, Funding..... 6s
Clarke County, Washington, Funding.... 6s
Pierce County, Washington, S. D., No. 32.
Pierce County, Washington, Funding 6s, Series 4 and 5.
Skamania County, Washington, Funding 6s
City Gas Company of Norfolk, Va..... 6s
Prescott, Arizona..... 5s
City of Minneapolis, Minn.:
Perm. Imp..... 4s
Library..... 4½s
DUE DECEMBER 15TH, 1899.
Perm. Imp. Revolv. Fund..... 4s
Library..... 4s
DUE DECEMBER 20TH, 1899.
Perm. Imp..... 4s

THE FOLLOWING COUPONS ARE DUE AND PAYABLE AT THE BANKING HOUSE OF
N. W. HARRIS & COMPANY,
DECEMBER 1ST, 1899.

Boone, Ia., Water Works.
Clarke Co., Wash., Funding; Refunding.
Clinton, Ia., Independent School District School Funding.
Creston, Ia., Refunding.
Decatur, Ill., Board of Education School Building.
Dubuque, Ia., Water Co., 1st Mortgage Gold.
Galveston, Tex.
Guthrie Centre, Ia., Water Works.
Jefferson, Ia., Water Works.
Jessamine Co., Ky., Turnpike.
Lexington, Ky., Refunding.
Norfolk, Va., Atlantic City Ward Improvement.
North Yakima, Wash., Funding.
North Yakima, Wash., School District No. 7.
Ogden, Utah, School.
Onawa, Ia., Electric Light.
Park Rapids, Minn., Water Works.
Remington, Ind., Water Works.
Rockford, Ill., Edison Co., First Mortgage Gold.
Wilmette, Ill., Fire Engine Street Lighting School Refunding.
DECEMBER 2D, 1899.
Groton, So. Dak., Water Works.
DECEMBER 6TH, 1899.
White Co., Ind., Court House.
DECEMBER 10TH, 1899.
Ft. Dodge, Ia., Independent District Refunding.
DECEMBER 15TH, 1899.
King Co., Wash., School District No. 99 (So. Seattle.)
DECEMBER 17TH, 1899.
Pierce Co., Wash., School District No. 3.
DECEMBER 22D, 1899.
What Cheer, Ia., Independent School District Refunding.
DECEMBER 31ST, 1899.
Nappanee, Ind., Water Works.

New York Security and Trust Company,
NO. 46 WALL STREET, NEW YORK.
COUPONS PAYABLE DEC. 1ST, 1899.
Atlanta Gas Light Co.,
City of Dallas, Texas,
Columbia Southern R'y Co. 1st Mtge. 5's,
Flushing & College Point Elec. Ry. Co.,
Newton R'way Co.,
Oregon R. R. Nav. Co. 4's Bonds,
Venice & Carondelet R'way Co.

The United States Leather Company,
26-28 Ferry St., New York, November 28th, 1899.

A Dividend of $1.50 Per Share on its preferred stock has this day been declared by the Board of Directors of this Company, payable January 2d, 1900.

The transfer books of preferred stock will close December 15th at 3 P. M. and reopen January 3d, 1900.

JAMES R. PLUM, Treasurer.

Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Ry. Co.,
Grand Central Station, N. Y.,
November 23d, 1899.

The coupons maturing December 1st, 1899, upon the bonds of this Company will be paid on and after that date at the Lincoln National Bank, New York.

C. F. COX,
Treasurer.

THE MEXICAN NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY.
New York Office,
27 William St., Nov. 10, 1899.

The Board of Directors has declared a quarterly Dividend (No. 32) of One Per Cent., payable Dec. 2, 1899, to stockholders of record, at noon on Nov. 18.

C. J. NOURSE, Jr., Secretary.

The Bank of New Amsterdam,
BROADWAY AND 39TH STREET,
New York, Nov. 28th, 1899.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this day, a dividend of 5% was declared payable on January 2d, 1900, to the stockholders of record on December 20th, 1899.

G. J. BAUMANN, Cashier.

Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Co.
Coupons maturing December 1st, 1899, from bonds of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company will be paid on and after that date upon presentation at the office of the Central Trust Company, 54 Wall Street, New York.

F. H. DAVIS, Treasurer.

Washington Traction & Electric Co.
The coupons of the First Mortgage 4½% Gold bonds of the Washington Traction & Electric Company, due December 1, 1899, will be paid on and after that date at the office of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, 59 Cedar Street, New York.

THE FIRST MORTGAGE COUPONS OF THE SECOND AVENUE TRACTION COMPANY, PITTSBURGH, due December 1st, 1899, will be paid at the banking houses of Brown Brothers & Co., New York, and Alexander Brown & Sons, Baltimore.

ROSS W. DRUM, Asst. Treas.

Kewaunee, Green Bay & Western R. R.
Coupons due December 1, 1899, will be paid at the office of the Company, 40 Wall Street, New York City.

MARK T. COX, Treasurer.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

Notice of Meeting of the Stockholders of the Exchange Place Real Estate Company.

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the stockholders of The Exchange Place Real Estate Company has been called and will be held at the office of the company, No. 44 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, State of New York, on the 6th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, for the purpose of voting upon a proposition that the said corporation be forthwith dissolved.

By order of the Board of Trustees.

S. L. PARRISH, Secretary.

THE PEOPLE'S BANK of the City of New York,
393 and 395 Canal St.
November 27th, 1899.

ELECTION.—The annual election for Directors of this Bank and Inspectors of Election will be held at the banking house, Nos. 393 and 395 Canal St., on Tuesday, December 12th, 1899, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M. By order of the Board of Directors.

WILLIAM MILNE, Cashier.

NOTICE.—THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE stockholders of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company for the election of thirteen Directors and three Inspectors of Election for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before them; will be held at the general office of the company, at Rondout, N. Y., on Tuesday, Dec. 5th, 1899, at 1:00 o'clock P. M.

H. C. SOOP,
Secretary.
Dated Nov. 18th, 1899.

LOST AND FOUND.

LOST.—Ctf. No. A20306 for 50 shares Union Pacific Rd. Co. Pfd. stock in the name of Mary Bowditch Forbes. A new certificate will be issued in lieu of such lost or stolen certificate unless on or before the 1st day of Jan., 1900, cause be shown why such new certificate should not issue. Miss MARY BOWDITCH FORBES, care J. Murray Forbes, Sears Building, Boston.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FIRM of SPIRO & KLEIN, composed of CHARLES SPIRO, SOL KLEIN, and JULIUS KOHN, has this day been dissolved by mutual consent.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Security market values as current quotations present them enable Wall Street to view with a sense of satisfaction the

LAKEWOOD GOLF TOURNEY

W. J. Travis Captures Medal for Best Performance of the Day.

HAD NOTABLE ANTAGONISTS

Present and ex-Champion of the United States Among Them — To-day's Play.

Lakewood extended its most welcome hand to its invading army of golfers yesterday, and notwithstanding the frowning battlements of Jasper Lynch's new castle-like house, which is one of the new things of Lakewood this season, the men who find enjoyment and pleasure on the links were royally received. From early morning until late at night the scene around the comfortable Lakewood Golf Club House was one of animation and enthusiasm. Nearly every one in the village drove, wheeled, or walked out to the club to see the sport and have some of the "cracks" pointed out to them. The latter were there in full force and no tournament given by this popular club was ever opened under better auspices.

Memories of last year's Thanksgiving blizzard, when the golfers finished in nearly twelve inches of snow, were recounted by many a well-seasoned player. Jasper Lynch, the Secretary of the club, was congratulated upon the better terms made this year with the powers that rule the elements.

"It's all right now, isn't it?" he replied. "Well, I presume the reason is because now we play on Sundays, while last year we kept away from the links on that day."

Whatever the cause, the weather was all that could be wished. The air was delightfully mild and there was scarcely any wind to bother the golfers. The qualifying round, at eighteen holes for two sets of sixfeen, was the only match of the day, but with nearly eighty players sent off from the first tee, there was no room for any other round. Walter Travis, whose golfing fame is too well known to need introduction, and who has kept the championship of his Oakland Club ever since it was started, led the field, and his low score of 82 strokes gave him the gold medal for the best performance of the day. It was a well-earned honor, for in his wake was a long line of able men, including two champions of the United States, H. M. Harriman, the present holder, and Findlay S. Douglas, who held the cup last year. These two men played together and a large gallery followed them from start to finish. Harriman proved a disappointment, for his card reached the figures of 94, and with the class of golfers in the tournament that was only good enough for the consolation set. Douglas did 86, playing his usually steady game, but he took third place in the list, for Charles S. Ransom, the champion of the Albany Country Club, came in with a beautiful 85.

There were eleven scores under 10, the young element being represented by Amos M. Dwight of Yale, who gained fame last Spring by defeating Douglas on the Crescent Athletic links. R. C. Watson, Jr., of Westbrook, and who has also defeated the former champion, and I. T. Borden, Jr., a former Harvard golfer. Ninety-one strokes was the last to qualify for the first sixteen and the chief trophy. Among the last to get in were James A. Tyng of Morris County and C. M. Hamilton, the new champion of Baltusrol.

Harriman had some good company in the consolation class. At the top of the bunch was young G. Owen Winston, the New York interscholastic champion; Clarence Moore, scratch man at the Cherry Chase Club, Washington, D. C.; J. G. Thorp, one of Boston's experts; Marion J. Wright and H. M. Forrest of Philadelphia, and Grenville Kane of Tuxedo. Richard Peters of Newport made his first appearance this year in a local tournament, and F. H. Bohlen, fresh from his championship victory of Philadelphia, was there, but his second nine holes were a lamentable disappointment and he fell outside the ranks. Among the seventy-one cards turned in were golfers from Milwaukee, Chicago, Boston, Little Rock, Hot Springs, Va., Buffalo, and Pittsburg.

The sixteen to qualify for the chief trophy were:

	Out.	In.	Total.
Walter J. Travis, Oakland—
Out	5	4	9
In	5	5	10
C. S. Ransom, Albany—
Out	5	5	10
In	5	5	10
Findlay S. Douglas, Fairfield—
Out	6	5	11
In	5	5	10
F. W. Menzies, St. Andrew's—
Out	4	3	7
In	5	6	11
John Morehead, Jr., Pittsburg—
Out	6	5	11
In	6	5	11
F. P. Kimball, Lakewood—
Out	5	4	9
In	7	6	13
R. C. Watson, Jr., Westbrook—
Out	4	6	10
In	5	6	11
A. E. Redstrom, Buffalo—
Out	4	6	10
In	7	6	13
A. F. Dwight, Yale—
Out	6	4	10
In	5	6	11
J. Burden, Jr., Newport—
Out	5	5	10
In	5	7	12
Ardue M. Robbins, St. Andrew's—
Out	4	6	10
In	5	6	11
James A. Tyng, Morris County—
Out	4	6	10
In	5	6	11
L. T. Pratt, Nassau Country Club—
Out	5	4	9
In	6	6	12
J. Gordon Douglas, Oakland—
Out	5	5	10
In	5	6	11
C. M. Hamilton, Baltusrol—
Out	5	6	11
In	5	7	12
Poal A. Proal, Ardsley—
Out	5	5	10
In	5	6	11

The second sixteen who will play for the Consolation Cup are:

	Out.	In.	Total.
Owen Winston, Westchester	46	46	92
Sidney Maddock, Crescent	47	45	92
Howard A. Colly, Essex County	45	48	93
Clarence Moore, Chevy Chase	46	47	93
H. M. Harriman, Meadow Brook	48	46	94
J. G. Thorp, Oakley	50	44	94
L. T. Boyd, Milwaukee	45	49	94
Marion J. Wright, Philadelphia	45	49	94
Lyman Rhoades, Jr., Columbia	45	49	94
W. E. Fisher, Little Rock	49	46	95
Grenville Kane, Tuxedo	45	50	95
W. H. Davis, Buffalo	47	48	95
Jasper Lynch, Lakewood	48	47	95
Walter R. Kirk, Onwentsia	49	46	95
Harry Suydam, Lakewood	47	49	96
H. M. Forrest, Philadelphia	51	46	97
A. D. Compton, Westchester	45	49	97
James Converse, Ocean County	50	47	97
Robert Pifer, Lenox	46	51	97

The last four men tie for the sixteenth place and three will drop out after the play-off this morning. The others were:

	Out.	In.	Total.
A. W. Black, Lakewood	51	47	98
R. B. Kerr, Lakewood	49	49	98
C. B. Kirk, Onwentsia	51	47	98
L. S. Kerr, Fairfield	52	46	98
G. E. Armstrong, Staten Island	51	47	98
Richard Peters, Newport	49	49	98
W. B. Dowd, Lakewood	51	48	99
A. T. Southerland, Lakewood	52	48	100
F. H. Bohlen, Philadelphia	46	55	101
A. P. Clapp, Marine and Field	53	48	101
George Cabot, Brookline C. C.	53	49	102
Bruce Price, Tuxedo	55	47	102
D. B. Ferris, Lakewood	53	49	102
J. W. Biddle, Philadelphia	49	54	103
R. L. Redfield Westchester	56	47	103
S. Frotheringham, Rockaway	55	48	103
R. W. Houghton, Milwaukee	51	52	103
Daniel Bacon, Ardsley	56	47	103
Andrew Graves, Garden City	50	53	103
A. Biddle, Philadelphia	51	55	106
J. R. Maxwell, Nassau	51	55	106
G. W. Stackly, Lakewood	53	56	109
F. C. Jennings, Garden City	54	55	109
Ernest Lochman, Lakewood	53	57	110
R. H. Syms, Ardsley	56	55	111
L. C. Deming, Baltusrol	57	55	112
R. S. Minot, Essex County	58	55	113
F. Sherry, Hot Springs	56	57	116
Dr. Parker Syms, Ardsley	58	59	117
Wilford Buckley, Lakewood	61	61	122
T. M. P. Mills, Fairfield	61	61	122
R. H. Gallatin, Ardsley	60	63	123
Sheldon Hopkins, Lakewood	55	68	123
John J. Morse, Lakewood	61	63	124
R. H. Hooper, Brookline C. C.	65	62	127

Two match-play rounds in each event will be played to-day.

On the Wee Burn Links.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Nov. 30.—On the links of the Wee Burn Golf Club to-day competitions were played for special prizes. There was a large field of entries. There were three classes, prizes being awarded in each. The results were:

Class A—C. H. Seely, 92, 5—87; Fred Hecker, 101, 8—93; Belden B. Brown, 103, 10—93; A. S. Pitt, 105, 10—95; A. L. White, 110, 12—98; George Hecker, 106, 9—105; George Jenkins, 115, 8—107.

Class B—Harvey L. Williams, 100, 18—82; H. F. Devens, 104, 15—89; H. H. Wilson, 110, 20—90; Schuyler Merritt, 115, 20—95; E. L. Scofield, 116, 20—96; F. T. Towne, 121, 22—99; M. R. Pitt, 120, 18—102; J. L. Williams, Jr., 131, 20—111.

Class C—D. T. Woodbury, 122, 36—86; H. H. Seely, 114, 27—87; W. N. Capen, 126, 36—90; F. D. Street, 128, 30—98; A. H. Smith, 131, 36—95; A. L. Brown, 134, 36—98; J. H. Hurlbutt, 129, 30—99; George A. Weber, 137, 36—101; F. D. Dasham, 135, 30—105; Mr. Charles, 147, 36—111.

STATEN ISLAND GOLF TEAMS.

Eight Compete in a Hotel Contest on the Harbor Hill Links.

An interesting competition, designed to bring out all the varying elements of golf, was begun yesterday by the members of the Harbor Hill Golf Club at Staten Island. It was a club team match play contest, and eight teams started. Each was composed of six members, one of whom was a woman, thus affording a chance to all to win golf glory and prizes. The teams were paired off two by two, and the victory fell to teams 1, 4, 6, and 7. These will meet in that order in the semi-final round to-morrow. All the games were well contested, as the summary of the results shows:

Team 1.	Holes.	Team 2.	Holes.
J. E. C. Leavitt	2	C. W. Sparks	0
W. S. O'Connor	3	Max Carrere	0
S. G. Jansen	0	Robert McKee	2
H. Van Vechten	0	George Dix	3
L. Jessup	0	C. H. Hewitt	2
Miss Worth	3	Miss H. S. Whittemore	0
Total	8	Total	7
Team 4.		Team 3.
Paul B. Cooke	3	C. G. Wemple	0
H. Hasbrock	3	W. B. Peblah	0
C. H. White	1	R. T. P. Flake, Jr.	0
A. L. Morgan	0	T. G. L. Leaman	1
H. V. Messiter	3	Edward Flack, Jr.	0
Mrs. Ogden Fowler	0	Miss Wemple	3
Total	10	Total	4
Team 6.		Team 5.
Vincent Hockmeyer	0	A. B. Lawson	1
C. C. Goldsborough	3	F. W. Corse	0
A. E. Whitman	2	C. C. Baldwin	0
A. W. Rechau	3	S. L. Palmer	0
William Lambert	0	C. C. Evans	1
Miss Bennett	3	Miss M. Johnson	0
Total	11	Total	2
Team 7.		Team 8.
P. R. King	0	Otto Hockmeyer	1
J. T. Emmons	1	E. J. Darwell	0
J. C. Contral	0	C. R. Coffin	1
W. B. Gunton	3	J. R. Kingsley	0
S. B. Royal	0	C. Carrere	0
Miss S. Coffin	1	Mrs. W. S. O'Connor	0
Total	5	Total	2

Three Golf Games at Ardsley.

Women, as well as men, played in the Thanksgiving Day contests yesterday on the Ardsley links, near Dobbs Ferry. The women took part with the men in a mixed foursome match for two silver prizes, and the winners were Miss Hyde and B. H. Allen, in a net score of 97 strokes. Handicaps for Class A and Class B members were also played. M. M. Shaffer won the former and W. B. Anderton took the latter. The scores in these events were:

	Gross.	Hd'cp.	Net.
Miss Hyde and B. H. Allen	107	10	97
Miss May Barron and F. F. Chrysthe	106	5	101
Mrs. D. Cochrane and C. W. Clarke	108	3	105
Miss Eunice Terry and M. S. Paton	105	0	105
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Eldridge	110	4	106
Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Van Beuren	112	3	109
Miss L. Hewitt and W. Chrystie	124	10	114
Miss Lounsbury and J. M. McCullogh	132	11	121

CLASS A, HANDICAP.

M. M. Shaffer, Jr.	91	8	83
H. S. Brooks	94	6	88
A. E. Barron	98	10	88
Dr. R. C. Myles	90	6	84

CLASS B.

W. B. Anderson	100	24	76
W. C. Clarke	97	20	77

BAYSIDE'S GOLF HANDICAP.

BAYSIDE, L. I., Nov. 30.—The members of the Oakland Golf Club held a holiday handicap on the links to-day. The handsome silver trophy offered by the Handicap Committee was won by W. G. Barnwell, whose gross score was an even 100. This score was excelled by that of Dr. W. S. Brown, who made the rounds in 54 and 44, respectively, and returned the next best net card. Twenty-four started and fifteen returned cards. Summary:

	Gross.	Hdc'p.	Net.
W. G. Barnwell	100	18	82
Dr. W. S. Brown	98	12	86
L. H. Frankle	112	27	85
G. Coggill	117	25	92
T. Lawrence	112	18	94
H. M. Popham	112	18	94
R. H. E. Elliot	114	18	96
A. H. Mosle	121	25	96
D. Stevens	123	25	98
H. L. Bogert	124	25	99
H. R. Peck	122	18	104
C. Colgate	116	12	104
R. M. Littlejohn	119	12	107

McKeever Wins at Dyker Meadow.

A special handicap for a Thanksgiving Day Cup was played yesterday by the members of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club near Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn. H. G. McKeever won the prize in a net score of 86 strokes, while Daniel Chauncey made the lowest gross score, 95 strokes. The chief scores were:

	Gross.	H'cap.	Net.
H. G. McKeever	96	10	86
Lloyd Saltus	103	14	89
Daniel Chauncey	95	5	90
Burnham Clark	98	8	90
J. E. Smiley	113	22	91
L. Daniels	106	14	92
G. H. Barnes	114	20	94
W. A. Taylor	109	15	94
William Beard	115	20	95

A putting and approaching contest was won by A. E. Whitney in a score of 9 for three trials. J. C. Powers and I. Daniels tied for second place at 10 strokes each.

FEDERAL COURTS.

Calendar for Friday, Dec. 1.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—Lacombe, J.—Opens in Room 124 Post Office Building at 11 A. M. Motion calendar. Adjourned cases.

1—Lieber Pub. Co. vs. Int. Cable Co.
2—Cook & Bermheimer Co. vs. Clarmont Co.
3—Fayerweather vs. United Dressed Beef Co.
4—Franklin Nat. Bank vs. James.
5—Welsbach Light Co. vs. Am. Incandescent Lamp Co.
6—Wyckoff, Seamans & Benedict vs. Wagner Typewriter Co.
6½—New Brunswick Rubber Co. vs. atobbe. Cases noticed.
7—Brill vs. 3d Av. R. R.
8—Chappell vs. Fidelity and Dep. Co. of Maryland.
9—Babcock Co. vs. Levine.
10—L. E. Waterman Co. vs. Vassar College.
11—Gilmour vs. James D. Gilmour Co.
12—Collinsplatt vs. Finlayson.
13—Welsbach Light Co. vs. Daylight Incandescent Gas Lamp Co.
14—Same vs. Rex Incandescent Light Co.
15—Same vs. New York Chemical Refining Co.
16—Same vs. Union Incandescent Light Co.
17—Janies vs. Jasper Town and Land Co.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—Eastern District of New York—Admiralty Calendar—Thomas, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. in Post Office Building, Brooklyn.

12—Crooks vs. City of Macon, Ocean Steamship Company of Savannah.
38—Matter of German-Am. Title Co.
39—Rabinowitz vs. Altman.
40—Waxman vs. same.
41—Boronow vs. same.
42—Murphy vs. Toelberg
43—Slattery vs. Greater New York Newspaper Delivery Co.
44—Philbrick vs. Naarden.
45—Matter of Jewell.
46—Matter of Brown.
47—Caldwell vs. Caldwell.
48—Matter of Higgins.
49—Matter of Bloomingdale.
50—Greenfield vs. Greenfield.
51—Matter of Sanders.
52—Ott vs. Scully.
53—Owens vs. same.
54—Reilly vs. same.
55—Corbett vs. same.
56—McMahon vs. same.
57—McCormack vs. same.
58—Scarry vs. same.
59—Connell vs. same.
60—Crossman vs. Bradley & Hubbard Co.
61—Verbeer vs. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co.
62—Oppenheimer vs. Spaulding.
63—Kernochan vs. Livingston.
64—Winston vs. Leeson.
65—Brady vs. Macbeth.
66—Jeffries vs. Huber.
67—Mut. Life Ins. Co. vs. Hicks.
68—O'Brien vs. Coler.
69—Crossell vs. Carleton
70—Piaget vs. Headley.
71—Stone vs. Kendall.
72—Matter of Tomasi.
73—Goldbowitz vs. Gerstein.
74—Greenberg vs. same.
75—Boese vs. Price.
76—Reid vs. Reid.
77—Hanson vs. Mayor, &c.
78—Dineen vs. 3d Av. R. R.

STATE COURTS.

New York Calendars—This Day.

SUPREME COURT—Appellate Division—Recess.

SUPREME COURT—Appellate Term—For the hearing of appeals from City Court and Municipal Courts. Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part I.—Truax, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Litigated motions.

1—Levy vs. Dunn.
2—Reiger vs. Dunn.
3—Stine vs. Greene.
4—Spiele vs. Spiele.
5—Ernst-Marx-Nathan Co. vs. Lutjens.
6—Monheimer vs. Abrahams.
7—Jenness vs. Meyer.
8—Langdon vs. Johnson.
9—Leonard vs. Am. Bond and Trust Co.
10—Kragel vs. Kragel.
11—New York Breweries Co. vs. Reilly.
12—Frothingham vs. Satterlee.
13—Stuart vs. De Faria.
14—Greenberg vs. Murray.
15—Legniti vs. North German Lloyd.
16—Talcott vs. Wabash R. R.
17—Shaw vs. Ecclesine.
18—Am. Mortgage Co. vs. Farrell.
19—Same vs. Beyers.
20—Wiedeman vs. Everard.
21—Terry vs. Bourn.
22—Guaranty Trust Co. vs. Birdseye.
23—Oldham vs. New York, Susquehanna and Western R. R.
24—Matter of McClelland.
25—Davies vs. Davies.
26—Baylis vs. Bullock Elec. Mfg. Co.
27—Hayes vs. Kerr.
28—Mayor, &c., vs. East Bay Land and Imp. Co.
29—Matter of Scribner.
30—Tobler vs. Met. St. Ry.
31—Keller vs. Runapal.
32—Kennelly vs. Kennelly.
33—Stahl vs. Seidenberg.
34—Eden vs. Glover.
35—Burgess vs. House.
36—Wiegand vs. Douglass.
37—Spafford vs. Toelberg.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part II.—Bookstaver, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Ex-parte business.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Parts III., V., VII., and VIII.—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part IV.—Werner, J.—Opens at 10 A. M. Case on—2506—Logan vs. Moore. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part VI.—Giegerich, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Case on—3803—Haight vs. Haight. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part I.—Criminal Term.)—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Extraordinary Trial Term—Held in Trial Term, Part VIII. Room.—Werner, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M.

1—Edward Powell.
2—Herman Schrader.
3—John Patrick Burns.
4—Joseph Henerty.
5—Joseph E. Simmons.
6—Thomas J. Reilly.
7—Josey M. Moritz.
8—William Blunt.
9—Same.
10—James Greer.
11—James Kelly.
12—Thomas O'Connor.
13—Robert McKenzie.
14—Daniel Lathorn.
15—William H. Lyons.
16—Alan Powers.
17—Miles T. Connolly.
18—William Pieper.
19—Charles Brown.
20—Charles Robinson.
21—Theodore S. Kip.
22—William H. Fox.
23—William Doyle.
24—James Greer.
25—James Kelly.
26—Thomas O'Connor.
27—Robert McKenzie.
28—Henry A. Hathorn.
29—William H. Lyons.
30—Alan Powers.
31—Miles F. Connolly.
32—William Pieper.
33—Charles Brown.
34—Chester McKenzie.
35—Theodore S. Kip.
36—William H. Fox.
37—William Doyle.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part II.—McAdam, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Cases will be sent from this calendar to Trial Term, Part XII., for trial. Calendar clear. Preferred cases.

8193—Tarrant & Co. vs. Randall.
11456—Thomas vs. Nat. Life, Assn. of Hartford.
9497—Halpert vs. Halpert.
9391—Haydel vs. Village of Tarrytown.
8944—Washburn vs. Dunn.
9076—Pfenninger vs. Met. St. Ry. Co.
9827—Cassell vs. Lester.
9942—Bowers vs. Herzog
9943—Same vs. Bach.
9944—Same vs. Male.
10105—Bloomingdale vs. Swigert.
8561—Lees vs. Ansfield.
9361—Graham vs. Casselberry.
10108—Cambria vs. 3d Av. R. R. Co.
10169—Mortorell vs. McManus.
9991—Goldorf vs. Electric Vehicle Co.
9963—Smith vs. Bauer.
10016—Olpherts vs. Ryan
9031—Bellows vs. Taylor
6918—Demuth vs. Selig.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Parts III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., IX., and XI.—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part X.—Dugro, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part XII.—Stover, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Cases to be sent from day calendar for trial. Case on.

SURROGATE'S COURT—Chambers—Varnum, S.—Motion calendar called at 10:30 A. M.

1—Edward Remenyl.
2—John Swinburne.
3—William Appleby.
4—Thomas J. Havemeyer.
5—William T. Daphyn.
6—Austin Hall.
7—Elizabeth Russell.
8—Robert Bonner.
9—James D. Butman.
10—John Hodgett.
11—Julia Boulin.
12—Mina Simon.
13—Bernard Walther.
14—Peter Cain.
15—Katharina Goebel.
16—David Seaman.
17—Katharina Goebel.
18—Denis Ryan.
19—Annie C. Bettner.
20—John C. F. Lehenbauer.
21—Robert K. Catlin.
22—Philip Knobloch.
23—George Blenlein.
24—William Henry Roach.

Wills for probate at 10:30 A. M.
Henri Ponjol, Babetta Guad, John J. McCreery, Bridget Scanlon, Anna Hashagen, Martha Johnston.

SURROGATE'S COURT—Trial Term—Held in Surrogate's Court, Trial Term, Ground Floor, in County Court House—Fitzgerald, S.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. No day calendar.

CITY COURT—General Term—Adjourned sine die.

CITY COURT—Special Term—Conlan, J.—Opens at 10 A. M. Held in Brownstone Building, (Chambers Street.) Motions must be made returnable at 10:30 A. M. Defaults on motions will be taken at 11 A. M.

CITY COURT—Trial Term—Parts I., II., III., and IV.—Adjourned for the term.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Parts I. and III.—Adjourned for the term.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Part II.—Adjourned until Monday, Dec. 4.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Part IV.—McMahon, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Assistant District Attorneys Le Barbier, Herrman, and McCann for the People.

1—Otto Koch.

Brooklyn Court Calendars.

SUPREME COURT—Appellate Division—Second Judicial Department—Goodrich, P. J.; Cullen, Bartlett, Hatch, and Woodward, JJ. Municipal Court day calendar.

98—Hadley vs. Maloney.
100—Greene vs. Geiger.
75—Dietch vs. Ford.
54—Campbell vs. Porter.
56—Nickson vs. Harley.
58—Bunney vs. Abramson.
61—Northridge vs. Astarita.
62—Cowan vs. New York Caledonian Club.
84—Moissen vs. Rooney.
84—Luban vs. Simonds.
115—Owens vs. Nassau R. R.
117—Corbett vs. Cleason.
121—Meyer vs. Stevens.
126—Jordan vs. Jacob.
128—Jacob vs. Omel.
131—Newbury vs. Babcock.
139—Quinn vs. Quinn.
140—Rosenberg vs. 3d Av. R. R.
141—Creighton vs. Lambert.

Bookstaver, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Ex-parte business.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Parts III., V., VII., and VIII.—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part IV.—Werner, J.—Opens at 10 A. M. Case on—2506—Logan vs. Moore. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Special Term—Part VI.—Giegerich, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Case on—3803—Haight vs. Haight. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part I.—Criminal Term.)—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Extraordinary Trial Term—Held in Trial Term, Part VIII. Room.—Werner, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M.

1—Edward Powell.
2—Herman Schrader.
3—John Patrick Burns.
4—Joseph Henerty.
5—Joseph E. Simmons.
6—Thomas J. Reilly.
7—Josey M. Moritz.
8—William Blunt.
9—Same.
10—James Greer.
11—James Kelly.
12—Thomas O'Connor.
13—Robert McKenzie.
14—Daniel Lathorn.
15—William H. Lyons.
16—Alan Powers.
17—Miles T. Connolly.
18—William Pieper.
19—Charles Brown.
20—Charles Robinson.
21—Theodore S. Kip.
22—William H. Fox.
23—William Doyle.
24—James Greer.
25—James Kelly.
26—Thomas O'Connor.
27—Robert McKenzie.
28—Henry A. Hathorn.
29—William H. Lyons.
30—Alan Powers.
31—Miles F. Connolly.
32—William Pieper.
33—Charles Brown.
34—Chester McKenzie.
35—Theodore S. Kip.
36—William H. Fox.
37—William Doyle.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part II.—McAdam, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Cases will be sent from this calendar to Trial Term, Part XII., for trial. Calendar clear. Preferred cases.

8193—Tarrant & Co. vs. Randall.
11456—Thomas vs. Nat. Life, Assn. of Hartford.
9497—Halpert vs. Halpert.
9391—Haydel vs. Village of Tarrytown.
8944—Washburn vs. Dunn.
9076—Pfenninger vs. Met. St. Ry. Co.
9827—Cassell vs. Lester.
9942—Bowers vs. Herzog
9943—Same vs. Bach.
9944—Same vs. Male.
10105—Bloomingdale vs. Swigert.
8561—Lees vs. Ansfield.
9361—Graham vs. Casselberry.
10108—Cambria vs. 3d Av. R. R. Co.
10169—Mortorell vs. McManus.
9991—Goldorf vs. Electric Vehicle Co.
9963—Smith vs. Bauer.
10016—Olpherts vs. Ryan
9031—Bellows vs. Taylor
6918—Demuth vs. Selig.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Parts III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., IX., and XI.—Adjourned for the term.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part X.—Dugro, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. No day calendar.

SUPREME COURT—Trial Term—Part XII.—Stover, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Cases to be sent from day calendar for trial. Case on.

SURROGATE'S COURT—Chambers—Varnum, S.—Motion calendar called at 10:30 A. M.

1—Edward Remenyl.
2—John Swinburne.
3—William Appleby.
4—Thomas J. Havemeyer.
5—William T. Daphyn.
6—Austin Hall.
7—Elizabeth Russell.
8—Robert Bonner.
9—James D. Butman.
10—John Hodgett.
11—Julia Boulin.
12—Mina Simon.
13—Bernard Walther.
14—Peter Cain.
15—Katharina Goebel.
16—David Seaman.
17—Katharina Goebel.
18—Denis Ryan.
19—Annie C. Bettner.
20—John C. F. Lehenbauer.
21—Robert K. Catlin.
22—Philip Knobloch.
23—George Blenlein.
24—William Henry Roach.

Wills for probate at 10:30 A. M.
Henri Ponjol, Babetta Guad, John J. McCreery, Bridget Scanlon, Anna Hashagen, Martha Johnston.

SURROGATE'S COURT—Trial Term—Held in Surrogate's Court, Trial Term, Ground Floor, in County Court House—Fitzgerald, S.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. No day calendar.

CITY COURT—General Term—Adjourned sine die.

CITY COURT—Special Term—Conlan, J.—Opens at 10 A. M. Held in Brownstone Building, (Chambers Street.) Motions must be made returnable at 10:30 A. M. Defaults on motions will be taken at 11 A. M.

CITY COURT—Trial Term—Parts I., II., III., and IV.—Adjourned for the term.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Parts I. and III.—Adjourned for the term.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Part II.—Adjourned until Monday, Dec. 4.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Part IV.—McMahon, J.—Opens at 10:30 A. M. Assistant District Attorneys Le Barbier, Herrman, and McCann for the People.

1—Otto Koch.

Brooklyn Court Calendars.

SUPREME COURT—Appellate Division—Second Judicial Department—Goodrich, P. J.; Cullen, Bartlett, Hatch, and Woodward, JJ. Municipal Court day calendar.

98—Hadley vs. Maloney.
100—Greene vs. Geiger.
75—Dietch vs. Ford.
54—Campbell vs. Porter.
56—Nickson vs. Harley.
58—Bunney vs. Abramson.
61—Northridge vs. Astarita.
62—Cowan vs. New York Caledonian Club.
84—Moissen vs. Rooney.
84—Luban vs. Simonds.
115—Owens vs. Nassau R. R.
117—Corbett vs. Cleason.
121—Meyer vs. Stevens.
126—Jordan vs. Jacob.
128—Jacob vs. Omel.
131—Newbury vs. Babcock.
139—Quinn vs. Quinn.
140—Rosenberg vs. 3d Av. R. R.
141—Creighton vs. Lambert.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The following sales at auction are down for to-day at 111 Broadway:

By Herbert A. Sherman, foreclosure sale, Charles G. F. Wahle, referee, 57 and 59 Ann Street, north side, 144 feet west of William Street, 28 by 122.11 and irregular, four and five story brick factory buildings. Due on judgment, $50,751.

By Richard V. Harnett & Co., foreclosure sale, Maurice Leyne, referee, 179 Madison Street, south side, 265.5 feet east of Pike Street, 24.6 by 100, five-story brick tenement. Due on judgment, $26,157.

By Richard V. Harnett & Co., foreclosure sale, Peter B. Olney, referee, 346 and 348 East One Hundred and Twelfth Street, south side, 125 feet west of First Avenue, 50 by 100.11, three-story frame tenement on 346; four-story brick tenement on 348. Due on judgment, $8,111.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Wilber McBride, referee, 575 Mott Avenue, west side, 50 feet south of One Hundred and [illegible] Street, 25 by 98, four-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $12,388.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, William L. Turner, referee, 183 West Eighty-eighth Street, north side, 100 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue, 16.8 by 100.9½, three-story stone front dwelling. Due on judgment, $15,787.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Frank M. Holahan, referee, 58 West One Hundred and Fourth Street, south side, 227.4 feet east of Columbus Avenue, 33.4 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $40,643.

By McVickar & Co., foreclosure sale, John Jeroloman, referee, Forest Avenue, west side, 150 feet north of the road from Westchester to West Farms, four lots, each 25 by 100. Due on judgment, $1,836; subject to other mortgages for $9,200.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Samuel J. Benson, referee, Lafayette Street, south side, 150 feet west of Prospect Avenue, runs south 50 by southwest 79.8 to the middle line of One Hundred and Seventieth Street by northwest 21 by northeast 71.1 by northwest 64.8 to the middle line of Lafayette Street by east 20 by south 25 to beginning, vacant. Due on judgment, $3,694.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

GEO. R. READ. W. J. VAN PELT.

Geo. R. Read,

REAL ESTATE.

751 5TH AVE. at 58th St.
1 Madison Avenue, cor. 23d St.
HEAD OFFICE 60 CEDAR ST.

A.—BARGAINS; APARTMENT HOUSES, FULLY rented, taken under foreclosure; good investments.

Henry St.	$20,000	West 100th St.	$40,000
East 97th St.	14,000	West 137th St.	22,500
Park Av., above 80th, 3 Houses.	90,000	3d Av., n. 104th St.	32,000

Firm of L. J. CARPENTER, 41 Liberty St.

39 West 81st Street

facing Manhattan Square. Elegant 25 ft. four-story house, box stoop, 19 rooms, perfect order; immediate occupancy; beautifully decorated; modern improvements, open daily for inspection; sale or lease; fair price; easy terms.

IF YOU WISH TO BUY

the right house, at the right place, and at the right price, call and see my three-family houses, corner Valentine Avenue and 180th Street, Tremont, N. B. LEVIN, owner and builder.

WINTER RESORTS.

VIRGINIA HOT SPRINGS, ON CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RY. A DISTINCTIVE HEALTH RESORT, combining a perfect Fall climate, an elevation of 2,500 feet, picturesque mountain surroundings, and HOTEL OF THE HIGHEST CLASS.

The fine course of the Virginia Hot Springs Golf Club adjoins the hotel. Through compartment car from New York. Excursion tickets at C. & O. offices, 362 and 1,354 Broadway, and offices Pennsylvania R. R., New York; also offices N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., throughout New England.

FRED STERRY, Manager, Hot Springs, Bath Co., Va.

INSTRUCTION.

THE CARNEGIE HALL GYMNASIUM. (Formerly Berkeley.) 154 West 57th Street. Now open. Office Hours, 11-12:30; 2:30-4.

Apply Now. BURNZ'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL; for free evening class; begins December 4. 39 East 8th St., west of Broadway.

160 WE

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—JOSEPHINE B. MEEKS, plaintiff, against CHARLES D. FOLSOM et al., defendants.

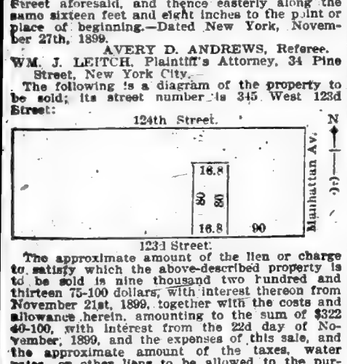
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 22d day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on Tuesday, the 19th day of December, 1899, at twelve o'clock noon on that day, by Richard V. Harnett & Co., auctioneers, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, in Section 7, Block 1,950, on the land map of the City of New York, known by the street number 345 West 123d Street, New York City, and more particularly bounded and described as follows, viz.: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of 123d Street, distant ninety feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the northerly side of 123d Street with the westerly side of Manhattan Avenue; running thence northerly and parallel with Manhattan Avenue eighty feet; thence westerly and parallel with 123d Street sixteen feet and eight inches; thence southerly, again parallel with Manhattan Avenue, and partly through a party wall, eighty feet to the northerly side of 123d Street aforesaid, and thence easterly along the same sixteen feet and eight inches to the point or place of beginning.—Dated New York, November 27th, 1899.

AVERY D. ANDREWS, Referee.

WM. J. LEITCH, Plaintiff's Attorney, 34 Pine Street, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 345 West 123d Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is nine thousand two hundred and thirteen 75-100 dollars, with interest thereon from November 21st, 1899, together with the costs and allowance herein, amounting to the sum of $322 60-100, with interest from the 22d day of November, 1899, and the expenses of this sale, and the approximate amount of the taxes, water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $364 and interest.—Dated New York, November 27th, 1899.

AVERY D. ANDREWS, Referee.

n28-2aw5wTu&F&d19

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—CHARLES J. COULTER, plaintiff, against THOMAS C. LISK and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date 14th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesrooms, now located at No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on Tuesday, the 12th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by D. Phoenix Ingraham, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

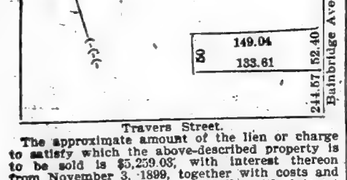
All those two certain lots of land in the Twenty-fourth Ward of the City of New York, with the building thereon, designated by the lot numbers 16 and 17 on a map entitled "Map of eighty-seven choice lots, situated at Bedford Park, Twenty-fourth Ward, New York City," October, 1889, George C. Hollerith, civil engineer and city surveyor, and filed in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York, which said two lots are bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the northwesterly side of Bainbridge Avenue distant 244 feet and 57-100 of a foot northeasterly from the intersection of the northeasterly side of Travers Street and the northwesterly side of Bainbridge Avenue, running thence northwesterly at right angles to Briggs Avenue 133 feet and 61-100 of a foot; thence northeasterly parallel with Briggs Avenue 50 feet; thence southeasterly at right angles to Briggs Avenue 149 feet and 61-100 of a foot to the northwesterly side of Bainbridge Avenue; thence southwesterly along the northwesterly side of Bainbridge Avenue 52 feet and 40-100 of a foot to the point of beginning, be said several distances or dimensions more or less, being the same premises conveyed by the said plaintiff to the said defendant, Thomas C. Lisk, by deed bearing even date, with said mortgage, and said mortgage being a purchase money mortgage given to secure part of the purchase price or consideration in said deed expressed.

Dated New York, November 18, 1899.

THOMAS B. ODELL, Referee.

AGAR, ELY & FULTON, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 31 Nassau St., New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $5,259.03, with interest thereon from November 3, 1899, together with costs and allowances amounting to $407.79, with interest from November 14, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee, is $183.82 and interest.

Dated New York, November 18, 1899.

THOMAS B. ODELL, Referee.

n20-2aw8wM&F&d12

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—DANIEL ROSENBERG, plaintiff, against EMIL GOLDNER and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 17th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 11th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by Peter F. Meyer, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

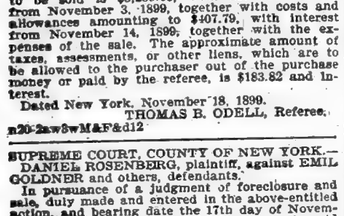
All those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying, and being in the 24th Ward of the City of New York, known and distinguished on a certain map, entitled "Map of 176 lots of the deceased, sold under the direction of the Fardebrigate estate, late property of Charles B. Beck, Bathgate estate, sold under the direction of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, executor and trustee," dated New York, November 6th, 1897, surveyed by Cornelius J. L. Lynch, City Surveyor, and filed in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York by the numbers (12) twelve, (13) thirteen, (14) fourteen, (15) fifteen, (16) sixteen, and (17) seventeen, Block No. 2,912.

Dated New York, November 18th, 1899.

MOSES J. SNEUDAIRA, Referee.

ERDMAN, LEVY & MAYER, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 320 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $16,374.70, with interest thereon from the 15th day of November, 1899, together with costs and allowance amounting to $333.74, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee, is $2,524 and interest. The property will be sold subject to a mortgage of $35,000, and interest from July 12, 1899, at 6%.

Dated New York, 18th day of November, 1899.

MOSES J. SNEUDAIRA, Referee.

n20-2aw3wM&F&d11

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—THOMAS B. WATSON, Plaintiff, against WILLIAM J. JACKSON and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action bearing date the 23d day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 21st day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

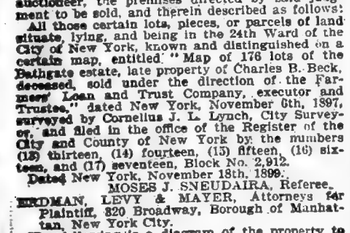
All those certain lots of land known and distinguished as Lots Numbers Fifty-seven and Fifty-eight on a map filed in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York, on the 24th day of September, 1896, entitled "Map of Cebrie Park, in the 24th Ward of the City of New York, and made by Robert L. Waters, City Surveyor, 9 Chambers Street, New York, August 17th, 1896."

Dated New York November 25th, 1899.

EMIL GOLDMARK, Referee.

ARNOW & CRYER, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 150 Nassau Street, New York, Manhattan.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is unknown:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $901.51, with interest thereon from November 1st, 1899, together with costs and allowance amounting to $246.75-100, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the Referee, is $28.44-100 and interest.

Dated New York, 25th day of November, 1899.

EMIL GOLDMARK, Referee.

n25-2aw8wW&F&d14

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—HARRIET FERRY, plaintiff, against ELIZABETH DUSENBURY and others, defendants.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 14th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 19th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by Richard V. Harnett & Co., auctioneers, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

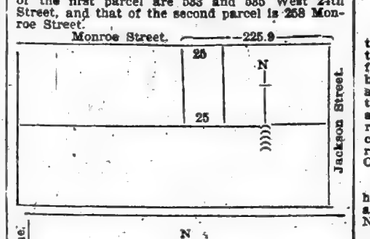
All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building erected thereon, situate, lying, and being in the 7th Ward of the City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the westerly side of Jackson Street, running thence easterly along the southerly side of Monroe Street, twenty-five (25) feet, and extending in length one-half of the distance to Cherry Street, bounded westerly by the land now or late of Henry Laight, northerly by Monroe Street, easterly by land now or late of Alexander Hamilton, and southerly by land now or late of Edward Laight, containing in front and rear each twenty-five (25) feet, and extending in length one-half of the distance to Cherry Street, be the said dimensions more or less.

Also all those certain lots, piece, or parcel of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the 16th Ward of the City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of 24th Street, distant two hundred and ninety-three (293) feet easterly from corner formed by the intersection of the northerly line of 24th Street with the easterly line of 11th Avenue, and running thence northerly and parallel with 11th Avenue, ninety-eight (98) feet and nine (9) inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly along said centre line and parallel with 24th Street, fifty-seven (57) feet; thence southerly and parallel with 11th Avenue, ninety-eight (98) feet nine (9) inches to the northerly line of 24th Street; thence southerly along the northerly line of 24th Street, fifty-seven (57) feet to the point or place of beginning.—Dated New York, November 24th, 1899.

THOMAS ALLISON, Referee.

GILBERT M. SPEIR, Attorney for Plaintiff, 62 Wall Street, New York City.

The following are diagrams of the property to be sold as described above. The street numbers of the first parcel are 533 and 535 West 24th Street, and that of the second parcel is 258 Monroe Street.



The approximate amount of taxes, water rates, and assessments on the first parcel is $2,155, and on the second parcel is $4,590, which are to be allowed to the purchasers out of the purchase money or paid by the referee.—Dated New York, November 24th, 1899.

THOMAS ALLISON, Referee.

507 WEST 27TH STREET.—Supreme Court, County of New York.—MARY CONLON, plaintiff, against LAURIDS C. SORENSEN et al., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date 11th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 8th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Peter F. Meyer, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of 27th Street, distant two hundred and fifty (450) feet westerly from the intersection of the westerly side of Fifth Avenue with the southerly side of Forty-fourth Street, and running thence westerly along said southerly side of Forty-fourth Street twenty-five (25) feet; thence southerly, and parallel with Fifth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet and five (5) inches; thence easterly, and parallel with Forty-fourth Street, twenty-five (25) feet; and thence northerly, and again parallel with Fifth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet and five (5) inches to the point or place of beginning.

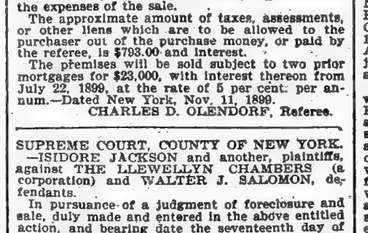
And also all that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Forty-fourth Street, distant four hundred and seventy-five (475) feet westerly from the southwesterly corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, and running thence southwardly, and parallel with Fifth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet and five (5) inches; thence westwardly, and parallel with Forty-fourth Street, twenty-five (25) feet; thence northwardly, and parallel with Fifth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet and five (5) inches to the southerly side of Forty-fourth Street; thence eastwardly, and along said southerly side of Forty-fourth Street, twenty-five (25) feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, November 20, 1899.

JAMES J. NEALIS, Referee.

A. STERN, Attorney for Plaintiffs, 31 Nassau Street, New York City, Borough of Manhattan.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold: Its street number is 30-32 West Forty-fourth Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold is $40,228 77-100 with interest thereon from the 16th day of November, 1899, together with costs and allowance amounting to $304 00-100 together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $1,116 15-100 and interest. The said premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage covering 30 West Forty-fourth Street, amounting to the sum of $25,000, and accrued interest thereon from May 6, 1899, at 4% per annum, and to a first mortgage of $30,000 and accrued interest from June 1st, 1899, at 4% per annum, on premises 32 West Forty-fourth Street.

Dated New York, 20th day of November, 1899.

JAMES J. NEALIS, Referee.

N28-2aw3wTu&F&d19

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—EDMOND R. SMITH, as executor and trustee of the estate of Ruel Smith, deceased, plaintiff, against HENRY C. MINER and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 24th day of October, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 19th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by William M. Ryan, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

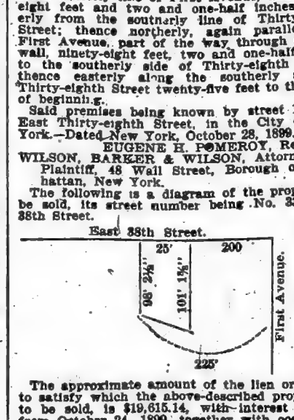
All that certain lot of land, and the building thereon, situate in the City, County, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly side of Thirty-eighth Street, distant two hundred feet westerly from westerly side of First Avenue; running thence southerly, parallel with First Avenue, and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred and one feet, one and three-eighths inches; thence northwesterly to a point distant two hundred and twenty-five feet westerly from westerly line of First Avenue, and ninety-eight feet and two and one-half inches southerly from the southerly line of Thirty-eighth Street; thence northerly, again parallel with First Avenue, part of the way through a party wall, ninety-eight feet, two and one-half inches to the southerly side of Thirty-eighth Street; thence easterly along the southerly side of Thirty-eighth Street twenty-five feet to the point of beginning.

Said premises being known by street No. 332 East Thirty-eighth Street, in the City of New York.—Dated New York, October 25, 1899.

EUGENE H. POMEROY, Referee.

WILSON, BARKER & WILSON, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 48 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold, its street number being No. 332 East 38th Street.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is $19,615.14, with interest thereon from October 24, 1899, together with costs, disbursements, and allowance amounting to $472.74 and interest thereon from October 24, 1899, and the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $697.76 and interest.—Dated New York, October 28, 1899.

EUGENE H. POMEROY, Referee.

The sale of the above described premises is hereby adjourned to Tuesday, December 5, 1899, at the same hour and place.—Dated New York, November 27, 1899

EUGENE H. POMEROY, Referee.

n22-2aw2wW&F&d5

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—THE NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE AND TRUST COMPANY, plaintiff, against SAMUEL R. DONNELL and others, defendants.

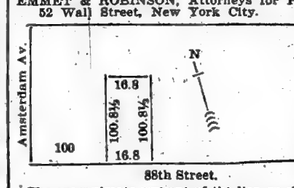
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the fourth day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the first day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Peter F. Meyer & Co., auctioneers, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, and the improvements thereon, situate, lying, and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, described as follows: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of Eighty-eighth Street distant one hundred feet eastwardly from the northeasterly corner of said Eighty-eighth Street and Amsterdam (or the Tenth) Avenue, and running thence northwardly parallel with said avenue one hundred feet eight and one-half inches to the centre line of the block; thence eastwardly along said centre line sixteen feet eight inches, more or less, to a point on the continuation of a line running through the centre of a party wall standing one-half on the premises now being described and one-half on the premises next adjoining on the east; thence southwardly along the said line last mentioned for part of the distance through the centre of the said party wall and parallel, or nearly so, with said avenue, one hundred feet eight and one-half inches to said northerly side of Eighty-eighth Street, and thence westwardly along said northerly side of Eighty-eighth Street sixteen feet eight inches, more or less, to the point of beginning.

The said premises lie in Block 1,219 (Twelve Hundred and Nineteen,) in Section 4 (Four,) on the Land Map of the City of New York.—Dated New York, November 8, 1899.

WILLIAM L. TURNER, Referee.

EMMET & ROBINSON, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 52 Wall Street, New York City.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $15,828.18, with interest thereon from the 23d day of October, 1899; together with costs and allowances amounting to $458.59, with interest from November 14th, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $868.39 and interest.—Dated New York, November 8th, 1899.

WILLIAM L. TURNER, Referee.

n9-2aw3wTh&M&d1

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, plaintiff, against the New York Steam Power Company and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 6th day of October, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 3d day of November, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, auctioneer, the premises in said judgment directed to be sold, and therein described as follows:

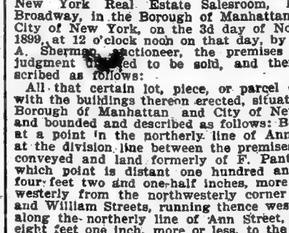
All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate in the Borough of Manhattan and City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point in the northerly line of Ann Street, at the division line between the premises hereby conveyed and land formerly of F. Panton, and which point is distant one hundred and forty-four feet two and one-half inches, more or less, westerly from the northerly corner of Ann and William Streets, running thence westwardly, along the northerly line of Ann Street, twenty-eight feet one inch, more or less, to the division line between the premises known as Numbers fifty-seven (57) and fifty-five (55) Ann Street; thence northeastwardly through a party wall standing on the line between the said premises Numbers fifty-seven (57) and fifty-five (55) Ann Street and beyond the same seventy-four feet and three inches, more or less, to the rear line of the said premises Number fifty-five (55) Ann Street; thence westwardly along the rear line of the premises Numbers fifty-five, (55) fifty-three, (53,) fifty-one, (51,) and forty-nine (49) Ann Street seventy-five feet seven and one-half inches, more or less, to land formerly of the heirs of George Lorillard, deceased; thence northeastwardly along the said land formerly of the heirs of George Lorillard, deceased, sixty-three feet nine and one-half inches, more or less, to land formerly of Thomas H. Leggett; thence eastwardly along said land formerly of Thomas H. Leggett and land of others so as to include the storehouse lately occupied by the American Fur Company one hundred and one feet seven inches, more or less, to the said land late of F. Panton; and thence southwestwardly along the said land late of F. Panton one hundred and twenty-two feet eleven inches, more or less, to the said northerly line of Ann Street, and place of beginning, being now known by the street Numbers fifty-seven (57) and fifty-nine (59) Ann Street, and being the same premises which were conveyed to the said The New York Steam Power Company by Patrick Reilly and wife by deed dated February 4, 1870, and recorded in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York February 24, 1870, in Liber 1142 of Conveyances, Page 177.

Dated New York, October 11, 1899.

CHAS. G. F. WAHLE, Referee.

CHARLES E. MILLER, Attorney for Plaintiff, 32 Nassau Street, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the premises to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is $50,355.43, with interest thereon from September 25, 1899, together with the costs and allowances, amounting to $375.75, with interest from the 6th day of October, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $1,399.18 and interest.

Dated New York, October 11, 1899.

CHAS. G. F. WAHLE, Referee.

The sale of the above described premises is hereby adjourned to Friday, Nov. 17, 1899, at the same hour and place.

Dated New York, Nov. 3, 1899.

CHAS. G. F. WAHLE, Referee.

CHARLES E. MILLER, Attorney for Plaintiff, 32 Nassau Street, New York City.

The sale of the above described premises is hereby adjourned to Friday, Dec. 1st, 1899, at the same hour and place.

Dated New York, Nov. 17, 1899.

CHAS. G. F. WAHLE, Referee.

CHARLES E. MILLER, Attorney for Plaintiff, 32 Nassau Street, New York.

n21-2aw3wTu&F

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—JOHN ARTHUR JAMES, plaintiff, against ABRAHAM STERN, and others, defendants.—Action No. 1.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made in the above entitled action on November 13th, 1899, and duly entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on November 16, 1899, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Number 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 12th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Peter F. Meyer & Co., auctioneers, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Twenty-second Ward (now in the Borough of Manhattan) of the City of New York, on the southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street, and designated by the Street Number 332 East Fifty-eighth Street, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly line of Fifty-eighth Street distant two hundred feet westerly from westerly side of First Avenue; running thence southerly, parallel with First Avenue, and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred and one feet, one and three-eighths inches; thence northwesterly to a point distant two hundred and twenty-five feet westerly from westerly line of First Avenue, and ninety-eight feet and two and one-half inches southerly from the southerly line of Fifty-eighth Street; thence northerly, again parallel with First Avenue, part of the way through a party wall, ninety-eight feet, two and one-half inches to the southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street; thence easterly along the southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street twenty-five feet to the point of beginning.

Said premises being known by street No. 332 East Fifty-eighth Street, in the City of New York.—Dated New York, October 25, 1899.

EUGENE H. POMEROY, Referee.

HOWLAND & MURRAY, Plaintiff's Attorneys, 35 Wall Street, New York, Borough of Manhattan.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:

The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold, is $18,640.42 with interest thereon from November 9th, 1899, together with costs, disbursements, and allowances amounting to $615.25, with interest from November 13th, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, water rents, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $1,017.95, with interest.—Dated, New York, November 24th, 1899.

EDGAR M. LEVENTRITT, Referee.

SUPREME COURT—COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—JOHN ARTHUR JAMES, plaintiff, against ABRAHAM STERN and others, defendants.—Action No. 2.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale made in the above-entitled action on November 13th, 1899, and duly entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on November 16th, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Number 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City and County of New York, on the 19th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Peter F. Meyer, auctioneer, the premises directed by the said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate, lying, and being in the Twenty-second Ward (now in the Borough of Manhattan) of the City of New York, on the southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street, and designated by the Street Number West Fifty-eighth Street, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly line or side of Fifty-eighth Street distant sixty (60) feet easterly from the southeasterly corner of the Ninth Avenue and Fifty-eighth (58) Street, which said point is at the centre of a party wall standing partly on the lot hereby to be described and partly on the lot adjoining it on the west, and running thence southerly and parallel or nearly so with Ninth Avenue and part of the way through the centre of said party wall seventy-five (75) feet five (5) inches; thence easterly and parallel or nearly so with Fifty-eighth Street twenty (20) feet; thence northerly and parallel or nearly so with Ninth Avenue and part of the way through the centre of a party wall standing partly on the lot hereby described and partly on the lot adjoining it on the east, seventy-five (75) feet five (5) inches to the southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street, and thence westerly along said southerly side of Fifty-eighth Street twenty (20) feet to the point the place of beginning.—Dated November 24, 1899.

EDGAR M. LEVENTRITT, Referee.

HOWLAND & MURRAY, Plaintiff's Attorneys, 35 Wall Street, New York, Borough of Manhattan.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:

The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold is $18,640.42 with interest thereon from November 9th, 1899, together with costs, disbursements, and allowances amounting to $615.25, with interest from November 13th, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, water rents, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $762.00 with interest.

Dated New York, November 24th, 1899.

EDGAR M. LEVENTRITT, Referee.

SUPREME COURT—CITY AND COUNTY OF New York.—THE GIRARD LIFE INSURANCE, ANNUITY, AND TRUST COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA, as Trustee for Nellson Brown, under the will of Alexander Brown, deceased, plaintiff, against WILLIAM B. POPE et al., defendants.—Notice of sale.

In pursuance of the judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action on the fourth day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment appointed, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 29th day of November, 1899, at twelve o'clock noon of that day, by Peter F. Meyer, auctioneer, the premises in said judgment mentioned and therein described as follows, to wit:

All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, situate, lying, and being in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of New York, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the easterly side of Fourth Avenue distant twenty-five feet six and one-half inches southwardly from the southeastwardly corner of Eighty-first Street and Fourth Avenue, running thence eastwardly, parallel to Eighty-first Street, and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred feet, thence southwardly, parallel to Fourth Avenue, twenty-five feet six and one-half inches, thence westwardly, parallel or nearly so with Eighty-first Street, one hundred feet to the easterly side of Fourth Avenue, thence northwardly, along the easterly side of Fourth Avenue, twenty-five feet six and one-half inches to the point the place of beginning; being the same premises conveyed to William B. Pope by William H. Ransom and wife by deed dated September 10th, 1886, and recorded September 13th, 1886, in Liber 1,987 of Conveyances, Page 141. Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments, and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any wise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, remainder, and remainders, rents, issues, and profits thereof.—Dated New York, November 6th, 1899.

JOHN H. ROGAN, Referee.

ADAMS & COMSTOCK, Plaintiff's Attorneys, 36 Wall Street, New York City.

The premises to be sold are known as No. 933 Park Avenue, and the following is a diagram thereof:

The approximate amount of the liens or charges upon the premises, to satisfy which the property is to be sold, is $24,433.84, with interest thereon from the third day of November, 1899, besides the costs and allowance amounting to $380.10, with interest thereon from November 4th, 1899, besides the expenses of the sale.

The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and other liens upon the property which are to be paid by the Referee out of the purchase money or allowed to the purchaser is:

Taxes for 1897	$378.00
Taxes for 1898	361.80
Taxes for 1899	496.06
Water rent by meter since Feb. 14, 1898, amount not fixed, to which should be added the interest on said amount respectively.—Dated New York, November 6th, 1899.

JOHN H. ROGAN, Referee.

The above sale is hereby adjourned to December 21, 1899, at same hour and place.—New York, Nov. 29, 1899. JOHN H. ROGAN, Referee.

ADAMS & COMSTOCK, Plaintiff's Attorneys.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

LYMAN, THOMAS C.—In pursuance of an order of Hon. Frank T. Fitzgerald, a Surrogate of the County of New York, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against THOMAS C. LYMAN, late of the County of New York, deceased, to present the same, with vouchers thereof, to the subscriber, at his place of transacting business, No. 420 West Thirty-eighth Street, Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, on or before the 8th day of May next.—Dated New York, the 27th day of October, 1899. ROBERT M. LYMAN, Administrator. ROBERT W. TODD, Attorney for Administrator, 229 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

n8-1aw6mF

TRAVELERS' GUIDE—SHIPPING.

EGYPT AND NILE.

The pressure on our NILE STEAMERS for the season is very great, and most of the accommodation for the sailings from CAIRO EARLY IN THE END OF JANUARY and EARLY FEBRUARY has been sold.

Full information regarding all sailings can be obtained, and all intending to make the voyage are earnestly requested to at once communicate with us.

Plans of all the steamers, and cabins reserved, at any of our offices, Connecting Steamship and Railroad tickets for EGYPT from any point.

THOS. COOK & SON,
261 and 1225 Broadway, N. Y. Boston, Phila., Chicago, etc.

ATLANTIC TRANSPORT LINE.
NEW YORK-LONDON.

MARQUETTE.....Dec. 9
MESABA.....Dec. 16
MANITOU.....Dec. 23
MENOMINEE.....Dec. 30

ALL MODERN STEAMERS, LUXURIOUSLY FITTED WITH EVERY CONVENIENCE. ALL STATEROOMS LOCATED AMIDSHIPS ON UPPER DECKS.

FIRST CABIN PASSENGERS CARRIED FROM NEW YORK TO FENCHURCH STREET STATION, LONDON, FOR $40.00 EACH AND UP.

APPLY 1 BROADWAY.

GOING ABROAD? GAZE'S
High-class Escorted Tours.
56th year.

Dec., Jan., and Feb. to France, Italy, Paris & London, 50 Days, $310, and 67 Days, $495. Jan. 27, Feb. 10, to Italy, EGYPT, PALESTINE, Turkey and Greece, 76 Days, $600, and 93 Days, $720.

Also other tours; programmes post free.

Nile Tours by newest, finest steamers, $171.50.

Apply at once. Independent travel tickets everywhere. "Tourist Gazette," 100 pp., on travel, 5c. stamp.

HENRY GAZE & SONS, 113 Broadway, New York.

JAPAN-CHINA
Hawaii and Philippine Islands
PACIFIC MAIL S. S. CO.
OCCIDENTAL AND ORIENTAL S. S. CO.
TOYO KISEN KAISHA.

Between San Francisco, Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki, Shankhai, Hong Kong.
Steamers leave San Francisco at 1 P. M.

COPTIC.....Dec. 13 GAELIC.....Jan. 6
AMER MARU...Dec. 21 H. K. MARU...Jan. 16

For freight, passage, and general information apply at 349 Broadway, or 1 Battery Place, Washington Building, and 287 Broadway.

OLD DOMINION LINE.
DAILY SERVICE.

For Old Point Comfort, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Pinner's Point, Newport News, and Richmond, Va., connecting for Petersburg, Richmond, Virginia Beach, Washington, D. C., and entire South and West.

Freight and passenger steamers sail from Pier 26, North River, foot of Beach St., every week day, except Saturday, at 3 P. M., and Saturday, at 4 P. M.

H. B. WALKER, Traffic Manager.

CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.
Intended steamship sailings from Vancouver.

JAPAN, CHINA, and PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

EMPRESS OF INDIA.....Jan. 1, March 26
EMPRESS OF JAPAN.....Jan. 29, April 26
EMPRESS OF CHINA.....Feb. 26, May 7

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS and AUSTRALIA.

WARRIMOO.....Dec. 15 AORANGI.....Jan. 5

For rates apply 353 Broadway and 65 Wall St.

CLARK'S PARTIES TO EUROPE, 1900.—Thirty excursions during Spring and Summer. Ocean tickets by all Lines. Send for Tourist Gazette. Holy Land Excursions. F. C. CLARK, 111 Broadway, New York.

M'INTYRE ACCUSES MOSS

Assistant District Attorney Says He Has Been Libeled.

HE WILL DEFEND HIS RECORD

Mazet Counsel, He Asserts, Is Guilty of Subornation of Perjury and Other Offenses.

Nothing that Frank Moss has done as counsel to the Mazet Committee has stirred up more of a row than his attacks on Tuesday and Wednesday, at the sessions of the committee, on John F. McIntyre, the First Assistant District Attorney under Col. Gardiner. The statement made by Mr. McIntyre in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court before Justice Fursman on Wednesday, when he was served with a summons to appear forthwith before the committee, was supplemented yesterday by a statement in which he said that while he disliked personal controversy, he would if forced to it by Mr. Moss, tell something of the Mazet counsel's record which would be unsavory, to say the least.

Mr. McIntyre accused Mr. Moss directly and unequivocally of suborning perjury, and said that this offense was all the more marked from the fact that Mr. Moss had access to the records of the court, which in themselves contained a refutation of every falsehood cast by the counsel to the Mazet Committee upon the Assistant District Attorney. He also characterized the attitude of Mr. Moss as mean and unmanly. He said with great positiveness that he would not let the matter rest, and that facts would be forthcoming that Mr. Moss would prefer not to have had uncovered. He said he would be responsible for all the statements he made, and that they were in every instance based on facts.

"In the first place," said Mr. McIntyre, "Moss resorted to the meanest kind of trickery to get on the records of the committee such facts as would suit the purposes of his attack. For instance, there were disposed of in twenty-four days in the Supreme Court before Justice Fursman, eighteen cases of homicide. The records of the court show this, and there is no possibility of controverting it. Yet he called Clerk Penny to the stand and asked him: 'How many cases went to the jury during the present term?'

CALLS MOSS A "SCOUNDREL."

"Penny answered truthfully enough that there were three cases. Then Moss asked how many days the court had sat, and Penny answered that it had been in session for twenty-four days. That was all that Moss wanted, and he let the record stand in that way. He was careful not to let Mr. Penny state that during that twenty-four days there were fifteen other homicide cases presented. They did not go to a jury, it is true, but only for the reason that after the jury had been impanelled the defendants thought fit to plead guilty, and, by saving the State the expense of a trial, have perhaps several years cut off their sentences. But in spite of all this, plainly obtainable from the court records, the record of the committee shows that but three cases were disposed of in twenty-four days. A man who would resort to a trick like that to smirch a man's reputation is a scoundrel at least.

"I accuse Frank Moss of willfully suborning perjury when he put the man Fish on the stand to swear that I appeared in court to prosecute the Barbaretta case. That is, it is as near perjury as can be committed before a committee that has no legal life or lawful existence, and therefore has no right or power to administer an oath. I am sure that Moss knows this, and therefore takes the chances he does. He knows that his witnesses cannot be reached, but I believe he can, and when I find it out to a certainty there will be some interesting developments. I never knew that there was such a case as the Barbaretta matter in the office, and the records of the court, which could have been obtained by Moss, would have proved it beyond cavil. I understand that Moss did the same thing some time ago in a case in which he mixed up Police Captain Price's name. There, again, he had the records of the precinct to draw from for his facts, but he put an ex-dive keeper and crook on the stand to testify to facts directly opposite to those shown on the precinct blotters.

"Moss suborned perjury when he allowed the statement to be made before the committee that I appeared as prosecuting counsel in the case of 'Sailor' Brown. The court records show that James Lindsay Gordon prosecuted that case and that I had no hand in it. In the Dorney case I did appear as prosecuting attorney, and in this, as in the two other cases, my son was counsel for the defense. I knew that the proofs were deficient, but to save any possible misconstruction of my actions in a case where my son was opposed to me on the trial I brought the case into court, and as a result I received from Justice Fursman the first rebuke I have ever received. The Justice said he was surprised that a man with my experience as a prosecutor would bring a case to trial with so little proof and said it should have been dismissed.

HAS SOMETHING IN RESERVE.

"Mr. Moss seems to take umbrage at the fact that my son is a lawyer, and that he practices in the criminal courts. As in the cases of others, notably Mr. Croker, he has gone to the extreme of trying to prove that a man who holds any public position should not let his sons do anything. I warn him that I will not stand any such interference with my family affairs; and, if he forces me to it by further assaults, I will make public an incident in his career which will show his personal character in a very unenviable light. I have been watching the matter for four years, and when I start my end going I will push it to the bitter end.

"It is only six years ago that both he and Dr. Parkhurst went out of their way to commend my work in the District Attorney's office, and Dr. Parkhurst has published his commendation of me in his book, and came to the office of the District Attorney with the request that I be assigned to prosecute certain cases. Moss indorsed everything his chief said at that time; and, as he has exhibited such a change of heart, it is but fair to tell what has brought it about. When Moss was on the Police Board he characterized Hammerstein's Olympia as a 'brothel.' For that statement I, as counsel for Mr. Hammerstein, brought a suit for libel against Mr. Moss. He has never forgiven me for it. I do not know what became of the case, because when I again entered the office of the District Attorney I turned the case over to Maurice Meyer, Mr. Hammerstein's attorney.

"As to the records of the Mazet committee, they are utterly worthless, even apart from the fact that the committee has no legal existence. The fact frequently has been commented on that Moss makes speeches which he does not allow witnesses to contradict. He has run up a bill of $20,000 for stenographers' fees, of which 90 per cent. is composed of speeches by Moss. The public has long ago condemned his methods, and nothing that he or his committee can do will have any weight with thinking people.

"And now just a word for the record that he has thought fit to attack. In eight years I have prosecuted 418 homicide cases. Out of these there have been but seventeen acquittals. Twenty convictions were for murder in the first degree, over 200 for murder in the second degree, and the balance were for manslaughter of various degrees. I think that Moss can be reached for uttering libels, and I shall advise everybody that he has attacked to that effect. He stands in the same position as the man who knowingly furnishes libelous statements for publication in newspapers."

MOSS MAKES LIGHT OF IT.

Mr. Moss, when seen yesterday, affected to make light of Mr. McIntyre's statements. He said that threats would not move him and that, while he was engaged in an uncomfortable business, he did not care who it hit, and he could not help it if it occasionally hurt some one.

"I am sorry to see," he said, "that Mr. McIntyre has taken common cause with Capt. Price. It is a nasty business, yet I do not purpose to enter into any newspaper controversy with him. Not that I resent the action of the newspapers, but I am not working for them, but for the Legislature. My reputation is too well established to force me to a defense of it or of my actions. Of course, what Mr. McIntyre says about my making speeches and not allowing my statements to be refuted by testimony is all untrue. That is a very ingenious way to escape from the result of what witnesses have testified to, and I will take no more notice of it than of anything else he has said. It is a favorite trick for men who find themselves in a bad position to attack those opposing them, and so far as I am concerned Mr. McIntyre's outbreak amounts to nothing. I do not think any one will take stock in his assertion that I put witnesses on the stand for the purpose of testifying falsely."

Regarding the service of the subpoena on Mr. McIntyre in Justice Fursman's court, Mr. Moss said the subpoena server, John Bonnebel, went to the court to ask Mr. McIntyre when it would be convenient for him to appear. Mr. McIntyre thereupon asked him for his authority, and the server handed him the subpoena. Mr. McIntyre, Mr. Moss alleged, then raised a great row, claiming that the Mazet committee was interfering with the business of the Supreme Court.

Mr. McIntyre characterized this account by Mr. Moss as an absolute falsehood. He also said that he would pay absolutely no attention to any subpoena from the Mazet committee.

Two Thanksgiving perils we hope you've escaped.

We want you to be in good condition to look at our overcoats, suits, shoes, hats and furnishings.

For man or boy.

ROGERS, PEET & Co.

350 Broadway, cor. Leonard.
560 Broadway, cor. Prince.
Thirty-second and Broadway.

NATURAL HISTORY OBJECTS.

Museum, Central Park West, Opens a Fine Collection from Alaska and British Columbia.

The frequently expressed reproach that the finest collections of Alaskan and British Columbian antiquities and ethnographical specimens are in Europe is no longer justified. The Museum of Natural History at Central Park West and Seventy-seventh Street has now a collection of this kind that is superior to any other in existence, with the possible exception of that in Washington. Its superiority does not consist in the number of exhibits, but in the fact that such a large proportion of them are unique and of the highest interest.

The public had an opportunity of inspecting this collection yesterday for the first time. It is housed in what is known as the North Hall of the Museum, which has been closed for six months in order that the ethnographical collection might be properly arranged, classified, and labelled. This work has not been quite finished yet, but the officials have left the ticketing of such specimens as explain themselves to the last, and few of the visitors yesterday had any trouble in understanding the nature of any object shown.

From three sources come the additions which make the exhibit in the Museum comprehensive and important. The collections from northern British Columbia presented by Heber R. Bishop are shown for the first time, together with the extensive collection made in Alaska by Lieut. Emmons, and the results of the Jesup North Pacific expedition.

The most conspicuous object in the hall is an enormous Haida canoe from the Bella Bella tribe in British Columbia. It is sixty-four feet long, and the body of it is formed from a single tree. At the bow are painted dragons, and the stern has similar decorations, the body of the canoe being black. It is suspended from the roof of the hall, together with nets from the same source.

Of course the most interesting exhibits to most visitors are the cases which contain life-size wax figures of natives engaged in their ordinary avocations. These figures are finely modeled, and the greatest pains have been taken to make the accessories accurate. One sees the Alaskan craftsman painting on a cedar wood boxes those incredible monsters called for by the traditions of the tribes; another is splitting wood by means of wedges and stone hammers, while a third group shows the life of a tribe of Indians in the interior of British Columbia who live in underground houses. Near the entrance to the hall is a model of an Alaskan village, with totem pole, carved houses, and every other detail.

There are a large number of the carved and painted masks which are used in the ceremonies of the Alaskan natives' secret societies and in Shaman rites. The similarity of these masks to those which originate in Japan will doubtless be noticed and commented upon by ethnographers, and will be regarded as further proof of the Oriental origin of the Tlingits and other tribes. The carved and painted chests from Alaska will also be a revelation of a fact that has been overlooked hitherto—that the natives occasionally produce work which is not only picturesque through its grotesqueness, but is actually beautiful in itself. The same may be said about some of the carvings in ivory and other hard substances, and about the painted leather and textiles. In the case of the carvings the similarity to Oriental productions is again conspicuous.

MAGISTRATE CRANE GETS A DOG.

Acknowledgment for Fining a Man Who Had Kicked One.

Magistrate Crane on Monday last fined a man $3 for kicking a dog. It was done, the prisoner explained, "for fun." He said he was John Brady of 620 Grand Street. Henry J. Bascom of Providence, R. I., read the newspaper account of the occurrence.

Magistrate Crane yesterday received a letter from Mr. Bascom commending him for his disposition of the case, and tendering him as a reward the Scotch collie dog, White Heather, by Oruiskuk-CoCrnlashman. Mr. Bascom notified the Magistrate that he could obtain the dog by presenting the letter at the pet dog show in the Metropolitan Opera House, where the dog is on exhibition, or at the Providence Collie Kennel Club, Providence, R. I., after the show is over. Magistrate Crane said he would receive it with thanks.

FIRE FATALITIES AVERTED.

A Servant's Anxiety, the Police Believe, Saves a Family.

A fire was discovered in the residence of L. Joseph, at 32 East Seventy-fourth Street, at 4:20 o'clock yesterday morning by a servant just in time, the police say, to prevent a repetition of the Andrews fire of last Winter. The next house, 34 East Seventy-fifth Street, which is owned by W. J. Gould of Astor Court, had been extensively repaired, and on Wednesday night a watchman built a fire in the furnace. Mr. Josephs was later informed that the party wall on the basement floor was hot, and he notified the watchman to be careful with the furnace. The Josephs family retired at 10:30 o'clock, but one of the servants was kept awake by anxiety in regard to the wall, which at midnight was still hot. Smelling smoke a little after 4 o'clock, she aroused the family just as flames were eating their way through the wall. An alarm was sent in and the blaze was quickly put out. The damage was placed at $50. Fire Marshal Seery has been asked to make an investigation.

Colleges and Schools to Confer.

The thirteenth annual convention of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland State Normal and Model Schools will be held at Trenton, N. J., to-day and to-morrow. Mayor F. O. Briggs of Trenton will make the address of welcome Friday morning. Prof. George S. Fullerton of the University of Pennsylvania will read a paper on "The Aim of the Teaching of Philosophy in American Colleges." There will also be papers by Prof. A. T. Ormond of Princeton, Prof. F. C. French of Vassar, and Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia. Gov. Foster M. Voorhees will address the convention in the evening, and will be followed by President Isaac Sharpless of Haverford College, the President of the association. The speakers on Saturday will be Dean L. B. R. Briggs of Harvard, Principal James C. Mackenzie of the Tome Institute, and President W. E. Waters of Wells College.

Buyers Here

Buy Right—

right goods—right styles—right prices.

We've all the new things in

Men's Suits,

Men's Overcoats,

Boys' Clothing,

Hats, Shoes, Furnishings,

Ladies' Tailor-made

Suits, Coats & Wraps.

If you haven't been buying here, you should.

We make Custom Clothing, too.

Hackett, Carhart & Co.

Three BROADWAY Stores. | Cor. 13th St. Cor. Canal St. Near Chambers.

H. WALTER WEBB RECOVERS.

Friends Rejoice at the Promise of Complete Restoration—His Disease Not Tubercular.

H. Walter Webb, who three years ago through ill-health retired from his active duties as a Vice President of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company and as a Director or officer of two-score corporations, was late in the Summer reported as in extremis from phthisis. To-day Mr. Webb's friends rejoice. He never had any tubercular disease, is rapidly mending, and will soon be restored to complete health. His disability since 1896 was due to an attack of typhoid fever. A result of it was a tumid leg, which brought about blood poisoning. Two months ago the right treatment for the affliction was discovered. Recently Mr. Webb has been able to leave his house afoot, and his appearance has changed from that of one in the shadow of death to health.

"I am mending daily and steadily," said Mr. Webb yesterday at 25 East Sixty-ninth Street, Secretary Elihu Root's house, which Mr. Webb has hired for a season. "I shall in time be as well as I have ever been in my life. I was believed to be a dying man, and had to be carried about. The change for the better came about the middle of September. Since then I have had no relapse. The story about my having consumption was, I suppose, due to a cough which has ceased. I now go out daily, and feel a changed man. I know nothing of the medical side of my case. An attack of typhoid fever came when I was run down, and left me with what is called a 'milk leg,' which resulted in blood poisoning."

"Will you return to railroad business, Mr. Webb, when you are entirely well?"

"Never. I have worked hard all my life. I am going to enjoy life now. But I am not going to give up my position as Director in many interests. I mean that I shall never be an active business man again."

Mr. Webb is thin from his long struggle with his ailments, but he talks vivaciously, has a bright eye and a clear, healthy complexion. His beard has grown gray. He read a story which said that a Wall Street rumor that he figured on the books of the New York Central Railroad Company as a holder of 40,000 shares of stock, recently acquired, was "partly confirmed," and remarked, "I wish that it was true. But it is absolutely absurd and there is not a word of truth in it, so far as I am concerned."

Mr. Webb said that he had no knowledge of the deals by which a syndicate put Pennsylvania in control of Baltimore and Ohio, or of the taking in of the "Big Four" and Chesapeake and Ohio systems by W. K. Vanderbilt except from what he read in the newspapers. He added that he did know that the Eastern railroad situation has been entirely harmonized.

Mr. Webb is a son of Gen. James Watson Webb and brother of Dr. William Seward Webb, who in 1881 married Miss Lila Osgood Vanderbilt, daughter of William H. Vanderbilt. He entered the service of the Central in 1886 as Vice President of the Wagner Palace Car Company, and in 1889 became assistant to President Depew. He became one of the most energetic of the Vanderbilt official staff. His illness in 1896 brought his career as a leading railroad man to a close. When convalescent from the fever Mr. Webb attempted for several months to conduct the operating department of the Central from Dr. Webb's Adirondack home, using telegraph and the mails until all such care was interdicted by his physicians. He then resigned the Vice Presidencies of the Central and the Wagner Palace Car Company. He sought relief at Aiken, S. C., without result, and when recently he was taken to his country home, Beechwood, at Scarborough, near Tarrytown, his end was regarded as near. Later on he was brought to this city. The first business visit was to the Lincoln National Bank, of which he is a Director. His greeting by Gen. Thomas James, the President, was touching in its heartiness.

As a business man Mr. Webb retains about thirty-five offices as Trustee, Vice President, and Director. Among the corporations are nineteen railway companies identified with the Central system, the Commonwealth Insurance Company, the Depew Improvement Company, the Hamilton Bank Note Engraving Company, the International Pulp Company, the Love Electric Traction Company, the Mutual Life Insurance Company, the National City Bank, the Mutual Gas Light Company, the New York Security and Trust Company, the Terminal Warehouse Company of Chicago, and the Wagner Palace Car Company. Socially Mr. Webb has many ties. His club list is Union, Century, Calumet, University, Lawyers', Groller, Racquet, Metropolitan, Westminster Kennel, Country, Riding, Engineers', New York Yacht, Sons of the Revolution, City, and St. Nicholas Society. He is a Columbia College graduate of the class of 1873.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS' CHURCH.

Laying of the Cornerstone of New and Costly Edifice.

The cornerstone of the new edifice of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, on the northwest corner of Ninety-sixth Street and Central Park West, was laid yesterday. Readers from the several Christian Scientist congregations in Manhattan and Brooklyn were present. Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the pastor of the First Church, conducted the ceremonies without assistants. The exercises consisted largely of the reading of selections from the Bible and the works of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy.

The following articles were placed in the cornerstone: A letter from Mrs. Eddy, written to be deposited there; copies of the books, pamphlets, &c., issued by the publishing society in Boston; the names of the members of the First Church and of the students of the New York City Christian Scientists' Institute, written on parchment; a number of United States gold and silver coins, and a copper cent of 1866, the year in which Mrs. Eddy wrote her text book.

The structure and the land combined will cost $500,000. New Hampshire granite from Concord, the home of Mrs. Eddy, will be used. The auditorium will have a maximum seating capacity of 2,500 people. The Sunday school rooms, reading rooms, and offices of the church will be in the upper part of the building and will be reached by two elevators.

Only a Bag Filled with Clams.

An alleged thief was captured yesterday morning by Special Officer McCoy in Catharine Street. The man was burdened with a mysterious looking sack, which he was carrying on his shoulder. When Officer McCoy called to the man to halt he dropped the sack and ran into a house and on the roof, making his escape. Owing to imagined movements inside the bag, the officer came instantly to the conclusion that he was on the eve of the discovery of a great murder case, the victim being inside the bag with life not yet extinct. The bag was conveyed to the station house by excited citizens. It was filled with clams.

All cars transfer to Bloomingdale's 3d Ave. & 59th St. | All cars transfer to Bloomingdale's 3d Ave. & 59th St.

Speedy Selling Specials.

This store news is just as interesting as any other news in the paper. More so, because it means money saved by you who purchase here. Every stock is alive to your wants, for this business is moving at a 20th century clip. Holiday Gifts, Cold Weather Comforts and Home Necessities in satisfying assortments—every article worth your attention because worth the price—goods that reach the pinnacle of perfection—priced to produce popularity—to please prudent purchasers. Shop to-day where your purse and convenience are considered.

Gas Saving, Artistic Lamps. A touch of art makes the home more homelike. If buying a LAMP for a gift select one that will reflect credit on the giver. If buying for yourself buy one that will last for years and add beauty and pleasure to the home every moment. Our display of Imported and Domestic TABLE and BANQUET LAMPS, the kinds that give a touch of tinted light just where it is needed, is now complete. Prices 33⅓% to 50% below those asked by most stores. In READING LAMPS special to-day the famous "SEARCH-LIGHT" Incandescent, with all attachments, ready for use, as good as those advertised at $8, special $2.65; and the "BRILLIANT" Incandescent READING LAMP, usually $3, with every attachment—great gas saver $1.65

Kipling's Books Special Prices. How to make your book money go farthest is a study. Our BOOK Department is stocked with the best reading put upon paper since book making began. No author of consequence, or importance, or interest is omitted. Good reading for every mood and minute; the whole world of books rightly priced is here for your choosing. For to-day KIPLING'S WORKS in 10 volumes, in Brown and Green cloth, Regular $2.80 at $1.69, or in leather, published at $7.50, special $5.75; KIPLING'S POEMS, 2 vols., in Blue Cloth, per set 89c., or in Fine Cloth with Gilt Top, per set 59c., or in leather, per set $1.19. KIPLING'S COMPLETE POEMS in one volume, octavo size, on extra calendered paper, gilt edge, rich cloth and gold binding. Regular $2.50. Special $1.48

Sale of Watches. This Department is doing the largest retail WATCH business in the United States. No matter how low the price, every watch offered here is of high quality. The best WATCHES are none too good for any one, and only the best are sold here, but they are sold cheapest. The most complete WATCH factories in the world work for us—materials are carefully selected, and skilled and drilled mechanics take extra care in the smallest details of these goods. Specials to-day—LADIES' Solid Silver WATCHES, $1.85; BOYS' 8? Solid Silver Watches, usually $10 & $12, $5.98; MEN'S Solid Gold 14-K. Hunting Case WATCHES, worth $40, special, $23.75, and HOWARD WATCHES in Gold-Filled Cases, $19.50, or in Solid Gold Cases, special . $34.50

Buy Parlor Suits To-day. Here comes a big shipment of PARLOR SUITS just at the time when we need more room for Holiday Goods—3 and 5 piece Suits. They are ours for less than half the actual cost to make, because the season with the manufacturers is at an end. To-day two remarkable specials—3-PIECE PARLOR SUITS, piano polished frames, beautifully inlaid with Marqueterie and Pearl, Satin Damask and Silk Plush Coverings, made to sell at $23 to-day $16.75; 5-PIECE PARLOR SUITS, variety of desirable patterns, some elegantly inlaid with Marqueterie and Pearl, Satin Damask and Silk Plush Coverings, regular price $40. You will not have an opportunity to buy such Suits again for $28

How quickly the public appreciate the truth plainly told by reliable people. Tuesday we offered a lot of Ladies' Fine Nearseal Fur Coats at a special price. They sold quickly. To-day another line of these stylish COATS of genuine P. L. Electric Skins. While many furriers are howling "hard times" we are making progress unparalleled in the annals of FUR selling, and are fast capturing the FUR trade. This is the inevitable result of giving the finest that can be produced at prices that astonish the community. These COATS are in the new shape, 24 inches long, large lapels and storm collar, lined with Skinner's fine SATIN, fully guaranteed, usual value $60. To-day's special, . $29

Ladies' Fur Coats.

Ladies' Coats—Strong Values. These LADIES' COATS exactly meet the present demand of fashion. If you have not been "just suited" you have not been buying here. Any woman—petite or robust, slender or stout, can find a coat here to fit and become. Better values than these for to-day were never offered—LADIES' COATS of fine Black Kersey or Covert Cloth, and in Tan, Oxford, Black, Blue and Brown Cheviot, lined all through with good Silk, black or colored; velvet collar, 6-button double breasted box front, $7.50 value, special $4.98; Ladies' Coats, of fine Black and Navy all-wool Kersey, 6-button double breasted BOX COAT, dip front, fine Satin lining, worth $10, special $5.98; and Ladies' Selected Seal PLUSH COATS, handsomely lined throughout with Skinner's Guaranteed Satin, black or shades, high Medici collar and large revers, new dip front, regular $15, special . $10

Ladies' Winter Dress Skirts. Buy your DRESS SKIRTS here and have that self-assurance that rightly belongs to a well-dressed woman. This and our prices, is the secret of our enormous sales. These SKIRTS for to-day's selling are made from fine materials. They are superior in style, fit, finish and workmanship—LADIES' DRESS SKIRTS in Light and Medium Gray Homespuns, circular saddle back, panel front, special, $3.98 and $4.98; in large popular PLAIDS, stylishly matched over plain Camel's Hair effects, all new shades, $8.75 value, to-day $4.98; or in Black Winter Weight BROADCLOTH, taffeta appliqued, panel front, Nearsilk lining, velvet bound, newest saddle back and open front, regular $15, special . . . $8.98

Ladies' Suit Specials. LADIES' SUITS sold at this store always combine every desirable feature—artistic in design, perfect in detail and finish, most durable and lasting in wearing qualities. Prices moderate in comparison with real value. Two specials for to-day—LADIES' ALL-WOOL SUITS, Black and Navy Cheviot, or Homespun Cheviot in Iron Gray, Medium Gray and Bluish Gray; Coats with Fly Front, scalloped bottom or double breasted box front, fine colored silk lining; newest Skirts, habit or saddle back, worth $15, to-day $7.50; also, LADIES' ENGLISH CHEVIOT SUITS, black and navy fly front, Box Jacket, best silk lining, latest Skirt, usually $18.50, to-day, . . . $10

BIRDS OF THE ZOO AT WAR.

Condors from the Mighty Andes Humble the Pride of Eagles in a Notable Conflict.

It was a proud day for the turkey yesterday, the noble fowl which long since attained the dignity of a National institution and to whom the honor of homage has been paid by even so fastidious an epicure as Brillat-Savarin. But it was far otherwise with three of the proudest birds of the air who pose in luxurious captivity in the Central Park "Zoo." Washington Grant Funston Roosevelt, more familiarly known as "Teddy"; Sampson Schley Hobson Dewey, more familiarly known as "Sly," and Alexander Aurelius Pompey Caesar, better known as "Pomp," the star American eagles, had no cause for thanksgiving, for their pride was humbled, and, to make the matter worse, by a couple of most unprepossessing foreigners—condors from the Andes.

The disaster occurred early in the morning, when the condors were transferred from the aquatic bird cage, where they had made themselves extremely obnoxious to the inmates, to the big eagle cage. Their advent was viewed with surprise and displeasure by the eagles. The latter had previously waged continual war for supremacy among themselves with varied success, but all rivalry was laid aside in the presence of the common enemy. They repaired to the further corner of the cage and held a hurried council of war, as a result of which "Teddy" took possession of the crest of one rock, while "Sly" occupied the crest of the other, and "Pomp" took up a strategical position below and between on the eastern edge of the pool.

Meanwhile the condors had been calmly surveying their surroundings, and then undertook to make themselves owners of the cage. The smaller of the two entered the pool and began unceremoniously to splash water over "Pomp" on pretext of taking a bath. Then he emerged under "Pomp's" very beak. The eagle, with a scream of rage, rushed upon him, and the battle for supremacy was on. Immediately upon the opening of hostilities by the pool the other condor stormed the height occupied by "Sly," and "Teddy" as promptly flew to "Sly's" support. Then there was a mix-up such as had never been seen in the "Zoo" since its foundation. For three minutes the big cage seemed to be filled with great whirling, screeching feathery pinwheels, and the keepers and the police at the Arsenal turned out in haste to see what was the matter.

When the air cleared the peak of each rock was occupied by a condor, calmly regarding the audience and winking at each other, while the eagles, very much ruffled and crestfallen, were feeling themselves all over in the remotest corner of the cage while trying to hide themselves from the gaze of the spectators. For the greater part of the day the condors displayed themselves on top of the rocks with outspread wings, and the eagles were so thoroughly cowed that at feeding time they did not venture to eat until the condors had satisfied their hunger.

Tries to Kill Wife, Loses His Life.

DULUTH, Nov. 30.—Jacob Schneider attacked his wife with a meat axe early to-day, and, after chopping her horribly, saturated the house with kerosene and set fire to it. Schneider perished in the flames, but his wife was saved by her daughter.

VAIN SEARCH FOR MILLER.

Brooklyn Borough Police Concerned at Grand Jury's Strictures—Evidence that Miller Expected Collapse.

The search for William F. Miller, the Franklin Syndicate manager, of Brooklyn, and his associate, Cecil Leslie, has not been productive of any important results, so far as could be learned yesterday from the Brooklyn police. The borough Police Headquarters staff seemed to be in a state of intense uneasiness on account of the criticisms of the Grand Jury of Kings County. There was a vague presentiment yesterday about headquarters that the Police Commissioners will take action upon the Grand Jury's strictures and that a general police "shake up" may follow in a few days.

Deputy Chief Mackellar declined to discuss the matter in any way and had no new details to disclose concerning the search for the missing men.

Inspector Brennan, whose district includes the scene of the syndicate headquarters, has received information which tends to settle the much-discussed question as to just what time the Franklin Syndicate was established in Floyd Street. The information gathered further tends to prove that Miller realized that his scheme would collapse sooner or later, and did not intend to operate longer than the latter part of this month.

A man named Loefler, who lives at Myrtle and Tompkins Avenues, owns the building at 144 Floyd Street. Miller rented the second floor of this building last March and moved a desk into the front hall bedroom. He did little business for a time, but finally used the entire floor. On Oct. 1 Miller approached Loefler and asked that he dispossess the family living on the first floor of the house, whereupon he would rent the entire house. Loefler refused to do this, suggesting that if Miller wanted the use of the entire house he might buy it. "All right," responded the other promptly. "How much do you want for it?" Loefler named $3,500, a rather high figure.

"Very well, then," responded Miller, "draw up the deed, and I will deposit $200 to bind the bargain. This was done at once, and the Franklin Syndicate expanded so as to fill the entire building. During the latter part of October Loefler called for the final payment on the house. Miller said he was too busy to attend to the matter, asking Loefler to call again. This the latter did on Nov. 1.

"I'm too busy to attend to that matter now," said Miller. "Here's $500 more on deposit. We will wind up the transaction during the latter part of this month."

Loefler now has the house and $700, and is not certain as to just what he should do with the money, although he is inclined to believe that he will keep it.

Inspector Brennan does not believe that Miller ever intended to pay for the house, but simply wanted to use it until such time as he would be compelled to shut down his concern, and the inevitable he counted on coming during the latter part of November, which it did.

Runaway Horse Breaks Its Neck.

Thomas McNamara, seventy years old, of 169 Ninth Street, Brooklyn, was driving a truck across the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday when the horse ran away. On the truck with McNamara were his son Martin and the latter's three-year-old boy Joseph. McNamara was thrown out and received a scalp wound. His son and grandson held on to the seat and were not injured. The bridge police closed the gate to stop the horse. The animal's neck was broken when it ran against the gate, and it died almost instantly.

O'Neill's.

EXCEPTIONAL VALUES IN THE Girls' and Misses' Dept.

GIRLS' ONE-PIECE DRESSES made in fancy plaid, Gretchen waist has a yoke, Zouave effect, lapels of solid color combination cloth, finished with braid and buckles, extra wide suit, deep hem, lined throughout.

SPECIAL 2.75.

GIRLS' REEFERS, of boucle cloth, extra quality, collar and cape finished with cloth and lined, seams all bound.

SPECIAL 5.00.

MISSES' TAILOR-MADE SUITS made from Cheviot and Oxford Suiting, short jaunty fly front jacket, inlaid velvet collar, lapped seams in back, lined throughout with colored taffeta, habit shape skirt, percaline lined and velveteen bound.

SPECIAL 8.98.

Latest Novelties in Infants' Caps and Coats at Attractive Prices.

SIXTH AVENUE, 20TH TO 21ST STREET.

FLINT'S FINE FURNITURE

Where Old England Still Reigns.

On our dining-room floor—Adams, Chippendale, Sheraton, Heppelwhite all still hold sway. Chippendale in his very simple yet elegant manner. Sheraton using inlays makes a little more show, but for real comfort for the backs no one comes up to Heppelwhite, and always with the Britisher's love for strength of timber, at factory prices, as you

"BUY OF THE MAKER"

GEO. C. FLINT CO.

43 45 AND 47 WEST 23RD ST NEAR BROADWAY.

FACTORY 154 AND 156 WEST 19TH STREET

The New York Times Saturday Review of Books and Art.

FEATURES TO-MORROW:

RECENT MEMOIRS AND LETTERS. New Works in Biography and Reminiscences of Particular Interest and Value Published this Year.

SPURGEON. Features of the Third Volume of His Autobiography.

MRS. BURNETT'S NEW STORY. A Beautiful One, with a Long Title.

NEW LANDS OF OURS. Caspar Whitney and Franklin Matthews Write of Hawaii and Cuba.

DONNE'S LIFE AND LETTERS. Edmund Gosse's Important Work in Two Volumes.

COACHING. An Elaborate Manual by Fairman Rogers.

LONDON LITERARY LETTER. Written by WILLIAM L. ALDEN.

BRANDER MATTHEWS. Friends Far and Near Rally to His Support.

CHAT ABOUT NEW BOOKS. Interesting Comments Made by Various Contributors.

MORGAN'S "LEAGUE OF THE IROQUOIS." An Unknown Edition Turns Up in Rochester—Curious Circumstances Connected with the Sale of It.

AMUSEMENTS.

Eves., 8:15. Mats. Wed. & Sat. HERALD SQUARE THEATRE. By arrangement with estate of Augustin Daly, the great Comic Opera success, as presented at Daly's Theatre, London, 1½ yrs. "A Showy and Tuneful Extravaganza."—Times. A GREEK SLAVE

AMERICAN CASTLE SQ OPERA CO. 42ND & EIGHTH AVE. Eves., 8:10, 25c. to $1. Mat. Wed. Sat., 2:10. 1,100 Seats, 25c. Next Week, Double Bill—CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA and 1st act of FIDELIO, (in English.) Faust

5th Ave Theatre. B'way and 28th St. EVES. AT 8. MATINEES AT 2. MATINEES WED & SAT. Mrs. Fiske in Becky Sharp

KNICKERBOCKER, B'way & 38th St. Eves., 8:20. Mats. 2. MR. KENDAL Matinees Wed. & Sat. MRS. KENDAL Wed. Mats. Begin Dec. 6th. In Their London Success, The Elder Miss Blossom

BROADWAY Theatre. 41st St. & B'way. Evs. at 8. Wed. & Sat. Mats. at 2 THE GREAT SUCCESS, BEN-HUR SEATS ON SALE FOR NEXT 4 WEEKS.

Weber & Fields' MUSIC HALL, B'way & 30 St. Mats. Tues. Thurs. and Sat. Whirl-I-Gig & The Other Way.

KOSTER & BIAL'S. 50c Mat. Sat. All parts house. "ROUND NEW YORK" Jeffries, Sharkey, Corbett & Sherlock Holmes Burlesque.

NEW CUSTOM HOUSE PLANS.

Architect Gilbert Says No Further Appropriation Will Be Needed—Preparing to Begin Work.

The new Custom House will be built within the appropriation of $2,750,000. Cass Gilbert, the architect in charge, it is said, has so informed Collector George R. Bidwell. It is said in political circles that Mr. Gilbert went even further, and told Mr. Bidwell that in the event of an application for an additional appropriation, those making it would get no aid from him, and that he intended that the new structure should be adequate in all respects and should not cost more than the sum available. Congress appropriated $3,000,000, and of that sum $250,000 is to be used in the purchase of furniture and for incidentals.

Mr. Gilbert will make no material changes in the plans. The general lines seem satisfactory to all concerned, but some of the details will be changed. There is some regret expressed that the Bowling Green site is not sufficiently large to permit the construction of an attractive approach to the new building.

The tenants of the building now on the site have received notice to vacate, and bids have been invited for the removal of the old structures. The advertisement must be published for thirty days, a week will be needed to pass on the proposals, and it is considered that sixty days will be required to raze the buildings. Therefore it is estimated that the middle of March will be here before Architect Gilbert takes possession of the ground. Meanwhile borings will be made to ascertain the character of the soil, so as to determine the nature of the foundation required for the new building. It is hoped that the contract for the foundation can be awarded in time for the contractor to begin work immediately after the removal of the old buildings. No one ventures to predict how long it will take to complete the structure.

AMUSEMENTS.

Six Symphony Concerts for Young People. FRANK DAMROSCH.....Director. Dec. 2, Jan. 13, Feb. 3, Feb. 24, Mch. 10, Mch. 31, AT CARNEGIE HALL. FIRST CONCERT, Sat., Dec. 2, at 2:30. Soloist.....Miss Clara Butt. Each number on the programme will be preceded by a short explanation. Subscription and single tickets now at Schuberth's, 23 Union Square.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE. Entire Auditorium. DOG SHOW. LAST DAY. 1083 Entries. PRIZES OVER $4,000. 11 A. M. to 11 P. M. Boxes for sale at Tyson's. Under the auspices of American Pet Dog Club.

DALY'S Broadway & 30th St., at 8:15. Daniel Frohman.....Manager. Matinées WED. and SAT. DANIEL FROHMAN'S STOCK COMPANY. FIRST ANNUAL SEASON at this theatre, HENRY ARTHUR JONES'S 4-act Comedy, entitled The Maneuvers of Jane

LYCEUM 4th Av. & 23d.....at 8:30. Daniel Frohman.....Manager. Matinées Thursday & Sat. 2. CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS Annie Russell in Miss Hobbs. MONDAY, DEC. 4, 100TH (SPECIAL) NIGHT.

ST. NICHOLAS SKATING RINK. West 66th St., near Columbus Av. Open to the Public Daily Except Mondays. HOCKEY MATCH, Saturday, Dec. 2d, at 8:15 P. M., ST. NICHOLAS vs. YALE UNIVERSITY. Admission, 50 cents. Skates free.

GARDEN THEATRE, 27th St. & Madison Av. Evenings, 7:45. Saturday Matinée at 2. MR. RICHARD MANSFIELD. LAST WEEK BUT ONE, CYRANO DE BERGERAC. WEEK OF DEC. 11TH, REVIVAL OF BEAU BRUMMELL.

Criterion Theatre, B'way & 44th St. Frohman's Evs. 8:15. Matinées Wednesday and Saturday. JULIA MARLOWE | BARBARA FRIETCHIE.

DAILY, ONE CENT. SUNDAY, THREE CENTS.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

THE WEATHER. Fair and cooler; brisk southwesterly winds.

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. XLIX...NO. 15,569. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1899.—SIXTEEN PAGES. ONE CENT in Greater New York; Elsewhere, and Jersey City. TWO CENTS.

TO-DAY:
SIXTEEN PAGES,
WITH
SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

Stocks heavy.

Cash wheat, No. 2 red, 72¾c.; cash corn, No. 2 mixed, 39¾c.; cash cotton, 7 13-16c.

FOREIGN.—While trying to destroy a bridge at Colenso the Boers were driven back by the British artillery. Sharp fighting is reported at Mafeking. A rumor was current on the London Stock Exchange yesterday that Kimberley had been relieved. The speech of Joseph Chamberlain, British Colonial Secretary, at Leicester is creating comment in the French, German, and British press. Several of the French papers view it from an unfavorable standpoint and urge action. It is said the British Ambassador to France will ask for extended leave on account of attacks made by the French press on Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales. Prisoners in the French High Court trial yesterday created a disturbance on account of an order of the Court. Advices from Jamaica say there is unrest and dissatisfaction with Jimines's administration of the affairs of Santo Domingo. The Queensland Labor Ministry was yesterday defeated at its first sitting. France and Brazil are about to open negotiations on the coffee tarif.—Pages 1 and 7.

Page 1.

The Calumet Electric Street Road of Chicago has inaugurated a war on its rivals and is selling tickets two for 5 cents.

The President's message to Congress was discussed by the Cabinet yesterday. It will not be sent in until Tuesday.

Boys attempted to wreck the Continental Limited on the West Shore near Fort Plain.

Page 3.

Lieut. Gov. Woodruff denied reports that he had begun an active canvass for the nomination for Vice President.

The assignments of the Justices of the Supreme Court of New York County for 1900 were made public yesterday.

John Morrissey Gray conceded the election of his Republican opponent, James R. Howe, as Register of Kings County.

Friends of Senator Hanna are authority for the announcement that he will retire from the Chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

The Municipal Assembly adopted a resolution offered by Alderman McCall, inviting the political parties to hold their National Conventions next year in this city.

The Collector of the Port has refused the request of the agents of the plague ship J. W. Taylor that the vessel be entered in the Marine Division of the Custom House.

Senator Platt and his lieutenants held a conference on legislative matters and afterward announced that nothing had been decided. Assemblyman Fallows declared that he would not be Chairman of the Cities Committee.

It is reported that the American Sugar Refining Company will enlarge its capital to $200,000,000 and absorb the Glucose Refining Company, the Arbuckle and Doscher concerns, and a number of independent plants. The report is discredited here.

Page 4.

The rate of $1.10 fixed by the New Amsterdam Gas Company went into effect, but a Wall Street bulletin said it was not firmly maintained.

John Francis Riordan, engineer of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western train which crashed into the Buffalo express, causing the death of six persons and the serious injury of more than a score of others, yesterday gave his explanation of the accident.

Page 6.

In a quarrel over the spoils of a robbery, James McMahon was killed by his companion at Troy.

Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University proposed a scheme of uniform examinations for entrance to colleges.

The books of the Franklin Syndicate were removed to Police Headquarters yesterday, where strict scrutiny of the rumors connecting members of the force with Miller's scheme will be made.

The wife of Jere A. Wernberg, a well-known Brooklyn lawyer, was found dead from gas asphyxiation in her rooms in a Brooklyn apartment house.

The will of Garret A. Hobart, late Vice President of the United States, was probated and made public yesterday. Mrs. Hobart receives a million.

Page 7.

The State canals were officially closed at noon yesterday.

The Produce Exchange firm of Henry D. McCord & Son made a general assignment to John P. Truesdell.

Two wholesale dealers in oleomargarine, convicted of violating the law, were sent to prison to serve sentences.

The cotton mill owners at Fall River decided yesterday to raise the wages of their operatives 10 per cent. on Dec. 11.

Five members of the Board of Managers of the House of Refuge for Women were appointed by Gov. Roosevelt to fill vacancies.

New regulations issued yesterday require that documentary and proprietary stamps must be mutilated by the user, in addition to the cancellation now required.

Many of the large trusts and industrial concerns are contemplating the removal of their headquarters from Chicago to New York, on account of hostility toward them in Illinois.

Page 9.

It was said at Washington yesterday that the scheme to appoint a Civil Governor for Cuba had been permanently set aside.

The death of ex-Mayor Frederick A. Schroeder of Brooklyn causes much regret in the borough, with the public affairs of which he was so prominently identified.

John L. Blackford of Plainfield was arrested on a charge of bigamy at the Hotel Marlborough. Wife No. 1 relented after the arrest, and attributed his action to an unbalanced mind.

Page 10.

Gov. Roosevelt said yesterday that he thought the criticisms of his conduct in the Gardiner investigation unfair and unwarranted.

Brooklyn citizens who complain of the present system of the Rapid Transit Company will have another hearing before the State Railroad Commission to-day.

Capt. Cornelius Wentworth McKay, son of Donald McKay, a famous clipper shipbuilder and himself a designer and builder of that class of vessels, died yesterday.

The United States Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday indicted Sheriff Creamer and several of his deputies on the charge of seizing property held by the Federal authorities.

Page 16.

After a conference of the lawyers engaged in the Molineux trial, it was said that they expected the case to last until January.

The plan of Joseph Oussani, proprietor of a Tenderloin cafe, to erect a casino at Pocantico Hills has disturbed the residents of the locality.

The Controller was served with a peremptory writ of mandamus yesterday requiring him to pay the aqueduct claim of $700,000 of O'Brien & Clark.

Arrivals at Hotels and Out-of-Town Buyers.—Page 7.
Business Troubles.—Page 6.
Court Calendars.—Page 14.
Insurance Notes.—Page 13.
Legal Notes.—Page 16.
Marine Intelligence and Foreign Mails.—Page 4.
Markets.—Page 14.
New Corporations.—Page 14.
Real Estate.—Page 14.
Weather Report.—Page 7.
Yesterday's Fires.—Page 7.

Georgia, Midland and Gulf Released.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 1.—A paper was recorded in the Muscogee County Clerk's office to-day releasing the first mortgage of the Georgia, Midland and Gulf Railroad to the Central Trust Company of New York. The amount involved was $1,500,000.

Cleveland in a Night.

Leave New York 5:30 P. M., arrive Cleveland next morning for breakfast, by the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited. Luxurious service; no excess fare.—Adv.

BOERS BEATEN AT COLENSO

Driven Back While Attempting to Destroy a Bridge.

RUMOR OF KIMBERLEY'S RELIEF

Sharp Fighting Said to Have Taken Place at Mafeking—Burghers Admit Loss of a Number of Men.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—A special dispatch received here to-day from Frere, dated Tuesday, Nov. 28, says that while attempting to blow up a 500-foot bridge over the river at Colenso, the Boers were driven back by British artillery and mounted infantry.

While the rumors of the relief of Kimberley current on the Stock Exchange this morning may be premature in their literal sense, there seems no doubt that the pressure on the garrison has been much lightened by Gen. Methuen's successes, and the actual relief of the place must, seemingly, be a fact very shortly.

A clue to the urgency reasons which dictated Gen. Methuen's hurried march may be found in Gov. Milner's hint to the Relief Committee at Cape Town to prepare for the reception of 10,000 refugees, indicating that the garrison must have had reason to fear the reduction of Kimberley by starvation and disease.

The most recent news from Kimberley comes by way of Pretoria, and almost seems to show Kimberley and Mafeking are acting in concert with Gen. Methuen, for at the time the battle was raging at Gras Pan both Col. Kekewich and Col. Baden-Powell made sorties and assailed the beleaguerers. The result of the Mafeking sortie is not known, but according to a dispatch from Pretoria, Col. Kekewich inflicted considerable loss on the Boers, two shells killing nine and wounding seventeen in a group.

It is reported that Gen. Methuen resumed his march northward Wednesday, and expected to form a junction with the Kimberley forces Saturday or Sunday.

It is suggested in some quarters that the Boer forces have been withdrawn from the north of Cape Colony and may be hurrying to attack Gen. Methuen's rear. But reinforcements have been pushed rapidly forward from Orange River and De Aar, and it is claimed they ought to circumvent such designs.

From Lord Wolseley's announcement that it had been decided to call out one more division, it appears clear that the War Office does not look for a speedy collapse of Boer resistance.

The brief telegrams coming from Natal and the central theatre of the war, convey little information about the situation. Naauw Poort reports that half the Colesberg Dutch who responded to the Boer summonses for military service, have now returned to their homes; so, perhaps, the serious civil troubles hampering Gen. Gatacre may be lessened, and the military operations under his direction will commence.

A special dispatch from Pretoria, dated Sunday, Nov. 26, says there was another sortie from Mafeking Saturday, Nov. 25. On the morning of that day the chartered police attacked Eloff's Fort with great determination. The fight was progressing when the dispatch was sent.

Several ambulance trains left Mafeking Nov. 25 for the Free State, where heavy fighting was expected during the then coming week, when the Boers, it was added, would resist the advance of the British in the direction of Kimberley.

The War Office has not yet received Lord Methuen's casualty list. The public and the press, hitherto patient, are beginning to murmur at the apparently needless delay which keeps many families in a state of painful suspense.

It is regarded as practically certain that Lord Methuen has been reinforced by half a battalion of the Gordon Highlanders, a regiment of cavalry, and a battery of artillery, and that De Aar is being daily reinforced by troops to hold the lines of communication.

It is supposed that the Natal advance has been delayed by the necessity of getting supplies to Pietermaritzburg; but not a word emanates from any of the various commands.

MACRUM IS TO BE RELIEVED.

Consul at Pretoria Insists Upon Relinquishing His Office.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Mr. Macrum, the United States Consul at Pretoria, is renewing his appeals to the State Department to be allowed to leave his post. The department, realizing the pressing necessity of having some energetic and willing representative of the United States at Pretoria to look after the important American interests in the Transvaal as well as to carry out our obligation to care for the welfare of British citizens therein, is striving to find some Consular officer near Pretoria who will undertake to relieve Mr. Macrum.

Probably Mr. Hollis, United States Consul at Lorenzo Marques, will be asked to undertake this important charge.

NO PASSPORTS FOR THIELKUHL.

Applicant Says He Has 900 Men Who Will Go to Aid Boers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Application was made by Gustav Thielkuhl at the State Department to-day for 900 passports for members of the third expedition to be sent from this country to the Transvaal by the promoters of the Duchesse d'Uzes Legion. He failed to secure the passports. He was told, he says, that one reason why he could not secure them is that they could not be prepared before Dec. 21, the day the third expedition would sail from New York.

The second expedition, according to Thielkuhl, left New York yesterday. Some of the men went on a French liner and the others in a British ship. Still others, he says, are going on the Prairie, which is to carry United States exhibits to the Paris Exposition.

Thielkuhl expects to go on the third expedition Dec. 21, which will sail in a specially chartered vessel and will carry 900 men. The men that are being sent abroad, he explains, are not armed.

Thielkuhl was employed as a messenger in the Patent Office until Monday last, when he resigned to devote his entire attention to the Transvaal enterprise. His application to the State Department was for 900 passports for "An expedition of miners to the Transvaal."

SENATE CURRENCY BILL.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senator Platt, who is a member of the Finance Committee of the Senate, said to-day that the subcommittee at the meeting to-morrow would agree upon the terms of the financial bill to be presented to the Senate.

"Generally speaking," said he, "the Senate bill will be in agreement with the House bill. There will be several points of difference, but the essential features will be the same, and the two houses will get together without trouble."

Senator Platt thinks the passage of the financial bill by both houses is a foregone conclusion.

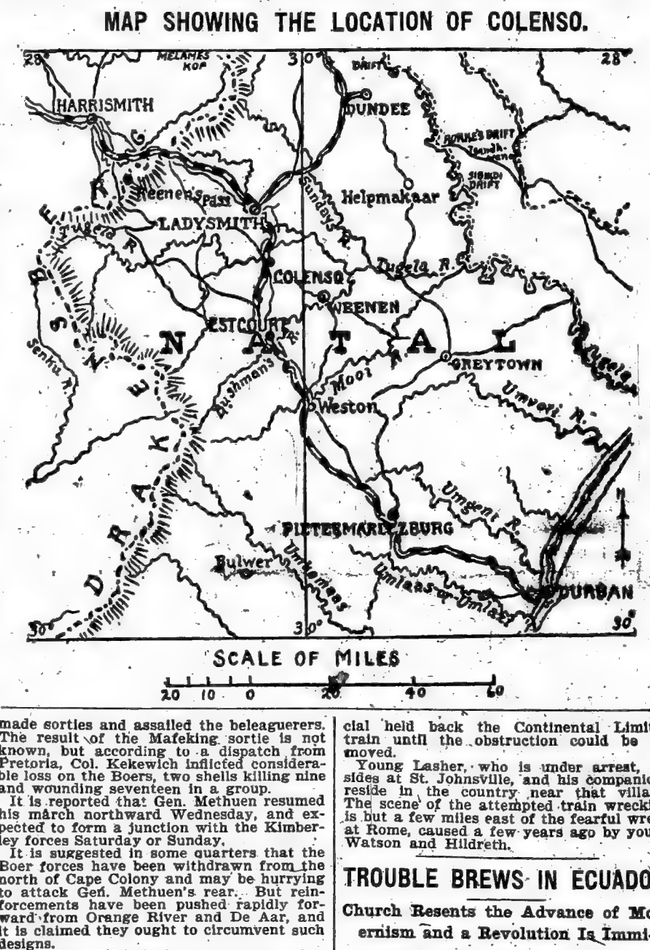
BOYS TRY TRAIN WRECKING.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Reports have been received here that Charles Lasher, aged thirteen years, is now incarcerated in the Fonda jail on the charge of attempted train wrecking.

The attempt, which was a particularly dastardly one, was made by three boys last Wednesday between Mindenville and Indian Castle, two small stations of the West Shore Railroad, between Fort Plain and Little Falls. Filled with excitement, the result of the reading of yellow-backed literature, the three boys blockaded the eastbound passenger train at a sharp curve in a rocky cut, piling across the rails a number of ties. The attempt was planned just about the right time to wreck the fast eastbound Continental Limited, the West Shore's most palatial passenger train. The train was belated and the crew of a westbound freight train, noticing the ties piled across the track, immediately notified the station agent at Indian Castle. This official held back the Continental Limited train until the obstruction could be removed.

Young Lasher, who is under arrest, resides at St. Johnsville, and his companions reside in the country near that village. The scene of the attempted train wrecking is but a few miles east of the fearful wreck at Rome, caused a few years ago by young Watson and Hildreth.

MAP SHOWING THE LOCATION OF COLENSO.



TROUBLE BREWS IN ECUADOR.

Church Resents the Advance of Modernism and a Revolution Is Imminent—Foreigners in Danger.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—Private advices received here yesterday tell of a dangerous political disturbance now fermenting in the South American Republic of Ecuador. For some weeks past trouble has been brewing between the Church and State, and recently the situation has become so acute that it is now dangerous for foreigners to venture out of the large towns.

The trouble seems to have its origin in the opposition of the priests to the work of progress which President Alfraro has permitted to be inaugurated. The President's action in the matter engendered the opposition of the Bishop of Ecuador and the entire priesthood, which soon resulted in open threats. Revolution now seems inevitable. Arrests of prominent men are of almost daily occurrence, and reports from various parts of the country indicate that the party opposed to the Government has made extensive preparation for war.

Heretofore the revolutions of Ecuador have had their rise among the dissatisfied politicians and professional revolutionists, as is generally the case in all Central and South American Republics, but the present crisis seems to be of an entirely different nature. With the Church arrayed against the Government the situation has become alarming, and a number of foreigners have left Quito, the capital. All foreigners are intensely hated, and each now has a flag of his country, furnished by the Foreign Ministers ready to be floated above his home the moment open revolution begins.

A strong evidence of the extreme opposition being made by the Church against the encroachment of modernism is the fact that recently a religious fanatic high in authority attempted to poison an American official of the railroad being built to connect Guayaquil, the coast town, with Quito, a distance of 300 miles over the mountains. The attempt was made at a banquet. While the railroad official was talking to a guest on his right the man on his left dropped some poison powder in his coffee. The intended victim was warned in time by a wink from a friend, and now he dines at home only.

A day or two later four young men, all members of prominent families, were arrested by the military while discussing the action of the President in reference to progressive ideas. They were suspected, and that was evidence sufficient to consign them to a dungeon.

Strict censorship of the mails by the Government has so far effectually checked the news of the real situation from reaching the outside world. The information which reached New Orleans was contained in advices sent by special messenger and by a tourist, who probably got through by accident.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Cabinet today discussed briefly the President's message, to which the finishing touches have been placed except to that portion relating to the Philippines.

That section of the message is being held up in the hope that the President may be able to announce the complete collapse of the insurrection before it goes to Congress. The members of the Cabinet are unanimously of the opinion that the rebellion is on its last legs, and that any day may see its end. "The Philippine question is solving itself," is the way one member put it to-day.

The President has decided not to send the message to Congress until Tuesday, as the immediate adjournment of the Senate upon the announcement of the death of Vice President Hobart would preclude its being read on Monday.

THE REPUBLICANS TO FIGHT ROBERTS

Party Leaders in the Lower House Reach This Decision.

HIS OATH TO BE OBJECTED TO

Committee Will Then be Asked for to Investigate Charges.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—At a conference of about twenty-five prominent House Republicans, held at the Capitol to-night, it was decided that the eligibility of Representative-elect Roberts of Utah to occupy a seat in the House of Representatives should be investigated and determined, and that pending the decision he should not be permitted to take the oath of office.

This decision was arrived at by those present without a dissenting voice. Representative Tayler of Ohio, who will have charge of the matter in the house, explained, after the conference had adjourned, that this proceeding does not involve a prejudgment of the case, but, irrespective of party, will afford the members an opportunity to vote after a thorough investigation and complete presentation of the case for their consideration.

Mr. Tayler had made a study of the allegations and precedents and presented them at length to his colleagues. He offered a plan of procedure, which was agreed to after a general exchange of views. The procedure is to be as follows:

When Mr. Roberts appears at the bar of the House to take the oath objection is to be made upon the ground that he is ineligible. He will then step aside and after the other members are sworn in the member making the objection—who probably will be Mr. Tayler—will recite the allegations and offer a resolution for their investigation by a special committee.

This will give the House an opportunity to vote in the first instance upon the question of postponing the administration of the oath until after the allegations have been investigated. The resolutions have not been formulated yet, but they will include the investigation of the charge that Mr. Roberts's alleged conviction of violation of the Edmunds act in 1889 renders him ineligible by the terms of that act, whether the fact that he is an avowed polygamist renders him ineligible and whether the State of Utah in electing him has not violated the compact by which she obtained Statehood.

Mr. Tayler says the precedents for objecting to the swearing in of a member duly elected and bearing proper credentials are numerous and in point. Among others are the well-known cases of Proctor Knott, Boyd Winchester, and John M. Rice of Kentucky, who were elected to Congress shortly after the war, and also were charged with ineligibility on the ground of disloyalty.

All these precedents were cited at the conference to-night. These precedents lead to the conclusion that objection can be properly made to the swearing in of a member where there are apparently well grounded reasons for believing him ineligible. The resolutions will provide for the appointment of a special committee of either seven or nine to be appointed by the Speaker.

Representative Powers of Vermont presided at the conference to-night. Those present were Henderson of Iowa, Grosvenor, Shattuck, Southard, Kerr, and Tayler of Ohio, Powers of Vermont, McPherson of Iowa, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Payne and Sherman of New York, Hill of Connecticut, Thomas of Iowa, Alexander and Ray of New York, Curtis of Kansas, Warner of Illinois, Landis of Indiana, Cannon of Illinois, Morris of Minnesota, Steele of Indiana, Long of Kansas.

The Roberts case is not to come up for consideration at the Republican caucus tomorrow night. The Republican leaders do not desire to make the question in any sense a party issue.

The League of Social Service has opened headquarters and is expecting to be able to announce definitely that Wayne MacVeigh and ex-Secretary Carlisle have been engaged to represent the opposition to the swearing-in of Roberts.

Judge J. M. Coombs, A. T. Schroder, and Mr. Ownens, all anti-Mormons from Utah, have arrived here with others to take part in the effort to oust Roberts.

There will be a mass meeting Sunday afternoon in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G Streets, Northwest, in the interest of the movement in opposition to the seating of Mr. Roberts. It will be under the auspices of the League of Social Service. The Rev. Dr. McKim, the rector of Epiphany Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Dr. Bristol, pastor of Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, and other resident clergymen will speak, while an address will be made by Dr. Sarah J. Elliot, an Episcopal deaconess under Bishop Leonard, and for seven years a resident of Utah.

W. R. Campbell of Salt Lake has sent a message to The Washington Star to denounce the recent interview with Senator Rawlings and to say that the anti-Mormon Democrats of Utah are as much opposed to the admission of Roberts as are the non-Mormon Republicans, and that the non-Mormon Democrats voted for Roberts because he pledged to vindicate himself of having lived polygamously since Statehood was granted. Campbell admits that the President has appointed polygamous men to office, and that their removal will be asked for.

LAW IN ROBERTS'S CASE.

Prof. Russell Says the House Has Full Power to Expel Him After Seating Him.

At a conference on the case of Representative Brigham H. Roberts "before the Congress and the National Conscience," held at the Neighborhood House, Rivington and Cannon Streets, last night, Prof. Isaac Franklin Russell of the New York University Law School delivered the principal address. In opening his address Prof. Russell said that he would devote himself to the law involved in the question entirely and show why and by what methods Mr. Roberts should be expelled by the National Congress.

"The House of Representatives," said Prof. Russell, "should expel Mr. Roberts. But it should first admit him to his seat and allow him to participate in the election of the Speaker. Doubtless the clerk should place the name of Mr. Roberts on the roll, as on the record there is no prima facie suggestion of contest or disqualification. The Representatives, too, should organize as a House and adopt rules before proceeding to any serious business such as expulsion. In fact, it is only a member, duly sworn and seated, who can be expelled.

"The power of either House to expel a member is absolute and unlimited and the judgment of the two-thirds majority is final."

"The authority to expel, while not included in the original draft of the Constitution," said the speaker, "had been expressly and deliberately given. "Expulsion," he said, "is not a judicial act in form." He continued:

"The power to expel is necessary for the preservation of the dignity of Congress, whose deliberations must at all times have the sanctity which unlimited confidence in their wisdom and purity can inspire. The terrible power of expulsion seems to be reasonably safeguarded by the requirements of a two-thirds majority on vote. Happily or unhappily, there are precedents for the expulsion of members of Congress."

Prof. Russell cited a number of United States Supreme Court decisions showing that polygamy had been declared unlawful. "To call the Mormon advocacy a tenet of religion," said Prof. Russell, "is to offend the common sense of mankind. A crime is none the less odious because sanctioned by a particular sect as religious."

Prof. Russell quoted decisions handed down by Justices Field, Matthews, and Bradley, all of which pronounce polygamy a crime. He also quoted from the Edmunds act, providing stringent punishment for the crime of polygamy, and said:

"By the election of Mr. Roberts, Mormonism threws down the gauntlet in the face of law-abiding and self-respecting citizens of the Republic; it dares them to assert their authority. Will they hesitate to do it? Of Mr. Roberts it is enough to say that he is a representative Mormon. He stands before us a self-confessed polygamist and a convicted law-breaker. Has Congress a seat for such among its honorable men?"

At the conclusion of Prof. Russell's address there was a discussion on the subject, in which several speakers took part, including the Rev. J. McMillan. It was unanimously voted that Congress should expel Mr. Roberts.

WOMEN AGAINST ROBERTS.

Unitarian League Will Send a Petition to Congress.

The New York League of Unitarian Women met in the Second Unitarian Church, Clinton and Congress Streets, Brooklyn, yesterday. About 250 members were present. Mrs. Wendell Jackson of Manhattan presided. The most interesting business of the meeting was the reading of a petition relative to the Roberts question.

The petition, which had been prepared by the Secretary, Mrs. E. L. Boas, was addressed to Congress, and set forth that the members of the league looked upon Mr. Roberts's admission to the House of Representatives as prejudicial to the best interests of the country. It asked that "Congress use every means to reject Mr. Roberts if it be found that his credentials do not comply with the laws of the country."

The petition was adopted with but one dissenting voice, and it will be forwarded to Congress.

MARRIED ON THE OPEN PRAIRIE.

Judge Performs the Ceremony in a Raging Blizzard in Kansas.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 1.—Yesterday Probate Judge Bailey of Stafford County made John Brenneman and Lizzie Cole man and wife out on the bleak prairies of Stafford County.

He had traveled fifteen miles, only to find that the bride lived a few hundred yards over the county line in Pratt County, out of his jurisdiction. At his suggestion the party drove across the line on to the vacant prairies, and the ceremony was performed in a raging blizzard. Judge Bailey did not want to lose his fee.

$175,000 LEFT FOR CHARITY.

Patrick Callaghan Bequeathed That Amount to Five Institutions.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Patrick Callaghan, formerly a New York lawyer, whose death occurred in this city last week, left a will in which he bequeathes the greater part of his estate, valued at $200,000, to the following institutions: Society for the Protection of Destitute Roman Catholic Children; convent at Morrisania; Foundling Asylum of the Sisters of Charity, New York City; House of the Good Shepherd, New York City, and St. Mary's Church, Poughkeepsie.

The will does not state how much each institution is to have, but, after dividing about $25,000 among relatives, the balance is left to the institutions, and will presumably be equally divided among them.

OLD RAILS SOLD AT A PROFIT.

Pennsylvania Company Bought for $18, Received $25 a Ton.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.—The Pennsylvania Company is selling old steel rails at a profit. H. O. Hukill, purchasing agent, says that last year the company contracted for 40,000 tons of steel rails at $18 a ton for delivery this year, to replace old ones on the main line west of Pittsburg, and on the Pan Handle system. The old rails that cost $18 a ton are being sold for $25 a ton, most of which have been shipped to Chicago.

This year the company placed contracts with the Carnegie Steel Company, and the Illinois Steel Company, for delivery next year at $33 a ton. The price of the Illinois Company's rails is $1 more a ton than that asked by the Carnegie Company.

Junk has been disposed of by the railroad company at the rate of $32.75 a ton.

PAPER PRICES WILL ADVANCE.

Scarcity of Coal and Supply is Cited as the Cause.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1.—The paper trade is in a serious condition, according to Albert Diem, one of the largest manufacturers in Cincinnati or the West. Mr. Diem says that within a fortnight the trust will raise prices from 20 to 25 per cent. This condition is due not so much to a desire to make profits as to an actual scarcity of the commodity.

"In fact," said Mr. Diem to-day, "it will not be a question of price, but of getting it. The mills have been unable to get coal or wood, and the season has been so dry that even water is exceedingly scarce.

"One mill, with a capacity of 110 tons a day, is getting out but twenty, and the expense is just as great as on full capacity. Another large mill I visited was burning wood at a cost of $500 a day in excess of coal, simply because it could not secure the latter. The rivers have been so low that it was impossible to float the logs down and the scarcity of cars has deprived them of coal and timber. Orders for 300 tons of paper are being cut to twenty-five and fifty tons.

"The advance is not due to the American Paper Company, the trust, but simply to absence of material, and this applies to all grades of paper and envelopes. Mills having contracts with large consumers will lose thousands of dollars.

"The advance will probably be felt locally in a week. Even at present it is impossible to get out big orders in full."

MANY PRIZE MONEY CLAIMS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The office of Auditor for the Navy Department is being deluged with inquiries concerning the progress of claims for extra pay, prize money, &c., to such an extent that it actually interferes with business. The inquiries relate to claims arising out of the Spanish war.

Fair progress is being made with claims for extra pay, but practically all those for prize money are held up indefinitely in the courts. No prize money has yet been paid on any of the claims put in by men who were engaged in battle, and the only cases which have been decided were two or three arising out of the seizure of trading vessels by Sampson's blockading squadron in the first few days of the war.

In the case of merchant vessels, the owners are making a desperate fight to prevent the award of prize money, and the payment for ships sunk or captured in action is delayed by a number of questions, such as that arising from the contention of the American fleets that the Spanish force was superior. This claim is made on behalf of the Manila squadron, and it is also contended that the ships under Sampson and Schley had to encounter a superior squadron.

The claim is disputed, especially as to the Santiago fight, and there is likewise a question as to whether the New York was entitled to share in the prize money. It is alleged that she was not within signal distance, within the meaning of the law, while the fight was going on.

Three Tooth Requisites.

a good dentist, a good tooth brush, and Sozodont Antiseptic Tooth Powder. At all druggists. —Adv.

THE WAR DEPARTMENT

Secretary Root Reviews the Work of the Past Year.

ARMY REORGANIZATION PLAN

Suggestions for Government of Our New Possessions.

Strength and Health of the Army—The Canteen Plan Upheld—Cost of the Establishment.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The first annual report of the Secretary of War, Elihu Root, covers the operations of the department since Nov. 29, 1898, and, beginning with the wiping out of the volunteer army as a result of the signing of the peace protocol by the United States and Spain, covers the increase of the army for operations in the Philippines up to date. The regular army then—Nov. 29, 1898—consisted of 2,248 officers and 61,999 enlisted men in the regular force and 1,524 officers and 34,574 enlisted men in the volunteer service. Of the regulars, there are 31,483 officers and men in the Philippines, 11,130 in Cuba, 2,942 in Puerto Rico, 465 in Hawaii, and 18,227 on the Continent of North America.

The troops now in the Philippines comprise 905 officers and 30,578 men of the regular force and 594 officers and 15,388 men of the volunteer force, making an aggregate of 1,499 officers and 45,966 men, and, when the troops on the way have arrived, the total force constituting the Eighth Army Corps will be 2,051 officers and 63,483 men.

Following the statistical statement the Secretary recites briefly the story of the military operations in the Philippines, all of which have already been published in the daily press through the official reports of Gen. Otis. There are words of commendation for the volunteer troops who willingly overstaid their time in the islands pending the arrival of their reliefs in the newly organized regiments of regulars and volunteers. At the conclusion of this merely formal review of the operations, the Secretary says:

"Acknowledgments are due to the naval forces of the United States for their cheerful and efficient co-operation with the operations of the army on land upon many occasions.

"Wherever the permanent occupation of our troops has extended in the Philippine Islands civil law has been immediately put in force. The courts have been organized and the most learned and competent native lawyers have been appointed to preside over them.

"A system of education has been introduced and numerous schools have been established. It is believed that in the City of Manila a greater number of good schools, affording better facilities for primary instruction, exist to-day than at any previous time in the history of the city."

OPERATIONS IN CUBA.

Similarly the Secretary then reviews the operations of the army in Cuba, which may be summarized as showing that the work of the army has been to try and construct some sort of civil administration that would supply the place of that wiped out, relieving the distress of the reconcentrados, perfecting a system of sanitation, paying off and disbanding the Cuban Army, and assisting the natives to return to peaceful pursuits. Of this work, he says: "In all these respects satisfactory progress has been made. * * * The part played by our troops in the maintenance of order is now substantially but the restraining influence of their presence." Of the work of sanitation in Havana, the Secretary says:

"The city of Havana is now undergoing a house-to-house renovation and disinfection. Some 2,000 houses have already been treated, and the work continues at the rate of 120 to 125 houses per day. The reports show that in no case has the process of disinfection failed to eradicate the infection, and no case of fever has occurred except from a fresh infection. The total deaths from yellow fever in Havana for the first ten months of each year since 1889 have been as follows:

1890	314	1895	512
1891	316	1896	950
1892	272	1897	991
1893	469	1898	134
1894	369	1899	63

"The deaths from all causes in Havana during the first few months after our occupation were numerous, owing to the great number of sick and dying who were there at the time of the Spanish evacuation. The rate has been steadily decreased until in September it was brought down to the annual rate of 27 per thousand and in October to 26.6 per thousand."

Industrially, he thus sums up the situation:

"The revival of industry has been necessarily slow, but has made gratifying progress. Many of the people who had been driven into the towns during the reconcentration period have returned to the country and recommenced the cultivation of the land. Tobacco has been planted very largely, and sugar to a less degree. In many parts of the island there is an adequate demand for labor at the rates which were customary before the war. The complete restoration of the sugar industry is seriously hindered by the fact that the sugar plantations are heavily mortgaged, their machinery has been destroyed, and the owners find it difficult to secure additional capital to restore the plant, because of the uncertainty which capitalists feel regarding the character of the future government of the island, and the protection which it will afford to investments. Not only are the owners of large estates affected by this circumstance, but many of the Cuban people who are ready and anxious to resume the cultivation of their farms with their own hands are still unable to do so because they have not the means to purchase the necessary animals and agricultural implements for that purpose.

"The rule of administration of the civil government of the island has been to employ the people of Cuba themselves to the fullest extent possible, and to furnish to the Cubans during our occupation an opportunity for training in the honest and efficient performance of official duties which has never been afforded to them before."

THE WORK IN PUERTO RICO.

The army in Puerto Rico has principally devoted itself to relief of the sufferers from the hurricane of August last, a work that must be continued until the new crops come in. Work has been provided for those able to do it, and the abuse of charity prevented as much as possible. Of social conditions, he says:

"A general system of education has been established under a Board of Education consisting of two Americans and three Puerto Ricans; a large number of American teachers have been secured in this country, and nearly every transport that sails from New York is carrying additions to the number. Under the former government the schools afforded opportunity for education of any description for only 8 per cent. of the children of school age in the island. Only from 10 to 12½ per cent. of the inhabitants of the island can read and write. At the time of American occupation the jails were found crowded with prisoners, who had been confined for long periods without trial, and in many cases without being informed of the charges against them. These unfortunates have either been tried or set free. The courts have been to a great extent reorganized, and their proceedings simplified and expedited. The writ of habeas corpus has been introduced. * * * At the time of change of sovereignty the island was in a condition of great disorder, and for a considerable period bandits collected in the mountains and committed depredations and maintained themselves by robbing the peaceful inhabitants. These have been dispersed and punished and order has been thoroughly restored. A number of attempts have been made to secure a general participation by the people in municipal elections and the reform of municipal governments. The results in this respect have not been very satisfactory thus far. Further experiments in the way of municipal elections are now in progress.

"The revenues of Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines have been collected and disbursed under the direction of officers of the army. * * * The collection and disbursement of the funds have, it is believed, been marked in all the islands by honesty and adherence to law wholly unknown in former administrations, and I feel warranted in the assertion that never before in the history of these islands has there been so small a proportion of the revenues applied to the cost of collection and the expenses of government, or diverted to private uses, or so great a proportion of the revenue applied to the benefit of the people of the island."

THE TRANSPORT SERVICE.

Secretary Root pays a high compliment to the management of the transport service of the army when he says: "It is gratifying to note that the entire movement has been accomplished practically without loss of life, disease, or injury to health. * * * The report of the Quartermaster General show that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, that branch of the service transported between Cuba, Puerto Rico, Honolulu, the Philippines, and the United States 202,587 passengers, 27,353 animals, and 83,150 tons of freight, and that transportation was furnished during the same period, by rail and water, exclusive of the army transport service, for 1,064,383 persons, 72,711 animals, and 544,644 tons of material. The efficiency and safety of this service and the freedom from disease and accident which have characterized it are very gratifying. The transport service on the Atlantic is conducted entirely by vessels owned by the Government, which now make regular trips between New York, Havana, Santiago, and Puerto Rico. They carried during the six months from Jan. 1 to June 30, 1899, 45,507 passengers, 29,133 tons of freight, 2,449 parcels and pieces of baggage, and 6,558 animals. The total cost of that service for this period was $1,697,744.49, including the cost of raticns, amounting to $90,500. A comparison between this and the freight and passenger rates of commercial lines plying between the same points shows that the cost of conducting the business was $501,001.51 less than it would have cost to send the same passengers and freight by the commercial lines.

HEALTH OF THE ARMY.

"The health of the army from the beginning of the Spanish war has been remarkably good. The deaths from all causes (including casualties in action) in the whole army, regulars and volunteers, for the fourteen months from May, 1898, to June, 1899, inclusive, were 6,619. This is equivalent to an annual rate of 33.03 per 1,000 of strength. The deaths from disease during the whole period were at an annual rate of but 25.68 per 1,000. * * * For an army largely drawn from a cold climate and transported suddenly to the tropics, mainly composed of new recruits not trained to care for themselves in camp or on the march, and a great part of which was stationed in a malarial country or quartered in and about cities infected with yellow fever, and especially adapted to the production of typhoid, this is an extraordinary result and reflects credit upon all the branches of the service engaged in clothing, feeding, and caring for the men.

"The significance of the annual rate of death from disease in the Philippines (17.20 per 1,000) may be better appreciated by comparison with the rates in some of our well-known American cities. The annual death rate per 1,000 is in Washington 20.74, in Boston 20.09, in San Francisco 19.41, in New York 19.28, an in Baltimore 19.10."

INSULAR GOVERNMENT.

The treaty of Paris provides:

The civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories hereby ceded to the United States shall be determined by the Congress.

I assume, for I do not think that it can be successfully disputed, that all acquisition of territory under this treaty was the exercise of a power which belonged to the United States, because it was a Nation, and for that reason was endowed with the powers essential to National life, and that the United States has all the powers in respect of the territory which it has thus acquired, and the inhabitants of that territory, which any nation in the world has in respect of territory which it has acquired; that as between the people of the ceded islands and the United States the former are subject to the complete sovereignty of the latter, controlled by no legal limitation except those which may be found in the treaty of cession; that the people of the islands have no right to have them treated as States, or to have them treated as the territories previously held by the United States have been treated, or to assert a legal right under the provisions of the Constitution which was established for the people of the United States themselves and to meet the conditions existing upon this continent, or to assert against the United States any legal right whatever not found in the treaty.

I assume, also, that the obligations correlative to this great power are of the highest character, and that it is our unquestioned duty to make the interests of the people over whom we assert sovereignty the first and controlling consideration in all legislation and administration which concerns them, and to give them, to the greatest possible extent, individual freedom, self-government in accordance with their capacity, just and equal laws, and opportunity for education, for profitable industry, and for development in civilization.

The people of the ceded islands have acquired a moral right to be treated by the United States are threefold: (1) What form of government shall be established, and what participation is that government shall the people of the island have? (2) What shall be the treatment of the municipal law of the island, and how far shall the laws which now regulate the rights and conduct of the people be changed to conform to ideas which prevail among the people of the United States?" presents little real difficulty. The civil code established by Spain for Cuba, Puerto Rico, and the Philippines, and in force at the time of the cession, is an excellent body of laws, adequate in the main, and adapted to the customs and conditions of the people. It should be continued in force, with such gradual modification as experience from time to time suggests to those who are actually engaged in enforcing it.

The trouble has been not that the law was defective or vicious, but that it has never been fairly and honestly administered. The course of such an administration will naturally lead to amendments and improvements, regarding which the people themselves who are to be affected by them should have a voice. The customs and conditions of the people who are to be governed must furnish the true basis for the law under which they are to live, and any attempt to substitute in these southern islands a system of laws based on the experience and characteristics of a New England community would be both oppressive and futile.

In order to secure a good administration of the laws, extensive changes in procedure will be necessary, and there should be material changes in the criminal law. The conditions of life are comparatively simple, and both the criminal laws and the methods of procedure may, in the first instance at least, be made simple also.

One of the ablest groups of men who ever addressed themselves to such a question in this or any other country undertook a similar task in adapting the laws of Louisiana, long living under Spanish law, to the new conditions which followed the cession of that territory to the United States. They followed with signal success the precise course above outlined.

A similar course was followed after the acquisition of Lower Canada by the English in 1763. The French province had been governed by the laws and ordinances of France and the custom of Paris, a mingled system of Roman and Frankish law. By the statute of 14, George III., the English law was introduced in criminal matters, and the private law in civil matters was left undisturbed. The result appears to have been entirely satisfactory both to the French population of Quebec and to the remainder of the Dominion which has been settled and governed under English law.

ECONOMIC TREATMENT OF ISLANDS.

(3) The question of the economic treatment of the island underlies all the others. If the people are prosperous and have an abundance of the necessities of life, they will with justice be easily governed, and will with patience be easily educated. If they are left in hunger and hopeless poverty, they will be discontented, intractable, and mutinous. The principal difficulty now in the island of Puerto Rico is that the transfer of the island from Spain to the United States has not resulted in an increase of prosperity, but in the reverse. The industry of the island is almost entirely agricultural. The people live upon the products of their own soil and upon the articles for which they exchange their surplus products abroad. Their production is in the main of coffee, sugar, and tobacco. The prosperity of the island depends upon their success in selling these products.

So long as the island was a part of the Spanish possessions there was substantially free trade with Spain and with Cuba. The total exports from Puerto Rico for the four years preceding 1897 averaged about $16,600,000, of which an average of less than one-sixth part ($2,630,000) was sold to the United States and an average of one-half ($8,025,000) was sold to Spain and Cuba. Immediately upon the transfer of the island from Spain to the United States, Spain erected a tariff barrier against the introduction of Puerto Rican products. The interests of Cuban agriculture led to the erection of a similar barrier in the tariff adopted for Cuba, so that Puerto Rico was debarred from the principal markets which she had previously enjoyed, and at the same time this country has maintained its tariff against Puerto Rican products just as it existed while the island was Spanish territory. The result is that there has been a wall built around the industry of Puerto Rico.

Even before the hurricane of Aug. 8, 1899, two crops of tobacco lay in the warehouses of Puerto Rico, which the owners were unable to sell at prices equal to the cost of production. Their sugar shared the prevailing depression in that commodity, arising from the competition of bounty-fed beet sugar. Their coffee was practically unknown in the United States and had no market here. It is plain that it is essential to the prosperity of the island that she should receive substantially the same treatment at our hands as she received from Spain when a Spanish colony, and that the markets of the United States should be opened to her as were the markets of Spain and Cuba before the transfer of allegiance. Congress has the legal right to regulate the customs duties between the United States and Puerto Rico as it pleases; but the highest considerations of justice and good faith demand that we should not disappoint the confident expectation of sharing in our prosperity with which the people of Puerto Rico so gladly transferred their allegiance to the United States, and that we should treat the interests of this people as our own; and I wish most strongly to urge that the customs duties between Puerto Rico and the United States be removed.

OUR DUTY IN CUBA.

Our temporary occupation of the Island of Cuba involves a very simple plan of operation, with some difficulties in its application which are apt to be overlooked by those who are impatient for immediate results. The control which we are exercising in trust for the people of Cuba should not be, and of course will not be, continued any longer than is necessary to enable that people to establish a suitable Government to which the control shall be transferred, which shall really represent the people of Cuba and be able to maintain order and discharge its international obligations. When that Government is established it will be its duty and right to solve for Cuba the problems above discussed in regard to Puerto Rico. Our present duty is limited to giving every assistance in our power to the establishment of such a Government, and to maintaining order and promoting the welfare of the people of Cuba during the period necessarily required for that process.

The conduct of the Cuban people has been admirable. There have, of course, been some agitators who have loudly voiced their discontent over not being allowed to personally conduct the Government themselves, but the substantial body of educated Cubans have shown themselves to be patriotic, appreciative, and helpful, while the great body of uneducated Cubans have been patient and law-abiding. The fact, however, that probably two-thirds of the people of the island are unable to read and write; that the people in general have had no experience in any real self-government, but have been for centuries under the dominion of arbitrary power; that the bloody conflicts which raged so long have necessarily left behind bitter factional feeling, make it necessary to proceed somewhat more slowly in the formation of a Government which is to command universal respect and allegiance than would be necessary in a country accustomed to the discussion of public questions, familiar with the problems presented, and trained to the acceptance of the decisions reached by the ballot.

The year allowed by the treaty for the Spanish population of the island to elect whether they will be Cuban or Spanish citizens will expire on the 11th of April next. It will then, for the first time, be possible to determine who are the citizens of Cuba entitled to take a part in her government. By that time it is believed that, the results of the census having been computed and tabulated, we shall be ready to provide for municipal elections, which will place all the local governments of the island in the hands of representatives elected by the people, and that when these local governments, thus elected, are established they will be ready to proceed to the formation of a representative convention to frame a Constitution and provide for a general Government of the island, to which the United States will surrender the reins of government. When that Government is established the relations which exist between it and the United States will be matter for free and uncontrolled agreement between the two parties.

CUBA'S INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT.

The uncertainty which retards the industrial development of Cuba and prevents the influx of capital is not only as to the character of the future Government and the safety of investments, but an uncertainty as to the future market for the sugar product of the island, upon which the prosperity of the island chiefly rests. The competition of the bounty-fed beet-sugar product of Europe has already reduced the price which can be realized for cane sugar to a point so near the cost of production that the cane producer can not pay expenses by the old method of production. Only the new and improved methods of production, on a large scale and in the most economical method and requiring large capital, make a successful competition on his part possible. The sugar producer of Cuba now finds himself confronted by two additional dangers—one, the prospect that the sugar of Puerto Rico, like that of Hawaii and possibly that of the Philippines, may be admitted into the great market of the United States free of duty, while Cuban sugar is required to pay duty; and the other, the prospect of ratification by the Senate of the reciprocity treaties already negotiated, under which the sugar of the British West India Islands would be admitted to the United States at a 20 per cent. reduction of duties, while Cuban sugar would continue to pay the full duty.

A table showing the comparative returns to the producers of sugar in the principal countries from which the United States derives its supply, after allowing for the duties imposed under the conditions above stated, and assuming the basis of the New York price July 1, 1899, of 4½ cents per pound for standard, 96 test, centrifugal sugar, shows that the Cuban produceer would realize but 2.69 cents per pound for his product, against 2.71 cents for the German, 3.02 cents for the British West Indian, 4.14 cents for the Hawaiian, and 4.28 cents for the Puerto Rican product.

Under these conditions, as the United States is the great market for Cuban sugar, and the prosperity of Cuba depends upon that market, it is highly probable that, however competent and efficient may be the government of Cuba into whose hands we surrender the control of the island, the first measure of self-preservation which that government will be compelled to consider will be to undertake to secure from the United States some tariff arrangement under which Cuba can sell her sugar at a profit. The uncertainty whether that arrangement can be made now stands in the way of the revival of the sugar industry in Cuba.

It cannot be doubted that when the question of future relations between this country and Cuba comes to be considered by the representatives of the two countries the United States will deal generously in all respects, with the people for whom she has made such great sacrifices.

It does not seem that, so long as we retain the control of Cuba and preclude her people from making trade agreements or treaties on their own account, we ought to treat her sugar producers less favorably than we do their competitors in the West India Islands which are subject to other powers, and I recommend that during the period of our occupation of the island the duties imposed upon the importation into the United States from the products of that island be reduced to the same rates which will be imposed upon the goods imported from Jamaica in case the Senate shall ratify the pending reciprocity treaties.

THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The full report which will be presented by the Philippine Commission renders unnecessary any extended statement by me on the subject of government in those islands. Since the members of the commission left Manila on their return to this country, a civil government has been installed in the Island of Negros under the temporary Constitution framed by representatives of the people and modified by agreement between them and Brig. Gen. James F. Smith, United States Volunteers, commander of the United States forces at that point. The relative participation of the people of Negros and of the officers of the United States in the government is entirely satisfactory to both parties, as a temporary expedient, and the reports indicate that Negros is now enjoying a greater degree of order and contentment than at any time in her recent history.

The Sultan and principal chiefs of the islands have recognized the succession of the United States to the rights of Spain in the Sulu Archipelago by an agreement negotiated and executed on the part of the United States by Brig. Gen. John C. Bates, United States Volunteers, on the 10th of August 1899, subject to the approval of the President. This agreement has been approved subject to the action of Congress in the exercise of the power expressed in the clause of the treaty, which provides that "the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territory ceded to the United States shall be determined by the Congress;" and with the understanding, which the military Governor of the Philippines has been directed to communicate to the Sultan, that the approval of the agreement was not to be deemed to give the authority or consent of the United States to the existence of slavery.

THE PACIFIC CABLE.

I wish to call especial attention to the importance of direct cable communication between the United States and the Philippine Islands. Our present telegraphic communication is by way of England, France, Egypt, India, and China. The cable tolls of the War Department messages alone to and from the Philippines for the last five months have averaged $27,114.12 monthly, a rate of over $325,000 a year. The communication would have been much more extensive and frequent had it not been limited by the great cost to the most important messages. While it is not to be anticipated that any communication of such an extent will be necessary for a very long period, it is plain that the necessities of government will continue to require an amount of communication sufficient to furnish a large item of revenue to a direct cable line, while the growing business relations between this country, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, and the East require this facility and will greatly profit by it.

Trade tends to follow the line of least resistance in communication, and the construction of such a line is a necessity if we are to realize our just anticipations of an increased market in the East for American products. The opening of communication for the people of the Hawaiian Islands will be of great value to them. It would be better not to rely upon lines running through the territory of other powers and subject to their control for communication between the United States and the civil and military authorities in the islands over which we have assumed the duty of protection and government.

A very thorough investigation recently made by Great Britain preparatory to the laying of a trans-Pacific cable between British Columbia and Australia has demonstrated beyond question the practicability not only of the cable proposed by Great Britain, and for which bids are now being received, but of a cable between California and the Philippines via Hawaii, Wake Island, and Guam. The length of such a cable would be 7,493 miles, as against 7,986 miles for the proposed British cable, and the cost is estimated by the United States Signal Office as not exceeding $8,500,000 at the present market rates for material.

If the intermediate landing between Hawaii and Guam be made at Midway Island instead of Wake Island, the route would be some 125 miles longer, but it would give a better station and would avoid the greatest ocean depth encountered on the other route.

The history of Atlantic cables and the opportunity and capacity of the American people to secure a large share of the vast trade of the East justify confidence that such a cable would be a remunerative investment for the capital employed, as well as a great and substantial benefit to our country and to our new territory.

SEACOAST DEFENSES.

Of operations under the plans for seacoast defense adopted by the "Endicott Board," he says: "The recent progress has been rapid and gratifying. The present condition of the engineering work is such as to permit of effective defense against naval attack at most of the principal ports of the country when the guns are provided and properly manned. * * * At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1899, provision had been made for emplacing 297 heavy guns, 303 rapid-fire guns, and 344 mortars, being about 60 per cent., 37 per cent., and 34 per cent., respectively, of the aggregate number of heavy guns, rapid-fire guns, and mortars projected for the defense of the seacoast. * * * The number of heavy guns completed up to Nov. 30, 1899, was 83 eight-inch, 114 ten-inch, 83 twelve-inch, and 269 mortars. Under the provisions of the fortifications act approved March 3, 1899, additional contracts have been placed for five sets of ten-inch gun forgings, fifteen sets of twelve-inch gun forgings, and thirty-eight sets of twelve-inch mortar forgings. Three hundred and fifty-eight twelve-inch mortars in all have been completed or are under manufacture. Six hundred and five seacoast gun carriages of all classes had been delivered by the Ordnance Bureau up to June 30, 1899, of which 216 were delivered during the fiscal year ending at that time. Three hundred and eighty such carriages remain under manufacture. The entire amount expended in the plan of seacoast defense down to the 30th of June, 1899, was $46,979,285.93. There still remain to be provided for under the plan 71 heavy guns, 452 rapid-fire guns, and 679 mortars. The total cost of completing the work is estimated at $63,274,766.

ARMY CANTEENS.

The Secretary dwells at length on the proposition to wipe out the army "post exchanges," popularly known as canteens, the legislation in answer to popular clamor regarding them, and the steps taken by officers to so control them that no evil shall result from the sale of beer and light wines, which is alone permitted under the regulations. As to the continuance of the sale of even these beverages, inquiry was instituted among army officers. The overwhelming testimony of the army is to the effect that the present regulation has promoted the temperance, discipline, morals, and health of the enlisted men, and that in the interest of morality and effective service it should be retained. No change has accordingly been made in the regulation."

Commenting on these reports the Secretary says: 'In considering the testimony of these officers it should be borne in mind that enlisted men are not always on duty; that during considerable portions of their time they always are, and necessarily must be, permitted to go about outside of their camps and posts just as other citizens do, and that when they are thus at liberty it is impossible to subject them to restraints which are not also imposed upon the other members of the community. In States where the sale of intoxicants is permitted by law, soldiers will drink outside the camp or post, just as other people drink, and it cannot be prevented except by confining them to the limits of the camp or post. This would not only be unjust and injurious, but would reduce enlistment to imprisonment, and immediately put an end to enlistments. The practical question to be considered is not whether soldiers should drink or not drink, but whether they should be permitted to drink beer in the camp, surrounded by the restraining influences of discipline and good association, or whether they should be driven to drink bad whisky in the vile resorts which cluster around the limits of every military post and camp, and especially around those in which prohibition is maintained. I have no doubt that the present regulation furnishes the wise answer to this question."

RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

The sum necessary to provide for work under the continuing contracts upon which the Corps of Engineers has entered will during the ensuing year amount to $15,436,626.68. The prosecution of the improvements under the Mississippi River and the Missouri River Commissions in the most economical and efficient manner will require a further sum of $4,946,000. The estimates for the general work of river and harbor improvement submitted by the engineers amount to a further sum of $21,906,821.78, which would make an aggregate estimate of $42,289,448.16, or some $18,000,000 in excess of the appropriations for the last year.

The improvements for which these estimates are made, so far as they have not already been authorized by Congress, have all been examined by the engineers, pursuant to the directions of Congress, and have been approved by them as meritorious. I have not felt willing, however, to ask for this large increase of appropriations for this purpose at a time when we are incurring such great and extraordinary expenditures for military purposes, and I have reduced the estimates to be submitted to Congress for general river and harbor purposes from $24,906,821.78 to $14,093,741.31, excluding those projects which can be permitted to wait with the least disadvantage.

VARIOUS RECOMMENDATIONS.

Secretary Root recommends legislation permitting the retirement of Major Gen. Shafter with his full rank; the erection of a statue to Gen. Grant in Washington; the building of a memorial bridge from Washington to the National Cemetery on Arlington Heights; buying battlefield parks, which shall include the sites of the battles of Fredericksburg, Salem Church, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, and Spottsylvania Court House, and provision for extra pay to War Department clerks for extra work.

ARMY REORGANIZATION.

Before the 1st of July, 1901, when, under existing law, the present volunteer force must be disbanded and the present regular force restored to its peace basis of 26,610, we shall be compelled to face the practical necessity of providing for some increase in the regular army. It is manifest that however speedily the insurrection in the Philippines may be quelled, we shall be required to maintain for a long time in those islands a considerable force to furnish the protection which the inhabitants are entitled to receive from us, and to maintain order among the savage and semi-civilized trades which still exist in nearly every island. There is no occasion to doubt that the expense of this portion of the military establishment can readily and properly be defrayed from the insular revenues.

It is not conceivable that a practical people should expend the great sums we are devoting to our seacoast fortifications, and the delicate and complicated machinery of modern ordnance with which we are equipping them, and not provide an adequate force of men to care for, preserve, and become familiar with the use of the guns and machinery. An increase in our artillery force will be absolutely necessary for this purpose. The present heavy artillery force is about one-fifth of the requisite number.

I beg to suggest that the manifold services which have been rendered by officers of the army of the United States during the past year in almost every branch of civil government, and the effective zeal and devotion which they have established in succoring the distressed, teaching the ignorant, establishing and maintaining civil law, fighting against pestilence, introducing sanitary reforms, and promoting and aiding peaceful industry should be regarded as proof, if any were needed, that American soldiers do not cease to be American citizens, and that no danger is to be apprehended from a reasonable enlargement of the army which affords such evidence of its character and spirit.

It is greatly to be desired that at the same time, while the lessons drawn from the experience of recent war are fresh in our minds, some improvements should be made in the organization of the army.

REFORMS ARE NEEDED.

For many years various criticisms upon our present organization have been made and discussed, and a number of measures for improvement have been recommended by my predecessors or embodied in bills introduced in Congress. Some noticed improvements have been made, notably the three-battalion form of regimental organization, which, after being urged by several successive Secretaries of War and advocated by all the high military authorities in the country for a generation, was finally authorized by the act of April 26, 1898.

As to most of the proposed changes, however, there has not been a sufficient public interest in the subject or a sufficiently strong conviction of the importance of good organization to overcome the diversity of opinions and personal interests desirous of being left undisturbed.

The method of proposing and considering, one by one, specific remedies for specific defects does not seem to be an adequate treatment of the subject. It seems to me that the best course would be to settle upon the true principle which should govern the use to be made of the army and then inquire in what respect our present arrangement fails to conform to that principle, and make it conform.

Two propositions seem to me fundamental in the consideration of the subject:

First—That the real object of having an army is to provide for war.

Second—That the regular establishment in the United States will probably never be by itself the whole machine with which any war will be fought.

The first of these statements seems like a truism, and it will probably be received everywhere without conscious denial. Yet the precise contrary is really the theory upon which the entire treatment of our army has proceeded for the thirty-three years between the civil war and the war with Spain. Present utility was really the controlling consideration, and the possibility of war seemed at all times so vague and unreal that it had no formative power in shaping legislation regarding the army. The result was an elaborate system admirably adapted to securing pecuniary accountability and economy of expenditure in time of peace; a large number of small and separate commands, well officered and well disciplined, very efficient for police duty against Indians, and as separate commands unsurpassed anywhere in fighting qualities, and a class of officers most of whom were of a high order of individual excellence, who rendered valuable service in the construction of public works, as instructors in colleges, and in a great variety of professional duties at separate posts and with their commands, but who, with the exception of the general officers, were arranged in rank without any reference whatever to their respective abilities to command or to render effective service. The result did not include the effective organization and training of the army as a whole for the purposes of war. This was not because the army did not wish such organization and training, but because it was not permitted to organize and train for that object. The army has many able, educated, and competent officers, who have thought much upon the subject and deeply regretted this condition, but who have been unable to secure a change.

I think this without any revolutionary interference with the general scheme of organization or with individual rights, and without excessive expense, a great improvement can be made in the way of conforming the organization and training of the army to its true purpose. It is not reorganization which is needed, but the grant of opportunities for development along lines which are well understood and appreciated by the army itself.

COMPREHENSIVE PLAN NECESSARY.

The preparation of an army for war involves at least these four things:

First—Systematic study by responsible officers of plans for action under all contingencies of possible conflict, and with this study of the larger problems of military science and the most complete information of the state of the art, study of the constant improvements in implements and methods of warfare, and of the adaptability of improvements and inventions for the purpose of carrying out the plans devised, and study of the arrangement of territorial and tactical organizations; and the establishment of depots, camps, fortifications, and lines of communication with reference to these plans, so that all expenditures for each separate step of development may contribute toward the practical realization of a comprehensive and consistent scheme. This requirement is not to be met by the separate study and reflection of single officers not charged with the duty or able to give effect to their conclusions. The responsibility of declared duty, the comparison of different views, the contribution of different minds, the correction and evolution of discussion, the long continued, laborious, and systematic application of a considerable number of minds of a high order, and with a recognized status giving authority to their conclusions, are needed to produce the desired result.

To illustrate: The War Department has recently received numerous applications from different parts of the country for the acquisition of tracts of land and the establishment of permanent camping places for the encampment and training of soldiers in large bodies, which the people of the country evidently realize ought to be provided for. There are different ways in which these applications may be treated. They may be rejected or favored with reference to the advantages which they will afford to the people of the towns in the neighborhood of the proposed camps through the business which would result from the maintenance of troops there, or they may be rejected or favored according to the healthfulness of the locations and conveniences which they will afford, and the ease of access from the points whence troops would naturally be drawn. Neither of these methods is at all satisfactory. If such camps are to be established, their locations should be selected with reference to carefully devised and comprehensive plans, one feature of which consists in determining the points at which troops can most usefully be mobilized for immediate use in case of war, so that by sending troops to them in time of peace we would be doing the very same thing which we have to do in time of urgent necessity, and so that every railroad that is built, every side track that is laid, and every building that is erected will leave so much less to do when war threatens. Such plans cannot be improvised; they cannot be produced by any other process than that above indicated.

THE QUESTION OF ARMAMENT.

Second—The preparation of material of war, keeping pace with the progress of military science and adapted to the conditions to be anticipated when war shall arise.

Gratifying progress has been made recently in this respect, but with the restoration of peace we may apprehend that there will be to some extent a return to the same indifference which left us without smokeless powder or small-bore magazine rifles in the Spring of 1898. Under such conditions it is necessary that questions as to the character and form of material should be settled by authority beyond reasonable question, and that the things which ought to be done should be indicated clearly and positively. In no other way is it possible that such things shall be done. At present the opinions of the artillery or infantry using a weapon, of the ordnance officers making it, of the department commander, and of the Major General commanding the army, may all differ on such questions, and there is no way of settling them except after an appropriation, by the decision of the Secretary of War, who cannot possibly study the subject thoroughly, or before the appropriation, by a committee of Congress with whom the differing opinions naturally tend to destroy each other and to prevent any action whatever. Some body of competent men whose business it is to be familiar with the whole field of invention, to consider it, to discuss it, and to reach conclusions upon it, alone can furnish those authoritative determinations which are necessary to effective demands for adequate material.

TO SECURE SUPERIOR OFFICERS.

Third—An adequate process of selection according to merit and effectiveness among the officers of the army, so that the men of superior ability and power may be known and placed in positions involving responsibility and authority.

Without some such process in time of peace the selection has to be made after war has commenced, at the expense always of treasure and of life, and sometimes of temporary failure and humiliation. Such a process of selection will necessarily at the same time afford an incentive to exertion and a reward for professional attainments and effective service, while stimulating the development of the capable officer and bringing to the front the men best able to bear responsibility and perform the difficult duties to be confronted in actual hostilities.

Fourth—The exercise and training of the officers and men of the army in the movements of large bodies of troops by brigade, division, and corps under conditions approaching as nearly as possible those to be anticipated in executing the plans devised for their action in war.

Officers who have never seen a corps, division, or brigade organized and on the march cannot be expected to perform perfectly the duties required of them when war comes. The collection of large bodies of men presents not the same difficulties presented by a small body, multiplied or increased in degree, but entirely new difficulties which only experience can qualify men to meet. The sanitation, the care, the discipline, and many of the duties are new to the man who has dealt only with a company or a regiment. The highest efficiency under these conditions can be attained only by giving experience approximating as nearly as possible to that which will be encountered when the war machinery is required to do its proper work.

I think the following steps may be taken to advantage:

AN ARMY WAR COLLEGE.

1. That an army war college should be established, which shall be composed of the heads of the staff departments, properly so called, and a number of the ablest and most competent officers of high rank in the army, (including, of course, the Major General commanding,) these officers to be detailed for service in the college for limited periods, so that while the college shall be continuous in records, character, and performance, it shall continually and gradually change in its personal elements. It should be the duty of this body of officers to direct the instruction and intellectual exercise of the army, to acquire the information, devise the plans, and study the subjects above indicated, and to advise the Commander in Chief upon all questions of plans, armament, transportation, mobilization, and military preparation and movement.

This college should have combined with it, reinforced and enlarged in its scope and effectiveness, the present division of military information of the Adjutant General's office, where its records and its conclusions should be preserved. It should not supersede, but should incorporate, continue, and bring under the same general management the present service schools, supplementing where it is necessary their courses, which now, so far as instruction is concerned, largely cover the ground. Its instruction would, at the outset and perhaps permanently, be given through these schools, but it should give unity, influence, authority, and effectiveness in military affairs to the work and the thought developed in them, aside from mere instruction, and a weight and utility to their records of the efficiency and merit of their pupils which are accorded to them in proportion to the high character of the work they have done.

2. That every officer of the army below the rank of a field officer, and not already a graduate of one of the service schools, should be detailed for some fixed period during his service to receive instruction at this college in the science of war, including the duties of the staff, and in all matters pertaining to the application of military science to National defense; that provision should be made for the continuance of such instruction by correspondence after the expiration of the period of each officer's detail, and that all officers should be invited and entitled to present, by written papers and reports, as a part of the regular course and for credit upon their efficiency records, the results of their investigations, explorations, reflections, and professional and scientific work, and upon such special subjects as may be prescribed by the college.

STAFF, LINE, AND PROMOTIONS.

3. That all staff appointments should hereafter be made from the line of the army for a fixed period of, say, four or five years, the holder to return to the line at the end of the period, and not to be eligible to reappointment until after at least one year's service in the line, and that after the expiration of a reasonable period the selection of staff appointments should be made on the basis of proficiency and fitness, as shown in the War College, (or heretofore in the service schools,) including as elements for consideration both the work done during the period of detail and the post-graduate work. Excepting, however, that such appointments should also be permitted for gallant and meritorious conduct in the field, shown by recommendations of commanding officers for brevet promotion made during the progress of a war, and excepting that for the technical and scientific branches of engineering, ordnance, and signal service examinations should be continued; that all promotions in the staff itself be upon the basis prescribed for original appointment, combined with efficiency of service in the staff.

4. That the present system of promotion by seniority should be modified as to all officers now or hereafter below field rank, by making a specific proportion of the promotions to each grade for seniority, and a specific proportion on the basis either of efficiency records in the war college or heretofore in the service schools, including both elements of work done during actual attendance and subsequent thereto, or for gallantry in the field during war, or both, accompanied in each case by evidence of faithful performance of the ordinary duties of the line.

Fifth—That all selections of candidates for staff appointments and for staff promotions and for line promotions, other than those made for seniority, should be made by boards of officers appointed for that purpose, upon an examination and estimate of the efficiency records exhibiting the grounds for appointment or promotion above stated. Nothing can be more important than that the officers of the army shall feel that their rise in rank depends upon what they do; that ability, intellectual activity, faithful performance of duty, and gallant conduct are more certain claims to preferment than social or political influence. A system of promotions which is divorced from the efficiency record is not merely unjust, but it destroys ambition and checks the effort of the army. The way to prevent the separation is by a systematic provision to enable every officer to show what there is in him, and to preserve a full record of what he does, by providing a competent and disinterested body to pass judgment on the record, and by a law making the judgment thus reached on this basis the imperative and sole ground of selection for promotion.

MOBILIZATION AND CO-OPERATION.

These provisions will go far toward accomplishing results which are provided for in the organization of every considerable army in the world, and which under our organization are not the business of anybody in particular, and for the most part cannot be accomplished by any one whomsoever; and if Congress will then make the appropriations necessary for periodical mobilization and manœuvres the four requisites of preparation of war above stated can be substantially attained. The only element in these recommendations which does not result necessarily from a statement of the requirements is the limitation on the period of staff duty and the periodical return to the line. I think this will be beneficial to the staff, and will do away with the feeling quite prevalent in the line that the staff is a privileged class, divorced from its old associates, and a tendency toward unfriendly criticism which seems to me to be prejudicial to good discipline and efficiency of the service.

Another question which is now performed to a very slight degree, and which is of very great importance, should be performed by the proposed war college acting in co-operation with the existing naval war college, that is, the union of the army and the navy in the collection and utilization of information, studying and formulating plans for defense and attack, and the testing and selection of material of war. Communication, conference, and interchange of instructors between the two institutions could not fail to be of great value to both services, and to make easier and more certain that perfect co-operation which is so essential both in forming and executing the plans which involve the operations of both forces.

AN ARTILLERY HEAD NEEDED.

There are two special changes which, I am clear, the same principles require. One is that the artillery branch of the service should have a head. The present guns, carriages, projectiles, explosives, and all the complicated and delicate machinery which belong with them, are made and delivered over to the artillery branch, and there is no one to represent or speak for the men who are to work with the tools thus furnished. There are seven Colonels of artillery, and it is not the business of any one of them more than another to speak for his branch of the service. The valuable results of experience in the use of the ordnance machinery are not utilized because it is not the business of any one in particular to insist upon it. Little complaints against the ordnance or engineers, which could easily be set right if it were somebody's business to attend to it, remain as causes of irritation. The use of modern ordnance is a highly specialized and scientific business, and there ought to be an expert charged with the duty and the responsibility of seeing that the officers and men of the corps understand their business and are properly trained in it. This officer should be a member of the war college, and might well be on the staff of the Major General commanding. He should not be the head of an additional bureau.

The other change referred to is the increase of the number of Inspectors General

Tiffany & Co.
Holiday Announcement
Owing to the unusual number of orders for jewelry and silverware, Tiffany & Co. advise their patrons desiring special products for the holidays, that to avoid disappointment, it is absolutely necessary to place their orders without delay.
Tiffany & Co.
UNION SQUARE
NEW YORK.

Ch in
Pu ses.
W direct attention to a la r, richer and more va ed assortment of Sterling
Si er Chain Purses than ha ever before been shown.
T mesh is closely woven,
ar each link neatly and st ngly soldered. The prices ar uniformly moderate.
MINIA URE PURSES at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.75
FLAT HAIN PURSES at $2.25, $3.00, $4.00, $4.50, $5.00 and $6.00
FLAT HAIN PURSES
Gil d in the new rose finish, and set ith Amethysts and Garnets, at $10.00 and $12.50
ECCEN TRIC CIRCULAR
Fla Chain Purses, a recent ad-
diti to the stock, at $5.50, $6.50, $7.50 and $9.00
EXTE SION PURSES, small sizes, at $7.00 and $8.00
EXTE SION PURSES, large sizes, at $9.00, $10.00 and $12.00
EXTE SION PURSES,
Gun Metal, fine mesh, at $18.00
EXTE SION PURSES,
Gil d, set with Amethysts, the top of these purses handsomely cha d, at $16.50, $20.00, $24.00, $30.00, $40.00 and $50.00
CHAT LAINE BAGS
wi pin and chain, $16.50, $20.00 and $25.00
Theodore A. Kohn & Son
JEWELERS
56 West 23d St.

Choice Oriental Pearls
all sizes, of the extremely fine quality now so much desired but difficult to obtain.
364 FIFTH AVENUE
Howard & Co.

Kent's Rotary
Knife Cleaning Machines.
100,000 IN USE IN EUROPEAN HOTELS AND FAMILIES.
LEWIS & CONGER, Sole Agents,
13 AND 132 WEST 42D ST.

A Old Nurse for Children.
MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP
for children teething should always be used for children while teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, regulates the bowels, and is the best remedy for diarrhea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CREMO
DO YOU KNOW
Uneeda Biscuit

Silverware
IN Sterling Silver and Gold and Silver Plate
Meriden Company 208 Fifth Ave.
Silversmiths Madison Square
International Silver Co. Successor 1128-30 Broadway

GERMEA
(FOR BREAKFAST)
Have you tried GERMEA? If not do so at once. You will like it. It is suitable for man, woman and child the whole year round. Ask your grocer for trial package.

the regiment, produce this result to a degree not previously attained.

Following these lines and working through the methods which I have described, a permanent plan ought to be wrought out with the concurrence of the military authorities of the several States, and enacted by Congress, for the creation of a war army composed of both regulars and volunteers whenever such an army in required. The part to be taken by the regular army in the new organization and the part to be taken by the volunteers should be prescribed, and the parts should be so assigned that the new organization shall have the fullest possible benefit of the preparation of the regular army.

The form and the machinery for the organization of the new army and the part to be taken in the raising of the army by the military authorities and organizations of the several States should be indicated, so that whenever war threatens, and long before it is declared, the multitude of men who are to do the work of organization may know, without waiting for an act of Congress, what will be required of them when the hour strikes, and may be engaged in the quiet and deliberate preparation so necessary in advance of action to prevent confusion and mistake.

The value and importance of securing during the time of peace information as to the capacity and fitness of civilians instructed in military affairs, and available for volunteer commissions cannot be overestimated. It was well illustrated by the great advantage which we had in appointing the officers of the present volunteer force by reason of having in the War Department the efficiency records of their service during the war with Spain. Without some such information all names are alike. When war has come, or is imminent, there is no time for examination or investigation. There are too many officers to be appointed in too short a time. Efficiency records can be established not only in war but in peace also. Courage may fairly be assumed among Americans, and intellectual and moral qualities can be ascertained and recorded in the way I have indicated.

WEST POINT SHOULD BE ENLARGED.

The foregoing considerations naturally bring to mind the Military Academy at West Point. I believe that the great service which it has rendered the country was never more conspicuous than it has been during the past two years. The faithful and efficient services of its graduates since the declaration of war with Spain have more than repaid the cost of the institution since its foundation. They have been too few in number and most heavily burdened.

The capacity of the academy is not sufficient for the present needs of the army on a peace footing. It will be far more deficient for the army with the absolutely necessary increase. Preparation for the greater army which we should be ready to create in case of future war should be made. Our experience during the past two years has shown that we had not too many trained officers, but too few, both in the staff and in the line, and both ought to be increased. I urgently recommend that the capacity of the academy be enlarged and the number of its students increased.

There are other respects in which the existing system can be improved in the direction of simplicity and effectiveness, but I regard them as less vital than the matters which I have mentioned. I hope to make specific recommendations regarding them before the time comes for such action as Congress may see fit to take.

These suggestions for the improvement of our army organization should not be taken as involving the continuation or disparagement of the system generally. Such a conclusion could be reached only by a narrow and prejudiced view looking for the defects and refusing to see the merits.

No organization could have produced the results exhibited by the army during the past two years which was not in the main sound, and efficient. With its handful of regular officers and its small body of trained troops, merged with nearly double their number of raw recruits and combined with large forces of new, untrained volunteers, it has in surprisingly short periods of time produced a great body of men, uniformly well disciplined, of good conduct and morale, patient in endurance of hardships, steady, indomitable, and heroic in action, and who against the debilitating influences of tropical climates, against physical obstacles which seemed insurmountable, and against enemies of superior numbers and approved courage, and armed with weapons of modern warfare, have won a long series of victories, unbroken by a single defeat.

The officers of the volunteer force are entitled to their full share of the credit of this achievement. Without the splendid virility and courage of the enlisted men it could not have been accomplished; but it is fair to all to say that the chief formative power—the dominating influence which made the achievement possible—was the organization, the training, the discipline, and the example of the officers and men of the regular army. The officers of that army have maintained the honor, advanced the interests, and exalted the reputation of our country in the discipline and command of our troops on the battlefield, and in successful civil and military administration under most difficult circumstances, where failure would have been a National humiliation.

Department Finances.

Under the act of March 9, 1898, making an appropriation of $50,000,000 as a National defense fund there was allotted to the War Department $18,969,627.68, and this, with the exception of a balance of $3,046,228.57, had been expended at the close of the last fiscal year. Of other finances of the department the Secretary says:

"The appropriations for the year ending June 30, 1900, were made on a basis of a military force which has been greatly exceeded by the exercise of the authority conferred under the act of March 2, 1899, and the raising, equipping, and transporting to the Philippines of additional troops and supplies. It will therefore be necessary to ask Congress for a deficiency appropriation of about $51,000,000, bringing the total amount of the appropriation for the current year up to about the amount of the estimates which have been submitted for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1901.

"This will not be altogether a new appropriation in any but a technical sense, as more than two-thirds of the sum can be made available by the reappropriation of sums which have once been appropriated for purposes of the war with Spain, and which the speedy termination of that war has enabled the department to save and report as unpledged. On the 30th of November, 1898, the department transmitted a statement showing the unpledged balances from the extraordinary war appropriations available, if reappropriated, to meet the War Department deficiency estimates for the expenses of the army for the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899.

"By the act of Jan. 5, 1899, Congress reappropriated and made available for such expenditure $40,000,000 of the total sum so reported.

"The department is now prepared to report the further sum of $35,000,000 from the same appropriations, which has not been used and can be reappropriated by Congress to help meet the above-mentioned War Department deficiencies for the remainder of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1900, leaving about $16,000,000 of really new appropriation to be made for the same purpose."

EXPENDITURES, APPROPRIATIONS, AND ESTIMATES.

The total expenditures of the War Department for the year ended June 30, 1899, were $260,567,868.98; the appropriations for the year ending June 30, 1900, are $124,504,371.71, and the appropriations asked for for the year ending June 30, 1901, are $185,903,551.03. A comparison of some of the principal items under the three heads that show wide fluctuations are as follows:

	Expenditures for the Fiscal Year Ended June 30, 1899.	Appropriations for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1900.	Estimates for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1901.
Civil establishment	$1,986,089.13	1,967,706.00	2,168,066.00
Pay, &c., of the army	74,013,355.58	29,106,846.97	47,198,076.80
Subsistence of the army	25,359,312.56	9,752,621.09	11,112,242.75
Regular supplies, Quartermaster's Department	13,258,445.16	7,200,000.00	9,264,000.00
Incidental expenses, Quartermaster's Department	3,496,575.45	2,400,000.00	2,400,000.00
Barracks and quarters	5,423,262.37	3,000,000.00	3,000,000.00
Army transportation	57,392,132.57	17,500,000.00	38,578,547.00
Cavalry and artillery horses	443,849.87	750,000.00	750,000.00
Clothing, &c.	29,697,050.81	5,952,246.00	8,702,877.00
Medical and hospital department	1,946,804.43	1,500,000.00	2,500,000.00
Ordnance, ordnance stores, and supplies	7,953,057.61	1,200,100.00	2,125,000.00
Manufacture of arms	2,050,088.22	800,000.00	1,100,000.00
Military Academy	353,768.18	410,085.97	458,449.99
Emergency fund	3,000,000.00	6,000,000.00
Total for military establishment	225,797,282.32	86,840,290.03	128,170,583.54
Gun and mortar batteries	3,825,642.09	1,000,000.00	5,130,000.00
Torpedoes for harbor defense	794,542.67	50,000.00	100,000.00
Sites for fortifications and seacoast defenses	276,908.39	300,000.00	200,000.00
Armament of fortifications	5,265,476.14	3,214,502.00	5,916,038.00
Buildings and grounds in Washington	311,665.11	159,259.50	132,426.00
Buildings and grounds, Military Academy	51,390.71	165,688.50	243,843.00
Military posts	436,172.16	676,894.00	2,207,417.50
National military parks	168,893.36	280,922.50	595,060.00
River and harbor improvements	16,082,547.04	24,100,038.94	35,576,367.99
Prevention of deposits, New York Harbor	70,223.19	110,500.00	69,200.00

MR. HITCHCOCK'S REPORT.

An Account of the Work of the Interior Department for Congress—Few Recommendations Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The report of the Secretary of the Interior for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, has been made public. It consists principally of summaries of the reports of the various bureaus of the department, most of which have been already published. Secretary Hitchcock says:

"Gratifying progress has been made by the department in all its branches in the dispatch of public business, and the fact that the work may be regarded as practically up to date is evidence of the ability with which the bureaus and offices have been administered."

After giving the report of the Commissioner of Pensions the Secretary says:

"I earnestly recommend that the existing legislation regulating the compensation of attorneys and agents for services in pension matters be so amended as to provide that no compensation whatever shall be paid to them directly or indirectly for any service in connection with any claim or proceeding under the pension laws, except such as may, within certain limits fixed by Congress, be allowed by the Commissioner of Pensions and paid from the pension money, as now provided with respect to 'claims for pension.'"

After calling attention to the depleted condition of the fisheries in Alaska, the result of the depredations of employes of canneries, the report says: "The natives are dependent upon their catch of fish for a livelihood, and anything which results in the diminution or depletion of the product of the fisheries seriously affects them. This department, however, has not been able to suggest any adequate remedy in the premises, for the reason that there appears to be no way to punish trespassers upon the fishery reserve in question except by ejectment from the reservation or by civil suit for damages consequent upon the trespass. If these depredations, however, upon this reservation are to be stopped, it can only be accomplished, in my judgment, by providing a penalty for violating the provisions of the Presidential proclamation. I have, therefore, the honor to recommend that a law be enacted under which trespassers on this fishery reserve can be properly punished in the courts for violations of the provisions of the proclamation setting the reservation aside."

THE JUDICIAL ASSIGNMENTS.

Work of the Justices of the Supreme Court for 1900.

The Justices of the Appellate Division of the First Judicial Department, which embraces New York County, yesterday forwarded the assignments of the Justices of the Supreme Court for 1900 to the County Clerk. Deputy County Clerk George H. Fahrbach stated that they were as follows:

Justices Leventritt, Smyth, Lawrence, Bischoff, Freedman, Andrews, and Fitzgerald will sit in the different special terms for the disposal of ex parte and litigated motions and the trial of equity cases. During the vacation Justices Beekman, Beach, Dugro, Giegerich, O'Gorman, Gildersleeve, McAdam, McLean, Scott, and Truax will each take a term in Special Parts I. and II., where the motions are disposed of.

The trial terms will be presided over by Justices McAdam, Beach, McLean, Beekman, Giegerich, Gildersleeve, O'Gorman, Dugro, Truax, and Scott.

The Appellate Term, which hears appeals from the City and Municipal Courts, will next year consist of six Justices instead of three as heretofore. Justices Beekman, Giegerich, and O'Gorman will sit in January, and Justices Truax, Scott, and Dugro in February, the two sets of Judges alternating each month during the year. The reason for this change is that the work of the Appellate Term, owing to the immense number of appeals, has proved too arduous for three Justices.

Justice McAdam will sit in Trial Term Part II., where preferred causes are disposed of, as he did this year.

No Justice has been assigned to the Criminal Term of the court, and no Justices have been assigned from any other judicial department to preside over vacant courts. They will be named as soon as the arrangements for their attendance can be ascertained.

PLAGUE SHIP NOT ENTERED.

Collector Refuses Request of the Taylor's Agents—The Report of the Health Officer.

Busk & Jevons, agents of the steamship J. W. Taylor, which arrived with cases of bubonic plague on board, from Santos, Brazil, and is with her cargo under the strictest quarantine, made application yesterday to enter the vessel in the Marine Division of the Custom House. Collector Bidwell conferred with Col. Dudley F. Phelps, Chief of the Law Division, and Harrison W. Gourley, Controller, and decided not to grant the request of the agents.

Col. Phelps said that the agents wanted to enter the Taylor to clear and coal. "The master and chief officer," he added, "cannot make the application, as one is sick and the other detained for sanitary reasons. Under the law agents cannot apply for entry and clearance. The Board of Health will permit coaling if the coal craft keep 15 feet away from the Taylor, so as to prevent its rats getting on them.

"The cargo of coffee is on lighters. If the entry through agents is allowed the Custom House authorities would be compelled to permit the entry of the coffee at this port, so that within forty-eight hours the goods would be declared 'under general order,' and if the permit could not be prevented and the coffee delivered the Collector would have to find a place to store the goods, and we, under the order of the Board of Health, cannot allow the coffee to come within the city limits."

Dr. Alvah H. Doty, Health Officer of the port gave a decision in relation to the detained steamer last night. He says: "I have heretofore refused to give any decision concerning the steamer until all the coffee was discharged and the final disinfection completed. An inspection of the vessel shows that the disinfection was thorough and complete. Owing, however, to the fact that bubonic plague may be transmitted by rats or other vermin, which might possibly escape the germicides used by fleeing to other parts not undergoing disinfection at the same time, I deem it proper to keep the Taylor under my supervision at Quarantine, where she will be loaded from lighters before sailing from the port.

"Hereafter all vessels arriving from Santos, whether there is infectious disease among the crew or not, will be subjected to the same precautions."

Sickness on Steamer from Santos.

It was rumored here yesterday that the British steamer Lassell, from Santos Nov. 10 for New York, had put into Mauritius owing to sickness abdard. Busk & Jevons, the agents of the steamer, have heard nothing of the report and do not think it true, as Capt. Lewis would have informed them immediately. The Lassell could not have stopped at Mauritius on her present voyage, but would probably put in at St. Lucia if medical assistance was wanted.

SHERIFF OF KINGS INDICTED.

Accused of Seizing Property in the Federal Authorities' Hands.

The United States Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday presented indictments against Sheriff Frank D. Creamer of Kings County and three of his assistants, alleging that they illegally seized property which was in the hands of the Federal authorities.

Collector of Internal Revenue Moore and his deputies some time ago raided an alleged illicit still in Atlantic Avenue, East New York. The property was placed in charge of United States Marshal Haubert. Sheriff Creamer's deputies, it is alleged, went to the place a few days later and, under a replevin, forcibly took the property. The matter was brought to the attention of the United States Grand Jury.

Sheriff Creamer appeared before United States Judge Edward B. Thomas yesterday afternoon and pleaded not guilty to the indictment. He was released on his own recognizance. The Sheriff said that he was confident that the matter would be satisfactorily straightened out.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS TALK

Discuss Legislative Matters, but Decide Nothing, They Say.

CITIES CHAIRMANSHIP PUZZLE

Mr. Fallows Says He Is "Out of It," and No Decision Is Reached—Another Conference Soon.

After a long conference with Republican State leaders, Senator Thomas C. Platt announced last night that no definite result had been reached, and that in all probability it would be another week before any legislative programme would be adopted. "Nothing has been settled," said the Senator. "Things are still in the air. I hope that the atmosphere will have cleared before I return next week."

Senator Platt said on Thursday night that he intended to go to Washington yesterday, but he was unable to leave the city because of the number of things which demanded his attention. He said last night that he would leave this morning, and would remain in Washington until the latter part of next week.

The conference was held in Senator Platt's rooms, in the Fifth Avenue Hotel. In addition to the leader there were present State Chairman B. B. Odell, Speaker S. Fred Nixon of the Assembly, and Lieut. Gov. Woodruff. The talk was almost wholly confined to the Chairmanships of the various Assembly committees, and, while Mr. Platt was giving his lieutenants his ideas and listening to their suggestions, the main corridor of the hotel was filled with members of the Legislature and Republican politicians, all anxious to learn the party plans for the coming session of the Legislature.

While the conference was in progress Assemblyman Edward H. Fallows of the Twenty-first District walked into the hotel and went up to Mr. Platt's rooms. His name has been prominently mentioned in connection with the Chairmanship of the Cities Committee. He remained for some time, and when he came down stairs he said to the reporters: "I am out of it." Friends of Mr. Fallows said he had been urged to accept the place, but had declined to take it as he did not care to father all the political measures which are being demanded by some of the organization leaders.

Chairman Odell was asked what conclusions had been arrived at, and answered: "We have not settled anything. We shall have another talk next week, and then I may be able to tell you something."

"Mr. Fallows says he will not be Chairman of the Cities Committee," said a reporter.

"Nothing has been settled," was the reply. "I understand that Mr. Fallows does not want the place, but no one can tell what will happen. Mr. Fallows has a preference, but what it is I am not at liberty to say."

"Is there any truth in the report that no Republican member from a New York City district will have an important Chairmanship?" was asked.

"New York generally gets something," was the reply. "There are some good guessers around here."

"Did you discuss the proposed State Constabulary bill?"

"There has been no talk about that since the last visit of Gov. Roosevelt. The Governor will be here again next week and we shall then have another talk. I understand that the Governor is engaged in sounding public sentiment on this matter. Mr. Platt is going over to Washington to-morrow and until he comes back there will be no further conference."

Speaker Nixon left the hotel immediately after the conference. He remained in the city last night, and was visited by several New York Assemblymen, who are seeking desirable committee appointments. He reiterated the statement of Mr. Platt and Mr. Odell that the conference had been unproductive of results, but confirmed the general expectation that Assemblyman J. P. Allds of Chenango County would be the majority leader on the floor of the Assembly. It is not Mr. Nixon's present intention to come to New York next week to participate in the conference between Senator Platt and Gov. Roosevelt. He will visit the latter at Albany before the Governor comes down for the purpose of learning his wishes.

Well-informed politicians expressed the opinion last evening that the leaders were all at sea regarding the man to be selected to head the Cities Committee. The name of Merton E. Lewis of Rochester has been brought forward as the probable selection in the event of the final refusal of Mr. Fallows to accept. Last night it was said that Mr. Lewis might receive some other assignment and the Cities Committee Chairmanship go to Assemblyman Costello of Oswego.

Almost every student of State politics who was around headquarters during the afternoon and evening devoted his time to fixing up a "slate." Some of these guesses were referred to Senator Platt's lieutenants, and one and all received the same comment: "You can make up a list as well as I can to-night and come just as near the mark." The list which received the most consideration was as follows:

Cities—Mr. Costello of Oswego.
Judiciary—Mr. Kelsey of Livingston.
Excise—Mr. Witter of Tioga.
Banks—Mr. McEwan of Albany.
Insurance—Mr. Tripp of Dutchess.
Railroads—Mr. Bedell of Orange.
Revision—Mr. Coughtry of Albany.
General Laws—Mr. Fish of Hamilton.

The report that Mr. Platt had decided that no New York City member should have an important Chairmanship was the most persistent of the day, although no verification of it could be obtained. It was said that the reason for this decision was that as the bulk of the Republican State vote was cast up the State, Senator Platt thought that the patronage should go to the places where the Republican majorities are rolled up. Some color was given to this report by the statement made by Assemblyman De Graw of Brooklyn, who had a talk with Speaker Nixon early in the day. Mr. De Graw was Chairman of the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment last Winter, but said yesterday that he did not expect to be reappointed to the place. He added that he was not a candidate. It was said that some member would be chosen for this post who is close to Gov. Roosevelt. Some very important bills are being prepared on the subject of taxation, which will be referred to this committee.

Mr. Odell will be at headquarters to-day, and he may have another talk with Speaker Nixon before the latter leaves the city, but if this takes place it will not partake of the character of a formal conference.

A luncheon will be given this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Montauk Club, Brooklyn, by Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff to the nine Republican Assemblymen recently elected in Brooklyn. The members of the County Executive Committee, State Senators Marshall and Davis, and Register-elect James R. Howe. The dinner ostensibly is to be given in honor of the successful candidates, but it is understood that after the repast there will be a discussion of measures affecting Brooklyn to be introduced at the coming session of the Legislature. One of the bills which it is said will be discussed is Assemblyman Brennan's, to enlarge the powers of the Borough Presidents.

LIEUT. GOV. WOODRUFF TALKS.

Denies Reports About His Candidacy for Vice President.

Lieut. Gov. Woodruff was at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last evening and talked freely regarding the reports which have been in circulation in which he has been named as a candidate for second place on the Republican National ticket next year.

"In the first place," he said, "I want to deny strongly the statement which I saw a few minutes ago in an afternoon newspaper, that I had opened headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria and was an active candidate for the nomination for Vice President. The report also said that I had taken breakfast this morning with Senator Hanna, and intimated that I had sought his support. I have not seen Mr. Hanna to-day. I have seen him several times since he has been in New York, but have never mentioned the Vice Presidency to him.

"During the illness of Vice President Hobart and up to the time of his death, I refused to discuss the question of the Vice Presidency with anybody who broached it to me. Since his death I have discussed the matter in all its phases with several persons who introduced the subject, but never have I asked any man, either in this State or outside of it, to give me his support.

"When the time comes, the wishes of President McKinley will be considered in the matter. You will do me a great favor to deny that I am conducting any campaign for the nomination. That has always been true and always will be.

"I took up a temporary residence at the Waldorf-Astoria two weeks ago in order to give Mrs. Woodruff an opportunity to be in the Borough of Manhattan until we go to Albany on Jan. 1."

INDIANA MAN FOR ELIHU ROOT.

"Western Republicans want Elihu Root of New York as the running mate of William McKinley next year," said Charles S. Hernly, Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Committee, at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday.

"The nomination will be equivalent to an election," he continued. "Prosperity has killed all opposition. The people in the West, save the Democratic politicians, are contented and don't propose to change existing conditions. It is quite customary for a President, at the beginning of his second term, to reconstruct his Cabinet. Therefore it is not strange that Secretary Root's name should be considered in connection with another position."

CONCEDES HOWE'S ELECTION.

John Morrissey Gray, the Democratic candidate for Register of Kings County, who has been contesting the election of his Republican opponent, James R. Howe, yesterday conceded the latter's election by abandoning the legal proceedings he had instituted.

James D. Bell and Joseph A. Burr, the referees appointed by the Supreme Court to recount the alleged defective ballots cast for Register, completed the count yesterday. They found 213 ballots which had been rejected as defective which should have been counted for either Gray or Howe. If all of these ballots were counted for Gray, Howe would still have a plurality of 101. When the result of the recount was announced Mr. Gray's counsel admitted that it would be useless to prolong the contest and consented to the termination of the proceedings. The referees reported to that effect to the Supreme Court.

Mr. Howe will now get his certificate of election. The $20,000 which Robert Furey wagered against Joseph J. McGarry's $14,000 that Gray would be elected will also now be paid to McGarry, it was said yesterday.

WANTS THE CONVENTION HERE.

The Municipal Assembly put itself on record yesterday as favoring this city as the place for the National Conventions next year by adopting a resolution inviting the National Executive Committees of both parties to have the gatherings held here. Alderman McCall (Tam.) presented the resolution, which was rushed through and then sent to the Council, which also adopted it.

Mr. McCall's resolution held out as inducements to the politicians the fact that this city has statuary, parks, and plenty of hotels, and that a hall of ample size can be procured without great expense. Several of the members of the board took a jocular view of the resolution, and finally, Alderman James (Rep., Queens,) moved to amend by making Flushing the place for the conventions. Mr. James was about to expatiate upon the attractions of Flushing when President Woods frowned him down and declared him out of order.

"Then make it Montauk Point," Mr. James exclaimed from his seat.

"I'm in favor of the resolution," said Mr. Burleigh (Rep., Kings.) Thirty-one years ago a Democratic convention was held in this city. We all remember the success its ticket had. All of us should work twenty-four hours a day to bring the conventions here and see that the Democratic ticket has as much success as that one had."

Mr. McCall, undaunted by Mr. Burleigh's allusion to the campaign in which Gen. Grant defeated Gov. Seymour for the Presidency, returned to the attack and sounded a plaintive personal note in his plea for the passage of the resolution. "Delegates to National Conventions are getting tired of traveling all over the country and being bled," he declared. "They are tired of paying 50 cents for a shave and 25 cents for a shoe shine. I speak from experience, because at the last Chicago Convention the barber who shaved me charged me 50 cents as soon as he learned I was from New York."

"What did they charge for beer?" Alderman Bridges inquired.

"Oh, this isn't a joke," responded Mr. McCall. "I never was more in earnest in my life."

The resolution was then adopted.

Accused Voters in Court.

Before Justice Werner, in the Extraordinary Term of the Supreme Court, convened by the Governor to try election cases, Frank Hart, alias William O'Brien, pleaded guilty yesterday to illegal registration. He will be sentenced next Monday. George T. Sullivan, charged with illegal voting in the Nineteenth Assembly District, was placed on trial and the case was not concluded.

Tammany Society Election.

The Tammany Society will hold a meeting on Monday night for the initiation of candidates for membership. Among those to be admitted is Cord Meyer. Senator George W. Plunkitt will be elected a Sachem, to succeed the late "Smiling John" Kelly.

MARYLAND POLITICIANS ASTIR.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 1.—Col. John Walter Smith of Snow Hill will be inaugurated Governor on the second Monday in January, 1900, and the Democrats will then resume control in Maryland after four years of Republican rule following thirty years of Democratic sway. The Democratic Legislature will meet on Jan. 2. In joint convention it will elect Murray Vandiver of Havre de Grace, State Treasurer. Mr. Vandiver is Arthur Pue Gorman's chief confidential adviser, and also Chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

He will succeed as State Treasurer Gen. Thomas J. Shryock, Chairman of the Republican State Committee. Col. Smith will occupy his seat in Congress as the representative from the Sixth District until he is inaugurated Governor. He may not issue a call for a special election to choose his successor in Congress because the taxpayers and some of the political managers on the Eastern Shore of the Chesapeake, which comprises his district, object to the expense of the election, which would be about $30,000.

Should the wishes of those opposing the special election be respected, it will be necessary for the Republican and Democratic Conventions on the Eastern Shore each to select two candidates for Congress—one for the short term, to begin with the date of Col. Smith's resignation, though he will have no duties to perform until next December, and one for the long term, beginning March 4, 1901. The short term will carry with it a salary from the time of Col. Smith's resignation until March 4, 1901. The prospect of the selection of two Congressmen at one election has already aroused the interest of Eastern Shore politicians of both parties.

It is already evident that former State Senator Gorman and Gov. Smith will work together in harmony and that Mr. Gorman will have as much to say in directing the policy of the incoming administration and the distribution of the patronage as he did when he was Senator. He will also control through the assistance of Col. Smith, Mr. Vandiver, and other party leaders the delegates to the National Convention next year. That delegation will not be for Bryan if any other candidate with a show of strength opposes him. Col. Smith and all the leading Democrats in Maryland are sound-money men. In the rank and file, however, are thousands of Bryan men. Gorman and his lieutenants are very cautious on the money issue. They had it as well as other National issues entirely eliminated from the platform of the State Convention that nominated Smith. This was done to avoid committing the Maryland Democracy to Bryan's policy or to any indorsement of him as a candidate. Should the opportunity offer Mr. Gorman will loom up as a candidate himself. Several of his close friends say that he is surely going to play an important part in the big National fight next year.

The politicians are already disgusted over the ultra reform policy of Thomas G. Hayes, the new Mayor. The salaries of municipal officials in Baltimore are already lower than in any other large city in the country, but with the assistance of friends in the councils, Mayor Hayes is still cutting them down. He has not yet stated whether he will adopt the numerous sarcastic suggestions given him to take a slice off his own salary. He offers no encouragement to the hundreds of old former Democratic officeholders who are trying to get in under the shelter of the City Hall again. He has declared that he will appoint Republicans as well as Democrats, and already the wail of disappointment can be heard. The Democratic leaders who are close to the new Mayor are also turning a deaf ear to the old timers, and intimating that there is to be a new deal.

THE HOUSE LEADERSHIP FIGHT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—All the interest in the Speakership is centered in the contest among the Democrats. Not all the members of the minority side have arrived, and as for the majority it begins to look as if it would be short many votes of the caucus to-morrow night.

The Republican slate, which was completed the day the Wisconsin delegation decided to vote for Henderson, by the nomination of Mr. Casson of Wisconsin for Sergeant at Arms, will go through without difficulty, it is expected. McDowell of Pennsylvania will be re-elected Clerk. Glenn of New York will be Doorkeeper without any doubt.

When it comes to the Democratic contest, which can only indicate who should be the Democratic leader on the floor, the matter is more complicated and uncertain of determination. Representative Richardson is believed to be in the lead, but it is by no means made plain that he can command a majority of the votes.

Representative Sulzer, who has headquarters at the Chamberlin, was the host at dinner to-night of Representatives Bailey and Bankhead, both candidates, and the meeting was given great importance by some of those who heard of it. Representatives Cummings, McLelland, Fitzgerald, and others gathered to report their success in getting votes for Sulzer.

If the Sulzer canvass is correct, the Tennessee candidate will find it no easy matter to pick up the votes necessary to elect him. Mr. Richardson is confident he will get the New York members at the earliest moment they can leave Sulzer.

The quotation to-night of forty votes as Sulzer's string gives him the appearance of a real candidate. The make-up of the list gives some solidity to the Sulzer "boom."

The Tammany candidate hopes to receive the votes of the Democratic members from Massachusetts, eighteen in New York, two in New Jersey, five in Pennsylvania, and here and there one in the South, with perhaps three from Illinois. Should Bailey and Bankhead exert any influence over their friends, the South may give some votes to the New York man.

The Democrats will caucus to-morrow at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the Republicans at 8 o'clock in the evening.

GOEBEL'S CHANCE IN KENTUCKY

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 1.—The postponement of the official canvass of Kentucky's Gubernatorial vote until Monday has for the time being, at least, cooled the surcharged political atmosphere in a very perceptible manner. It is not likely now there will be any developments until the meeting of the Election Commissioners.

Although the candidates for Governor are in town, they are keeping quiet, and their friends are emulating their example. There is no talking, save in the direction of surmise, regarding the possible action of the Commissioners on Monday. There is a deeply settled belief among both Democrats and Republicans that the Commissioners will not turn the matter over to the Legislature, but will surely issue a certificate to either Goebel or Taylor.

If it is given to the former, it is possible that the matter may end there, as many of the conservative Republicans are of the opinion that, in view of the strong Democratic majority in the Legislature, it will be practically useless for the Republicans to look for anything in that quarter. If the certificate goes to Taylor, it is a certainty that the matter will be taken to the Legislature, where Goebel may finally win.

The Republicans, however, are by no means in unanimous favor of abandoning the fight at the door of the Legislature. Some of them are vehement in their assertions that they will not abandon the fight until there is no possible chance of Taylor being Governor of the State. Gov. Bradley has evidently made up his mind that somebody will receive a certificate of election, for he was busily engaged all day in packing up his private property in the State House, preparatory to a return to private life.

"They are making my last days my hardest days," he said, "but I guess there will be no trouble. There are too many sensible men on both sides to prevent anything of that kind. I really do not see how anything can be done to keep Mr. Taylor from the chair. He will go in all right."

It is not likely that the Election Commissioners will finish their work before Tuesday afternoon. Among the suggestions made regarding their probable line of action is that sitting as an Election Board, the Commissioners will issue certificates of election to all the minor Republican officials, and then, resolving themselves into a contesting board, declare the Democratic claims of election to these offices to be valid and oust all the Republicans to whom certificates have been issued. It has already been held that a contesting board is powerless to decide a contest concerning a Governor or Lieutenant Governor, and the fate of these two officials will be turned over to the legislature, the Commissioners saying in effect to the Legislature: "We believe they are unlawful incumbents, but we have not the power to remove them."

A decision was rendered by Judge Painter of the Court of Appeals to-day, which cost the Taylor faction about 130 votes, a matter too small to affect the final result. Judge Painter dissolved the temporary injunction secured by Taylor's attorney restraining the Election Board of Harrison County from certifying the vote of that county, as made up by the local board, one precinct having been thrown out because of irregularities. The dissolution of the injunction is a Democratic success.

SENATOR HANNA IS TO RETIRE.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Concerning the reports which have been in circulation for several weeks past to the effect that Senator Hanna would not succeed himself as Chairman of the National Republican Committee, it can be stated on the authority of Mr. Hanna's most intimate friends that he has no desire to manage another campaign, and that unless very strong pressure is brought to bear upon him he will, in all probability, declined to do so.

Notwithstanding the published statements that many leading Republicans throughout the country are opposed to Mr. Hanna's reappointment as Chairman of the National Committee, it is known that he is almost daily receiving from influential party leaders, representing practically all sections of the country, letters to the effect that he has their fullest confidence and support, and urging that he is the strongest man available for the place.

Mr. Hanna's closest friends, and, indeed, the members of his own family, believe, however, that the condition of his health is such that he should not under any circumstances assume the responsibility of managing another Presidential campaign.

It has been suggested that should Mr. Hanna decide not to accept a reappointment as Chairman that he be made a member of the Executive Committee, having personal charge of the campaign finances.

This would, it is pointed out, relieve Mr. Hanna of the arduous duties devolving upon him as Chairman, and at the same time give the National Committee the benefit of his experience and marked success in raising campaign funds.

Confirmed by Committeeman Payne.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 1.—"Senator Hanna, as Chairman of the National Republican Committee, will not accept another term, although he will serve out his present term," said Henry C. Payne, National Republican Committeeman of Wisconsin, to-day.

Mr. Payne said that Mr. Hanna told him that he would serve out his term, but would not accept another. Mr. Payne said that Mr. Hanna's health is such as to forbid his taking up the active duties of a National campaign.

POLITICIANS MAY BE INDICTED.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—For open corruption of the electorate and general violation of the franchise laws it is likely that a score of prominent Republican and Democratic politicians here may be indicted by the Grand Jury when it sits next week.

District Attorney Dyer is hard at work sifting evidence that has been presented to him, and if sufficient is adduced to show that a crime has been committed against the election law, indictments will follow, which will probably result in sending to jail several well-known politicians.

Among other things it is alleged that between 6,000 and 8,000 votes were openly purchased, and it is said that at no time in the history of the city was money given and received so publicly. In one case a prominent city official is charged with having scrutinized the ballot of a voter in the booth after he had voted, the latter holding it up to the light so that the official could see for himself that he had kept to his part of the agreement.

Selection of Election Officers.

Abraham Gruber, executive member of the Republican County Committee from the Twenty-first Assembly District, said last night that at the next meeting of the County Committee he would offer a resolution to place in the hands of either the executive member or members of each district delegation to the County Committee the appointment of election officers, instead of permitting the Executive Committee to name them. As the election officers also serve at the primary elections, Mr. Gruber does not think that the members of the Executive Committee, who might be unfriendly to a district leader, should have the power to select officers to conduct primaries in the districts.

Plays any Piano.
The Pianotist
Any one can play it.
Price $100 Cash or Installments. Recitals Daily.
ADEK MFG. CO., 503 Fifth Ave., cor. 42d St.
"It enables any one without technical knowledge to play on any piano with taste and expression, even the most difficult composition." — N. Y. Sun.

REPORTED SUGAR COMBINE

The Trust Will Enlarge Its Capital, It Is Said, to $200,000,000.

TO GET INDEPENDENT PLANTS

Alleged Option Secured on Arbuckle, Doscher, and Other Refineries, Including Glucose Refining Co.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The News says today: "A two-hundred-million-dollar trust is in contemplation. There is every prospect that the American Sugar Refining Company, the Glucose Refining Company, and all of the so-called independent sugar refineries will be consolidated.

"H. O. Havemeyer of the sugar combine, it is understood, has secured an option on the Arbuckle Sugar Company, the Doscher concern, and the outside plants in Boston and New Orleans. This evening he will, it is said, receive a definite proposition from the Glucose people when his representatives, who left Chicago last night, arrive in New York.

"It has been ascertained that representatives of the Havemeyer Company have been in this city in conference with President C. H. Matthiessen of the Glucose Company for several days. The result of these conferences, it is said, was an option on the Glucose interests.

"The important feature of the plan is that the American Sugar Company will increase its capitalization from $75,000,000 to $200,000,000. It is understood that $30,000,000 of this will be given the Glucose people for their plant and $20,000,000 to the outside refineries, and that the entire common stock of the Sugar Trust will be put on an 8 per cent. basis. The rate of disbursement on the preferred shares will not be changed, while the holders of the ordinary stock will be allowed to subscribe for the new certificates at par.

The capital of the Glucose Refinery Company is $40,000,000—$14,000,000 preferred and $26,000,000 common—so that the certificates will be taken in, presumably, at an average of $75 per share.

When questioned in reference to the prospective sale of his company, C. H. Matthiessen to-day refused to discuss the matter, saying: "Any information that may be of value to the public will be given out at the proper time."

No confirmation could be obtained last night of the assertion that the American Sugar Refining Company is about to increase its capital stock to $200,000,000 in order to absorb other companies, and it was discredited in business circles.

Henry O. Havemeyer was not at his residence, and it was said that he was out of town, and would be away until Monday. John E. Parsons, Mr. Havemeyer's attorney and a Director of the company, refused either to confirm or deny the dispatch. "I never talk about the affairs of the American Sugar Refining Company," said he, "nor, in fact, about the business of any of my clients."

Arthur Donner, Treasurer of the company, is spending the Thanksgiving holidays with his family in Massachusetts. Charles R. Heike, Secretary, said that he knew nothing of the alleged deal, and that he would not talk about it if he did.

John E. Searles, former Secretary and Treasurer of the company, said: "This is the first I have heard of any such proposed combination. I have not been connected with the American Sugar Refining Company for a year, and know absolutely nothing about such a deal."

Edward F. Wemple, New York agent of the Glucose Sugar Refining Company, declined to discuss the matter.

A broker who for many years has been in intimate business relations with James N. Jarvie, managing partner of the Arbuckle concern, said last night:

"These assertions are in the highest degree improbable to those who know anything about the situation, and the canard, for it can safely be characterized as such, doubtless has been launched for stock-

The Wanamaker Store

This is the Children's Day

KELLAR, the magician, cuts off his head (apparently), and the trick makes a fine sensation. Here is Kellar in make-believe—you can make folks' eyes bulge, too. The chicks peck at the funny little grains and the farmer's boy pumps away for dear life—just a toy—a wind-up toy.

No wonder the dear little girl cries—a big old bull-frog has taken the place of her ice cream. But sunshine after shower—the fairies, it must be, remove the frog and bring back the cream. No, not fairies this time—it is simply another mechanical toy—a clock spring does it.

And so it goes—and everything is going, from the athlete who balances on chair backs to the trains with real steam-driven locomotives. The talking machines are talking or doing some other stored-up wonderfulness; there is music and life and fun all over.

It's the Basement Toy Store that holds all these things and has room enough besides to entertain several thousand little friends to-day.

Santa Claus is hearing and seeing things to his advantage at Wanamaker's.

Men's Clothing---An Incident

A hundred and forty-three Suits, of fancy cheviot and very neat cassimeres, are left from a number of popular lines of business suits. All have sack coats. The full prices were $18, $20 and $22.50—but it takes more minutes of your time to be fitted from broken lots (though all regular sizes are in the group), and so we mark them down. It amounts to getting

$18 to $22.50 Suits at $15

Nobody knows where Winter is hiding, but it isn't lost, and the getting ready goes on. We never sold so many overcoats in November—but that's because we never had so many men depending on us for supplies.

Black or Oxford-mixed Frieze Overcoats at $8.50.
Sumptuous Overcoats of Sedan Montagnac at $55.
And the right sorts between.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Men's Bath Robes

Finest we have came from France—just a few that will be snapped up in a jiffy, for gifts. Made of beautiful silk crepon, in solid colors. In every way sumptuous. $35.

We imported some that are made of a fine brocaded stuff (silk and wool); really elegant. $18.50 and $25.

Then there are fine ones made of imported blankets, $18, and of silk-and-wool and wool terry, $12 to $18.

We have Bath Robes made in our shirt factory, too—using fancy blankets, $3.75 to $9.

Stocks are tip-top of readiness to-day.

Men's Store, Ninth Street.

Silks for Giving People are judged by their giving—a wrong gift is close to an insult, yet may be only the result of carelessness. Out-of-place gifts cannot be very welcome. While gifts should not be "swaps"—given to induce giving in return; still they may be too expensive, in that they involve confusing obligation.

Silks are safe to give—but only good ones (there are good of many kinds). Interested?

Four yards of pretty silk in a neat box—a waist pattern—$2 to $15.
Black silks, in boxes, from waist lengths at $2.25 to dress lengths at $28.

Quite forty choices are yours, in the collection ready to-day.

Rotunda.

Women's Stockings Fast-black cotton Stockings, medium or heavy-weight, and Richelieu-ribbed lisle thread Stockings—a jumble of good fortune that came to the hosiery store and you. 25c a pair instead of 38c.

Black cotton Stockings with unbleached soles or, "split feet," and plain black lisle thread stockings—38c a pair. 3 pairs for $1.

Main floor.

Calendars Wanamaker calendars are famous. Lithographed to our order by the best workers to be found, they meet the requirements of nice people as perhaps no other series ever did. Water-color reproductions, after Humphreys, Brundage, Grivaz and Moran, are a pleasing feature. Here's the list.—

These at 10c each. By mail, 12c.
No. 32. Outing—6-piece fan; female heads; 6x11 in.
No. 33. Merry Childhood—6-piece fan; children's heads; 6x11 in.

15c each. By mail, 17c.
No. 21. Rose Queen—4 slats, drop; roses, by C. Klein; 6½x16 in.
No. 22. Pansy Time—4 slats, drop; pansies, by C. Klein; 6½x16 in.
No. 27. True Hearts—4 slats in the shape of a heart, drop; designs of landscapes and flowers; 5½x26 in.
No. 30. The Children's Week—7-piece fan, children's heads; 8½x15 in.
No. 31. The Seasons—7-piece fan, handsome landscapes; 8½x15 in.

18c each. By mail, 20c.
No. 25. Love's Offering—4 slats, drop; designs of flowers and children; 7x20 in.
No. 26. Happy Hearts—4 slats in the shape of a heart, drop; children's figures, in Watteau style; 5½x26 in.

20c each. By mail, 25c.
No. 9. Heartsease—4 leaves, turn over; pansies, by C. Klein; 8½x11½ in.
No. 10. Floral Reverie—4 leaves, 8½x11½.
No. 13. Pastoral—4 leaves, turn over; landscapes, from water-color designs; 7½x13 in.

25c each. By mail, 30c.
No. 8. Summer Roses—4 leaves, turn over; roses, by C. Klein; 8½x11 in.
No. 11. Children of the Year—4 leaves, turn over; children's heads, by Frances Brundage; tied with silk loops; 8½x11½ in.
No. 12. Floral Beauties—4 leaves, turn over; designs of Watteau figures; 7½x13 in.
No. 14. Sweet Violets—4 leaves, turn over; violets, by C. Klein; 7½x13 in.
No. 15. Flowers of the Year—4 leaves, turn over; flowers, by C. Klein; 7½x13 in.

30c each. By mail, 36c.
No. 4. Sunshine—4 leaves, turn over; designs by Mabel L. Humphrey; 10x14 in.
No. 5. Life's Recreation—4 leaves, turn over; designs by Mabel L. Humphrey; golf, tennis, skating, dancing; 10x14 in.

Shoes A green Christmas makes a fat graveyard. Why? Largely because people risk their health as they wouldn't if the weather really seemed to demand carefulness.

It's that way now, and while we do not foist goods on our friends still we recommend the purchase and wear of stout sole shoes—whereas the tendency is to buy thin soles.

Men's Box-calf Shoes
Men's Wax-calf Shoes
Men's Waterproofed Tan Grain-leather Shoes
Men's Enameled Grain-leather Shoes.

These are the safe winter sorts. And all at the one price of $3.90.

Judged as shoe experts weigh values, these are quite worth five dollars.

Women's Safe Shoes—
Box-calf—button and lace, and Kidskin shoes with stout soles—$4.

Shoe Store, Main floor.

These Bargains in the Fifth-floor Annex—
Men's black and tan Russet Calfskin Shoes, double soles and many of the shoes leather lined—$2.30 instead of $3.50.
Men's black Over-gaiters at 35c—half price.
Boys' Shoes, 8½ to 13, at 80c. Called "little men's shoes," because of their good style.
Girls' Shoes, 8½ to 2, at 75c instead of $1.25 and $1.50.
Women's $3.50 Shoes at $2.35. Calfskin, lace, and kidskin, button.

Fifth floor.

Children's Stockings Close-ribbed Black Cotton Stockings, thickest at knees, heels and toes; full-fashioned, which means knit to fit—

Sizes 5 and 5½ at 15c
Sizes 6 and 6½ at 20c
Sizes 7 to 8½ at 25c

—which prices should interest mothers, but can't until you fit stocking and price together.

Main floor.

French Flannel Waists It isn't easy to get enough of them. This merely to say that a new supply has come—as pretty in fabric and making as the prettiest you have seen. $2.75 and $3.75.

Velveteen Waists seem to keep growing in favor, though the flannel ones are still selling fastest. Velveteen, solid colors, $3.75, $4.50, $5 and $6.50.

Second floor.

Men's Collars and Scarfs Eighteen hundred English shape Scarfs or Squares—the popular shape this winter—are here to sell at 50c. Maker brought them out "to sell at a dollar and give the merchant big profit." It's hardly the square thing to do—and we won't. 50c—and that's as great an extreme the other way. White and lots of good colors.

Collars, Troy made and Troy laundered—all the shapes of stand-up and lay-down—linen both sides and careful collar-making clear through—2 for 25c.

Men's Store, Ninth and Broadway.

Women's Suits and Skirts Our costume chief said, not so long ago, that in five years we'd be sending styles to Europe. They were going in three years—London chose the very styles of jackets that we had approved for this winter; Berlin accepts American ideas, and one of the talked-of Paris dressmakers was out in a simple American dress during last summer—and remarked that there was much charm in the style Americaine. "Smart," poor as the word is, displaces more and more the Paris "chic," and, all in all, we have reason not to be proud, but to be vigilant—for we are setting world styles now.

Is Paris relegated? Not a bit of it. Isn't there room for the French school and other schools in art? So in dress.

We show Paris and American styles lavishly—there are many who say we do the business best. At least we are careful, and women's tailoring has certainly gotten on a high plane by our help.

It is pleasant to be able to step right into a costume that meets one's fancy—that is thoroughly correct.

But woe to straggling lots! The dress that stays here four or five weeks is ordered out—no matter what the loss. To-day—

$10 for homespun, cheviot and covert cloth suits left from lots at $15, $18 and $20.
$12 for quite stylish suits from lots at $21 to $26. Some of the suits full silk lined.
Rainy-day Skirts—
$5 for $6.75 kind
$7.50 for $9 and $10 kinds
$9 for $10 and $12 kinds

—and these good-sense skirts are more in demand than ever. All of double-face materials.

Second floor.

Wraps for Girls It has been the cry for years that children's garments cost too much, as compared with women's wear. It was a well-founded complaint, too. How we worked to change it all. And succeeded. Look!—

Reefers for girls of 4 to 14—of boucle—brown or green mingled coloring—buttons high at neck, has storm collar and a monk's hood of pretty plaid silk. Cuffs and straps finished with red cording. $5.
Reefers of navy-blue pebble cheviot—double-breasted, showing six big pearl buttons; buttons high at neck; has storm collar; French back. Lined with red satin serge. $6.75.
Gretchens for girls of 6 to 12; boucle cloth—Yale blue mixed with black, and ox-blood and black—deep round cape trimmed with braid and fur. $11.

May these hint of a store-ful? They are just fair samples.

Second floor, Broadway.

Handkerchiefs for Christmas Handkerchiefs are maybe safest of Christmas gifts—for fancy ones are all-appealing and plain ones are useful, yes, elegant in the finest qualities.

Eight to think about this morning:

FOR WOMEN—Initialed—
$6, $3, $1.50 and $1 a dozen.
Linen, every thread of them—
FOR MEN—Initialed—
$12, $6, $3 and $1.50 a dozen.

We'll pack any of them in a neat box.

Broadway.

Gifts of Gold Just look through the Jewelry Store for a few minutes and see its wealth of Christmas hints. Maybe this list will be a helpful suggester—all the articles being 14 k. gold—

Scarf Pins, $1.75 to $10; with pearls, $3.75 to $65; with diamonds, $4 to $85.
Brooches start at $2.50.
Cuff Links, with diamonds, $9.50 to $40.
Belt Buckles, $16 and more.
Hat Pins, $1.75 to $11.50.
Cigar Cutters, $3.75 to $19.

Broadway.

Candy We were driven into the candy-making business, because there was no other way of being sure of its purity. And how it has been appreciated! We have had single day's selling amount to ten tons and over—one day we delivered eighteen tons.

These sorts to-day at 20c—

Assorted Chocolates Chocolate Eclairs
Chocolate Nougat Chocolate Caramels
Chocolate Marshmallows

Basement and Special Counters.

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co., JOHN WANAMAKER Broadway, Fourth Ave., Ninth and Tenth Streets.

RIORDAN'S WRECK STORY

Admits He Knew Buffalo Express Was Just Ahead.

HIDDEN BY CURVE AND HILL

Expected Express to Stop at Station, Not West of It—Lackawanna Engineer Heartbroken.

The investigation of the circumstances attending the wreck on Wednesday night at Paterson, N. J., on the Boonton Branch of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, is proceeding somewhat slowly, as it involves considerable work. The inquest over the body of Mrs. May B. Roe is to be held next Tuesday, in all probability, at the County Court House at Paterson. Coroner Yates will hold it. With his jury of six he viewed yesterday the body of Mrs. Roe. The inquiry set on foot by officials of the road will go a step further to-day, as John Francis Riordan, the engineer of Train No. 96, which crashed into Express No. 6, will report at the company's Hoboken offices and may then be examined.

Division Superintendent Dupuy said yesterday that it was not likely he would accomplish much in the investigation till next week. He has on hand at present the complaints of several passengers who lost garments or other property in the wreck and who must be reimbursed. "This feature of the case is not important, however," said he. "Compared with the other financial loss, the destruction of cars, and so on, it is a rather small matter."

Riordan was seen by a NEW YORK TIMES reporter yesterday at his home, 314 North Fourth Street, Harrison, N. J. He was able to be down stairs, but has not yet ventured out, and will not till he goes to Hoboken to report. The engineer has sustained a great nervous shock, one that seems to have overwhelmed him. He is a short man, not heavily built, with hair and mustache turning gray. He looked, as he sat feebly back in his rocking chair, like one whose spirit had been broken, and he spoke of the disaster in a tone and with a manner that showed how closely it had followed and haunted him.

"I don't want to make any statement," he began, tremulously. "The railroad company is making an investigation, and until it gets through I've got nothing to say." He did have something to say, however, for he answered questions in a mechanical fashion, showing apparently that his faculties were too much benumbed to let him realize that he was omitting to be reticent. He was asked whether he had ever had an accident before.

"No," said he; "never the least one. I've been railroading since 1864, and I've had a very successful career."

"Is it true that you picked up the flagman of No. 6 twice before you reached Paterson?"

"Not that I know of. We may have picked him up on the train, but he never came near the engine. But we made an extra stop near Lincoln Park because No. 6 kept us back, so that I did not know she was just ahead. I expected her to stop at the Paterson station, but I didn't expect her to stop several hundred yards west of it. If she had been in the station I never would have struck her. The hill and the curve hid her from me, so that I just had time to see her before the collision."

"You had your train under control, so that you could have brought it to a stop in the Paterson station?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied. "I could have stopped it there. We have to run so as to get to our stations on time, you know, but I wasn't running up to my schedule time. I was going about twenty miles an hour. When I saw No. 6 ahead I did all I could. I reversed my lever and put on my brakes. I stuck to my post, and was all covered by coal, dirt, water, and oil."

Riordan said that he had not been seriously hurt. He had been jammed up against the lever of his engine by the collision, and his left side was injured, but he is mending. In response to a question he said that he had had considerable experience of the block signal system, now being put in on the Boonton Branch, and that had it been installed, the collision could not have happened.

The reason Riordan's train was so late was that it had been delayed by the lateness of No. 6 ahead of it, which was fifty minutes behind time. No. 6 was delayed by two causes; an uncommonly heavy Thanksgiving freight and the hot box at Lincoln Park.

CORNELL STUDENTS INJURED.

Three Young Men in Rear Car of Buffalo Express.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 1.—It develops now that at least three students from Cornell University were seriously injured in the wreck on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad at Paterson Wednesday. One was Walter J. Wellbrock of New York, the second was W. C. Affeld, Chicago, and the third Arthur Delano of Montclair. The latter is a son of Frank Delano, who is in business in New York.

Delano was sitting in the rear car of the Buffalo express, and when the crash came, he was caught under a seat and pinioned there. He is internally injured and his right side and right leg and foot are badly bruised.

Delano is in the freshman class of the university, fitting himself to become an electrical engineer, and he took the train at Ithaca to spend Thanksgiving with his parents here, in Cedar Street. He is nineteen years of age. He will be confined to his bed for some time.

Father of Wreck Victim Dies.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Martin Kane died in this city this afternoon from injuries received by being run over by a delivery wagon on Wednesday afternoon. He was the father of Lizzie Kane, who is in the hospital at Paterson, N. J., with both feet crushed. She was injured in the Lackawanna wreck, which occurred about an hour after her father was injured in this city.

TROLLEY LINES AND TRADE.

Elizabeth Merchants Indignant at Action Favorable to Newark.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 1.—Senator John Kean completed his trolley line from East Grand and Broad Streets to the city line yesterday and ran his cars on the route. The first car carried Senator Kean and several of the officials.

The Riker-Nine Road from Plainfield to Elizabeth, which company refused to accept the franchise to enter the city from the city line in Jersey Avenue because of a five-cent fare demanded by the Council from Cranford to Elizabeth, will run their cars through the Union to Newark and thus carry the suburban customers to that city for their shopping. Elizabeth merchants are indignant and say they will make the question a political issue at the next Spring election when Councilmen are elected.

FARMER'S SERVANT MURDERED.

The Woman's Body Found—Negro Charged with the Crime.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 1.—Wilhelmina Eisley, thirty years of age, a servant employed in the family of William White, a wealthy farmer of Yardville, a suburb of this city, was murdered last night by Edgar Williams, it is alleged, a colored man employed on the farm. He is missing.

Mr. White and his family left home yesterday morning to spend the day with relatives. Last night when Mr. White returned it was evident the stock had not been attended to. He failed to find any trace of the woman, but ascertained that Williams had been intoxicated in the afternoon. This morning the body of the woman was found in the barn with the skull crushed in. Beside the body lay a post driver, with which it is supposed the wound was inflicted.

No trace of Williams has been found. A posse started in pursuit this morning. Very little is known about Williams, who had not been in Mr. White's service long.

Bonds Offered at Sub-Treasury.

Yesterday, the first day of the bond offerings under the extended time granted by the Secretary of the Treasury, the total amount of bonds offered at the Sub-Treasury here was $305,200 of 4s and $43,350 of 5s. This is the smallest offering yet made here.

The Very Choicest

food products of the world is what we write about—the sort that will stand the very closest sunlight inspection and disclose no defect in color, weave or finish—cloths giving positive results—you have a right to expect this of us—for we claim them the finest—yet reasonable.

Burnham & Phillips

Custom Tailoring Only.
Temple Court Annex, 119 Nassau St.

PROGRESS OF THE GAS WAR.

New Amsterdam's Rate in Effect, but Said Not to Be Maintained.

The only new feature in the gas situation yesterday was the going into effect of the rate of $1.10 fixed by the New Amsterdam Gas Company at the last meeting of its Directors. "The new rate went into effect to-day," said F. S. Hastings, a Director of the company, "and no change is possible without another meeting of the Directors. So far as I know, the new rate will be kept up."

Russell Sage, President of the Standard Gas Company, said that he had heard of nothing new in the gas war since the determination of the New Amsterdam Directors to raise the rate. Mr. Sage had nothing to say regarding the future policy of his company.

President Gawtry of the Consolidated Gas Company would not discuss the probability of an increase of Consolidated business resulting from the raising of rates by the New Amsterdam. A news bulletin issued yesterday by Dow, Jones & Co. said:

"Consolidated Gas Company is putting more canvassers on customers which were taken from them by New Amsterdam. It is found that the New Amsterdam Company is not holding firmly to its higher advertised rates for gas. Under the circumstances the gas war has become just as hot as ever. Some third parties are trying to get a basis of settlement."

HARLEM CONTRACTOR ACCUSED.

Creditors with Large Claims Say They Cannot Find Him.

Lewis F. Mortimer, a Harlem contractor and builder, has disappeared, his creditors say, leaving, as alleged, many debts unpaid. They amount in all to $15,000. There is a warrant out for Mortimer's arrest, and Central Office detectives are trying to find him.

Several weeks ago Mortimer, with his wife and two children, moved into handsome apartments at 528 West One Hundred and Twenty-third Street. They furnished them very elaborately, and it was generally understood that Mortimer was a wealthy contractor. A few days after his arrival in the neighborhood Mortimer purchased a plot of ground with a 100-foot frontage at Broadway and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Street and announced that he would erect a ten-story apartment house that would be of unusual elegance. He made a contract with Cornelius R. Terwilliger of 511 West One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Street, who is building on the northwest corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street and Broadway, to erect the proposed building. He promised as soon as the walls had reached a certain height that he would make a first payment of $5,000.

The day came and Mortimer congratulated Terwilliger on his rapid progress, saying that he would go to the bank and draw the money. Incidentally Terwilliger remarked that he had a note for $1,475 which he had been unable to get discounted at his bank. Mortimer at once volunteered to get the note discounted when he drew the $5,000. Mortimer took the note, went away, and Terwilliger is waiting for him yet. Terwilliger says that on leaving him Mortimer went to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company and borrowed $5,000 on the uncompleted building. He also alleges that Mortimer had the note for $1,475 discounted and pocketed the proceeds.

The lot on which the building stands is mortgaged for all it is worth, according to Terwilliger, and the building materials were obtained on credit. Mechanics' liens for about $18,000 have been filed against the unfinished building. Terwilliger has sworn out a warrant against Mortimer, and will also begin a civil action.

SAYS CABMAN ROBBED HER.

Mrs. Bigelow Claims She Lost $3,600—Arrested for Intoxication.

A well-dressed young woman was yesterday morning discharged by Magistrate Deuel in the Jefferson Market Police Court. She had been held on a charge of intoxication. She was picked up Thursday night in a helpless condition at Nineteenth Street and Sixth Avenue.

Yesterday morning the woman claimed to have been robbed during Thursday afternoon of $3,600. She said she had been staying at the Grand Hotel, and that she was once the wife of Hiram Bigelow, a lawyer at 150 Nassau Street.

The woman gave her name as Emily M. Bigelow and said her maiden name was Eames. Her mother died when she was quite young, she claimed, and her father placed her in a convent at South Bend, Ind. After leaving the convent she says she went to Chicago, where she married Hiram Bigelow. He separated from her, she says. She came here to try and effect a reconciliation with him, and Thursday morning went out riding in a cab. She claims to have had a large amount of money, which she alleges was stolen by the cabman after she had visited several saloons.

Fish, Game, and Forest League.

Robert B. Lawrence, Vice President of the New York State Fish, Game, and Forest League, has announced that the league's regular annual meeting will be held at the Yates Hotel, Syracuse, next Thursday. All "clubs, associations, and organizations for the protection of forests and the propagation of fish and game" in the State are invited to send delegates, each club being entitled to two or more representatives, according to its membership. Proposals for amendments to the fisheries, game, and forest law should be in the hands of the Chairman before next Tuesday. Efforts will be made to form clubs in every section of the State.

In Aid of Tuskegee Institute.

A public meeting in the interest of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute will be held in Madison Square Garden Monday evening, Dec. 4. Ex-President Grover Cleveland will preside. Addresses on the general question of negro education and the special work being accomplished by the Tuskegee Institute will be made by Walter H. Page, formerly of North Carolina and late editor of The Atlantic Monthly; William H. Baldwin, Jr., President of the Long Island Railroad and a Tuskegee Trustee, and Dr. Booker T. Washington, President of the institute. Plantation songs will be sung by a quartet of Tuskegee students.

Fifty-fifth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Egbert B. Johnson of Hackensack, N. J., celebrated their fifty fifth wedding anniversary, Thanksgiving Day, at the home of their son, Elmer E. Johnson, 193 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are each seventy-eight years old. Mr. Johnson at one time taught school and later manufactured shoes. His appointment in 1861 to a position in the New York Custom House was one of the first appointments under Mr. Lincoln's Administration. Mrs. Johnson's mother was Millie Barton, a descendant of William Bradford of Mayflower fame. Of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson's seven children six are living.

Help for Holiday Money Orders.

So as to be ready for the holiday rush in the Money Order Department of the postal service of this city, Postmaster Van Cott, yesterday, appointed from the Civil Service list thirty-seven extra money order clerks. The outgoing foreign money orders are increasing daily and will continue to do so for a fortnight. Then the incoming foreign money orders will begin to arrive and continue to do so until after New Year's Day.

JOHN T. AGNEW BURIED.

Many Friends Attend Funeral Services for the Bank Officer.

The funeral of John Thomson Agnew, Vice President of the Continental National Bank, took place yesterday morning at his late home, 13 West Nineteenth Street, and was attended by many friends, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont, Justice Frederick Smyth, Edmund D. Randolph, Dr. W. Draper, Robert B. Roosevelt, A. Van Santvoort, Dr. O. Webster, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Atterbury, Justice Abraham R. Lawrence, Ewen McIntyre, and William Einstein.

The service was choral, the following hymns being sung by the Mendelssohn Quartet: "Father, What of Earthly Bliss," "The Lord Is My Shepherd," and "Asleep in Jesus." The Rev. Dr. David Steele of Philadelphia made a prayer, the Rev. Dr. James D. Steele, pastor of the First Reformed Presbyterian Church of this city, read a chapter of the Bible, and the Benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle. This concluded the ceremony.

The burial was in Greenwood Cemetery.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

A. M.		P. M.	P. M.
Sun rises...7:06	Sun sets...4:34	Moon sets...	...

High Water This Day.

A. M.		A. M.	A. M.
S. Hook....6:39	Gov. Isl'd...7:00	H. Gate....8:56
P. M.		P. M.	P. M.
S. Hook....7:09	Gov. Isl'd...7:20	H. Gate....9:16

Outgoing Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SATURDAY,) DEC. 2.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Adirondack, Jamaica, &c.	10:00 A. M. *10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Andes, Haiti	10:00 A. M. *10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Asiatic Prince, Santos	12:00 M.	2:00 P. M.
British Queen, Antwerp
Campania, Queenstown and Liverpool	10:30 A. M. *12:00 M.	2:00 P. M.
Caribbee, St. Thomas, &c.	9:30 A. M. *10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Colorado, Hull
El Rio, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
Ems, Naples, &c.	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Louisiana, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
Massilia, Naples and Marseilles
Mexico, Havana	11:00 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Nueces, Key West and Galveston		3:00 P. M.
Sarmatian, Glasgow
Spaarndam, Rotterdam	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Tiller, St. Kitts, &c.	10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

Trojan Prince, Azores	7:00 A. M.	9:00 A. M.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Aller, Bremen	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Beverly, Inagua, &c.	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Comanche, Charleston		3:00 P. M.
El Paso, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
Hevelius, Pernambuco, &c.	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Prins Willem IV., Haiti, &c.	10:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for Hawaii, Japan, and China, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Coptic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Australia. Mails for Australasian Colonies, (except West Australia, which go via Europe, and New Zealand, which go via San Francisco,) Hawaii, and Fiji Islands, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Nov. 25 and up to Dec. 9, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Warrimoo.

†Registered mail closes at 6 P. M. previous day.

Incoming Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SATURDAY,) DEC. 2.

British Empire, Antwerp, Nov. 19.
City of Macon, Savannah, Nov. 28.
Comanche, Jacksonville, Nov. 29.
Ohio, Hull, Nov. 20.
Salerno, Newcastle, Nov. 16.
Umbria, Liverpool, Nov. 25.

SUNDAY, DEC. 3.

El Norte, New Orleans, Nov. 28.
La Champagne, Havre, Nov. 25.
Marquette, London, Nov. 28.
Pretoria, Hamburg, Nov. 21.
Rotterdam, Rotterdam, Nov. 23.
San Marcos, Galveston, Nov. 27.
Tallahassee, Savannah, Nov. 30.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

Bovic, Liverpool, Nov. 24.
Mayfield, St. Michaels, Nov. 24.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Chalmette, New Orleans, Nov. 30.
Friesland, Antwerp, Nov. 25.
Knickerbocker, New Orleans, Nov. 29.
Lyell, Gibraltar, Nov. 21.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Indraghira, London, Nov. 22.
Jerseymoor, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Pawnee, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Willehad, Bremen, Nov. 25.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7.

Charing Cross, Gibraltar, Nov. 28.
Galileo, Hull, Nov. 25.
Manica, Shields, Nov. 23.
Trave, Bremen, Nov. 28.

Arrived.

SS Ferndene, (Br.,) Jones, Shields Nov. 16, in ballast to Norton & Son. Arrived at the Bar at 6 P. M.

SS Kansas City, (Br.,) Savage, Bristol Nov. 16 and Swansea 18th, with mdse. to James Arkell & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 5:40 P. M.

WIND—At Sandy Hook., N. J., Dec. 1, 9:30 P. M., south, moderate; cloudy; hazy off shore.

SS Patria, (Fr.,) Bourge, Marseilles Nov. 9 and Naples 14th, with mdse. and passengers to J. W. Elwell & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 2:30 A. M.

Ship Brynhilda, (Br.,) Meikle, Philadelphia Nov. 29, in ballast to Scammell Brothers.

Bark Alice Reed, Ford, Port Spain, 27 days, with asphaltum to order; vessel to Yates & Porterfield.

Brig Acacia, (of Port Medway, N. S.,) Hart, San Andreas, 37 days, with mdse. to A. N. Rathois.

SS Barden Tower, (Br.,) Campbell, Demerara Nov. 20, with sugar to A. E. Outerbridge & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 8:45 A. M.

SS El Mar, Grant, New Orleans Nov. 26, with mdse. to J. T. Van Sickle.

SS Buenaventura, Walker, Newport News, to the Luckenbach Company.

SS Merida, Reith, Curacao Nov. 23, with mdse. to Boulton, Bliss & Dallett. Arrived at the Bar at 9:40 A. M.

Bark Bianca Aspasia, (Ital.,) Pacietti, Aixa, Oct. 14, and Macoris Nov. 13, with wood and sugar to J. B. Vicini & Co.

Bark Persis, (of Windsor, N. S.,) Malcolm, Buenos Ayres, 54 days, with hides to the United States Leather Company; vessel to W. R. Grace & Co.

SS Hamilton, Dole, Norfolk and Newport News, with mdse. and passengers to the Old Dominion Steamship Company.

Sailed.

SS Comal, for Galveston.

SS Princess Anne, for Norfolk and Newport News.

SS Santiago de Cuba, for Santiago, &c.

SS Colorado, for Brunswick.

SS Atlas, with an oil barge, for Savannah, &c.

Spoken.

Ship Port Elgin, (Br.,) Capt. Hand, from New York for Fremantle, was spoken Nov. 10 in latitude 5 south, longitude 32 west.

Miscellaneous.

ROTTERDAM, Dec. 1.—The Holland-America Line steamer Statendam, Capt. Bonjer, from New York, which went aground at Maasluis yesterday, as reported, after having partly discharged her cargo, arrived here at 2 A. M. to-day.

By Cable.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—SS Hesperia, (Br.,) Capt. Coverley, from New York for Marseilles, &c., passed Gibraltar to-day.

SS Manhasset, (Br.,) Capt. Walker, from New York for Leith and Dundee, passed May Island to-day.

SS Marengo, (Br.,) Capt. Bingham, from New York, arr. at Newcastle yesterday.

SS Manitou, (Br.,) Capt. Cannons, from New York, arr. at this port to-day.

SS Montcalm, (Br.,) Capt. Shallis, from New York, arr. at this port to-day.

SS Saale, (Ger.,) Capt. Mirow, from New York, via Southampton, arr. at Bremen yesterday.

SS Ballaoch, (Br.,) Capt. Robertson, from New York for Manchester, arr. at Liverpool to-day.

SS British King, (Br.,) Capt. Willis, from New York, arr. at Antwerp to-day.

SS Drummond, (Br.,) Capt. Chubb, from Calcutta for New York, arr. at Suez to-day.

SS Kvarven, (Nor.,) Capt. Kanits, from New York, via Portland, England, arr. at Hamburg to-day.

SS La Bretagne, (Fr.,) Capt. Allix, from New York, arr. at Havre at 1 P. M. to-day.

SS Mesaba, (Br.,) Capt. Layland, for New York, sld. from this port to-day.

SS Amsterdam, (Dutch,) Capt. Rogeveen, from Rotterdam for New York, passed the Isle of Wight to-day.

SS Deutschland, (Ger.,) Capt. Schierhorst, from New York, arr. at Rotterdam Nov. 28.

SS Manhasset, (Br.,) Capt. Walker, from New York, arr. at Leith to-day.

SS Island, (Dan.,) Capt. Skjodt, for New York, sld. from Copenhagen Nov. 29.

SS Cevic, (Br.,) Capt. Nicol, for New York, sld. from Liverpool to-day.

SS Etruria, (Br.,) Capt. Ferguson, from New York for Liverpool, passed Brow Head at 7:30 P. M. to-day.

SS Chateau Yquem, (Fr.,) Capt. Berries, from New York for Naples, arr. at Marseilles to-day.

SS Wollomombo, (Br.,) Capt. Pontin, from New York for Havre, arr. at Pauillac to-day.

SS Picqua, (Br.,) Capt. Brown, from Messina for New York, sld. from Palermo yesterday.

"ROUGH" OVERCOATS

from all the popular rough-coated fabrics—Cheviots, Friezes, etc., in Grays and Oxfords,

To order, $18.

Winter will be down upon you before you get that new heavy suit, if you're not lively. Better come in to-day and leave your measure.

Suit to order, $20.

Fit, Fashion, Fabric, NONE BETTER.

Nicoll.

771 Broadway, 145-147 Bowery.

America's Largest CREDIT CLOTHIERS AND TAILORS.

CAREY & SIDES

3-58 4TH AVE., COR. NINTH ST.

MEN'S and BOYS'

CLOTHING ON CREDIT

READY MADE AND TO ORDER.

YOU are extended the CREDIT benefits here with all the CASH advantages that other concern in our line of business offer. Our "NO-RA-CHARGE" CREDIT system is an insurance on your patronage that permits us to figure all our book accounts as sure but less from year to year.

WEEKLY AND MONTHLY PAYMENTS.

Ready-made Suits and Overcoats, $10, $12, $15 to $25. TO ORDER, $16, $20, $25, and $30. Boys' Suits, $3 to $17. Men's Hats, Tuxedo and Full Dress Suits, silk-lined, to order, $30, $35, $40, $45, and $50.

Write for WATCHES AND JEWELRY. terms and particulars.

OPEN SATURDAYS UNTIL 10:30; MONDAYS, 9.

Kennedy

CORTLANDT ST.

Colored Shirts.

Hundreds of new patterns,

98c. to 1.49.

A lot of dollar Shirts at 49c

They are odd lots of Madras and percale, all sizes.

Underwear from every standard hosiery mill in the world.

Gray Gloves, 98c.,

of Real Mocha, pique stitch, worth 1.50.

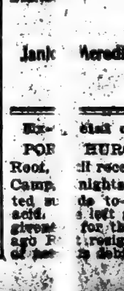
Reindeer 1.49
Dogskin 98c

"Quell"

ELISKA

25 CENTS EACH

CHARLETT, PEABODY & Co. MAKERS



The Best Breakfast Food,

WHEATENA

ALL GROCERS

ASTHMA, HAY FEVER AND CATARRH

Oppression, Suffocation, Neuralgia, etc., cured by ESPIC CIGARETTES, or POWDER

ESPIC, New York, E. FOUGERA & CO.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

DESKS.

Great Variety of Style and Price.

T. G. SELLEW

111 Fulton St., N.Y.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Choice Books Cheap

AITKEN'S, No. 1 William St.

Copyrighted Books, 25 per cent. discount.
Popular " 40 " "
Standard " 50 " "

SPECIAL:

Jane Meredith, $1.50; my price, 75c.

Ex-Chief of Maccabees a Suicide.

HURON, Mich., Dec. 1.—L. A. Root, recently chief clerk of the Great Camp of the Maccabees, committed suicide to-day by swallowing carbolic acid. He left a note asking his wife's for

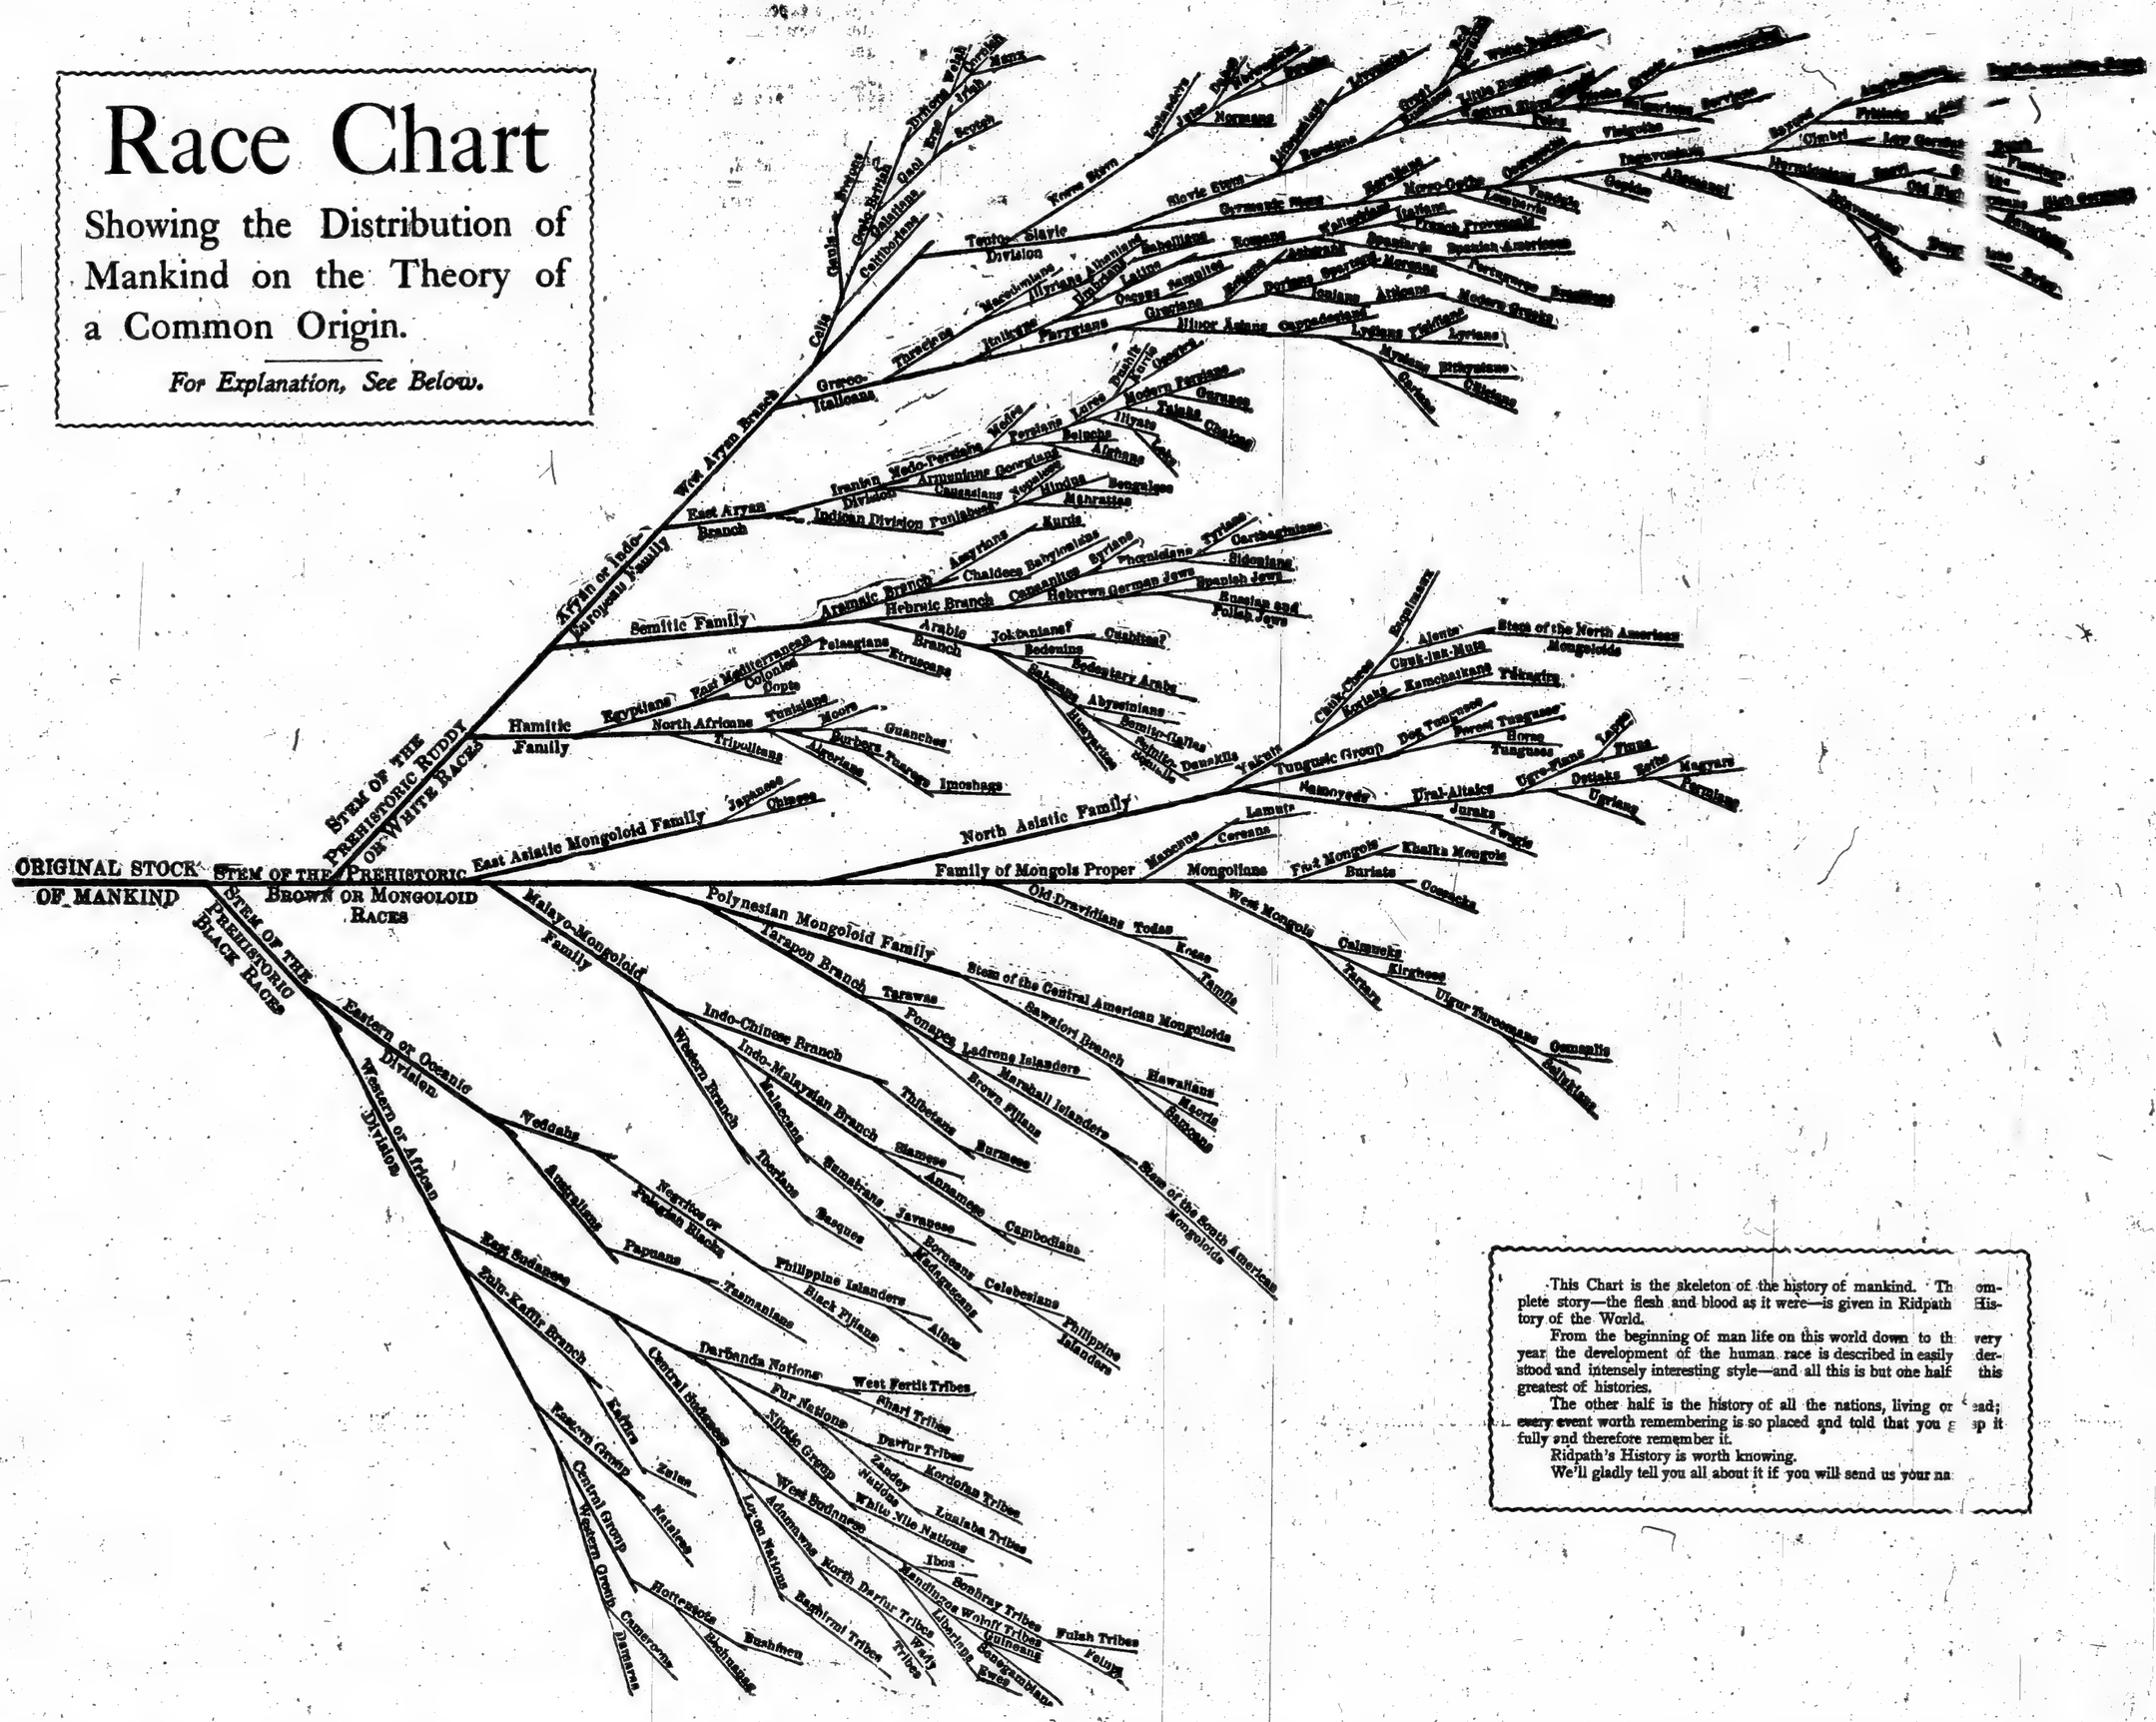
A Royal Christmas Gift

Only one dollar to be paid now. The remainder may be paid $2 each month after the Christmas demands are over. Every member of any family will enjoy Ridpath's History of the World, and profit by it, too.

Race Chart

Showing the Distribution of Mankind on the Theory of a Common Origin.

For Explanation, See Below.



This Chart is the skeleton of the history of mankind. The complete story—the flesh and blood as it were—is given in Ridpath History of the World.

From the beginning of man life on this world down to the very year the development of the human race is described in easily understood and intensely interesting style—and all this is but one half of this greatest of histories.

The other half is the history of all the nations, living or dead; every event worth remembering is so placed and told that you grasp it fully and therefore remember it.

Ridpath's History is worth knowing.

We'll gladly tell you all about it if you will send us your name.

Above chart shows the distribution of the races of mankind, on the theory that they have all proceeded from a common source. That source is indicated by the heavy line at the left. From this original the great divisions branch off, namely, the Black races, the Brown (or Mongoloid) races, and the Ruddy (or white) races. Each of these stems divides into many branches. In general way, the latitude of the given race is indicated as on an ordinary map. In Ridpath's History of the World this chart is printed in colors. The lines indicating White races are printed in red, the Mongoloid races in brown and the Black races in black. Names of extinct races are printed in black, of present day races in red.

To trace the descent of any race read from right to left. Thus the English speaking races are derived from Anglo-Saxons, Saxons, Ingavonians, Mœso-Goths, out of the German stem, of the Teuto-Slavic division of the West Aryan branch, of the Indo-European family, of the prehistoric Ruddy or White races.

This chart is but one of a great many to be found in Ridpath's History of the World, all of them the original conceptions and handiwork of Dr. Ridpath. The development of mankind and the succession and relation of the great events in the history of all the different nations are pictured so clearly that a single chart serves to bring in review the entire history of centuries. Taken alone these charts are highly instructive. In connection with Dr. Ridpath's masterful and absorbing narrative they are of incalculable value to any one who reads to know and therefore to remember.

Specimen pages and full information about the half price sent free on request.

Accurate Knowledge—How to Possess It.

Accurate knowledge, clear and definite, is the only sort of knowledge worth having. It is the only sort that is available for instant, practical use. It is the sort that marks the difference between self-dependent, efficient, reliable people and weak, vacillating, uncertain ones. It is the mental capital of a strong personality—the kind of personality that every one admires.

Psychologists tell us that this certainty—this knowing that you know—is not so much a matter of quality or quantity of brain as it is the way you use it. They say that most any one is perfectly able to acquire clear certainty in place of hazy uncertainty. They say that if you "look up" doubtful things whenever you come across them in the course of your ordinary newspaper or magazine reading, instead of being satisfied to pass them over in misty doubt, you will soon get together a fund of sure and ready knowledge that you can draw from at will whenever you have use for it—that you can often coin into dollars. They say it's the looking up that gives the memory its grip.

This applies to all kinds of knowledge, but it applies to historical knowledge more than to any other kind. Almost every day you come across some historical allusion in a newspaper that has only a very indefinite meaning for you, (unless you are a good deal different from the average,) but that you ought to be well posted about.

Do you know what happened in a little skirmish in Zululand in 1879, that gave the death blow to the hopes of the Bonapartists of France?

Do you know where Shipka Pass is and what occurred there?

You know that Rear Admiral Schley was in command of a war vessel that got into serious difficulty in a Chilian port a few years ago. But how much more do you know about it?

And all these are events of yesterday. How is it when you go further back into history?

Ridpath's History of the World with its indexes is especially designed to furnish a Library for Historical Reference. It is designed to furnish just the sort of accurate, definite, clear-cut information that is useful to the every-day man or woman.

It is the only complete history of the world that is recognized as an unquestioned authority and is used and indorsed by such men as President McKinley, ex-President Harrison, ex-Governor Foraker, Bishop Vincent, Rabbi Hirsch, General Lew Wallace, Bishop Newman, Rev. Dr. Cuyler, Seth Low, President J. B. Angell, and a host of others.

It is equipped with a sweeping index, so voluminous and comprehensive that you can find the record of any desired event in a moment's time. And when you have found it, the whole story is right there. You are not sent chasing here and there through the other pages and chapters of the work by a "see-also-page-so-and-so-and-so-and-so;" neither do you require another reference work to help you find out what Dr. Ridpath means. Whatever is worth knowing about that event is there before you, and it is set down in plain, straightforward, graceful English.

It will give you just that grip on history that every person knows he ought to have, but that so few ever take the trouble to acquire.

In any family whose members care to be posted, Ridpath's History of the World will repay its moderate cost over and over again in a single year.

Specimen pages and full information about the half price sent free on request.

As Others See It.

A large part of this page is given to stating our idea of Ridpath's History of the World. Here are a few opinions of others:

President McKinley.

"I am familiar with the merits of Ridpath's 'History of the World,' and can recommend it to the scholar as well as to the plain people generally."

Ex-President Harrison.

"The mechanical part of the work has been most creditably done; the illustrations are numerous and of a high order, and aid the text very much. The author's labors are deserving of the highest praise. I most heartily recommend the work for study and convenient reference."

Review of Reviews, of New York.

"The reader feels himself in the hands of an author who possesses not only a wide acquaintance with books, but also the corrective of a keen knowledge of men and human nature, and a singular breadth of view and sanity of judgment."

John L. Stoddard.

Historian and Lecturer, Boston.

"I rejoice that such a work has been produced to meet a long-felt need, and to bring the history of our race to the easy grasp and comprehension of our busy millions."

Gen. Lew Wallace,

Indianapolis, Indiana.

"I have not words to sufficiently recommend Professor Ridpath's 'History of the World,' and am delighted to hear that a reduction of the price is in contemplation, as the effect will be to bring the great work within the means of every reader."

Specimen pages and full information about the half price sent free on request.

Bishop J. H. Vincent, D. D., LL. D.,

Chancellor Chautauqua University, N. Y.

"Professor Ridpath has put 'the world' into a form for carrying, using, and enjoying. Any man can be the mythological Atlas now. In a clear and agreeable style, by comprehensive and compact treatment, with readable type, and admirable pictorial illustrations, he has made it easy for Atlas to appreciate and take delight in the burden he bears. This book is a permanent college chair of general history in one's own house."

Emil G. Hirsch,

Rabbi of Sinai Temple, Chicago, Ill.

"I take pleasure in recommending Ridpath's History as one that should not be absent from any library. It is scholarly, for it is accurate; it is popular, for it avoids useless technicalities. The plates which accompany the letter-press and illustrate the context are of a very high order. This History deserves a strong hold on the sympathies of all classes, the student no less than the general reader."

T. Clarke Seelye, D. D.,

President Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

"I have been much pleased with Professor Ridpath's 'History of the World,' and in my judgment it is the best general history for popular use that has ever been written."

James B. Angell, LL. D.,

President of the University of Michigan.

"I have examined Ridpath's 'History of the World.' As a popular history of the world it will be commended to the public."

Specimen pages and full information about the half price sent free on request.

Ridpath's History of the World

Half Price—$2 a Month

embraces the whole history of men, their origin, development, customs and beliefs; what they have accomplished of good and of evil; how by their genius they have builded great nations; and how by their follies and vices they have ruined them.

From primeval man to your next door neighbor—from the founding of the first dynasty, 4200 B. C., to the Philippine Rebellion—the evolution of mankind and the nations of the earth is traced step by step graphically, interestingly, with no important fact omitted, with no unnecessary crowding of unimportant detail. The style is flowing, the narrative as absorbing as a romance—in striking contrast to every other work that has attempted to deal with such a range of facts and figures. A new volume has just been added to this great history, rewriting history of the last decade, and telling the authentic story of the last two years, so fruitful in American history.

Through the Wanamaker History Club you can secure the complete set at about half the publishers' price and on payments of $2 per month. The membership fee is One Dollar. As soon as you are accepted as a member the entire set is sent you; nine massive volumes, about 7,000 pages, 4,000 illustrations, and maps, charts and tables in profusion. After receiving the set you pay $2 monthly for 17 months to complete the purchase.

Specimen pages and full information about the half price sent free on request.

Cut This Corner off and fill in the blank and mail it to-day to JOHN WANAMAKER, New York City.

CUT HERE

You may send me specimen pages of Ridpath's History of the World, and full particulars of the Wanamaker History Club.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

T 2 This coupon enables you to SAVE $31.

Ridpath's History Contains

9 massive volumes, nearly 7,000 large double column pages [equivalent of 70 ordinary volumes], over 4,000 engravings, 35 historical maps in color, 10 chronological charts in color, 9 race charts in color, 14 colored plates depicting types of the races, 33 genealogical diagrams, 8 colored reproductions of etchings on tint blocks. A picture to every page or two.

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co., JOHN WANAMAKER Broadway, Fourth Ave., Ninth and Tenth Streets.

Half Price—$2 a Month

Cut this coupon off, fill in the blank and Mail TO-DAY T 2

DATE .....

JOHN WANAMAKER, N. Y.: Enclosed is $1 club fee. Send me one set of Ridpath's History of the World in 9 volumes, half Russia binding. I agree to pay to your order $34 additional (instead of regular price $66) in monthly payments of $2 each month after date. It is agreed that title to books shall not pass to me until total amount is paid.

NAME .....

BUSINESS .....

ADDRESS .....

HOME ADDRESS .....

SEND BOOKS TO .....

CHAMBERLAIN CRITICISED

Lord Rosebery Comments on the Secretary's Speech.

FRENCH PRESS IS INCENSED

Takes the Reference to an Alliance Seriously—English Papers Dissent from Chamberlain's Views.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Lord Rosebery, speaking at Edinburgh this evening, deprecated Mr. Chamberlain's reference to France in his speech at Leicester, and said:

"We have no right to go into the gutters to fish up the derelict press of any country and to hold it up to scorn or as a motive of our policy. It is impossible that the Queen could be besmirched by such attacks, which only recoil on the attackers; and whatever the degraded outburst may mean, it does not represent the best or highest opinion of France."

"We have been overready to flout other nations, and it is no wonder that Great Britain is unpopular abroad. I do trust that this undiplomatic frankness will cease, for these stinging words rankle long afterward, and it is not for statesmen to speak under the passing irritation of the moment."

The Paris correspondent of The Evening News telegraphs to his paper to-day that there is reason to believe that Sir Edmund J. Monson, the British Ambassador to France, will shortly apply for a prolonged leave of absence as a protest against the attacks made by the French press on Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales.

With few exceptions the afternoon newspapers dissent from Mr. Chamberlain's Anglo-Saxon-Teutonic alliance speech at Leicester yesterday.

The Pall Mall Gazette lays stress on the strong anti-German prejudice in Great Britain and declares bluntly that Mr. Chamberlain had better have kept silent.

The Westminster Gazette takes the same line, believing Mr. Chamberlain did not represent Government opinion and pointing out how offensive the speech was toward France.

The Globe maintains it is impossible for Germany to give a quid pro quo for the responsibilities which would accrue to Great Britain by such an alliance.

The Evening Standard says Mr. Chamberlain referred to alliance by treaties.

The St. James's Gazette says: "Mr. Chamberlain simply expresses English public opinion, which has come to realize that with Germany and the United States we can work, because with those powers we have a community of interests and sentiments, whereas with Russia and France we have not."

The Sun, the only other afternoon newspaper, takes a similar favorable view of the suggested alliance.

FRENCH PRESS URGES ACTION.

Discusses "Eventualities" Which May Result from the Speech.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Some of the newspapers attach considerable importance to the utterances of Joseph Chamberlain at Leicester yesterday, and consider that they show that Emperor William's visit to England was partly political. The majority, however, characterize certain of Mr. Chamberlain's declarations as empty threats, and regard the suggestion of an alliance between Great Britain, the United States, and Germany as simply eccentric.

The Matin observes that Mr. Chamberlain alludes to the alliance as an accomplished fact and as being his work, and "seizes on the opportunity to address threats to France, which leave us as unmoved as does the famous prospect of a new Triple Alliance."

The Journal des Debats says it doubts the existence of an Anglo-German agreement, as Mr. Chamberlain asserted, and adds that it would be cruel and indecent upon the part of Emperor William to accept the acclamations of the Dutch and visit their Queen if he had really signed what is tantamount to the death decree of the two South African republics. Emperor William's visit to Holland must mean that he has not taken such an irrevocable step.

The Journal urges the recall of Admiral Fournier's squadron from the Levant, in view of "eventualities which may result from the present anti-British campaign in France."

Admiral Fournier is on board the third-class cruiser Cosmao, at Constantinople, where the Sultan will formally receive him to-day. The rest of the French fleet awaits Admiral Fournier at Smyrna.

The Liberte takes the matter more seriously and urges France to seek alliances, "in view of a certain eventuality in, perhaps, the near future."

COMMENT OF GERMAN PRESS.

Some Papers Protest Against an Alliance, Others Favor One.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—The use of the word "alliance" in Mr. Chamberlain's speech at Leicester has caused a general flutter in the German press. The Chauvinist organs protest vigorously. The Kreuz Zeitung, the organ of the military party, comments with scorn and indignation.

Other journals, including the Lokal Anzeiger, assert that the meeting of Count von Bulow and Mr. Chamberlain in London was productive of results calculated to smooth away some difficulties which had arisen in colonial questions, but that no alliance exists, although the conferences between the German and British statesmen at Windsor Castle left an equally good impression upon all. As bearing upon this, the Lokal Anzeiger adds:

"Germany and Great Britain are guided by the same sincere wish to remove in a friendly manner occasional subordinate differences. At the same time, Germany does not intend to fight other people's battles."

The Vossische Zeitung says: "We also wish to see Germany, Great Britain, and the United States co-operating in all essential questions of world-policy."

DEATH OF A PRACTICAL JOKER.

Justus Morris Passes Away at His Home in Linden.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 1.—Justus Morris died to-day at his home in Linden. He was born in Lower Rahway in 1821. He first worked on a farm, then made money as a painter, and later was a successful real estate speculator here. He owned some of the best business property in the city. He served on the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and was defeated for Mayor on an independent ticket. Nine years ago he was sued by Miss Hayward for breach of promise of marriage, but compromised the case. Then he married his cook, the present Mrs. Morris. Two sons by his first wife are also living.

Mr. Morris was always a practical joker. He once owned a sheat which looked sickly. With Henry McCandless, a friend, who laughed at it, Mr. Morris bet a few dollars that the grown pig would weigh 500 pounds. It did the day before it was killed. He fed it until its feet were almost hidden in folds of fat. He was caught giving it charcoal, and explained it was to keep the animal's stomach in order. The pig was estimated to have eaten ten times the value of the bet.

Men-of-War's-Men Give a Ball.

The members of the crew of the United States battleship Massachusetts gave their fourth annual ball at Webster Hall in East Eleventh Street last night. Sailors from other United States men-of-war were also invited. About 800 persons attended the ball. Capt. Train of the Massachusetts visited the ball to take a look at his men, and after wishing them an enjoyable time gave them leave of absence until Monday morning. Just before dancing began the lights in the large hall were put out and several calcium lights were thrown upon a large flag folded and suspended from the ceiling. At a given signal the flag fell in graceful folds while the band played the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The officers of the evening were P. O'Donnell, President; W. G. Smith, Vice President; H. A. Davis, Secretary, and G. E. McHugh, Treasurer.

Third Attempt to Burn a Village.

THREE BRIDGES, N. J., Dec. 1.—The third attempt within a week to burn this village was made last night. A large barn belonging to John Hall was fired. Tracks to the barn made by a woman's shoes were discovered and this leads to the belief that a woman was concerned in this and the other recent attempts to destroy the village. Watchers discovered during the evening that preparations had been made to set fire to the Three Bridges creamery. A quantity of fresh oily waste had been placed under one of the sills of the building. In the cellar of the general store of Joseph Dilt waste soaked in kerosene oil was also found.

LAWYER'S WIFE FOUND DEAD.

Mrs. Jere A. Wernberg Asphyxiated by Gas in an Apartment House in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Mary J. Wernberg, forty-seven years old, wife of Jere A. Wernberg, a lawyer of Brooklyn, was found dead in her apartments, at 80 Lafayette Avenue, that borough, yesterday morning. She was discovered lying on a bed in an inside room. The room was filled with gas, which was escaping from a jet which had been partly turned on. A window in the room had been pulled down a few inches from the top.

Mrs. Wernberg and her husband occupied the second floor, the house being divided into several apartments. Yesterday morning at about 10:30 o'clock Maggie Hanley, a servant employed by Mrs. Julia Leverich, the landlady, detected an odor of gas while passing the Wernberg apartments. She informed her mistress, and the latter knocked at Mrs. Wernberg's door. Getting no response she became alarmed, and sent the servant to bring Mrs. Wernberg's sister, Miss Reilly, who lives at 424 Lafayette Avenue. Miss Reilly was not at home, and when the servant returned she and Mrs. Leverich forced the door of the Wernberg apartments. They found Mrs. Wernberg lying dead in an inner bedroom, as described.

Word was sent to Mr. Wernberg at his office, 379 Fulton Street, and he informed Coroner Burger. The Coroner gave permission for the removal of the body to the home of the Reilly family. Dr. Emil F. Hartung, the Coroner's physician, who made an examination of the body yesterday afternoon, said last night that he believed Mrs. Wernberg's death was accidental. He added that she must have been dead forty-eight hours when discovered. At the Coroner's office it was intimated that it was not likely an autopsy would be held. Mr. Wernberg could not be seen in relation to the matter.

How Mrs. Wernberg could have been dead for two days without being discovered has not yet been explained. The couple had been married twenty-two years, and lived happily together, so far as the neighbors know. They had no children, and were accustomed to take their meals at a restaurant. Mrs. Leverich declares that the last time she saw Mrs. Wernberg alive was on Tuesday night, when she told her she was going to take dinner with her sister at the latter's home on Thanksgiving Day. The landlady says she saw Mr. Wernberg leave the house yesterday morning. On Thursday night he acted as referee in a pool match between Payton and De Oro at Maurice Daly's billiard parlor, on Broadway, this borough.

Mr. Wernberg is very well known in Brooklyn. He was Assistant District Attorney under Gen. Isaac Catlin, and was engaged with Edward M. Shepard as special counsel in the prosecution of John Y. McKane after the Gravesend election troubles. Mr. Wernberg is also well known in National Guard circles. He was formerly on the staff of Brig. Gen. McLeer, and was Commissary of the Thirteenth Regiment under Col. Watson.

NO FRENCH LINE PURCHASE.

Agent Here Denies Reported Staten Island Terminal Scheme.

It was reported yesterday that the French line of steamships, the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, had purchased from Mrs. George Bechtel a large strip of water-front at Stapleton, Staten Island, and that the price paid was $1,000,000. It was stated that the company contemplated running additional steamers to supplement its present express service. The Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroad tracks, that are controlled by the Baltimore and Ohio, run along the shore end of the property, and cargoes, it was said, could be discharged directly into freight cars for transport into the interior and into lighters for transfer to New York docks.

Eugene De Bocande, the New York agent of the line, when asked last evening about the reported purchase, said he had not heard anything about it and it was all humbug. If any such purchase had been made, he would have known about it, he said.

GRAIN DEAL WITH MONTREAL.

Scheme to Divert Shipments from This Country to Canada.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1.—The Harbor Commissioners of the Port of Montreal to-day accepted the proposition made by Buffalo and Cleveland capitalists, looking to an increase of grain exports through this port.

A site is to be granted the syndicate for a large elevator and freight sheds, and the syndicate in turn agrees to build fifteen strong barges with tows, all at a cost of $1,100,000.

The syndicate agrees to bring 25,000,000 bushels of grain to Montreal next season and to increase this amount to 35,000,000 bushels or more in 1901. A bond of $50,000 is to be given.

INSURANCE MEN AT ODDS.

Non-Union Companies Assail Union Under Trust Laws.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—War has been raging between special agents and field men of fire insurance companies since Oct. 1. The belligerents are the representatives of union and non-union companies, and the fight is revolving around the old cry of "anti-trust."

The union companies number about 100, consisting of the big foreign companies and many of the strong American companies. Until last week they held the upper hand in the situation, as the non-union men are without organization and have had no concerted plan of action. In the last month, however, the non-union companies have appealed to the State Insurance Departments for relief from the operation of union rules on the ground that the union is a trust.

A decision of the Attorney General of Minnesota, rendered lately, that the union was violating the anti-trust law is looked upon as a valuable precedent, and the outsiders hope to get similar recognition here.

FIGHT OVER FREE TEXTBOOKS.

Chicago School Trustees Divided on the Question.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—The subject of free text books for the public schools has been brought before the members of the Board of Education by the resolution introduced by a Trustee, calling for the compilation and publication of the books under the charge of the board. Trustees to-day discussed the plan from this point of view.

While the plan as outlined in a resolution introduced at the board meeting contemplates only a step toward eliminating unnecessary matter and furnishing the books to the children at the lowest possible price, some Trustees believe this is preparatory to having the board furnish books to the children entirely free.

On the question the Trustees hold widely different opinions and seem about equally divided. Several Trustees violently oppose the scheme, hinting that it tends to "pauperize" the pupils, while others enthusiastically favor it on the ground that it would place all the children on a level, books being now furnished free to those who confess inability to buy them.

The present system is flouted as the "pauperizing" one by the supporters of the new scheme, who point out that it would remove any possible stigma to have books given free to all pupils. The matter will probably cause a hot fight when it comes up for a deciding vote.

CAN'T SIT CROSS-LEGGED NOW.

Tailor Brings Suit for Damages to His Knee.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 1.—Theodore Brandstettner, a tailor who can no longer sit cross-legged, asks the court to award him damages in the sum of $3,000 on that account.

The Ohio Messenger and Telegraph Company is defendant. One of the company's bicycle boys ran the tailor down on the street, and injured him so as to cause an enlargement of the knee. Brandstettner claims he is permanently incapacitated from his trade.

Lectures on Shakespeare's Plays.

A series of four lectures on the dramas of Shakespeare will be delivered at Cooper Union Dec. 5, 12, 19, and 26 by Henry Austin Clapp. The lectures will be given under the auspices of Columbia University. No tickets of admission will be necessary. The doors will close at 8 o'clock.

FOR ENTRANCE TO COLLEGES.

Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia Proposes a Scheme of Uniform Examinations.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Dec. 1.—The thirteenth annual convention of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland began here to-day in the auditorium of the State Schools. More than 500 delegates were present.

Prof. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University read a paper this afternoon in which he advocated strongly the adoption by colleges of uniform entrance requirements with a common board of examiners. After commenting upon the widely varied entrance requirements of colleges not only of subject, but also of topics specified under the subjects, Prof. Butler proposed a uniform series of requirements, from which the various colleges might make selections. He further proposed a uniform administration of these requirements, and outlined a plan for the establishment of a joint college admission examination board by the colleges of the Middle States and Maryland represented in the association.

Each college, according to the plan, would have one member on the board, and the secondary schools in the association would have five representatives elected annually. This board would have two functions—first, to bring about as rapidly as possible an agreement as to each subject required by two or more colleges for admission; second, to prepare an annual series of college admission examination papers, to hold examinations in June of each year at convenient points throughout the Middle States and Maryland, and to issue certificates based upon the results of such examinations.

Prof. Butler declared his belief in the entire practicability of such a plan, which, he thought, would stimulate secondary education in an extraordinary degree and remove its greatest burden—the dissimilarity of requirements in the various colleges.

Following the reading of Prof. Butler's paper, there was a discussion on the subject by President Patton of Princeton, President Eliot of Harvard, and President Low of Columbia. President Eliot and President Low were heartily in favor of the uniform entrance system. They said it would enable preparatory schools to adopt a curriculum such that their graduates could enter any college.

President Patton said he had not given the matter much thought, but he was inclined to think that there were many objections to the uniform system. A common examining board would in a measure take from colleges the privilege of saying who should enter, and no doubt the college curriculum would have to be revived. He did not know that Princeton was in favor of this change.

ROBBERS QUARREL; ONE DEAD.

James McMahon Is Stabbed by a Companion at Troy in an Altercation Over Spoils.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 1.—James McMahon was found on the sidewalk at the corner of Jacob and King Streets at 2:45 o'clock this morning. He was bleeding profusely from four stab wounds in the head and breast. The ambulance conveyed him to the hospital, where he died at 9 o'clock.

He recovered consciousness sufficiently to implicate John South, his companion. The latter was arrested, but denies his guilt. Both men resided in Fort Plain, and were here on a visit.

The two men left Fort Plain, N. Y., after robbing a farmer, and are supposed to have quarreled over the spoils.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., Dec. 1.—The transactions leading up to the killing of McMahon are said to be substantially as follows:

Wednesday last, a middle-aged farmer named Van Patten came here from Pleasantbrook, Otsego County, N. Y., with plenty of money. He visited a number of places in the town accompanied by South. At night, instead of going to a hotel, he accompanied South to the home of the latter, and it is said that the old familiar badger game was worked there. To quiet matters Van Patten divided his money with South. Yesterday morning, while still dazed from drink, Van Patten bought several dollars' worth of provisions for the South home, but later, realizing that he had been duped, appeared before Police Justice Meyer and claimed that he had been robbed. During Thursday South and McMahon both went to Troy, where McMahon had a sister, visiting friends. A quarrel over the disposition of the money in South's possession resulted in the death of McMahon and the arrest of South. South and the dead man are said to have been friends for many years.

A few years ago McMahon's father was murdered, and the officials at Fort Plain have repeatedly expressed the opinion that young McMahon knew more in regard to the killing than he was willing to admit, but the identity of the murderer was never fully established. South, the man charged with the killing of the younger McMahon at Troy, has for some time past been under $1,300 bonds. Of these bonds $500 were imposed by local Magistrates because of a charge that he had committed burglary at the hardware store of Williams & Tanner, and $800 because of a similar offense alleged to have been committed in a building owned by the local Board of Trade.

THE NEW EAST RIVER BRIDGE.

Engineer Nichols Gives Some Facts About It to Brooklyn Merchants.

O. F. Nichols, the principal Assistant Engineer of the new East River Bridge, addressed the members of the Broadway Merchants' Association of Williamsburg last night at their headquarters, in the Broadway Bank Building, Graham Avenue and Broadway, on the progress of the new bridge. Besides the members of the association there were present a large delegation from the Greenpoint and Grand Street Boards of Trade and the Grand Street Improvement Association.

Mr. Nichols said the steel towers which rest on the tower foundations will be about fifty feet higher than those of the old bridge. The pull on the four cables, due to the weight of the bridge and its load, is about 20,000 tons, and this pull is resisted wholly by the strength of the anchorages. The suspended structure or the portion of the bridge carried directly by the cables, is connected with them by the suspender ropes, which are to be made of twisted wire, and are each 1¾ inches in diameter. This structure will weigh about 7,500 tons, and will require about a year for its construction. The Manhattan approach is nearly twice as long as the Brooklyn approach, and both together they will require about 18,000 tons of steel for their construction. The entire construction of the bridge will involve the destruction of about 500 buildings, the excavation of about 125,000 cubic yards of material, and the use of about 60,000 cubic yards of concrete, 6,500,000 feet of timber, 130,000 cubic yards of masonry, and 45,000 tons of steel.

The new bridge will be much wider and about four times as strong as the old one. "It is probable that its total cost will exceed that of the old bridge, but," said Mr. Nichols, "there can be little doubt that its value to the city will be out of all proportion vastly greater than its cost."

STREET CAR WAR IN CHICAGO.

Fares Cut in Two by the Calumet Electric Line.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Tickets on the Calumet Electric Railway are selling at two for 5 cents, and persons who use the line are pleased at the rate war which brought about the reduction. An order issued by Gen. John MacNulta, receiver for the Calumet Company, was the cause of the cut in traffic prices. While Gen. MacNulta minimizes the rate war, the new movement is understood to be a retaliation upon the South Chicago Company, better known as the "Red Line," because of its refusal to allow the Calumet Company the use of its tracks on the Ninety-second Street bridge, which spans the Calumet River.

The trouble between the two corporations originated when the bridge over the Calumet River at Ninety-third Street collapsed. The tracks of the Calumet line ran over the structure and continued south to Robey Street. When the bridge went down an effort was made by Gen. MacNulta to secure the use of the tracks of the South Chicago line over the Ninety-second Street bridge. The "Red Line," it is said, refused to consider the matter, and since that time the service of the Calumet line on that branch has been limited to South Chicago, and miles of its tracks have lain idle.

Grain and Flour Receipts at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Dec. 1.—The receipts of flour and grain by lake at this port show a big falling off from last year. From the opening of navigation to Nov. 30 the receipts of flour have been 8,403,580 barrels, a decrease of 1,337,000 barrels, as compared with last year. The receipts of grain have been 135,548,979 bushels, as compared with 193,778,965 bushels last year, a decrease of over 58,000,000 bushels.

GARRET A. HOBART'S WILL

Estate of the Late Vice President Valued at $2,000,000.

A MILLION FOR MRS. HOBART

Large Sums Left to Relatives and Friends—Bequests to Charities in Paterson.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 1.—The will of Garret A. Hobart, late Vice President of the United States, was probated and made public to-day. By it $1,000,000 is given to the widow, she receiving that sum outright, besides being made the residuary legatee. The will gives $70,000 to relatives and friends, and $5,000 is given to each of the local institutions of a charitable character.

The estate is valued at about $2,000,000 by the will, but this estimate will increase as many of the enterprises of the testator work out. Mrs. Hobart, Col. William Barbour, E. T. Bell, and A. A. Wilcox are named as executors. The will, which is dated July 27, 1897, and contains a codicil dated March 9, 1899, says:

"I do order that my executrix and executors shall have full power and authority to sell and dispose of all or any of my property, real and personal, of every kind and description wherever the same may be located, at their will and pleasure, and to assign and convey the same with full power in the premises, and to change and exchange the same as they may see fit and proper, and to give good and sufficient deeds or other assurances for the same. And I expressly direct that they may hold and keep likewise in their discretion any investments or securities in which I have made payments or investments during my lifetime, and to protect the same in their judgment. And both my executors and trustees may take such risk thereto as executors might not have the legal right to take if they were governed by the strict legal rules in making investments; but this application shall be made only so far as investments are concerned made by me in my lifetime, and in the care and protection of such investments, and has no reference to any direct investment.

"I give and bequeath to my brother, David R. Hobart, the sum of $20,000, and to his son, George S. Hobart, if he is living at the time of my decease, the sum of $10,000, and to his daughter a like sum of $10,000 if she be living at my decease, said sum to be paid to each child when it shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years; but my executrix and executors are empowered to make application or payment prior to that time for their support, maintenance, and education for either of said children, as they may see fit and proper, and I also forgive and discharge the said David R. Hobart from all indebtedness from him to me.

"I give and bequeath to the Old Ladies' Home of the City of Paterson the sum of $3,000, to the Paterson General Hospital of the City of Paterson the sum of $3,000, to St. Joseph's Hospital of the City of Paterson the sum of $3,000, to the Paterson Orphan Asylum the sum of $3,000, and to the Children's Day Nursery the sum of $3,000.

"I give and bequeath unto my wife, in lieu of dower, in all my lands and real estate, the sum of $400,000, to be paid to her absolutely for her own uses and purposes.

"All the rest, residue, and remainder of my estate, personal, real, or mixed, I give, devise, and bequeath to my executrix and my executors, as Trustees, the income of which is to be paid over to my said wife and is to be used for the support and maintenance of my wife, Jennie T. Hobart, and also for the support, maintenance, and education of our remaining child, Garret A. Hobart, Jr., hereafter empowering her with full control over the entire income of the said estate for the full end and term of her natural life, and for her and his use entirely as she may see fit and proper, and at her death then the said income shall accrue and descend to and be paid over absolutely to my said child, Garret A. Hobart, Jr., or for his use and benefit; that said payment and accumulations shall not be paid in any event to him by said executors or Trustees until he shall arrive at the age of thirty years, but nothing herein contained shall prevent my said executrix and executors from making any advance payment to him during the lifetime of my wife, or at any time in their discretion."

Mrs. Hobart received $600,000 additional in the codicil. The local charitable institutions each received $2,000 additional in the codicil and the following persons were mentioned as beneficiaries in it: Hobart Tuttle, namesake of the testator, $20,000, and Albert A. Wilcox, $10,000.

Mrs. Hobart also receives $10,000 with which to reward deserving friends, relatives, and employes at her discretion.

Mayor Hinchliffe this morning received a letter from Mrs. Hobart thanking him, the Aldermen, city officials, and citizens for their kindness in her recent bereavement.

A Woman on Municipal Socialism.

Mrs. Percy Wildrington, lecturer and delegate of the London Fabian Society, last night discussed municipal socialism before the People's Institute in Cooper Union. After explaining the theory of municipal socialism, Mrs. Wildrington dwelt upon the necessity of control by the cities of gas, electricity, transit facilities, and all such utilities, and even went so far as to advocate the handling of the milk and coal supply and the sale of meat by the municipality. The conduct of baths, places of recreation and amusement, libraries and museums was also a proper municipal function, she said, and hospitals should be controlled by the city. Those festering localities called slums should be made the subject of condemnation proceedings, and the city should itself build model houses for the poor. Eventually land should be commonly owned. It would not do that the Government should act for the people, but it should be representative of the people, she concluded.

Car and Wagon Crushed Conductor.

William Davis, thirty-one years old, a sub-trolley car conductor, met with a serious accident last night while his car was passing 322 West Fifty-ninth Street. Standing near the curb was a wagon with a platform for carrying large panes of plate glass, the property of Nathan Huget, 109 Wooster Street. The motorman miscalculated the distance between the platform and the side of his car, and Davis, who was collecting fares from the passengers in the open section of the car, was swept to the street. Before falling he was squeezed between the wagon platform and the car. Several ribs were broken and he was hurt internally. The injured man was taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

Try to Kill with Dynamite.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Dec. 1.—An attempt to destroy the home and family of Attorney W. L. Cron was made last night by unknown parties, who placed three pounds of dynamite at his front door and ignited a fifteen-foot fuse which burned down into the fulminate cap, but failed to explode it. Following the Urbana outrage, in which one man lost his life, the people are thoroughly aroused, and open threats of summary justice are frequently heard.

Used a Knife, Then a Revolver.

BICKNELL, Ind., Dec. 1.—To-day Charles Blackwell, aged twenty-one, in a quarrel stabbed Sylvester Guyer several times, the blade penetrating the left side near the heart. Blackwell, a few minutes later met Rolla Horn, and, after a few words, drew a revolver and shot him in the neck, the bullet almost cutting into the jugular vein. Both men are dying. Blackwell is at large. Horn is the son of the wealthiest man in Knox County, and great excitement prevails.

Laborers Buried in a Denver Sewer.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 1.—By a cave-in of the sewer excavation at Thirty-fourth and Downing Avenues to-night, several laborers were buried, and probably all will be lost. The body of George Holtz has been taken out. It is not known how many were in the trench.

Elgin Watch Company Raises Wages.

ELGIN, Ill., Dec. 1.—The Elgin National Watch Company to-day gave notice of a restoration of the wages of 1892. The advance was unsolicited. The company employs 2,400 men.

BOARD HAS MILLER'S BOOKS.

Rumors Regarding Police Affiliations with Franklin Syndicate Under Investigation at Headquarters.

All the books of the Franklin Syndicate were yesterday brought to Police Headquarters from the Vernon Avenue Police Station, in Brooklyn, in order to facilitate the investigation which the Police Commissioners and Chief Devery are making with a view to finding out how many of the members of the force, if any, were involved in the enterprise, and more especially to learn how it happened that Miller was permitted to escape so easily. The books were brought over in a patrol wagon, guarded by two policemen in uniform, and were at once carried to President York's private room, where he and Commissioner Abell began a careful examination of their many entries.

No trace was found yesterday of William F. Miller, the manager of the syndicate, nor of Cecil Leslie, his associate, and rumors of an impending "shake-up" in the Brooklyn force, which first became current with the sharp criticism of the Kings County Grand Jury upon its work in the case, were more persistent than ever.

Robert Adams Ammon, attorney for Miller, said last night that Capt. Lees came to his office yesterday afternoon and spent fully an hour in conference with him. Mr. Ammon refused to say what the purpose of the conference was or what result it might have. Capt. Lees's wardman accompanied him and was present during the conference. Mr. Ammon said:

"I got Miller out of the way, and will keep my promise to produce him at the proper time. In the meantime I insist upon my full privilege as his attorney to withhold information as to where he is."

Capt. Lees said that he had used no threats to Mr. Ammon and had received a promise from him that he would give him any information he might have as soon as he could.

Louis A. Gourdain, President of the Imperial National Bank, who was arrested in his office in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Building on a charge of conducting a banking business without a State certificate, was held for trial by Magistrate Deuel in Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday, bail being fixed at $2,500. Gourdain is said to have instituted a scheme of selling "endless-chain bonds" at $1, which promised a profit of 300 per cent.

BARS WRAPPERS AT BREAKFAST.

Mrs. Mary Janson Hunt Objects to Them as Attire at Hotel Tables.

The Haight divorce case, in which Mary L. Haight seeks a separation from Henry J. Haight, both deaf-mutes, was continued yesterday before Justice Giegerich, in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Mary Janson Hunt, daughter of the defendant, was placed on the stand again, and Judge Van Wyck, counsel for Mr. Haight, examined her.

She still insisted that a woman who paints her face is not a lady, and she has a strong opinion relative to women who go to hotel breakfast tables in wrappers. In consequence of these opinions, she and her mother induced the trustee of her grandfather's estate to take them away from a Newark hotel. Mrs. Hunt said that she had talked to her father about his associations with Miss Essie Spanton, a deaf-mute upon whom Mrs. Haight has testified that her husband lavished money.

She declared that her father lived in New Jersey to avoid having papers served upon him for money owed in New York. The witness and her mother lived in New York, and Mr. Haight visited his family at night to avoid summons servers.

Judge Van Wyck insisted several times during Mrs. Hunt's testimony that she kept one eye on her husband and brother, who signed to her how to answer the cross-examination. Justice Giegerich told her she had better not look toward her husband and brother in order to avoid suspicion.

PROSPERITY OF THE SOUTH.

Mills Going Up, Negroes Employed, and Free Silver Sentiment Dying.

Col. A. P. Corse of Atlanta, Ga., who is connected with the Talladega Iron Company, is in the city. He is a former New Yorker.

"The South is growing rapidly and the increase in the number of industries is remarkable," he said yesterday. "Land is cheap, and immigration must turn in that direction. The West is out of it. Iron and cotton mills are going up in all parts of the South, and all of the possible output has been contracted for well toward the close of next year.

"Many of the colored people are turning their attention to farming and cotton planting, and this is materially simplifying a very perplexing problem. The average negro does not care to be penned up in a factory for six days a week, and he has discovered that the growing population in the business centres makes the cultivation of garden truck an easy and remunerative employment. Many colored men are buying up small plots of ground in suburban districts. The white people are encouraging them in the movement, because it takes the colored people from the cities and villages, where their presence is not conducive to harmony.

"The sentiment for Bryan and free silver is rapidly dying out in the South. Prosperity has done the work, and the Southerners are also beginning to view our colonial possessions with satisfaction, believing they will furnish an excellent outlet for Southern products."

OHIO GIRL'S PRESENTIMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, Ohio, Dec. 1.—Miss Lou Imhoff, a clerk in D. W. Fitton's store, came to work to-day saying to her associates: "Something seems wrong. I couldn't sleep last night."

A few minutes later a customer came in whom she did not know and asked casually if she had heard of the accident near Oxford.

"A man was killed last night by the explosion of a gun," the stranger said.

"Who was he?" inquired Miss Imhoff.

"His name was Charles Imhoff," the stranger replied.

The victim was Miss Imhoff's brother, and she is prostrated by the shock.

Double Murder by a Jealous Woman.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 1.—Mamie Delong shot and killed Lizzie Sessions and Calvin Andrew in a fit of jealousy at Land Pebble Phosphate camp near here yesterday. Andrew had been paying attention to the Delong woman, but had transferred his affections to Lizzie Sessions. Mamie Delong went to Lizzie Sessions's house to horsewhip her, and the trouble resulted in the double murder.

Demand of Detectives Denied.

The Police Board yesterday passed a resolution denying the demands of twenty Brooklyn and sixty-five Manhattan detectives to be ranked and paid as detective Sergeants at $2,000 a year instead of as patrolmen at $1,400. The demand was made some time ago through Col. James, counsel for the detectives, who asserted that it was in accordance with the provisions of the charter.

Answer to a Correspondent.

"VAN VALEN."—The Australian election system which has been made the basis for ballot laws in many other parts of the world, is not uniform throughout the Australian colonies. In some the voter receives a ticket with the names of all the candidates upon it, from which he strikes off those he does not desire to vote for, and then deposits it in a box; in others he designates his preference by making a mark opposite the names of his chosen candidates.

The Kindergarten Association.

The annual meeting of the New York Kindergarten Association will be held at the Plaza Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. The principal speakers will be James H. Canfield, librarian of Columbia University, and the Rev. Dr. Donald Sage Mackay.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

New York City.

WRIGHT DAIRY COMPANY.—Deputy Sheriff Roberts has received an execution against the Wright Dairy Company of 303 West Fifty-third Street for $3,718 in favor of John Klatsl, who was formerly the Treasurer of the company. When the Deputy Sheriff went to the place to make a levy, M. J. Lewis claimed to have been the owner of the business since Nov. 28.

NEW ERA PUBLISHING COMPANY.—Deputy Sheriff O'Donnell yesterday received an execution against the New Era Publishing Company of 156 Fifth Avenue in favor of Joseph M. Richards for $4,428 in an attachment obtained by him on Nov. 9, under which the Sheriff levied on the office furniture. The Sheriff has also received an execution for $637 in favor of the Evangelist Publishing Company against the same concern.

Out of Town.

ISAAC T. CARPENTER.—Isaac T. Carpenter, a builder of Mount Vernon, made an assignment yesterday to Edwin L. Thomas of Yonkers. No figures were given as to the amount of his indebtedness.

PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

JOHN G. IHMSEN.—John G. Ihmsen, a lumber dealer of Pittsburg, asked yesterday to be declared a bankrupt. His liabilities are $34,811, and assets, $7,300.

MAX ALEXANDER.—Max Alexander of 75 East One Hundred and Thirteenth Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $602 and no assets.

JOHN M. VOACH.—John M. Voach, a stock dealer of West Middlesex, Penn., filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court at Pittsburg yesterday. His liabilities are $62,657 and assets $25.

SIMON LICHTER.—Simon Lichter, clerk of 148 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6,904 and no assets, except $1,000 in outlawed accounts. The debts were contracted in 1888.

GILBERT ISAACS.—Gilbert Isaacs of 73 East One Hundred and Twenty-first Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of 14,216 and no assets. He was formerly a clothing dealer at 29 Howard Street, and made an assignment on Sept. 28, 1865.

BERNHARDT ROSENHEIM.—Bernhardt Rosenheim, a salesman, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the District Court at Chicago yesterday, asking to be relieved of liabilities aggregating $83,343. No assets were scheduled. The debts were contracted in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1890, when the petitioner was in business with Julius C. Maache.

ADOLPH BLITZ.—Adolph Blitz, residing at 824 Lexington Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $423,178 and no assets. All the debts were contracted in 1891 at Nashville, Tenn., and were principally on notes made jointly with Max, Julius, and Alfred R. Sax. He was an accommodation maker of notes. Alfred R. Sax filed a petition in bankruptcy here on Oct. 16.

GEORGE HOWES.—George Howes of 15 Broad Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $14,851 and no assets. He was of George Howes & Co., shipping merchants, of New York and San Francisco, who dissolved in 1881. All the books of the firm were destroyed by the fire at Morrell's storage warehouse at Thirty-third Street and Fourth Avenue, on Oct. 10, 1881. Jabez Howes, the other partner, is dead.

ELIZABETH K. SATTERLEE.—Elizabeth K. Satterlee of 151 West Seventy-sixth Street, an insurance broker, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $36,854 and no assets. The greater part of her debts were on account of the copartnership of D. R. Satterlee & Co., insurance brokers, of 97 Cedar Street, as agents and underwriters of the Lloyds of New York City. She estimates the total amount of the debts contracted as an underwriter of the Lloyds of New York City at $25,000, and numerous judgments have been taken against her on that account. There is $965 due the Fire Department of this city for 2 per cent. of the premiums received on insurance written by Mary A. Stephen Merritt. She was a partner with her husband, Douglas B. Satterlee, as D. R. Satterlee & Co. He filed a petition in bankruptcy in January last, and has received a discharge.

Merchant Accused of Swindling.

David Hirschberg of the firm of David Hirschberg & Co., importers, of 450 Broadway, was arraigned before Magistrate Deuel, in Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday afternoon and held in $1,000 bail on a charge of swindling. The charge against him was that he borrowed money from the Mechanics and Traders' National Bank to the amount of between $5,000 and $6,000, giving as security a number of outstanding claims of the firm, which he had also assigned to the State Bank and to Bloomingdale Brothers. Testimony to this effect was given at the hearing yesterday, and then an adjournment was taken until Monday, when it is possible Hirschberg will have to face other charges.

Bradstreet's Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 177 failures in the United States during the week, against 202 for the previous week, and 212, 250, 359, and 315 for the corresponding weeks of 1898 to 1895. The Middle States had 55; New England, 41; Southern, 22; Western, 31; Northwestern, 11; Pacific, 9; Territories, 3. Canada had 25, against 38 for the preceding week. About 86 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less, and 11 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

Claim for Commissions.

An attachment for $6,000 has been obtained here against Mary E. Arthur of Chicago in favor of James Story and Alexander J. Halter on a claim for commissions on the exchange of property in Chicago and this city. A lis pendens has been filed against her on property at the northwest corner of

H. D. M'CORD & SON FAIL

A Leading Produce Exchange Firm Makes an Assignment.

TOO MUCH CORN ON ITS HANDS

The Senior Partner, After a Long and Successful Career, Refuses Offers of Financial Aid.

Henry Darius McCord and William Mangan McCord, who under the style of Henry D. McCord & Son did business as grain and feed merchants and Produce Exchange brokers at 92 and 94 Broad Street, and were rated at from $75,000 to $125,000, made an assignment yesterday. The assignment is without preferences, and the assignee is John P. Truesdell, President of the John P. Truesdell Company, grain merchants. The attorney for the firm is John O'Connell. The firm found itself embarrassed through carrying 1,500,000 bushels of maize, against which options had been issued. The senior partner could have had unlimited financial aid from many of his business associates, but he said that his affairs had got into a tangle and that he would not depart from his business rule in adding obligations to those he had incurred.

The situation in which the firm finds itself involves about $200,000 of secured and unsecured liabilities and $300,000 of gross assets. H. D. McCord owns the premises where he does business, his home at 118 West Seventy-third Street, and a country place at Scarborough, near Tarrytown, which is valued at $100,000. On this property are mortgages amounting to $137,000. Mr. McCord said last evening:

"It is a sorry experience for me. I have been here forty-two years without a business misfortune. I hope to pay every creditor a hundred cents on the dollar. Looking at the situation at its worst I cannot see that I shall be more than $25,000 on the wrong side, while I may be a little on the right side. I certainly expect to continue in business."

The firm issued this notice to its customers in regard to the failure:

Owing to circumstances beyond our control, we have been obliged to make an assignment. There will be no interruption in the business, which will be continued at the same place, under the name of Henry D. McCord & Son, agents. Our best attention to filling your orders properly and promptly will be given in the future, as in the past.

News of the assignment astounded the members of the Produce Exchange and evoked unbounded sympathy. The notice of assignment was filed at noon, and during the rest of the business day Mr. McCord's office was thronged with business men to offer sympathy or to ask if it was too late to be of service. Mr. McCord alternated between breaking down when a visitor talked kindly and transacting business with his usual vigor. Out of deference to a general sentiment of respect for the senior partner, who was President of the Produce Exchange for two terms, no announcement of the failure was put on the bulletin board of the Exchange. On receiving word of the assignment, President Elliot T. Barrows wrote to Henry D. McCord expressing a hope that he would be able to resume business at an early date, and adding:

"I am pained beyond measure to hear of your sad news. It must be a hard blow, not only in a financial sense but to one's pride, that after founding and maintaining a business like yours that misfortune should overtake it. As regards the portrait, (Mr. McCord's, which is in the Call Room gallery,) that remains as an evidence of the high position you have held in our Exchange, and no business adversities can take that away from you."

The life history of Henry D. McCord has often been used to illustrate the possibilities of a career begun "at the bottom of the ladder." He is of Scotch descent, and was born at Sing Sing, Sept. 15, 1836. He received a common school education, and when a lad was thrown on his own resources by the death of his parents. He was first a clerk in a grocery store in Sing Sing at $24 per annum, with board, and in 1857 went to where is present place of business is as clerk for the grain firm of Lane & Mangan, the junior partner, William D. Mangan, being his uncle. The senior partner died soon after young McCord began to work for the firm. In 1870 Mr. Mangan died, and Mr. McCord continued the business, and in 1871 founded the firm of Knapp & McCord. It prospered, and was dissolved in 1888. In 1803 Mr. McCord took his son, William M. McCord, into partnership. In recent years the senior McCord saw the first troubles of his career. His son Harry, who was in the employ of the firm, died in May, 1897, and during the first six months of this year Mr. McCord carried the burden of his large business alone, owing to the serious illness of his son and partner. In the late Summer the father went to Europe for rest and to recruit his health, returning a few weeks ago.

Henry D. McCord joined the Produce Exchange before the present building was erected, was conspicuous as a member of its Canal and Grain Committees, was its Vice President in 1894, and its President from 1895 to 1897. He is a member of the Colonial Club, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. He possesses the reputation of never having refused to aid a worthy cause or an individual in distress.

FAVOR CHANGING PENSION LAWS

Government Officials Believe a General Revision Advisable.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Senators Gallinger and Hansbrough, on behalf of the Senate Committee on Pensions, have been engaged for the past day or two taking testimony under a resolution passed by the Senate last session at the instance of Senator Hansbrough, instructing the committee to inquire into the wisdom of revising the pension laws.

So far they have heard Secretary Hitchcock and Assistant Secretary Davis of the Interior Department, and Commissioner Evans and Assistant Commissioner Davenport, and they expect later to receive a statement from the commander of the Grand Army. The testimony of the officials examined favors a general revision of the laws by a non-partisan commission.

VALUE OF HAVANA'S EXPORTS.

Those Made to This Country Exceed All Others Combined.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The War Department made public to-day a complete statement of the value of merchandise and gold coin exported from the port of Havana, Cuba, for the first nine months of American occupation, showing the volume of trade and countries.

A comparison of the amounts show that the exports to the United States exceed those of all other countries combined by $606,611. The exports to the United States for the nine months were merchandise to the value of $15,143,776, and gold coin amounting to $1,267,374, making a total shipped to this country of $16,411,150.

A NEW STAMP REGULATION.

When Used the Stamp Must Be Mutilated, Besides Being Canceled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue to-day issued a circular amending regulations as to cancellation of documentary and proprietary stamps. It is provided that:

"In all cases where a documentary stamp of the denomination of ten cents or any larger denomination shall be used for denoting any tax imposed by the act of June 13, 1898, the person using or affixing the same shall, in addition to writing or stamping thereon with ink the initials of his name and the date when affixed, mutilate said stamp by cutting three parallel incisions lengthwise through the stamp, beginning not more than one-fourth of an inch from one end thereof and extending to within one-fourth of an inch of the other end.

"Where such a stamp is cancelled by cutting or perforating in any manner authorized by existing regulations, as aforesaid, the mutilation herein provided will not be required.

"This provision shall take effect and be in force on and after Dec. 15."

Killed by a Fall.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Dr. Isaac G. Smedley, a well-known physician of this city, was almost instantly killed at Bryn Mawr station, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, near here, to-day. Dr. Smedley was about to step on a train bound for this city when he slipped and fell, striking his head violently on the platform, sustaining a fracture of the skull and dying in a few minutes. Dr. Smedley was about forty-five years of age, and was a graduate of Hahnemann Medical College, this city.

STATE CANALS CLOSED.

Water Will Be Kept In Until Monday to Allow Boats to Get Through.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—The State canals were closed officially at noon to-day, but the water will be kept in until Monday, so that all boats may get through.

Business has been better than last year.

WOMAN KILLS HER HUSBAND.

A Former Husband Was Killed by Her Brother Two Years Ago.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 1.—Last night Mrs. Bertie Lankford shot and killed her husband, George Lankford, at their home some miles from this city. They had agreed to a separation, but were still living together. Mrs. Lankford is locked up in the county jail.

She was divorced from a former husband and then married William Smith, who was killed by her brother some two years ago. The latter was acquitted. She then married Lankford.

Mrs. Lankford owns considerable property, estimated to be worth $100,000.

HOUSE OF REFUGE APPOINTEES.

Gov. Roosevelt Names Five Members of Board of Managers.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—Gov. Roosevelt to-day announced the appointment of five members of the Board of Managers of the Western House of Refuge for Women at Albion to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of the members of that board.

The appointments are Mrs. Sarah E. Gavin and Frederick Almy of Buffalo, Mrs. Etta Elsmer Falker of Syracuse, Francis H. Gates of Chittenango, Madison County, and William J. Sterrett of Middleport, Niagara County. There is one vacancy yet to be filled.

The old board resigned because of State interference, as they termed it.

CLERGYMAN'S WILL PROBATED.

Dr. D. L. Furber's Bequests to Church and Missionary Interests.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—The will of the Rev. Dr. Dana L. Furber, for thirty years pastor of the First Church at Newton, admitted for probate in the Middlesex Court here to-day gives large sums to church and missionary interests.

The First Church, Newton, gets $7,500; American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, $5,000; Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, $5,000; Congregational Church Building Society, incorporated in New York, $2,000.

The residue is to be divided equally between the American Board and the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society.

UPHOLSTERY WEAVERS STRIKE.

About 800 Union Employes Go Out in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Abou 800 union upholstery weavers went on strike to-day, closing twenty-six mills and throwing out of employment nearly 3,000 hands engaged in various departments of the factories. The strikers demanded a working week of fifty-five hours, 10 cents an hour for overtime, and an increased wage scale.

The advance asked is a general increase of about 25 per cent. The strike is the result of the failure of the manufacturers to sign the new wage scale presented by the Weavers' Union a few days ago. Many of the manufacturers had made an advance of 15 per cent., and when the new demand was made they refused to consider it. The weavers set to-day for a final answer, which was not forthcoming, and they went out in a body.

This city and Paterson, N. J., are the centres of the upholstery weaving industry in this country, and there are about 1,100 skilled weavers in Philadelphia. The Orinoco and Century Mills, employing about 700 weavers, have signed the new scale. There are thirty-two women in the strikers' ranks. They are the only female upholstery weavers in this country.

TWO BOYS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

One While Hunting, the Other by a Revolver in His Brother's Hand.

HONESDALE, Penn., Dec. 1.—Two young sons of Adolph Bea of Haley were hunting in Pike County, when one, Charles, aged fifteen years, was accidentally shot. He lived about twelve hours.

Robert Brady, son of John T. Brady, who is a druggist of this place, was accidentally shot through the heart by his brother William. The boys, with others, were camping on Torrey's Island. William Brady, aged fifteen, had a revolver, and some of the others tried to take it from him, when it was discharged in his hands, the bullet entering his younger brother's heart, and he died instantly. When he saw what he had done, William tried to shoot himself, but the weapon was taken from him.

PICKED UP A CHILD'S FOOT.

Boys Found It Lying Between Trolley Tracks in Brooklyn.

Boys playing in front of 80 Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, last evening found the right foot of a child lying between the trolley tracks, and turned it over to Policeman Samuel Meyers of the Bushwick Avenue Station, who carried it to the Vernon Avenue Station.

It appeared to have belonged to a boy about eight years old, and had evidently been severed for several days. The bone at the ankle was splintered, as though it had been ground off, but the toes were all neatly severed at the first joint. The skin was brown and callous, from which Capt. Lees of the precinct thinks the fragment was the foot of a boy who had gone barefoot much of the time. The skin was badly lacerated and the foot was covered with mud, as though it had been crushed into the dirt.

Detectives were sent out on the matter and Police Headquarters notified, but at a late hour the police were unable to connect the gruesome object with any recent trolley accident, and thought it might be a relic from the dissecting table.

SCHOONER CLARA RUN DOWN.

Cut in Two by the Steamer Ericsson—Three Sailors Drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Dec. 1.—During a fog yesterday the schooner Clara, from Cape May, N. J., for Philadelphia, with a cargo of sand, while at anchor in the Delaware River, near Chester, Penn., was run down by the Philadelphia and Baltimore steamer Ericsson.

The schooner was cut in twain and three of her sailors were drowned. They were James Wanzer, Thomas Rice, and Edward Wilson, all colored, of this city. Capt. Joseph E. Williamson, the only other man aboard, was caught in the wreckage of the schooner, and was seriously if not fatally injured. He was rescued while struggling in in the water. The schooner sank immediately after she was struck and the bodies of the three men are still in the wreckage.

The Ericsson sustained very little damage.

Suicide in a Vacant Lot.

A man who was later identified as Eugene Frankel, forty-five years old, of 112 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Street, shot himself through the head in a vacant lot at One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Street and St. Nicholas Terrace, last night dying instantly. Frankel was an insurance agent. He had, according to his wife, been a sufferer from liver complaint for the past two years, and for several weeks appeared to be very medancholy.

Exposition Exhibits Shipped to Paris.

The United States naval transport Prairie will leave the Brooklyn Navy Yard this afternoon to take part in the Government exhibit to the Paris Exposition. Before crossing to France the ship will touch at Baltimore and Norfolk to take on other parts of the exhibit. The Prairie will return to New York to take a second cargo of the Government exhibit to France in February.

British Paper on Opening of Congress.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Standard, in the course of an editorial briefly reviewing the present prospects of the United States in connection with the opening of Congress, says: "Seldom has a Presidential message been delivered in circumstances so favorable to the Nation and to the party in power as are those in which Mr. McKinley is about to approach Congress."

Woman Fatally Burned.

Mrs. Margaret Newell, a widow, seventy years old, living with her son John at 313 East Forty-fifth Street, died last evening in Flower Hospital. She was preparing supper and had filled an oil lamp, trimmed the wick, and applied a lighted match. She placed the lamp on a table when it exploded, the burning oil saturating her clothing.

TRUSTS MAY LEAVE CHICAGO.

Likely to Remove Their Headquarters to New York Owing to Hostility Toward Them in Illinois.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Most of the big industrial concerns now making their headquarters in Chicago are threatening to remove their places and offices to New York after the first of the year. The officers of the discontented concerns assign as a motive for the removal that the State Legislature and the Illinois courts are openly hostile to aggregations of capital and corporate enterprise.

The concerns involved and their capitalizations are: The Glucose Sugar Refining Company, $40,000,000; the American Steel Hoop Company, $33,000,000; the Federal Steel Company, $200,000,000; the Distilling Company of America, $125,000,000.

Besides these concerns, it is said that all of the other large manufacturing industries which come under the class generally denominated as trusts, are likewise contemplating removal from the State. Chief among these are the Illinois Steel Company, the American Tin Plate Company, the American Steel and Wire Company, and others of lesser magnitude.

Plans have been maturing for some time, and the removal of the Glucose, Whisky, Federal, and Hoop Steel trusts, Jan. 1, is almost certain. These four companies directly employ over 50,000 persons in the State, and pay over $1,000,000 taxes annually. Indirectly 500,000 persons will be affected by the removal. Local cooperage and planing establishments and the coal mines throughout the State are the industries which will be most affected by the removal.

It is said that the ruling of the Supreme Court in the Whisky and Glucose Trust cases has incensed the corporation officials to such an extent that they have joined hands and planned the move for their mutual good.

CAMERA TRUST FORMED.

Papers Filed at Albany and Rochester —Capital to be $3,500,000.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 1.—This morning there were filed in the Secretary of State's office at Albany and in the County Clerk's office here articles of agreement of the Rochester Optical Camera Company, to have a capital of $3,500,000. It starts off with a capital of $2,000,000, which will all be subscribed by Rochester financiers.

The company is formed to purchase the plants of the Rochester Optical Company, the Rochester Camera and Supply Company, the Monroe Camera Company, the Ray Camera Company of Rochester, and the Western Camera Manufacturing Company of Chicago. The new company holds options on these properties, and it is proposed to close up two or three of the factories and centralize the business in this city. The concerns mentioned manufacture 65 per cent. of the plate cameras in the United States.

It is estimated that the profits on the basis of the present business will be sufficient to pay 7 per cent. dividend on 12,500 shares of the preferred and 10 per cent. on 2,500 shares of the common stock. All the preferred stock is to be issued, and 6,940 shares of the common stock will be used to purchase the properties desired. The public will have an opportunity to subscribe for 5,560 shares of the common stock at par between Dec. 8 and 11 at the Central or German-American Bank.

The officers in Rochester are W. F. Carlton, President, and H. B. Carlton, Treasurer. The names of the Directors of the corporation for the first year are William G. Carlton, Harvey B. Carlton, Rufus K. Dryer, Benjamin E. Chase, Edward W. Peek, Vincent M. Smith, and Frederick P. Allen. The principal business office of said corporation is to be located in Rochester, N. Y.

WOULD OUST THE LEAD TRUST.

Missouri to Attempt to Bar It from the State.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—Attorney General Edward C. Crow began proceedings in the St. Louis Court of Appeals to-day to have the National Lead Company excluded from the privilege of doing business in Missouri on the ground that it is a trust.

The Attorney General charges, in his application for a writ of ouster, that the defendant is incorporated under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $30,000,000, and is doing business in Missouri without having first complied with the law which requires foreign corporations to procure licenses from the Secretary of State before they can establish offices in this State.

It is contended that the defendant is unlawfully usurping the privileges and franchises of a Missouri corporation, to which it has no right under the law.

It is also alleged that the company could not incorporate under the laws of Missouri for $30,000,000, and that its action in assuming to exercise the right of doing business in this State is illegal.

The application of the Attorney General will be heard by the Court of Appeals in fifteen days, unless the defendant files some dilatory proceedings.

An Enamel Ware Trust Possible.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.—An attempt is being made to consolidate all of the iron and enameling manufacturing companies of the manufacturing belt known as the middle west, which reaches from the Alleghany Mountains to the Mississippi River. It is proposed to effect a consolidation of the leading companies that make enameled ware, such as bathtubs, washstands, and general laundry and bathroom equipment, and then buy out the smaller concerns. The capital stock will be about $10,000,000.

TRAP DOOR CAUGHT HIS NECK.

Hempstead Sexton's Narrow Escape in the Church Belfry.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I. Dec. 1.—C. H. Amberman is suffering from a badly sprained neck as the result of an experience in the belfry of the Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday. Mr. Amberman, who is the sexton of the church, went to the belfry to make some repairs, and when he started to descend through the trap door slipped, and would have fallen the entire distance to the lower floor but that the door fell with him, catching him by the neck between its edge and the side of the hatchway. His hands were below the trap door, his feet were dangling in the air, and his breath was almost cut off by the trap door, so that he was unable to cry out.

As he was about to give up in despair one of his feet found a resting place, and hope revived. He set his foot firmly with the desperation of a dying man, and managed to summon strength enough to force his head up a little, and then succeeded in opening the trap door.

Arrested at Aunt's Funeral.

While attending the funeral of an aunt yesterday at St. Columba's Roman Catholic Church, Edward Flanagan, twenty-eight years old, an ex-inmate of the Elmira Reformatory, was arrested by the West Twentieth Street Station police on the charge of burglary. Shortly after midnight of Oct. 22 a thief entered the home of Philip Olweil, at 248 West Twenty-second Street, and stole $500 worth of diamonds, a gold watch, &c. The property was recovered in pawnshops, and the police were told that it had been pawned by Flanagan. They watched his accustomed haunts, but did not locate him until yesterday.

Change of Officials Causes Trouble.

NEWARK, Dec. 1.—Charles F. Underhill, a veteran of the civil war and an ardent Republican, was to-day ousted from his office as Warden of the Essex County Jail by Sheriff Virtue, who is also a Republican. Mrs. Amelia Bovet, widow of a veteran who was also an ardent Republican, was ousted as Matron of the same institution. Alderman Ferdinand Hosp, one of Virtue's boomers in the campaign, was placed in Underhill's position, and Mrs. Hosp was made Matron, and the action of the new Sheriff has caused bitter strife in the party. Underhill will test its legality under the Veteran act.

"Who Killed Cock Robin?" at Albany.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—Thomas Q. Seabrooke, supported by a good company, initially presented "Who Killed Cock Robin?" at the Empire Theatre in this city to-night before a very large audience. Mr. Seabrooke's success was emphatic. The new piece was translated and adapted from the French by J. Cheever Goodwin, assisted by Louis Harrison, and tells a story having the merit of novelty.

ST. ANDREW'S SONS DINE

Mr. Carnegie's Tribute to the Sovereign of Great Britain.

THE LOVE OF MOTHERLAND

Guests of Honor at the Anniversary Banquet of the Ancient Society of the Scotch.

Under the blended colors of the United States and Great Britain 450 members of the St. Andrew's Society of the State of New York dined last night at Delmonico's, in honor of the one hundred and forty-third anniversary of the foundation of their society. Andrew Carnegie, President of the society, acted as toastmaster. Upon his right, at a raised table running the length of the banquet hall, sat Sir Percy Sanderson, British Consul General in this city. At his left sat Levi P. Morton.

At the table of honor were the guests of the evening, among whom were the Earl of Cassillis, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke, the Rev. David G. Wylie, Chaplain of St. Andrew's Society; Parke Godwin, William B. Hornblower, George Gray Ward, President of St. George's Society; S. Franklin Stanton, President of St. Nicholas's Society; Miles J. O'Brien, President of St. Patrick's Society; Julien T. Davies, President of St. David's Society; Tunis G. Bergen, President of the Holland Society; Frederick J. de Peyster, Governor General of the Society of Colonial Wars, and William E. Dodge, President of the New England Society.

Among other prominent diners were James Balfour Adam, Charles Gabain of Havre, France; George H. Daniels, W. P. Clyde, Samuel Sloan, J. B. Hill of Boston, Walter Scott, Jr., John Duncan Dunn of the Scotch Royal Volunteers, John Reid, the Rev. Thomas Gordon, D. D.; Prof. Patterson of Kentucky University, Lexington, Ky.; John P. Duncan, Dr. A. J. McCosh, Dr. David Magee, Major Hugh Crawford of Bede, Scotland; J. D. Ichenhauser of London, England, and Col. A. S. Kimball.

When coffee and cigars were reached, President Carnegie arose. He said in part:

"One hundred and forty-three Presidents have arisen as I do to-night to call you to order. Before the Republic was, St. Andrew's Society was flourishing. It is not the first institution that has blossomed under the Monarchy to bloom and flourish under the Republic. We come here to-night to feast upon what there is of Scotch, to look back upon the tradition, the history, and poetry of Scotland. I see nothing inconsistent in loving the motherland while we love the wifeland. The man who loves the mother best will be he who loves the wife most. The best citizen of this Republic is he who holds in love and reverence his native land."

After reading letters from the St. Andrew's Societies of Montreal, Mecklenburg, Va., and Savannah, Mr. Carnegie proceeded to give the first toast: "The Day and a' Wha Honor It." This was followed by the toast to the Queen.

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Carnegie, "I have to propose a toast to one who was a friend of the Republic when it needed a friend, and who stands ready to be a friend to the Republic when it should need one; a noble woman, a queenly woman, and a womanly Queen, Queen Victoria."

The toast was drunk standing. Three rousing cheers followed by a "tiger" were given, and then the banqueters sang "God Save the Queen." When order had been restored, Mr. Carnegie continued:

"It is hard to find a toast parallel to that to the Queen, but there is one, which I cannot expect to arouse greater, but which will, I know, cause equal enthusiasm. Gentlemen, I ask you to drink to the head of our land, the President of the United States."

Tremendous cheers again broke forth, ending in hearty singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The speakers of the evening were then introduced. John Foord responded to "The Land o' Cakes," Dr. Van Dyke spoke in tribute to Scottish literature, and Parke Godwin on "The Land We Live In." "The Anglo-Saxon Race" was responded to by the Earl of Cassillis, and William B. Hornblower spoke on "Scotch Law." The concluding toast, "Our Sister Societies," was answered by William E. Dodge.

OLD ACTOR'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Edward W. Marston, Once Prominent in Theatrical Affairs, Passes Away.

Edward W. Marston, prominent in theatrical affairs of the city many years ago as an actor, died suddenly at his home on City Island last Thursday night of pneumonia. His illness had been very brief, and his appearance had been announced for a charitable performance for the benefit of the poor of City Island, which was held the night he died. He was born in Oxford, N. H., in 1836, and made his first appearance professionally in Lowell, Mass., when he played the part of Jimmy Twitcher in the "Golden Farmer." Later he traveled through New England with an organization of his own. In 1863 he managed a theatre in Norfolk, Va.

At a more recent date he managed a theatre in Memphis, Tenn., and in 1867 he came to this city and appeared at the Bowery Theatre. Several years later he left this theatre and became the manager of the National Theatre. In 1886 he retired from the stage, and since then had resided on City Island. Since his retirement his only appearances were in comedy rôles in testimonials. He was married to Mary France, sister of Sid C. and George W. France, prominent on the stage during Mr. Marston's career.

OLEOMARGARINE MEN IN JAIL.

Dealers Convicted of Violating the Law Sent to Prison.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Dec. 1.—After a legal battle in the United States courts covering a period of two years, Joseph Wilkins of Washington, D.C., and Howard Butler of this city were to-day sent to prison to serve sentences imposed upon them for having violated the law regarding the sale of oleomargarine. Wilkins was recently sentenced to imprisonment for six months and to pay a fine of $1,500, and Butler to four months' imprisonment and a fine of $500.

Wilkins and Butler were wholesale dealers in oleomargarine in this city. They were caught in the act of removing the brands from packages of the commodity in January, 1897, and were indicted at the February sessions of that year by the United States Grand Jury, their conviction following shortly afterward.

The case was appealed to the United States District Court of Appeals, and was later taken to the United States Supreme Court upon a writ of certiorari. The appeals failed in both cases.

The case is of National importance, as Wilkins and Butler are the first to be sent to prison for violating the oleomargarine laws. Other dealers convicted of selling oleomargarine as genuine butter have succeeded in getting off with the payment of a fine.

Mr. Sulzer's Friends Not Hopeful.

None of the Democratic Congressmen from this city was present at the Democratic Club last night, and it was said that most of them had gone to Washington to take part in to-night's caucus. The friends of Congressman Sulzer, who aspires to the minority leadership, believe that he will receive only a complimentary vote, inasmuch as his rivals, Messrs. De Armond of Missouri and Richardson of Tennessee have developed great strength in the last fortnight. It was said yesterday that unless Mr. Sulzer appeared to have a fighting chance on the first ballot, the Tammany votes would be given to the leading candidate.

Left Gold and Jewels in a Car.

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 1.—George Grimsey of Nutley is looking for a satchel which he left in a car on his return home from Newark last night. He is a diamond setter, and went to Newark yesterday to work. When he started for home, he took a lot of gold and stones which he expected to set at home, and rode home on a trolley car. The contents of the bag which he left in the car are valued at $1,000. He had sixty gold rings and a number of diamonds, rubies, and pearls. No trace has as yet been obtained of the bag.

Negro Legally Hanged in Georgia.

PERRY Ga., Dec. 1.—Richard Smith, alias Alabama Red, a negro, was hanged in the jail yard here at noon to-day. The crime for which Smith paid the death penalty was the murder of "Bob" Pine, also colored, at Beach Haven last May.

WAGES RAISED AT FALL RIVER.

Cotton Mill Operatives to Receive a 10 Per Cent. Increase.

FALL RIVER, Dec. 1.—All the cotton manufacturers of this city represented in the Fall River Association to-day decided that they would grant an advance of 10 per cent. in wages, beginning on Monday, Dec. 11. The mill owners had intended to make an increase of only 5 per cent., but the action of M. C. D. Borden of New York, owner of the Fall River Iron Works, in posting notices on Wednesday ordering a rise of 10 per cent. backed up the contention of the operatives, and nothing was left for the association to do but to follow Mr. Borden's order.

The iron works are not represented in the association. The latter includes about thirty-six corporations operating more than seventy-five mills. In all about 28,000 hands will benefit by the rates.

Six cars containing the first shipment of forty carloads of print cloths for the American Printing Company were sent from Robert Knight's Arctic Mill at River Point, R. I., to-day. M. C. D. Borden, owner of the American Printing Company, followed the announcement of a 10 per cent. increase in wages in his mill last Wednesday by the purchase of 125,000 pieces of standard prints from Robert Knight at 3¼ cents, an advance of ¼ cent above the market price. Forty carloads are equivalent to more than five months' production of the Arctic Mill, Robert Knight's only print cloth mill.

It is not known whether 125,000 pieces are the extent of the purchase, but it is a fact that Mr. Borden certainly has bought that quantity, and at the price named.

AT THE HOTELS.

WALDORF—K. L. Agassiz, Hamilton, Mass.; F. M. Hand, India; Wallace T. Foote, Fort Henry, N. Y.; Samuel Disston, Philadelphia; F. W. Roehling, Trenton.

MURRAY HILL—Roger Hayne, St. Louis; Clermont Livingston, British Columbia.

CAMBRIDGE—Charles E. L. Porteus, Montreal; R. W. C. Ellison, Bryn Mawr.

HOLLAND—J. B. Pitchford, Johannesburg, South Africa; C. M. Schwab, Vice President Carnegie Steel Company, Pittsburg.

GRAND—Gen. William F. Carlin, United States Army, retired.

RIVERS—B. T. Smelzer of the State Board of Health, Albany.

FIFTH AVENUE—Dr. David Kennedy, Kingston; Senator George F. Hoar, Massachusetts; Senator Redfield Proctor, Vermont; Marcus Robinson, Glasgow; Senator Jonathan Ross, Vermont.

ASTOR—Daniel T. Ames, San Francisco.

MANHATTAN—George C. Miles, Radford, Va.; Judge W. F. Arnow, Vineyard Haven, Mass.; Oakes Ames, Boston.

NETHERLAND—Gerard Stuyvesant, Florida; D. C. Shepard, St. Paul.

SAVOY—Samuel Sachs, San Francisco.

BUCKINGHAM—Gen. Sanford, English Army; H. F. Stevens, St. Paul.

IMPERIAL—Richard Elkins, West Virginia; Eugene S. Ashley, counsel International Paper Company, Glens Falls; William Laing Malcolm, Vice President United States Banking Company, Mexico City; Frederick L. Webster, Johannesburg, South Africa.

HOFFMAN—B. M. Lawson, Durham, N. C.; J. C. Manion, Johannesburg, South Africa.

ARRIVAL OF BUYERS.

Representatives of Out-of-Town Firms Now in the City.

Chamblee Brothers, Birmingham, Ala.; J. D. Chamblee, notions and clothing; Colonnade Hotel.

Howland Dry Goods Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; H. W. Pettis, gloves and laces, 52 Franklin Street; Hotel Cadillac.

Wolf, E., Kansas City, Mo.; clothing and shoes; Hoffman House.

Gross & Strauss Company, Boston, Mass.; B. Sommer, ladies' and infants' wear, 31 East Tenth Street; Belvedere House.

Minch & Eisenbrey, Baltimore, Md.; W. Minch, carpets; Hotel Manhattan.

Larrabee, B. F., & Co., Boston, Mass.; L. L. Phillips, corsets and small wares; J. E. Gleason, dry goods; L. D. Dunn, notions; Hotel Vendome.

Rothschild, A. M., & Co., Chicago, Ill.; J. G. Morton, hosiery and underwear, 43 Leonard Street; Hotel Albert.

Williams & Richardson Company, New Orleans, La.; A. A. Castenado, notions, millinery, and furnishing goods, 51 Leonard Street; St. Denis Hotel.

Warner Brothers & Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; L. Warner, woolens; 377 Broadway; Hotel Imperial.

Hower & Higbee, Cleveland, Ohio; O. L. Mason, notions, ribbons, and trimmings; H. M. Briggs, notions; Grand Hotel.

Finch, Van Slyck, Young & Co., St. Paul, Minn.; G. C. Finch, dry goods; 51 Leonard Street; Gilsey House.

Jacobson, L., Pittsburg, Penn.; clothing; Hotel Marlborough.

Woodward, C. E., Bangor, Me.; clothing; Hotel Imperial.

Milliken, Cousens & Short, Portland, Me.; F. B. Milliken, dry goods; 79 Leonard Street; Hotel Imperial.

Leopold, J., New Orleans, La.; clothing; Hoffman House.

Millhiser, M., & Co., Richmond, Va.; S. Hirsch, notions; 258 Church Street; Hoffman House.

Marler Brothers, Winston, N. C.; W. H. Marler, notions and furnishing goods; Broadway Central Hotel.

Epstein, J., Baltimore, Md.; S. Seliger, notions; Herald Square Hotel.

Wile Brothers & Weil, Buffalo, N. Y.; G. Weil, woolens; Hotel Imperial.

Kahn Tailoring Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; H. A. Kahn, woolens; Hotel Marlborough.

Spokane Dry Goods Company, Spokane Falls, Washington; P. B. Patterson, dry goods and notions; Hoffman House.

Levis Zukowski Mercantile Company, St. Louis, Mo.; J. Berlinger, silks and ribbons; 621 Broadway; Hoffman House.

Baum & Bala, Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Baum, hats; Hoffman House.

Wanamaker, John, Philadelphia, Penn.; George H. Urweller, linens and white goods; Broadway and Tenth Street; Hoffman House.

Hirsch, A. M., New Haven, Conn.; dry goods; Hoffman House.

"Keely Company," Atlanta, Ga.; E. E. O'Donnelly, dry goods and notions; Hoffman House.

YESTERDAY'S FIRES.

(From 12 o'clock Thursday night until 12 o'clock Friday night.)

1:15 A. M.—301 West Fifty-third Street, owner unknown; damage, $25.

4 A. M.—3,174 Park Avenue, A. Kapstein; damage, $200.

6:20 A. M.—430 Columbus Avenue, Andrew Phillip; damage, $1,000.

8:20 A. M.—17 East One Hundred and First Street, Leopold Fleischman; damage slight.

10 A. M.—1,356 First Avenue, Isaac Cohen; damage, $25.

10:10 A. M.—100 Madison Street, Frederick Cassler; damage, $150.

10:50 A. M.—Thirty-first Street and North River, Inter-State Dredging Company; damage, $50.

2:05 P. M.—2,236 Third Avenue, owner unknown; damage slight.

2:35 P. M.—442 West Fiftieth Street, John Sharp; damage slight.

3 P. M.—132 Broome Street, Julia Bernstein; damage slight.

5:15 P. M.—35 West Eighty-sixth Street, Pinkus Nathan; damage, $75.

5:45 P. M.—62 Vesey Street, Los Angeles Wine Company; damage, $350.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., Dec. 1.—The entire business portion of Onancock, Accomac County, Virginia, was destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $100,000; $25,000 insurance.

The Hygienic Value

of silk is universally recognized by physicians. In cases of rheumatism, sciatica, prostration and all nervous troubles, it is always an alleviative, often a cure.

KOTEDSILK

is pure silk knitted on the finest cotton, and absolutely without the irritation inseparable from the wool, unwisely used by so many sufferers from those complaints.

KOTEDSILK UNDERWEAR CO., MILLBURY, MASS.,
76 Leonard St., N. Y. City, and All Leading Stores.

ASTRONOMICAL PHENOMENON.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would your astronomical correspondent who so delightfully forecasts the monthly sidereal condition of the heavens, or some other expert observer, kindly explain a phenomenon which the writer has observed in connection with the constellation Orion the last three nights, viz., 25th, 26th, and 27th?

On the first of these nights he observed, at 9:45 P. M., in that constellation and midway between Rigel and the Great Nebula, of the same group, a bright cluster of stars of the shape and (apparent) size of a horse's tail, depending vertically. He watched it for ten minutes, and thought no more of it for the time. The next night, about the same hour, he looked at the constellation again. The starry tail was there, but it was hanging vertically between the Great Nebula and Kappa of Orion. Observing it at intervals until 11 o'clock he observed that the following was its course: It passed to the left of Kappa and turned under it to the right, and gradually upward to a point some 15 or 20 degrees to the right of Rigel and on a level with it. At 11 o'clock it was in that position, hanging vertically, and it was no longer watched.

Last night about 9:45 it was in the same position as the night before. In the same intervals of time it swept down to the left and under the Great Nebula, and upward with an ascending grade to the level of Rigel. There the observation ceased. But, awaking at 1 o'clock, the writer went to his window and failed to see this erratic nebula where he had left it. Extending the field of his search he at last found the cluster precisely in its original and continuous shape away back to the left of its last position and about in the locality where it was first seen at 9:45. In the interval Orion had ascended high toward the zenith and was as far to the right of the horsetail nebula as the latter had been to the right of Orion when observed at 11 o'clock.

The description is crude and untechnical, for the writer had not at hand an adequate map of the heavens by which to describe positions, and his health did not permit protracted exposure. But, perhaps, it is sufficiently clear to indicate the neighborhood in which the phenomenon can be observed if it should continue to be displayed.

J. S. M.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 28, 1899.

Prof. Jerome K. Rees of Columbia University, when asked last night concerning the phenomenon described by "J. S. M." said, that the supposed nebula was merely an illusive wisp of mist common on Winter nights, and that the movements were caused by currents of the upper atmosphere.

Storm Damages in Texas.

ROCKPORT, Texas, Dec. 1.—Reports from a number of points on the Gulf in this section show that the damage to property and loss of life by the recent severe storm were much greater than at first reported. A number of small fishing craft are missing, together with their crews. The bodies of James Sanders and two other men, who have not yet been identified, have been found in the mouth of St. Charles Bay. Several thousand head of sheep and hundreds of head of

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, DEC. 2, 1899.

OFFICES:

NEW YORK:
Publication Office.....41 Park Row
All American District Telegraph Offices.
WASHINGTON.....515 Fourteenth St.
LONDON: Trafalgar Buildings, Trafalgar Sq., W. C.
SWITZERLAND, Geneva: P. Drehmann, Librairie Neuvelle, Rue du Mont Blanc.
GERMANY, Mains: Saarbach's News Agency, Agency for Germany and Austria.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

DAILY, per Month	$0.50
DAILY, per Year	6.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Year	7.50
SUNDAY, per Year	1.50
SATURDAY, with Review of Books and Art, per Year	1.00
MONDAY, with Financial Supplement, per Year	1.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Month	0.65

For postage to foreign countries add 50 cents per month.

SIXTEEN PAGES

AND REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

AN INDUSTRIAL REGENERATION.

A new industrial empire is in process of creation in the South. Its foundations and its organic institutions are the mills and factories projected, under way, or already completed that are transforming that part of the Union from a producer of raw material into a producer of manufactured goods. The press dispatches tell almost every day of the progress of this industrial new birth. The New England manufacturers of cotton goods are building mills in several of the Southern States. The day is at hand when the South will be the largest consumer of its own raw cotton and Manchester will have to look elsewhere for its supply.

An event of far-reaching importance in this most interesting history of the building of a new empire was reported in a Birmingham dispatch to THE TIMES of yesterday. The new steel works of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, at Ensley, near Birmingham, were opened on Thursday. There were no invited guests, no ceremony, no speeches, no champagne. But the turn of the lever that put those works into operation marked the beginning of an economic revolution in Alabama and an important stage in the development of the resources of the South. The works are notable for mere extent and volume of product. The company owns half a million acres of mining lands, and operates twenty blast furnaces and thirty collieries. Its furnaces have a capacity of 70,000 tons of pig iron a month, and this capacity will shortly be increased to 100,000 tons per month. Its engagements already made call for more than half a million tons of pig iron, that is to say, for the entire product of the furnaces for the period of seven months. A considerable part of these orders comes from abroad. It is said that the average price obtained for its iron is $17.50 a ton.

The magnitude of this company's operations may be judged from the fact that the output of the entire country is only a little over ten million tons of pig iron annually. The Birmingham mines and furnaces contribute about one-tenth of the whole. It is expected that the new steel works, however, will take not less than 1,000 tons a day.

Right there is the fact of chief significance. Instead of selling pig iron, which is a raw material, this company will henceforth sell its product in the form of steel billets, slabs, rails, and rods, and its steel, under analysis, proves to be equal to the highest requirements of the trade.

When cotton was King the South was one of the most brilliant examples the world ever saw of an industrial and political empire founded on the production and sale of a raw material. There was prosperity in the Southern States. Cultivation and refinement, elegance in social things, pride of family, and the luxuries of fashion were characteristic manifestations of the ease and wealth of the old days. And with these pleasant conditions went the possession of dominant political power in the Nation.

It is a maxim of agriculture that it is best to sell the products of the farm on four legs—that is, the farmer who would thrive must feed out his hay and grain, his raw material, and send his output to market in a state more nearly prepared for the consumer. The same rule holds good in the larger domain. A prosperity and promise of growth such as the South never dreamed of in the old times of King Cotton await it now under the new régime of the manufacturer. A field is opened up for its labor of all grades, from the man who attends to a loom or a furnace to the Superintendents or executive managers who direct the operations of great mills and factories. The establishment of successful manufacturing industries leads surely to increased wealth and population. If the South has in the past failed to keep abreast of the North in these primal elements of growth, it is because the North earlier turned its attention to the multiplication of its industries, and in particular to those which gave employment not only to the hands of its wage-earners, but to the brains of its men of capacity and to the genius of its inventors.

But the great mineral wealth of the region about Birmingham could never have been developed, and the big new steel works which are to convert the pig iron of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company into steel billets and steel rails would never have been erected if capital had not found in these enterprises the promise of profitable employment. If the stage of capitalism, that is, the stage of having free capital in large amounts ready to seek good investments as they offer themselves, has not yet been reached in the South, it is largely because the era of industrial development has only just set in there. That stage will come as the result of the new forces now at work. Meanwhile, Northern capital supplies the lack and justly reaps the reward. The chief creator of the steel works at Birmingham, which have required the expenditure of $1,500,000, is Mr. JAMES T. WOODWARD of this city, whose faith in the future of the South is equal to the energy and ability he has displayed in doing his part for the development of its newly revealed resources.

With this almost untouched field for growth in the Southern States open to us and inviting the vivifying touch of capital, it ought to be a long time before American investors will have need to look abroad for opportunities to put their money to profitable use. The chief increase in the Nation's wealth may for some years continue to be shown in the North, but the next decade ought to see and will see a wonderful transformation in the South.

THE "CIVIL GOVERNMENT" OF CUBA.

We are not aware of any authority for the statement that Gen. LEONARD WOOD has been summoned to Washington in order to be offered the place of Civil Governor of Cuba. Yet the rumor that this is the case has arisen quite naturally and even inevitably. It has been given out that the President is convinced that the time has come, not when Cuba ought to be freed from tutelage, but when she ought to have a tutelage in which the notion of control should be less prominent and the notion of political education more prominent, than they have respectively been heretofore. Add the unquestioned fact that Gen. WOOD has been summoned to Washington, and it was inevitable that it should be believed that he had been summoned for the purpose of asking him to undertake the new responsibility.

We do not ourselves see that there is any urgent need of a change in the government of Cuba. That island has been governed for the past few months better than it had ever been governed before since its discovery. A large number of American citizens who have staid at home are prepared to admit that it has been better governed than the communities in which they themselves respectively reside, and in which self-government has had full sway. As to the Cubans, the best information we can get is that the best of them, those who have the largest stake in the island, and all those who are prepared to earn their own livings under a Government which simply

> Makes sure to each his own,
> That he reap where he has sown, are entirely satisfied with the government which the United States Army has given them. And as to the other class, the politician class, whose object in life is to reap where they have not sown, and to enter into the fruits of other men's labors, it is noteworthy that they have not raised their voices in protest until they were notified that it was in contemplation to inaugurate a system of civil government "under American auspices." At that they raised their voices loudly, and not without reason. It is not only that government under American soldiers is much more eligible, to the natural man, than government by American politicians. It is also that civil government under American auspices has much more the promise, or the threat, of permanency than the avowedly provisional government to which they have thus far been subjected.

It is certain that we have not yet attained, or approached, the time when we can become responsible for the "stable government" to which we stand pledged in Cuba, by intrusting it to the Cubans themselves. The best judges of that are the officers who are our representatives there now, and whose opinions we must accept. Gen. LUDLOW has told us what these are. But, since we are responsible for the government of Cuba, and since the government of Cuba is doing very well as it is, why not act upon the precept of Lord MELBOURNE? "Can't you let it alone?" is reported to have been the first inquiry of that statesman when a new question was propounded. Sometimes it is a pertinent inquiry. It is so when things are going "well enough." To "let well enough alone" is proverbially wise. It seems to us to be wise in the case of the government of Cuba. We know of nothing which has been administered more successfully under the present Administration.

THE "UNDERSTANDING" AND EUROPE.

It was rather a coincidence that Mr. CHOATE at the Thanksgiving Day gathering of Americans in London and Mr. CHAMBERLAIN at a luncheon in Leicester should on the same day have been moved to celebrate "the understanding." And yet it was almost inevitable, given the occasion. No gathering of Americans in England, no gathering of Englishmen in this country, could take place, without the occurrence to the speakers of this topic of discourse as being at once seasonable and safe.

Not that Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S remarks are at all liable to the interpretation which one of our esteemed contemporaries has rather absurdly placed upon them of being an avowal of a "secret alliance," such as Secretary HAY has publicly, and no doubt accurately and candidly, denied to exist. The very point of congratulation is not that the two nations officially, but that their populations unofficially, have come to a better understanding with each other. In countries governed by public opinion, appropriate official action follows the condition of that opinion. We have no outstanding questions with Great Britain which cannot be readily adjusted as soon as the fear is dispelled on each side that the other is trying to get unfairly the better of it. For the first time in our history the general mass of the American people are in that unsuspicious state of mind about Great Britain. It would require strong evidence to convince them to the contrary. No such evidence has been adduced or we believe is adducible. Wherefore the understanding is likely to last.

None of his compatriotic critics criticise Mr. CHAMBERLAIN for what he said about the United States. Most of them seem to find matter for criticism in what he said about Germany. And in fact it is in the part of his remarks which related to the European powers that the "pushful JOE" of British caricature seems chiefly to appear. It was not at all necessary for the Secretary for the Colonies to undertake to ingratiate himself with Germany by attacking France, much less by threatening a nation which does not lack pride or sensitiveness with what would happen to it if it did not "mend its ways." Fancy a responsible French Minister making such remark about England. Fancy a responsible British Minister condescending to take any notice at all of the scurrilities of a journal of the boulevards. Fancy such a sentence as that in which "pushful JOE" conveyed his threat proceeding from Lord SALISBURY. What he said, if he found it necessary to say anything in the way of warning to a friendly power, would be said with a gravity and dignity that would give it additional weight.

Of course, if any such thing were to be said in public, it is the Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs who should say it, and the Secretary for the Colonies is committing a breach of official etiquette as well as of diplomatic courtesy in taking the words out of the mouth of his chief or rather in putting into his mouth words which he never would have uttered. It is impossible that Lord SALISBURY should like this sort of thing. That he does not see his way to resenting it otherwise than by epigrams which are scarcely calculated to reach the sensitive portions of his colleague's anatomy is a proof how important the Conservatives still find the support of the particular brand of Liberal Unionism which Mr. CHAMBERLAIN represents. But the matter, and much more the manner, of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S latest speech gives point to all the criticisms which the Liberals have made upon his conduct of the negotiations that have resulted in the war with the Transvaal, which is daily coming to seem, to every thinking Englishman, less like a bagatelle and more like a very serious piece of business. Particularly does it give point to the appeal of FREDERIC HARRISON, made when it was not yet too late, to Lord SALISBURY, to take the negotiations out of the hands of his subordinate and into his own. "The Secretary for the Colonies," said Mr. HARRISON, "has no authority to make war nor to make war inevitable." We see, as a matter of fact, that he had power to "make war inevitable" in South Africa. Now that he has transferred the methods of "the new diplomacy" to European politics, with which he has officially no concern, it remains to be seen whether his chief will be moved to abridge his freedom of speech or whether he will be able to do so.

THE TUSKEGEE IDEA.

On Monday next at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall a meeting will be held to promote the raising of an endowment fund for Tuskegee Institute, in the town of that name in Alabama. In some respects it will be in itself a noteworthy meeting. Ex-President CLEVELAND will preside, and speeches will be made by Mr. WALTER H. PAGE, Mr. WILLIAM H. BALDWIN, Jr., President of the Long Island Railroad, a Trustee of Tuskegee, and, most important of all, by Dr. BOOKER T. WASHINGTON, the President of the institute.

We wish we could impress our readers with our own sense of the work that is doing under Dr. WASHINGTON'S direction. It is, in connection with that at Hampton, the most promising and the most fruitful now carried on in the South, for it goes to the very root of all the causes of real difficulty there, and is directed to building the foundation for a permanent, progressive co-operation between the two races. It is undertaking, and as far as the means are available it is actually making, a peaceful revolution, which is the natural and beneficent completion of the emancipation wrought in war. We have no illusions as to the depth or enduring character of the color prejudice in this country. Neither, if we understand him, has Dr. WASHINGTON. His conception of the task of education for his race does not defy or ignore that prejudice. It is simply directed to aims and methods with which the prejudice has nothing to do, and the value of which is independent of it.

His fundamental idea is that the future of the negro in the United States will turn on the value of his own service to the community, and in proportion as that service is intelligent, skilful, honest, and faithful the community will recognize and respect the essential rights of him who renders it. His purpose is to fit the largest number of young men and women in the best way to render this service, and by direct instruction and indirect example to spread the ideal among the race. A splendid beginning has been made at Tuskegee, which, considering the difficulties encountered and overcome, is an absolute guarantee of the fit use of all resources that can be secured. Some three thousand graduates have been sent out self-supporting and self-respecting, and their influence is felt in every one of the Southern States.

Dr. WASHINGTON'S conception is based on clear facts. The greatest need of the South is labor, and the greatest resource of the South is the labor of the negro race. The demand and the raw material for the supply exist together. To the degree that this raw material can be developed, that is, to the degree that the negroes can be made more profitable workmen in all grades and kinds of employment, the relations between them and the whites are bound to be improved. That the task is a very great one cannot be denied. That the utmost effort of organized private energy will make but slow advance is only too certain. It is no Utopia that has been undertaken at Tuskegee, and the promise that is held out for reward to those that shall share the labor is not a glittering one. But this is true beyond all doubt, that every dollar spent in this labor will do a lasting and increasing good. It will not be wasted. It will not be lost. The returns from it will be, like compound interest, a steadily increasing profit to the Nation.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

During the month just ended the morning and Sunday editions of The World printed 2,148¾ columns of advertising—a gain of 216¾ columns over November of last year. Of the other newspapers printing paid advertising the one that came next to The World gained only 99¾ columns over November of last year. Not only the morning and Sunday editions of The World but also its evening edition exceeded all previous Novembers, the evening edition printing 658¼ columns of advertising. There was a gain in the "want advertising" of 12,219 over last year's November, the total being 78,656.—The World, Dec. 1.

We note and record with pleasure this evidence of increase in our neighbor's business. By the same occasion, we correct an error in its statement.

THE TIMES published in the month of November, 1899, 193 more columns of advertisements than in the month of November, 1898; and the cash value of the increased advertising in November this year as compared with November last year was $12,195.98.

THE SUNDAY TIMES to-morrow will contain a great deal of interesting reading; among other articles worthy of the reader's attention will appear an examination of the relation of the present high price of iron and steel to the building trade and its operations in this city by Mr. GEORGE HILL, architect and engineer; an article upon the commercial importance of Manila to the United States by Mr. JOHN BARRETT, late Minister to Siam, and a discussion of the municipal ownership of public franchises by Controller BIRD S. COLER.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—LAFCADIO HEARN is now an out-and-out Japanese in everything except birth, for not only does he dress and live in all respects like a son of the Sunrise Land, but he has guaranteed the permanency of his separation from the Occident by taking whatever may be the Japanese equivalent of naturalization papers and obtaining all the privileges of a subject of the Mikado by assuming all the duties and obligations of one. As might have been expected, no opportunities for making this transfer of allegiance picturesque and impressive were neglected either by HEARN himself or by his Japanese friends, and the latter, according to a traveler's tale that has just reached this city, hit upon one device for demonstrating the thoroughness of their acceptance of him as a fellow-countryman that had all the grotesque and whimsical beauty of their own art. It seems that HEARN, more fortunate than most of the foreigners who obtained positions as teachers in the days when the Japanese felt a greater need for instruction from the Western World than they do now, has always managed to keep his place on the Faculty of the college to which he was summoned many years ago, and which is the scene of several of his most charming sketches. As a foreigner, too, he was better paid than the native professors of equal rank, but of supposedly simpler habits. This difference of salary suggested the device of ultimate acceptance to which reference has been made. After all the formalities of naturalization had been carried out, a great dinner in honor of the new supporter of the empire was given. The manifestations of cordiality were numerous and enthusiastic throughout the evening, but the culminating moment did not come till near the close of the function, when the President of HEARN'S college rose, and with the sweetest of smiles announced that, as their dear friend was now one of themselves, the last distinction between him and them was to be wiped out by—reducing his salary from 150 yen a month to 50! Then there was immense applause, and HEARN seemed to be, and possibly enough was, as happy as any of his applauding friends. The teller of the tale insists that the reduction of pay was inspired entirely by good will, and that HEARN was enough of a poet and philosopher to be more than content with this queer evidence of fraternal love.

—It deeply grieves The Merchants' Review, apparently, that this paper should have hinted the belief that the cheapening of parcels postage was a question to be settled not by the National Association of Manufacturers, which favors it, or by the retail country dealers, to whom the very idea is repulsive, but by the general public after a careful consideration of its own interests. "The public," The Review says, "is not concerned as to the fate of the Parcels Postage bill, for it simply cares nothing about it, and if the small fraction of population represented by the Manufacturers' Association would drop the matter, nothing further would be heard of it." If that is so, which we are vehemently inclined to doubt, then it is indeed time that the matter received some intelligent discussion elsewhere than in the trade papers. If, as The Merchants' Review asserts, the bill is a Treasury-raiding scheme, from which only a small part of the population will profit, then that fact ought to be clearly and widely known; if, on the other hand, as is claimed by the advocates of the measure, its passage would extend all over the country many of the advantages now monopolized by the inhabitants of large cities, then that, too, should be well understood. It may be assumed to start with that people do not want parcels carried at less than the cost of transportation, but on every other phase of the subject there is lots of room for argument.

—Out in Los Angeles there is an interesting individual who seems to be worrying even more than the little coterie of Eastern opponents of Destiny do about the good luck which has come to the Filipinos so much against the misguided and unenlightened inclinations of Señor AGUINALDO. The Los Angeles person—his name, if anybody wants to know it, is MORRISON I. SWIFT—is not content with hysterical denunciations of his countrymen and his country; he wants all kindred spirits to unite with him in a sort of revolution against the Government. At any rate that is the only interpretation we can place on a document which MORRISON I. has spread far and wide, accompanied with earnest appeals for signatures. It begins by declaring that "the Philippine Islands are free from United States rule"—a gross and patent misstatement of fact well calculated to rejoice the anti-imperialistic soul—and that said rule was "wrongly and forcibly asserted by an American Administration without authority or consent of the American people"—which doesn't go particularly well in harness with the denial of that rule's existence. Then MORRISON I. drifts awhile on a welter of words that may be treason and may be mere nonsense. "This document," he writes, "affirms that the Filipino war was inaugurated unconstitutionally. It declares the principle that individuals are not bound by the immoral acts of the official authorities of the Nation. Each citizen is so responsible for the wrongs committed by his Nation that he is bound personally to annul and refuse to obey them. Otherwise all principles of right may be overthrown and all justice trampled on in the name of 'nation.' Government shall not constrain individual conscience, nor shall it constrain actions in conformity with that conscience." From these quotations it will be seen that though MORRISON I. does not write with all the brutal insolence of an Erving Winslow, he is still an energetic little fellow, no less adroit than his Bostonian rivals in winning the eminence conferred by public loathing and disgust.

—Something that the Boers—if they hear of it—might with reason note with considerable alarm is the fact that collectors are rapidly developing a keen appreciation for Transvaal postage stamps, and are offering large prices for them, apparently on the theory that not many more of these bits of paper will ever be made. The New Orleans Times-Democrat quotes a local philatelist as saying: "I received a letter the other day from a New Yorker who makes a specialty of South African stamps, offering to buy whatever Transvaals I had at figures ranging from 100 to 150 per cent. above list prices. He also made a tempting proposition for exchange, but on thinking the matter over I concluded to hang on to what I had. The absolute extinguishment of a Government by war is a very rare thing, and hasn't happened on any scale worth talking about since the downfall of the Confederacy. So, if the Transvaal Republic is erased from the map, all its stamps are certain to enhance enormously in value as time goes by." The coin collectors, too, are on the alert, and they are particularly eager to get hold of the three-zar piece, a silver coin about as large as a dime, issued in 1894, and bearing what is said to be the best likeness extant of Oom Paul as he is. It was withdrawn from circulation some months ago.

PERSONAL NOTES.

Lieut. Henry Cahill, who was a member of the staff of Gen. Gomez of the Cuban Army, has entered the Law School of Boston University, intending to take the three years' course.

* * *

Charles J. Capen has taught in the Boston Latin School forty-eight years, and prides himself upon the fact that, though now seventy-six years of age, no one can yet call him a decrepit old man, nor scarcely a white-haired one.

* * *

The Hon. Patrick Collins, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Boston, declined an invitation to attend a meeting of the Workingmen's Political League, saying that he "has been overworked with invitations of late," and "has been compelled to decline all of a social character—or die."

* * *

Ex-Gov. Francis Marion Drake, who had already given over $100,000 to Drake University, at Des Moines, has recently added $25,000 to his contributions in its behalf, and D. H. Ewing, who is connected with the college government, has promised to spend $45,000 in the erection of a library building for the college.

* * *

Ex-Postmaster General William L. Wilson has been advised by his physician to pass the Winter in Southern Arizona, and consequently he will not resume the discharge of his duties as President of Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., until next Spring. His strength has been gradually weakening from pulmonary troubles.

* * *

A memorial meeting in honor of the late A. Bronson Alcott's one hundredth birthday was held in Boston under the auspices of the Emerson Society on Wednesday, Nov. 29. Frank B. Sanborn presided and made a eulogistic address. Many quotations from unpublished writings of Alcott were read. Other addresses were made and letters read.

* * *

Admiral Dewey has written to William S. Wells, Chairman of the Committee of Invitation of New Haven, Conn., that, owing to many official and other engagements, he cannot arrange to visit the Elm City in compliance with the invitation extended to him while in the Philippines, and subsequently thrice renewed, the last time after the unpleasant episode regarding his house.

DEWEY ARCH SUGGESTIONS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in your yesterday's paper a complaint about the non-originality of the Dewey arch. This defect having struck me also, I beg to offer two original propositions and think you will bear me out that the effect suggested would be both novel and striking.

PROPOSITION I.

Let the designers take for their motif the bridge of the cruiser Olympia, the godlike Dewey, binoculars in hand, upon it, encompassed with marble clouds. Let this be supported on the one side by other marble clouds, arising from the explosion of the sinking battleship Maine. On the other side we could have still more marble clouds, arising from the powder (which I understand was not smokeless) used in the fight of San Juan Hill. You could have the hill for a base, you know, showing in bas relief the American arms triumphing over Spaniards, embalmed beef, and other contretemps! I consider this would be a very ethereal composition, especially the clouds.

PROPOSITION II.

Should the first suggestion prove too sanguinary, I offer this as an alternate project: A suspension bridge, or, if you will, a cantilever, emblematic of American expansion, swinging across the gulf between the Far East and the Far West; to this might be added a frieze after the manner of the Pan-Athenaic procession depicted on the frieze of the Parthenon, portraying pawnbrokers, rumsellers, Mormons, missionaries, Miller syndicate men, and Tammany Hall politicians, hastening to convey the benefits of benevolent assimilation to the untutored followers of Aguinaldo.

These suggestions I have not copyrighted, and only regret that I have not time to append sketches hereto. I should think a fascinating competition might be opened by enterprising yellow journals, and I don't doubt that other equally original suggestions might be brought forth, though I fear it is too late to raise subscriptions to erect anything but the arch we already have in view.

We Americans can build original office buildings, bridges, locomotives, bicycles, and a thousand other novelties, but when it comes to original monumental architecture, we are compelled to admit the idea is rather appalling. It is like inventing an original Euclid, or a fin de siècle multiplication table; and so, we are bound to pay tribute unto Cæsar, whether we will or no, if the arch of Titus really suggested the Dewey arch. For my part, I cannot imagine any simple monumental form, built upon classical lines, that would not be reminiscent of some monument or other of the past. Doubtless we could find precedents for the Washington Arch, the Marble Arch at Hyde Park, or the Arc de l'Etoile in Paris, and it is well if these do point back to ancient days; otherwise the masses might never hear of the glories of ancient Rome, or anything more ancient than the latest murder case.

We do not know why the proportions handed down to us by Vignola, or measured from the ruins of the Parthenon, are so altogether lovely. The suggestion that they are frozen music will do for young ladies' schools and the nice old gentlemen who give largely to the Metropolitan Museum or the Brooklyn Institute, but I have my doubts if Vignola or Phidias or the architect of the Hypostyle Hall at Karnak ever dreamed of such a thing. What they did is precisely what we are doing now, building the best buildings they knew how and copying consciously or unconsciously from what they saw around them. Their age was less complex than ours, and they had not our practical problems to overcome. They worked for Kings and were not limited to a fifty-foot lot or a fifty-thousand-dollar appropriation; and so they turned out much more delectable work than we do, but it was no more original. Their growth in beauty was slower than ours; it takes ages to evolute from a mound dwelling to a Parthenon, and in the meantime certain forms become crystallized, and it is hopeless for us to try to improve upon them.

The attempts at original American architecture are only measured by their failures. We have but to look back at the hideousness of the Queen Anne style the Richardson style, the Boulder style, and much of the Colonial style, to thank fortune for such copies of the antique as the Dewey arch. The moldings may be a bit confectionery, the statuary a little lumpy; these features will of course be more studied and refined in the finished work. A very great improvement might be suggested at once, namely, to erect posts similar to those in Washington Square. Around the bases of the arch there have been numerous cases of smashing the plaster by careless driving, which might have been avoided by these simple means, which would cost much less than the continual repairing now liable. There is no doubt, however, that the present site is too crowded; the cable cars barely miss the corners of the columns, and the arch itself and their diagonal course through the colonnade is quite destructive of the effect. The suggestion of Mr. Haydel that the arch be placed at the brow of Murray Hill is an excellent one, and, in connection with the new library to be built in that vicinity, would form an attraction not to be surpassed in any city.

J. ARTHUR HOLLY.

New York, Nov. 29, 1899.

ROMAN CHURCH AND DIVORCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly permit me to correct the false impression given to your readers in your issue of the 27th inst. by the Rev. Dr. Batten in his sermon on "Marriage and Divorce"?

The reverend rector of St. Mark's Protestant Episcopal Church conveyed to his congregation last Sunday morning the following choice piece of information: "The Roman Church theoretically allows no divorce after marriage, but really allofs some of the greatest scandals to happen through loopholes which are provided by the so-termed Papal dispensation." We presume that the preacher is speaking of absolute divorce, that is, final separation a mensa et thora, with liberty to contract another marriage, and we would inform him that the Catholic Church not only theoretically, but very practically, allows no divorce after marriage. Dr. Batten will have made one of the greatest historical discoveries of the century if he will reveal to the world one case in which the Catholic Church has so far forgotten her Founder's law as to grant a "theoretical or practical" divorce after the consummation of a true marriage.

As the subject of matrimonial dispensations is but little understood by non-Catholics, and presumably well-educated ministers are continually misrepresenting it, your readers may be pleased to know exactly what is the Church's position in the matter.

We believe that the marriage contract was raised to the dignity of a sacrament by our Lord Jesus Christ, and that to His church Christ committed the care of the seven sacraments; the essentials she may not change, but to her belongs the right to make all laws pertaining to their administration and reception. Now, for very salutary reasons, she has given us two classes of impediments, those which render an attempted marriage absolutely invalid and those which, while not affecting the validity of the marriage, render the contracting parties guilty of sin. These laws are made for the good of society, and their imitation by the civil law, (e. g., the marriage licenses, an imitation of the "bans,") testifies to their utility, but as they are enacted by the ecclesiastical authority they may be relaxed by that same authority for reasons which it considers sufficient. There are cases where the impediment would be a source of more harm than good, and in such cases the Church willingly grants dispensations. The "loopholes" consequently will be repudiated only by those who believe that the Church should insist upon the observances of the impediments even though individual souls be thereby lost and the peace of kingdoms thereby imperilled.

In conclusion, it may be safely asserted that whenever an apparently Catholic marriage has been dissolved and the parties enter into a second matrimonial contract coram ecclesia the first marriage was invalid from the beginning, although, if the parties were in good faith, they were not guilty of formal sin. Thus, if Dr. Batten will carefully study the case of Henry VIII. he will find that said King never dreamed of the possibility of obtaining from Rome the annulment of his marriage; he contended that his marriage with Catherine was invalid from the beginning. Is it not passing strange that Rome preferred to offend the monarch and lose a kingdom rather than make one of those convenient "loopholes?"

WM. F. McGINNIS,
President Metropolitan Truth Society.
Brooklyn, Nov. 29, 1899.

TREE PLANTING INCREASING.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The work of the Tree Planting Association might be considered by those whose attention has not been drawn to certain evidences of the work done by it of exceedingly slow growth; but an investigation of the subject is indeed surprising. A scrutiny of many of our streets and avenues up town reveals the fact that many owners of property have been actively at work planting trees. Indeed, as one owner in a neighborhood plants a few trees, it is but a short time when many neighbors do the same. The tendency toward trees and outside greens in the line of improving architectural effects is daily increasing in the city, as an examination especially of our newest and latest houses constructed in the city will indicate.

CHARLES R. HENDERSON.
New York, Nov. 29, 1899.

DEMOCRATIC "ISSUES."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is my good fortune to count among my personal friends a large number of leading members and prominent officers of the Grand Army of the Republic. They are men who have won laurels on the field, and upon their return to civil life regarded a pension certificate as a "badge of honor." This honorable class of patriotic veterans feels differently now. The pension certificate has come to be regarded in great measure as a "badge of pauperism," secured by the roughest element of political heelers, who "have a pull with the bosses." THE TIMES has done good work thus far in exposing pension frauds, but great reforms, especially in politics, work exasperatingly slow.

What issues can the Democratic Party adopt for the campaign of 1900? is asked. That is the question, and it is a dubious one. A lifelong Democrat, I have never been a pessimist, but it is the part of wisdom to boldly face stubborn facts and not console one's self with empty theories.

A sound currency is one of the underlying principles of the Democratic Party, as taught by the fathers and imbued by their faithful sons. That principle was recklessly thrown away at Chicago in 1896 and reluctantly picked up at St. Louis. That incident saved the Republican Party in the last Presidential election and destroyed the best opportunity the Democratic Party has had since the close of the civil war.

The heresy of "16 to 1" has already been buried beyond resurrection.

Opposition to "expansion and imperialism" counts among its advocates some of the most brilliant minds in this country, but it is premature, impolitic, and at this time would bury, at least for the present, any party that would have the hardihood to put such a plank in its National platform. However the Administration may have erred in bringing about the present unfortunate struggle in Asiatic regions, it is no time to parley or temporize while our army and navy are 10,000 miles away, patriotically fighting for the supremacy and honor of our Republic.

Tariff reform is a Democratic measure, pure and simple, and it is not too late now to continue its advocacy, although it might seem like rethrashing old straw.

Opposition to "trusts" and "combines," as they are now conducted, and, as many think, threatening the best interests of the country, is a strong point for the Democ-ured ... ut it requires wisdom, intelligence, ...tesmanship to handle so intricate ...ct.

...ition to "the recklessly extravagant ...scheme," as it now prevails and ...easing at an alarming rate, is the ...st plank the Democratic National ...tion can place in its platform; but ...y have the courage to do it? When ...st appropriation of $25,000,000 for ...s was announced, far-sighted people ...dicted that in less than a year the ...ation would reach $50,000,000 were ...d. In less than a year the sum ...$100,000,000, and is now nearly ...times that, although the war has ...ased thirty-five years.

...we come to talk of live issues for ...ocratic Party in the National cam... of next year the list dwindles down ...y small margin. Yet,

...lope, like the gleaming taper's light, ...dorns and cheers our way!"

...may, in the wisdom of Providence, ...old, brainy leader spring up who ...e the helm in his hands, guide the ...atic ship back to its old-time course, ...ot it safely to the harbor of victory. ...t leader is not yet in sight. He ...pear at an opportune moment. So ...be. M. PARKER WILLIAMS.

...n, N. Y., Nov. 24, 1899.

...AL FOR CANCER PATIENTS.

To t... Editor of The New York Times:

It ... become necessary for me to make ...al, which I trust you will print, in ... ask the public to aid the cancerous ...der my care and that of my com... . A house has been largely paid for ...nations received, and, besides this, ... year for three years has been dis... in making a home for and assisting ...cerous sick, sixty-four in all, and in ...sly aiding twenty cases of men and ... with ulcers, a number of diseased ... suffering greatly till we aid them, ...out 250 persons more who have ... our treatment for alarming cuts and ... and with various distresses costing ...tures of money.

It ... not sound reasoning to suppose that ... people who do not need money are ...orest poor, especially when one is ... alive to the necessity of drawing a ... while inspecting these destitute ... and the best minds never make this ... But money is to be given, as a ...t to the poor, but used for them. ...t the ability to expend it, we would ... soldiers without ammunition, and I ...een some frank workers among the ...ho honestly described the forlorn ...f their situation without hope of ... to aid their charitable sympathy. ... stories as to the danger of a dollar ... a poor woman and child, or even a ...re but of place in the proceedings of ... The poor have some clever and true ... on the other side.

...ree Home is still carried on entirely ...onations made by the public for its ..., through the kindness of the daily ... In the last three months these do... ...have been less than usual, while ...llook has become broader and more ... When we have begged, we have ...most cordially listened to and an... ... the public easily recognizing the ...at ordinarily intelligent women, de... ...ing to spend their lives among the ...ck, are likely to use money upon ...risely, and nurse them as carefully as ...e can. We have not yet been obliged ...r upon expedients for raising funds ... would take strength and time great... ...led for our nursing, which no woman ... until she has thought perhaps more ...vice. When it shall seem best to ex... ...selves in other ways in order to ... our work, we shall gladly do so. ...We ... met with an instant and noble re... ... to our statements about the situa... ...e discover, in the whole time of our ...ment. We and our patients are al... ...poor, and we are now dangerously so, ...housing twelve or more patients. Is ...ee Home to proceed, and are we even ...e more than one Free Home? Let ...iblic answer, nor are we afraid to ...its verdict.

ROSE HAWTHORNE LATHROP.
...se's Free Home for Incurable Cancer, ... Cherry Street, New York, Nov. 29, ...9.

Not that Bishop.

To t... Editor of The New York Times:

In ... our issue of Nov. 27 "American" in... ...dulg... in fine irony upon the approval ...give... by "the Bishop of Albany in the ...Stat... of New York" to "the cause of the ...Eng... h in the Transvaal war"; "the mo...tive, ...e" (the Bishop) "says, for which ...the ...nglish are now killing Boers in South ...Afri... is so good and noble that it is sim...ply ... possible for him to withhold his ad...on."

...the year 1847 there has been a Ro...man Catholic Diocese of Albany in the ...Stat... of New York. The present incumbent ...of t... diocese is the Right Rev. Dr. Burke, ...Hav... g known Bishop Burke for thirty ...year... I am sure that he (the Bishop of Al...bany... by priority of see) entertains no ...Tra... vaal war sentiment so unpatriotic as ...un-... ristian, as is attributed to the Bishop ...of ... bany in the State of New York.

ANOTHER AMERICAN.

Al... any, Nov. 29, 1899.

NUGGETS.

The Fame of Poe.

The name of Poe is destined to go thundering down the ages on feet—poetic ones or football kicks, as the taste of individual posterity decides.—Baltimore American.

Soporific.

"There is a bedridden paralytic down East who walks in his sleep."

"I know a minister whose sermons would make a professional pedestrian of him."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Concise Definition.

"What's the blind pool, papa?" asked Sammy Snaggs.

"It's an arrangement to drown gullible and short-sighted investors, Sammy," replied Mr. Snaggs.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Deficiency Supplied.

"I don't think much of that young Smithkin," the old gentleman observed rather sharply.

"Never mind, papa," replied the demure young thing, soothingly. "No harm done. I think enough of him for both of us."—Chicago Post.

The Man Behind the Ledger.

"... will cause the name of France to be remembered with terror throughout foreign lan...s!" cried the excited Parisian.

"What will you do—join the army?"

"No."

"Write articles for the papers?"

"No. I will open a hotel during the exposition and make out the bills myself."—Washington Star.

WITH THE BOYS OF THE SIXTIES.

...awrence P. Hext in Savannah News.

Git me my old knapsack, Mary, an' my uniform of gray,
Git my battered helmet, Mary, for I'll need 'em all to-day.
Git my canteen an' my leggin's; reach me down my rusty gun,
For I'm goin' out paradin' with the boys of Sixty-one.

Nev... mind them blood-stains, Mary, never mind that ragged hole,
It w... left there by a bullet that was seekin' for my soul.
Jest brush off them cob-webs, Mary, git that bonnie flag of blue,
For I'm goin' out paradin' with the boys of Sixty-two.

The... old clothes don't fit me, Mary, like they did when I was young.
Don... you recollect how neatly to my manly form they clung?
Nev... mind that sleeve that's empty, let it dangle loose and free,
For I'm goin' out paradin' with the boys of 'Sixty-three.

Pull ... my sword-belt tighter, Mary, fix that trap beneath my chin;
I've ... rown old an' threadbare, Mary, like my uniform, an' thin.
But ... reckon I'll pass muster, as I did in days of yore,
For I'm goin' out paradin' with the boys of 'Sixty-four.

Nov... I'm ready, Mary, kiss me; kiss your old sweetheart good-bye,
Br... aside them wayward tear-drops; Lord, I didn't think you'd cry.
I'm ... goin' forth to battle; cheer up, Mary, ...akes alive,
I'm ... t goin' out paradin' with the boys of Sixty-five.

NO CIVIL RULE FOR CUBA

Scheme to Abolish the Military Government Is Dead.

ISLANDERS TO HAVE A CHANCE

May First Conduct the Affairs of Cities —Plans for a Great Bank Killed by the Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The scheme to appoint at once a Civil Governor and establish a civil government for Cuba is dead. Although the Administration was fully determined upon it a short time ago, and the names of candidates for the Civil Governorship were being canvassed, the scheme has been killed and buried, and is past the possibility of resurrection.

The first evidence that it had received a mortal injury was when it was announced that President McKinley would not consider the names of candidates for the Governorship until Congress should assemble. The reason for this was that the Administration had received strong arguments against the plan from Administration men in Congress. The scheme could not have gone through without provoking the opposition of men friendly to the Administration, and there would have been a warm fight.

It was represented to President McKinley that to appoint a Civil Governor for Cuba would be a violation of the American pledge that the islands should be turned over to the Cubans. He was told that a strict adherence to the pledge would require the United States at the earliest practicable moment to order the formation of municipal Governments in Cuba by vote of the people. From this beginning a civil government, not made by the United States, but erected by the people of Cuba, should be allowed to grow; and then the Cubans would have a fair chance to show whether they were capable of governing themselves or not. If, after they had proved themselves capable of self-government, they chose to vote for annexation, the United States could honorably accept them.

The President was also told that people who wanted a chance to get charters for corporations were advocating the Civil Governor scheme. The Foraker resolution now stands in the way of a great number of people who would like to spread corporations with American charters all over the island. There are a number of such schemes now afloat, and if the Foraker resolution could be gotten out of the way and an American government of the island established, Cuba would be flooded with them.

The protest had its effect. The President abandoned the civil government idea, and came over to the people who want a Cuban Government established. If the scheme for a Civil Governor rears its head in Congress, it will be without the countenance of the Administration. One of the charter schemes is for the establishment of a bank, with branches all over the island. It is to be capitalized at $10,000,000, with power to increase the capital to $20,000,000. The charter is to be for twenty-five years, with privilege of renewals, and the rate of interest is to be 10 per cent.

This scheme also is dead. Its generous provisions give an indication of the various enterprises which were only awaiting a chance to descend on Cuba. Although the Civil Governor scheme was practically dead before Gen. Wood arrived, he was enabled to drive a nail in its coffin. Most of the Generals in Cuba were in favor of having an American Civil Governor, but Gen. Wood is known to be opposed to it.

CUBAN UPRISING NOT LIKELY.

Havana Newspaper Says There Is No Danger.

HAVANA, Dec. 1.—El Diario de la Marina referring to the rumors of a rising, says:

"There is not the least foundation for the reports that the people of the provinces contemplate a rising. They would have no reason to rise; and to do so in the existing circumstances would be the strongest possible argument against their capacity for self-government.

"People have recourse to desperate means only when circumstances become desperate. Certainly sensible people do not commit suicide because of the first little check or because of the susceptibility of exaggerated self-regard."

M. J. DADY'S HAVANA CONTRACT.

He Expects Soon to be Able to Begin Work Postponed by the War.

Michael J. Dady, the Brooklyn contractor, returned from Washington yesterday and declared that he expected soon to be able to commence work on the contract he made before the war with Spain to construct a sewerage system and street pavements in Havana, Cuba. The original contract, made with the Spanish Government, called for improvements which were to cost $12,600,000.

"We have been fighting all along to get a civil government for those people down in Cuba," said Mr. Dady, "and I guess we are going to be all right now. The Washington authorities have rendered opinions to the effect that my contract with the old authorities of Havana, which was approved by the Spanish Government, is all right to-day. Last Monday the Municipal Council of Havana passed a resolution empowering me to go ahead with the work. The only thing that now remains is to get the signature of a Cuban civil officer. If the contract is not carried out by the City of Havana, I will receive 3 per cent. of the contract price, or $178,000, for what work I have done."

Mr. Dady is of the opinion that he will now be able to carry the contract to a successful conclusion. Efforts were made after the occupation of Cuba by the Americans to declare his contract void. His friends charged that influences were brought to bear to deprive him of the work and give it to a firm in which the son of a Republican of National prominence is interested.

HAVANA, Dec. 1.—Señor Viondi, counsel for Michael J. Dady, writes to-day to the newspapers to say that he is confident Mr. Dady will carry out the contract for sewering and paving Havana.

NAVAL VESSELS FOR SALE.

The Government Wants to Dispose of the Scipio and the Rocket.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Lieut. J. C. Colwell, United States Naval Attaché, advertises this morning for bids for the United States vessels Scipio and Rocket. It is understood that the Navy Department hopes to find a buyer for the Scipio in England, because she is not entitled to an American register.

Movements of Naval Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The troop ship Meade, carrying reinforcements to the Philippines, arrived at Malta to-day, with all on board well.

The transport Burnside will leave New York to-morrow for San Juan de Puerto Rico.

The Massachusetts has arrived at New York, the Montgomery at Buenos Ayres, and the Lancaster at St. Vincent.

The Scorpion has sailed from Colon to Isla Fausta.

Governor of Guam Wants Marines.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Capt. Leary, the Naval Governor of the Island of Guam, wants an additional force of marines. The few men he has at command now are but an insignificant force compared with the 8,000 population of the island, and, while there are no signs of trouble just now, it is regarded as the part of prudence to have a sufficient force of marines at hand to make any attempt at disorder appear hopeless at the beginning.

Samoa Treaty May be Signed To-day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The British and German Ambassadors had several conferences with Secretary Hay to-day relative to the treaty for the partition of Samoa, and it is understood the minor questions of phraseology which remained open were so reconciled that the way is clear for signing the document probably to-morrow.

Gen. Wood Returns to Cuba Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Gen. Leonard Wood will return to Cuba next week. He [illegible] to-day, it [illegible]

MR. CHAMBERS ON EXPANSION.

Ex-Chief Justice of Samoa Predicts Success in New Colonies—Says Promises Must Be Kept.

Ex-Chief Justice William L. Chambers of Samoa was one of the speakers at a dinner of the Chi Phi Fraternity at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, and warmly advocated a policy of American colonial expansion. Lloyd McKim Garrison presided.

"The balance of trade," said Mr. Chambers, "between the United States and tropical countries has in the past been against us. The only way we have maintained a commercial equality has been by putting the temperate zone countries in our debt. It is therefore of the greatest importance that we be in intimate commercial and political relations with tropical countries.

"English trade reports show that the mother country provides 42 per cent. of all the purchases by her colonies and the most of which are much further removed from the sources of supply, yes, more than twice as far as our colonies will be from our two shores.

"We certainly should be able to command as a minimum as high a percentage of their trade as England does from her colonies. We should in reality be able to supply all the articles of importation required by our colonial countries that are now purchased by them in other markets of the world, and, if so, to settle for all of our tropical purchases in the products of our own country.

"Let us build the Nicaragua Canal as quickly as engineering skill and money can build it, shipping our products without breaking bulk from our Eastern and Southern ports as well as the Western to this great commercial field, and then we may expect to obtain a fair share of that vast commerce instead of the miserable 5.3 per cent. which we now have.

"What Great Britain has accomplished has largely been gained through the Port of Hongkong, which only fifty-seven years ago was a barren rock with only a few scattered fishermen's huts on its shore, and if England has been able in a half century with American cotton as a cornerstone, to build up a city which ranks fourth now in the shipping world, and has gained a trade of over $500,000,000, what may we not do, in less time than that, with a central point of distribution lying as Manila does adjacent to an area containing 852,000,000 people, and importing now in excess of $100,000,000 worth of goods annually, and promising under the developing influence of western methods and civilization to double these figures within out lifetime."

"The experience of the United States in the few years it has been establishing a colonial policy has been most flattering. We have in two years accomplished results in this respect never before known. The colonies which we have had thrust upon us present to us conditions never before faced by a colonizing power. They are more thickly populated than were the colonies of England, Portugal, or Holland, more thickly populated than is the United States itself. They are in many respects populated by savage or half-savage peoples. But in the face of these difficulties this country does not quail. The country that could free and enfranchise 6,000,000 black slaves can cope without fear of final success with the government of the peoples with whom we must now deal.

"In our dealings with these people there is one fact that we must ever have before us. It is the absolute and unrelenting necessity of keeping all our promises to them. We must give them all the liberty that they can make use of. Increase their liberty as they evince improvement. Gain their respect by kindly treatment. And, above all things, never promise them anything that we do not give them. They are quick to see evidences of bad faith. Let us maintain in all our dealings the strictest principles of honor, and we shall see that in an unexpectedly short time we shall have overcome the obstacles which now appear almost insurmountable."

HOW THE KHALIFA DIED.

Seated on a Sheepskin Between His Emirs He Awaited the End.

CAIRO, Dec. 1.—Officers from the Soudan, who have arrived here, say that when Gen. Wingate's force overtook the Khalifa the latter tried to outflank the Anglo-Egyptians, but failed. Seeing his position hopeless, the Khalifa told his emirs to stay with him and die. He then spread a sheepskin on the ground and sat down on it with the emirs on either side of him. The Khalifa was found shot through the head, heart, arms, and legs, and the emirs were lying dead beside him. The members of his bodyguard were all dead in front of them.

Gen. Wingate's force swept over them without recognizing the Khalifa and his emirs, but they were identified later.

The Khalifa is described as of medium height, strong and stout of light brown color, and wearing a long, gray beard.

GERMANS ON CHOATE'S SPEECH.

The Ambassador's Friendly References Create Favorable Comment.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—The friendly references to Germany, made by Mr. Choate, the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, in his speech at the Thanksgiving Day banquet of the American Society in London, have created a most favorable impression here, especially in high Government circles. One of the principal advisers of the Emperor to-day made a special reference to the address, remarking that Mr. Choate had put the matter in the true light.

"There is no reason that I know of," he said, "why the relations between Germany and the United States, which are now good, should not become even better and be more firmly established.

"With regard to commerce we are rivals, and each must make concessions; but all our interests and inclinations are toward strengthening the already existing ties."

THE FRENCH CONSPIRACY CASE.

Prisoners Protest in Court Against an Order of the Senate.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—The Senate, sitting as a High Court, to-day, by a vote of 134 to 98, granted the Public Prosecutor's request to withdraw some of his unnecessary witnesses. Counsel for the prisoners objected, on the ground that they wished to cross-examine some of them. The reading of the Court's decision evoked violent protests from the prisoners, who rose and made a terrible din. Counsel for the defense asked that one of the witnesses be heard, and the Court, amid great excitement, retired.

After a few minutes the public session was resumed, and M. Fallières, President of the Court, announced that the Court had decided that there was no ground to deliberate on the counsel's request, and ordered that Gen. Roget be heard as the first witness.

The General described the demonstration of Feb. 23, at the time the troops were returning from the funeral of President Faure, and said M. Déroulède clutched the bridle of his horse, which reared. Gen. Roget added that he laid his sword hand on M. Déroulède who released his hold. The General did not hear M. Déroulède address the troops.

AUSTRIA'S EMPEROR ON PEACE.

Says The Hague Conference Is a Guaranty Against European War.

VIENNA, Dec. 1.—Replying to the addresses of the Presidents of the Hungarian and Austrian Delegations to-day, Emperor Francis Joseph referred with emotion to the "innumerable manifestations of devotion to himself and the imperial house" in which the peoples of the Monarchy had united with himself in deep sorrow at the death of the Empress.

His Majesty, continuing, said the relations of the Monarchy with the powers continued friendly and appeared to justify confidence that they would not be disturbed. The continuance of the peace of Europe, he added, was the surest guaranty, and this was afforded by the "undisturbed existence of the close and trustful relationship with our allies."

A further guaranty of peace, the Emperor pointed out, was the harmonious co-operation of all the civilized States at The Hague conference, "originated on the magnanimous initiative of the Czar, which had imparted fresh and increased hopes to those recognizing the need of peace throughout the world."

The Emperor also referred to the friendly relations with Russia in regard to the Balkans, and, alluding to the Transvaal, he said:

"We have resolved to observe the strictest neutrality, and can only wish the conflict was approaching an early conclusion."

After saying that the demands of the War Department were confined to the most urgent requirements, the Emperor concluded [illegible] to the patriotic zeal of [illegible] asserted that that was

DEATH OF MR. SCHROEDER

Passing Away of Brooklyn's ex-Mayor Causes Much Regret.

HAD BEEN ILL TWENTY DAYS

Cold Caught at His Daughter's Burial Developed Into Pneumonia—Funeral on Monday.

The death of ex-Mayor Frederick A. Schroeder of Brooklyn in his apartments at the Hotel Margaret, there, early yesterday morning caused general regret and sorrow in that borough, with the public affairs of which Mr. Schroeder had been so prominently identified. Political, business, social, and charitable circles were alike affected by his death.

Mr. Schroeder had many friends, both in public and in private life, and all day yesterday men prominent in politics called at the hotel to condole with the bereaved family or sent messages of sympathy.

The arrangements for Mr. Schroeder's funeral had not been completed yesterday, but it was announced that the services would be held on Monday afternoon next at 2 o'clock at the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church. The Rev. Dr. Thomas B. McLeod will officiate, and the interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Schroeder contracted the illness which caused his death three weeks ago to-day. On that day Mrs. Dolly Anderson, a daughter of the ex-Mayor, who had died several days before, was buried at Greenwood. Mr. Schroeder caught a severe cold at the funeral, and pneumonia developed, causing his death. Dr. John A. Richardson of Brooklyn and Dr. E. G. Janeway of Manhattan, the attending physicians, were on Monday last hopeful of his recovery. Mr. Schroeder, however, suffered a relapse on Tuesday, and although he rallied somewhat, there was a repetition of the attack on Thursday, which proved to be the beginning of the end.

Resolutions in respect to the memory of ex-Mayor Schroeder were adopted in both branches of the Municipal Assembly yesterday, and the following committee was appointed to attend the funeral: Councilmen Lech, McGarry, Francisco, Ebbitts, Cassidy, Goodwin, and Oakley, and Aldermen Burleigh, Bennett, Diemer, Goodman, Keegan, Kennedy, and Stewart.

Frederick A. Schroeder was born in Trier, Prussia, on March 10, 1832. His father was a public official, and when the disturbances growing out of the opposition to the centralization of the Government began, in 1848, the Schroeder family emigrated to this country.

Frederick, who was then fifteen years old, began work here as a cigarmaker, and by the time he had reached his majority had a factory of his own, employing a dozen men. He then formed a partnership with Isidor M. Bon in the tobacco business. After a time the firm gave up manufacturing and began the importation of leaf tobacco. The business is still carried on in that form.

When the Germania Savings Bank of Brooklyn was founded, in 1867, Mr. Schroeder was elected its President, and he had held the office continuously since that time.

Mr. Schroeder's career in politics began in 1870, when he was nominated for Controller of the old City of Brooklyn by the Republicans. He was elected, but declined a renomination at the close of his term. He was again called into public life, however, in 1875, when the Republicans nominated him for Mayor of Brooklyn. He was elected, and while in office succeeded in effecting many reforms. The chief incidents of his administration were the stringing of the first wire of the New York and Brooklyn Bridge, the opening of Ocean Parkway, and the beginning of the construction of Brooklyn's first elevated railroad.

Mr. Schroeder also declined a renomination for Mayor, but in the year of his retirement from this office, 1878, was nominated and elected State Senator for the Third District. While at Albany he was instrumental in the enactment of a new Brooklyn charter, by which the powers of the Mayor were greatly enlarged, and single heads of departments replaced the triple-headed commissions.

After his retirement from the Senate, Mr. Schroeder spent considerable time in Europe, and since that time had devoted himself to his private business. He, however, always retained a lively interest in public affairs.

Mr. Schroeder, with his family, formerly occupied a handsome residence on Clinton Avenue, but for the last few years he had made his home at the Hotel Margaret, on Columbia Heights.

Mr. Schroeder contributed largely to charities in Brooklyn and elsewhere. In his social relations he was affable and genial, and enjoyed the confidence and respect of a very large circle of friends. He was at one time President of the Germania Club of Brooklyn, and was also a member of the Oxford, Hamilton, Union League, and Riding and Driving Clubs of Brooklyn, and the Shelter Island Yacht Club. He was also a member of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences and of the Long Island Historical Society.

Mr. Schroeder is survived by a widow, a son, and five daughters.

BERLIN'S MUNICIPAL QUARREL.

Council Again Appeals from a Police Presidency Decree.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Berliners are still agog over the bitter quarrel between the Emperor and the municipal authorities. The Council appealed from the decree issued by the Police Presidency forbidding them to erect a walled inclosure, with an inscription on the gate in memory of the victims of the uprising of 1848.

The Council in turn has appealed to the Supreme Administrative Court, which will try the case Dec. 14. The Emperor has made up his mind, it is said in Court circles, that if the decision is again against the Council he will confirm the election of Mayor von Kirschner, who has patiently awaited the imperial pleasure since July of last year. On the other hand, if the decision favors the city, his Majesty, so the story goes, will continue to withhold his confirmation.

Australian Cabinet Troubles.

BRISBANE, Dec. 1.—The Labor Ministry here will be short-lived. Premier Dawson, on the meeting of the Legislature to-day, announced that he had formed a Ministry and moved to adjourn until Tuesday. The House, however, by a vote of 36 to 26, refused to pass the motion. The Cabinet was thus defeated at the first sitting.

MELBOURNE, Victoria, Dec. 1.—The Premier, Sir George Turner, has resigned. The Governor, Lord Brassey, has summoned Mr. A. McLean to form a new Ministry.

American Fruit Seized in Germany.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Reports again reach here of seizures of American fruit at German frontier stations. Seizures have been made at Emmerich of apples and pears and at Ziamburg of nectarines and California dried fruit. In all these cases it is alleged the San José scale has been found. Simultaneously there is a revival of the agitation for a high duty on foreign fruit, and in some cases entire import prohibition is demanded. Even the Liberal Cologne Gazette now advocates a high duty.

British Decorations for Germans.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Gazette announces that Count von Buelow, the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, who recently visited England with Emperor William, has been created an Honorary Knight of the Victorian Order. Others of the Emperor's suite have been given various degrees of this order.

French Tariff on Brazilian Coffee.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Negotiations are about to be opened with the view of allowing Brazil a reduction of about 10 francs on the tax on coffee, on condition that French products are given the most favored treatment. Should the negotiations fail the maximum tariff will be applied to Brazilian coffee.

Victorian Ministry Defeated.

MELBOURNE, Dec. 1.—After an all-night session of the Legislative Assembly of Victoria, the Ministry of Sir George Turner was defeated by 11 votes on a resolution of want of confidence.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

December's first Saturday, as for many years past, is given up to coming-out receptions and to country house parties. The avenue and the adjacent fashionable streets up-town will be gay and lively this afternoon with people hurrying to the various coming-out teas and receptions of the day. The most interesting of the coming-out teas will be those given by Mrs. George C. Clark, 7 West Thirty-seventh Street, for her daughters, Misses Julia and Edith Clark; by Mrs. Bayard Dominick for Miss Helen Dominick, by Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes for her daughters, the afternoon reception at Delmonico's to be given by the hosts of the Wednesday cotillion, and Mrs. Chester W. Chapin's reception for Mrs. Andrew McKinley, who was Miss Chapin.

***

Miss Helen Dominick, who will make her first bow to society this afternoon, will be assisted in receiving by Miss Helen Warren of Philadelphia, Miss Emily Potts, Miss Dominick, a sister of the débutante, and the Misses Katrina Fachiri, Lillian Carpenter, Estelle Hartshorne, Madge Niles, Hilda Tiffany, Anita Dominick, Ethel Thornell, Isabel Curtis, Mildred Dix, Cecil Boardman, Ruth Emmons, and Violet Stewart. On Monday, Dec. 27, Mr. and Mrs. Dominick and the Misses Dominick will give a large cotillion at Sherry's. On the same date Mrs. Albert Barnes Boardman will give a dinner, after which her guests will attend this cotillion, which will be in the large ballroom.

***

Mrs. George C. Clark of 7 West Thirty-seventh Street will give a reception this afternoon for her daughter, Miss Edith Clark. The Misses Marguerite Chapin, Mary Hartman, Nathalie Henderson, Evelyn Parsons, May Sands, Catharine Dix, Marian Fish, Caroline Edgar, Jean Brown, and Mary Gardener will receive with the débutante.

***

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Robert Olyphant of 8 East Sixty-first Street gave a coming-out reception for her daughter, Miss Amy Gordon Olyphant. Miss Olyphant's gown was of white mousseline de soie, trimmed with white ribbons. Mrs. Olyphant wore yellow satin, with white lace and spangles. The reception was followed by a dinner, at which the débutante's grandfather, Mr. R. M. Olyphant, was the special guest of honor. Those who assisted in receiving at this reception were the Misses Frances Stewart, Harriet Delafield, Pansy Roosevelt, Josephine Williams, Mary Simmons, and Edith Carpenter. Among the guests were Mrs. Frederic J. de Peyster, Miss Ella de Peyster, Mrs. B. Aymar Sands, Miss Sands, Mrs. Newbold Edgar, Miss Carrie Edgar, Mrs. Holbrook Curtis, Mrs. Wilmerding and the Misses Wilmerding, Mrs. Stokes, Mrs. Arthur Peabody, Mrs. Charles Peabody, Mrs. Edward Bell, and the Messrs. John and Alexander Hadden, J. J. White, Jr., Auchincloss, and Roosevelt. After Jan. 1, 1900, Mrs. Olyphant's residence will be 3 East Sixty-ninth Street.

***

Mrs. Albert Barnes Boardman presented her daughter, Miss Cecil Boardman, at a reception at her residence, 40 West Fifty-third Street, yesterday afternoon. Miss Boardman wore a charming gown of white chiffon. Mrs. Boardman's costume of white broadcloth was trimmed with Irish point. Those who assisted in receiving were Mrs. Boardman's cousins, Mrs. Frank Cabot and Mrs. Lawrence Stoddard; Mrs. W. H. Motley, and the Misses Violet Stewart, Helen Dominick, Madge Niles, Ethel Thomas, Emily Cruger, Mildred Dix, and Eleanor Swayne. The reception was followed by a dinner and a small dance. Among the guests at the dance were the Messrs. Alexander and Schuyler Smith, Sewall Boardman, Stephen P. Nash, Norman Burrell, James McLean, Reginald Wigham, Sartelle Prentice, Gustav Schwab, Jr., and Alexander Cameron.

***

The Germanic, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, brought among other passengers F. J. Arbuckle, Austin Corbin, Capt. O. Danielson, Major Frewen, Prof. L. J. B. Lincoln, G. B. Ogden, and Frank L. Packard. The Ems, which sails to-day for Genoa, Gibraltar, and Naples, has booked among other passengers, Mrs. G. T. Bowler, Mrs. Elizabeth Blake, Charles E. Barnes, Miss Elizabeth Cheever, Mrs. Walden Pell, James Duane Pell, Miss Mary Duane Pell, Miss S. G. Pell, and Mrs. D. Archie Pell, and Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Wetherill, Miss Wetherill, and Brenton Wetherill of Philadelphia. On the Campania, sailing for Liverpool to-day, there are booked among others Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Biddle of Philadelphia, T. Jefferson Coolidge of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. J. Forsythe, Mrs. Osmond Hicks, formerly Miss Alice Ashmore of this city; G. L. Montgomery, Oliver H. P. Noyes, Lieut. Jean Javal of Paris, John E. Redmond, M. P., Mr. and Mrs. C. Morton Smith of Philadelphia, S. Salisbury Tuckerman of Boston, Lord Mayor Tallon of Dublin, W. von der Heyde of London, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Wardlaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham H. Wynne of England.

***

The death of Miss Anne Duryea, elder daughter of Gen. Hiram Duryea, and a sister of Mr. Chester B. Duryea, who married Miss Nina L. Smith, and which followed a relapse from typhoid fever, has brought sorrow into many households. Miss Duryea, who was only twenty-five years old, was a very popular girl in the younger set in New York society. She was quite a belle at Narragansett Pier last Summer. When she returned from this resort last September, she was taken with the fever. Mrs. George Freeman, who was a friend of Miss Duryea, and who also came home from Narragansett with typhoid, is now convalescent after a long illness. Miss Duryea was at one time engaged to Mr. Fitzgerald Peploe. Her funeral was held at her father's residence, 50 Madison Avenue, yesterday morning. The funeral of Mrs. Preble Tucker, formerly Miss Katherine Livingston Waldo, and whose sudden and sad death has so deeply affected a large circle of friends, will be held this morning at St. George's Church. Mrs. Tucker's sweet disposition and unselfish character had greatly endeared her to every one who knew her, and her death has struck a sad note in the opening chorus of the season's gayeties. Her sister, Miss Rosalie Waldo, is abroad, and fears are entertained that she will be greatly overcome by the news of Mrs. Tucker's death. The two young women were orphans and the last of their family.

***

To the long list of coming-out receptions for next week must be added that to be given by Mr. Amedee de Pau Moran of 17 West Fifty-sixth Street on Dec. 12, to introduce his daughter, Miss Maria L. Moran. Mrs. Walter S. Gurnee, Jr., of 8 East Eighty-third Street, will give a reception on Saturday afternoon next, Dec. 9.

***

The Countess Festettics is still with her mother, Mrs. Louis Haggin, who, as usual, is spending the Winter at 28 Fifth Avenue. Mr. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence of Groton, Mass., are at Shelburne Farms, Vt., spending the Thanksgiving holidays with Dr. and Mrs. Seward Webb. Mr. Vanderbilt took Mr. and Mrs. Harriman and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence to Shelburne in his private car.

***

The golf match yesterday at Lakewood was the attraction for the lovers of the imported Scotch game, and numbers of them went to the New Jersey resort on the morning trains. Mr. Herbert Harriman played in the consolation round, and other noted players present who took part in the tournament were James A. Tyng, R. Robbins, Travis, and Pratt.

***

Mrs. Bowers Lee died yesterday at her residence, 14 West Tenth Street. Mrs. Lee was Miss Sarah Hoyt, and a sister of Mrs. Charles G. Francklyn. Mrs. Lee's death will cast a gloom over a large element in New York society, and particularly the Southampton set, in which Mrs. Lee had been prominent for years. She leaves two daughters, Miss Marian Lee and Mrs. Ralph G. Miller.

***

Mr. William E. Iselin and Mr. Frederic Allen have made a plea to the people of Westchester to subscribe for the maintenance of the Westchester hounds. It is to be turned into a subscription pack, and Mr. Eugene Reynal will consent to remain as master. Among the subscribers already are Mrs. Jules Reynal, Mr. E. S. Reynal, Mr. N. C. Reynal, Mr. William E. Iselin, Mr. Frederic Allen, Mr. Oliver Harriman, Jr., Mr. Edmund Randolph, Mr. Gordon Macdonald, Mr. John Agar, Mr. Howard Willetts, Mr. T. W. Thorne, Mr. Dallas B. Pratt, Mr. Howard N. Potter, Mr. William H. Russell, Mr. Robert E. Tod, Mrs. Marion Story, Miss Knowlton, Miss Gertrude Minturn, and Mr. J. Stevens Ulman.

***

An engagement of interest has just been announced in Philadelphia, namely, that of Miss Susan Tilghman, to Count Ludovico Lante-Riverra, a scion of one of the oldest houses of Italy. Count Lante-Riverra will sail for this country during the month of January, and the happy pair will be united some time in the month following. It is rumored that the ceremony will take place at Villa Nova. Miss Tilghman is the daughter of Mrs. Richard Tilghman, who, it will be remembered, was Miss Toland. The bride-elect is also a sister of Mr. Richard Tilghman of the First City Troop, and Mr. B. M. Tighman.

The latest Philadelphia engagement and which was announced yesterday, is that of Miss Morris Lewis Clothier, eldest son of Isaac H. Clothier, to Miss Lydia M. Earnshaw of Riverton, N. J., daughter of the late John W. S. Earnshaw.

The engagement was also announced yesterday in Philadelphia of Miss Anna Rodman Pancoast to Mr. Mifflin Wistar Huey. Mr. Huey is a son of Gen. Huey of Bustleton. He was a member of Battery A during the Spanish war.

WIFE WOULD FORGIVE BIGAMY.

Finds Her Husband Married Again, and Attributes His Action to an Unbalanced Mind.

Central Office detectives abruptly terminated the honeymoon of John L. Blackford, thirty-seven years old, of Plainfield, N. J., who is employed as a detective by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, when they arrested him, about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, at the Hotel Marlborough, where he was stopping with his bride. The charge against Blackford is bigamy, and he was arrested on the complaint of Charles Prennesholtz of Westfield, N. J., a stock broker, with an office at 44 Broadway, who is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Blackford No. 2, who was Miss Alice Morgan of Westfield.

Blackford and Miss Morgan were married last week at Westfield. Soon afterward her brother-in-law heard, indirectly, that Blackford had another wife in Plainfield, and proceeded to investigate. He called at the home of Mrs. Blackford No. 1, and there learned the truth. At first the deserted wife would not believe that her husband had married another woman, but she was finally convinced, and came to this city in company with relatives of Wife No. 2, and was present when the arrest was made.

When Blackford was confronted by the party he said that he had been legally divorced from his first wife in Dakota. He admitted that he had never been to Dakota, but said friends obtained the divorce for him. Mrs. Blackford No. 2 proclaimed her belief in Blackford's honesty of purpose. Detective Gargan then placed Blackford under arrest, and, as the latter had no money, was compelled to pay his hotel bill, which amounted to $19.75.

Blackford was locked up at Police Headquarters and the women were taken to the Broadway Central Hotel. The two wives later faced each other in Capt. McClusky's office. Each extended sympathy to the other, and they talked together for some time. Both wives are attractive brunettes, No. 2 being somewhat younger than the first wife. The former said that she had no wish to take the man away from his lawful wife, and that Blackford had deceived her. Wife No. 1 then said that she did not wish to prosecute her husband, and would do all she could to have him returned to his home.

When Blackford was arraigned in the Centre Street Court before Magistrate Pool both wives and all the relatives were present. Wife No. 1 was again averse to making a complaint, but produced her marriage certificate showing that she and Blackford were married April 10, 1889. Blackford was committed in default of $5,000 bail. After he was sent to the Tombs his first wife, in company with Detective Gargan, called on him, having in the meantime sent to him a number of delicacies. Blackford at first refused to see her, but finally consented. He then accused her of being responsible for all his troubles, saying that if she had not come to New York after him he would not be in jail. She left the Tombs determined to leave no stone unturned to get her husband out of his trouble, contending that his mind was unbalanced. She wants Wife No. 2 to have her marriage annulled.

UNREST IN SANTO DOMINGO.

People Are Becoming Dissatisfied with Jimenes's Administration.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 1.—Santo Domingan mail advices under date of Nov. 26 report a condition of incipient popular unrest, threatening further armed disturbances. Apparently the acts of the Jimenes administration, particularly relative to financial matters, instead of winning the confidence or approval of the majority of the leaders of the national movement which gave Jimenes practically a bloodless victory over the followers of Heureaux, are exciting popular suspicion and distrust, and armed opposition is rapidly developing for the purpose of enforcing popular desires on Jimenes.

The advices further allege that the American Improvement Company also opposes Jimenes's policy and inclines to moral sympathy, if not open support, of the popular demands.

Trying Former Queens Officials.

Joseph A. McKenna, who was chief clerk of the Water Department of Long Island City at the time Patrick J. Gleason was Mayor of that city, was placed on trial there yesterday upon an indictment charging him with misappropriating $8,000 of the funds of the department. The jury failed to agree, and McKenna's bond was continued. The trial of McKenna is the first of several which will result from the examination of the books of former officials in Queens Borough by the experts employed by Controller Coler.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Charles Olmstead.

Charles Olmstead died at his home at Norwalk, Conn., yesterday after a lingering illness of several weeks. Mr. Olmstead was born in Ridgefield Sept. 28, 1825. He went to Norwalk when a young man and taught school, but later engaged in the grocery business. He was appointed Postmaster at Norwalk by President Lincoln in 1862, serving until the election of President Cleveland. He served also as Quartermaster General on the staff of Gov. P. C. Lounsbury, and represented Norwalk for several terms in the General Assembly. He had also held the offices of Town and City Assessor, Constable, and member of the Board of Relief. Mr. Olmstead was an Odd Fellow, and was at one time prominent in lodge affairs. He was a Director in the Fairfield County Savings Bank, being also one of the incorporators of that institution, and was instrumental in forming the Norwalk and South Norwalk Electric Light Company, of which he was President at one time. For many years he was a member of the Board of School Visitors, and was Secretary for the greater part of the time, as well as one of the acting school visitors. Two daughters and two sons survive him—Mrs. L. C. Betts, Mrs. John S. Seymour, wife of an ex-United States Patent Commissioner of New York City; William Olmstead, Salt Lake City, and Horace Olmstead of Brooklyn.

Dr. Charles Edmund Jones.

Dr. Charles Edmund Jones, son of the late Dr. Erasmus Darwin Jones, who was one of the pioneers in homeopathic medical practice in New York State, died at his home in Albany yesterday. Dr. Jones was born in Albany Feb. 15, 1840. He was graduated from the Albany Academy in 1856 and from Hope College, Michigan, in 1870, delivering the master's oration and taking the M. A. degree. He studied medicine with his father and at the Albany Medical College. After graduating from the Albany College he took a course in the Homeopathic Medical College in New York, receiving his final degree in 1873. He then pursued a special course of study in hospital work in Vienna and other foreign capitals. He was a member of the Albany County Medical Society, having been its President and Secretary; a permanent member of the American Institute of the Homeopathic Medical Society of the State of New York, and one of the Faculty of the Albany Homeopathic Hospital, in charge of diseases of the throat and respiratory organs. He never married, but always held a prominent place in social life as well as in public life in the city of his birth. He was a member of the Fort Orange Club, and had served as a member of the Board of Public Instruction of Albany.

Frederick George Swan.

Frederick George Swan died on Thursday in his apartments in the Lenox, 2 West Thirty-sixth Street. He was born in this city on Feb. 22, 1831, and was a son of the late Benjamin F. Swan, an old resident of New York. Mr. Swan was a member of the New York Stock Exchange until fifteen years ago, when failing health compelled him to retire from business. Mr. Swan was a life Director in the American Bible Society, a member of the Metropolitan Club, the Sons of the Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Mercantile Library, Republican Club, South Side Club, Founders and Patriots' Society, and Good Government Club D. He leaves a wife and one daughter, the wife of Benjamin Welles of 6 West Thirty-seventh Street.

Dr. William B. Garside.

Dr. William Briggs Garside died at his home, 135 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday of apoplexy. He was born in Harrison, Ohio, in 1835, and as a young practicing physician was associated with Dr. Dio Lewis, in Lexington, Mass. Twenty-five years ago he established a practice in Brooklyn. Dr. Briggs was connected with the Brooklyn Homeopathic Hospital for several years, and was President of the Brooklyn Maternity Hospital and New York School of Nurses for eight years. In 1891, on account of failing health, Dr. Briggs was obliged to give up his practice in Brooklyn and go South. Later he established a sanitarium at Atlantic City. Then he moved to East Orange, N. J., and about a year ago returned to Brooklyn and resumed his practice there. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

Col. Cadwallader Jones.

Col. Cadwallader Jones, a Colonel in the Confederate Army, and once a prominent politician, died at Columbia, S. C., yesterday, aged eighty-six years. He married Isabella, daughter of Gov. Iredell of North Carolina. He was graduated in 1832 from the University of North Carolina. Two of his sons were Colonels in the Spanish war, Willie Jones of South Carolina and Johnston Jones of California. The grandfather of the deceased was an aide to Gen. Lafayette. John Paul Jones, the Revolutionary naval hero, changed his name from Paul to Jones for kindnesses at the hands of this distinguished North Carolina family. Gen. Wade Hampton will be a pall bearer.

Obituary Notes.

GEORGE G. FUESSEL, sixty years old, a shade cloth manufacturer and an old resident of Tremont, died Thursday at his residence, Morris Avenue and Ash Street. He was born in Germany, and came to this country when twelve years old. He leaves a wife and four children.

Mrs. ELLA FISHBOUGH DAVIS, wife of Morris A. Davis, died at her home, 76 Clifton Place, Jersey City, on Thursday, from a complication of diseases. She was a member of the New York Professional Woman's League, and was well known in musical circles. She was a daughter of Dr. William Fishbough of Brooklyn.

CHARLES EDWARD SMITH, son of the late Cyrus P. Smith, died in this city yesterday of pneumonia. He was fifty-three years old, and was born in Brooklyn. He was at one time an upholstery manufacturer in Manchester, England, and later went to the Island of Jamaica, where he was engaged in railroad building. He leaves a daughter, Pamela C. Smith, an artist.

GEORGE W. JONES, a member of the Consolidated Exchange, died suddenly yesterday at the Sherman Square Hotel, where he had made his home. He was a native of this city, and in his fiftieth year. Mr. Jones was a member of the Lotos, Union League, and New York Yacht Clubs, and the Veterans

THE FALL OF BAYONBONG

Insurgent General, with 800 Men, Surrenders to 50 Americans.

ILOILO IS CLEAR OF REBELS

Gen. Hughes Drives the Filipinos from the Province and Captures Ten Field Pieces.

MANILA, Dec. 2.—Gen. Conon surrendered 800 officers and men with rifles, several American and seventy Spanish prisoners, and the garrison at Bayonbong, Province of Nueva Vizcaya, to Lieut. Monroe, with fifty men of the Fourth Cavalry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Gen. Otis's advices to the War Department to-day show that the advance into the interior is being vigorously pushed and the American troops continue to drive back and disperse the scattered bands encountered. He states that Capt. Warwick, Eighteenth Infantry, was killed in an engagement at Passi, Iloilo Province, on the 26th inst. Gen. Otis's dispatch is as follows:

"Manila, Dec. 1.

"Hughes reports from Central Panay that Iloilo Province, one-third of island, is cleared of insurgents. By forced marches with two battalions from Labuano by way of Calinog he obliged enemy to (engage) at Passi on 26th inst., and drove him with loss to the mountains in detached bodies, capturing ten field pieces, of which two were breech-loaders, also nine rifles, and several thousand rounds small ammunition; Hughes's casualties, Capt. Warwick, Eighteenth Infantry, and Private Daniel W. Humphreys, Company K, Eighteenth Infantry, killed.

"He reports his troops in excellent health. Is now converting wheel into pack transportation for purpose of entering mountains. Expected that he will pass on to Capiz, northern coast of island.

"Dispatches from Lawton indicate Bayonbong captured 29th inst. Both trails over mountains impracticable for wheel transportation of any kind. Troops have subsisted on rice, and scant supply of that.

"MacArthur's troops have had several minor engagements, capturing men and rifles.

"Bell's capture in mountains includes fourteen modern guns, all in good condition; over fifty pieces of artillery captured by troops of corps in last three weeks.

"Oregon brought in 106 Spanish prisoners from Vigan yesterday, 94 received by rail previous evening. Young, with three troops cavalry and Miller's battalion Thirty-third Infantry, should have reached Vigan yesterday.

"Conditions Zamboanga satisfactory. Additional ordnance surrendered, consisting four field pieces, seventeen rifles, quantity ammunition. Natives adjoining towns visiting city and native military bands serenading troops. Thirty-first Infantry leaves Manila this evening to garrison several stations on Mindanao coast; no difficulties anticipated."

Oliver B. Warwick entered the Military Academy from Alabama Sept. 1, 1893, and on graduation entered the Eighteenth Infantry as Second Lieutenant, remaining with the regiment during his entire military career. He was made First Lieutenant Feb. 20, 1899, and attained the rank of Captain Nov. 30, 1899.

THE SURRENDER OF ZAMBOANGA.

Details of the Occupation of the Town by Commander Very.

MANILA, Dec. 1.—The steamer Salvador, from Zamboanga, Island of Mindanao, which has arrived here, brings details of the occupation of the town by Commander Very of the United States gunboat Castine.

The revolutionists in Mindanao were led by Alvarez and Calixto, who left Luzon some time ago and for the last seven months had been stirring up the people, winning a considerable following. The commercial depression and lack of food resulting from the island's blockade set the people against the revolutionists and culminated in the assassination on Nov. 15 of Calixto, a firebrand and the real leader of the revolution, by Midel, Mayor of the town of Tetuan.

Midel, under a pretext, secured Calixto's presence in Tetuan, and when Calixto was within the distance of thirty yards from a point where the Mayor's guards were stationed the latter fired a volley, killing Calixto instantly.

Midel at once repaired to the Castine and arranged with Commander Very for the occupation of Zamboanga. Commander Very asked that Datto Minda, with 500 of his followers, stationed on a neighboring island, come to Zamboanga. The following morning Midel raised the American flag over Zamboanga, the insurgents offering no resistance and evacuating the town. The Castine was saluted with twenty-one guns, and Commander Very landed 100 blue jackets and took possession of the town and fortifications. Datto Minda's men arrived in the afternoon. They were armed with wooden shields and swords and were used on picket duty.

Commander Very dispatched the gunboat Manila on Nov. 15 to Jolo, to convey troops to reinforce him. A company of the Twenty-third Regiment, under Capt. Nichols, arrived on Nov. 17, and two more companies followed them shortly. Minda's followers then returned home.

Alvarez sought to arrange for a surrender of the arms and artillery pieces. On the afternoon of Nov. 20 Midel called a meeting of the local chiefs, who formally deposed Alvarez as leader of the revolutionists in the island and elected Midel President of the new insular government established under American sovereignty and control. The chiefs formally requested Commander Very to grant exemption from taxes until the re-establishment of commercial relations, permission to carry arms in the mountains, religious freedom, and the power to conduct local governments as they had previously done, which requests, pending the arrival of Brig. Gen. Bates, the Military Governor of the district, the Commander granted.

Commander Very then effected an apparent reconciliation between Alvarez and Midel and their followers, Alvarez signing a formal resignation of the position of revolutionary leader on Nov. 22, at a point on the coast near the rebel town of Mercedes. Alvarez delivered thirteen Nordenfeldts and Maxims, with ammunition, which were stored on board the Castine. Eight Nordenfeldts and Maxims were delivered to the army in Zamboanga, as were also over 200 rifles and ammunition. The artillery came into possession of the revolutionists from six Spanish gunboats bought by the army from Spain, which were looted by the revolutionists before the Americans could get possession.

Alvarez has only a dozen followers left, the remainder of the revolutionists having scattered and returned to their occupations. No fighting is expected.

Commander Very, having started to occupy Zamboanga, is considered to have handled the situation in its many phases with energy and diplomatic skill.

CONDITION OF THE MANAUENSE.

Transport's Butcher Says Steamer Leaked When Three Days Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Arthur Burns, who was butcher on the transport Manauense, has returned from Honolulu, where he left the vessel on account of sickness. Burns tells a startling tale of the voyage of the transport between this port and Honolulu. He says that ten men deserted the vessel at Honolulu, and but two of the vacancies could be filled before the departure of the vessel for Manila.

According to Burns, the transport leaked three days after leaving San Francisco, and the condenser broke down. The refrigerating plant collapsed before the vessel reached Honolulu. Burns states that the ship's carpenter, who was called into consultation regarding the condition of the vessel, was one of those who deserted at Honolulu.

He states that the hold was so full of water that the floor of the lower staterooms was awash, and that he was compelled to seek a berth in the soldiers' quarters.

GERMANS AND THE PHILIPPINES.

Poll Taken of Republican Sentiment in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 1.—The Herold will publish to-morrow the result of the efforts of the editor, Mr. Edgar W. Coleman, to ascertain the sentiment among the Republican German-American population of Wisconsin on the expansion question. He obtained from the Chairman of the Republican County Committee of every county in the State, except Milwaukee, the names of five representative German-American Republicans, the Chairmen of the County Committees not knowing for what purpose the names were asked. Mr. Coleman wrote to the five men in each county, asking an answer to the following questions:

1. Are you and your friends of the opinion that the American Government, after the close of the war in the Philippines, should retain the islands as territory and property of the United States and give to the Filipinos a suitable form of Government under the direction and control of the United States? Or

2. Are you of the opinion that the United States troops should be recalled immediately and the Filipinos left to take care of themselves? Or

3. Are you of the opinion that after the close of the war the United States should give to the Filipinos the broadest self-government and content itself with a protectorate?

The replies so far received are classified by Mr. Coleman as follows:

Favorable to the idea conveyed in Question No. 1, 55; for Question No. 2, 10; for Question No. 3, 34.

Five ignored direct answers, but expressed confidence that the Administration would adopt the proper course, four were undecided between Question No. 1 and Question No. 3, and nine were undecided as to the proper policy to be pursued.

In a letter to President McKinley Mr. Coleman says:

"While I was personally of the opinion that we should never have assumed possession of the Philippine Islands, and should not retain them as American territory, I felt that the German-Americans were as much divided on this question as the Anglo-Americans, and that a larger proportion of the Republican German-Americans were in favor of retaining absolute possession than was generally presumed."

Two More Companies of Macabebes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Word comes from the Philippines that the two companies of Macabebe scouts under Capt. Batson are doing so well that it has been decided to organize a full battalion of those natives. The additional two companies will be very useful in the present campaign, in tracking the fleeing remnants of Aguinaldo's disorganized army.

WAR ON TWO-FARE SYSTEM.

Brooklyn Citizens to Have Another Hearing Before the Railroad Commissioners.

The attorneys representing the South Brooklyn Citizens' Association and other organizations of citizens who are protesting against the methods employed by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system will present their case before the State Railroad Commission in the Borough Hall at 10 o'clock this morning. This hearing was adjourned from last Saturday because of the death of Vice President Hobart. The main discussion to-day will be on the legal points involved as to the right of the company to charge two fares for the long rides over its lines. Other than this, it is understood, a strong argument will be presented in protest of the existing plan of having but one motorman on elevated trains.

Since this subject was broached at one of the meetings of citizens, several weeks ago, the idea has been gathering force that the employment of but one man on the front platform of crowded trains is a constant menace to the lives of elevated train passengers. It has been frequently pointed out that if from sickness or other cause a motorman becomes helpless and loses control of his train, an accident is inevitable. The railroad company has objected to the employment of more than one man because of the additional expense. It will be urged to-day that the Railroad Commission has the power to compel reform. Otherwise, it is the intention of those having the adjustment of grievances in charge to embody this feature in a bill for legislative relief.

Harry A. Hanbury, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Committee of One Hundred and Seventy-five, in speaking last night of travel conditions, said he had not noticed any improvement in the running of cars and trains in South Brooklyn.

"Conditions are just as bad as ever," said he. "We will never let up until the company abolishes the double fare system. The company may think that after awhile the agitation will die out. There never was a greater mistake on the part of a corporate body."

The company made another change yesterday in the running of its Nassau line cars in Broadway to the Brooklyn Ferry. All these cars now run straight down Broadway instead of through South Eighth Street. The change being unannounced caused more or less grumbling. The change involves the abandonment of the Kent Avenue terminal. In explaining the change, Mr. Rossiter said yesterday that the transit company did not buy the old companies with any intention of keeping up all their terminals.

ERVING WINSLOW EXPLAINS.

Thanksgiving Message to the President Not Sent by the League.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—The Thanksgiving message sent to President McKinley by Erving Winslow, Secretary of the Anti-Imperialist League, was intended as a personal message by the sender. In an interview Mr. Winslow said that the expression was in no way connected with the league. Continuing, he said:

"The simple fact of the matter is that I have been so deeply stirred by the whole business, by the death of Aguinaldo's child, the capture of his mother, the hunting and harrying of Aguinaldo himself into the woods by our men in the Philippines, that I feel just as I said—I would rather be in Aguinaldo's place than in that of Mr. McKinley, who caused it all."

Mr. Winslow was asked what stand the Anti-Imperialist League and its sympathizers would probably take now that the rebellion in the islands has practically fallen through, and if their work would be as energetic as heretofore.

"While I can't speak officially or certainly on that point," said he, "we shall probably wait and follow the lead of Senator Hoar, and such other leaders."

Anchor Line Buys a Steamship.

The Anchor Line has purchased from the Shaw, Savill & Albion Company of London and New Zealand the steamship Tainui, which left Moville, and is expected here this week. Her name will be changed to Astoria. She measures 5,026 tons, and she is of 5,000 horse power. She is 440 feet long, 46 feet beam, has two funnels, four masts, and a very long bowsprit. Her saloon is amidships on the upper deck. She has accommodations for 130 first cabin and 100 second cabin passengers. She is commanded by Capt. Walter Baxter, who formerly commanded the Furnessia.

Merchants' Association and Ramapo.

The Merchants' Association yesterday answered letters from the Citizens' Union and City Club in relation to its work on the Ramapo scheme. The association says it is not in politics, but is working for the good of commerce and business. The replies were made by President William F. King and C. S. Mead, a Secretary of the association.

Hospital Patient Jumps to Death.

Mrs. Fannie Micklebank of 930 Second Avenue, who was suffering from pneumonia which had made her so violent she had to be strapped to her cot, broke her bonds yesterday morning in her room in Roosevelt Hospital and jumped from a fourth-story window to the ground. She died in two hours. She leaves a daughter and a son.

For New Kings County Buildings.

The Kings County Grand Jury for November, before its discharge yesterday, made a presentment to County Judge Hurd recommending various improvements in county institutions. Among these are a new building for the women prisoners in Raymond Street Jail and a new wing to the Almshouse at Flatbush for the accommodations of idiots and consumptives.

Reduced Rates for Spring Buyers.

The Trunk Line Association has notified the Merchants' Association that it will grant reduced rates next March and April in the interest of an excursion which the merchants are arranging in the interest of Spring buyers. It is believed the Central Passenger Association will follow the lead of the Trunk Line Association.

Fall Kills Vineland Merchant.

VINELAND, N. J., Dec. 1.—Lewis W. Gould, a local hardware merchant, died this evening as the result of injuries due to a fall down the cellar stairs of the building of the Vineland Grape Juice Company, of which concern he was a Director. He was identified with the local banks, a partner in several manufactories, and the head of the Vineland Gas Works.

MR. COLER TO PAY TEACHERS.

A Temporary Agreement with Officials of the School Board.

Lewis L. Delafield, who represents the interests of the New York Teachers' Association in its contest regarding the question of school salaries, said last night that he had the case well in hand. "Further than that," he added, "I cannot discuss my clients' affairs."

The fight instituted by the teachers of Manhattan Borough has been amicably settled for the present. Thomas E. Bussey, Acting Secretary of the Board of Education, said yesterday that no special meeting of the board would be called to deal with the matter. "Such an extra meeting," he said, "is entirely unnecessary, in view of the agreement made on Wednesday between President Little and his associates and Controller Coler.

"The substance of that agreement is that the Controller will pay the November salaries according to the basis of last May, provided the Board of Education guarantees enough money for the December accounts to make good any deficiencies accruing as a result of a decision of the courts upholding the Corporation Counsel's opinion."

CLIPPER SHIP DESIGNER DEAD.

Was a Son of Donald McKay, a Famous Builder of Such Craft.

Capt. Cornelius Wentworth McKay, son of Donald McKay, a famous clipper shipbuilder, died yesterday at his home in this city. He was born in Harlem on Feb. 1, 1834. After an unfinished course in college he went to work in his father's shipyard in East Boston. After mastering the practical features of ship designing and building he was sent to Europe to study modeling. After his return he became associated with his father in business. Several clippers, both square-riggers and fore-and-afters, supposed to have been modeled by the elder McKay, were really the work of the son.

He assisted in designing the swift clipper ship Lightning, which once logged 436 miles in twenty-four hours, and also helped in the construction of the Glory of the Seas. Young McKay was nine years old when his father opened his shipyard, and spent nearly all of his boyhood about the place. He went to sea in a clipper before he was seventeen. After his father retired from business, in 1874, Capt. McKay tried his luck trading between American and West Indian ports with a three-masted schooner, the Frank A. Atwood, of his own design, which he also built. She was one of the fleetest craft of her rig afloat. He was unsuccessful in this venture.

In 1878 he began writing for the newspapers. He was yachting reporter for The Telegram and Herald from 1878 until 1885, and occasionally wrote for The Sun on nautical topics. He was a United States Steam Vessel Inspector from 1889 until 1893. Capt. McKay was twice married. He leaves one son, Richard C. McKay; a brother, Donald McKay of Chicago, and a sister living in Saxony.

MISS GRIDLEY BEGINS WORK.

Teacher in a Fifth Avenue School—On Her Mother's Pension.

Miss Katherine Gridley, the eldest daughter of the late Capt. Charles V. Gridley, who commanded Admiral Dewey's flagship, the Olympia, at Manila, has been engaged as an instructor by Miss Brown, the Principal of a school for girls at 715 Fifth Avenue. When seen last night Miss Gridley consented to talk on the subject of the pension that the Government has allowed her mother—$30 a month—and which many persons have considered inadequate. Miss Gridley is also of the same opinion, but she speaks without bitterness on the subject, and says that while both she and her mother would have preferred a quieter course, they have consented to talk only because they have been assured that public interest in the matter had been aroused.

"The whole matter is about mother's pension," said Miss Gridley, "which it seems to me, should be more than $30 a month. I know that we have a large pension roll, but in this case my father's record is so well known that it would seem not to be necessary to make any special appeal for his widow. Nor, indeed, do we make any. Every one has been very kind to us, and we have spoken on this matter only because we were told that if the public was cognizant of the facts it would bring about a better condition of affairs.

"My father had served his country since he was seventeen years old. That means that we were never in affluent circumstances, and it seems as if such service ought to have a better reward. We children ask nothing for ourselves. The only one who should be taken care of is my mother, who, although not in want, is still in straitened circumstances through father's death. We have been assured of help in the direction of obtaining an increased pension for her from sources that are reliable. We have been much touched by the interest shown by the public. If all else fails we have yet the glorious legacy of honor left to us by my father. We have only thought that if mother was entitled to any consideration she should get enough to enable her to live without distress."

Mrs. Gridley lives in Erie, Penn., in the Gridley homestead.

A FRIEND FOR MRS. GRIDLEY.

Sedalia, Mo., to Raise $25,000—Miss Helen Gould May Be Treasurer.

SEDALIA, Mo., Dec. 1.—A movement is on foot here by which 100,000 persons will be given opportunity to contribute 25 cents each to a $25,000 fund to be presented to the widow of Capt. Charles V. Gridley, who commanded Admiral Dewey's flagship at the battle of Manila. Miss Helen Gould is suggested for Treasurer of the fund.

GOV. ROOSEVELT EXPLAINS.

Declares that the Criticisms of His Conduct Are Unfair.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—Gov. Roosevelt says that the criticisms that he did an ill-advised thing in conferring with the representatives of the City Club of New York City on the charges which that organization had preferred against Col. Asa Bird Gardiner, District Attorney of New York County, before he appointed a Commissioner to investigate the same, are unwarranted and unfair. He followed in this case the same procedure which he has followed in every similar case that has developed during his administration.

The conference with the City Club officials was held in New York City because he was in New York City at the time, having come on from witnessing the football game at Harvard. It was held for the purpose of discussing the Gardiner charges with the Attorney General and the club representatives before an investigation was ordered, because if the charges were not deemed of sufficient gravity, no investigation would have been had. Before appointing a Commissioner to investigate the charges against Treasurer Hutson of Chautauqua County, a conference was had with the persons making the charges at the Executive Mansion.

Mr. Horace Deming and other lawyers who were instrumental in the charges against District Attorney Gardiner, being made had requested a conference with the Governor and had stated that it would be inconvenient for them to come to Albany, but would like to make an appointment with him when he was in New York City. The Governor, knowing that he would be in New York City for several days during the week succeeding the request, fixed the following Tuesday as the day when he would meet them. The Attorney General was present to decide, after a conference with the men who made the charges, whether they were sufficient to warrant the appointment of a Commissioner to take testimony relative to them.

Relative to criticisms as to the choice of Mr. Wilcox of Buffalo as Commissioner to investigate the charges, the Governor says that he does not believe that there is not a member of the Buffalo bar who knows and respects Mr. Wilcox but who will declare that he will conduct the investigation in the most impartial manner, and that his findings will be in full accord with the facts presented.

Delta Phi Fraternity Convention.

The seventy-second annual convention of the Delta Phi Fraternity was held yesterday at the clubhouse, 56 East Forty-ninth Street. The convention was supplemented by a dinner in the Myrtle Rooms at the Waldorf-Astoria, the following committee serving as hosts: Walton L. Oakley, Maxwell Stevenson, C. G. Meyer, and Elliot Lee. About 150 attended. Samuel V. Hoffman presided, and responses to toasts relating to the fraternity were made by Charles A. McMurray, Joseph S. Auerbach, Philip M. Brett, and F. L. Noble. A toast to the late Garret A. Hobart, who was a member of Rutgers Chapter, was drunk in silence.

RELIGIOUS NEWS AND VIEWS

Prospect of a Conflict Over Church Property in Manila.

OPPOSED TO THE NEW BISHOP

Spaniards in Havana Refuse to Receive Mgr. Sbarretti Because He Is Not of Their Nationality.

A conflict is coming, so it is said, over the ownership of real estate in the City of Manila. About three-fourths of all of it within the old and walled city is in the hands of the Roman Catholic friars of the various orders. There is not, it is said, any intention to contest the claims of these orders on religious grounds, or any thought of acquiring the property for Protestant uses.

Archbishop Chappelle is about sailing for Manila, to remain there eight or nine months. He will be accompanied by Bishop McKinnon, who will become his coadjutor, with assignment to duty in the Philippines. The present Archbishop of Manila is a Spaniard. He has not resigned, but is expected to do so about the time Archbishop Chappelle arrives. One of the reasons for Archbishop Chappelle's proposed long stay in Manila is to be on hand when Congress takes up the question of the ownership of these Church properties.

The compromise over the Bishopric of Havana has raised a storm in the Cuban capital. When Bishop Santander resigned, no time was lost in sending to the Roman Curia the names of three candidates, from which it was expected by the Spaniards in Cuba that a choice would be made. Archbishop Chappelle was ignored in the matter, although his jurisdiction had been extended to cover the West Indies. All three men named were of the Latin race, but Spanish by birth. Immediately a protest went to Rome from a large number of American Bishops. A compromise was made by naming an Italian, Mgr. Sbarretti, who has been for about four years a professor in the Catholic University at Washington. But the compromise does not suit the Spanish Catholics in Havana, hence their refusal to receive Bishop-nominate Sbarretti.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Notes on the International Series Selection for Dec. 10.

Copyright, 1899, by John R. Whitney.

SUBJECT.—Lessons in Giving. Malachi, i., 6-11, and iii., 8-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—God Loveth a Cheerful Giver. II. Corinthians, ix., 7.

Nehemiah and Malachi were fellow-laborers. They were very kindred spirits. Nehemiah was the last of the secular Governors appointed over God's people of whom the Scriptures give us any account. Malachi was the last of that long series of prophets by whom "God at sundry times, and in divers manners, spake in time past unto the fathers." (Hebrew i., 11.) After them, for about 400 years—as long a time as from the discovery of this country to the present day—sacred history is entirely silent concerning both the secular and the spiritual condition of God's people.

With Nehemiah the last effort to establish them as a nation true to God was made—and with Malachi the last protest against their rebellions. The one aimed to secure obedience—the other to awaken conscience, that it might be secured. With rare singleness of heart, and earnestness of purpose, Nehemiah held before them the law of God as the rule of life. With equal singleness of heart and earnestness of purpose Malachi brought them face to face with God Himself. He was the Elijah—the John the Baptist—the Savonarola of his day. Being dead, they yet speak.

The Hebrew word "Malachi," or in its fuller form, "Malachi-jah," literally means "The Messenger of Jah," or Jehovah. (Young.) The opening sentence of the prophecy might therefore, with propriety, have been translated simply, "The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel, by the Messenger of Jehovah," without designating any particular person as that messenger. Some have, therefore, ascribed the authorship to Ezra, others to Zerubbabel, to Mordecai, and to Nehemiah himself. They were all "Messengers of Jehovah," and all had more or less to do with the special forms of evil which the prophecy denounces. The consensus of opinion among the best scholars, however, is that the author was another and a distinct person from all of these. He was as an individual that he bore the significant name of "Malachi." It was expressive of both his character and his work. He was a man who stood so close to God Himself that he spoke as His mouthpiece, using freely the personal pronouns "I," "Me," "My," and "Mine." As we study his words, therefore, we should bear in mind that in a special manner it is not a "messenger" that is speaking to us, but God Himself.

We must also bear in mind that what was said was spoken to God's people, "to Israel," and not to the heathen. God had been favorable to them and "brought back the captivity of Jacob." (Psalm lxxxv.) They had, therefore, built a temple to His honor, and they had inclosed the city with walls, and set up the gates. They had thus become honored and respected. The very men who ridiculed and opposed them at the beginning now prized their society and influence. The "men of Tyre" and "of Ashdod, of Ammon, and of Moab," (Nehemiah xiii., 16, 23,) sought their trade and their fellowship. Outwardly everything was prosperous. God's people and the heathen were living in concord.

When, therefore, Eliashib made provision for Tobiah in the Temple it made no scandal. Probably it did not excite much comment, or if it did it met with a very general approval. It was the mark of a broad-minded, liberal spirit, such a recognition of the brotherhood of man as might reasonably be expected from those who professed to be the children of God. There is no record that during the absence of Nehemiah there had been any marked increase of dishonesty in business, or of vice, and immorality, or even of what was generally recognized as "Sabbath breaking."

MORAL AND UPRIGHT IN LIFE.

On the contrary, the great majority were satisfied both with their condition and their conduct. From their answers to the searching questions of Malachi they were evidently surprised that any one should charge them with wrong. They did not lie, nor steal, nor commit murder. The Temple services were regularly maintained, and they did not fail to offer the appointed sacrifices, or to pay tithes, as they thought, in sufficient measure. So the people as a body answered God not only with surprise, but with a tone of indignation and resentment. "Wherein have we despised Thy name?" (i., 6.) "Wherein have we polluted Thee?" (i., 7.) "Wherein shall we return?" (iii., 7.) "Wherein have we robbed Thee?" (iii., 8.) "Wherein have we spoken so much against Thee?" (ii., 13.) Evidently they were as much surprised as were those on the left hand in the parable of "The Sheep and the Goats," when they asked: "Lord, when saw we Thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto Thee?" (Matthew, xxv., 44.)

In their own sight the great body of the people were moral and upright, and lived pleasantly together, so they regulated their judgment of each other and of themselves by their human relationships. Ever since the walls of Jerusalem had been built, and the gates set up, these relationships had been greatly improved, and now religion had become a matter of conduct among men rather than a matter of fellowship with God. So

The sons of the world, and the sons of the Church
Walked closely hand and heart,
And only the Master, who knoweth all,
Could tell the two apart.

—Mrs. M. C. Edwards.

Such times have been very often seen since then. In many respects and in many places their characteristics are the marked characteristics of our own day. For the attitude of man to man occupies now a far higher position in the thoughts and discussions of men of every class than does the attitude of man to God. It was to awaken men to a just consideration of this perverted relationship that Malachi so earnestly addressed himself. He would make the first commandment not only literally first, but absolutely and practically first, "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." (Matthew, xxii., 37.)

The prophet opens his appeal with a reference to the love of God. It was not marked so much by worldly considerations as by the great difference between His promises to, and His dealings with, Jacob and Esau—the man who prized all the blessings wrapped up in the "birthright," and the man who sold that birthright for "a mess of pottage." They had marked this difference, but they did not see in it any token of love to them, so they asked, as many have done since, with the same carnal mind, "Wherein hast Thou loved us?"

THE SPIRITUAL ATTITUDE.

The prophet's answer does not dwell upon the grace shown to Jacob, "that the purpose of God might stand," (Romans ix., 10-12,) but he does dwell upon God's attitude toward Esau. It was a spiritual attitude. He had no covenant of promise—no birthright. His people were called—"The border of wickedness"—and—"The people against whom the Lord hath indignation forever." (i., 4.) From him Amalek was descended, and Haman, "the Jews' enemy"—and God himself had sworn that He would "have war with Amalek from generation to generation." (Exodus, xvii., 16,) for they were the people who forgot Him and always opposed His children.

Moreover, the prophet declared that, although the worldly people of God could not then discern this spiritual difference "between the righteous and the wicked—between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not," (iii., 18,) yet eventually they would see it, and they themselves would say: "The Lord will be magnified beyond the border of Israel." (i., 5, R. V.) even among the Gentiles. (Romans xi., 25-33.) That prophecy has been for many years undergoing a gracious and glorious fulfillment.

Then turning to His people again, and speaking as God Himself, the prophet says: "A son honoreth his father, and a servant his master; if I then be a Father, where is Mine honor? And if I be a Master, where is My fear?" (i., 6.)

These questions were addressed especially to the priests who fulfilled their offices with no spiritual apprehension of the meaning of either Temple, Altar, or Sacrifice. They magnified the letter of the law, but they degraded and corrupted its spirit. Like the "blind guides" in the days of our Lord, they said: "Whosoever shall swear by the Temple, it is nothing—whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is nothing." (Matthew xxiii., 16-22.) So, lightly esteeming God Himself, they said—and they taught the people to say, "The Temple of the Lord is contemptible. When ye offer the blind for sacrice, it is no evil—and when ye offer the lame, and the sick, it is no evil." (i., 8, R. V.) Like many in our own day, what they could not use themselves—and would not dare to offer to a fellow-man, they thought was good enough—and abundant enough—to offer to God. No wonder that the prophet—as God Himself—cries out, as if it were better to close the Temple altogether than to have such a mockery of devotion—"Oh, that there were one among you that would shut the doors, that ye might not kindle fire on Mine altar in vain! I have no pleasure in you, neither will I accept an offering at your hand." (i., 10, R. V.)

WHERE RESPONSIBILITY RESTED.

Now the responsibility for this state of things, the prophet declares, rested upon the teachers of the people. "O ye priests," he says, "this commandment is for you," (ii.: 1;) "this hath been by your means." (i.: 9.) They had not magnified the Lord and His Law. They had made marriages with the heathen, and even Eliashib, the high priest, "was allied unto Tobiah," the Ammonite. So, "like priest—like people." These outward marriages were significant of a heart turned away from Him—a forgetting of the love due to Him. (ii.: 11.)

So the people stood indicted upon two counts—contempt and robbery. They had said of the service of God, "Behold! what a weariness is it!" They had "snuffed at it," and "brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick." (i.: 13.) They had not made their relationship to God the chief concern of their lives and a matter of the highest importance. And so in their blindness and ignorance of themselves they asked in all simplicity, "Wherein shall we return? Will a man rob God?" (iii.: 7, 8.)

Their idea of "robbery," probably, was the common one of "stealing by force, a taking away by violence, wrong, or oppression." (Webster.) When it came, therefore, to be a matter in which the Almighty was despoiled, they might well say that it was impossible, for "how can one enter into a strong man's house and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man?" (Matthew xii.: 29.) They had never been conscious of doing this, or even of attempting it. But there are other forms of robbery besides those which involve "force" and "violence."

ROBBERY OF GOD.

To use that which belongs to another contrary to his wishes or to his loss may be as much a robbery as the act of a highwayman. It is a betrayal of trust—an embezzlement. Many a man who once appeared well before men is now confined behind prison bars because of this offense. They used for themselves that which they should have used for others. It was this form of robbery of which "The Unjust Steward" (Luke, xvi., 1,) and "The Wicked Husbandmen" (Matthew, xxi., 33-44,) were guilty.

So, many among us, imbued with the powers of mind and body which have been intrusted to them for a time by God, rob Him by not using them in His service or for His glory. Their youth, and strength, and wealth they give to the world, and, like these Jews, they "offer the lame and the sick," (i., 8,) the dregs of their lives to Him when the world no longer satisfies.

In like manner men commit robbery by neglect as well as by embezzlement. This was the case with "The Unfaithful Servant," in the parable of "The Talents." He "went and digged in the earth and hid his lord's money," and when his lord returned expecting to receive his own with increase, he suffered loss, (Matthew, xxv., 14-27.) The servant had not taken that which belonged to another, but he had failed to use it to the best advantage of him to whom it belonged. Many are thus robbing God because they fail to lay hold of the grace and strength which would enable them to bring forth fruit to His glory.

Another, and quite as common a form of robbery, is seen in the case of Ananias and Sapphira. They kept back part of that which they professed to give. (Acts, v.) Many have been, and still are, guilty of this crime toward God. Professing to be His children, they have not given Him either their whole heart or their whole service. This was the special crime with which Israel, in the days of Malachi, was charged. They withheld what was His due, and neglected His service because, while professing to be His people, they loved and served the world. Like the Laodiceans, they were "neither cold nor hot," (Revelation, iii., 15.) So they were cast out.

QUESTIONS ON THE LESSON.

What was the relationship between Nehemiah and Malachi?

What does the name "Malachi" mean, and what is said of the authorship of this prophecy?

To whom did Malachi address himself, and what is said of them?

How had they looked upon the action of Eliashib?

How did they meet the searching questions of Malachi?

What is said of the spiritual condition of the people then and now, and what did Malachi endeavor to do?

How did he open his appeal, and what is said of God's attitude toward Esau?

What prophecy did he utter, and what questions did he ask?

To whom were these questions addressed, and what had they taught and done?

What two charges were thus brought against the people, and how did they meet them?

What is said of betrayal of trust as a form of robbery, and by what parables is it illustrated?

What is said of neglect as a form of robbery, and what parable illustrates it?

What form of robbery is illustrated by the case of Ananias and Sapphira, and what is said of it?

National Reform Convention.

The National Reform Convention will be held in the Broadway Tabernacle on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. Among the topics that will come up for discussion will be "Sabbath Observance," "Materialism in Great Cities," "The Purity Movement," "Lynch Laws," "Our Marriage and Divorce Laws," "The Liquor Traffic," "Our National Responsibility in Our New Possessions," and "Seven-Day Journalism." Among the speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong, Charles N. Crittendon, Anthony Comstock, Bishop Walters, Bishop Doane, and the Rev. Dr. S. F. Scovel.

Church News and Notes.

Dr. Felix Adler will speak to-morrow morning in Carnegie Hall on "Reasons for Right Conduct."

A special musical service will be held to-morrow evening in St. Mark's Church, Tenth Street and Second Avenue.

The anniversary of the Gospel Mission to the Tombs will take place in the South Reformed Church to-morrow evening.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman will lecture to-morrow morning in Temple Emanu-El on "The Presentation of Religion on the Stage."

A series of sermons will be given in St. Clement's Church, West Third Street, on Wednesday evenings in Advent by the Rev. Charles Judd.

At All Souls' Protestant Episcopal Church to-morrow evening there will be a special musical service. The choir will consist of thirty-two voices.

In St. Matthew's Church, West Eighty-fourth Street, the Rev. Dr. Krans will preach to-morrow morning on "Present Shadows of Future Events."

The Rev. James A. O'Connor, in Christ's Mission, 142 West Twenty-first Street, will speak to-morrow evening on "Americanism in the Roman Catholic Church."

The Rev. W. H. Barnes, the new rector of St. Barnabas's Church, Brooklyn, is now in charge of the parish, and will conduct the services in the church to-morrow.

In the Willett Street Methodist Episcopal Church the Rev. Dr. Steele will speak to-morrow morning on "Praying for Others" and to-morrow evening on "Religion Our Life."

At the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Thompson will preach to-morrow morning, and the Rev. Dr. Francis H. Marling to-morrow afternoon.

A memorial service, in honor of the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Sawyer, will be held in the Church of the Divine Paternity to-morrow evening. Dr. Sawyer died in July, 1899, aged ninety-five.

The Rev. Dr. Mackay will preach at both services in the Fifth Avenue Collegiate Church to-morrow. His evening subject will be "A Fool and His Money and the Sin of Covetousness."

"The Manly Art of Self-Defense" will be the subject of the Rev. George P. Eckman's sermon to-morrow night in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, West End Avenue and Eighty-sixth Street.

The Rev. Henry Frank of the Independent Church of the New Thought will speak to-morrow morning in Carnegie Lyceum on "The Gambling Mania," and "The Eternal 'I Am' or Man, the Universe."

The Rev. Dr. Roderick Terry will preach to-morrow morning in the South Church, Madison Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, on "God and Nature." In the evening he will speak on "The Holy Spirit."

Special services will be held to-morrow evening in the Park Presbyterian Church, Eighty-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The Rev. Dr. Charles A. Dickinson and the Rev. Dr. Edward Judson will lead in the services.

The Fourteenth Street Presbyterian Church, Second Avenue and Fourteenth Street, is to have a special service to-morrow at 11 A. M. A new organ is to be used for the first time and a Thanksgiving cantata will be sung by a double quartet.

The Rev. Dr. Madison C. Peters will speak to-morrow morning in the Bloomingdale Church on "A Sensible Christianity," and to-morrow evening on "The Failure of Success." To-morrow afternoon, in the Ninth Regiment Armory, he will tell why he is an expansionist.

Gen. Van Der Voort will speak to-morrow evening, in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, on "Our New Possessions," and Mrs. Jennie E. Andrews will speak in behalf of the orphanage for homeless children to be founded in Cuba in memory of Mrs. J. M. Thurston of Omaha, Neb.

The Rev. Stephen Innes, rector of St. Ambrose's Church, Prince and Thompson Streets, has sent out the following notice: "Any church in the Diocese of New York not being able to support its own clergy will please communicate with the rector. He has a church-extension plan which will be of mutual interest and benefit. The four clergy of St. Ambrose's Church, together with the Settlement visitors of the parish, are successfully carrying on an aggressive work in their neighborhood. And it is the intention of the rector to extend these operations into other localities."

On "The Christ of Yesterday and To-day" the Rev. Julian K. Smyth is to deliver a series of sermons in Advent at the Church of the New Jerusalem, East Thirty-fifth Street, beginning to-morrow afternoon. The sermons are to treat of the Christ life as the supreme fact of the Christian religion, considered under the four following topics, to be presented on successive Sunday afternoons: "The Christ of History," "The Christ of Theology," "The Christ of God," and "The Christ of the Human Heart." Singing by the vested boy choir. At the services to-morrow will be sung Dr. Naylor's "God That Mad'st Earth and Heaven" and "Eye Hath Not Seen," from Gaul's "Holy City." At the regular morning service Mr. Smyth begins a series of Advent sermons. Sub

PET DOG SHOW'S LAST DAY

Irish Terrier Masterpiece Wins the Championship Medal.

FAVORED ANIMALS' CEMETERY

Exhibit of the Plan Attracts Much Attention, and Wealthy People Buy Burial Plots.

Masterpiece, an Irish terrier, whose tawny rough coat and bristling whiskers would possess no attraction for people who are not "up on dogs," was the star yesterday at the Pet Dog Show, the last session of which was held at the Metropolitan Opera House. He was adjudged the best dog exhibited, and to mark his superiority, a two-hundred-and-fifty-dollar gold and diamond medal was presented to his owner, M. Bruckheimer, of this city. Twoscore dogs of all breeds were entered in this competition, and one by one they were sent out of the ring until only Masterpiece and four others remained, among them being Mrs. Samuel Sloan's bull terrier Bonita, and Mrs. Thomas's Yorkshire terrier Endcliffe Midgy. Then the judges of the various breeds voted unanimously for Masterpiece.

Society did not fail in its attendance on the last day of the show, and about the same people who were present on Wednesday and Thursday again appeared. J. Pierpont Morgan and his daughters were among the early visitors, and they made a close examination of all of the collies that competed with Mr. Morgan's famous kennel of that breed. They missed some of the but ribbons that had been awarded to dogs in Mr. Morgan's exhibit, and upon investigation the management discovered that other blue ribbons had been stolen from prize winners.

Among the features of the show there was one that indicated to what extent the fad of wealthy people for pets has been carried. This exhibit was a plan in wood and grass of a National cemetery for all sorts of pet animals, located at Coxsackie, N. Y. The cemetery idea was laughed at by those who are not enthusiastic owners of pets, but those that take it seriously was proved by William D. Lane, one of the Society of Pet Owners, with which the scheme originated, when he explained that already eighteen plots had been taken by wealthy people, most of them New York women. Two miles of avenues and walks are laid out in the cemetery, and marble monuments to dogs, birds, and horses dot the unique graveyard.

Elsie de Wolfe's French bulldog Riquette, whose pedigree is unknown, won the silver clock offered by Anna Held for the best dog in the show owned by an actress and not used on the stage. Riquette failed to win a first prize in any of the regular French bulldog classes, but as she was without competitors in this class, she had not much trouble in winning the clock.

Following is a list of the awards made yesterday:

COCKER SPANIELS.

CLASS 61—Open, bitches, (black.)—First prize, $15, Mepal Kennel's Mepal's Opal; second prize, $10, Swiss Mountain Kennel's Baby Alice.

CLASS 62—Open, bitches, (other than black.)—First prize, $15, W. T. Payne's champion Bluebell II.; second prize, $10, Edwin W. Fiske's Dorothy Parsons; third prize, $5, Swiss Mountain Kennel's Banner Midge.

Saybrook cocker trophy, for the best solid color cocker, other than black, (donated by R. P. Keasbey.)—W. T. Payne's Mohican.

Mapal challenge trophy, for best cocker spaniel, (donated by H. K. Bloodgood.)—W. T. Payne's Ch. Blue Bells II.

CADETS AT FOOTBALL TO-DAY.

Rival Teams from Annapolis and West Point Ready for the Line-Up at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—On Franklin Field to-morrow afternoon the embryo soldiers of the West Point Academy will meet the coming sailors of the Annapolis Naval Academy in a football battle, the first that will be waged by the representatives of the two military arms of the Government in six years. The game will be unique in the annals of football in this city, in that no admission fee will be charged to see the game. No person, however, can gain admittance without an invitation issued from either the West Point Academy, the Annapolis Academy, or the University of Pennsylvania.

Great interest is being taken in the contest, and the demand for tickets has greatly exceeded the supply. The seating capacity of Franklin Field is a little over 28,000. The two academies have each issued 6,000 invitations, and the university has given out the other 16,000. Among those who will attend the game are Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Long, and Assistant Secretaries Meiklejohn and Allen. Many officers of the army and navy stationed at Washington will also be in attendance. It is expected that Ambassador Pauncefote of Great Britain will also be here.

The two teams arrived here late this afternoon, and are in prime physical condition for the contest. They have been faithfully trained for the game, and a fine contest is looked for. Of course, both elevens expect to win, but, as this cannot be, many of the naval or military officers will go home a little poorer, as the betting is brisk and slightly in favor of the sailors. Following is the probable line-up:

Smith, Captain	Left end	Long
Farnsworth	Left tackle	Wortman, Capt.
Hopkins	Left guard	Halligan
Bettison	Centre	Adams
Boyers	Right guard	Belknap
Bunker	Right tackle	Nichols
Burmett	Right end	Berrien
Wesson	Quarter back	Osterhaus
Casad	Left half back	Fowler
Clark	Right half back	Gannon
Jackson	Full back	Wade

It is not likely that any change will be made in this line-up.

NAVAL MEN ARE CONFIDENT.

Willing to Wager that They Will Win the Game.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 1.—At noon today the men of the navy who will battle on the gridiron to-morrow at Philadelphia went forth to meet the champions of the army. They were Naval Cadets Adams, Belknap, Halligan, Fremont, Nichols, Wortman, (Capt.,) Williams, Rogers, Berrien, Long, Weaver, Read, Osterhaus, Cannon, Fowler, Wade, Freyer, Homing, Manley, Land, Dodd, Bruff, Spilman, (Manager,) and Berry. Their coaches, Prof. Paul J. Dashiell and Messrs. Armstrong, De Saules, and Hallowell, accompanied them. The cadets were in charge of Lieut. Commander Hugo Osterhaus, United States Navy. The battalion of cadets will leave to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock, and will go via the Baltimore and Ohio. This train will also carry passengers, and great preparations have been made to make the occasion one of glee and effect. Many curious devices of decoration in navy blue and gold have been originated, and the cadet contingent has a whole repertoire of new songs and yells.

The navy men are in good form, and they all expect victory. Every man of the first team is in good health and mended of the practice bruises; but a double team is carried, so that if any of the navy is knocked out there will be some one to take his place. The cadets have that confidence in their team that they are ready to back it with their money. The committee in charge has done excellent work in distributing tickets, the enlisted men and the workmen in the yard being supplied with them. Commander Richard Wainwright, in charge of the ships, gives every man leave and pay who wishes to attend.

Injured Football Player Dies.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Moses Schermer, aged eighteen years, the left tackle of the Herkimer football team, was thrown in a game with New Hartford at Herkimer yesterday. His spine was twisted and he died early this morning. The Coroner is investigating the case.

Racing Results at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—To-day's races at Oakland resulted as follows:

FIRST RACE.—Five-eighths of a mile; maiden two-year-olds; purse. Herculean, 115 pounds, (Henry,) 8 to 1, won; Alice Dougherty, 115, (Vittatoe,) 4 to 1, second; J. V. Hays, 118, (Givens,) 60 to 1, third. Time—1:02½. Billy Moore, Norford, Saul of Tarsus, Ziska, Fille d'Or, Grazia, Tom Sharkey, Leipzig, Upper Crust, Burdock, and Sisquoc also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Futurity course; four-year-olds and upward; selling. Ostler Joe, 112 pounds, (Vittatoe,) 4 to 1, won; True Blue, 109, (Henry,) 25 to 1, second; Alaska, 109, (Conley,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:12. First Call, Osculation, Lucid, Lady Britannic, Rey Del Bandidos, Donator, and Be Happy also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Futurity course; selling; two-year-olds. Mont Eliz, 110 pounds, (C. Wilson,) 6 to 1, won; Hindoo Princess, 105, (J. Martin,) 3 to 1, second; Fine Shot, 108, (Bullman,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:13⅗. The Scot, Fairfax, Gundara, Britt, Sen Sen, Honor Bright, Carter, and Champion Rose also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Three-quarters of a mile; three-year-olds and upward; purse. Time Maker, 107 pounds, (Thorpe,) 7 to 10, won; Olinthus, 99, (J. Martin,) 10 to 1, second; Tiburon, 99, (Vittatoe,) 10 to 1, third. Time—1:14¾. San Mateo and Del Oro also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Futurity course; selling; two-year-olds. Bamboulla, 113 pounds, (Bullman,) 9 to 5, won; Daniel, 110, (Thorpe,) 8 to 1, second; Allenna, 101, (J. Martin,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:12. Druidess, Miss Madeline, Aborigine, and Mandamus also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Seven-eighths of a mile; selling; three-year-olds. Favorsham, 110 pounds, (Ruiz,) 8 to 1, won; Lavator, 101, (Henry,) 10 to 1, second; Silver Tone, 104, (Vittatoe,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:28⅘. Humidity, Montanus, Campus, Horton, Espionage, and Rio Chico also ran.

Tribute to American Jockeyship.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Right Hon. James Lowther, addressing the Gimcrack Club this evening at York, in response to a toast to "The Jockey Club," said that the year now closing had witnessed a remarkable success for the transatlantic system of riding, but he regarded the results as a triumph of the system rather than a triumph of individual jockeys.

Seventh Regiment Games.

The Seventh Regiment Athletic Association will hold its thirty-sixth games to-night at the armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, commencing at 8 o'clock. There will be a concert by the Seventh Regiment Band from 7 to 8 o'clock, and for an hour after the games. The committee had arranged a relay race with the Twenty-second Regiment, but at the last moment the Twenty-second declined to run, and the association, having the prize on hand, substituted a team race between the first and second battalions.

Military Indoor Baseball League.

Delegates from several commands of the National Guard met last night at the armory of the Second Signal Corps on Dean Street, Brooklyn, and perfected the organization of an indoor baseball league. It was decided to play a schedule of games for a trophy offered by the Military Amateur Athletic League. Herbert A. Kellum of the Second Naval Battalion was elected President and Sergt. Verdi E. B. Fuller of the Second Signal Corps Secretary and Treasurer. The opening games will be played Dec. 9 at five armories in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

cond prize, $10, Mrs. Horace Stokes's Villamount Dot; third prize, $5, Frederick R. Stoll's Flossie.

BLENHEIM SPANIELS.

CLASS 229—Novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell; second prize, $5, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Cupid S.; third prize, medal, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Bob Evans.

CLASS 230—Limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Young Duke II.; second prize, $5, Mrs. F. G. Boesger's Empress; third prize, medal, Mrs. R. A. Simpson's Little Mascotte.

CLASS 231—Open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell; second prize, $5, Mrs. A. Bernstein's Murillo; third prize, medal, Mrs. F. G. Boesger's Empress.

CLASS 232—Winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell.

CLASS 233—Team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's team.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

Silver medal for best pair of puppy spaniels owned by one exhibitor, (donated by Swiss Mountain Kennels.)—H. G. C. Wadesworth's Rupert and Roy.

Silver trophy for best red cocker spaniel, dog or bitch, bred in the United States, (donated by Mrs. Moses Taylor.)—Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Midge.

Saybrook cocker trophy, for the best solid color cocker, other than black, (donated by R. P. Keasbey.)—W. T. Payne's Mohican.

Mapal challenge trophy, for best cocker spaniel, (donated by H. K. Bloodgood.)—W. T. Payne's Ch. Blue Bells II.

FOX TERRIERS.

CLASS 128—(Smooth.) puppies, dogs.—First prize, $10, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Dragoon; second prize, $5, Norfolk Kennel's Norfolk Story; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Recruit.

CLASS 129—(Smooth.) novice, dogs.—First prize, $10, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Dragoon; second prize, $5, Norfolk Kennel's Norfolk Story; third prize, medal, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Clinch.

CLASS 130—(Smooth.) limit, dogs.—First prize, $10, L. & W. Rutherford's Claudian; second prize, $5, B. S. Horne's Trianbn Pirate; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Dragoon.

CLASS 131—(Smooth.) open, dogs.—First prize, $15, G. M. Carnochan's Claude Duval; second prize, $10, L. & W. Rutherford's Claudian; third prize, $5, B. S. Horne's Trianon Pirate.

CLASS 132—(Smooth.) winners, dogs.—First prize, ribbon, G. M. Carnochan's Claude Duval.

CLASS 133—(Smooth.) open, bitches.—First prize, $10, Norfolk Kennel's Norfolk Ruby; second prize, $5, J. Wallace Wakem's Seldon Syringo; third prize, medal, Charles E. T. Foster's Virginia.

CLASS 134—(Smooth.) novice, bitches.—First prize, $10, Norfolk Kennel's Norfolk Ruby; second prize, $5, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Cheerful; third prize, medal, J. Wallace Wakem's Seldon Syringo.

CLASS 135—(Smooth.) limit, bitches.—First prize, $10, Norfolk Kennel's Norfolk Clorita; second prize, $5, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Detail; third prize, medal, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Contract.

CLASS 136—Smooth, open, bitches—First prize, $15, Norfolk Kennels' champion Norfolk Handicap; second prize, $10, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Detail; third prize, $5, L. & W. Rutherford's Warren Contract.

CLASS 137.—Smooth, winners, bitches—First prize, ribbon, Norfolk Kennels' champion Norfolk Handicraft.

CLASS 138.—Team Class, best exhibit of four—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Norfolk Kennels' team.

CLASS 139.—Wire-haired, puppies, dogs—First prize, H. H. Hunnewell, Jr.'s, Hill Hurst Pincher; second prize, $5, Charles W. Keyes's Hillcrest Friar; third prize, medal, Carleton Y. Ford's Otterburn Golfer.

CLASS 140.—Wire-haired, novice, dogs—First prize, $10, H. H. Hunnewell, Jr.'s, Hill Hurst Pincher; second prize, $5, Charles W. Keyes's Hillcrest Friar; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Bandit.

CLASS 141.—Wire-haired, limit, dogs—First prize, $10, H. H. Hunnewell, Jr.'s, Hill Hurst Pincher; second prize, $5, Charles W. Keyes's Hillcrest Friar; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Baby Fireaway.

CLASS 142.—Wire-haired, open, dogs—First prize, $15, G. M. Carnochan's champion Thornfield Knockout; second prize, $10, Charles W. Keyes's Endcliffe Billy; third prize, $5, Norfolk Kennels' Norfolk Tartar.

CLASS 143.—Wire-haired, winners, dogs—First prize, Jubbon, G. M. Carnochan's champion Thornfield Knockout.

CLASS 144.—Wire-haired, puppies, bitches—First prize, $10, Norfolk Kennels' Norfolk Outcast; second prize, $5, Carleton Y. Ford's Otterburn Phantom; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Maple.

CLASS 145.—Wire-haired, novice, bitches—First prize, $10, H. H. Hunnewell, Jr.'s, Hill Hurst Hag; second prize, $5, Edwin A. Hardin's Smallwood Vaninka; third prize, medal, G. M. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Maple.

CLASS 146.—Wire-haired, limit, bitches—First prize, $10, Norfolk Kennels' Norfolk Outcast; second prize, $5, Thomas J. Woodward, Jr.'s, Bellefield Lottery; third prize, medal, Edwin A. Hardin's Smallwood Vaninka.

CLASS 147—Wire haired, open, bitches.—First prize, $15, Charles W. Keyes's Ch. Hillcrest Solace; second prize, $10, Norfolk Kennels' Norfolk Outcast; third prize, $5, G. M. Carnochan's Champion Richmond Gypsum.

CLASS 148—Wire haired, winners, bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Charles W. Keyes's Ch. Hillcrest Solace.

CLASS 149—Wire haired, team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Charles W. Keyes's team.

YORKSHIRE TERRIERS.

CLASS 212—Novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. G. F. Thomas's Endcliffe Midgy; second prize, $5, Mrs. F. Senn's Dot; third prize, medal, Miss Lillian C. Moeran's Ashton Marvel.

CLASS 213—Limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. G. F. Thomas's Endcliffe Midgy; second prize, $5, Mrs. F. Senn's Fred; third prize, medal, Miss Lillian C. Moeran's Ashton Marvel.

CLASS 214—Open, dogs.—First prize, $10, Mrs. F. Senn's Gem; second prize, $5, Mrs. G. F. Thomas's Endcliffe Mascot; third prize, medal, F. J. McCarthy's Senator.

TOY TERRIERS.

CLASS 220—Toy tan terriers, open, dogs and bitches, class divided.—First prize, $15, Gem City Kennels' Vesto, Jr., (dog,) and Little Wonder, (bitch;) second prize, $10, Gem City Kennels' The Prince (dog) and Fannie, (bitch;) third prize, $5, Thomas J. McCarthy's Pegs, (dog) and Miss A. B. Lewis's Fanny, (bitch.)

CLASS 221—Toy black and tan terriers, winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Gem City Kennels' Little Wonder.

CLASS 222—Toy black and tan terriers, team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Gem City Kennels' team.

CLASS 223—Toy terriers, open, dogs and bitches other than black and tan, Yorkshire and maltese, not exceeding seven pounds.—First prize, $15, Nestledown Kennels' Nestledown Knell; second prize, $10, Mrs. T. Moody's Trixie; third prize, $5, Mrs. William Routley's Little Tich.

KING CHARLES SPANIELS.

CLASS 224—Novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. F. Senn's Square Face; second prize, $5, M. Johnson's Soney Boy; third prize, medal, Miss Louise Mattocks's His Royal Highness.

CLASS 225—Limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Yetson Kennels' Yetson Duke; second prize, $5, M. Johnson's King; third prize, medal, Mrs. E. Senn's Golden Peggotty.

CLASS 226—Open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. F. Senn's Perseverance; second prize, $5, Watson Kennels' Yetsen, Duke; third prize, medal, Yetson Kennels' Duchess of Albany.

CLASS 227—Winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Mrs. F. Senn's Perseverance.

CLASS 228—Team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Mrs. F. Senn's team.

MALTESE TERRIERS.

CLASS 217—Open, dogs.—First prize, $15, Mrs. Horace Stokes's Bijou; second prize, $10, Mrs. Horace Stokes's Villamount Buffina; third prize, $5, Mrs. J. Anthony Wilkens's Beauty.

CLASS 217A—Open, bitches.—First prize, $15, Mrs. Horace Stokes's Villamount Coquette; second prize, $10, Mrs. Horace Stokes's Villamount Dot; third prize, $5, Frederick R. Stoll's Flossie.

BLENHEIM SPANIELS.

CLASS 229—Novice, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell; second prize, $5, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Cupid S.; third prize, medal, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Bob Evans.

CLASS 230—Limit, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's Young Duke II.; second prize, $5, Mrs. F. G. Boesger's Empress; third prize, medal, Mrs. R. A. Simpson's Little Mascotte.

CLASS 231—Open, dogs and bitches.—First prize, $10, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell; second prize, $5, Mrs. A. Bernstein's Murillo; third prize, medal, Mrs. F. G. Boesger's Empress.

CLASS 232—Winners, dogs and bitches.—First prize, ribbon, Mrs. I. A. Pitt's Little Swell.

CLASS 233—Team class, best exhibit of four.—First prize, entrance fees and medal, Mrs. T. Earl Shreve's team.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

Silver medal for best pair of puppy spaniels owned by one exhibitor, (donated by Swiss Mountain Kennels.)—H. G. C. Wadesworth's Rupert and Roy.

Silver trophy for best red cocker spaniel, dog or bitch, bred in the United States, (donated by Mrs. Moses Taylor.)—Swiss Mountain Kennels' Banner Midge.

Saybrook cocker trophy, for the best solid color cocker, other than black, (donated by R. P. Keasbey.)—W. T. Payne's Mohican.

Mapal challenge trophy, for best cocker spaniel, (donated by H. K. Bloodgood.)—W. T. Payne's Ch. Blue Bells II.

LAKEWOOD GOLF TOURNEY

Travis Is Beaten in Chief Cup Contests by Robbins.

LATTER YIELDS TO KIMBALL

Harriman, Present United States Champion, Narrowly Escapes Defeat in Consolation Cup Play.

Walter J. Travis, after enjoying the honors of a gold medal victory in the qualifying match of the Lakewood Golf Club's tournament, found out what it is to be defeated yesterday in the match play contests for the chief cup. It was like a bombshell in the camp of his friends, for Travis and Douglas had been picked by many to meet in the final round. Travis won the Lakewood Cup last Fall and last Spring, and has won every open event on local links in which he has entered this season.

As a further indication that no hard and fast rules can ever be laid down for golf, Arden M. Robbins, who defeated Travis in the morning, was put out of the game in the afternoon by F. P. Kimball, one of the strongest Lakewood golfers. Kimball started out at a good pace, and was soon four holes in the lead. He held the game at that figure up to the tenth hole, when Robbins developed one of those spurts for which he is noted, winning four holes in succession. The scores:

Kimball—
Out	4	3	5	4	5	6	5	3	5	—40
In	5	7	6	5	6	3	3	5	4	—44—84
Robbins—
Out	5	5	5	5	6	5	4	4	5	—44
In	6	5	4	5	4	4	4	4	4	—42—86

Kimball will meet F. W. Menzies of St. Andrew's this morning, while the Douglas clan of golfers will have things its own way in the other semi-final round. The former champion, Findlay Douglas, will meet Gordon Douglas of Oakland. The latter created one of the surprises of the day by defeating James A. Tyng by 3 up and 1 to play. Findlay Douglas, after his hard match with Hamilton in the morning, had to play 20 holes in the afternoon before he could get the mastery of R. C. Watson, Jr. The scores in this 20-hole game were:

Douglas—
Out	5	5	6	4	5	5	4	4	4	—42
In	6	6	5	5	7	5	5	6	4	—49—91
Watson—
Out	5	6	5	6	5	6	6	3	5	—47
In	6	5	6	5	7	3	4	4	4	—44—91

Extra holes—Douglas, 5, 4; Watson, 5, 5.

Herbert M. Harriman, present United States champion, added interest to the consolation cup matches, but in the afternoon he just escaped defeat at the hands of W. H. Davis. Honors were even on the home green, and Harriman won the nineteenth hole.

The match between Findlay Douglas and C. M. Hamilton in the morning was one of the best contests ever seen on the Lakewood links. Hamilton surprised the fraternity by his strength. He recently won the championship of Baltusrol. Each played in almost phenomenal scores, Douglas finishing in 80 strokes, equaling a practice record of his last year, while Hamilton did 81. Eleven of the eighteen holes were halved. Each took two of the first nine holes. Then two were halved, and the former champion forged ahead by taking the twelfth hole. The unexpected happened at the next, a 270-yard hole, which Hamilton made in two strokes, from a 100-yard mashie approach. Douglas won the next in 5 to 6, and the remaining four were halved. Hamilton's game would have beaten almost any other man in the tournament. The scores were:

Douglas—
Out	5	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	6	—41
In	5	5	5	4	5	4	4	4	3	—39—80
Hamilton—
Out	4	6	5	4	4	5	5	4	5	—42
In	5	5	6	2	6	4	4	4	3	—39—81

In his unexpected defeat of Walter J. Travis, Arden M. Robbins, one of St. Andrew's top golfers, showed that he was back in his best form. Travis seemed to have the game fairly in his hands when he led by two at the end of the tenth hole. He did not count on Robbins's reserve force, and the gallery showed its surprise when the latter tied the game at the end of the twelfth. After a halved hole two more rewarded the St. Andrew's man's efforts, and he won by 2 up and 1 to play. The bye hole was played out, the scores being:

Robbins—
Out	5	4	5	5	4	6	6	4	5	—44
In	5	6	4	5	5	3	4	4	5	—41—85
Travis—
Out	5	5	4	5	5	6	5	4	4	—43
In	4	7	5	5	6	5	4	4	4	—44—87

The summary of the match play round is:

Lakewood Cup, First Play Round.—J. Gordon Douglas, Oakland, beat Charles S. Ransom, Albany County, 4 up and 2 to play; James A. Tyng Morris, County, beat L. T. Pratt, Nassau County, 5 up and 4 to play; R. C. Watson, Jr., Westbrook, beat Paul A. Proal, Ardsley, 7 up and 5 to play; Findlay S. Douglas, Fairfield, beat C. M. Hamilton, Baltusrol, 1 up; F. W. Menzies, St. Andrew's, beat I. T. Burden, Jr., Newport, 3 up and 1 to play; John Morehead, Jr., Pittsburg, beat Amos T. Dwight, Yale, 2 up and 1 to play; F. P. Kimball, Lakewood, beat A. E. Hedstrom, Buffalo, 4 up and 2 to play; A. M. Robbins, St. Andrew's, beat Walter J. Travis, Oakland, 2 up and 1 to play.

Second Round—Gordon Douglas beat Tyng, 3 up and 1 to play; Findlay Douglas beat Watson, 1 up, (20 holes;) Menzies beat Morehead, 5 up and 3 to play; Kimball beat Robbins, 1 up.

Consolation Cup.—First Match Play Round—Harry Suydam, Lakewood, beat Marion J. Wright, Philadelphia, by default; L. T. Boyd, Milwaukee, beat Clarence Moore, Chevy Chase, 5 up and 4 to play; W. R. Kirk, Onwentsia, beat Howard C. Colby, Essex County, 1 up; James G. Thorp, Oakley, beat Sidney Maddock, Crescent, 8 up and 7 to play; H. M. Harriman, Meadow Brook, beat Lyman Rhoades, Jr., Columbia, 9 up and 7 to play; W. H. Davis, Lakewood, beat G. Owen Winston, Westchester, 4 up and 3 to play; Jasper Lynch, Lakewood, beat Grenville Kane, Tuxedo, by default; A. D. Compton, Westchester, beat C. E. Fisher, Little Rock, 5 up and 3 to play.

Second Round—Boyd beat Suydam, 4 up and 3 to play; Thorp beat Kirk, 5 up and 4 to play; Harriman beat Davis, 4 up, (19 holes;) Lynch beat Compton, 1 up, (19 holes.)

A special cup offered for all those who did not qualify for either cup was won by H. M. Forrest of Philadelphia in a score of 89 strokes.

CHAMPIONSHIP POOL MATCH.

De Oro Still Leads, Again Defeating Payton at Daly's.

De Oro still leads in the pool match for the championship of the world, which he is now playing with Payton at Maurice Daly's Academy. De Oro now has a total of 404 points to Payton's 352. The match will end to-night. The score last night, by frames, was as follows:

De Oro—15 14 0 6 4 8 13 0 12 13 0 5 11 13 0 5 15 6 0 3 9 9 12 15 15. Total, 404.

Payton—0 1 15 9 11 7 2 10 3 2 15 10 4 1 15 10 0 9 15 12 6 6 3 0 0. Total, 352.

Pugilistic Fiasco Angers a Crowd.

At the Broadway Athletic Club last night "Dave" Wallace of England was defeated by "Joe" Bernstein of this city, after one minute and thirteen seconds of alleged fighting. The fight was scheduled for twenty-five rounds, and the weights were announced as 124 pounds. Wallace is the last of the quartet of self-styled British pugilistic lights, imported by William A. Brady last September, all of whom have signally failed to win renown in the roped arena on this side of the water. Last night's fiasco angered the large crowd of spectators who arose and howled their disapproval.

Hockey at St. Nicholas Rink.

There will be a game of hockey at the St. Nicholas Skating Rink, in West Sixty-sixth Street, this evening between Yale University, winners of last season's intercollegiate championship, and the St. Nicholas Skating Club. This is the first time these teams have met this year.

Injured Child Sang a Hymn and Died.

Special to The New York Times.

RAHWAY, N. J., Dec. 1.—Amy, the five-year-old daughter of James and Celia Moulton, was horribly burned at a bonfire here on Wednesday night, and in rescuing her from the flames her mother was also seriously burned. The little sufferer died today, and the deathbed scene was singularly touching. The child softly sang the hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," then closed her eyes and expired.

Killed by a Street Car.

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., Dec. 1.—John Mason, aged seventy years, was struck by a car of the Meriden, Southington and Compounce Tramway Company at South Main Street late to-night and instantly killed. He was waiting for the car, but on account of the prevailing fog it is thought that he got too close to the rails.

IN THE BOWLING ALLEYS.

The Orientals and Belvideres furnished an exciting finish in the third game in the Harlem League at the Palace Alleys last night. The Belvideres had the game in hand until Hill got a "split," the pins being too far apart to make the spare. This loss of 10 pins, the value of a spare, gave the victory to the Orientals by two pins. In the first game the Orientals rolled up a score of 936, defeating the Harlem Wheelmen. The latter lost the second game to the Belvideres. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Oriental—Mitchell, 221; Vogel, 176; Gilhaus, 189; Stumpfel, 151; Starr, 199. Total, 936.

Harlem Wheelmen—Dumahaut, 203; Vigus, 199; Duff, 116; Fulle, 173; Reynolds, 210. Total, 900.

SECOND GAME.

Belvidere—Hotaling, 181; Newkirk, 188; Hill, 171; Lockwood, 167; Helles, 172. Total, 874.

Harlem Wheelmen—Dumahaut, 209; Daily, 104; Fulle, 106; Vigus, 122; Duff, 180. Total, 723.

THIRD GAME.

Oriental—Mitchell, 179; Vogel, 186; Shults, 195; Stumpfel, 144; Starr, 198. Total, 897.

Belvidere—Hotaling, 195; Newkirk, 194; Hill, 158; Lockwood, 176; Helles, 172. Total, 895.

The Morningsides scored two easy victories in the Columbia League last night. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Morningside—Madden, 150; Armstrong, 149; Hymer, 215; Eiche, 181; Klingelhoffer, 191. Total, 886.

Enterprise—Koeper, 179; Miller, 166; Schlumbaum, 142; Kuhn, 131; Kolb, 170. Total, 768.

SECOND GAME.

Hamilton—Church, 154; Bromley, 151; Hunt, 125; King, 155; Moynahan, 209. Total, 794.

Enterprise—Koeper, 130; Miller, 133; Schlumbaum, 134; Kuhn, 138; Kolb, 166. Total, 701.

THIRD GAME.

Morningside—Madden, 159; Armstrong, 191; Hymer, 162; Demmler, 181; Klingelhoffer, 190. Total, 883.

Hamilton—Church, 170; Bromley, 133; Hunt, 173; King, 181; Moynahan, 159. Total, 815.

In the Royal Arcanum League series on the Tennis Club alleys last night the Lenox Council won two games, defeating the Citizens' and Yonkers Councils. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Lenox—Carter, 187; Young, 160; Howland, 155; Bell, 144; Clute, 175. Total, 821.

Yonkers—Barnes, 146; Brewer, 209; C. Lawrence, 136; Hunt, 136; A. Lawrence, 170. Total, 797.

SECOND GAME.

Citizens'—Helmers, 158; Wilkens, 142; Schweibert, 199; Tonjes, (eight frames,) 93; Powles, 200. Total, 792.

Yonkers—Barnes, 167; Brewer, 134; C. Lawrence, 133; Hunt, 111; A. Lawrence, 177. Total, 722.

THIRD GAME.

Lenox—Carter, 138; Young, 158; Howland, 142; Bell, 180; Clute, 155. Total, 773.

Citizens'—Helmers, 186; Wilkens, 123; Schweibert, 126; Spreen, 168; Powles, 157. Total, 760.

The games in the Arlington National League last night were not productive of very high scores. The Homesteads, Stragglers, and Manhattas each won and lost a game. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Straggler—Greif, 149; Gaynor, 150; Le Touzel, 163; Scheller, 135; Hosinger, 195. Total, 792.

Homestead—Duncan, 161; Landry, 118; Cotte, 144; Leask, 104; Moore, 162. Total, 689.

SECOND GAME.

Homestead—Duncan, 172; Landry, 164; Cotte, 121; Baxter, 115; Moore, 185. Total, 785.

Manhatta—Daly, 135; Wharton, 79; Thode, 136; Wittse, 128; Witt, 189. Total, 667.

THIRD GAME.

Manhatta—Daly, 158; Hillebrand, 155; Thode, 155; Wittse, 139; Witt, 183. Total, 790.

Straggler—Greif, 157; Gaynor, 117; Le Touzel, 141; Scheller, 99; Hosinger, 159. Total, 673.

The Corinthians bowled in excellent form in the National League at Starr's Alleys last night. They won from the Harlem Republican Club bowlers in the first game. In the third game they scored a notable victory over the Pontiac Wheelmen. The wheelmen held a lead of sixty pins in the seventh frame. This lead the Corinthians cut down to seventeen pins when the last frame began. In this frame Niles finished with three strikes, while Lehrbach and McLellan of the Pontiacs missed spares. This gave the victory to the Corinthians by twenty-three pins. The Pontiac Wheelmen won the second game from the Harlem Republican Club team. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Corinthian—Walter, 214; Baker, 184; Niles, 190; Holden, 139; Schaeffer, 189. Total, 916.

Harlem RepubHcan Club—Swartz, 136; Merritt, 183; Page, 161; Purdy, 159; Safford, 162. Total, 751.

SECOND GAME.

Pontiac Wheelmen—Clinch, 180; Kessler, 172; Macielian, 197; Stern, 190; Lehrbach, 135. Total, 874.

Harlem Republican Club—Swartz, 156; Merritt, 156; Page, 147; Purdy, 168; Safford, 170. Total, 792.

THIRD GAME.

Corinthian—Walter, 184; Baker, 174; Niles, 210; Holden, 199; Schaeffer, 178. Total, 945.

Pontiac Wheelmen—Church, 232; Kessler, 194; Macielian, 164; Stern, 163; Lehrbach, 169. Total, 922.

Only one of the three games in the American National tournament last night was in favor of Ning. In the third game the Bleeckers and Riversides were almost on even terms until the last frame. Then the Bleeckers drew away and won by thirty points. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Bleecker—Beam, 198; Wragge, 134; Dorland, 179; Schlichte, 177; Ritter, 187. Total, 875.

Glendale—Schneider, 134; Schwager, 147; Groelling, 164; R. Fuchs, 151; A. Fuchs, 161. Total, 757.

SECOND GAME.

Glendale—Schwager, 184; Schneider, 224; Groelling, 130; R. Fuchs, 150; A. Fuchs, 176. Total, 864.

Riverdale—Brodbeck, 137; Marten, 183; Monahan, 157; Zollinger, 185; Ebling, 160. Total, 802.

THIRD GAME.

Bleecker—Beam, 173; Wragge, 188; Dorland, 156; Schlichte, 194; Ritter, 187. Total, 898.

Riverdale—H. Ebling, 164; Marten, 168; Monahan, 168; Zollinger, 190; E. Ebling, 178. Total, 868.

The Justin F. Price, Atlantic, and Fern Counc

FINANCIAL DIRECTORY.

Chemical National Bank
270 Broadway.

National Bank of Commerce
CAP. AND SUR. $5,500,000.
31 Nassau St.

Hanover National Bank
Capital $1,000,000. Surplus and profits, $2,500,000
7 and 11 Nassau St.

The Nassau Bank
Corner Beekman and Nassau Streets.

Central National Bank
320 Broadway.

Colonial Trust Company
CAPITAL & SURPLUS, $1,500,000.
ST. PAUL B'LD'G.
222 B'way.

Continental Trust Company
30 Broad St.

Washington Trust Company
Stewart Building, 280 Broadway.

Real Estate Trust Co.,
30 NASSAU STREET.
Capital, Surplus, and Undivided Profits $900,000.
Receives Deposits, Allowing Interest.
Acts as Trustee. Transfer Agent, Registrar, &c.

PHILADELPHIA.
Fourth Street National Bank
Capital, $1,500,000. Surplus, $1,500,000.

BANKERS' CARDS.

Spencer Trask & Co.
BANKERS
27 & 29 Pine Street, New York.
Transact a general banking business; act as Fiscal Agents for corporations, and negotiate security issues of railroads and other companies. Execute commission orders and deal in
INVESTMENT SECURITIES.
Members New York Stock Exchange.
Branch Office: 65 State St., Albany.

G. Sidenberg & Kraus,
BANKERS,
20 BROAD ST., NEW YORK.
Members of N. Y. Stock Exchange.
Transact a general Banking Business.
Interest allowed on deposits.
Orders executed for cash or on margin.
Investment Securities
A SPECIALTY.
LIST SENT ON APPLICATION.

VERMILYE & CO.,
BANKERS,
NASSAU & PINE STS., NEW YORK CITY;
27 STATE STREET, BOSTON.
Dealers in U. S. Government Bonds and other Investment Securities. Deposits received and interest allowed on Balances.

Holmes & Co.,
EMPIRE BUILDING,
71 Broadway, New York.
Members { N. Y. Stock Exchange. N. Y. Cotton Exchange. Chicago Board of Trade.
Branch Office:
Lakewood Hotel, Lakewood, N.J.

DOUGLAS & JONES,
Members New York Stock Exchange.
ESTABLISHED 1886.
24 Broad St., New York City.
STOCKS AND BONDS BOUGHT AND SOLD FOR CASH AND CARRIED ON MARGIN.
Daily Market Letter on Application.
CORRESPONDENCE INVITED.

Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co.,
BANKERS.
MEMBERS NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.
71 Broadway, N. Y. City.
STOCKS and BONDS bought and sold for cash or on margin.
Interest allowed on deposits subject to check.
Telephone No. 1239 Cortlandt.

New York Telephone, 4914 Cortlandt. Brooklyn Telephone, 391 Brooklyn.
Geo. H. PRENTISS & Co
DEALERS IN
LOCAL SECURITIES,
37 William St., New York. 298 Montague St., Brooklyn.
MEMBERS OF N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE.

TUNSTALL & CO.,
MEMBERS NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE
52 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Stocks and Bonds bought and sold for cash or carried on margin.
Market Letter on Application.
Telephones No. 1492 and No. 830 Broad.

P. J. Goodhart & Co.,
Dealers in
Bank & Trust Co. Stocks.
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
38 WALL STREET.

LEHMAN BROS.
NOS. 16-22 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.
Deal in investment securities, and execute orders on New York Stock Exchange.
Members of the Stock, Cotton, Coffee, and Produce Exchanges, New York.

FINANCIAL.

A Just Way to Settle the Local Gas War.

New York, Dec. 1st, 1899.

The following appeared in the columns of the Wall Street Journal on Monday, 27th inst.:

"The Street is all at sea again in regard to the local gas situation. The action of the Consolidated Gas Directors was a disappointment, to say the least. There are those who interpret the action as intended to give the impression that there has been no settlement of the gas war, when in fact there has been a settlement, on the other hand there are many who believe that there has been no settlement and that the action of the Consolidated people is straightforward and in the direction of forcing the New Amsterdam Company either to make terms with them or to go out of business.

"It is intimated by excellent authority that the New Amsterdam Company has made a false move in advancing the price of gas unless a settlement of the war had previously been arranged. On any other basis the Consolidated people by maintaining the low rate for gas will certainly take back much of the custom it lost to the New Amsterdam Company during the fight. Besides, it reveals to the Consolidated Company the weakness of the New Amsterdam position, which certainly will be taken advantage of to force the New Amsterdam Company to the wall. The usual inside information is at the moment somewhat contradictory. It is plain that something has happened which makes statements at present about the matter of little value unless definitely and officially authorized."

The concluding sentences are eminently true. To most of the other statements and inferences drawn therefrom I take exception. The article states that the New Amsterdam Company has made a false move and has revealed its weakness by advancing the price of gas to the legal limit; and, as a result, will be forced to the wall by the Consolidated Company. Is not this rather a forced conclusion? Who is this "excellent authority" that makes this intimation? Does it come from a Consolidated source, and therefore tainted, or from the ever in evidence Mr. Russell Sage, who may be properly designated, through his numberless interviews, as "before and after." Before he has seen the Consolidated people he speaks truly; and after he has been told by them what to say, his statements have a Consolidated tint. Poor man! He wants to put up the price of his gas to $1.10 so as to stop the terrible losses inflicted by the present rate of 65c. Poor man, indeed; now posing as the President of the only company that has no watered stock. Poor memory, rather. Has he forgotten that all, or very nearly all, of the common stock of the Standard is water, issued to the late Mr. Andrews, and which, when the new management took charge, was returned by him, in part, to the treasury (it is to be hoped) of the company? But it is well known that he retained a sufficient amount to make him a comparatively wealthy man, as was his perfect right; a man, or party, who establishes in this city, or in any great city, an opposition gas company, is entitled to a large reward. Water, indeed! Every tyro in these matters knows that the Consolidated Company should, in order to correctly represent its constitution, make water gas only.

I am not an officer of any gas company, and have no voice in the settlement of this way. I am only a poor innocent holder of a few hundred shares of the preferred stock of the New Amsterdam Company, and, as such stockholder, I shall expect a settlement just to all the holders of the New Amsterdam securities; a settlement based on the present market value of the securities of the three contracting companies, and the present output of each. J. H. B.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway Company
FIRST MORTGAGE EXTENSION
FIFTY YEAR FIVE PER CENT. GOLD BONDS
PRINCIPAL DUE 1944.

Interest payable May 1st and Nov. 1st.

These bonds are the only direct obligation of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company except the 4% Bonds of 1890. They are a first mortgage on important sections of the Company in Missouri and Kansas, and at the rate of only $20,000 per mile, or at a less rate per mile than the 4% Bonds upon the other portions of the line, and while apparently as well secured, are offered at prices which yield 1% more of income. These Bonds are as well secured, it is believed, as the Missouri, Kansas and Eastern 5s of this System, which sell at 105, while these are at a less rate per mile than the direct obligation of the Company.

The condition of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company is believed to be better than ever before. The Company has no floating debt. By reason of heavy expenses in the past, which have brought the road into good physical condition, a favorable rate of operating expenses is expected in the future.

The surplus of the Company for the year ending June 30, 1899, after deducting interest on bonds and rentals and all charges, was $584,683. The gross earnings for the first three months of the current fiscal year show increase, as follows:

1899.	1898.	Increase.
$3,296,023.10	$2,917,234.60	$378,188.50.

These bonds are listed on the New York Stock Exchange. WE OFFER BONDS OF THIS ISSUE SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE AND ADVANCE IN PRICE AT 95 AND ACCRUED INTEREST.

H. W. POOR & CO.,
18 WALL STREET.

CITY TRUST CO
OF NEW YORK.
36 WALL STREET.
CAPITAL.....$1,000,000
(Entirely invested in City of New York Bonds.)
SURPLUS.....$1,000,000
Allows Interest on Daily Balances.
Subject to check, payable at sight or through the New York Clearing-house and on Certificates of Deposit.
Acts as Fiscal and Transfer Agent; Registrar of Stocks and Bonds; Trustee for Corporation Mortgages; Guardian; Executor; Administrator; Trustee; Committee; Receiver; Assignee, etc.
Loans Money on Bonds and Mortgage.
TRAVELLERS' LETTERS OF CREDIT.
Transacts a General Banking Business
OFFICERS:
JAS. ROSS CURRAN, President.
JOHN D. CRIMMINS, Vice-President.
GEORGE R. SHELDON, 2d Vice-Pres't.
ARTHUR TERRY, Secretary.
WALTER W. LEE, Asst. Secretary.
DIRECTORS:

John D. Crimmins,	Henry O. Havemeyer,
Wm. R. Grace.	Elverton R. Chapman,
Wm. H. Gelshenen,	Peter Doelger,
Frank H. Platt.	Chas. W. Morse.
James Roosevelt,	Charles V. Fornes,
Eugene Kelly.	Wm. Halls, jr.,
George R. Sheldon	Bernard M. Shanley,
Ed. N. Gibbs.	Frank R. Lawrence,
Edwin Warfield,	James D. Layng.
Edward Eyre,	Hoomer B. Parsons,
	Jas. Ross Curran.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.,
NO. 59 WALL ST.,
ISSUE COMMERCIAL AND TRAVELERS' CREDITS, AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

FINANCIAL.

LOUIS MESIER, Auctioneer.
REGULAR AUCTION SALE OF STOCKS AND BONDS
By ADRIAN H. MULLER & SON,
WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6TH, 1899.
At 12½ o'clock, at the N. Y. Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway.
BY ORDER OF EXECUTORS.

500 shs. Canadian Pacific Ry.
100 shs. Coney Island & B'klyn R. R.
250 shs. Brooklyn Union Gas Co.
16 shs. Elizabeth Library Ass'n.
$5,000 Coney Island & B'klyn R. R. 5 p. c. Ctf. of Indebtedness, 1903.
$70,000 International & Great Northern Ry. 2d Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1909.
$25,000 Brooklyn Union Gas Co. 1st Cons. Mtg. 5 p. c. Gold Bds., 1945. (Regsted.)
$8,000 State of Arkansas 6 p. c. Funded Debt. Bds.
$3,000 City of Elizabeth, N. J. 4 p. c. Adj. Bds., 1922.
400 shs. Stuyvesant Fire Ins. Co.
(By order of Dan'l B. Childs & Geo. M. Walgrove, Extrs. of the Estate of Margaret Inglis, dec'd.)
$8,000 Canada Southern R. R. 1st Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1908.
$7,500 Central R. R., N. J., Genl. Mtg. 5 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1987.
$3,000 Chesapeake & Ohio R. R. 1st Cons. Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1939.
$10,000 Chic., Bur. & Quincy R. R. 5 p. c. Sink. Fund Bds., (Iowa Div.,) 1919.
$6,000 Chic. & Northwestern R. R. 7 p. c. Cons. Sink. Fund Bds., 1915.
$8,000 Chic., Rock Island & Pac. R. R. 1st Mtg. 6 p. c. Bds., 1917.
$7,000 Chic., St. Paul, Minn. & Omaha R. R. 1st Cons. Mtg. 6 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1930.
$3,000 Chic., St. Paul, Minn. & Omaha R. R. 1st Cons. Mtg. 6 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1930.
$4,000 Kings County El. R. R. 1st Mtg 4 p. c. Bds., 1949.
6 shs. Brooklyn Rapid Transit R. R.
$5,000 Michigan Cent. R. R. 1st Cons. Mtg. 7 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1902.
$15,000 Michigan Cent. R. R. 1st Cons. Mtg. 5 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1902.
$5,000 Morris & Essex R. R. 7 p. c. Convt. Regstd. Bds., 1900.
$4,000 N. Y. Cent. & Hudson River R. R. 4 p. c. Deb. Bds., (Ctfs. Extd.) 1905.
$5,000 Pitts., Shenango & Lake Erie R. R. 1st Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1940.
$5,000 St. Paul, Minn. & Manitoba R. R. 2d Mtg. 6 p. c. Regstd. Bds., 1909.
$6,000 Wabash R. R. 1st Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1939.
$2,500 West Shore R. R. 1st Mtg. 4 p. c. Regstd. Bond., 2361.
$10,000 Western Union Telegraph Co. Coll. Trust 5 p. c. Bds., 1938.
(By order of Trustee.)
$2,000 Coney Island & B'klyn R. R. 1st Mtg. 5 p. c. Bds., 1903.
(For account of whom it may concern.)
30 shs. German Alliance Ins. Co.
$15,000 Railroad Equipment Co. 6 p. c. Bds., 1903.
$10,000 Railroad Equipment Co. 6 p. c. Bds., 1902.
50 shs. Manhattan Trust Co.
25 shs. Franklin Trust Co.
$6,000 Staten Island Elec. R. R. 1st Mtg. Con. 5 p. c. Bds.
$500 do scrip.
215 shs. N. Y. & Staten Island Traction Co. pfd.
$1,000 Nash., Chatt. & St. Louis Ry 1st Mtg. 7 p. c. Bond, 1913
5 shs. International Bkg. & Trust Co.
10 shs. Home Insurance Co.
25 shs. Empire City Fire Ins. Co.
10 shs. International Bkg. & Trust Co.
$6,000 Atlantic Coast Elec. Ry. 1st Mtge 5 p. c. Gold Bds., 1945.
10 shs. Corn Exchange Bank.
6 shs. Natl. City Bank.
10 shs. Manufacturers' Trust Co.
25 shs. Produce Exchange Trust Co.
10 shs. Morton Trust Co.
50 shs. International Bkg. & Trust Co.
5 shs. Bankers' Trust Co.
10 shs. Trust Co. of America.
30 shs. Chatham Natl. Bank.
125 shs. The Arizona Copper Smelting Co.
25 shs. Westchester Trust Co.
$1,000 Dry Dock, East B'way & Battery R. R. 1st Mtge. 5 p. c. Bond, 1932.
100 shs. Jos. Ladue Gold Mining & Dev. Co. pfd.
12 shs. Natl. City Bank.
25 shs. Colonial Trust Co.
10 shs. Guaranty Trust Co.
7 shs. Natl. City Bank.

23 Wall Street,
New York, October 12, 1899.
To the Holders of the
First Mortgage Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds
OF THE
PITTSBURGH & WESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY

(DATED JULY 1, 1887):

Referring to our notice of December 14, 1898, we have to announce that holders of more than 80 per cent. in amount of the First Mortgage Four Per Cent. Gold Bonds of the Pittsburgh and Western Railway Company have deposited these bonds with us in accordance with the terms of said notice.

We have further to announce that we have made arrangements with the Reorganization Managers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company whereby, in case they issue any Plan of Reorganization of the Pittsburgh and Western Railway Company prior to December 14, 1899, they undertake to give all our depositors whose bonds shall not have been sold to them for cash, as stated in the next paragraph, an option for at least thirty days after such Plan is issued, to take par and interest in cash, or to have their bonds included in the Plan on the basis of new securities. They also agree that at the expiration of such option they will purchase from us for cash at par and accrued interest up to the time of delivery all bonds held by us in respect of which the option to take new securities shall not have been exercised, we agreeing to sell them such bonds. If no Plan shall have been issued by that date, the foregoing arrangements will continue in force thereafter until said Reorganization Managers terminate the same by notice to us.

If any holder of our receipts or certificates, rather than await such Plan, desires and shall elect to sell his bonds for cash, (thereby losing his right of election to take either cash or new securities after issuance of the Plan,) said Reorganization Managers further agree that, at any time prior to December 14, 1899, (and also thereafter until notice from them to us,) such holder may present his receipt or certificate at our office for proper annotation of such election thereon, and that, at the expiration of thirty days from the date of such annotation, he shall receive par and accrued interest in cash therefor at our office upon surrender of his receipt or certificate properly indorsed.

J. P. MORGAN & CO.

Provident Savings Life Assurance Society,
ORGANIZED 1875.
346 and 348 Broadway.
EDWARD W. SCOTT, President.
Issues All Desirable Forms of Policies.
Assurance in force.... $100,000,000
Paid Policyholders.... $16,500,000
Assets to Liabilities 132½ per cent.

WANTED—Capitalist to investigate and join in organization of a large Automobile Stock Company; party owns valuable patents on electricity and steam for automobiles, vehicles, and trucks of all discriptions; far superior to those now in use. Address AUTOMOBILES, Box 158 Times.

INDIANA BLOCK COAL RAILROAD CO.
In accordance with the terms of the Deed of Trust of the Indiana Block Coal Railroad Company, the following bonds have been drawn for account of the sinking fund, viz.:
Nos. 71-94 and 95, three of $1,000 each, and No. 106, one of $500.
The principal and accrued interest of the above bonds will be paid upon presentation at the office of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, 16, 18, 20, and 22 William Street, New York.
The interest on the above bonds will cease on and after January 1st, 1900.
THE FARMERS' LOAN & TRUST CO.,
By E. S. MARSTON, President.
New York, December 1, 1899.

GENTLEMAN NOW INFLUENCING LARGE private wire business, desires to make a new connection with established Stock Exchange firm of unimpeachable character, with ample capital, or would meet desirable parties to form a new firm. Address J. H. C., Clarendon Hotel, City.

DIVIDENDS.

OFFICE OF THE
Northern Pacific Railway Company
MILLS BUILDING.
New York, October 11, 1899.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this day there was declared from the net earnings a dividend of ONE PER CENT. on the Preferred Stock of this Company for the quarter ending December 1, 1899, the same to be paid December 5, 1899, to the holders of record of the Preferred Stock at the closing of the transfer books on November 10, 1899.

For the purpose of such dividend the transfer books of this company will be closed at 3 P. M. on November 10, 1899, and will be reopened at 10 A. M. on November 24, 1899.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY,
By GEORGE H. EARL, Secretary.

23 Wall Street,
New York, October 11, 1899.

The transfer books of the Voting Trustees for Preferred Stock Trust Certificates of the NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY will close in New York and Berlin at 3 P. M. on November 10, 1899, and will reopen at 10 A. M. on November 24, 1899.

On December 5, 1899, the Voting Trustees will be prepared to distribute the above dividend of One Per Cent. when received by them among the parties entitled thereto as same appear of record on their books when closed as above.

J. P. MORGAN & Co., New York.
DEUTSCHE BANK, Berlin,
Agents for Voting Trustees.

Columbus, O., November 24, 1899.

A dividend of One and One-half Per Cent. has this day been declared on the Preferred Stock of the Company, payable January 10, 1900, to stockholders of record at the close of business December 4, 1899.

The Preferred Stock transfer books will close at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, New York, at 3 P. M. on Monday, December 4, 1899, and will reopen at the same place at 10 A. M. on Wednesday, December 13, 1899.

THE HOCKING VALLEY RAILWAY CO.,
By N. MONSARRAT, President.

New York and Honduras Rosario Mining Co.,
No. 18 Broadway.
New York, Dec. 1st, 1899.

The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the New York and Honduras Rosario Mining Company will be held at the office of the Company on Wednesday, December 13th, 1899, at 3 P. M., for the election of Trustees, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.
ERNEST SCHERNIKOW, Secretary.

City and Suburban Homes Co.,
New York, Nov. 28, 1899.

The Board of Directors has this day declared a Semi-Annual Dividend of ONE AND THREE-QUARTERS per cent. upon the capital stock of this Company, payable on and after December 4th, 1899. The transfer books will be closed on Dec. 4, 1899.
CHARLES STEWART SMITH, Treas.

The Bank of New Amsterdam,
BROADWAY AND 39TH STREET.
New York, Nov. 28th, 1899.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held this day, a dividend of 5% was declared payable on January 2d, 1900, to the stockholders of record on December 20th, 1899.
G. J. BAUMANN, Cashier.

52 WALL STREET, NEW YORK.
Dec. 1, 1899.

The Transfer Books of the National City Bank of New York will be closed this day, at 3 P. M., and reopened on January 3, 1900, at 10 A. M.
G. S. WHITSON, Cashier.

MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS.

NOTICE.—THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE stockholders of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad Company for the election of thirteen Directors and three Inspectors of Election for the ensuing year, and for the transaction of such other business as may come before them, will be held at the general office of the company, at Rondout, N. Y., on Tuesday, Dec. 5th, 1899, at 1:00 o'clock P. M.
H. C. SOOP,
Dated Nov. 18th, 1899. Secretary.

BANK OF THE MANHATTAN COMPANY,
New York, Nov. 2, 1899.

Notice is hereby given that an Election for twelve Directors of the Manhattan Company will be held at their banking house, No. 40 Wall Street, in the City of New York, on Tuesday, the fifth day of December next, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
By order of the Directors,
D. H. PIERSON, Cashier.

PROPOSALS.

SALE OF COUNTY BONDS.

Notice is hereby given that, in pursuance of the provision of Article 3, Title 2, Part 4 of the Political Code of the State of Montana, and of an order duly made by the Board of County Commissioners of Cascade County, State of Montana, at a meeting of said board, held on the 18th day of November, 1899, the said Board of County Commissioners of Cascade County will on the 8th day of January, 1900, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the County Treasurer's office, in the County Court House, in the City of Great Falls, Cascade County, Montana, under and by virtue of such power, conferred upon them by law, and by virtue of the order aforesaid, sell coupon bonds of said Cascade County, State of Montana, to the amount of $30,000.00, drawing interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the 1st day of July and the 1st day of January of each year. These bonds will be of the denomination of $1,000.00 each, and shall be redeemable at the pleasure of said Cascade County any time after ten years, and due and payable within twenty years of the date of their issue. The said coupon bonds will be made payable at any National bank designated by the purchaser, and the county will deliver said bonds at such bank to the order of such purchaser. The interest on said bonds will be payable at the office of the County Treasurer of said Cascade County.

Sealed proposals for the purchase of said bonds will be received up to the time of sale, and the party or parties offering the highest bid therefor will receive the amount of such bonds as he or they may offer to buy. A certified check, or New York draft, payable to the order of the County Treasurer of Cascade County, to the amount of $2,500.00, will be required deposited with the County Treasurer by the successful bidder as a guaranty of good faith, and will be forfeited to the county should he fail to take the bonds. Said Board of County Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Bids should be marked "Bids on Bonds," and addressed to Vincent Fortune, County Clerk, Great Falls, Cascade County, Montana.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Cascade County, Montana.
VINCENT FORTUNE, County Clerk.
First publication Dec. 2, 1899.

COPARTNERSHIP NOTICES.

DOWNING, CLARK & CO.

The undersigned, desirous of forming a limited partnership under the statutes of the State of New York, to continue the business now carried on under the name of COLLINS, DOWNING & CO., and to conduct such other commercial business as the parties shall mutually agree upon, hereby certify:

I. That the name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted is "DOWNING, CLARK & CO.," and the principal place of business of said partnership is to be located in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan, County and State of New York.

II. That the general nature of the business intended to be transacted by such partnership is the importation and jobbing of woolen goods, and to continue the business now carried on under the name of Collins, Downing & Co., and to conduct such other commercial business as the parties shall mutually agree upon.

III. That the names of all the general and special partners interested in such partnership, all of whom are of full age, are as follows: Silas Downing, who resides at Buckingham Hotel, Manhattan Borough, New York City; Eugene Clark, who resides at No. 335 Greene Avenue, Borough of Brooklyn and City of New York; Philo S. Hager, who resides at No. 256 West 57th St., Borough of Manhattan and City of New York, and Joseph W. Stinson, who resides at No. 1,887 Lexington Avenue, Borough of Manhattan and City of New York, are the general partners, and James R. Doudge, who resides at No. 33 West 49th St., in the Borough of Manhattan and City of New York, is the special partner.

IV. That the said James R. Doudge has contributed the sum of one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars in actual cash as capital to the common stock of such limited partnership.

V. That the period at which the said limited partnership is to commence is the 1st day of December, 1899, and the period at which the said limited partnership is to terminate is the 1st day of December, 1902.

Dated this 1st day of December, 1899.
SILAS DOWNING,
EUGENE CLARK,
PHILO S. HAGER,
J. W. STINSON,
JAMES R. DOUDGE.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:—
On this 1st day of December, 1899, before me personally came Silas Downing, Eugene Clark, Philo S.—Hager, Joseph W. Stinson, and James R. Doudge, to me known and known to me to be the individuals described in and who executed the foregoing certificate, and severally acknowledged that they executed the same.
LOUIS F. RYAN,
Notary Public, (73,) New York County.

LOST AND FOUND.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, BALTIMORE, MD.,
Baltimore, Nov. 16th, 1899.

LOST.—Certificate No. 18,392, dated July 7th, 1899, ten shares stock Canton Company of Baltimore; name Alex. C. Nelson. All persons are warned to show cause why a new certificate should not be issued. ALEX. C. NELSON.

Brokerage Firm Reorganized.

The reorganization of the Stock and Produce Exchange brokerage and banking firm of Price, McCormick & Co. was announced yesterday. Bernard J. Harrison retires, and is succeeded by Walter Price, one of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, and the special partner, George Crocker, increases his contribution to the capital to $500,000. The firm now consists of Theodore H. Price, William G. McCormick, R. M. Stuart-Wortley, Walter Price, and George Crocker, special.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks heavy.

STOCK TRANSACTIONS.

	Shares.
Dec. 1	406,004
To date this year	155,142,666
Corresponding date last year	100,760,000

BOND TRANSACTIONS.

Dec. 1	$1,364,000
To date this year	$790,045,190
Corresponding date last year	$795,384,630

Money rate; Collateral loans on hand, 5@7 per cent.; at three months, 6 per cent.; at six months, 6 per cent. Commercial paper, sixty to ninety days, 5½ per cent.

***

Net changes in stocks of one-half of 1 per cent. or more were:

Stocks Advanced.

C., C., C. & St. L. pf.	1
Cleve., L. & W. pf.	2
Col. Fuel & Iron	2
Col. Fuel & Iron pf	2
Col. Midland	¾
Col. Mid. pf	1
Consol. Gas	1
General Electric	½
Glucose Sugar	1¼
M. W. S. El., Chi.	½
Minn. & St. L.	½
Nat. Steel	½
N. Y. C. & St. L. 2d pf.	½
Northern Pacific	½
North. Pacific pf.	½
Pacific Mail	½
Quicksilver pf.	⅝
Rio G. West. pf.	½
Stand. R. & T.	½
Tenn. Coal & Iron	½
Union Pacific	⅝
U. S. Leather	¾
W. & L. E. 1st pf.	½

Stocks Declined.

Am. Car & Fdy	½
Am. Ice	½
Am. Cotton Oil	½
Am. Malt. pf.	2
Am. Smelt. & R. pf.	½
Am. Spirits	½
Am. Sugar Ref.	1⅛
Am. Tobacco	½
At., T. & S. F. pf.	½
Balt. & Ohio	⅝
Balt. & Ohio pf.	½
B'klyn Rapid Tr.	1⅝
Chi. Cons. Tract.	1½
Chi. G. W. pf., A.	¾
Chi. T. T. pf.	1½
Col. So. 2d pf.	½
Cont. Tobacco	¾
Cont. Tob. pf.	¾
Del., L. & W.	⅞
Des M. & Ft. D.	¾
Federal Steel pf.	¾
Laclede Gas	1½
Laclede G. pf.	2½
Lake Erie & W.	¾
Manhattan Beach	2
Manhattan Con.	⅝
Met. Street Ry.	¾
Mo., K. & Texas	½
Mo., K. & T. pf.	¾
Nat. Biscuit	1
Peo., Dec. & Ev.	1
P., C., C. & St. L.	1
Reading 1st pf.	½
Rep. Iron & Steel	½
Rep. I. & S. pf.	¾
Southern Ry. pf.	½
Twin City R. T.	½
Wis. Central	1

***

Net changes in bonds of 1 per cent. or more were:

Bonds Advanced.

D., M. & M. l. g. 3½s.	1
Kan. C. & Pac. 1st.	1
Ev. & T. H. con. 6s.	2

Bond Declined.

Peoria & Eastern inc.	1

MARKET CONDITIONS.

Uncertainty as to the effect of the sharp advance in the discount rate of the Bank of England was primarily responsible for the hesitating tone which yesterday's market took on at the opening. Dealing was listless and uncertain at the outset; and, save and except in some special stocks, continued so for the greater part of the day, with the result that the total transactions were considerably under the average of recent days. There was no pressure of stocks, however, and despite its uncertainty the market showed a disposition toward strength. The speculative element was rather in a waiting mood—not through any apprehensive feeling, but rather the better to take advantage of hasty action on the part of timid holders who might be inclined, by reason of the direful tales of the professional market depressor, to part with their holdings. But as a matter of fact the day's dealings developed that there were few such holders; that, as has more than once been proved lately, stocks are for the most part in the hands of strong holders who not only cannot be induced to part with them, but are so assured of the substantial and lasting nature of the prosperity now resting upon the country that they are desirous of further increasing their holdings.

***

That there was and is no reason to be apprehensive of the results upon this market of the Bank of England's action is clearly borne out by the statements elsewhere published of representative bankers whose knowledge of exchange, the conditions governing it, and the effects of sudden changes in rates, cannot be doubted. Indeed, the action of the local money market itself was perhaps as good an indication as one would want of the effects of the Bank's action. Apart from a hardening in short bills there was little or no change in exchange, while in the call money market rates remained as they have been for some days past.

***

Under ordinary circumstances the announcement by the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company of an order for iron ore from Italy at current domestic rates—signifying that the iron export movement had again begun and at highly profitable rates—would of itself have had a stimulating effect on the general market. Probably when the Street reflects upon the significance of the movement it will take to itself fresh life.

***

All facts certainly point to a better market and higher prices: the improved condition of the banks, as will appear from the statement to-day; the knowledge that the Government, by extending the time of the bond purchase offer, purposes to safeguard the business and financial interests of the country; and the continuing reports of increased activity and earnings in all lines.

***

As on Wednesday, so yesterday, the Street was busy in discussing the big railroad deals—and, as on Wednesday, they were treated by knowing ones as accomplished facts.

THE NEED OF LIGHT FROM THE GAS COMPANIES.

[FROM A SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.]

Ask any broker or investor in the securities of the gas companies of this city who has no inside connection with their management on what the market value of their stocks is based, and he can give no more definite answer than the dividends paid and the price at which they are held by those who have inside information. There is practically no information at the command of the public concerning the details of the business or the financial condition of the corporations. The amount of their capital stock and of the bonds authorized or issued is a matter of record, and the dividends paid are always known. They are taxed upon their gross earnings, and returns of these are duly made. But of the actual volume of their business, the cost of production, distribution, and administration, the disbursements for repairs, renewals, and extensions of plant and appliances, the surplus held, and the amount of assets and liabilities, there is no definite and authentic information upon which a judgment can be formed as to the justice of their charges to the public or the substantial value of their stocks. In the case of a company not paying dividends, like the New Amsterdam, there is little to go by except speculation.

The companies are not required to make reports or returns, except those necessary for assessing taxes, and they give out no statements of their business for the information of investors or of the public. The officers decline to furnish statistics or specific facts, because they are not authorized to do so and consequently do not feel at liberty to oblige the inquirer. There is no corporate business resting upon public franchise which partakes more of the nature of a public service or which more directly concerns the mass of the community in which it is carried on than that of supplying illuminating gas in a city, and there is none which comes so near to being conducted in secrecy as a purely private business.

When there is competition between the companies and the price is cut in the effort to gain some advantage or to protect some interest, there is no sure means of judging of the effect. One cannot tell to a certainty whether it is causing loss or what effect it will have upon dividends or upon the general condition of the corporations concerned. If there is a combination to maintain prices or to divide territory or distribute business, there is no means of judging of the equity of the arrangement or of the effect upon the rights of consumers. When there is a demand for legislation to reduce the price of gas or to fix a limit to it it leads to a blind agitation which is not calculated to produce wise action or allay dissatisfaction, which has its source in ignorance. Partial investigations may be made and expert testimony may be taken regarding the cost of making gas from this material or that by one process or another, but conditions differ so much in time and place that the result throws only a confused light upon the actual situation of the corporations which are aimed at. The agitation for municipal ownership of gas works and the supply of light in cities as water is supplied, proceeds upon very imperfect information, and the more it is involved in ignorance the more violent it becomes.

There is prejudice against the gas business as one which imposes upon the public for private profit; and the designs of the companies, whether in competition or in combination to prevent competition, are generally regarded with suspicion and distrust. They are charged with iniquitous purposes and unjust methods whenever the motives and objects of their conduct are not understood. Would it not be better for the companies and for the public, if this business were conducted as openly as that of railroads, for instance, and if statements were made of their receipts and expenditures, their earnings, their assets and liabilities, and the general condition of their affairs? Ought not reports to be required from them by public authority which would enable people to judge intelligently of their doings, considering their relation to the public?

When the officers of the companies are asked about this, they are non-committal. They give as a reason for not furnishing information at present that one company cannot be expected to reveal the details of its business when other companies do not, and they are rather apt to intimate that it is not a matter that concerns the public, but whether they would be willing to make reports prescribed by law nobody is prepared to say. But people with long memories may recall that after the investigation of the consolidation of the Six Companies in 1884, a measure providing, among other things, for such reports was defeated by some powerful influence in the Legislature after it had passed the Senate almost unanimously, and gone to a third reading in the Assembly with only one vote against it.

There has been competition of gas companies in this city with costly and needless duplication of plants, and there have been consolidations with increase of capital that has been denounced as "watering." Four companies in Manhattan and Brooklyn, with an aggregate capitalization of $125,000,000, are the survivors of a dozen companies with a much smaller capital, but there has been a vast growth during the processes of consolidation and expansion, and much investment of funds in new property and a great advance in the value of the real estate held. Who can state exactly the relation between nominal capital and actual investment as it stands to-day? The cost of gas has been reduced and the price has been reduced, but the relation between the two is to most people an unknown quantity. The relation of the gas companies to the public is a subject of almost constant agitation and of frequent demand for remedial legislation, but who is able to judge fairly of the merits of the case? What is most needed on the subject is light. Most people think that the public is entitled to it, and if this business is conducted with only legitimate aims and with good faith toward investors and customers, it cannot be hurt by publicity.

New York, Dec. 1, 1899. A. K. F.

HOW BANKERS VIEW IT.

The action of the Bank of England in raising its discount rate to 6 per cent.—the highest since Nov. 8, 1890—was the subject of more or less speculation on the Street yesterday. Bears and calamity howlers were loud in their proclamations that the advance would work to bring about withdrawals of gold from this country in the immediate future. Undoubtedly their depressing talk had an influence on certain timidly inclined, or poorly informed people; but among those well informed such gloomy forebodings were met with ridicule.

As a matter of fact there is nothing to be feared from the Bank of England's rise—a fact clearly borne out by those who know whereof they speak, and whose opinions, expressed yesterday, will be found below.

***

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. said: "The bank's action will not have any effect on the local situation unless, indeed, we go considerably higher in exchange, which does not seem in the least probable. Exchange went up a little to-day, but there is no present likelihood of its going to the gold export point. As for rates here, they will probably remain around the 6 per cent. point."

***

Jefferson Seligman—I am very bullish on the situation, and do not think the action of the Bank of England will have other than a sentimental effect here. As a matter of fact, too, cables to us to-day announce that discount by private banking houses is 5⅜ per cent. for January and 5⅝ per cent. for February—which is below the bank's rate. I do not think there is any danger of gold exports. Money is simply in good demand all the world over. As ish tone of the market, Manhattan closing two-eighths off and Metropolitan three-eighths.

HOW EARNINGS GROW.

Wall Street read with not a little interest the published report of earnings of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system for the month of November, which was put out by the news bulletins shortly before the close of yesterday's business. The statement showed an increase in the earnings of something like $92,000 over the same month last year.

The report, however, was too late to have any favorable effect on the stock which seemed to have been under more or less pressure all day, the closing being 1⅝ points below the final figures of Wednesday.

TOBACCO'S ADVANCE.

The Street was yesterday apparently in no mood to weigh the probable benefits to the Continental Tobacco Company of its advance of 4 cents a pound on plug chewing and plug smoking tobacco, which went into effect yesterday. The dealing in the stock appeared to be purely speculative, and showed a decline for the day of three-quarters of a point.

HOW FOUR ROADS PROSPER.

Some substantial earnings for the month of October were reported yesterday by a number of leading railroads. Among them were the Pennsylvania, with net earnings for the month of $2,537,100, an increase of $292,500; Louisville and Nashville, with net earnings of $901,900, an increase of $90,700; New York, Ontario and Western, with net earnings of $141,303, a gain of $31,100, and Southern Pacific, whose net earnings in the one month showed the remarkable increase of $468,750.

RIO GRANDE WESTERN.

Spencer Trask & Co. have issued a circular to customers recommending Rio Grande Western preferred stock for permanent investment to yield about 5½ per cent. The earnings of the road for the first four months of the current fiscal year are $655,-135 net, the fixed charges being $275,920, leaving surplus of $379,235. The entire year's preferred dividend requires but $340,000.—New York News Bureau.

MORE GOOD TIMES.

Reports to the commercial agencies continue to tell of good times.

Dun's Review sums the situation up by saying that business continues wonderfully large, prosperous, and healthy. As the detailed statement of failures by branches of business cannot be made until next week, it says it is well to say that in four weeks failures have been reported amounting to $6,848,590, against $8,110,475 in the same weeks of last year, $11,610,195 in 1897, and over $12,000,000 in 1896 and also in 1895. Yet the volume of solvent trade represented by exchanges at the principal Clearing Houses has been for the month 22.5 per cent. greater than last year and 46 per cent. greater than in 1892. Thus the ratio of defaults to business payments was $2.57 in $1,000 for November, 1895, and $2.75 for 1896, and $2.15 for 1897, but $1.25 for 1898, and only 90 cents in $1,000 for 1899. In many lines the volume of business has been larger than in October, notwithstanding the extraordinary flood of buying ever since the beginning of last March.

***

Bradstreet's notes that warm weather and a holiday have imparted an appearance of irregularity and even dullness to some lines of distributive trade, completing a month which has been, on the whole, quieter than was the preceding month, but one which still makes satisfactory comparison with a corresponding period a year ago, when weather conditions particularly favored distributive business in seasonable goods. The price situation generally is apparently one of notable strength in view of these conditions.

***

Of iron and steel, Dun's says that the iron manufacturer has to meet a greatly increased cost of material next year. Prices for 1900 have been fixed at $5.50 for Bessemer ore at lower lake ports, against $2.53 last year, and $4.25 for non-Bessemer against $2 last year, while coke at $2.75 for furnace, with high rail rates in every direction, indicates that iron will not be made next year as cheaply as it has been. Prices of pig still advance, according to The Iron Age, Bessemer to $25 at Pittsburg, with very small transactions, and Grey Forge to $21.25, quotations at other points being unchanged. Prices of some finished products are still yielding as works run out of orders and compete with each other for more business, and refined bar is $2 per ton lower at Philadelphia, common $2 per ton lower at Pittsburg, and plates $3 lower at Philadelphia, with further concessions in sheets because many of the tin plate works are now closed. Some of the iron works about Pittsburg are running half time.

***

Bradstreet's along the same line notes that iron and steel are even quieter than they were a week ago, and some shading of prices, more in the nature of readjustment, however, than of weakness, have given an appearance of irregularity. The feature of the week has been the agreement upon iron ore prices, placing the price for the coming season, as was intimated in this column last week, at nearly double that paid at the opening of the present season. This and the published interviews from trade authorities would indicate undiminished confidence in next season's business in finished products. The present week witnesses an important departure in Southern industry—namely, in the manufacture of steel. A marked tendency toward higher prices for hardware is reported at a number of markets. Holiday business in this line has opened well and the prospect for Spring trade is regarded as encouraging. Touching coal, Bradstreet's says that it remains strong in price, the chief difficulty as heretofore being questions of transportation.

***

In particular districts Bradstreet's notes that some irregularity in trade at Chicago is noted, warm weather affecting heavy goods, while cottons are active and silks are higher. The exceptionally dry Autumn has not been favorable to the rubber business. The demand for box lumber, and, in fact, for all low-grade material, has been the heaviest ever known. Money is getting easier and seems to be returning from the country. Orders for hardware for Spring account are already numerous at St. Louis, the earliness of demand being evidently due to remembrance of the slowness of delivery on Fall trade account. Collections are good and discounting is common. In the Central West a satisfactory business is doing, although warm weather unquestionably affects distribution. Kansas City packing houses are working full time. Similar reports as to cold weather being needed come from the North-west. The lumber mill season has closed at Minneapolis with the largest business ever recorded. Weather conditions have not favored trade on the Pacific Coast, and dry weather is now needed for crops in California. Heavy cotton shipments to Japan are reported from Seattle. Good trade advices come from the South, improvement being noted at Galveston and New Orleans, where a heavy export trade in grain is expected for December. The Louisiana sugar crop will aggregate 150,000 tons, and the acreage next year will show an increase. Finished iron and steel are in heavy demand at Pittsburg, but cannot be delivered except on special orders.

***

Of boots and shoes, Dun's notes that the shipments in four weeks have been 373,307 cases, 14 per cent. larger than in 1897 and 23 per cent. larger than in 1894, exceeding those of other years even more. But new business, although considerable in quantity, shows a marked decrease because of the prolonged rise in prices, even though that rise has been relatively less than the advance in leather, which still continues, or in hides, which has apparently been checked again.

***

Speaking of cotton and woolen goods, the same authority says that cotton goods have remained strong, all coming forward not under contract being snapped up quickly, with contracts still unfilled running into next year. The advance of 10 per cent. in wages by one large mill at Fall River seems likely to force others there and at other Eastern cities to follow, ending the fear of strikes. Prices do not advance, however, and the demand is apparently checked to some extent. In woolens a strong demand continues for dress goods, and cotton warp and all-wool cashmeres tend higher, but there is not much change in men's wear nor such a rise as to justify the high prices paid for wool. Sales continue heavy, but largely speculative, and stimulated by the rise in London. The excitement of speculation leads many to overlook the fact that purchases of goods are to some extent hindered by the rise in prices already made.

The advance in wool prices, as reported by Coates Brothers, amounted to nearly 10 per cent. during November.

***

Of the money situation, Bradstreet's says that, although the position of the New York banks in respect to surplus reserves is more satisfactory, call-loan rates have been firm this week, being quoted part of the time above legal interest. This checked general speculative activity, although the advance of the Bank of England rate to 6 per cent. on Thursday had been discounted and London is not inclined to sell American stocks.

***

On the same subject Dun's points out that money has grown easier with large sales of bonds to Government and net receipts of a million currency from the interior, and the proportion of commercial loans is rising, eleven reporting banks making it 20 per cent. for the week against 17⅛ in the best previous week this season.

TO BEAR THE COTTON MARKET.

This bulletin was issued in Wall Street yesterday:

"Efforts to influence the cotton market by means of advertisements in numerous newspapers the past few days, predicting a serious drop in the market, are reported to be traceable to certain bucket shops in this city whose customers are heavily long of the market. The leading newspapers at the South received last night telegrams signed 'J. R. King, 30 Broad Street,' reading: 'Reported here cotton market heavily overbought by South on slim margins and crash looked for. Can you confirm?' Cotton houses here have investigated the matter and find no such person as the alleged signer of the telegrams. The speculative purpose of tactics of this sort is obvious, and they are vigorously denounced in the trade."

WALL STREET TOPICS.

Sale on the Stock Exchange of 10 shares of Chemical Bank stock at 3,900.

Advance of 4 cents a pound on all plug chewing and smoking tobacco made by the Continental Tobacco Company.

Denial by the Westinghouse people of the report that the General Electric Company would share with them in equipping the Manhattan Elevated with electricity.

Increase of $5,720 in Denver and Rio Grande's surplus net earnings for October, making an increase of $38,026 since July 1.

Decrease of $230,437 in imports of dry goods for the week as compared with the previous week, but increase of $274,295 as compared with the corresponding week last year.

Increase of $90,704 in Louisville and Nashville's net earnings for October, making an increase of $635,267 since July 1.

Increase of 29,452 instruments in the net output of the American Bell Telephone Company for the month ended November 20. Making an increase of 247,498 for eleven months.

Purchase of 5,000 acres of coal land in Marion County, W. Va., by the American Coal and Coke Company, which the latter will develop at once.

Shipment of 283,000 ounces of silver to Europe by to-day's steamer.

Total incorporations in Eastern States for November $340,000,000 against $323,000,000 in October, $193,000,000 in September, and $252,000,000 in August.

Increase of $31,121 in Ontario and Western's net earnings for October, making an increase of $204,971 since July 1.

According to Chicago dispatches the Wisconsin Central may come into Chicago over the Illinois Central's tracks and use the latter's terminal facilities, instead of renewing the recently expired contract with the Chicago Terminal Company.

Total coinage at the Philadelphia Mint during November $3,046,070.

Cripple Creek gold production during November $2,130,000, and for the year to date $14,730,000.

Consolidation of various properties into the Denver and Southwestern Railway, with capital $10,000,000 enjoined by the District Court of Denver under the anti-trust law.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call was 5@7 per cent., closing at 5 per cent.

Time money, 6 per cent. for all periods. Mercantile paper, 5½ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsement, 5½@6 per cent. for choice four to six months' single names, and 6 per cent. for others.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $244,237,041; balance, $10,880,621; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $434,076.

Money on call in London, 4½@5 per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, 5⅝@5⅝ per cent. for both short and three months' bills.

Foreign exchange strong. Nominal rates were $4.81½ for sixty days and $4.86⅛ for demand. Rates for actual business closed as follows: Sixty days, $4.81; demand, $4.86¼; cables, $4.87⅛@$4.87⅜. Commercial bills were $4.80¾@$4.81½.

Continental exchange was quoted as follows: Francs, 5.22½ less 1-16 and 5.19⅜ less 1-16; reichsmarks, 94½ and 95 1-16; guilders, 39 15-16 and 40¼.

Exchange on New York at domestic centres: Boston—15@20c premium. Chicago—40c discount. New Orleans—Commercial, $1.25 discount; bank, par. San Francisco—Sight, 10c premium, and telegraphic, 12½c premium. Charleston—Buying, 1-10c discount; selling, 1-10c premium. Savannah—Buying, ⅛c off; selling, par. St. Louis—75c discount. Cincinnati—Between banks, par; over counter, 50c premium.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—American railway shares were fairly steady to-day, but business was restricted, the settlement absorbing the attention of members. The close was steady.

Consols, for money, 102⅛, ex interest; consols, for the account, 102⅝; Canadian Pacific, 97¼; Erie, 13⅝; Erie first preferred, 38¼; Illinois Central, 118½; Union Pacific preferred, 79; St. Paul, 127⅞; New York Central, 143¼; Pennsylvania, 70½; Reading, 10⅝; Northern Pacific preferred, 79; Atchison, 23⅞; Louisville, 87⅛; Grand Trunk, 7¼; Anaconda, 9¼.

Money, 4½@5 per cent. Rate of discount in the open market for short and three months' bills, 5⅝@5¾ per cent.

Bar silver quiet at 27¼d per ounce.

Spanish 4s, 68.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £5,000.

Gold premiums: Buenos Ayres, 132.50; Madrid, 26.07; Lisbon, 42.50; Rome, 5.82½.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were inactive but firm. Spanish 4s were in active demand later, closing at 69. Brazilians were strong. Rio Tintos were agitated, and there was large buying on the rumor that Kimberley had been relieved. Kafirs were firm. Three per cent. rentes, 100f 67½c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 28c for checks.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Prices on the Boerse to-day opened quiet but became firm. Foreign securities hardened on Western advices. Americans were steady, but Canadian Pacifis were dull. Mine shares were strong on bear covering. Exchange on London, 20 marks 45½ pfennigs for checks.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 1.—On the Boerse to-day prices were firm, especially for locals. There were large buying orders.

VIENNA, Dec. 1.—On the Boerse to-day prices were firm, the speech from the throne being well received.

MADRID, Dec. 1.—Spanish 4s closed to-day at 74.60.

Gold was quoted at 26.05.

Cripple Creek Breaks Its Record.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Col., Dec. 1.—The total gold production of the Cripple Creek district in November was $2,515,500, an increase of more than 25 per cent. over the largest previous monthly record.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

No disposition was shown yesterday to trade to any large extent in the market for outside securities, and at no time during the day did the market show more than slight activity. One or two issues furnished the bulk of the day's transactions, while the majority of stocks were entirely neglected. Prices did not change much, but the most important of the net changes were on the side of advances. Brokers found it difficult to sell stocks, but also difficult to buy them, for the market was narrow and lifeless.

STORAGE POWER, in which trading amounted to several thousand shares, was the most conspicuous stock in the list. Strength accompanied the activity in the stock, and closing figures showed a net gain of 1⅝ points. Most of the purchases made appeared to be for the account of insiders. Final sales were effected at 8¼, the top price for the day.

NEW AMSTERDAM GAS showed very little change in either the common or preferred stock, but the bonds were weaker, and ended the day with a fractional net loss. Most of the trading in these bonds was made soon after the opening, when in the neighborhood of $50,000 of the bonds changed hands. Nothing new appears in the local gas situation, and for the time being few rumors in regard to settlement and terms of settlement are heard.

DISTILLING OF AMERICA was fairly active at lower prices. The common stock sold down to 10, and closed at 10 bid, and the preferred stock showed at the end of the day a net loss of 1 point, closing at 33 bid. Declines in these stocks were the result of the general condition of the market which offered little opportunity to dispose of stocks, except at a sacrifice.

ELECTRIC AXLE recovered sharply from the early week decline, and ended the day with a net gain of three-eighths of a point. Top price for the day was reached during the afternoon, when the stock sold at 6⅝. Renewed strength in this issue was seemingly the result of the reports to the effect that much progress has been made in the company's business, and that developments of importance may be announced in a few days. Betterment in the price of Electric Axle was made on light transactions. It opened strong above Wednesday's closing bid.

RUBBER GOODS MANUFACTURING was in demand at the end of the day in anticipation of the declaration of the third quarterly dividend on the preferred stock. This was announced after the close of the market, and was made payable Dec. 15, the books of the company closing Dec. 8 and reopening Dec. 16. It is said that a statement of the company's condition will soon be prepared and presented to the stockholders. Reports in regard to the company's earnings are to the effect that they are very large, and that a very satisfactory dividend is being earned on the common stock. When the next quarterly dividend is declared on the preferred stock, it is probable, it is said in well-informed circles, that the first quarterly dividend will at the same time be declared on the common stock.

MANHATTAN LIGHT AND HEAT has not been traded in at all during the last few days. Efforts are being made to readjust the company's affairs, and to this end most of the stock which was recently issued has been canceled, and not more than 2,500 shares are now outstanding. The company, it is said, has on deposit with the Philadelphia firm that promoted the undertaking sufficient money to retire this stock at its full paid-in value, in case the full amount of the deposit is collected the affairs of the company, it is said, can be easily and satisfactorily liquidated.

Closing quotations were as follows:

ACTIVE SECURITIES.

Gas Companies.

	Bid.	Asked.
Bay State Gas		1¾
New Amsterdam	27	27½
New Amsterdam pf	93	95
New Amsterdam 5s, with interest	96½	97½

Industrials.

American Agricultural Chemical	37	38½
American Agricultural Chemical pf	79	80
American Bicycle	20	23
American Bicycle pf		63
American Bicycle bonds	90	91
American Hide & Leather	36¾	37
American Hide & Leather pf	80¾	81½
American Woolen Goods	25	25½
American Woolen Goods pf	80	81
American Writing Paper 5s	87	..
Beet Sugar	..	28
Beet Sugar pf	..	79
Distilling Company of America	10	10½
Distilling Company of America pf	33	34
Electric Axle Light & Power	25½	26¾
Electric Boat	42	45
Electric Boat pf	..	20
Havana Commercial	..	62½
Havana Commercial pf	61½	..
International Pump	18	20
International Pump pf	67	67½
National Gramophone	74	77
National Salt	48	50
National Salt pf	78	80
National Tube	47	47½
National Tube pf	95½	96
Otis Elevator	25	28
Otis Elevator pf	93	95
Royal Baking Powder pf	96	..
Rubber Goods Mfg	29½	96½
Rubber Goods Mfg. pf	81	30
Sloss-Sheffield	36½	82
Sloss-Sheffield pf	74½	37
Standard Oil of New Jersey, ex div	460	463
Union Steel & Chain	24	27
Union Steel & Chain pf	67	68
U. S. Pneumatic Horse Collar	..	½

Miscellaneous.

Amalgamated Copper	86	87
American Air Power	45	50
American Cotton	..	50
Arizona Lead	..	10¾
Asphalt Company of America	14¾	15
British Columbia Copper	10¾	11½
Chicago & Alton sub	108¼	108½
Chicago & Alton 3s, (new,) w. i	95	98
Electric Vehicle	70	73
Electric Vehicle pf	..	95
*Electro-Pneumatic, assessment paid	1	1⅝
Flemington Coal & Coke	28	28¾
General Carriage	48	60
Illinois Transportation	3	3½
Manhattan Light & Heat	2	5
*Markeen Copper	8	9¼
Mexican 6s	98	99
New England Transportation	7	7½
New York Gas & Electric 4s	90½	91
New York Gas & Electric 5s	102¾	103¼
New York Transportation	13¼	13⅝
Pittsburg, Bessemer & Lake Erie	22¼	24
St. Louis subs	..	130
St. Louis common, when issued	26	31
St. Louis preferred, when issued	..	93
St. Louis, as when issued	..	94¾
Storage Power	..	8⅝
Tennessee Copper	..	16
Trust Company of America	226	230
*Union Copper	..	28
Virginia Coal, Iron & Coke	28	30
Whipsaw Copper	12⅜	13½

*Selling dollars per share. Par value, $10.

LESS ACTIVE SECURITIES.

Street Railways.

	Bid.	Asked.
Broadway & Seventh Avenue	230	240
Broadway & Seventh Avenue 1st	104	105
Broadway & Seventh Avenue 2d	110	112
Broadway Surface 1st 5s	115	117
Broadway Surface 2d	104	105
Brooklyn City Railroad	238	240
Brooklyn, Bath & West End 5s	102	103
Brooklyn Elevated Bonds	103	103½
Brook., Queens Co. & Suburban 5s	111	113
Central Park, N. & E. River	195	..
Central Park, N. & E. River 7s	107	109
Chicago Union Traction	28	28¾
Chicago Union Traction pf	79	79½
Columbus Railway	22	23½
Columbus Railway pf	86	90
Con. Traction of N. J.	64	65
Con. Traction of N. J. 5s	112	113
Eighth Avenue Railroad	400	410
Federal Steel	81½	82
Federal Steel pf	120	120½
42d St., Man. & St. Nicholas Av.	72½	77½
42d St., Man. & St. Nicholas Av. 1st	116½	118
42d St., Man. & St. Nicholas Av. 2d	89	91
Nassau Electric 4s	94	95
Nassau Electric 5s	110	113
New Orleans Traction	30	..
New Orleans Traction pf	104	..
Ninth Avenue Railroad	190	205
North Jersey Street Railway	..	33
North Jersey Street Railway 4s	92	94
Orange & Passaic Valley bonds	103	104
Steinway Railway Co. 6 p. c. 1st	117	118
Second Avenue Railroad consols	115½	117
Sixth Avenue Railroad	215	230
Syracuse Rapid Transit	12	18
Syracuse Rapid Transit pf	25	35
Union Railway 1st 5s	115	117
Union Railway stock	190	200
United Traction, Providence	112	113
Worcester (Mass.) Traction	30	32
Worcester (Mass.) Traction pf	104	107

Gas Companies.

Buffalo (N. Y.) stock	7	9
Buffalo (N. Y.) 1st, with interest	..	80
Central Union 5s guaranteed	103½	109
Consolidated Gas of Newark	56	..
Consolidated Gas of Newark bonds	105	106
Consolidated bonds of N. J.	87½	89½
Consolidated Gas of N. J.	21¾	23½
Consumers' Gas (Jersey City) bonds	102	105
Denver Gas	40	42
Denver Gas 5s	..	86
Essex & Hudson Gas	42	45
Fort Wayne Gas	42	47
Fort Wayne Gas 6s	62	65
Indianapolis Gas	102	106
Indianapolis Gas bonds	103	105
Lafayette Gas Co.	42	50
Lafayette Gas Co. 1st 6s	64	70
Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas	42	48
Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas 6s	64	70
Mutual Gas of New York	300	..
Madison (Wis.) stock	81	83
New England Gas & Coke	25	27
New England Gas & Coke bonds	76	77
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co. 1st	110	115
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co. con	102	112
N. Y. Suburban Gas Co. con	109	112
North Hudson L., H. & P. Co	102½	103¾
North Hud. L., H. & P. Co. bonds	55	56
Ohio & Indiana	107	109
Ohio & Indiana 1st 6s	42	48
St. Joseph (Mo.)	64	67
St. Joseph (Mo.) 5s	40	46
St. Joseph (Mo.) stock	86	98
St. Paul Gas stock	58	61
St. Paul Gas bonds	89	91
Standard Gas, New York	1154	118
Standard Gas, New York, pf	160	..
Standard Gas 1st	116	118
Syracuse Gas stock	14	16
Syracuse Gas 1st 5 per cent. bonds	85	90
Western Gas	106	108
Western Gas 1st 6s, with interest	106	106½

Ferry Companies.

Brooklyn Ferry	30	33
Hoboken Ferry, (new)	68	70
Hoboken Ferry con. 5s	94	95
Metropolitan Ferry 5s	110	113
Union Ferry	41½	43
Union Ferry bonds	101½	102½

Industrials.

American Ginning	20	23
American Type Founders	53¾	54
Anderson Tobacco Company	10	13
Barney & Smith	22	25
Barney & Smith pf	95	..
Barney & Smith bonds	105	107
Consolidated Rubber Tire	..	5
Consolidated Rubber Tire pf	35	45
Crespo Shipyard	73	78
General Chemical	59	..
General Chemical pf	97½	100
Hudson River Telephone	110	115
Lorillard Company pf	116	117
Standard Coupler	35	40
Trenton Potteries	6	10
Trenton Potteries pf	45	55
Union Typewriter	27½	28½
Union Typewriter 1st pf	114	115½
Union Typewriter 2d pf	120	123
Worthington Pump pf	109	110

Miscellaneous.

American Bank Note	47	50
Central & South American Tel	110	112
Iron Steamboat	3	5
Iron Steamboat bonds	50	80
Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis	6	8
Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis pf	23	25

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—The stock market was inclined to drag to-day and the changes, as a rule, were unimportant, and kept within narrow limits. The business done in United States Oil was perhaps the chief feature of the day. It sold from 42¼ down to 42, ex-rights, and the rights were actively traded in at from $1 down to 60 cents. Bell Telephone, on small transactions, dropped 3 points to 356. Dominion Coal was off at first to 52, but rallied later to 53. Planters Compress broke to 81 and then recovered to 82½. Chicago Junction sold firm at 145½ and 146. Cochituate up to 16. Rumor now says that the management of this company will be in a position to declare a dividend within the next sixty days.

In the copper shares the trading was extremely light, and the changes unimportant. United States sold at 33, Massachusetts at 10¼ and 10½, Utah at 37 and 38¼. Bingham was off to 14. Centennial was quoted at 23¼ and 23¾; Copper Range sold at 56, and Parrott at 43½. The day as a whole, for this group of securities, was one of the dullest and most uneventful in several weeks.

At the Clearing House to-day all the loans were made at 6 per cent. and New York funds were in demand at 15, 16 2-3, and 20 cents premium. Money on call ruled from 5½ to 7 per cent., mostly 6 to 7 per cent. Time money was quoted at 5½ to 6 per cent. for four months, though outside money was obtainable on choicest names and collateral as low as 5 per cent. There was not a large movement of commercial paper. Best names were quoted at from 5½ to 6 per cent.

Closing bid and asked:

Mining Stocks.

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Adventure	6¼	7	Old Colony	6	7
Alloues	3	3¾	Old Domin	29	30
Arcadian	31¾	..	Osceola	80	81
Arnold	..	3¾	Parrot	43	44
Ash Bed	..	1	Pioneer	2¾	3
Atlantic	26	27	Quincy	150	..
Baltic	24½	25	Rhode Isl'd	5½	5¾
Bost. & C. C.	..	40	Santa Fé	7½	..
Bost. & Mon.	820	823	Santa Ysabel	2½	10¾
Butte & Bost.	78	79	Shoe	32	33¼
Cal. & Hec.	765	775	Tamarack	216	220
Centennial	23	24	Utah Cons.	36	36½
Franklin	17½	18¼	Washington	1⅛	1⅞
Humboldt	1⅛	3	White Knob	12	14
Isle Royale	32	..	Winona	..	5¼
Mohawk	20	21	Wolverine	41½	42

Railroad Stocks.

Bost. & Alb.	250	253	Mass. pf.	..	7
Bost. & Low.	244	245	Pittsburg pf.	..	12
Bost. & Me.	203¼	204	N. Y. & N. E. 4s	110½	112¼
Bost. & Prov.	299	300	N. Y. & N. E. 7s	115¼	116¾
Bost. Elev.	103	104	N. Y. & N. E. 7s	115¼	116¾
Bost. Gas 5s.	..	85	West End	..	98½
Cent. Mass.	17	..

Miscellaneous Stocks.

Am. Bell Tel.	356¾	358	Mex. Tel.	8½	8¾
Chi. Sk. Yds.	146	147	U. S. Oil	41⅞	41¾
Dom. Coal	52	52¾	West. Elec.	44½	45
D. Coal pf.	118	..	West. El. pf.	65½	..

*Ex dividend.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Beyond a little activity in American Railways, Union Traction, Philadelphia Electric, Cambria Steel, and Electric Company of America, and a further advance in Pennsylvania Steel issues, the market to-day was very dull. There was generally a firm undertone to prices, but even in the active stocks fluctuations were narrow, less than ⅛ per cent. as a rule. Consolidated Traction of Pittsburg rose 1¼ to 30½, in sympathy with an advance in Pittsburg. An effort is being made to form pools in several low-priced stocks, big interests in them having become alarmed lest their continued inactivity may increase liquidation, especially should the market get a setback of any kind.

The close was firm at these bid and asked prices:

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Cambria	22¾	22¼	Union Trac.	41½	41⅝
Choctaw	36	37	U. Gas Imp.	160½	161½
El. Co. of A.	14½	14⅝	Welsbach L.	47	48
Lehigh Val.	26½	26⅝	W. N. Y. & Penn.	6	6½
Marsden	14	14½
Phila. Trac.	96¾	96⅞

CONDITION OF WINTER WHEAT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Weather Bureau to-day issued the following:

"The month of November was exceptionally mild throughout the country with precipitation decidedly below the average over much the greater part. The rainfall exceeded the average, however, from Central and Northern Texas, northward over Oklahoma and Kansas, including portions of Nebraska and Western Iowa, and on the North Pacific Coast, being unusually heavy along the coast of Washington, Oregon, and Northern California.

"Under the very mild temperature conditions which prevailed throughout the month, Winter wheat has rooted well, and with the close of the month was in excellent condition to withstand Winter. There are, however, considerable complaints of damage by Hessian fly, while in portions of Ohio and Michigan the crop has suffered from lack of moisture. Rank growth is quite generally reported, and in Illinois, Kansas, and Oklahoma is being pastured to a considerable extent. The reports generally indicate increased acreage."

NOTES OF INSURANCE INTERESTS.

The insurance on the property of Lewis H. Wells, at 430 Columbus Avenue, which was considerably damaged by fire yesterday, was distributed as follows: On building, London Assurance, $20,000; Royal, $15,000, and Home, $5,000. H. A. Landgraf & Co. will adjust the loss.

It was stated on good authority yesterday that the selection of a new Secretary of the National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford has not been taken up yet, and will probably be left until the annual meeting of the Board of Directors, when the successor to E. G. Richards, who goes with the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company, will be formally chosen. As civil service rules are likely to prevail, Assistant Secretary B. R. Stillman is regarded as the probable successor to Mr. Richards.

Joseph Irwin, one of the Huntington (L. I.) fire insurance agents who are endeavoring to form a local rating compact, was in this city yesterday, and conferred with several underwriters in regard to this effort, which, if successful, may be later extended to cover the greater part of Suffolk County. Mr. Irwin said that as soon as the matter has been talked over with the officers or managers of all of the companies represented in Huntington a meeting of the local agents will be called, in order to draw up some plan of organization.

The admission of the Prussian fire insurance companies to this State created some discussion among fire underwriters yesterday as to the advisability of advocating a repeal of the retaliatory law, under the provisions of which these companies were excluded, because of the difficulties of the American life companies in Prussia. Assistant Manager C. M. Slocum and State Agent Frank C. Sturtevant of the Aachen and Munich Insurance Company, which received its license Wednesday, will begin the establishment of a State agency system to-day.

The large liability carried by Lloyds, London, on the Philadelphia risks burned Wednesday, and amounting to more than $250,000, was cited by underwriters yesterday as a striking illustration of the new element of competition with which the stock companies have been meeting during the last nine or ten months. The operations of Lloyds, London, according to a British manager yesterday, have been greatly extended since the formation of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange last March. The latest information in regard to the aggregate insurance loss in the Philadelphia fire led conservative underwriters to think yesterday that the entire loss will not exceed $1,000,000 by any considerable margin.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

Complete Transactions in Stocks—Friday, Dec. 1, 1899.

Closing Bid.	Closing Asked.	Sales.		First.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Change.
16½	17	1,030	Am. Car & Foundry	17	17⅛	16½	16¾	− ⅛
62	62½	135	Am. Car & Found. pf.	62¼	62¼	62¼	62¼	− ¼
34	34½	200	American Ice	34⅝	34⅝	34⅝	34⅝	−2
36½	37	310	American Cotton Oil	37¼	37¼	37	37	− ⅛
93	100	10	American Cotton Oil pf	95	95	95	95
15⅝	15⅞	1,630	American Linseed	16	16	15⅝	15⅞	+ ⅛
59⅜	60	7,185	Am. Linseed pf	59⅝	61	59⅜	59⅜
44	46	200	Am. Malting Co. pf	46	46	45	45	−2
40	40¼	2,560	Am. Smelt. & Ref.	40¼	40⅝	39⅝	40	− ⅛
90⅝	91¼	1,270	Am. Smelt. & Ref. pf.	91⅛	91⅝	91¼	91¼	− ⅛
4	5	100	American Spirits Mfg.	4	4	4	4	− ⅛
49¼	49½	5,505	Am. Steel & Wire	49	49¾	49	49¾	+ ¼
95	95½	200	Am. Steel & Wire pf.	95½	95¾	95	95
155½	155¾	18,530	Am. Sugar Ref. Co.	155⅝	156¾	154½	155¾	−1⅛
118⅜	119	100	Am. Sugar Ref. Co. pf.	119	119	119	119
34½	34⅝	240	American Tin Plate	34⅝	34⅝	34½	34½	+ ¼
83½	83⅞	75	Am. Tin Plate pf.	84¼	84¼	84¼	84¼
117⅝	117⅞	10,542	American Tobacco	118	118	117	117⅝	− ⅛
47½	47⅝	3,500	American Steel Hoop	47⅝	48	47½	47⅝
85	85½	1,800	Am. Steel Hoop pf.	85	85	85	85	− ⅛
23	23¼	1,685	At., T. & S. F.	23¼	23¼	23	23	− ⅛
65¾	65⅞	11,625	At., T. & S. F. pf.	66	66¼	65¾	65¾	− ⅛
58	58	2,125	Baltimore & Ohio	57⅝	57⅞	57⅜	57⅝	− ⅛
83½	83⅝	14,245	Baltimore &

mon opened at 33, but on the purchase of a few hundred shares went to 35. The preferred was handled to a small extent at the opening at 83½.

		High.	Low.	Close.
6,175	Linseed	16	15¼	15⅝
18,450	Linseed pf	62½	59⅞	62¼
25	Radiator pf	115	115	115
250	Strawboard	32	32	32
80	Tin Plate	35	35	35
100	Consolidated Trac	47	47	47
1,238	Union Traction	35	33	34
380	Union Traction pf	83½	83	83
41	City Railway	288	288	288
37	Diamond Match	30½	30	30
210	Lake St. "L" ctfs	16⅛	15⅞	15⅞
735	Met. Elevated	29	28⅝	29
360	Met. Elevated pf	82	80⅞	81⅞
110	National Biscuit	41½	41½	41½
40	National Biscuit pf	95	94½	94½
51	National Carbon	19	19	19
7	National Steel	47½	47½	47½
100	National Steel pf	95¾	95½	95¾
10	South Side Elevated	103½	103½	103½
10	Street's W. S. C. L	23	23	23
100	West Chicago	117½	117½	117½

BONDS.

		High.	Low.	Close.
$30,000	Met. Elev. gold 4s	96	95¾	95¾

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

	1899.	1898.	1897
OHIO RIVER—
Mileage	224	224	224
3d week Nov	$32,826	$21,404	$22,334
From Jan. 1	1,055,142	863,440	866,121
BUFFALO, ROCHESTER & PITTSBURG for October—
	1899.	1898.	Increase.
Gross earnings	425,838	349,671	76,167
Op. expenses	252,599	231,488	21,111
Net earnings	173,238	118,183	55,056
From July 1 to Oct. 31—
Gross earnings	1,513,973	1,375,915	138,058
Op. expenses	933,206	890,312	42,896
Net earnings	580,765	485,603	95,162
DENVER & RIO GRANDE for October—
	1899.	1898.	1897.
Gross earnings	980,085	898,372	791,857
Op. expenses	585,316	512,696	476,094
Net earnings	394,769	385,686	315,953
Pro. op. ex. to gr.	59¾	57	60¼
Add interest	.....	326	406
Less interest	2,390	.....	.....
Total income	392,378	386,001	316,359
Charges	201,818	201,172	205,724
Net income	190,559	184,829	110,615
Renewal funds	15,000	15,000	.....
Surplus	175,559	169,839	.....
Gross, 4 months	3,505,943	3,208,638	2,906,303
Net, 4 months	1,333,175	1,167,560	1,199,743
Total income	1,425,809	1,409,586	1,220,670
Net income	621,605	583,670	404,614
Surplus	561,605	523,670	.....
DETROIT & MACKINAC for October—
Gross earnings	51,757	33,935	33,936
Op. expenses	44,154	28,943	25,382
Net earnings	7,603	4,992	8,574
Pro. op. ex. to gr.	85⅞	85¼	74⅝
Gross, 4 months	251,675	166,627	136,338
Net, 4 months	79,364	30,364	27,162
LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE for October—
Gross earnings	2,510,305	2,102,886	1,868,454
Op. expenses	1,308,899	1,291,684	1,250,193
Net earnings	901,906	811,202	618,281
Prop. op. exp. to gross	64½	61½	66⅞
Gross, 4 months	9,294,251	7,733,255	7,306,887
Net, 4 months	3,180,370	2,545,103	2,496,102
NEW YORK, ONTARIO & WESTERN for October—
Gross earnings	454,265	368,327	370,412
Op. expenses	312,962	258,145	251,174
Net earnings	141,303	110,182	119,238
Prop. op. exp. to gross	69	70½	67¾
Gross, 4 months	1,840,177	1,457,706	1,521,592
Net, 4 months	652,447	447,476	602,984
Charges (app.)	229,274	.....	.....
Surplus	423,173	.....	.....
PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD for October—
Lines directly operated east of Pittsburg—
Gross earnings	6,976,278	6,001,778	5,996,778
Op. expenses	4,439,178	3,757,178	3,820,878
Net earnings	2,537,100	2,244,600	2,175,900
Prop. op. exp. to gross	63⅝	62⅝	63⅝
Gross, 10 months	55,437,884	54,040,584	52,785,284
Net, 10 months	17,542,607	16,973,307	16,906,307
Lines directly operated west of Pittsburg—		1898-1899.
Gross earnings		Inc.	$657,100
Operating expenses		Inc.	659,800
Net earnings		Dec.	2,700
Gross earnings, ten months		Inc.	4,542,300
Net earnings, 10 months		Inc.	1,267,900
Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore—
	1899.	1898.	1897.
Gross earnings	991,961	885,251	798,281
Op. expenses	583,145	622,445	594,045
Net earnings	528,336	262,836	204,236
Gross, 10 months	8,878,859	8,254,059	7,594,959
Net, 10 months	2,800,255	2,230,055	1,993,855
Northern Central—
Gross earnings	772,407	669,907	645,636
Op. expenses	475,934	426,934	426,935
Net earnings	296,473	242,973	218,701
Gross, 10 months	5,841,970	5,406,870	5,531,077
Net, 10 months	1,493,179	1,509,679	1,699,790
West Jersey & Seashore
Gross earnings	220,330	201,830	178,112
Op. expenses	188,292	166,302	157,896
Net earnings	32,038	32,088	20,216
Gross, 10 months	2,718,320	2,349,520	2,239,903
Net, 10 months	846,396	676,496	614,302

MINING STOCK QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—The official closing quotations for mining stocks to-day and Wednesday were as follows:

	Friday.	Wednesday.
Alta	.06	.06
Alpha Con	.04	.03
Andes	.16	.14
Belcher	.30	.29
Best & Belcher	.50	.46
Bullion	.06	.05
Caledonia	.61	.60
Challenge Con	.24	.23
Chollar	.23	.21
Confidence	.90	.90
Con. Cal. & Va	2.20	1.85
Con. Imperial	.01	.01
Crown Point	.22	.21
Gould & Curry	.20	.19
Hale & Norcross	.32	.32
Julia	.02	.02
Justice	.08	.09
Kentucky Con	.01	.01
Lady Washington Con	.06	.06
Mexican	.57	.56
Occidental Con	.13	.12
Ophir	1.15	1.15
Overman	.17	.17
Potosi	.28	.28
Savage	.17	.16
Sag Belcher	.06	.04
Sierra Nevada	.44	.44
Standard	2.75	2.80
Syndicate	.06	.06
St. Louis	.06	.06
Union Con	.37	.37
Utah Con	.08	.09
Yellow Jacket	.18	.18
Silver bars	59⅛@59¾	59⅛@59¾
Mexican dollars	47½@48¼	47½@48⅛
Drafts, sight	.10	.10
Telegraph	.15	.15

FINANCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The City and Suburban Homes Company has declared a dividend payable on and after Dec. 4.

NOVEMBER TREASURY FIGURES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The monthly comparative statement of the receipts and expenditures of the Government during November shows the total receipts to have been $46,945,572, as against $38,900,915 for November, 1898. The disbursements during the last month were $40,769,847, which leaves a surplus for the month of $6,175,725.

The receipts for customs during the month amounted to $19,204,417, an increase over November, 1898, of about $4,000,000.

Internal revenue receipts were $23,698,254, an increase of over $2,300,000. From miscellaneous sources the receipts were $4,047,900, an increase of nearly $2,000,000.

The total receipts from all sources during the last five months was $238,034,390, an increase of $33,477,000 over the same period in 1898. The disbursements during the last five months amounted to $224,621,000, as against $287,816,000 for the same period last year.

The Treasury statement of the public debt issued to-day shows that at the close of business Nov. 29, 1899, the debt, less cash in the Treasury, amounted to $1,140,091,831, a decrease for the month of $6,537,750.

During the month the bonded indebtedness of the Government was decreased by the purchase of bonds amounting to about $9,712,851. During the same time there was a decrease in the cash on hand of $3,175,100, which was used in bond purchases.

The debt is recapitulated as follows:

Interest bearing debt	$1,037,049,690
Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity	1,209,820
Debt bearing no interest	388,048,760
Total	$1,426,308,270

The total does not include $678,260,903 in certificates and Treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash in the Treasury.

The cash in the Treasury is classified as follows: Gold, $390,653,107; silver, $496,728,872; paper, $64,888,542; bonds, deposits in National bank depositories, disbursing officers' balances, &c., $90,857,666. Total, $1,043,128,288, against which there were demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $756,911,848, which leaves a net cash balance on hand of $286,216,439.

The monthly circulation statement of the Controller of the Currency shows at the close of business Nov. 29, 1899, the total circulation of National bank notes was $243,760,248, an increase during the month of November of $775,554, and an increase during the last twelve months of $1,058,210.

The circulation based on United States bonds amounted to $209,161,902, an increase for the month of $1,241,128, and a decrease for the year of $4,766,941.

The circulation secured by lawful money amounted to $34,598,346, a decrease for the month of $465,574, and an increase for the year of $5,824,851.

The amount of United States registered bonds on deposit to secure circulating notes was $234,221,460, and to secure public deposits, $70,194,940.

The monthly statement of the Director of the Mint shows that the total coinage executed at the mints of the United States during November was $9,511,070, as follows: Gold, $6,643,700; silver, $2,612,000; minor coins, $255,370.

The Block in the "Soo" Passage.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 1.—More than 140 vessels are now detained here owing to the stranding of the steamer Siemens, which continues to completely block the channel. The lighters are working night and day on the stranded steamer. The dredges resumed work to-day in cutting the bank below, where the Siemens now rests.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Ark Brand Paint Company of Niagara, Falls; capital, $25,000. Directors—George Chittenden, Fred F. Myers, and Alfred L. Pease, Niagara Falls.

Majestic Sewing Machine Company of New York City; capital, $9,000. Directors—Eugene La Grove, Brooklyn; Edward E. Pollock and Louis V. Ebert, New York City.

Everett Boarding and Livery Stable Company of New York City; capital, $2,000. Directors—Frederick Link, Jr., John S. Muirheid, James J. Weglan, New York City.

Ishpeming Company of Buffalo, to mine and market iron ores; capital, $160,000. Directors—Mary J. Faith D., Samuel H., Frank B., and Chester R. Baird, and William J. Jamison, Buffalo.

International Railway Supply Company of New York City; capital, $10,000. Directors—James L. Banks, Ellery O. Anderson, Andrew A. Bibby, Charles C. Bull, and Newbold L. R. Edgar, New York City.

Rochester Optical and Camera Company of Rochester; capital, $3,500,000. The company will begin business with $2,000,000. Directors—William F. Carlton, Harvey B. Carlton, Rufus K. Dryer, Benjamin E. Chase, Edward W. Reck, Vincent H. Smith, and Frederick P. Allen of Rochester.

Butternut Valley Telephone Company of Otsego County, to maintain lines in Gilbertsville, Maple Grove, Morris, and other villages in the county, with termini at West Oneonta; capital, $3,500. Directors—G. O. Peck and E. E. Steele, New Lisbon; W. F. Ward and E. C. Brewer, Gilbertsville; Frank Hull, James Martingale, and George Whitman, Morris.

New Jersey Corporations.

TRENTON, Dec. 1.—The following companies were incorporated here to-day:

Cramp Marine Improvement Company, to design, construct, or take down dams, drydocks, sea walls, and all kinds of marine or land structures; capital, $100,000.

Seashore Hotel Company, to build and operate hotels at resorts along the New Jersey coast; capital, $500,000.

Roanoke Furnace Company, to mine and sell coal and to manufacture iron, steel, lime, and brick from furnace cinder; capital, $500,000.

Virginia Rolling Mill, to mine and sell coal and manufacture iron and steel; capital, $200,000.

Iron Gate Furnace Company; capital, $100,000.

Glen Echo Land Company of Camden, to develop real estate; capital, $150,000.

Pennsylvania Bluestone and Quarry Company, to mine and quarry stone in Pennsylvania and New Jersey; capital, $100,000.

Columbus Edison Company, to deal in securities and bonds; capital, $800,000.

Incorporated in Delaware.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 1.—The following companies were chartered by the Secretary of State at Dover to-day:

The American Wedgetype Company of New York, capital, $600,000; to manufacture a type printing machine under letters patent granted to Henry Richardson Rogers and also to make a Rogers proof-taking machine.

The American Development Company of this city, capital, $100,000; to assist in getting charters for incorporations in this State and elsewhere.

The Metropolitan Specialty Company, West Orange, N. J., capital, $50,000; to make, buy, and sell household goods.

The Trenton Company of Chicago, capital, $250,000; to construct, operate, and maintain improved hotels, baths, parks, and pleasure resorts.

The Consolidated Lime Company of Baltimore, capital, $10,000, to deal in lime, cement, &c.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Fourteen Lots on Upper Seventh Avenue Corner Sold—Other Dealings by Brokers and at Auction.

Archibald Watt has sold to William H. Hail the plot at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and One Hundred and Forty-second Street, being 100 feet on the avenue and 350 feet on the street.

Foley & Sniffin have effected a resale of the five-story building 80 Warren Street, 25 by 100, for Charles F. Hoffman, Jr., and Francis Ward. The property has been bought by a firm for its own occupancy. In connection with the sale the brokers report that they obtained a loan of $32,000 on the property at 4 per cent. interest.

Martin & Brother would not confirm or deny a report that they had sold the eight-story Barrington apartment house 40 and 42 East Twenty-fifth Street, 50 by 98.9.

Mrs. M. Le Brun-Cooper has bought, through Henry D. Winans & May, from T. J. Quirk, the five-story American basement dwelling 14 East Ninety-fifth Street.

Thomas P. Fitzsimons has sold for Miss Frances S. Thomson the four-story brick tenement, with three-story brick tenement at the rear 335 West Forty-first Street.

Whitehouse & Porter have sold for Charles T. Cook and Charles L. Tiffany the plot at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street, 100.9 by 175, on the street.

Foley & Sniffin have sold to H. Brocas and resold for the latter to Louis Heims the five-story tenement 65 Forsyth Street, 25 by 100. The same firm has also sold, in conjunction with Oscar L. Foley, for $35,000, the plot at the southwest corner of One Hundred and Seventy-ninth Street and Vanderbilt Avenue, with a frontage on Alden Place about 165 by 236.

Douglas Robinson & Co. have sold for Frederick W. Frischen the four-story dwelling 121 East Fifty-sixth Street, 20 by 100.5.

It is reported that Charles Buek has sold to Mrs. T. C. Buck the five-story American basement dwelling 326 West One Hundred and Seventh Street, 30 by 100.11.

Leopold Hutter has sold for $21,600 the four-story flat, with stores, at the northwest corner of Second Avenue and One Hundred and Third Street, 25.5 by 75. Mr. Hutter has also sold the plot, 60 by 100, at the northwest corner of Morris Avenue and One Hundred and Fiftieth Street, and the two frame dwellings at the northwest corner of Brook Avenue and One Hundred and Forty-ninth Street, 50 by 90.

Edward Polak has sold for Martin J. Keogh to Edward Reilly four lots in the Wakefield section, numbered 25, 30, 31, and 32, located on the south side of Nineteenth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues; also, for Martin J. Keogh, to Frederick Le Meire, the northwest corner of Eighteenth Street and Fifth Avenue, Wakefield.

At a meeting of the Auctioneers' Association, held yesterday afternoon at 111 Broadway, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President—James L. Wells; Vice President—Morris Wilkins; Secretary—D. Phoenix Ingraham; Treasurer—William M. Ryan. The Executive Committee will serve and its members Peter F. Meyer, William F. Redmond, Louis Mesier, Albert M. Arneberg, and Philip A. Smyth.

Results at Auction.

Yesterday's offerings in the Trinity Building Salesroom resulted as follows:

By Richard V. Harnett & Co.

179 Madison Street, 24.6 by 100, five-story brick tenement; foreclosure sale, to Albert Capelle $37,750

By Peter F. Meyer & Co.

193 West Eighty-eighth Street, 16.8 by 100.8½, three-story stone-front dwelling; foreclosure sale, to the plaintiff, the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company. 10,000

Forest Avenue, west side, 150 feet north of the road from Westchester to West Farms, four lots, each 25 by 100; foreclosure sale, to the plaintiff, Julia Knapp 5,000

Lafayette Street, south side, 150 feet west of Prospect Avenue, runs south 50 by southwest 79.8 to the middle line of One Hundred and Seventieth Street by northwest 21 by northeast 71.1 by northwest 84.8 to the middle line of Lafayette Street by east 20 by south 25 to beginning, vacant; foreclosure sale, to J. F. O'Grady 5,260

THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

List of Plans Filed for New Structures and Alterations.

No. 258 East Tenth Street, for a five-story and basement brick flat, with stores, 22 by 77.9; Lowenfeld & Prager of 115 Broadway, owners; G. F. Pelham, architect; cost, $22,000.

Nos. 97 and 99 Avenue D, for a six-story and basement brick tenement, with stores, 36 by 67; Lowenfeld & Prager, owners; G. F. Pelham, architect; cost, $25,000.

Avenue A, west side, 25.5 feet north of Sixty-first Street, for a one-story frame stable and office, 16 by 53; New York Central Coal Company of 29 Broadway, owner; Sass & Smallheiser, architects; cost, $2,000.

No. 3,752 Third Avenue, rear, for a one-story frame stable, 25 by 10; Charles N. Mazza, premises, owner; W. Q. Tait, architect; cost, $100.

No. 341 to 347 East Twelfth Street, for four six-story brick flats, with stores, 25 by 90; George Hornburger of 62 East Seventieth Street, owner; Kurtzer & Rohl, architects; cost, $80,000.

One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, northwest corner of Sherman Avenue, for a five-story brick flat, 32.6 by 95; John Massimino, owner; W. C. Dickerson, architect; cost, $25,000.

Washington Avenue, east side, 50 feet south of One Hundred and Seventy-fourth Street, for two two-story frame dwellings, 21 by 56; C. H. Thornton, owner; W. C. Dickerson, architect; cost, $5,000.

No. 164 Fifth Avenue, for a seven-story brick store and lofts, 26 by 67; Mrs. M. Judd of 53 West Fifty-seventh Street, owner. Parfitt Brothers, architects; cost, $25,000.

Alterations.

Nos. 71 and 73 Grand Street, corner of Wooster Street, to a four-story brick store and lofts; S. & M. Eiseman, owners; M. C. Merritt, architect; cost, $4,550.

No. 21 West Forty-eighth Street, to a five-story brick dwelling; Mrs. E. P. Stillman, premises, owner; G. M. Scott, architect; cost, $300.

No. 55 Marion Street, to a four-story brick school; city, owner; J. B. Robinson, architect; cost, $500.

No. 418 West Twenty-eighth Street, to a four-story brick school; city, owner; J. B. Robinson, architect; cost, $500.

Columbus Avenue, southeast corner of Seventy-second Street, to a seven-story brick flat, with store; J. A. Farley, owner; Janes & Co., architects; cost, $200.

Two Hundred and Fifteenth Street, north side, 175 feet east of Tenth Avenue, to a two-story and basement brick and frame dwelling and store; John Mara, owner; F. Wolfgang, architect; cost, $350.

No. 427 and 429 Broadway, to a five-story brick office and loft building; estate of J. N. Hayward of 254 West One Hundred and Third Street, owner; B. L. Gilbert, architect; cost, $10,000.

Eighty-ninth Street, northeast corner of Park Avenue, to a five-story brick flat and store; Louis Seiferd of 212 East Eighty-sixth Street, owner; W. O. Tait, architect; cost, $50.

Recorded Real Estate Transfers.

Friday, Dec. 1.

AVENUE A, w s, 26.6 ft s of 3d St, 25.6x100; Thomas J. Dunn, Sheriff, to Joseph Applegate 7,000

BROOK AV, 547, 24.11x106.9x27.11x121.6; John Connelly to Laura E. Smith 100

CANAL ST, 439, 16.6x irregular; Herman G. E. Scheiding to Edmund D. Randolph and others, joint tenants 13,500

CANAL ST, 443 and 445, h s, 33.4x90x 33.11x56.6; Morris Rothman to E. D. Randolph and others 26,000

CANNON ST, 57, w s, 25x100; Theodore Bitterman to Adolph Sandrovitz 1

CLAREMONT AV, s w corner of 122d St, 100x100; Matilda Weil executrix, &c., and others to George Simpson 44,500

CLAREMONT AV, s w corner of 122d St, 100x100; George A. Stimpson to William Bradley and another 1

CHOSBY ST, 49, e s, 25x100; Peter Wagner and wife to Rachel Vose 5,572

1213T ST, s s, 365 ft e of Lenox Av, 20x99.11; Louis Hanneman, referee, to the Fifth Avenue Bank 1,783

133D ST, n s, 185 ft e of Lenox Av, 25x99.11; Bella Brand to Leo Kramer 1

134TH ST, s s, 436.8 ft e of Willis Av, 17.61x100; Catherina Herzog to Adolph Herzog 1

134TH ST, 14 West, 25x99.11; Kenneth K. Blauvelt to Chris Bagulie 100

134TH ST, 690 East, 16.8x100; Gustavus Robitzek and others to Emil Robitzek, ⅔ part 1

1377TH ST, n s, 256 ft e of Alexander Av, 16.6x100; Auke Dooper to Peter Grein 66,000

145TH ST, n s, 233.4 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 33.4x99.11; John T. Little, Jr., to Melvina S. Dennett and others, executors 31,000

148TH ST, s s, 150 ft w of St. Ann's Av, 24.9x100; Raphael Danziger to Timothy Sullivan ..... Exch.

149TH ST, s s, 175 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 15x99.11; 149th St, s s, 220 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 30x99.11; James T. Barry and wife to John Hughes 1

161ST ST, s s, 200 ft w of Morris Av, 25x118.3; Timothy Sullivan to Raphael Danziger ..... Exch.

161ST ST, 877 and 879 East, 50x88.7; Gustavus and Edward Robitzek to Emil Robitzek, ⅔ part 1

161ST ST, n s, 21 ft w of Jackson Av, 16.75; Gustavus and Edward Robitzek to Emil Robitzek, ⅔ part 1

165TH ST, s s, Lots 4 to 8, Block 509, map of sub-division of property of Lyman Tiffany, runs e 66.9x s e 74.1 to n w s of Westchester Av, n e 75x n w 54x n 43.1x w to beginning; Joseph L. O'Brien to William Simpson 9,500

173D ST, 550, s w corner of Audubon Av, 17x50; John Eusner to Henry Peffer 15,000

Recorded Leases.

HARRIS, John, to Samuel Greenberg; 895 Amsterdam Av, 5 years 780

JOSEPHS, Lyman C., to Seymour Oppenheimer; 706 Madison Av, 5 1-12 years 2,000

KISSEL, Caroline T. to John C. Mount and another; 26 Malden Lane, s w corner of Nassau St, 5 years 6,500

KRUSE, Henry, to Annie Brown; 652 East 152d St, 5 6-12 years $1,094

LEVY, Henry, et al, another to David Shapiro; 184 Christie St, 4 years 3,000

LEVY, L. Napoleon, to Philip Rosenberg & Co.; 4,243 3d Av, 5 years $840, 1,080

TURLEY, Patrick, to Hugh Bannon; 67 Ea. 118th St, 3½ years 600

VOGEL, William, to Malone; 1,485 and 1,487 3d Av, 2½ years 3,890

WEIL, Samuel, to M. Groh's Sons; 911 8th Av, n w corner of 54th St, 20½ years 1,800

WELSH, William, to Susan E. Chambers; 113 East 126th St, 10 years 300

Recorded Mortgages.

ADELSON, Thomas, and Moses A. S. Cone to Elizabeth Sweet; 18th St, s s, 200 ft w of 1st Av, 2 years 8,000

BAGUHN, C. to Sara C. Nelson; 14 West 134th St, 2 years 3,500

BANNON, Hugh and Mary, to the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company; 67 East 118th St, saloon lease, demand 500

BECKER, C. Adelbert, to Bowery Savings Bank; Tremont Av, s s, 69.10 ft e of Webster Av, 5 years 7,500

BLOCK, Fanny and Ferdinand, to Irving Savings Institution; 102d St, n s, 155 ft e of 3d Av, 3 years 12,000

BOCK, Katie, to Elizabeth Ericson; Simpson St, s s, 96.8 ft n of 169th St, extends irregularly to 168th St, 3 years 500

BLOSS, Julia C. and Adelbert C., to Anna H. Mildeberger; 252 West 104th St, 3 years 15,000

CAGGIANO, Vincheso and Lorita, to Patrick Skelly; 1st Av, s w corner of 116th St, 1 year 4,000

CAMPBELL, Mary A., to Daniel Mapes, Jr.; Rustic Av, n w s, Lot 58, map of the village of East Tremont, 1 year 1,500

CAMPBELL, Mary A., to Emilie W. Burger; Crotona Av, e s, 336.7 ft n of 181st St, 3 years 1,000

CARVER, Emma B., to Aninha J. Carver and another, administrators; 514 West End Av, 5 years 8,000

CLARKE, Elizabeth, to the Title Guarantee and Trust Company; 202 9th Av, 5 years 16,000

CHAIMOWITZ, Jacob, to Diedrich Oeters; 58 West 129th St, 5 years 22,000

DANNHAUSER, Paul, to Thomas O'Connor; Ryer Av, e s, 282.1 ft n of Burnside Av, 2 years 800

DOUGLAS, James, to Daniel N. Tucker and another, executors, &c.; Van Cortlandt Av, n s, extends from Yonkers Av to Palisade Av, 5 years 12,000

DWYER, Elizabeth, to Paul M. Herzog; Union Av, e s, 125 ft s of proposed 151st St, installments 2,100

ELIAS, Robert F., and Henry F. to Lina Wallach and another; 2,285 7th Av, 5 years 20,000

120TH ST, n s, 209.7 ft w of 8th Av, 16.8x 99.11; Charles E. Appleby, trustee, against Frederick Feldermann and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, A. H. Wagner.

129TH ST, 236 West; Miller Brothers against Mrs. Raible, owner and contractor 63

150TH ST, n s, 400 ft e of Boulevard, 125x100; Dimock & Fink Company against Caroline F. Brownell, owner; Frank Woytisek, contractor 130

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

CASH PRICES FOR STAPLES.

Wheat, No. 2 red	.72⅝
Corn, No. 2 mixed	.39⅝
Oats, No. 2 mixed	.30
Flour, Minnesota patents	$3.90
Cotton, middling	7 13-16
Coffee, No. 7 Rio	.06⅞
Sugar, granulated	5.18
Molasses, O. K. prime	.30
Beef, family	12.75
Beef hams	24.00
Tallow, prime	.04⅝
Pork, mess	9.25
Hogs, dressed, 160 lb.	.05⅝
Lard, prime	5.37½
Iron, Northern, No. 1 foundry	23.00
Butter, Western creamery	27.00

CHICAGO, Dec. 1—No. 3 Spring wheat, 58@64c; No. 2 red, 65½@66½c; No. 2 corn, 30⅝c; No. 2 yellow corn, 30⅝c; No. 2 oats, 23@23¼c; No. 3 white, 24½@25c; No. 2 rye, 54½c; No. 2 barley, 35½@43½c; No. 1 flaxseed, $1.39; Northwestern, $1.39; prime timothy seed, $2.45; mess pork, per bbl, $7.65@$9.50; lard, per 100 lb, $4.80@$5.07½; short ribs, sides, (loose,) $4.80@$5.15; dry-salted shoulders, (boxed,) 5⅝@6½c; short clear sides, (boxed,) $5.15@$5.25; whisky, distillers' finished goods, per gallon, $1.23½; sugars, cut loaf, $5.70; granulated, $5.15; clover, contract grade, $7.75@$7.90.

COTTON.—The rather unsettled condition of the market during the forepart of the week gave way to a feeling of great confidence in bull circles and pronounced nervousness among the short contingent. The market opened steady in tone at an advance of 5@8 points, and around the opening showed considerable inherent strength on active demand from both sides, prompted mainly by very bullish cables from the English market and plenty of evidence that the crop movement, not only for to-day, but for some time to come, would be very light. After going off 4@5 points in sympathy with a sudden down turn in Liverpool, the market recovered the loss and scored marked additional advances on very active general buying in which the foreign element, Southern interest, and Wall Street figured conspicuously. Rumors that the market was honeycombed with stop orders of the small marginal type failed to undermine the confidence of room bulls or to instill courage in the bear crowd, which made practically no resistance to the onward rush of prices. Southern spot markets were officially reported by wire as follows: New Orleans, firm at 7 7-16c; Savannah, 7¼c; Wilmington, holiday; Norfolk, 7¼c; Baltimore, 7¾c; Augusta, 7¼c; Memphis, 7 7-16c; St. Louis, 7 7-16c; Charleston, 7⅝c bid.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
December	7.41	7.45	7.40	7.44@7.45
January	7.51	7.56	7.48	7.53@7.54
February	7.51	7.57	7.51	7.56@7.57
March	7.56	7.61	7.52	7.59@7.60
April	7.57	7.61	7.57	7.60@7.61
May	7.59	7.65	7.58	7.62@7.63
June	7.59	7.69	7.58	7.62@7.63
July	7.58	7.65	7.58	7.63@7.64
August	7.53	7.60	7.51	7.59@7.60
September	7.18	7.19	7.17	7.19@7.20
October	6.96	7.02	6.95	7.01@7.03

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 1.—Spot cotton, fair business doing; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and exports, 1,000 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 6,000 bales; American, 6,000 bales; midland upland, 4 11-32d. Futures opened steady, partially 1 point advance; closed very steady, 2½ to 3 points net higher; December-January, 4.10½d; January-February, 4.09d; February-March, 4.08d; March-April, 4.07d; April-May, 4.06d; May-June, 4.04½d; June-July, 4.03½d; July-August, 4.03d; August-September, 4.00½d; September-October, 3.56@3.57; December, 4.13. Manchester—Yarns move slowly. Cloths, the higher prices asked check business.

WOOL.—LONDON, Dec. 1.—The wool auction sales were resumed to-day. The attendance was large, and an extensive demand caused keen competition. Fine reasy merinos were in particular request, and all grades were strong.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin to-morrow will say of the wool market: "The London public sales confirmed the level reached at the sale which closed on Tuesday, 15 per cent. since the last auctions. Dollar wool has come in Boston for the first time since 1884. A line of Tasmanian sold this week at $1 the scoured pound. The scarcity of merino wool all over the world is sending Canadian users of South African wools to this market for California and Arizona cheap in the shape of burry and defective finds a ready purchaser in the exporter. Some short Oregon goes abroad this week at a scoured cost of 60 cents. The heavy stocks left here from the glut of 1897 have prevented the market from rising relatively as high as foreign markets, but the rise is swift enough when speculators in one month realize profits as they have this week on scoured A super of 10 cents a pound. Sales are largely Territory, Oregon, and unwashed, with a smart demand for quarter-blood, Indiana and Missouri. Quarterbloods have advanced 4 cents the scoured pound this week. The sales for the week are 21,311,000 bales of domestic and 767,000 bales of foreign, a total of 12,078,000 bales for the week, against a total of 12,352,000 bales last week and a total of 8,487,000 for the corresponding week last year. The receipts to date show an increase of 365,224 bales of domestic, and a decrease of 20,220 bales of foreign, against last year. The sales to date show an increase of 183,547,600 bales of domestic and 18,012,400 bales of foreign.

FUTURES.

NEW YORK PRICES.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
Wheat—
December	70⅝	71 1-16	70 5-16	70⅝
March	74⅜	74⅝	73¾	73⅞
May	74 7-16	74 11-16	73⅝	73¾
Corn—
December				38⅛
May	38⅛	38 9-16	38¼	38¼

CHICAGO PRICES.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
Wheat—
December	65⅝	65⅝	64⅝	64⅝
May	69⅞	70	68¾	69
Corn—
December	30⅜	31	30½	30¼
May	32⅝	32⅝	32¼	32¼
Oats—
December	22⅝	22⅝	22¼	22¼
May	24	24	23½	23¼

BREADSTUFFS.—WHEAT—The wheat market was narrow and slow. Deliveries at Chicago on December wheat contracts were unexpectedly small, figuring up but 250,000 bushels during the forenoon; while, on the other hand, they were larger than expected at New York. Here they reached about 600,000 bushels, all of it No. 2 red. Northwestern receipts were a little larger than looked for; the movement at Minneapolis is figured up 717 cars for two days, while Duluth reported 742 cars for one day. This day last week Minneapolis and Duluth together reported 740 cars, and last year 1,283 cars. No. 2 red was quoted at 72¾c spot, No. 1 hard Duluth at 77⅝c prompt, No. 1 Northern Duluth at 76½c prompt, and No. 1 hard Manitoba at 77⅝c to arrive.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 1.—Wheat—No. 1 hard cash, 65c; to arrive, 64½c; No. 1 Northern cash, 64c; to arrive, 63½c; December, 63½c; May, 67⅝c; July, 68⅝; No. 2 Northern, 61½c; No. 3 Spring, 58c.

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 1.—Wheat—In store, No. 1 Northern December, 61½c; May, 65⅝@65½c; July, 67c. On track—No. 1 hard, 65c; No. 1 Northern, 63c; No. 2 Northern, 61c.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 1.—Wheat, ½c lower; No. 1 Northern, 66c; No. 2 Northern, 64@63c. Rye steady; No. 1, 55@55½c. Barley, 1c lower; No. 2, 43c; sample, 24@42c.

CORN

QUAY'S APPOINTMENT OPPOSED

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.—The following memorial addressed to the Democratic members of the United States Senate by the Democratic State Executive Committee of Pennsylvania is made public to-night. It gives in detail the reasons why M. S. Quay should not be permitted to take his seat in the Senate.

"The Democratic Executive Committee of Pennsylvania, in meeting duly assembled, respectfully submits the following reasons for your consideration against the seating of Matthew S. Quay as an appointed Senator from Pennsylvania:

"A vacancy arose on March 4, 1899, in the office of United States Senator from Pennsylvania by the expiration of the term of Matthew S. Quay.

"The Democratic members of the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania unanimously, in connection with almost one-third of the Republican representatives in the General Assembly and representing more than a majority of the membership thereof, continuously for seventy-nine days, and until adjournment, voted against the re-election of the said Matthew S. Quay as United States Senator. He failed of an election as Senator by the Legislature of the State. Whereupon William A. Stone, Governor of Pennsylvania, undertook to appoint him Senator, notwithstanding the provisions of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, Article II., Section 4, which reads as follows:

"'In case of a vacancy in the office of United States Senator from this Commonwealth in a recess, the Governor shall convene the two houses by proclamation on notice not exceeding sixty days, to fill the same.'

"And the Constitution of the United States which thus provides, Article I., Section I:

"'And if vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise during the recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the Legislature.'

"And this notwithstanding this vacancy in the representation of Pennsylvania in the United States Senate happened during the sessions of the Legislature of this State, to wit: March 4, 1899, and that the Legislature adjourned April 20, 1899, more than six weeks after this vacancy occurred.

"It is plain, under the Constitution of Pennsylvania, that the Governor is required to convene the Legislature to fill a vacancy within sixty days. This authority to convene the Legislature to fill a vacancy cannot be lawfully construed that because the Legislature failed to elect, therefore the Governor is vested with the power of appointment; because, first, the Constitution of the United States authorizes the Governor to make such appointments only during the recess of the Legislature; second, because the Constitution of Pennsylvania provides what the Executive shall do, to wit, convene the Legislature.

"We therefore submit as a reasonable and legal proposition that when the Constitution of Pennsylvania expressly provides how the vacancy shall be filled, no other method can be lawfully substituted. The people of Pennsylvania, in their fundamental law, have said that the Legislature shall fill the vacancy in the office of Senator, and not the Governor.

"We respectfully appeal to you to oppose the seating of Matthew Stanley Quay not only for the legal and constitutional reasons herein briefly set forth, but also because he is the head and front of a 'political machine,' which has continuously, through the officeholders elected by it, violated the Constitution of our State in refusing to make a Senatorial and Representative apportionment of our State; that he has degraded our public life and debauched our elections, and passed election laws that are but means of practicing fraudulent voting and counting, and has denied the constitutional right of the people of the State to vote for the adoption of amendments to the Constitution necessary to secure the purity of our elections.

"We therefore protest against the appointment of Matthew S. Quay as Senator from Pennsylvania and request that you oppose the seating of the said Matthew S. Quay, and that you adhere to the precedents and construction of the Constitution of the United States since the formation of the Union of States."

BURGLARS IN THE TENDERLOIN.

Capt. Price of the West Thirtieth Street station has preferred charges of neglect of duty against three of his men, and they will be tried at the next hearing held by the Police Commissioners. Their names are withheld. The three men in question were on the post near 280 Sixth Avenue on Thanksgiving Day, yet none of them noticed burglars break into Michel's jewelry shop at that number, and steal several hundred dollars' worth of gold watches, silverware, &c. The burglary was committed early in the morning. The policemen, it is alleged, did not even see the broken glass, although it littered the sidewalk they were supposed to patrol.

The same burglars, it is thought, broke into Kirschbaum Brothers' meat market at Seventh Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street. They took two dozen of the choicest turkeys in the stock from that place. They then visited A. Leblowitz's furnishing shop, at 162 West Twenty-eighth Street, and took almost a wagon load of haberdashery, cloths, &c. The policemen on the post reported none of these robberies.

DRY GOODS.

ARE YOU WEARING THE DUCHESS, Albert, or Lavallière Gloves? They fit most beautifully. All the newest Winter shades in stock, 4 West 37th St., near 5th Av.

BOARDERS WANTED.

40 EAST 39TH ST.—Large and hall rooms, (second floor,) with board; parlor dining room; references.

SITUATIONS WANTED—FEMALES.

Chambermaids.

CHAMBERMAID.—In private family; reference. Address by letter, J. C. R., 990 6th Av.

Companions.

COMPANION, &c.—By lady of refinement as companion or attendant to an invalid or elderly person, or any position of trust; references exchanged. E. E., 708 Columbus Av.

Cooks.

COOK.—In private family; understands all kinds of cooking thoroughly; best personal reference. Canavan, 318 West 44th St.

COOK.—First-class cook; best city reference; city or country. 115 West 30th St., rear.

Dressmakers.

DRESSMAKER.—Competent dressmaker; will go out by day; in private families; fit guaranteed; per day, $2. K., 257 West 42d St.

Governesses.

GOVERNESS or COMPANION.—As nursery governess or companion to an invalid lady; hospital experience; where integrity is considered. Trust, Millburn Post Office, N. J.

Nurses.

NURSE.—By a German girl, speaking Italian, as nurse to young children. Apply at 45 West 48th St., on Saturday afternoon, between 2 and 4.

NURSE.—By experienced trained nurse; wishes to go South with invalid or child; remuneration moderate. Hedwig Loewy, 1,208 5th Av., near 101st St.

Seamstresses.

SEAMSTRESS.—By a young woman as first-class seamstress; private family; city references. 498 West 35th St., Brennan's bell.

SITUATIONS WANTED—MALES.

Bookkeepers.

BOOKKEEPER.—To builders and building material dealers: A good bookkeeper, able to estimate on plans and a good mathematician, for the whole or part of his time. Accurate, 109 West 125th St.

HELP WANTED—MALES.

WANTED—Young men, 18 to 22 years of age, in a down-town bank; good writers only need answer. Bank, Box 148 Times Office.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, BUREAU FOR THE COLLECTION OF TAXES, No. 57 Chambers Street, (Stewart Building,) New York, December 2d, 1899.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons who have omitted to pay their taxes for the year 1899 to pay the same to the Receiver of Taxes at his office in the Borough in which the property is located, as follows:

Borough of Manhattan, No. 57 Chambers Street, Manhattan, N. Y.;

Borough of The Bronx, corner Third and Tremont Avenues, The Bronx, N. Y.;

Borough of Brooklyn, Rooms 2, 4, 6, and 8, Municipal Building, Brooklyn, N. Y.;

Borough of Queens, corner Jackson Avenue and Fifth Street, Long Island City, N. Y.;

Borough of Richmond, Richmond Building, New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y.;

before the first day of January, 1900, as provided by Section 919 of the Greater New York Charter, (Chapter 378, Laws of 1897.)

Upon any such tax remaining unpaid after the first day of December, 1899, one per centum will be charged, received, and collected, in addition to the amount thereof, and upon such tax remaining unpaid on the first day of January, 1900, interest will be charged, received and collected upon the amount thereof at the rate of seven per centum per annum, to be calculated from the second day of October, 1899, on which day the assessment rolls and warrants for the taxes of 1899 were delivered to the said Receiver of Taxes, to the date of payment, pursuant to Section 916 of said act.

DAVID E. AUSTEN, Receiver of Taxes.

PURCHASE AND EXCHANGE.

HALF REGULAR RETAIL PRICE PAID FOR 1896 magazines in good condition in any quantity. State names of magazines and what months. Only issues of 1896 wanted. Address "MAGAZINES," Post Office Box 2,718, New York City.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE Southern District of New York.—JOSEPH FEINER, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Joseph Feiner, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated November 16, 1899, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before the Hon. Addison Brown, United States District Judge, in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Wednesday, December 13th, 1899, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, Dec. 1, 1899.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of PINKUS GANZ, Bankrupt.—In bankruptcy.

To the creditors of Pinkus Ganz of New York, in the County of New York and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that on the 24th day of November, A. D. 1899, the said Pinkus Ganz was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee, 31 Nassau Street, New York City, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1899, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a Trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Dec. 1, 1899.

NO. 275.—UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT for the Southern District of New York.—GUSTAV GOLDMANN, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Gustav Goldmann, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated December 1st, 1899, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before the Hon. Addison Brown, United States District Judge, in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Wednesday, December 20th, 1899, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

THEODOR AUB,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, December 2d, 1899.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of LOUIS GOLDMAN, Bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.

To the creditors of Louis Goldman of the City of New York, in the County of New York, and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that on the 21st day of November, A. D. 1899, the said Louis Goldman was duly adjudicated bankrupt; and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at 52 Exchange Place, in the City of New York, on the 14th day of December, A. D. 1899, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

MORRIS S. WISE,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

December 1st, 1899.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE Southern District of New York.—NATHAN LUBETKIN, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Nathan Lubetkin, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated August 30, 1899, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before the Hon. Addison Brown, United States District Judge, in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Wednesday, December 13th, 1899, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, Dec. 1st, 1899.

MIDGLEY, WILLIAM E.—In the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy—In the matter of WILLIAM E. MIDGLEY, bankrupt.—In Bankruptcy.—No. 1,712.

To the creditors of William E. Midgley of the County of New York and district aforesaid, a bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 13th day of November, A. D. 1899, the said William E. Midgley was duly adjudicated bankrupt; and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of John J. Townsend, referee, at 45 Cedar Street, in New York City, on the 18th day of December, A. D. 1899, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

JOHN J. TOWNSEND,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

December 1, 1899.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE Southern District of New York.—MAX PELLER, Bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Max Peller, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated November 24th, 1899, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before the Hon. Addison Brown, United States District Judge, in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Wednesday, December 20th, 1899, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, December 1st, 1899.

NO. 1,784.—IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of WILLIAM SCHWALENBERG, bankrupt.

To the creditors of William Schwalenberg of the City and County of New York, and district aforesaid, a bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that on the 28th day of November, A. D. 1899, the said William Schwalenberg was adjudicated bankrupt; and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Theodor Aub, referee, No. 149 Broadway, in the City and County of New York, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

THEODOR AUB,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, December 2, 1899.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of SAMUEL STERN, Bankrupt.—In bankruptcy.

To the creditors of Samuel Stern of New York, in the County of New York and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that on the 14th day of November, A. D. 1899, the said Samuel Stern was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at the office of Peter B. Olney, referee, 31 Nassau Street, New York City, on the 15th day of December, A. D. 1899, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a Trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

Dec. 1, 1899.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE Southern District of New York.—GOTTLIEB WANNBACKER, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Gottlieb Wannbacker, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated November 25, 1899, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before the Hon. Addison Brown, United States District Judge, in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Wednesday, December 13th, 1899, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

PETER B. OLNEY,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, Dec. 1st, 1899.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, District of New Jersey.—Whereas, EDWARD E. KIPLING of Roselle, in said district, has been duly adjudged a bankrupt under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy, and appears to have conformed to all the requirements of law in that behalf; it is, therefore, ordered by this Court that said Edward E. Kipling be discharged from all debts and claims which are made provable by said acts against his estate, and which existed on the 22d day of April, A. D. 1898, on which day the petition for adjudication was filed by me, excepting such debts as are by law excepted from the operation of the discharge in bankruptcy. Witness, the Hon. Andrew Kirkpatrick, Judge of said District Court, and the seal thereof, this 9th day of October, A. D. 1899. (Sgd.) GEO. T. CRANMER, Clerk.
[L. S.]

LEGAL SALES.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the Southern District of New York.—In the matter of HERMAN LANGE, Bankrupt.—In bankruptcy.

The assets and effects of the above-named bankrupt, which consist of the good will of the bakery business carried on at No. 96 First Avenue, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, together with a lot of fixtures, is now for sale to the highest bidder. Bids for sale of bulk should be made to the undersigned, at his office, No. 90 First Avenue, on or before December 14th, 1899, at twelve o'clock noon. All bids must be in writing, and the sale to be for cash only.

I expressly reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

EDWARD BIGGS, Receiver.
MYERS, GOLDSMITH & BRONNER, Attorneys.

LEGAL SALES.

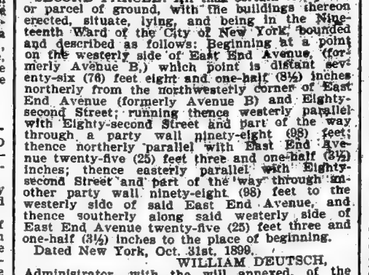
SURROGATE'S COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.—In the matter of the application of Charles Riederer, a creditor, for the disposition of the real property of Anton Deutsch, deceased, for the payment of his debts.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to a final decree, entered in the above-entitled proceeding, bearing date the 30th day of August, 1899, I, the undersigned, will on the 22d day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, by Bryan L. Kennelly, auctioneer, sell at public auction the premises directed by said decree to be sold and therein described as follows:

FIRST PARCEL: All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the easterly side of East End Avenue (formerly Avenue B) distant fifty-one (51) feet and five (5) inches northerly from the northeasterly corner of East End Avenue (formerly Avenue B) and Eighty-second Street, which point is distant seventy-six (76) feet eight and one-half (8½) inches northerly from the northeasterly corner of East End Avenue (formerly Avenue B) and Eighty-second Street; running thence westerly parallel with Eighty-second Street and part of the way through a party wall ninety-eight (98) feet; thence northerly parallel with East End Avenue twenty-five (25) feet three and one-half (3½) inches; thence easterly parallel with Eighty-second Street and part of the way through another party wall ninety-eight (98) feet to the westerly side of said East End Avenue, and thence southerly along said westerly side of East End Avenue twenty-five (25) feet three and one-half (3½) inches to the place of beginning.

Dated New York, Oct. 31st, 1899.

WILLIAM DEUTSCH,
Administrator, with the will annexed, of the Estate of Anton Deutsch, deceased.
LEWIS S. GOEBEL, Attorney for Administrator, 41 Park Row, Manhattan Borough, New York City.



The approximate amount of the liens or charges to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $9,206.50, with interest thereon; together with the costs, allowances, and disbursements of the proceeding and expenses of the sale.

Parcel No. 1 is to be sold subject to a mortgage for $13,000, with interest thereon from February 17th, 1898, at five per cent. per annum, and taxes, assessments, and water charges amounting approximately to $1,199.17.

Parcel No. 2 is to be sold subject to a mortgage for $14,000, with interest thereon from February 17th, 1898, at five per cent. per annum, and taxes, assessments, and water rents amounting approximately to $1,080.67 and interest.

WILLIAM DEUTSCH, Administrator.

n9-law6wTh

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—HARRIET W. WILCOX, plaintiff, against HUGH C. MUNDAY and others, defendants.

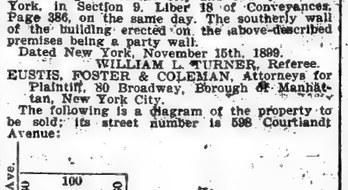
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 14th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 7th day of December, 1899, at twelve o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, Auctioneer, the premises described in said judgment as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth (159th) Street, distant ninety-eight (98) feet westerly from the northwesterly corner of said One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street and Courtlandt Avenue; thence running northerly parallel with Courtlandt Avenue one hundred and one (101) feet; thence westerly, parallel with One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet; thence southerly again parallel with Courtlandt Avenue, one hundred and one (101) feet to the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street; and thence easterly along said side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet to the point or place of beginning.—Dated, New York, November 14th, 1899.

MORRIS CUKOR, Referee.
BOWERS & SANDS, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 51 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property referred to in the foregoing notice of sale:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $23,287.50, with interest thereon from the 10th day of November, 1899, together with costs and allowance amounting to $356.95 and the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase-money, or paid by the referee, is $413.15 and interest.

Dated New York, November 15th, 1899.

WILLIAM L. TURNER, Referee.

NOS. 583 AND 585 EAST 159TH STREET.—New York Supreme Court, County of New York.—HENRY W. GILBERT, plaintiff, against PHILIP J. DIRKSEN et al., defendants.

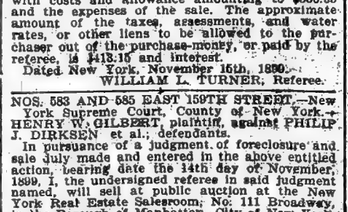
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action, bearing date the 14th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 7th day of December, 1899, at twelve o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, Auctioneer, the premises described in said judgment as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City of New York, bounded and described as follows, viz.:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth (159th) Street, distant ninety-eight (98) feet westerly from the northwesterly corner of said One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street and Courtlandt Avenue; thence running northerly parallel with Courtlandt Avenue one hundred and one (101) feet; thence westerly, parallel with One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet; thence southerly again parallel with Courtlandt Avenue, one hundred and one (101) feet to the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street; and thence easterly along said side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet to the point or place of beginning.—Dated, New York, November 14th, 1899.

MORRIS CUKOR, Referee.
BOWERS & SANDS, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 51 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property referred to in the foregoing notice of sale:



The approximate aggregate amount of the plaintiff's lien upon the premises, with interest, costs and disbursements, is $2,949.36, and the taxes, assessments and water rates $162.18. The approximate aggregate amount of prior liens upon the premises, with interest, is $19,855.

MORRIS CUKOR, Referee.
BOWERS & SANDS, Plaintiff's Attorneys.
n15-2aw3wW&S4d8

LEGAL SALES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—METROPOLITAN TRUST COMPANY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, as trustee, &c., plaintiff, against JOSEPH K. E. POYNTON and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the twenty-second day of November, 1899, and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the twenty-fourth day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the twentieth day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

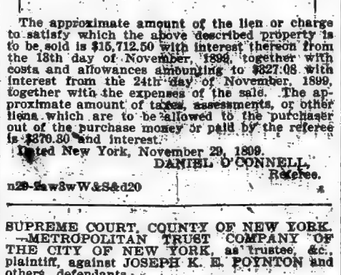
All that certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street distant three hundred and seven feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street with the westerly line of Lenox Avenue, running thence southwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue and part of the way through a party wall one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block between One Hundred and Eighteenth and One Hundred and Nineteenth Streets; thence westwardly along said centre line and parallel with One Hundred and Nineteenth Street eighteen (18) feet; thence northwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue one hundred feet and eleven inches to the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street, and thence eastwardly and along the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street eighteen (18) feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, November 27, 1899.

DANIEL O'CONNELL,
Referee.

PARSONS, SHEPARD & OGDEN, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 111 Broadway, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold is $15,712.50 with interest thereon from the 18th day of November, 1899, together with costs and allowances amounting to $827.08 with interest from the 24th day of November, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $370.80 and interest.

Dated New York, November 29, 1899.

DANIEL O'CONNELL,
Referee.

n29-3aw3wW&S&d20

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—METROPOLITAN TRUST COMPANY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, as trustee, &c., plaintiff, against JOSEPH K. E. POYNTON and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the twenty-second day of November, 1899, and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the twenty-fourth day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the twentieth day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street distant two hundred and eighty-nine feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street with the westerly line of Lenox Avenue; running thence southwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block between One Hundred and Eighteenth and One Hundred and Nineteenth Streets; thence westwardly, along said centre line and parallel with One Hundred and Nineteenth Street, eighteen feet; thence northwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred feet and eleven inches to the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street; and thence eastwardly and along the said northerly line or side of One Hundred and Thirty-second Street twenty feet to the point or place of beginning.

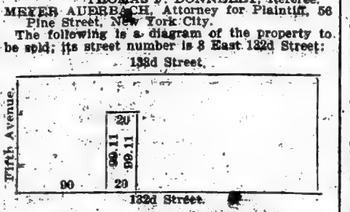
Said premises being now known as and by the street number Three East One Hundred and Thirty-second Street, New York City.

Dated New York, November 16, 1899.

THOMAS F. DONNELLY, Referee.

MEYER AUERBACH, Attorney for Plaintiff, 56 Pine Street, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 3 East 132d Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $15,712.50, with interest thereon from the 18th day of September, 1899, together with costs and allowance amounting to $314.75, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $638.20 and interest. Sale is made subject to monthly hirings by tenants.

Dated New York, 16th day of November, 1899.

THOMAS F. DONNELLY, Referee.

n20-2aw3wM&S&d11

SUMMONSES.

SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.—Plaintiff desires the trial in the County of New York.—THE GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, plaintiff, against JOSEPH LUKE, "Maria" Luke, wife, the name "Maria" being fictitious, the first name of the wife of said Joseph Luke being unknown to plaintiff, Anna Auer, Isabelle N. Leo and Solomon Moses, defendants.

To the above named defendants:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorneys within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, and in case of your failure to appear or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.—Dated, New York, August 25, 1899.

DULON & ROE, Plaintiff's Attorneys, 115 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, N. Y.

To Joseph Luke, defendant:

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of Hon. Leonard A. Giegerich, one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, dated the 16th day of November, 1899, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, at the County Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 16th day of November, 1899.—Dated New York, November 16, 1899.

DULON & ROE, Plaintiff's Attorneys.

n11-law6wS

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—METROPOLITAN TRUST COMPANY of the City of New York, as guardian, &c., plaintiff, against JOSEPH K. E. POYNTON and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the twenty-second day of November, 1899, and entered in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York on the twenty-fourth day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the twentieth day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

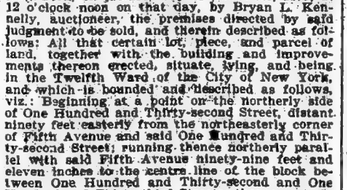
All that certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Twelfth Ward of the City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street distant three hundred and seven feet westerly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street with the westerly line of Lenox Avenue, running thence southwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue and part of the way through a party wall one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block between One Hundred and Eighteenth and One Hundred and Nineteenth Streets; thence westwardly along said centre line and parallel with One Hundred and Nineteenth Street eighteen (18) feet; thence northwardly and parallel with Lenox Avenue one hundred feet and eleven inches to the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street, and thence eastwardly and along the southerly line of One Hundred and Nineteenth Street eighteen (18) feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, November 27, 1899.

DANIEL O'CONNELL,
Referee.

PARSONS, SHEPARD & OGDEN, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 111 Broadway, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is $15,712.50, with interest thereon from the 18th day of November, 1899, together with costs and allowances amounting to $827.08 with interest from the 24th day of November, 1899, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money or paid by the referee is $370.80 and interest.

Dated New York, November 29, 1899.

DANIEL O'CONNELL,
Referee.

n29-3aw3wW&S&d20

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—LEOPOLD JONAS, plaintiff, against WILLIAM H. WEIHER and another, defendants.

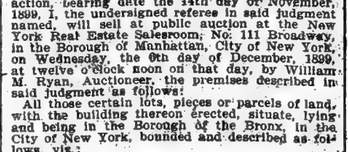
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 15th day of November, 1899, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 11th day of December, 1899, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by William M. Ryan, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows, viz.:

All that certain lot of land, with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Borough of the Bronx, in the City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth (159th) Street, distant ninety-eight (98) feet westerly from the northwesterly corner of said One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street and Courtlandt Avenue; thence running northerly parallel with Courtlandt Avenue one hundred and one (101) feet; thence westerly, parallel with One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet; thence southerly again parallel with Courtlandt Avenue, one hundred and one (101) feet to the northerly side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street; and thence easterly along said side of One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, fifty (50) feet to the point or place of beginning.—Dated, New York, November 14th, 1899.

MORRIS CUKOR, Referee.
BOWERS & SANDS, Attorneys for Plaintiff, 51 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property referred to in the foregoing notice of sale:



The approximate aggregate amount of the plaintiff's lien upon the premises, with interest, costs and disbursements, is $2,949.36, and the taxes, assessments and water rates $162.18. The approximate aggregate amount of prior liens upon the premises, with interest, is $19,855.

MORRIS CUKOR, Referee.
BOWERS & SANDS, Plaintiff's Attorneys.
n15-2aw3wW&S4d8

ON TO KHARTOUM.

THOS. COOK & SON are now prepared to book passengers through to KHARTOUM and the SOUDAN by rail, or by their own steamers; service from CAIRO to Wady Halfa, thence rail. Particulars on application.

THE NILE.

The demand for accommodation on the NILE STEAMERS is so great that an Extra Steamer on Jan. 25 from Cairo has been arranged for.

Tourists intending to visit the FIRST or SECOND Cataracts of the NILE, or to proceed to the SOUDAN, should apply at once for berths.

Plans of all the steamers, and cabins reserved, at any of our offices. Connecting Steamer and Railroad tickets for EGYPT from any point.

THOS. COOK & SON,
261 and 1225 Broadway, N. Y.
Boston, Phila., Chicago, etc.

CUNARD LINE

TO LIVERPOOL VIA QUEENSTOWN.
From Pier 54 and 52 North River.

Campania...Dec. 2, 2 PM | Etruria...Dec. 23, 10 AM
Umbria...Dec. 9, 10 AM | Campania...Dec. 30, 2 PM
Lucania...Dec. 16, 2 PM | Umbria.....Jan. 6

VERNON H. BROWN & CO., Gen. Agents, 4 BOWLING GREEN, NEW YORK.

WHITE STAR LINE.

NEW YORK—QUEENSTOWN—LIVERPOOL.

Germanic...Dec 6, Noon | Cymric.....Jan. 3
Oceanic...Dec. 13, 2 PM | Germanic..Jan. 10, Noon
Teutonic..Dec. 27, Noon | Oceanic.....Jan. 24

For passage, freight, and general information apply to WHITE STAR LINE, Pier 48 North River. Office, 9 Broadway, N. Y.

JAPAN-CHINA

Hawaii and Philippine Islands
PACIFIC MAIL S. S. CO.
OCCIDENTAL AND ORIENTAL S. S. CO.

Between San Francisco, Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki, Shankhai, Hong Kong.

Steamers leave San Francisco at 1 P. M.

COPTIC.....Dec. 13 | GAELIC.....Jan. 6
AMER MARU...Dec. 21 | H. K. MARU...Jan. 16

For freight, passage, and general information apply at 349 Broadway, or 1 Battery Place, Washington Building, and 327 Broadway.

OLD DOMINION LINE.

DAILY SERVICE.

For Old Point Comfort, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Pinner's Point, Newport News, and Richmond, Va., connecting for Petersburg, Richmond, Virginia Beach, Washington, D. C., and entire South and West.

Freight and passenger steamers sail from Pier 26, North River, foot

O'BRIEN AND CLARK WIN

Court Orders Controller to Pay Aqueduct Claim of $700,000.

A LESSON TO TAXPAYERS

Mr. Coler Attacks the Power of the Corporation Counsel as Exerted in the Case.

A peremptory writ of mandamus was served upon Controller Coler yesterday requiring him to pay immediately the claim of $700,000 held against the city by O'Brien & Clark for extra work done on the new aqueduct. The matter has been in the courts in various phases for several years, and Controller Coler has resisted the payment of the claim ever since he went into office. Mr. Coler said:

"Of course I will now pay the claim as the court directs, though I am confirmed in the belief that it is unjust. The defeat of the city in its efforts to set aside and nullify the judgments confessed in the aqueduct claims should be a startling lesson to the taxpayers of New York. The city litigated these claims to the Court of Appeals five or six years ago, employing at large expense the most eminent lawyers in the city, and succeeded in finally defeating them on their merits. Thereafter the predecessor of the present Corporation Counsel confessed judgment to the amount of $700,000, on the ground that by doing so the city avoided the possibility of having to pay a larger amount by the passage of relief bills in the Legislature. In other words, the consideration for what would otherwise be a simple gift of the city's money was fear of future legislation adverse to the interests of the City of New York.

"Such a power as this should not be allowed to rest in the hands of any one man. It is important to note, however, that the last decision of the Court of Appeals sustaining the confession of judgment was not made—as has been erroneously stated—upon an argument on the right of the Corporation Counsel to confess judgment without the consent of the Controller. The certificate obtained from the Appellate Division upon which the Court of Appeals heard the case, and to which its jurisdiction exclusively related, did not present this question. The recent efforts which I have made to have this fundamental question decided by the Court of Appeals before payment of the judgment was finally made appear to have been frustrated, and I now see no way in which payment of these judgments can be avoided.

"If the Court of Appeals should finally decide that the Corporation Counsel possesses the power to confess judgments in unlimited amounts without the consent and against the protests of the Controller, in cases where the city's rights have been judicially maintained by the courts upon such flimsy pretexts as a fear of what future Legislatures might enact, it is certainly time that such powers should be limited by an amendment to the charter. In the former City of Brooklyn it required the consent of three elective officers before confessions of judgment could be made, and similar restrictions exist in cases of nearly all large municipalities. No single defect in the charter possesses such threatening possibilities as this."

UNPAID TAX PENALTIES.

Collections of Levy in Last Two Months Aggregate $55,603,324.43.

The penalty of 1 per cent. on unpaid taxes begins to-day, and on Jan. 2 next a penalty of 7 per cent. accrues, dating from Oct. 2, 1899, to the date of payment. During October and November the collections returned to Col. David E. Austen, Receiver of Taxes, in all boroughs, aggregated $55,603,324.43. The total levy amounted to $86,986,058.91. The collections in the several boroughs, as compared with the levy in each, are as follows:

	Levy.	Collected.	Per Cent.
Manhattan	$63,200,737.02	$41,449,130.86	65.58
Bronx	3,289,159.65	1,894,649.45	57.60
Brooklyn	15,783,832.53	9,813,916.89	62.18
Queens	3,643,516.99	1,795,826.21	49.28
Richmond	1,068,212.72	650,401.02	60.88

ASKS A MILLION FOR BRIDGES.

Commissioner Shea Wants to Begin Construction on East River.

Bridge Commissioner Shea yesterday sent a letter to Mayor Van Wyck and the Board of Estimate asking for an appropriation of $1,000,000 to begin the construction of the two projected bridges over the East River. Both these bridges will be of the cantilever construction. That which will extend from Sixtieth Street over Blackwell's Island to Long Island City will cost, according to estimates, $12,548,500, and the other, which will have its Manhattan terminus at Pike Slip and its Brooklyn end at Washington Street, $15,833,600.

Mr. Shea said that there was no intention to purchase any existing franchises for bridges. Dr. Raney has been for years trying to sell to the city a franchise which he holds for a bridge over Blackwell's Island, but the franchise will expire before actual work begins on the proposed new structure. Frederick Uhlmann, who owns a franchise for a bridge between the Brooklyn Bridge and the lower end of the new East River bridges, said yesterday that the site selected by Commissioner Shea would not interfere with his rights, as he has already selected another site.

Acquiring Land for New Docks.

The Commissioners of Docks and Ferries were notified yesterday that Mary Bell, who owns a parcel of land on the south side of South Street, between Jefferson and Clinton Streets, East River, would accept the offer of the board to buy the land for $175,000. This will include wharfage rights in Pier 47, (old number,) East River. The board wants to buy certain land near Rutgers Slip and between Eighteenth and Twentieth Streets, East River, and of the various offers made to owners this is the first acceptance. Engineer in Chief Bensal advised that plans and specifications be prepared for a new pier at the foot of Pike Street, East River, to be known as Pier 17.

MOLINEUX TRIAL CONFERENCE.

Attorneys Expect the Case to Last Until January—The Evidence.

Bartow S. Weeks of counsel for Roland B. Molineux paid a visit yesterday to Assistant District Attorney Osborne, the object of which was to examine some of the handwriting exhibits to be used by the prosecution in the trial of his client for the alleged poisoning of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams. There were also present Handwriting Experts Carvalho and Ames. Messrs. Weeks and Osborne went over the case in general to determine, if possible, the length of the trial. Mr. Osborne, after the conference, intimated that the prosecution would call about ninety witnesses. Mr. Weeks thought the defense would have about thirty witnesses. It was the general opinion that the trial would last until January.

From the strenuous efforts of the detectives employed by the District Attorney's office it is evident that each day's delay in the trial has been welcomed. Last night the detectives learned that a missing witness, Cleothus Pruet, who formerly was employed as cashier in the Hoffman House café, had returned to the city, after an absence of six weeks. The detectives did not succeed in locating him, but are sure that he is back in the city, and that they can produce him at the trial. He is wanted to tell what he is believed to know about the late H. C. Barnet and a woman who has figured prominently in the case. It is said that Bruet can testify to a state of ill-feeling existing between Barnet and Molineux. Evidence relating to the death of Mr. Barnet was introduced before the Grand July that first indicted Molineux, and a Supreme Court Justice set aside the indictment on the ground that such evidence was inadmissible.

While Weeks & Battle, Molineux's attorneys, are non-committal as to the evidence which the defense intends to produce at the trial, it is understood that one of the principal witnesses in Molineux's behalf will be Mrs. Molineux.

Mr. Osborne denied yesterday the report that detectives employed by the District Attorney's office were shadowing the jurors in the case and Harry Cornish, who is expected to be the leading witness for the prosecution.

ROYAL

The absolutely pure

BAKING POWDER

ROYAL—the most celebrated of all the baking powders in the world—celebrated for its great leavening strength and purity. It makes your cakes, biscuit, bread, etc., healthful, it assures you against alum and all forms of adulteration that go with the cheap brands.

Alum baking powders are low priced, as alum costs but two cents a pound; but alum is a corrosive poison and it renders the baking powder dangerous to use in food.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 100 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.

LEGAL NOTES.

MUTUAL AGREEMENT OF HUSBAND AND WIFE TO SEPARATE IS VOID.—Frederica Poillon brought suit in the Supreme Court to enforce an agreement entered into on the 1st of May, 1898, between herself and her husband, John J. H. Poillon, whereby he was to pay her $250 a month for the support of herself and her children. By this action it was sought to recover $500, being the instalments for May and June of 1899, all the previous instalments having been paid. The agreement recited that in consequence of certain differences between the parties, they mutually consented and agreed "to hereafter live separate and apart from each other." There was neither allegation nor proof that the parties had separated prior to the making of the agreement. Justice McAdam, before whom the case was tried, yesterday gave judgment for the defendant. In his opinion Justice McAdam said that from all that appeared, it was a voluntary agreement by which the husband and wife, living together, mutually agreed thereafter to live separate and apart from each other; and he holds that such an agreement was one which could not be enforced, and that to give effect to such post-nuptial contracts would be to hold out to parties temptation to the voluntary repudiation of conjugal rights, and abandonment of marital duties. The court holds that the plaintiff's contention is not aided by the act of 1892, which is embodied in the domestic relation law of 1896, providing that a married woman may contract with her husband or any other person to the same extent and with like effect and in the same form as if unmarried, because the Legislature very guardedly provided that nothing in the act should be considered to authorize a husband and wife to enter into any contract by which the marriage relations should be altered or dissolved, or to relieve the husband from his liability to support his wife.

***

AGREEMENT OF ADOPTION.—When the will of Joseph Thorne was offered for probate in Richmond County, May Thorne Brantingham sought to intervene as an adopted child and heir-at-law. The Surrogate held that there was no valid adoption, and his decision was affirmed by the Second Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals. Then Mrs. Brantingham brought suit against Eunice E. Huff and others, the devisees and grantees under Mr. Thorne's will, to compel a specific performance of a contract claimed to have been made between her mother, her only parent surviving at the time, and Mr. Thorne, whereby the mother transferred her right in the child to Mr. and Mrs. Thorne, who agreed to adopt the child as their own and upon their death to give her all the property of which either might then be possessed. The complaint was dismissed on the trial at the Kings County Special Term, last January. The Second Appellate Division recently directed a reversal, holding, by Justice Cullen, that the action was maintainable by the plaintiff, and that the decree of the Surrogate in the probate proceeding was not a bar to its maintenance. The Court held that an instrument purporting to be an indenture of adoption entered into between the mother, the adopting parents, and a Superintendent of Public Charities on behalf of the child, which did not purport to state the agreement between the mother and the adopting parents, pursuant to which the child was surrendered, did not render inadmissible parol evidence of such agreement, where the mother of the child testified that the agreement was entirely oral, and that the written instrument was executed for the purpose of formally transferring the custody of the child, and not to express the terms of such agreement.

***

CONSTRUCTION OF WILL.—Thomas Aldridge, by his will, directed his executors to convert into money all his real and personal property, with the exception of his brickyard, and to divide the proceeds among his eight named children "equally, share and share alike, the child or children of any deceased child to take its parent's share." Upon the death of the widow the brickyard was to be sold, and the executors were "to divide the proceeds arising from said sale, together with all money or moneys belonging to my said estate, equally among all my heretofore-named children, share and share alike, the child or children of any deceased child to take it's parent's share." In a suit in the Supreme Court by Aaron E. Aldridge and another against Grace B. Aldridge and others for the construction of the will the Second Appellate Division has affirmed the judgment of the Dutchess County Special Term in favor of the plaintiffs, executors. Justice Cullen, who gave the opinion, held that, as the testator evidently contemplated that the proceeds of the brickyard should be distributed among the same persons as those among whom the remainder of the estate was to be divided, the case was an exception to the general rule that where there is no present gift, but a mere direction to divide at a future time a fund to come into existence in the future, the legatee, in order to take, must survive the time of distribution, and that the shares in the proceeds of the brickyard of children of the testator living at the time of his death, but who died prior to the death of the widow, were not divested by their deaths, but passed to their personal representatives.

***

REVIVAL AND REVOCATION OF WILL.—Jonas Stickney, a bachelor, who resided in the village of Corfu, N. Y., where he died, in March, 1897, at the age of seventy-seven years, made a will in May, 1893, which he revoked by a subsequent one executed in 1895. By the first will he bequeathed $3,000 to Emma McClurg, not a relative; $1,000 each to two brothers, and the residue of his estate he gave to his "nephews and nieces, share and share alike." Afterward Mr. Stickney destroyed the second will, and stated to several persons—not, however, to the witnesses to the first will—that the latter instrument was his will. A decree of the Surrogate of Genesee County admitting this will to probate was reversed by the Fourth Appellate Division, the opinion being by Justice Follett, Justice Adams dissenting, and that decision has now been affirmed by the Court of Appeals. Judge Martin, giving the opinion, to which Judge Haight dissents, holds that the first will was not revived by the decedent's declaration, made to others than the subscribing witnesses, that he desired his first will to stand. In order to revive the former will, the court held that it must be republished in the presence of its attesting witnesses.

EXCHANGED HATS AND COATS.

Bellevue Visiting Physicians in a Confusion of Attire.

Drs. Samuel Alexander, L. B. Bangs, and F. W. Jackson, attached to the visiting staff of Bellevue Hospital, were worried yesterday afternoon by the temporary loss of their overcoats and hats. The three physicians were at a meeting of the Medical Board of the hospital. After the more important matters had been disposed of, Dr. Jackson left the board room hurriedly, seizing an overcoat and hat from a table near him. The occurrence was unnoticed by the others present.

Dr. Bangs was the next to leave, and, failing to find his hat and coat, he notified Martin Loughlin, who has charge of the board room. Loughlin pointed to the overcoat racks, on which were the overcoats of several other physicians, and Dr. Bangs proceeded to get a coat and hat. He then went to his home.

At the close of the session Dr. Alexander searched every rack in the board room for his coat and hat, and, being unable to find them, he finally went home wearing a borrowed hat and without an overcoat. Search was made for the missing articles, and finally the mistake was brought to light. Dr. Jackson had taken Dr. Bangs's coat and hat and Dr. Bangs those of Dr. Alexander. Exchanges of coats, hats, and apologies were going on last evening.

SHOT HIS WIFE DEAD.

Nealy Also Tried to Kill a Man Escorting Her Home.

Mrs. Mary Nealy, colored, of 55 Jordan Avenue, Jersey City, was shot and killed in front of her home at 4 o'clock A. M. yesterday by William L. Nealy, her husband. Jealousy prompted the act. The couple had no children.

When Nealy went to his home about 1 o'clock A. M. he found the doors locked. He climbed through a window and found that his wife was absent. Suspecting she had gone to a ball with Gamaliel Brewster, he sat down to await her return. He fell asleep. When he awoke it was 4 o'clock. Hearing voices in the street he ran down stairs. His wife and Brewster stood near the door. Drawing a revolver, he fired two shots at Brewster, who fled and escaped unharmed. Nealy then fired at his wife. The bullet entered her heart and she fell dead. Patrolman Peter Murray, who was only a block away, heard the shots. He ran to the scene. In reply to his questions Nealy said he had shot his wife. He was placed under arrest.

When arraigned at Police Headquarters he said that Brewster had been in the habit of visiting his wife. He found Brewster at the house recently and fired two shots at him, but he escaped. He then warned his wife that if he ever again found her in Brewster's company he would shoot them both.

Amanda Smith, who lives in the same house, corroborated Nealy's statements. She and Brewster, who was subsequently arrested, were held as witnesses. Brewster said that he was near enough to see Nealy shoot his wife.

The prisoner was committed to await the action of the county authorities.

Asks Aid for Christmas Tree.

The society in charge of the Brooklyn Christmas Tree, which for eight years has provided Christmas presents and an entertainment for children of the destitute poor in that borough, has issued an appeal for aid in its work this season. Contributions of money may be mailed to the Treasurer of the society, Francis H. Wilson, Brooklyn Post Office. Dolls to be dressed may be obtained by those desiring to give aid in this manner of Miss M. J. Moody, at the office of Leonard Moody, 20 Court Street, Brooklyn. Toys for the Christmas tree may be sent to Edward Nicolay, in care of Smith, Gray & Co., Flatbush Avenue and Fulton Street. W. J. Moser of 536 Halsey Street will call for toys if desired. His telephone is 131 Bedford.

Besides being so effective with the worst colds, another good feature is that it is safe for the tenderest infant—JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT.—Adv.

CASINO AT POCANTICO HILLS.

Plan of Joseph Oussani Worries the Residents of the Locality.

The residents of Pocantico Hills are excited over the probability of the erection in their neighborhood of a casino and hotel by Joseph Oussani, proprietor of the Cairo Café and Smoking Parlor at 34 West Twenty-ninth Street. It is likely that a concerted effort will be made to prevent him from carrying out his plans.

Mr. Oussani in August purchased the Hugh Collender homestead from Col. William C. Church, editor of The Army and Navy Journal. The property is a beautiful one, overlooking the Hudson, and adjoining the estate of John D. Rockefeller, who is a large holder of real estate in the vicinity. Lately the residents of the section discovered that Mr. Oussani had prepared plans for a casino, among the features of which would be a restaurant, saloon, billiard room, and bowling alleys, with a picnic ground attached. Mr. Oussani already has spent a large sum in beautifying the place.

MOORE AND SCHLEY'S BOOKS.

Additional Evidence in the Suit of William J. Logan.

With the offering of additional books of the firm of Moore & Schley, the taking of testimony in the suit of W. J. Logan against William Rockefeller, E. C. Benedict, and others to compel an accounting of profits incidental to consolidation of the Brooklyn gas companies was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. The case has been on trial before Justice Werner in Part IV., Special Term, of the Supreme Court, for nearly two weeks. Much general interest was attracted to it by the first appearance in court as a member of the New York bar of ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed, who is among the counsel for the defense.

The session yesterday afternoon was brief, the case not being called until 4 o'clock. Examination of witnesses was waived by both sides. Both plaintiff and defendants then rested, not, however, until ex-Justice Cohen, for the defense, repeated his former motions for dismissal of the case and for election of the plaintiff to show his ground for action. Both motions were again denied by Justice Werner. The hearing of counsel was set for 4 o'clock P. M., Friday, Dec. 8.

CONTRACTOR'S OBJECT LESSON.

Rivalry for Increased Street-Cleaning Appropriation in Jersey City.

Jersey City was treated to a novel parade yesterday. It consisted of fourteen two-horse carts, seventeen one-horse carts, three sprinkling carts, and three street-sweeping machines. The display was made by Thomas and James J. Harrington, father and son, and was designed to prove to the public that they had ample facilities for cleaning streets and removing garbage.

Under the impetus given to the street-cleaning business by the Town Improvement Committee of the Woman's Club, the authorities of Jersey City increased the appropriation for the purposes indicated from $40,000 to $55,000, beginning with Dec. 1. Up to that time it was not thought that the work was remunerative, and Henry Byrne had no difficulty in securing the contract for several years.

With the new appropriation, however, the bidding for the contract last week was spirited, Thomas Harrington, Henry Byrne, and James J. Harrington were bidders. The Woman's Club indorsed Henry Byrne's cause, on the ground that he had done excellent work in the past and had adopted all the suggestions offered by them. He was awarded the contract on the ground that he had all the facilities necessary, and, with the better work he could do, his bid was really to the best interests of the city, though not the lowest.

Mr. Harrington the younger claims that on the percentage system of bidding adopted by the city his bid was about $8,000 less for the year's work than Byrne's. One of the arguments used against him was that he had not the facilities, and to disprove this he and his father pooled their equipment, as they say they would have done had either secured the contract, and marched their wagons, sweepers, and sprinklers through the streets. The parade attracted much attention.

For a Girls' Industrial School.

The Ladies' Bikur Cholim Industrial School will hold a "Koffie Drinken and Huis Vrouw's Bazaar" at the Holland House next Tuesday and Wednesday. The details of the entertainment will be reproductions of old Dutch styles and customs. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used to defray expenses of the society's industrial school for girls, at 209 East Broadway.

"Forward Movement" Anniversary.

The "Forward Movement" celebrated its seventh anniversary last evening at the Metropolitan Temple. J. M. Cornell presided, and addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Bitting of the Mount Morris Baptist Church and the Rev. George P. Eckman of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church. Reports were read that showed a remarkable record of work during the last year.

Some men like to "travel light"; weight and warmth are not necessarily synonymous—an eiderdown quilt is as heat conserving as a buffalo robe.

If you're one of this kind try a medium weight overcoat—the common sense coat for any man who does much walking.

28 varieties here.

One more turn of Fashion's wheel, and the double-breasted overcoat will come into view.

We've foreseen the turn, have double-breasted overcoats now.

Every overcoat length in all desirable cloths, colors and styles; $15 to $55.

ROGERS, PEET & Co.

349 Broadway, cor. Leonard.
849 Broadway, cor. Prince.
Thirty-second and Broadway.

Ladies' Skirts.

We place on sale to-morrow
50 Separate Skirts,
$32.50,
made from fine Ladies' Cloth, slashed and trimmed with bands of taffeta handsomely stitched, taffeta silk petticoat, trimmed with knife pleating.
In assorted colors.

The regular price of the above, $47.50 & $55.00.

Lord & Taylor,
Broadway & 20th St.

Our Stores
Are Convenient—
handily situated, and hold everything required by man for correct dress. As an illustration of the variety here:

OVERCOATS—every grade—every style—short or long—rough or smooth fabric—$10 to $50.

BUSINESS SUITS—Cheviots and Homespuns in popular Oxford and greenish mixtures—$18.

UNDERWEAR—more kinds than you can begin to think—$1 to $10 per garment, and money saved to you on every grade.

Full Dress SHIRTS, Cadbo, Saco, Tauro, $2.00 each.

WHITE SHIRTS—Williamsville muslin—best linen bosom—four styles—$1.05.

NECKWEAR—every favorite shape—every fashionable conceit in pattern and coloring—50c. to $3.

PATENT LEATHER SHOES—"Monarch"—guaranteed not to break through—$3.

HATS—Derbys and Alpines—no better made—$2 & $3.

Stores open this evening.

Hackett, Carhart & Co.

Three BROADWAY Stores. Cor. 13th St. Cor. Canal St. Near Chambers.

FANS. A Superb Assortment of Rich Novelties from 75c. to $25 each.

UMBRELLAS. For Men, Ladies and Children. Styles and prices to suit every purchaser. Never were such good values offered.

CHRISTMAS CARDS, Selected with great care, from 2c. to $5 each.

Daniell's, Broadway, 8 & 9 Sts.

Diamonds
Pearls
Rubies
Emeralds

and all other Precious Stones direct from the Importer. Finest goods—lowest prices.

J. H. JOHNSTON & SON,
18 John Street, New York.
FORMERLY UNION SQUARE.

Send for illustrated catalogue—Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Silverware, and Duplicate Wedding Presents.

Men's Shirts.
MADE TO MEASURE,
Of finest linen for evening, and fancy fabrics for morning dress.
James McCreery & Co.,
Twenty-third Street.

THREE NOTABLE ARTICLES
Well Worth Reading will appear in
THE NEW YORK TIMES,
TO-MORROW, SUNDAY, DEC. 3.

John Barrett
late United States Minister to Siam, and more recently a correspondent in the Philippines, writes on the Commercial Importance of Manila.

Controller Bird S. Coler
discusses municipal ownership of franchises.

Mr. Geo. Hill
the architect and engineer, shows how the increased cost of iron and steel will affect future building operations in this city.

ORDER THE PAPER FROM YOUR NEWS-DEALER IN ADVANCE

Three Cents Per Copy.

FLINT'S FINE FURNITURE

HOLIDAY DESKS.

Our up-to-date desks are wonderfully graceful in form—some with slender fluted legs, others ending in claw feet. In the richest mahoganies, inlaid or carved; satinwood, birch, maple, and oak—and as for convenience, roomy tops, pigeonholes galore and as many drawers as you please.

Finest eight-day French clocks set in the glowing mahogany give a superb decorative effect and help My Lady to keep her social engagement.

Those who appreciate factory prices are fast reserving these, and owing to the large demand this year, we will be unable to make duplicates in time for Christmas, so be prompt and

"BUY OF THE MAKER"

GEO. C. FLINT CO.
43 45 AND 47 WEST 23RD ST
NEAR BROADWAY.
FACTORY, 154 AND 156 WEST 19TH STREET

Loss of Appetite.
Horsford's Acid Phosphate
Restores and creates a good appetite, assists digestion, and gives vitality and vigor to the entire system.
Genuine bears name HORSFORD'S on wrapper.

Ladies' Gloves.
...ster hooks,—kid,—overam and piqué sewn, for ...reet and evening dress. ...Tan, mode, brown, grey, ...arl, white and black, $1.00 per pair; Value $1.50.
...mes McCreery & Co., Twenty-third Street.

AMUSEMENTS.

Six Symphony Concerts for Young People
FRANK DAMROSCH.....Director
Dec. 2, Jan. 13, Feb. 3, Feb. 24, Mch. 10, Mch. 31, AT CARNEGIE HALL.
First Concert This Sat. (Aft.) at 2:30.
Soloist.....Miss Clara Butt
Each number on the programme will be preceded by a short explanation.
Subscription and single tickets at Schuberth's and at box office.

CARNEGIE HALL. 27th Season. 1899—1900.
ORATORIO SOCIETY
FRANK DAMROSCH.....Conductor
Fri. aft., Dec. 29, at 2, and Sat. Eve., Dec. 30, at 8.
"THE MESSIAH."
Thursday Evening, April 5, at 8.
"BACH'S MASS IN B MINOR."
Sale now open at box office for old subscribers; sale for new subscribers opens Monday, Dec. 4.

Carnegie Hall. Saturday Ev'g, Dec. 2.
FIRST SAALFIELD CONCERT.
MME. NEVADA Assisted by other Artists.
Admission, 50c.; reserved seats, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00. Tickets for sale at Saalfield's Music Store, 1,160 Broadway, or Carnegie Hall Box Office.

MENDELSSOHN HALL. This (Sat.) Aft. at 2.
CHOPIN RECITAL. VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN
LAST RECITAL.
Res. seats $1, $1.50, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE.
Sunday Evening, December 3, at 8:15. Wolfsohn's Grand Sunday Concerts at Pop. Prices.
Clara Butt, Farewell Appearance. Vladimir de Pachmann, H. Evan Williams, Walter Damrosch and his symphony orchestra of 75.
Admission, 50c. Box office now open.

DALY'S Broadway & 30th St., at 8:15.
Daniel Frohman.....Manager
Matinées WED. and SAT.
DANIEL FROHMAN'S STOCK COMPANY. FIRST ANNUAL SEASON at this theatre. HENRY ARTHUR JONES'S 4-act Comedy, entitled
The Maneuvers of Jane

ACADEMY 4th Av. & 23d.....at 8:30
Daniel Frohman.....Manager
Matinées Thursday & Sat., 2
CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS
Annie Russell in Miss Hobbs
MONDAY, DEC. 4, 100TH (SPECIAL) NIGHT.

ST. NICHOLAS.
SKATING RINK
West 66th St., near Columbus Av.
Open to the Public Daily Except Mondays.
HOCKEY MATCH.
To-night, at 8:15 P. M.,
ST. NICHOLAS vs. YALE UNIVERSITY.
Admission, 50 cents. Skates free.

HERALD SQUARE THEATRE.
Evgs. 8:15. Mats. Wed. & To-day.
By arrangement with estate of Augustin Daly, the great Comic Opera success, as presented at Daly's Theatre, London, 1½ yrs.
"A Showy and Tuneful Extravaganza."—Times.
A GREEK SLAVE

PROCTOR'S 23d St. EZRA KENDALL.
15, 25, 50c. Moving Pictures (new)
KABE'S JAPANESE, 30 other Stars. Cont. Perf.

PALACE 58th and 3d Av. MME. TAVARY.
15, 25, 50c. WILSON FAMILY.
Moving Pictures, 3 Polos, 30 others. Cont. Perf.

AMERICAN 42ND & EIGHTH AVE. CASTLE SQ. OPERA CO.
Evgs., 8:10, 25c. to $1.
Mat. To-day, 2:10.
1,100 Seats, 25c.
Faust
Next Week, Double Bill—CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA and 1st act of FIDELIO, (in English.)

KNICKERBOCKER, B'way & 38th St. Evgs. 8:20. Mats. 2.
MR. KENDAL Matinées Wed. & To-day.
MRS. KENDAL Wed. Mats. Begin Dec. 6th.
In Their London Success, The Elder Miss Blossom

CASINO! TO-NIGHT, 8:15. MAT. TO-DAY AT 2.
9TH ALICE NIELSEN OPERA COMPANY
CROWDED WEEK! in The Singing Girl

KEITH'S, CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE.
FFLIX MORRIS & CO. in "Behind the Scenes."
THE GIRL WITH THE AUBURN HAIR.

KOSTER & BIAL'S. 50c Mat. t'day. All parts house.
"ROUND NEW YORK" & Sherlock Holmes Burlesque. Jeffries, Sharkey, Corbett.
SUNDAY NIGHT: A GREAT BILL!

BROADWAY Theatre. 41st St. & B'way. Evs. at 8. Wed. & Sat. Mats. at 2
Matinée To-day at 2 o'clock precisely. BEN-HUR
SEATS ON SALE FOR NEXT 4 WEEKS.

THE NEW YORK. Eve. 8:30. Popular Prices.
MATINEES DAILY, including Sunday, at 2:30.
BIOGRAPH PICTURES OF THE JEFFRIES-SHARKEY CONTEST.

THE DEWEY MATINEE TO-DAY. Broadway Burlesquers
East 14th St. McAvoy & May and Great Burlesque.

BIJOU. B'way & 30th St. Eve. 8:15. Mat. To-day. Phone 2224 Mad. Sq.
MAY IRWIN in SISTER MARY

MANHATTAN THEATRE. Evgs. 8:15 sharp.
33d & B'way. Sat. Mat. only.
ANNA HELD in PAPA'S WIFE.

Weber & Fields' MUSIC HALL. Mats. Tues. B'way & 30 St. and Sat.
Whirl-i-Gig & The Other Way.

WORLD IN WAX. CINEMATOGRAPH.
EDEN MUSEE
NEW GROUPS. CHARMING MUSIC.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE. JULIA ARTHUR Ev. & Mat. in MORE THAN QUEEN. To-day, 2.
Next Wk.—Louis Mann & Clara Lipman in "THE GIRL IN THE BARRACKS."

MURRAY HILL THEA., Lex. Av. & 42d St.
MATINEE EVERY DAY. 25c.
THIS WEEK—THE LOTTERY OF LOVE.

GRAND Opera House Why Smith Left Home Mat. To-day.
Next Week—James O'Neill in "The Musketeers."

AMUSEMENTS.

EMPIRE THEATRE. B'way and 40th St. Ev'gs, 8:20. Matinées, 2:15. Matinées To-day and Wednesday.
JOHN DREW | THE TYRANNY OF TEARS

GARRICK THEATRE. 35th St. & B'way. EV'GS, 8:15. MATINEES AT 2. MATINEE TO-DAY AT 2.
WM. GILLETTE in His New Play, SHERLOCK HOLMES

Charles Frohman's Criterion Theatre, B'way & 44th St. Ev'gs, 8:15. Matinées To-day and Wednesday.
JULIA MARLOWE | BARBARA FRIETCHIE
Dec. 11—50th Per., Julia Marlowe Souvenir.

MADISON SQ. THEATRE. 24th St., n'r B'way
Charles Frohman's Comedians. Mats. To-day and Wed.
MAKE WAY FOR THE LADIES.

GARDEN THEATRE. 27th St. & Madison Av. Evenings, 7:45. Matinée To-day at 2.
MR. RICHARD MANSFIELD.
LAST WEEK BUT ONE, CYRANO DE BERGERAC
WEEK OF DEC. 11TH, REVIVAL OF BEAU BRUMMELL.

WALLACK'S BROADWAY & 30TH ST. Evgs. at 8:30. Mat. Sat. 2:15.
WM. H. CRANE And His Company, in the Laughing Hit
A RICH MAN'S SON | LAST MAT. LAST NIGHT.
Next Week—Frank Daniels in "The Ameer."

HAMMERSTEIN'S VICTORIA To-night, 8:20.
42d St. B'way-7th Av. Mat. To-day, 2:15.
No Smoking or Drinking at Matinées.
THE ROGERS BROS. in WALL STREET
50c. Admission to Promenade 50c

5th Ave Theatre. B'way and 28th St. EVES. AT 8. MATINEES AT 2. MATINEES WED. & TO-DAY.
Mrs. Fiske in Becky Sharp

ACADEMY OF MUSIC. 14th St. & Irving P. The Great Rural Drama. "WAY DOWN EAST"
Prices 25-50-75-1.00. Mats. to-day & Wed. 2. Ev. 8:1

IRVING PLACE THEATRE. T'day Mat. & Ev. The Great hit. HOFGUNST, (At Court.) Comedy by Tyth

DEC 1899

The New York Times.

SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1899.
THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1899. SIXTEEN PAGES.

Best 100 Holiday Books—Lists with Reviews.

One week from to-day (on Dec. 9) THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW will appear as a special Holiday Number. We have in preparation a list of 100 BOOKS, chosen from the year's literature, and best adapted to purchases in the Holiday season. These books will be classified and will each have a semi-critical notice. The circulation of this number will rise many thousands above 100,000 copies. As a literary newspaper THE TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 9 will be the most remarkable achievement in journalism—remarkable for size, for reading matter, for circulation, and for publishers' advertisements.

CONTENTS.

Recent Memoirs and Letters. Page.
New Works in Biography and Reminiscences of Particular Interest 816
Spurgeon.
Features of the Third Volume of His Autobiography 822
New Lands of Ours.
Caspar Whitney and Franklin Matthews Write of Hawaii and Cuba 815
Donne's Life and Letters.
Edmund Gosse's Important Work in Two Volumes 809
London Literary Letter.
Written by WILLIAM L. ALDEN 820
Brander Matthews.
Friends Far and Near Rally to His Support .. 819
Chat About New Books.
Interesting Comments Made by Various Contributors 812
Morgan's "League of the Iroquois."
An Unknown Edition Turns Up in Rochester 816
Illustrations That Illustrate.
Failure That Is Seen in Many Books—An Edition of Lamb to the Contrary 816
Notes and News.
Items Gathered in New York and Boston in a Tour of the Publishers 814
Other Reviews of Books.
"Book Lover's Verse" 810
"Mrs. Leicester's School" 822
The Week in Art 821
Mrs. Burnett's New Story 810
Topics of the Week 809
A Beautiful Grolier Changes Hands 810
Mr. Howells's Book at Auction 811
New Books and Their Makers 811
Questions and Answers 823
Books Received 817

The New York Times
Saturday Edition, with
Review of Books and Art.
$1 Per Year.

Topics of the Week.

Winston Spencer Churchill's new novel, "Savrola: A Tale of the Revolution in Laurania," will be presented early in 1900 from the press of Longmans, Green & Co. It seems necessary to remark once more that this author, who also has to his credit "The River War," being an account of the reconquest of the Soudan, and "The Story of the Malakand Field Force, 1897," is not the Mr. Winston Churchill who wrote "Richard Carvel," but the son of the late Lord Randolph Churchill. He is a Lieutenant in the British Army, who at present is enjoying the forced hospitality of the Boers with several other British officers on the race course in Pretoria. "Savrola" is said to be a dashing tale, told with much force and vigor, which, in scenic effects and development of plot, reminds one of the romances of Anthony Hope.

With the death of the Khalifa there passes away the last vestige of the power of the dervishes in the Nile Valley. Persons interested in the political and sociological problems that have been presented through the history of Egypt for the last quarter of a century may be glad to know that the whole story of the rise of the dervishes, their supremacy, and their final fall, has been vividly presented by three eye-witnesses to these periods. Father Ohrwalder, who was the first white captive to escape from the Mahdi, gave us the story of the rise of the dervish power in "Ten Years' Captivity in the Mahdi's Camp," published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Then came Slatin Pasha, who wrote "Fire and Sword in the Soudan," which supplemented the first and carried the history well into the reign of Abdullah, El Mahdi's successor. The third book is called "A Prisoner of the Khalifa," by Charles Neufeld, which brings the story down to the time of the annihilation of the Khalifa's army at Omdurman. This book is said to be unexpurgated, and especially valuable for probably due to the fact that Neufeld, while a captive in the hands of the dervishes, purposely misled the Khalifa.

The editors of both Harper's and Scribner's Magazines are enthusiastic over the two novels by famous writers, which their respective periodicals will usher in with the January numbers. "Tommy and Grizel," which is the name of J. M. Barrie's story, the first three chapters of which will appear in the January Scribner's, is said to be this author's masterpiece. The scene of action is divided between London and Thrums, and some old familiar friends are introduced among new characters, who are made to move upon a larger stage, and are filled with more vital emotions. It is also whispered about that in his new story, which is brimful of human interest, Mr. Barrie has presented many episodes which are nothing more or less than leaves from his own autobiography. The first installment of Mrs. Humphry Ward's "Eleanor," which will characterize the beginning of the jubilee year of Harper's Magazine, certainly shows that the story opens in a manner, which, if sustained, will also prove this author's masterpiece. It will, at any rate, come as a complete surprise to Mrs. Ward's many readers, for it is, in the main, purely a love story.

Canadian writers are now receiving more attention, both in the United States and in England, than formerly. We are told that C. G. D. Roberts, a novelist who has written several volumes of fiction that have been eagerly perused by the reading public north of the St. Lawrence, has just finished a new romance, which will shortly make its appearance in one of the best-known American periodicals. It is called "The Heart of the Ancient Wood." Having touched upon this subject, it is of interest to note that Louis Frechette, another Canadian writer, is presenting through Charles Scribner's Sons a charming collection of short stories based upon phases of French-Canadian life that are rapidly disappearing under Anglo-Saxon influences. This volume is called "Christmas in French Canada."

A new biography of Scott, to be entitled "Sir Walter Scott," by James Hay, is in preparation for immediate publication by A. S. Barnes & Co. In it the author, who has also written "Johnson: His Characteristics and Aphorisms," and "Swift: The Mystery of His Life and Love," endeavors to sketch Scott intellectually and socially, avoiding extremes of judgment and interpretation. In so doing Mr. Hay has called to his aid the literary remains of Scott's intimates—Lockhart, Skene, Constable, and the brilliant young Laidlaw, the Ettrick minstrel, and others. In short, we have given us a vivid portrait of the bard and novelist as his distinguished familiars knew him, together with the opinions of a scholar of to-day, who has sought to regard him from all phases of his many-sided character.

In his very remarkable book, "Primitive Love and Love Stories," Mr. Henry T. Finck, the author, says in the preface: "If it has been necessary in some chapters to multiply unpleasant facts, the reader must blame the sentimentalists who have so persistently whitewashed the savages that it has become necessary, in the interest of truth, to show them in their real colors. I have indeed been tempted to give my book the sub-title 'A Vindication of Civilization,' against the misrepresentations of these sentimentalists who try to create the impression that savages owe all their depravity to contact with whites, having been originally spotless angels." Again the author, speaking of the introduction of love stories into his work, says: "These stories, I believe, augment not only the interest but the scientific value of the monograph." Mr. Finck is the writer of numerous books on music, critical and historical, but it is through this volume, he is reported to have said, that he wishes his reputation in belles lettres to be maintained. "Primitive Love and Love Stories" is being published by Charles Scribner's Sons.

Another volume of dainty verse from the pen of George Edward Woodberry has come through the press of the Macmillan Company. The collection is called "Wild Eden," and concerns itself principally with love and nature. Persons who are tired of attempting to solve the riddles of the Symbolists and the psychological rhymsters will doubtless find a pleasurable contentment in these verses, which are as simple as they are beautiful. Take, for example, a few lines called "Divine Awe":

> "To tremble, when I touch her hands,
> With awe that no man understands;
> To feel soft reverence arise
> When, lover-wise, I read her eyes;
> To see her fearless soul and mine
> When near I feel this awe divine—
> What is it but to pray, this is to pray;

DONNE'S LIFE AND LETTERS.

Edmund Gosse's Important Work in Two Volumes.

This long-looked-for work is a contribution to biographical literature of the first rank. The task required a mind of no ordinary equipment, and in this "Life," by Mr. Edmund Gosse, of the great Dean of St. Paul's, we have the product of a master workman. Two hundred and sixty-eight years after the death of that remarkable man the first attempt has thus been made to tell us all that may be known of him. Hitherto we have had to be content with the beautiful eulogy originally called his "Life and Death," by his Christian disciple, Izaak Walton.

To a thorough and scientific treatment the man, the thought, and the style alike present a menace, which doubtless accounts to some extent for the hesitancy which has marked such an undertaking. In the words of Mr. Gosse, "No one in the history of English literature is so difficult to realize, so impossible to measure in the vast curves of his extraordinary and contradictory features." The late Dr. Grosart in his painstaking edition of the poetical works says: "I do not hide from myself that it needs courage to edit and print the poetry of Dr. John Donne in our day." Even Mr. Saintsbury, in his clever introduction to the Muses Library edition of the poems, is seen, though he does not admit it, to waver in the attack.

The editor and the critical biographer equally require both mental and moral courage for the task. There is about the man a strange fascination, and in his works what both fascinates and repels. Donne's life, so far as we know it from Walton's incomplete record, has the elements of a strong romance; and now that we have it fully set forth and by so firm a hand, its romantic tone is not a whit less discernible. Dr. Jessopp of Norwich has during the space of fifty years made researches and collections in Donne's life and writings of which Mr. Gosse has all the advantage, having had them, as he tells us, handed over to him "in terms of unexampled generosity," and with these the declaration that it was from Mr. Gosse alone "that any adequate and elaborate biography of Donne was to be looked for." Though the general impression of Walton's "Life" is faithful and beautiful, it is not, in the light of Mr. Gosse's work, in all things strictly accurate—and to being a criticism, it of course makes no pretensions.

As the result of much patient research, Donne's ancestry is here passed before us in full array and traced on his mother's side to the illustrious Sir Thomas More. His mother was the daughter of John Heywood, the dramatist. His people were persistent Catholics, to which faith he, in his early life, adhered. So that, in Mr. Gosse's words, "as a lad he walked in the light which 'beat bright upon the burning faces' of the martyrs, poets, scholars, and enthusiasts of four generations." The Catholic spirit, with its splendid traditions, shining then in the few with an intensity we have never witnessed, must necessarily have given a color to Donne's life and thought; and his essential religiousness is doubtless traceable to this hereditary faith, which in some resisted every ray of the light of protest.

Born in 1537, he reached his majority in that bright last decade of the sixteenth century, when Spenser, Marlowe, Shakespeare, Jonson, Drayton, Greene, and Daniel were vocal. But with that aloofness which is one of his idiosyncrasies, he remained uninfluenced by the literary manner of the age, and maintained an attitude as of an original mind.

The ground here is well cleared for a straight view of Donne's poetical works, in which the interest mainly centres, and which will preserve his name. The state of European literature is set forth, and the course of satire traced from the Latins to its rise in England, and the publication of the works of Bishop Hall, which were suppressed and burned—a fate Donne escaped only by withdrawing his Satires, which were earlier than Hall's, from the press. Mr. Gosse analyzes those Satires severally. They are the work of a young man of twenty, and, as such, are the more remarkable. The involution of his style is, of course, notorious—on which Johnson laconically remarks: "If the lines are not easily understood, they can be read again." This from the Third Satire will show at once the piercing keenness of his early thought, and the twilight in which it is wrapped:

> Though truth and falsehood be
> Near twins, yet truth a little elder is.
> Doubt wisely, in a strange way,
> To stand, inquiring right, is not to stray;
> To sleep, or run wrong, is:

thought, less correctly stated, in the well-known lines:

There lives more faith in honest doubt,
Believe me, than in half the creeds.

Following the Satires come the Lyrics and Elegies, some of which are unfit for general reading to-day, though then in a far less degree offensive; where we have the unregenerate man revealed, and the style to which he gave the vogue, assumed by Crashaw, Suckling, Waller, Denham, Cleveland, and Cowley; where the most inordinate, grotesque conceptions are decked out in fantastic and ingenious conceits, in reference to which Johnson again asks, "Who but Donne would have thought that a good man is a telescope?" Fitting as Johnson's remarks are, Mr. Gosse gives us a larger and quite consummate criticism in the fuller light of the knowledge at which he has arrived.

But such conceits are only the offshoots of a mind like Donne's, stored with knowledge so extensive and various. A mind, however, it must be said, tainted with the vices of that and of every age, to attempt to disguise which is to shut our eyes to the most sublime lesson of Donne's life. Nothing could surpass for thoroughness Mr. Gosse's handling of these poems, in which the curious and the sensuous, the clever and the impudent, are mingled, with here and there lines of the brightest fancy, and thoughts of Shakespearean strength. Happily he holds a brief for literature, not for Donne, and subjects the man and his work alike to an impartial judgment, with fine appreciation of the human, in "a youth scored with frailty and the injuries of instinct, * * * which but added a more splendid majesty to the career rising out of them into peace and light. To pretend," Mr. Gosse eloquently adds, "that Donne was a saint in his youth is to nullify the very process of divine grace in the evolution of a complex soul, in the reduction of a magnificent rebel to a still more brilliant and powerful servant." These poems are thoroughly sifted for the story of Donne's heart and life they contain, and in tracing him through the vices, liaisons, and storms of illicit passions through which he passed, we are reminded that "it was from these agonies and errors, bleeding as from rods with the wounds of passion, that Donne rose slowly to those spiritual heights in which he so glorified the grace of God." This outstanding feature in Mr. Gosse's work, by which the difficulties of Donne's complex character are bravely faced, and the man set before us in all his frailties and all his strength, makes its moral value immense.

We can do little more than name some of the themes which Mr. Gosse's work embraces. The romance of Donne's marriage and its influence on his fortunes is fully discussed; his subsequent poverty and comparative retirement; his journeyings on the Continent, and the occasion of that rare and exquisite poem to his wife on her proposal to accompany him as a page, which Hazlitt represents Lamb as reading "with suffused features and a faltering tongue":

* * * * * * *

Temper, O fair love, love's impetuous rage;
Be my true mistress still, not my feigned page.

* * * * * * *

Thy else-almighty beauty cannot move
Rage from the seas, nor thy love teach them love.
* * * All will spie in thy face
A blushing, womanly, discovering grace.
* * * O stay here, for, for thee
England alone's a worthy gallery,
To walk in expectation, till from thence
Our greatest King call thee to his presence.

Donne entered the Church in his forty-second year, at the persuasion of King James, who at length bestowed the Deanery upon him in so droll a way that it is worth reproducing as Walton tells it. He invited him to dinner, and "before he had eat any meat, said, 'Dr. Donne, I have invited you to dinner, and, though you sit not down with me, yet I will carve to you of a dish which I know you love well; for, knowing you love London, I do therefore make you Dean of St. Paul's; and when I have dined, then do you take your beloved dish home to your study, say grace there to yourself, and much good may it do you.'" With, as Mr. Gosse thinks, the best-equipped mind in England, and devotedness beyond question, there can be no doubt of the power of Donne's sermons. Dr. Jessopp is quoted on his skill as a preacher from his life of Donne in the "Leaders of Religion" series; and Walton describes him as "a preacher in earnest, weeping sometimes for his auditory, sometimes with them, always preaching to himself, like an angel from a cloud, but in none." There must be considerable contrast between the bounce that may be seen in many a pulpit to-day—and the divine awe which pervaded the spirit of the great Dean of St. Paul's in his ministry of the church.

The letters, which are quite numerous, are valuable as introductions to illustrious men and women. Among these are the mother of George Herbert and the Countess of Bedford, to whom he was much devoted, and with whom the correspondence is particularly interesting, and with Sir Henry Wotton, the subject of one of Walton's "Lives." They also, many of them, serve to show Donne as the courtier that he certainly

Dodd, Mead and Company.

A collection of Standard Sets, specially bound for us in Paris, have just been received. As the supply is limited and impossible to duplicate before Christmas, we would suggest an early call from those wishing to secure these sets in unusual bindings.

A beautiful specimen of the work of the famous French Binder Cusin, in a set of the large paper issue of Major's Edition of Walton's Angler and Lives. The beautiful steel engravings to this large paper issue are on India paper.

Books of the day at liberal discounts.

Dodd, Mead and Company, Cor. Fifth Ave. & 21st St., New York.

was by biography by the various characteristics they exhibit, both of his strength and his weakness.

His controversial works and Divine poems are discussed as fully as they can be, and with marked ability. The Holy Sonnets are here reproduced under a rearrangement, and three added, not before in print.

On the influence of Donne, which is treated in the concluding chapter, if we do not say that we find Mr. Gosse at his best, it is only because, where all is uniformly of so high a quality, it is hard to make distinctions. It has, as an able, comprehensive, and closely packed piece of literary criticism, a value of its own.

Throughout the whole of Mr. Gosse's fascinating narrative there is the most perfect sequence. The main thread is never lost sight of. The side lights all reflect upon the great central figure. There are no false stops or troublesome retrocessions, and through the most intricate paths and abstruse discussions the charm abides.

Book Lovers' Verse.*

Mr. Howard S. Ruddy, who is the literary editor of The Rochester Herald, has just issued a volume for which all lovers of bookish verse should be duly grateful.

Many of us have long been familiar with Brander Matthews's "Ballads of Books," and the English book of the same name, but with many differences in contents published shortly afterward by Andrew Lang. The Matthews volume has just been issued in a new edition, but the ownership of "Ballads of Books" in either edition, or even in both, will not be sufficient for the book lover. The reason for which is that the present "Book Lovers' Verse," which has been compiled from both English and American sources—while embracing a few of the poems contained in the earlier volumes, also includes a great deal of new and very charming matter to be found in no other collection. Not only will the present book be found to contain a great many bookish poems from well-known pens, but a quantity of minor verse from names quite new to us, as well as some unidentified poems, "which have been caught in their rounds of the press." In his preface Mr. Ruddy states:

> The editor takes the sweet unction to his soul that his collection of the songs of bookland is more extensive than any that has yet been presented. * * * The editor's purpose is to compile from many sources a volume of verse that will be a joy to the book lover and the bibliomaniac.

Mr. Ruddy's work has been well done, and we probably have to thank him for many a delightful little poem, which otherwise would have been quite lost to us. For instance, here are the closing words of "The Young Wife's Plaint," published anonymously. After wondering why her husband prefers his den to her dainty boudoir, with its chaise longue, downy pillows, and Turkish cigarettes, and exclaiming over the shame she thinks it is to buy a dingy old volume dated 1517, when "nice, new books are cheap enough," she adds:

> Knew I how soon I'd be forgot,
> I ne'er had wedded him, God wot;
> Vile, musty books in dead skin bound—
> Faugh! what an odor lingers round—
> 'Tis shameful taste, indeed, it is;
> But hear my vow, ye loves of his,
> In spite of all your dingy looks—
> Apologies for decent books—
> I'll win him back, ye mildewed crew,
> I'll make him think I love you too.

The book also contains Le Gallienne's delightful "With Pipe and Book," but not his still finer "Confessio Amatis"—"When do I love you most, sweet books of mine?" the finest bookish song in the language. Margaret Sangster's "The Pleasant World of Books" is very good:

* * * * * * *

> For me, I sit beside my fire, and with benignant looks
> From dear, familiar shelves they smile, my pleasant friends, the books.
>
> A world of sweetest company, these well-beloved ones wait
> For any mood, for any hour; they keep a courteous state.
>
> And I am blessed beyond compare, while with benignant looks
> From home's familiar shelves they smile, my pleasant world of books.

There are two poems taken from The Spectator, "The Solace of Books" and "The Old Books," which are fine, the opening verse of the first being:

> What matter though my room be small,
> Though this red lamplight looks
> On nothing but a papered wall
> And some few rows of books?

This, too, which, though new, has a familiar ring—"Old Friends, Old Books," by Charles R. Williams:

> Old friends, old books, are surely best,
> Already long they've stood each test—
> In times of stress or indolence
> Have ministered to soul and sense
> With grace responsive to each quest.
>
> Aye, every whim by us possest,
> When winds blow east or winds blow west,
> They kindly humor—not incense—
> Old friends, old books!
>
> The new may touch with keener zest
> When we with ennui are oppprest,
> But only briefly; turning thence
> With reawakened confidence,
> We seek—for peace, for joy, for rest—
> Old friends, old books!

But just one little bit of four lines must be given from "The Book," by Emily Dickinson, which we have never seen before and like so much:

> There is no frigate like a book
> To take us leagues away,
> Nor any courser like a page
> Of prancing poetry.

The book, which is printed on good rough-edged paper, contains about 225 pages, and is most attractively bound in a pretty green and gold cover, the whole being found most worthy of the attention of all lovers of bookish poems, all the more so from the fact that the volume contains so large a proportion of minor verse to be found nowhere else.

*BOOK LOVERS' VERSE: BEING SONGS OF BOOKS AND BOOKMEN COMPILED FROM VARIOUS ENGLISH AND AMERICAN AUTHORS. By Howard S. Ruddy. Indianapolis: The Bowen-Merrill Company. $1.25.

MRS. BURNETT'S NEW STORY

A Beautiful One with a Long Title.*

Our novelists seem to have lost their fine ear for titles. We have recently had occasion to protest against the sibilant dissonance which sends heavily handicapped into the world the charming story of Dionysius, the "Weaver's Heart's Dearest," and now here comes Mrs. Burnett, with a title which it is true does not hiss at us, but which is a most unmanageable mouthful of ruggedness. It has not even the excuse of peculiar fitness, for other titles might readily be suggested more significant, as well as more melodious.

We dwell a little upon the jolting nomenclature, not only because the love-lorn Juliet was, as her subsequent history proved, altogether wrong in ignoring the value of a name, but because it is somewhat difficult at this present writing to approach the book itself in a spirit of judicial calm. When a veteran and "case-hardened" novel reader, having stumbled and growled over the obstacle at the threshold, finds the book itself such a "spell-binder" that sleep is banished from his eyelids, that he becomes "personally involved in the fortunes of the dramatic personæ—in the grip of the sweetest and strongest of obsessions," and that, too, though he is reading with all the discomfort of galley proofs, how can one expect from him the delicately iced impersonality of a review? He is capable of nothing more than an impression, an enthusiasm, a votive offering in acknowledgment of a joy bestowed.

"In Connection with the De Willoughby Claim" will come as a delightful surprise to those who long ago took "Louisiana" to their hearts, but who have of late followed Mrs. Burnett with lagging feet in the devious paths she has elected to illumine with her genius. We thought she had forgotten the fine and simple mountaineers of North Carolina, and even Washington, fascinating always in fiction and in fact. But in her new story she is back again among her own people, and she so extends her territory as to make it inclusive of a New England village, where she is as much at home as under the shadow of the Capitol, or in the country store at Talbot's Crossroads. She has come back, too, with a difference; her perceptions are keener, her touch more decisive, her art altogether finer than twenty years ago.

Her descriptions, with a few telling strokes, place the scenes themselves before us: Talbot's Crossroads, with the mercury at ninety-eight in the shade, and the very dust red hot; the stuffy little boarding house parlor, near Dupont Circle, with its wax flowers, loosened photograph albums, and ornate "Life of Robert E. Lee"—as we read we are there in the flesh. Her characters are masterpieces of creation, and their range is a wide one. The central figure, Big Tom De Willoughby; his neighbors of Hamlin County; the inquisitive, sordid little villain, Stamps; the two absolutely perfect negroes, Aunt Mornin and Uncle Matt; the fallen factory girl, and the wonderful old maid of Willowfield, Miss Amory Starkweather—these and many more seem to belong not to the book-world but to the world of the living. We look into their eyes; we hear their voices; we shall not easily let them out of our lives again. De Courcy, Latimer, and Baird are sometimes a bit melodramatic, not "convincing," as the manner of speech is. But that is inevitable to just such happily exceptional characters as they. It is needful to the dénouement that Baird should have delivered in Washington his great lecture on "Repentance." But to make that lecture marketable, as by inference it is, is a jarring note which might easily have been made to accord with Baird's character by a suggestion of devoting the money so earned to some atoning charity. The two young people around whom the story moves may be a trifle vague. But what is youth save an elusive entity, a glorious potentiality? Upon the whole Mrs. Burnett's delineation of character is masterly, showing a large comprehension of humanity, sympathies broad and deep, reverence for the soul of man, under whatever garb or guise.

Before its publication, when its title became an open secret, it was naturally supposed that "In Connection with the De Willoughby Claim" would be pre-eminent as a study of Washington politics. We looked for a novel after the fashion of "Through One Administration," or the brilliant and forgotten "Democracy." We expected its most prominent feature to be an exploitation of the winding ways and double dealings within that white-winged, soaring symbol of purity and strength—the National Capitol—our visible reversal of the lucus a non lubendo. But while it is made quite clear that "as a rule it isn't the Lord's truth that carries a big claim through," and, while the obstacles to the establishment of the claim form the keystone of the story in a very literal sense, they occupy comparatively few pages, and easily fall into the background of one's recollections.

The novel consists of two plots or movements, apparently wholly disconnected, but always, as the logic of events carries them on, bending nearer and nearer, until the principal dramatis personæ meet in Washington, the keystone is slipped into place, and lo, the two are one! Mrs Burnett possesses consummate constructive skill. When this keystone crowns the arch we see that every character and every event has contributed to the symmetry of the whole. Every part has been wrought and fitted with the artist's instinct for perfection. But analogies cannot be pushed too far, and the similitude of the arch may give a false impression of the two lines along which the story moves. They are, in their nature, wholly unlike. The one, from an opening doubly tragic, passes into the sweetest of idyls; the other from the fairest beginning into the darkest of tragedies. Perhaps, when we shall have escaped from our obsession, we may find somewhat at which to carp in this tragedy, despite its dynamic force and the tenderness of its pathos. We dare not say that any fall into sin is impossible, but the fall here described is to the last degree improbable. Nor has it been easy for the author to adjust her narrative to the exigencies of the situation. How can letters posted in the United States be made to appear as though sent from abroad? So difficult from a practical point of view is a certain phase of the story that it has been impossible to work out clearly its details, although, all things considered, an intricate and delicate subject has been handled with surpassing skill.

This drama of life has all of life's variety; there are cruelty and tenderness, sunshine and shadow, tempest and peace, sin and sacrifice, to be found in its pages. There is Uncle Matt's simple but shrewd philosophy; Tom De Willoughby's humorous and mellow wisdom. There is the bitterness of misunderstood youth, and there are pictures of dear home life and of warm neighborliness. There are strange passages, too, reaching into the deep things of thought, passages that suggest perturbing questions to our smug self-content. "What doth it profit a man if he save his own soul and lose the whole world, caring nothing for its agony, making no struggle to help it in its woe and grieving? A Man once gave His life for the world. Has any man ever given his soul?" The author fearlessly brushes away whatever things are selfish in religious ideals. Through the lips of one of her characters she speaks of repentance, a great and true word:

> Repentance comes too late. We say a man sayes his soul by it—his soul! We are a base, cowardly lot. Our own souls are saved—yes! And we hug ourselves and are comforted. But what of the thing we have hurt—for no man ever lost his soul unless he lost it by the wound he gave another—by inflicting in some other an agony? What of the one who has suffered—who has wept blood? I repent and save myself; but repentance cannot undo. It is not to God I must kneel and pray for pardon, but to that one whose helplessness I slew, and, though he grant it me, he still has been slain. Repentance is too late. Repent before your wrong is done.

The hero of the softer side of the story, nay, in the last analysis, the hero of both sides, is Big Tom De Willoughby. We begin to follow his career with a passion of pity; we close with a passion of reverent love. Some comparison between his story and that of Silas Marner will perhaps be made, but the similitude is in one circumstance only—the potent influence of a little child. Mrs. Burnett has created a distinctly unique character. We are happier and better for knowing him. He deserves a place beside those other heroes of unselfishness, William Dobbin and Thomas Newcome. We hope to go to him again and again for his sunny companionship and for the unconscious lesson of his life; that there is something greater than wealth, greater than fame, greater than power, greater than intellect, greater than all "the kingdoms of the world and the glory of them"—and that is just pure goodness. Tom De Willoughby calls himself "a lumbering failure." It may be there is something higher than what we call success, a life which, humbly owning its failure, fuses its inarticulate aspirations and thwarted longings into the resolve that, so far as in it lies, it will see that others have what itself has missed. Such a life was Tom De Willoughby's, and this inadequate tribute to a book not only a literary event, but noble and ennobling, will be best enriched by giving its noblest character the last word:

> One of the things I've thought about a good deal has been love. I had lots of time to think over things at the cross-roads, and I used to work them out as far as my mind would carry me. Love's as much an element as the rest of them. There's earth, air, fire, water—and love. It has to be calculated for. What I've reasoned out is that it has not been calculated for enough. It's going to come to all of us—and it will either

*IN CONNECTION WITH THE DE WILLOUGHBY CLAIM. By Frances Hodgson Burnett. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons.

SCRIBNER'S POPULAR HOLIDAY BOOKS.

Beautifully Illustrated Works.

British Contemporary Artists
By COSMO MONKHOUSE. Royal 8vo, $5.00.

With many reproductions of famous paintings, portraits, studies, etc.

Chapters of the highest critical and descriptive value on Burne-Jones, Watts, Alma-Tadema, Millais, Leighton, Orchardson, and Poynter, illustrated with a perfection and care unprecedented in any similar work. The author is one of the best known, most highly esteemed, and best equipped of English art-critics.

The Stones of Paris in History and Letters
By BENJAMIN ELLIS MARTIN and CHARLOTTE M. MARTIN. 2 vols. 12mo. $4.00.

With 60 illustrations by Fulleylove, Delafontaine and from photographs.

No attempt is made in this book to resurrect or reconstruct buried Paris. Only those remains of the old city which still stand, concealed and unknown often are brought before the reader; and as he sees these he learns memories, associations and meaning.

Santa Claus's Partner
By THOMAS NELSON PAGE. 12mo, $1.50.

With 8 full-page illustrations in colors by W. Glackens.

"A charming and dainty Christmas story. . . . The book is a new and triumphant proof of Mr. Page's powers both as an artist of tender sentiment and as an adept in the delineation of character. The story abounds in touches of exquisite feeling."—Chicago Tribune.

The Trail of the Sandhill Stag
By ERNEST SETON-THOMPSON. Square 8vo, $1.50.

With 8 full-page illustrations (one in color) and numerous marginal drawings by the author.

"It is impossible that such a woodsy, breezy book should have been written by any one other than a man perfectly familiar with the life he depicts. A story to read and re-read, finding fresh beauty at each reading."—New York Times Saturday Review.

Fisherman's Luck
By HENRY VAN DYKE. Crown 8vo, $2.00.

Illustrated by Sterner, Smedley, Relyea and French, and from photographs.

"Dr. van Dyke has brought from the books and the woods a fresh and genuine note into our literature—a note in which one hears the fall of water, the stir of leaves, and the sound of men moving and speaking. These twelve chapters have a delightful breeziness of spirit and a sincere literary charm."—The Outlook.

The Grandissimes
By GEORGE W. CABLE. 8vo, $6.00.

With 12 full-page illustrations and 8 head-and-tail pieces by Albert Herter.

This charming volume of Mr. Cable's has been issued in uniform style with the edition of "Old Creole Days," illustrated by the same artist, which was so successful two years ago. Mr. Herter's pictures have rarely been equaled in their delicacy and charm.

Bob: The Story of Our Mocking Bird
By SIDNEY LANIER. 12mo, $1.50.

With 16 full-page illustrations in colors made from photographic studies by A. R. Dugmore.

A charming vein of philosophy and humor runs through Mr. Lanier's affectionately intimate story of his pet mocking bird Bob. The novel illustrations are as artistic as they are in perfect harmony with the author's delightful narrative.

Modern Daughters
By ALEXANDER BLACK. 8vo, $2.50.

Profusely illustrated from photographs by the author.

A companion volume to Mr. Black's extraordinarily successful "Miss America," published last season. The text consists of conversations with: A Débutante, a Heroine, a Left-Over Girl, a Chaperone, a Gym Girl, a Club Woman, a Nice Man, a Cynic, an Engaged Girl, and a Bride.

Mrs. Drew's Reminiscences
With an introduction by her son, JOHN DREW. 12mo, $1.50.

Illustrated with portraits of old-time actors, rare prints, programmes, etc.

Mrs. Drew's book is rich in entertaining reminiscences of the American stage. Anecdotes of Macready, the elder Booth, the elder Jefferson, of Fanny Kemble, of the Old Bowery and Park theatres, and of forgotten plays and players fill her pages and give them a delightful flavor.

Nooks and Corners of Old New York
By CHARLES HEMSTREET. Square 12mo, $2.00

With many delightful pen-and-ink sketches by E. C. Peixotto.

The pages of this volume are replete with reminiscence, and reveal the quaint and picturesque town of the past gradually assuming its present metropolitan aspect. It is a pocket history of the city recorded in its monuments.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, Publishers, New York.

come and stay, and make the old earth bloom with flowers, or it will come and go and leave it like a plain swept by fire. It's not a trivial thing that only boys and girls play with; it's better—and worse. It ought to be prepared for and treated well. It's not often treated well. People have got into the way of expecting trouble and tragedy to come out of it. We are always hearing of its unhappiness in books. Poets write about it that way. What I've been wanting to see is young love come up like a flower, and be given its dew and sun and rain—and bloom and bloom its best. That sort of thing was left out of my life; but I should like to see it before I'm done with. Good God! why can't people be happy? I want people to be happy.

A Beautiful Grolier Changes Hands.

The loveliest example, in some respects, of the library of Jean Grolier, the first collector who devoted any attention to the coverings of his books, was recently sold in this city at a high figure, and has become a part of a private collection, another being thus added to the large number of Groliers now in the United States in public and private libraries. This precious book is the Ovid of Venice, 1533-34, on large paper, with the anchors and all the initials illuminated, and with Grolier's name and device. After the death of the great collector, who had it bound for him in citron morocco in Paris about 1535, the Ovid very possibly passed about 1650 into the library of Dominic de Vic, in which nearly the whole of Grolier's collection had been incorporated, and in 1676 may have been sold in Paris, when the De Vic collection, with 3,000 Groliers, was dispersed. At all events, it was owned in England about 1728 by "R. G.," (Sir Richard Grafiam,) as his book plate is found within the covers, and about 1770 belonged to Wilmot, Earl of Lisburne, who inserted his ex libris. On July 18, 1805, the Ovid was sold at Sotheby's to Bernard Quaritch for £425, and in January, 1807, was described by Michael Kerney in Quaritch's "Catalogue of Book Bindings," where it was quoted at £525.

Such is a portion of the illustrious pedigree of this beautiful Grolier. As it was unknown to Le Roux de Lincy, who published in 1866 his valuable "Recherches sur Jean Grolier," future historians will have to trust to Kerney's elaborate description, which is a most careful piece of bibliographical writing. "No such Grolier," he writes, "is likely to be ever seen in the market again. It betrays a clear advance in decorative taste beyond the Aldine or Venetian type, the lines of ornament being sharper, finer, and more precise than those to which we are accustomed in Italian work." At the top of one of the three volumes there is a slight breakage, and a title has been added in three of the panels, but this is all any modern hand has done to interfere with the original. Formerly bound in green (found in laced geometrical design, formed by parallel gold lines, and an inner compartment of solid gold Aldine fleurons, of metal-work style. The parallel double fillets which constitute the border are rectangular in character, but at top and bottom they deflect in mid-course and intersect, changing sides, and at their intersection are embraced by a lozenge. In their course up and down each side, they deflect three times, interlacing as semi-circles, as lozenge, and as semi-circles. On the upper cover of each volume in the centreplece is the title, and at foot:

IO. GROLIERII ET AMICORVM.

On the lower cover of each is

PORTIO MEA DO
MINE SIT IN TERRA VI
VENTI
VM.

Mr. Howells's Books at Auction.

That the books of William Dean Howells have not as yet any especial attraction for the collector of American first editions was proved by a recent New York book sale, when an almost complete collection of his writings was offered, nearly everything from the "Poems of Two Friends," 1860, to "Stories of Ohio," 1897, being included. Mr. Howells's earliest published work, "Poems of Two Friends," (W. D. Howells and J. J. Piatt,) had inserted the manuscript of Piatt's poem "Two Watchers," but it fetched only $7.25. Yet the book is a great rarity, and only a few copies seem to be in existence.

Other books sold for small sums were: "Venetian Life," 1866, $3.12; "Their Wedding Journey," 1872, $4; "A Modern Instance," 1882, $1.13; "The Rise of Silas Lapham," 1885, $1.25, and "A Hazard of New Fortunes," 1890, $1.38. Some of these are of extreme scarcity, but, with the remainder of Mr. Howells's writings, have apparently little bibliographical importance. The name of their author is not yet one to conjure with in the auction room, and the immediate future, we fear, will not seriously alter the unappreciative attitude of collectors. But in this he is in honorable company, for complete collections of the works of George Meredith and Henry James, two other artists who have not made concessions to the taste of a certain portion of the public, would fare ill under the hands of the auctioneer.

Thirty years ago, however, those who made collections of such authors as Poe, Longfellow, Lowell, and Holmes would have had no financial reward for their zeal. In 1862 the library of Judge Albert G. Greene, (one of the earliest men to collect American first editions,) was sold in New York, and Poe's "Poems" went for 13½ cents, Lowell's "A Year's Life" 30 cents, Longfellow's "Poems on Slavery" 12 cents, and Holmes's "Harbinger" 25 cents. That was thirty years ago. It may chance that in 1929 the "Poems of Two Friends" will bring ten times $7.25, and that Mr. Howells's other books will be almost equally favored with attention.

New Books and Their Makers.

Here is a passage from a letter written by Patrick Brontë in 1855 to Mrs. Sarah Newsome, who had been a nurse in the Brontë household. The full text of the letter and other important matter will be incorporated in the new edition of Marion Harland's "Charlotte Brontë" in the Literary Heartstones series that G. P. Putnam's Sons are publishing. The letter is signed "Patrick Brontë, Incumbent of Haworth, Yorkshire." The passage noted runs as follows:

"You probably little thought that the children you nursed on your knees would be as much noticed by the world as they have been. Emily and Annie wrote and published clever books, and Charlotte's, writings and fame are noticed in all parts of the world where genius and learning are held in due estimation."

Some time ago Col. Higginson had occasion to write to Prof. Brander Matthews, and in his letter he quoted Wordsworth's line, "A man he was of cheerful yesterdays and confident to-morrows." At that time Col. Higginson had in hand a volume which ultimately bore the title "Cheerful Yesterdays," and Wordsworth's line was the explanation of the title to Prof. Matthews. The latter at once pounced upon the second part of the quotation, as a fitting title for a novel he was then preparing. It is now being published by Harper & Brothers and is called "A Confident To-morrow."

It is not generally known that Michael Angelo Woolf, whose drawings appear in the various humorous papers of the day, was once an actor. In the days of his stage career he passed through numerous experiences which were humorous and sad enough to give him a foundation for many drawings had he chosen to adopt this line of subjects. He, however, always took his misfortunes humorously. It is related of him on one occasion when he was in a company under a manager who was not strikingly regular in paying his bills he painted in a bright red on the act drop during the afternoon the legend, "Our last night till we're paid." He then rolled up the act drop. When it fell between the acts there was consternation in the house, and during the week he rejoiced not only in his salary, but in dinners furnished to him by members of the company by turns. Mr. Woolf's sketches, which have been collected by G. P. Putnam's Sons, will be published next week.

Canon Rawnsley, the author of "British [illegible]

George's Terrace, Regent's Park Road, London. Like many other English literary men, he holds a position in the Civil Service, being Assistant Financial Secretary of the Board of Trade. He entered the Board of Trade as a junior supplementary clerk in 1857, when he was seventeen years old, his education having been obtained in St. Paul's School. In 1870-71 he visited South America and made a report on the hospital accommodations for seamen at the principal South American ports. He is well known as a literary critic and has published several volumes of poems, a novel, "A Question of Honor," and biographies of Turner and Leigh Hunt. He has also written many articles on English and Italian art.

Tennyson and the Old Annuals.

In a very charming paper on "Tennyson and the Old Annuals," which appeared in Literature the other day, Mr. Frederick Lees discourses so charmingly on the subject that it seems rather a pity he should have made several inaccurate statements.

Mr. Lees's assertion that the verses signed "Alfred" in the rare "Death's Doings" are by Tennyson is given without proof; the statement seems simply to be made on inference, and, while quite possibly true, the fact is unknown to a well-known New York collector of Tennysoniana. Mr. Lees has also made one or two mistakes as to dates, &c., which we are glad to be able to correct on the authority of the same collector.

For instance, the sonnet beginning "Me my own fate to lasting sorrow doometh" appeared in "Friendship's Offering" for 1832, and not, as stated by Mr. Lees, in the 1833 volume. On the same page, 367, of the 1832 volume is a sonnet by Frederick Tennyson. "Friendship's Offering" for 1833, however, page 29, contains a sonnet by Alfred Tennyson, the first line of which is, "Check every outflash, every ruder sally." Mr. Lees also says that, besides the Tennysons mentioned in his article in Literature, only one other "may be found by the industrious searcher in annuals of the same period."

In "The Keepsake" for 1837, pp. 247-248, appears "St. Agnes," afterward reprinted in "Poems," 1842, Vol. II., pp. 171-173. In subsequent editions the poem appears under the title, "St. Agnes' Eve."

The above corrections are made simply because inaccurate statements as regards bibliography are very regrettable, and Mr. Lees's article is so interestingly written as to attract to the search for such little annuals many who are only beginners in collecting.

An Act of Benevolence.

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

We read your paper every week and take great pleasure in it. It seems to me a benevolent act. You must be good people; your paper is [illegible]

A. C. McClurg & Co.'s

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

JUST PUBLISHED.

JUDEA.

From Cyrus to Titus, 537 B. C.—70 A. D.
By ELIZABETH WORMELEY LATIMER. Illustrated. 8vo, $2.50.

This is a clear and interesting narrative of the political vicissitudes, religious experiences and social condition of the people of Judea for six hundred years. Readers will appreciate the modern instances by means of which the author makes the past real and lifelike, and the lucid manner in which the relations of the Hebrews to foreign nations are set forth.

MRS. LATIMER'S OTHER BOOKS ARE:

Spain in the 19th Century. 8vo, Illustrated $2.50
Italy in the 19th Century. 8vo, Illustrated 2.50
England in the 19th Century. 8vo, Illustrated 2.50
Europe in Africa in the 19th Century. 8vo, illustrated..... 2.50
Russia and Turkey in the 19th Century. 8vo, Illustrated..... 2.50
France in the 19th Century. 8vo, illustrated 2.50
My Scrap-Book of the French Revolution. 8vo, illustrated.... 2.50

THE HONEY-MAKERS.

By MARGARET W. MORLEY, author of "The Bee People," "A Song of Life," "Life and Love," &c. 12mo. Illustrated. $1.50.

In the first part the writer expounds in a clear and interesting fashion the structure and habits of the bee, and in the second gives the results of an exhaustive study of the bee and honey in literature from the sacred books of India to the poetry of to-day. It is a work of lively interest and full of quaint learning.

TALES OF AN OLD CHÂTEAU.

By MARGUERITE BOUVET, author of "Sweet William," "My Lady," &c. Illustrated by Helen Maitland Armstrong. 16mo. $1.25.

In these "tales" Miss Bouvet returns to the scenes and style of narration which scored such wonderful success in "Sweet William" and "My Lady." The tales set forth some touching incidents of the French Revolution, and purport to be the youthful experiences of an aristocratic old French lady, told to her grandchildren. The illustrations are executed in Miss Armstrong's delicate style and add much to the charm and interest of the narrative.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

THE HOUSE OF THE WIZARD.

By Miss M. IMLAY TAYLOR, author of "On the Red Staircase," "An Imperial Lover," "A Yankee Volunteer" 12mo. $1.25.

A thrilling story of court life in England in Henry VIII.'s time.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF AMERICAN LITERATURE.

By MARY FISHER, author of "A Group of French Critics." 12mo. Gilt top, deckle edges. $1.50.

A critical and biographical account of all the noteworthy names in our literature.

THE DEAR IRISH GIRL.

By KATHARINE TYNAN, author of "The Handsome Brandons," "She Walks in Beauty," &c. 12mo. $1.50.

A charming love story, in which the central figure is a winsome Irish maiden of gentle birth.

THOSE DALE GIRLS.

By FRANCES WESTON CARRUTH. Illustrated. 12mo. $1.25.

"A story which any girl might be the better for reading."—The Bookman.

THE BEE PEOPLE.

By MARGARET W. MORLEY, author of "A Song of Life," &c. Illustrated. 12mo. $1.25.

"A book brimming over with joyous, healthy interest."—The Beacon, Boston.

ON GENERAL THOMAS'S STAFF.

The Young Kentuckians Series.

By BYRON A. DUNN, author of "General Nelson's Scout." Illustrated. 12mo. $1.25.

An exciting story of gallant exploits in the Civil War.

THE CITY OF DREADFUL NIGHT AND OTHER POEMS.

Being a selection from the poetical works of James Thomson. 16mo. Gilt top, uncut edges. $1.25.

NEARLY READY.

THE DIVINE PEDIGREE OF MAN.

By THOMSON JAY HUDSON, LL.D., author of "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," "A Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life." 12mo, $1.50.

An original and convincing argument on behalf of Christian Theism.

MOMENTS WITH ART.

Short Selections in Prose and Verse for Lovers of Art. Collected and arranged by J. E. P. D. Uniform with "Musical Moments." 16mo. Gilt top, deckle edges. $1.00.

For sale by booksellers generally, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of the price by the publishers.

A. C. McCLURG & CO.,
215-221 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

DEC

Mr. Mosher's List

IS A CHARMING BIBELOT IN ITSELF OF 64 PAGES, EXQUISITELY PRINTED IN RED AND BLACK, WITH SPECIAL COVER DESIGNS, AND COMPRISES OVER 60 TITLES, RANGING IN PRICE FROM 25 CENTS TO $20.00.

SENT FREE ON APPLICATION.

THE VEST POCKET OMAR
The Most Exquisite Hand-made Paper Edition Ever Issued.

Blue paper wrapper, postpaid..... .25 net
Limp cloth, postpaid ..... .40 net
Flexible leather, gilt top, postpaid.. .75 net
Japan Vellum edition, postpaid..... 1.00 net

THOMAS B. MOSHER,
XLV Exchange St., Portland, Maine.

Autograph Letters of Famous Persons.
BOUGHT AND SOLD.
WALTER R. BENJAMIN,
1123 Broadway, N. Y. City.
SEND FOR PRICE LISTS.

"Vassar Studies."

Many of your readers will probably find the same interest I derived from a reading of Julia A. Shearer's "Vassar Studies." This book throws quite a new light on the college girl, and describes her character, tastes, and habits, as well as the different types of the steadily increasing class of womankind in a very interesting way. The putting of each different type in a separate essay rather than writing one story and weaving each one in the whole, seems to me to be a very good way to play off the various character traits that come under the author's observation.

While some of the sketches are very good, some, on the other hand, are very thin and forced. This is especially true of the first in the book, which gives one the impression of a very carefully worked-out problem in geometry, with the "Q. E. D." tightly tacked on at the end. A girl so entirely devoid of feeling as Miss Alice was before she entered college can scarcely be imagined, no matter how quiet and uneventful her previous life was, and the method taken by the author of awakening each separate emotion in mathematical succession can scarcely be called happy. The sketch cannot, however, be called utterly bad.

"For the Honor of the Class" seems to me forced in the writing, though its dramatic interest saves it from being dull. Several other "studies" of the same class may be found in the book, which excite only a passing interest, though there are in all of them occasional gleams of pathos and humor which light up the sketch. But to me, the gem of the book is the story called "The Genius." There is little or no dramatic interest in it, but as a character sketch it is very fine. The method taken here of contrasting two utterly opposite characters by letting one describe the other is both ingenious and effective, while the style of writing is much more spontaneous and finished than in any of the others, with the exception of the last of the set, called "One of the Girls," and two others, "The Career of a Radical" and "A Superior Young Woman." So many of the rest suggest pictures without frames; the material is good, but they are often poorly set.

"One of the Girls" shows the career of a really brilliant girl forced to give up her future because the family needed her at home. How true to life this sketch is, Heaven only knows. The three girls in it are very well drawn, while the little story, with the three others mentioned, strikes the right chord of human interest, which is, after all, the dominant point in a book, whether it describes college girls or salesgirls.

Though the arrangement of the stories could be much improved by putting one of the stronger ones at the beginning, still, taken altogether, the book is worth more than a casual reading, for, aside from a little crudeness of handling, many interesting points in girl life and character are portrayed, besides doing away with the false impression entertained by many non-collegians that most students either "dig" for dear life or else make "fudges" and hold midnight revels behind locked doors and veiled transoms during the university career. A little taken here, a little added there, and we can make for ourselves a delightful composite ideal of the college girl, whom it will always be a pleasure to count among our dream friends.

The college girl, properly developed both mentally and physically, must in time evolve into the woman, so much scoffed at by the men, so eagerly hoped for and expected by the women. Losing none of her feminine charms, she will add to them commanding mental powers as well as physical strength, and then, when woman shall have reached the high place where she belongs she will be able to show "her tyrant, man," of what she is capable.

JOHANNA LOBSENZ.

New York, Nov. 22, 1899.

"The True William Penn."

Alluding to your note on the new volume of Mr. Sydney George Fisher, "The True William Penn," considerable light was thrown by this able writer on the character of the founder of the Penn colony in his work entitled, "Men, Women, and Manners of Colonial Times." The title of this work (two volumes) hardly does it justice. It is a most important addition to our colonial history and places many of the leading actors of the period in altogether new lights. Some of the events and transactions which have been accepted as historical truths are pretty well ventilated by Mr. Fisher and a few of our pet ideas are rudely shaken up. The portion of the work dealing with the "Puritan and the Catholic on the Chesapeake" is particularly interesting reading. There is no doubt that his "True William Penn" will be spicy reading, but for an all-round history of the colonial days the work referred to can hardly be excelled.

WILLIAM HYATT FARRINGTON.

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 27, 1899.

"Salad for the Solitary."

Of all the articles in last week's issue of your splendid SATURDAY REVIEW, the one that pleased me most and that tickled the very cockles of my heart was that on Frederick Saunders. I have long been an admirer of that delightful medley "Salad for the Solitary and the Social." Indeed, "Salad for the Solitary" was one of the first books that I placed in the little collection that I call my library. I was but a callow youth, almost newly fresh from the country, when I obtained a position in the down-town section of New York. Before long, when my luncheon hour came, I would drift out of Here I found my "Salad." It came with a small lot of English books, it was published by Richard Bently in 1835, and was bound—and is still—in marbled boards with morocco corners and a morocco back stamped in gold in a delightful fashion that perished both my eyes and my heart. Its previous owner evidently loved it, for it bore the marks of kindly use and was extra illustrated with some excellent copperplate portraits and the "Salad" was just seasoned to my taste.

I wanted it badly. In the most off-hand manner I could command, to conceal my ardent desire, I inquired the price. It was high, and I knew I couldn't buy it then, for my pocketbook was lean-shranken, most dolefully thin. I coveted it so badly that I perspired twixt the desire, the confounding knowledge that I couldn't get it then, and the fear lest some other might. Between pinching here and saving there, forgetting a luncheon or two in anticipation of a delectable feast on the "Salad" and a visit every day to see if my treasure was safe, at last, on a glorious Saturday, I exchanged my dross for gold refined, the "Salad" was mine!

Reader, dost thou know the ecstasy of such a moment? The volume well wrapped up and tucked safely under your arm, when you feel as if all the rich, warm juices of October were pouring through your veins and you have that heady feeling that, if the passers by, who see but a wight, with a coat perhaps a little out of date, a hat none too new, and a little brown parcel under his arm—how, you think, if they knew what that little brown parcel contained, their glance of uncencern would quickly change to deepest envy—and you "gloat." At such a moment I'd not swap with an Alexander, or, more to the point, with that plump, affluent merchant with good store of ducats, or any other, for, to the book lover, poor in purse, comes some of the sweetest, deepest joy of life and of books.

My "Salad" stands, not solitary, on one of my shelves in a company most meet, with Sir Roger and the Vicar, a pudgy "Compleat Angler," Herrick's "Hesperides," and Montaigne, Virgil, and gentle Charles Lamb divine George Herbert, whose sweet songs "rise to heaven's gate"; quaint, manly Quarles, John Mason Neale's Mediaeval Hymns, Tyndale's New Testament, (Offer's Reprint,) and a book of Christmas Carols.

This goodly company? I would thou wouldst find better. This is my shelf of recourse when weary of the modernity and hurly-burly of the times.

Gentle reader, wouldst thou spend a most pleasant half hour? Then read the "Salad," for thou wilt find therein much cheerful gossip and many pleasant matters choicely selected by an epicure in book-tasting.

New York, Nov. 27, 1899. QUINCE.

Miss Whiting's "Mrs. Browning."

As an admirer of Miss Lilian Whiting, I was delighted to read in your issue of Nov. 11 an appreciative review of her study of Elizabeth Barrett Browning—a book which has not yet reached my book table. Apart from the delicate charm of her style, Miss Whiting always writes with such earnest and conscientious care that it may seem almost hypercritical to refer to a small error which appears in one of the quotations used in THE SATURDAY REVIEW. But is it not best, after all, even in small details, to have so precious a thing as a good book as perfect as it can be made—the crystal flawless when a speck upon it can, so easily be brushed away? In speaking of a portrait of Mrs. Browning, painted when she was nine years old, which hangs in the Browning villa at Florence, she describes it as that of a lovely girl with fair hair and blue eyes, standing in a garden with the dog, Flush, beside her.

I am sure this must have been a mere "lapsus calami." Flush, whom we lovers of Mrs. Browning know almost as well as we do herself, was, we firmly believe, a very remarkable dog as dogs go, but even Flush could hardly have been capering about in the vigorous way he is reported in the "Love Letters" to have done if the weight of more than thirty Summer had rested upon his silken ears. The facts are that Flush was presented to Miss Barrett by Miss Mitford, and these two did not even meet until Miss Barrett was thirty years old. Her tender little poem about him was written in 1844—the gift was made presumably a few years earlier.

I want to protest also, and most solemnly, against the "blue eyes." Blue eyes the picture must have, or Miss Whiting would not have so stated, but so many of her contemporaries (W. W. Story, for instance, who is referred to in the same quotation) have described Mrs. Browning as having brown eyes, and I have so often gazed, in imagination, into the brown eyes and loved them that the thought of blue ones came upon me with a distinct shock. This may seem a small matter, but it is really very important. Just imagine for a moment looking at the face of one you love and meeting eyes of a different color from those which were to you "the sweetest ever seen"—the gray ones turned black, the brown ones blue! You would have to love and learn them all over again! Can Miss Whiting have made a mistake as to the identity of the picture? Won't she please leave us our brown-eyed poet, and lift the stigma of such venerableness from poor Flush's innocent memory? He may not care very much—I don't know how dogs feel about it, and anyhow his sex allows him to profess a noble scorn for the sting of added years—but wherever he is now, in that heaven seems to me it would hurt his feelings dreadfully to know that any one believes his capacity for sighing and drooling about at an age when he ought to have been at peace beneath the daisies.

K. M. H.

Fort Allen, La., Nov. 20, 1899.

"Hugh Wynne," "Richard Carvel," "Janice Meredith."

Your correspondent "Similia Similibus" of Saturday last, in comparing "Richard Carvel" with "Hugh Wynne," and merely claiming one to be the "prototype" of the other, only partially reaches the core of the matter, and, instead of hitting the nail on the head, merely strikes a tack.

If he will renew his youth and reread Thackeray's "The Virginians," and recall how young Warrington-Esmond met practically the same people and difficulties in England and got into jail for his debts, as did Richard Carvel, whatever originality he may have credited Richard Carvel with, except as a mere matter of words, will be destroyed. In short, Richard Carvel in Europe and Harry Warrington-Esmond are almost identically placed throughout. If "Hugh Wynne" and "The Virginians" had never been written, we should not have the pleasure of seeing "Richard Carvel." The author of "Carvel" must have thought the public had a short memory, not to have read "Wynne," and he must have thought Thackeray, being dead, was safe to follow, forgetting that some men's words live after them. Then again, his epilogue, which might better have been a preface, which few read, is like an ice-cold shower bath after sunshine, and furnished an anti-climax the like of which is seldom seen in literature.

"Hugh Wynne" is a dignified, original piece of Revolutionary literature.

"Richard Carvel" is a well-written imitation of better Revolutionary literature than itself.

I recommend to your correspondent "Janice Meredith." It is original; it has life; it is more picturesque than a chromo and strong enough for a Turner oil painting. It is not a duplicate of anything or anybody. It is better than Ford's "Peter Stirling," which made his reputation, because its hero is a consistent personality throughout and does not slump away into an ordinary mortal at the finish. Your correspondent may think the heroine silly, but she has the merit of being silly throughout, and, according to accepted literary tenets, all heroines of that period in America seem to have been silly.

Your correspondent and I will not change the current of public opinion by our criticism, but we may call a pause in the indiscriminate deifying of the author of a book which would never have existed had not better books been written on the same subject, to wit, "Richard Carvel"; and I beg indulgence to call attention to the strongest Revolutionary novel I have read—and which has the real merit of entire originality and is preferable to "Hugh Wynne" merely because it has more vigor and vitality than Dr. Mitchell's book—"Janice Meredith." CHARLES H. YOUNG.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 13, 1899.

Another View of "Richard Carvel."

"Richard" undoubtedly reminds one of "Hugh Wynne," and perhaps quite as much of "Micah Clarke." The three read like the very same person in slightly different scenes and times. But much more strongly does it recall a story of long-ago childhood, which introduced a character, Nurse Brown, who has ever dwelt in our memories for her "improving" remark made upon her deathbed: "Henry, I have always been a good woman, and good people has loved me for bein' so." This would seem to have been Mr. Carvel's idea of himself even in his old age, when he was supposed to have done with the folly and vice through which he at such length describes himself as plunging, and it leads one to conclude that Philip and his parent must have been really excellent persons much maligned by this hero who could do no wrong, and for whom a little "come-down" would have been the best possible medicine. I think "Wynne" was the same, but did not read it through. "Carvel" I had to finish for a blind son with whom I had unwittingly or rashly started it. Its style and wording are not so bad, if only the author had cared to preserve ever so little of that vraisemblance, without which narrative falls flat, and which is the main charm of classical "Robinson Crusoe." Who can read with patience of those bad "big-bugs" in London making so much of an unlicked "cub" like Carvel, particularly at a time when our "leadermen" were figuring in old-country eyes as "bad boys of —— colonists"?

A slight sense of proportion would hardly hurt some of these writers, and the lack of it is perhaps what gives the strongest ground to enemies of fiction in general.

On the same lines one might treat of Doyle-after-Stevenson and Stevenson-after-Scott, and Scott-after-himself, but time fails, and one does not want to be over-critical. DESDICHADO.

New York, Nov. 14, 1899.

Norman Hapgood's "Lincoln."

I should like to have you throw light on a difficulty raised by one of the new books. We are accustomed to look upon Abraham Lincoln as one of the most creditable products of American civilization. Hundreds of men admire him who have little respect for practical politicians of the day, like President McKinley. Now, the latest life of Lincoln, by Norman Hapgood, gives this political side with particular fullness, and what I want to know is why everything said by his enemies about McKinley's being a mere mouthpiece is not true of Lincoln. Mr. Hap-good says, on Pages 55-6: "The three things he proved were that he was a very adroit politician, that he shared a financial insanity which just then pervaded the State, and that he had convictions on slavery. His political address was shown in his leading position among the delegates from his district, called the 'Long Nine,' from the height of all the members, and its recognition was proved by the fact that a great scheme of that body, the removal of the capital, was left to his engineering. The removal for Vandalia was settled, and Alton, Decatur, Peoria, Jacksonville, and Illiopolis sought the honor. The 'Long Nine,' however, by giving their support to other bills only in return for votes for Springfield, conquered." What is that but "practical politics" of the most decided kind? Can anything more be said of McKinley? On Page 101 I find that while he was in Congress he wrote this letter:

Confidential.
Springfield, Ill., May 25, 1849.

Hon. E. Embree:

Dear Sir: I am about to ask a favor of you—one which I hope will not cost you much. I understand the General Land Office is about to be given to Illinois, and that Mr. Ewing desires Justin Butterfield of Chicago to be the man. I give you my word, the appointment of Mr. Butterfield will be an egregious political blunder. It will give offense to the whole Whig Party here, and be worse than a dead loss to the Administration of so much of its patronage. Now, if you can conscientiously do so, I wish you to write Gen. Taylor at once, saying that either I or the man I recommend should in your opinion be appointed to that office. If any one from Illinois shall be. I restrict my request to Illinois because you may have a man from your own State, and I do not ask to interfere with that.

Your friend as ever,
A. LINCOLN.

Isn't this claim to control the patronage of his State the characteristic of our ordinary "Solons," which gives most offense to the purists in politics?

On Page 243 I find the following: "While McClellan was drilling the army Lincoln was steadily keeping up his fight for the political solidarity of the North and the conciliation of the border States. When Congress adjourned, Aug. 6, and Congressman McClernand, who had represented lower Illinois for many years, came to say good-by to the President, Lincoln handed him a Brigadier General's commission and told him to 'keep Egypt right side up.'" What is this but precisely what McKinley and Alger were so bitterly attacked for during our last war?

The account of Lincoln's action during the draft riots in Pennsylvania in the chapter called "Politics and War," is too long to quote, but it shows the same compromising spirit. So with the appointment of a General to please the Germans, Page 307.

Among the reasons for the appointment of Gen. Meade, the following is given, Page 319: "Third—He was a Democrat, and the President wished to check a threatened demand for McClellan's restoration."

About the nomination of Secretary Chase to the Supreme bench, Lincoln is quoted as follows, Page 347: "There are three reasons why he should be nominated, and one why he should not be. In the first place, he occupies a larger place in the public mind with reference to the office than any other person. Then we want a man who will sustain the Legal-Tender act and the Proclamation of Emancipation. We cannot ask a candidate what he would do, and if we did and he should answer we should only despise him for it. But he wants to be President, and if he does not give that up it will be a great injury to him and a great injury to me. He can never be President."

The next quotation which I shall make seems to me particularly apt in its bearing on the political manipulations of to-day. For Thurlow Weed, read Platt or Croker, and what is the result? It is on Page 350. Lincoln says to R. E. Fenton: "You are to be nominated by our folks for Governor of your State. Seymour, of course, will be the Democratic nominee. You will have a hard fight. * * * There is some trouble among our folks over there, which we must try and manage. Or, rather, there is one man who may give us trouble, because of his indifference, if in no other way. He has great influence, and his feelings may be reflected in many of his friends. We must have his counsel and co-operation, if possible." Thurlow Weed, in short, was not pleased with the disposition of the Federal patronage in New York, being particularly hostile to the Collector and Surveyor. Nicolay, the secretary, and Fenton returned to New York that evening. The next day Fenton had a consultation with Weed, Nicolay returned to Washington with the resignation of the Surveyor, and a friend of Weed was the successor. The State went Republican in the Fall."

H. A. R. SCHUMACHER.
New York, Nov. 12, 1899.

"The Man With the Hoe."

I take note of a funny little discussion in progress over the possibility of Edwin Markham's having read a short and good poem by Miss Cora E. Chase upon "The Man with the Hoe," and then conveyed the idea to himself.

Readers of your valuable SATURDAY REVIEW will recall, doubtless, that I had the honor to be the reviewer of his lately issued volume of poems, (Doubleday & McClure,) which paper was published in your pages. That review was, I think, the first made in an Eastern journal. Therein I told of the writing of the "Man with the Hoe." The poet, I may repeat, was attracted to the Millais picture while on a visit fourteen years since to a friend living in Seattle. The first thirty-two lines, as recently published, with four other lines that have not been printed, were written at that time. Miss Chase's poem is of a later origin. The poem was laid aside till last Christmas-tide, when he took up the manuscript, revised it slightly, and that evening wrote one and the next morning the other of the last two stanzas, seventeen lines in all. The manuscript of the first part written has been in my hands. A fac simile of some of its lines has also been issued. The criticasters will have to chase some one else than Edwin Markham on the score of literary piracy or want of original power.

By the way, let me say in closing that, gratifying as was Dr. Max Nordau's critical approval of Edwin Markham's work, for one must recognise the Semitic publicist and author as a capable critic, I, for one, would have been better pleased if he had not used the name of Walt Whitman for the purpose of comparison. Whitman stands on his own great merits. But my objection to Nordau's use of the "Good Gray Poet's" name lies in the fact that the Parisian has never retracted in the slightest degree, so far as I can learn, the gross misrepresentation of Walt Whitman's personal life with which he so ignorantly defiled the laborious pages of "Degeneration." It is Nordau's right to decry "Leaves of Grass" and other works of the poet, but when he wrote and published of him as unclean of life, person, and habits, he not only illustrated his want of knowledge, but showed that in the degenerate desire to "make points" he was only showing himself fit to be put in the category of characters over the denunciation of which he has wasted so much knowledge and scholarship. M. Nordau's attacks on Walt Whitman as a person show him to be fast ripening for classification as a "degenerate."

RICHARD J. HINTON.
Brooklyn, Nov. 18, 1899.

Editions of Balzac.

I have become so accustomed to looking to the Saturday issue of THE TIMES for accurate and up-to-date news from the world of books that I am surprised to find in your article of last week on "The Three Musketeers" remarks that must mislead those not acquainted with the facts.

You say that the publishers (Barrie & Son) of the Philadelphia translation, "having secured the rights to some of the most notable separate translations of Balzac's books, are preparing to bring out an edition that is said to embrace the entire works of the French author, unabridged and unexpurgated."

From the first part of this statement it is fair to presume that you simply mean that the Philadelphia publishers have copyrighted their translations, which is not important so far as the public is concerned, but when it is intimated that this translation will embrace the entire works of Balzac, you must not consider your readers, at least those who have some knowledge of the magnitude of Balzac's writings, unkind if they decline to accept the statement as fact.

I find that the Barrie translation is far short of being a rendering of Balzac's complete works. It contains the ninety-five stories of the "Comédie Humaine" together with the two "Analytical Studies," the "Droll Stories," and a repertory. There are, therefore, omitted from this self-proclaimed complete edition, the "Plays"; the ten earlier novels of Balzac; "Oeuvres de Jeunesse," his "Letters," and at least four volumes of his miscellaneous works, a total of some seventeen volumes. I do not intimate that the average English reader would desire to burden his library with translations of these additional volumes, which are devoid of special literary merit, but why call a thing complete when it is not?

The Saintsbury edition includes, I find upon comparison with the French "Edition Définitive," the entire "Comédie Humaine," complete and unabridged, but it omits the two other "Analytical Studies," and the "Droll Stories," the latter of which, however, on account of certain literary merit, I have obtained from the publishers in the more desirable Doré edition.

But what is far more important to me, as a lover of Balzac, I find in the Saintsbury edition upward of 250 pages of introductory matter, distributed in its proper place, through the different volumes, and which gives the information so important to the English reader of Balzac for a proper understanding and appreciation of this great author. This feature of the Saintsbury Balzac places it for me far above any other English edition now extant. A. M. C.

New York, Nov. 2, 1899.

Kate Field and Lawrence Barrett.

Kate Field was extremely enthusiastic over Lawrence Barrett's acting, especially over his rendering of the rôle of Cassius, (Barrett was less at the time,) and she laughingly declared that he was one of her ideals whom she had met too late. One memorable day in the year during which she became interested in co-operative dressmaking, Miss Field accompanied Lawrence Barrett to Central Park, on the occasion of a Shakespearean anniversary, when a small tree was planted by the reverent ones. The late Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan Blake, sister of Dr. Dix, sent Kate Field at the time two small Japanese stone figures, with fresh smilax entwining them, and this inscription beneath:

There was a fair maiden called Kate,
Who met with lean Cassius too late,
But they went on a spree,
Planting Bill Shakespeare's tree—
Lean Cassius and Co-operative Kate.

The incident, it is hardly necessary to add, affected Kate Field quite as much, somewhat, as it did Lawrence Barrett.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

The Christmas Century.

"Rich in the kind of literature that makes THE CENTURY
The Leading Monthly Periodical of the World."

From Ernest Seton-Thompson's "Biography of a Grizzly."

Cover Design, The Christmas Angel ..... Henry Hutt
In six printings.

The Old Master.
A Poem, with frontispiece by Louis Loeb, and decorations by Edward Edwards. Printed in tints.

The Christmas Dancers ..... Edith Thomas
A legend of Saxony. With three full-page pictures and decorations by Henry Hutt. Printed in tints.

The Kid Hangs Up His Stocking ..... Jacob A. Riis
A Christmas story of a newsboys' lodging-house. "Fellers, what d' ye t'ink? I 'm blamed if de Kid ain't gone an' hung up his sock fer Chris'mas!" And how the boys broke "de bank" and filled the "sock." Illustrated by C. M. Relyea.

King Christmas and Master New Year ..... Dr. S. Weir Mitchell
A Poem.

A Provençal Christmas Postscript ..... Thomas A. Janvier
Christmas in Southern France—the Yule Log—the Great Supper—Noëls—Mistral's Story, etc. Illustrated by Louis Loeb.

The Art of Seeing Things ..... John Burroughs
"Some people seem born with eyes in their heads, and others with buttons or painted marbles, and no amount of science can make the one equal to the other in the art of seeing things."

A Hill Prayer ..... Marian Warner Wildman
Prize Poem in The Century's College Competition. With decorations and a full-page picture by Maxfield Parrish.

The Biography of a Grizzly ..... Ernest Seton-Thompson
The second part of this delightful story, with three full-page pictures and marginal decorations by the author. "Mr. Thompson here demonstrates once more his unrivalled gift of describing animal life from the inside point of view; and here, as in the past, his pencil has ably supplemented his pen."—Commercial Advertiser.

Full-Page Engraving ..... Timothy Cole
After Sir Thomas Lawrence's portrait of Lady Derby.

Out of the Fog ..... Edward Marshall
A story, the action taking place on an ocean steamer.

Sailing Alone Around the World ..... Captain Joshua Slocum
The personal narrative of the experiences of the sloop "Spray" in her single-handed voyage of 46,000 miles. A most entertaining narrative,—one of the best sea stories ever printed.

The Matrimonial Opportunities of Maria Pratt ..... Virginia Woodward Cloud
A story. "I used to be a great hand for making matches. . . . I believe what opened my eyes was the way I labored over that Maria Pratt."

"I Believe" ..... Margaret Sutton Briscoe
A brief essay on the heroism of self-confidence.

The Christmas Tree ..... J. Alden Weir
A Picture, engraved on wood by Henry Wolf. Printed in tints.

The Autobiography of a Quack ..... Dr. S. Weir Mitchell
A novelette, with illustrations by Arthur J. Keller.
"A story that from the very start promises to develop into a splendid story of adventure in modern life—a novel of the nineteenth century Ishmael."—Mail and Express, N. Y.

French's Washington.
An engraving of the head of the new equestrian statue by Daniel Chester French.

THE CROMWELL HISTORY.

By JOHN MORLEY.

"It is good to find writing like this in a monthly magazine. The illustrations are superb." New York Tribune.

Mr. Morley's papers on Oliver Cromwell, of which this is the second, will be richly illustrated with original pictures and with reproductions of many of the most famous paintings in the great collections of Europe. The present instalment contains chapters on Puritanism and the Double Issue, the Short Parliament, the Long Parliament, the Fall of Strafford, etc.

OLD WHITEHALL PALACE AND WHITEHALL STAIRS.
From the Cromwell History.

One of Two Millions in East London ..... Sir Walter Besant
Illustrated by Joseph Pennell and Phil May. The first of a series of papers on life in the East End of London, by the author of "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," the book that made possible the famous People's Palace. In this article Sir Walter Besant takes a single creature out of the millions and follows her from babyhood to marriage—in her childhood on the street, in the board school and the factory, her work-days and her holidays. The next article in the series will describe the life of the water side above London Bridge.

Zionism ..... Richard Gotthell
"It is not in vainglorious pride, but in courage born of a strong hope, that I repeat the words which Disraeli, the great Jewish Zionist, when quite spent in years, said to a Jewish boy, 'Never forget that you and I belong to a race which can do everything but fail.'"

McCribben Sues the City ..... Harry Stillwell Edwards
With illustrations by Frederic Dorr Steele. One of the most amusing stories ever printed in The Century. Mr. McCribben sues for $1000 damages on account of falling into a sewer, which was built in front of his house—"an' it wor iliven fate dape, an' two fate av wather standin' knay-dape in the same."

Glass Houses ..... Gelett Burgess
A psychological comedy, in which there is a love story.

Put Up the Sword ..... James Jeffrey Roche
A stirring poem by the author of "Ballads of Blue Water."

The Judgment of Peter and Paul on Olympus ..... By the Author of "Quo Vadis"
A "poem in prose," by Henryk Sienkiewicz, author of "Quo Vadis," "With Fire and Sword," etc. It has not yet been published in Polish, and this translation, by Jeremiah Curtin, is the only one that has been made. In the story the heathen gods appear before Peter and Paul for judgment.

Fear and Death ..... R. E. Bowker
A Poem.

Fakes and Fakirs ..... Gustav Kobbé
An account of the exhibition of burlesque pictures that is held yearly by the Art Student's League of New York; reproducing some of the most amusing examples.

The Automobile Dray ..... Virginia Fraser Boyle
With other bits of fun in the "Lighter Vein" department.

Printed in Tints. Price 35 Cents. On all News-stands.

SPECIAL TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS After the issue of the December number, new yearly subscribers who begin with December will receive a copy of the November number free of charge, if they ask for it on subscribing, thus obtaining the first issue of the volume and the beginning of the important serials, including the Cromwell History. Remit $4.00 to the publishers,

FREE

THE CENTURY CO., Union Square, New York.

NOTES OF BOOKS

Items Gathered During The Week's Tour of the Publishing Houses.

I.—NEW YORK.

Under the general title "Briton and Boer" Harper & Brothers will shortly issue a volume made up of the most distinguished and recent articles on the subject. The themes and their authors are as follows: "The Historical Causes of the Present War in the Transvaal," by James Bryce; "England and the Transvaal," by Sydney Brooks; "A Vindication of the Boer," being a rejoinder to Sydney Brooks by "A Dispassionate Critic"; "A Transvaal View of the South African Question," by Dr. F. V. Egenburg; "The Transvaal War and European Opinion," by Karl Blined; "The South African Question," by Andrew Carnegie; "Will the Powers Intervene?" by Francis Charmes, and "A Possible Continental Alliance Against England," by Demetrius C. Boulger.

"Oliver Cromwell: His Life and Character," by Arthur Paterson, is among the recent Cromwellian publications in England. Mr. Firth's book on the same subject, which G. P. Putnam's Sons will present early in 1900, has the distinctive feature of having been written by a man who is not only well known as an authority on the history of the seventeenth century in England, but who is also a recognised authority on the art of war. His book, which will simply bear the title "Oliver Cromwell," although begun six years ago, still lacks two chapters of being complete. Among its features will be a new theory concerning the battle of Dunbar, the ground of which Mr. Firth has measured several times.

George Iles is writing a book for the Doubleday & McClure Company, in which will be described man's industrial progress from the first discovery of fire to the latest achievements of electricity and photography. Every section of the volume that deals with a particular science has been submitted to an expert on the subject, so that the whole work will be technically correct. John Fiske, the historian, recently went over some of the proof sheets of the part in which he might be supposed to be particularly interested, and he wrote to the author: "Your points are so well taken, so happily and richly illustrated with examples, and their bearing on the main argument is so skillfully kept in view, that the result is in my mind a truly great book, and I venture to predict for it a great future." Mr. Iles's work had its origin in an article by him entitled "Why Progress Is by Leaps."

"Jane Austen, Her Contemporaries, and Herself," by Walter Herries Pollock, is published to-day by Longmans, Green & Co. The same house also presents simultaneously with it "Irish Experiences, Being Some Experiences of an Irish R. M.," by O. E. Somerville and Martin Ross; "Life and Works of Dante Allighieri," being an introduction to the study of "La Divina Commedia," by the Rev. J. F. Hogan; "Shakespeare's Sonnets," reconsidered and rearranged, by Samuel Butler, and "The Redemption of Egypt," by W. Basil Worsfold, with four pictures in color and seventy text illustrations.

Brentano's have just received from Paris René Bazin's "Croquis de France et d'Orient"; L. Bandry de Sannier's "L'Automobile, Theorique et Pratique"; Paul Bonhomme's "M'sien la Pondeur"; André Broca's "La Telegraphie Sans Fils"; Maurice Donnay's "Le Torrent"; H. de la Ferriere's "Amour mondain amour mystique"; George Feydeau's "Un fil à la Patte"; Andre Foulon de Vaulx's "Madame de Lauraguais"; Pierre Gauthier's "La Dame du Lac"; Victor Hugo's "Choses Vues," (Nouvelle series, being his memoirs;) F. P. Jacobson's "Niels Lyhna"; Eugene Folieteri's "Au Harem"; Jean Pichari's "La Epreuve"; Jean Rameau's "Le Bonheur de Christiane"; Louis de Robert's "La Reprise"; Imbert de St. Amand's "Le Regne de Napoleon III."; Ossip Schubin's "Zinka"; Victor Charbonnel's "Les Mystiques Dans la Litterature Presente"; Edgar Roels's "Boers et Anglais."

Mr. W. W. Jacobs, author of "Many Cargoes," has written a new book, which will shortly be published by the Frederick A. Stokes Company. It will be called "A Master of Craft."

Paul Leicester Ford's new historical romance, "Janice Meredith," published less than two months ago by Dodd, Mead & Co., is now selling in its 123d thousand. For the last week its average sales a day have been 2,500 copies. Other novels have of course reached this stage, and even surpassed it in the long run, but we believe that the first two months of "Janice Meredith's" existence quite go ahead of the record of the first two months of any other piece of fiction. And when it is considered that Mr. Ford's book first ran as a serial in two periodicals that appeal to widely different classes of the reading public, the result is the more astonishing.

An Australian edition of "David Harum" is now announced. D. Appleton & Co. are now printing the 360th thousand of this book. The publishers recently issued a fine photogravure portrait of the author, accompanied with a fac simile signature. The picture is about 4½ by 9 inches, and is said to be an excellent likeness.

The Macmillan Company have in preparation an important historical work entitled "Caesar's Conquest in Gaul," by Mr. Rice Holmes, author of "A History of the Indian Mutiny." The first part of the work contains a narrative of the conquest and of the events which led up to it; the second part comprises a series of articles on various questions—ethnological, geographical, militar, &c. The work is based not only upon personal explorations of the battlefields, but on careful research made among ancient and mediaeval writers. It will be illustrated with maps and plans.

Volume III. of "The History of the English Poor Law" will come in a few weeks from the press of G. P. Putnam's Sons. This volume, which will deal with the subject of "Statute Law and Policy," is the work of Sidney Webb and Mrs. Beatrice Webb. Volume I. of the work, which was published in 1899, dealt with "Parish and County Government," and Volume II. with "Statute Law and Policy."

Answers each of the questions "What the Americans may be reading" and "What the English are reading" in the form of "Open Letters," published by Thomas B. Mosher, has during the last five months sold to the extent of 10,000 copies, and the demand is still as active as ever. The second edition, recently issued, has the preliminary envelope and engraved by Mrs. Nathan Haskell Dole.

It seems that the translations made for the works of Balzac, which Messrs. Roberts & Son are publishing, were not exactly "acquitted" in the particular meaning of the term, but were ordered from the several translators by the publishers. Credit for translating this edition of the works of the great "father of realism" is due to Jane Minot Sedgwick, May Tomlinson, Mary W. Artois, Gertrude C. Foadick, George B. Ives, William Walton, J. Alfred Burgan, Ellery Sedwick, Francis T. Furey, F. P. Robins, Peter P. Breen, and Thomas H. Walls.

D. Appleton & Co. will publish next week "A History of American Privateers," by Edgar Stanton Maclay, A. M., author of "A History of the United States Navy"; "The White Terror," a new romance of the French Revolution and after, by Félix Gras, author of "The Terror" and "The Reds of the Midi"; "Ronald Kestrel," a novel, by A. J. Dawson, author of "Canada," by J. M. McIlraith, which is a new volume in Appleton's History for Young Readers Series.

With "Salons Colonial and Republican" Miss Anne H. Wharton continues her series of studies of the early social and artistic life of the American Nation. Her new work is being published by the Lippincotts.

G. P. Putnam's Sons announce that they have arranged for the publication of a work entitled "The Tears of the Heliades" by the Rev. Arthur Buffum. The same house has also in preparation for early publication "Living by the Spirit," by H. W. Dresser, whose metaphysical works have gone into several editions.

"The Gentleman from Indiana," by Booth Tarkington, a new writer, has now gone to press for its twentieth thousand at Doubleday & McClure Company's. For the last night or more the average sales of this book fortnight or more the average sales of this book have been 500 a day.

A contemporary in reviewing "The Wreck of the Conemaugh," published by J. B. Lippincott Company, speaks of the author as "T. Jenkins Harris," and calls him an Englishman. The author of "The Wreck of the Conemaugh" and "The Wind-Jammers" is Mr. T. Jenkins Hains, and he is not an Englishman at all. He is the grandson of Admiral Jenkins, who fought the Richmond at Mobile Bay, and who was Farragut's flag officer. He is, however, second cousin to the late Vice Admiral Jenkins, R. N., K. C. B. Mr. Hain's father is Gen. Hains of the regular army, who has served from the first battle of Bull Run to the present time, and who is distinctly an American, and whose father and grandfather before him were Americans.

"Problems in Ethics," by J. Steinford Kedney, is in active preparation at G. P. Putnam's Sons.

II.—BOSTON.

BOSTON, Nov. 23.—The heroine of the Rev. Frank Samuel Child's "An Unknown Patriot" performed her work for her country "without ceasing to be quiet and womanly." The omission of "without" in THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Nov. 18 rather impaired the description of her character, which is really very beautiful.

"Old Times and New," a tiny volume of verses, partly in Bigiow dialect, discussing pretended improvements and real injuries to Boston, is reprinted by the W. B. Clarke Company, possibly with some reference to the new tracks of the Boston Elevated Railway, now beginning to block the entrance to the new South Union Station, in Dewey Square, before the building is fairly completed; possibly because of the audacious appropriation of space in the crowded subway for selling newspapers and books, in flat defiance of the Sunday law, and doing it under the sacred Common and directly opposite Dr. Lyman Beecher's former church. The verses are by Miss Sarah Hammond Palfrey, daughter of the historian Palfrey, and author of the beautiful story of "Katharine Morne," never published in book form, but buried in the early volumes of The Atlantic. Perhaps if it were published now it might serve to check the vaulting ambition of Molly Donohue and other persons anxious to be "new." Reading it might not transform Audrey and Phoebe into gentlewomen, but it would show them a gentlewoman's ideals.

Has New York yet learned how to use the Thoreau pencil? You do not write with it, for it is a sacred thing, being one of a small stock found in the Thoreau garret and bearing the mark John Thoreau, but you enshrine it in a case of priceless embroidery or carved wood and worship it with rites according to your degree of initiation into the sect of Thoreau. One firm has orders for over 300 of these cases.

Two subscription editions in a year, and a third well under way, to say nothing of the library edition, do not seem to have sated the popular demand for Parkman, and the new illustrated "Montcalm and Wolfe," with its forty-one photogravures, is, if not exactly snatched, very firmly seized and drawn off the booksellers' counters with a rapidity which suggests that it is best to be prompt in securing any copies desired for holiday gifts. Parkman had no lack of recognition during his life, but since the pen fell from his fingers it really seems as if a set of his works were necessary to the existence of a Bostonian.

To William Morris Hunt, too, Boston gave recognition of a sort, but, in looking over Miss Helen M. Knowlton's "The Art Life of William Morris Hunt," one is not proud to note how entirely unproductive was the exhibition which he gave in his studio immediately after he returned from completing the great work at Albany. He displayed all his work, all that remained from the cruel destruction of the fire in 1872, and with it the Albany sketches, and some entirely erratic creature asked the price of one picture. "I should be glad to get $750 for it," said Hunt, but the price was not offered to him. After his death it sold for ten times the sum. Of the five or six exhibitions given since his death none has been brilliantly successful in a pecuniary sense, and yet the present owners of many of his works paid enormous prices for them and decline all offers from buyers. He is still without any formal memorial, but his memory is honored in his pupils, and this book should give him that hold upon the popular imagination without which the admiration and appreciation of a chosen few cannot give fame.

Miss Knowlton herself, an artist by choice, but for a little time an editor, carrying on her father's paper after his death and making it unique by printing in it the precious bits of counsel given by Hunt to his pupils, was chosen by him to carry on his class when he found that it was exhausting his strength and keeping him from work. Since his death she has quietly but steadily striven to set him properly before the world, not for his sake but for his art's, and this little book is written chiefly for that purpose. It tells of his enthusiasm for Millet, whom he discovered for himself; of his studies in Paris; of his resolute, conscientious work in Boston; of his insistence upon sympathy between himself and those whose portraits he painted; of his wit, and of his kindness to his friends and calm indifference to others. Two portraits of him, "Marguerite" and "The New Marguerite," "The Boy and the Butterfly," "The Bathers," "The Flight of Night," "A Study for the Head of Anahita," "The Discoverer," "The Girl at the Fountain," "The Prodigal Son," the portraits of his mother and Dr. Gardner, "Master" Gardner of the Latin School, and the wonderful Shaw portrait are among the illustrations.

The anecdotes are many, and not a few of them tend to shew that, in spite of his acquaintance with all the true art lovers of New York and New England, Hunt was never so truly happy as during the few weeks when he was painting at Albany and was shown a prospect of future work and recognition. Its withdrawal by Gov. Robinson's virtuous decision not to consent to "such wrongful use of the public money" certainly saddened him, possibly shortened his life. "Think of it!" he said. "You never hear of Boston one hundred miles away! I am out in the world, and I want to stay out!" "I would rather carry out this project," he said, referring to the decoration of the Assembly Chamber, "than be Governor of the State." In ten years the last trace of the work was removed from the walls, thanks to the "wrongful use of the public money."

One story touches a recent much advertised piece of verse. Somebody was condemning Millet for wasting his time upon "coarse French clodhoppers." "My God, man!" cried Hunt. "What is nobler than a man wrestling and wresting his bread from the stubborn soil by the sweat of his brow and the break of his back for his wife and children?"

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY'S NEW BOOKS.

Legends of Switzerland.
By H. A. GUERBER, Author of "Legends of the Rhine," etc.
12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The United States During the Civil War.
Being Vol. VI. of the "History of the United States under the Constitution."
The final volume of the monumental work.

By JAMES SCHOULER.
8vo, cloth, $2.25.

Blue Jackets of 1898.
A history of our Navy during the Spanish-American War.
A new volume in the famous "Blue Jacket" series.

By WILLIS J. ABBOT.
Author of "Blue Jackets of 1776-1812," etc.
8vo. Profusely illustrated, $1.50.

By AUSTIN DOBSON,
Author of "Proverbs in Porcelain," etc.
16mo, cloth, $1.25.

The Life of Goldsmith.
A new and revised edition of the well-known book. Uniform with the new edition of Dobson's works published last autumn.

OVER 100,000 JANICE MEREDITH ALREADY SOLD.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York.

MAKING ITS WAY

SINCE the beginning of our book publishing we have tried to issue only books which had a "real reason for existence," and having the courage of our convictions offered to send all our books "on approval." It has pleased us lately to hear of many booksellers offering

THE GENTLEMAN FROM INDIANA
BY BOOTH TARKINGTON

to their customers with the full privilege of return if not suited. This means that the trade is discovering that this fresh, striking novel by a young American is making its way. Price $1.50.

DOUBLEDAY & McCLURE CO., Publishers.

D. Appleton & Co.'s Recent Books.

The Log of a Sea Waif.

Being Recollections of the First Four Years of My Sea Life. By FRANK T. BULLEN, F.R.G.S., author of "The Cruise of the Cachalot" and "Idylls of the Sea." Illustrated. Uniform edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"So strong, original, and thrilling as to hold captive the attention of the mature as well as of the youthful reader."—Public Ledger, Phila.

"His new book again bears witness to his admirable gifts as a writer."—N. Y. Mail and Express Saturday Magazine.

The Races of Europe.

A SOCIOLOGICAL STUDY. By WILLIAM Z. RIPLEY, Ph. D., Assistant Professor of Sociology, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Lecturer in Anthropology at Columbia University, in the City of New York. Crown 8vo, cloth, 650 pages, with 85 maps and 235 Portrait Types. With a Supplementary Bibliography of nearly Two Thousand Titles, separately bound in cloth. [178 pages.] Cloth, $5.00.

"This racial geography of Professor Ripley's will recommend itself to the consideration of all anthropologists."—Centralblatt, Leipsic.

Reminiscences of a Very Old Man.

1808-1897. By JOHN SARTAIN. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

"No one could be better equipped to write a book than one so endowed. And no one could discharge the duty more charmingly or becomingly than he has done it."—Philadelphia North American.

Oom Paul's People.

By HOWARD C. HILLEGAS. With Illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"Well worth reading. His descriptions are graphic and concise."—N. Y. Independent.

Send for a copy, free, of our Illustrated Holiday Bulletin.

D. APPLETON & CO.,
NEW YORK.

HARPER'S NEW BOOKS.

Biography and Letters.

THE LETTERS OF ROBERT BROWNING AND ELIZABETH BARRETT BARRETT—1845-46. Portraits and Facsimiles. 2 vols. Crown 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental, deckel edges, gilt tops. $5.00. Half morocco, $9.50.

LADY LOUISA STUART. Selections from her manuscripts. Edited by A. J. HOME. Frontispiece. Crown 8vo, Cloth, deckel edges and gilt top. $2.00.

THE MARTYRDOM OF AN EMPRESS. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental, deckel edges and gilt top. $2.50.

REMINISCENCES. By JUSTIN MCCARTHY. 2 vols. Portrait. Frontispiece. Crown 8vo, Cloth, deckel edges and gilt top. $4.50.

REMINISCENCES OF THE KING OF ROUMANIA. Diary Notes and Letters. Edited from the Original with an Introduction by Sidney Whitman. Frontispiece. Crown 8vo, Cloth. $3.00.

FRAGMENTS OF AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY. By FELIX STONE MOSCHELES. Illustrated with Portraits. Crown 8vo, Cloth, Uncut Edges, Gilt Top, $2.50.

THE TRAGEDY OF DREYFUS. By G. W. STEEVENS. Portrait and Facsimile. Post 8vo, Cloth. $1.25.

Illustrated Gift Books.

LIFE AND CHARACTER. A collection of Drawings by W. T. SMEDLEY. Text by A. V. S. ANTHONY. Portrait and Biographical Sketch. Large Quarto, Cloth, Ornamental. In Box. $5.00.

PETER NEWELL'S PICTURES AND RHYMES. With an Introduction by JOHN KENDRICK BANGS. Quarto, Ornamental Cloth. $1.25.

The Best Recent Fiction.

Red Pottage. By MARY CHOLMONDELEY. $1.50.

That Fortune. By CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER. $1.50.

The Open Question. By ELIZABETH ROBINS. $1.50.

The Enchanted Typewriter. By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS. Illustrated. $1.25.

Mackinac and Lake Stories. By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD. Illustrated. $1.50.

Red Pottage. By MARY CHOLMONDELEY. Author of "The Danvers Jewels." $1.50.

A Kentucky Cardinal. By JAMES LANE ALLEN. New Edition. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.00; Half Leather, $2.00.

Aftermath. By JAMES LANE ALLEN. New Edition. Cloth, $1.00; Half Leather, $2.00.

Kit Kennedy. By S. R. CROCKETT. Illustrated. $1.50.

A Confident To-morrow. By BRANDER MATTHEWS. Ill. $1.50.

In Old France and New. By WM. MCLENNAN. Ill. $1.50.

The Princess Xenia. By H. B. MARRIOTT WATSON. Ill. $1.50.

A Prince of Georgia, and Other Tales. By JULIAN RALPH. Ill. $1.25.

The Monster, and Other Stories. By STEPHEN CRANE. Ill. $1.25.

The Colossus. By MORLEY ROBERTS. $1.25.

He, She and They. By ALBERT LEE. Ill. $1.00.

Ragged Lady. By W. D. HOWELLS. Ill. $1.75.

The Awkward Age. By HENRY JAMES. $1.50.

Little Books by Famous Writers.

A Series of the Best Stories, Sketches and Verse by Best Authors, Bound in a dainty and convenient form.

THE FIRST CHRISTMAS (from "Ben-Hur")	By Lew Wallace
TWO GENTLEMEN OF KENTUCKY	By James Lane Allen
EPISODES IN VAN BIBBER'S LIFE	By Richard Harding Davis
THE STORY OF THE OTHER WISE MAN	By Henry van Dyke
GOOD FOR THE SOUL	By Margaret Deland
EVELINA'S GARDEN	By Mary E. Wilkins
COBWEBS FROM A LIBRARY CORNER (Verses)	By John Kendrick Bangs
THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE	By Ruth McEnery Stuart
THE CAPTURED DREAM	By Octave Thanet
STORIES OF PEACE AND WAR	By Frederic Remington

Blue Cloth Covers, Heavy Paper, Rough Edges and Colored Top, with Frontispiece. 50 Cents a Vol. Other Volumes Will Be Added from Time to Time.

New Edition.

BEN-HUR:

A Tale of the Christ.

By LEW WALLACE.

With Marginal Drawings by William Martin Johnson, and Full-page Illustrations. Two Volumes. Cloth, Ornamental, $4.00 a Set.

The Becky Sharp Edition.

Vanity Fair.

By WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY. With 48 Pictures from the Play of "Becky Sharp" as produced by Mrs. Fiske. Handsomely Bound, Uncut Edges and Gilt Top, $2.50.

Special Holiday Binding.

Their Silver Wedding Journey.

By WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS. Two Volumes. Crown 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental, 84 Full-page Illustrations, 81 Vignette Headings, Uncut Edges and Gilt Tops, $5.00 a Set.

Books Illustrated by Edwin A. Abbey.

SELECTIONS FROM THE POEMS OF ROBERT HERRICK. Large Quarto, Cloth, Ornamental. $4.00.

OLD SONGS. Large Quarto, Cloth, Ornamental. $4.00.

THE QUIET LIFE. By RICHARD MARVELL and others. Quarto, Cloth, Ornamental. $4.00.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER. By OLIVER GOLDSMITH. Quarto, Cloth, Ornamental. $5.00.

History and Travel.

THE WAR WITH SPAIN. By Hon. HENRY CABOT LODGE. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, Cloth. $2.50.

REMINISCENCES OF THE SANTIAGO CAMPAIGN. By Capt. JOHN BIGELOW, U. S. A. One Map. Post 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental. $1.25.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE PHILIPPINES. By F. D. MILLET. Illustrated from photographs. Crown 8vo, Cloth. $2.50.

THE NEW-BORN CUBA. By FRANKLIN MATTHEWS. Seventy Illustrations. $2.50.

TO-MORROW IN CUBA. By CHARLES M. PEPPER. Map. Cloth, Ornamental. $2.00.

HAWAIIAN-AMERICA. By CASPAR WHITNEY. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, Cloth. $2.50.

THE BLUE GRASS REGION OF KENTUCKY. By JAMES LANE ALLEN. New Edition. Illustrated. 8vo, Cloth. $1.50.

HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES. By JAMES FORD RHODES. 4 Vols. Ready. $2.50 per volume.

25 CENTS A COPY HARPER'S MAGAZINE $3.00 A YEAR

The contents of HARPER'S MAGAZINE during the coming twelvemonth will be richer than ever before in the best work of the greatest writers and artists. Re-enforced by new enterprise, enhanced in every essential quality and form of contribution, yet at a lowered price HARPER'S MAGAZINE enters upon its One Hundredth Volume unsurpassed as a great family periodical. Among the leading features for the coming year may be mentioned:

Short Stories or Sketches

By

Mark Twain, Rudyard Kipling,
Seumas MacManus, Stephen Crane,
Gilbert Parker, W. W. Jacobs,
Virginia Frazer Boyle, Angel de Cora,
Frederic Remington, Owen Wister,
Captain W. E. Cairnes, Marie Van Vorst,
Dr. C. W. Doyle.

Two Great Serials.

ELEANOR: A Novel, BY MRS. HUMPHRY WARD.

The Mantle of Elijah, BY ISRAEL ZANGWILL.

A HUMOROUS ROMANCE, BY FRANK R. STOCKTON.

Special Articles

BY

Julian Ralph, Sir Martin Conway,
Hon. Andrew D. White, G. W. Steevens,
Poultney Bigelow, C. F. Lummis,
Laurence Hutton, Frederic Bancroft,
William Archer, Captain A. T. Mahan,
Charles M. Robinson, Archibald R. Colquhoun.

HARPER'S WEEKLY.

10 CENTS A COPY. The Best Illustrated Record of Current Events. $4.00 A YEAR.

It is the most perfectly illustrated newspaper published, national in tone, independent in politics and criticism, with an eye single only to good government.

SPECIAL FEATURES FOR 1900.

The End of the Century.—The WEEKLY will publish articles throughout the whole year pictorially and picturesquely setting forth some of the most significant lines of the changes of the past 100 years, especially American Triumphs, Political, Sociological, and Industrial.

The Great Enterprises of the Period.—Special articles on subjects such as an Isthmian Canal, the Revivification of our Merchant Marine, the Reorganization of Industry into its larger units.

The Presidential Campaign and the Paris Exposition.—During the year the two great events will be described and fully illustrated.

The Rapid Development of American Exports.—This exceedingly important subject, and the prosperity of which it is an indication, will be treated in a systematic way, showing the readjustment of commerce to new conditions, and the rapidly changing front of the world.

Advanced Municipal Government.—During the year there will appear a series of specific studies of the results of experiments which have been made in extending municipal functions in the principal cities throughout the Union. These articles will be prepared at first hand.

Finance, Drama, Literature, and Music.—All will be treated by those whose opinions are of value.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AMATEUR SPORT will be as heretofore one of the most attractive illustrated features of the Weekly, and there will be Serials, Short Stories, and special articles on timely subjects throughout the year.

HARPER'S BAZAR.

10 CENTS A COPY. The Best Illustrated Weekly Fashion Paper. $4.00 A YEAR.

Every woman wants the best suggestions in Fashions.

The Bazar gives them every week.

Every woman wants to know how best to care for and educate her children.

The Bazar gives valuable advice on these points week by week.

Every woman takes pride in her home, and appreciates every new and attractive idea on household matters.

The Bazar suggests something new for the house every seventh day.

Fiction of All Kinds, and Timely Articles on Social and Literary Topics are in Every Number.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers, New York and London.

ILLUSTRATIONS THAT ILLUSTRATE.

Looking at some of the Autumn books the other day it occurred to us that illustrated volumes might be roughly divided into three classes: Books with illustrations that really illustrate, those adorned with pretty pictures, either bearing no special relation to the text itself or absolutely misinterpreting it; and a third class containing pictures which seem to have absolutely no excuse for being—possessing claims neither to beauty nor to suggestiveness.

When we hear, therefore, that an old favorite is coming out in a new illustrated edition we take the volume up with a feeling of mingled pleasure and dread, for the reason that sometimes the illustrator seems not to have read the book, except in the most superficial manner. The "Essays of Elia," recently issued in an illustrated edition by Dent. & Co. of London, and imported by the Scribners, would seem an extremely difficult book to illustrate at all adequately. The drawings in the present edition, which were done by Mr. Charles E. Brock, were at first glance disappointing, probably largely due to a preconceived idea that Elia could not be illustrated, and that the man who attempted it was not only too ambitious, but destined to failure of necessity. A second and less prejudiced glance, however, showed conclusively that Mr. Brock's drawings belong largely to the class that really illustrate.

For instance, in the frontispiece to Volume I., "The Rigor of the Game," the people are actually playing whist, each of the four in his or her own way; Sarah Battle, in particular, being admirably done. The young girl, standing behind Mrs. Battle's chair, is intent only and in a half-careless fashion on the immortal Sarah's hand, but the players are evidently watching the old man's careful deliberation as to the card he will play next. The very look on Mrs. Battle's face shows that "she loved a thorough-paced partner, a determined enemy; she took and gave no concessions; she hated favors. * * * She fought a good fight, cut and thrust, * * * as she emphatically observed, cards were cards."

The headpiece to the contents, too; the old gentleman in his attic room shown gloating over his "treasures cased in leather covers," (perhaps "some kind-hearted play book," or is it a folio Beaumont and Fletcher or an old edition of the "Anatomy of Melancholy"?) Whichever it is, the old man—a veritable Dominie Sampson—is thoroughly happy, and the picture charming in all its details.

The vignette headpiece over the introduction is a very satisfactory portrait of "St. Charles: His Mary," spending an evening, the one writing at a book-laden table, Mary ostensibly reading, but in reality watching the brother to whom she was so devoted. The headpiece to the list of illustrations is equally good, showing the timid clerk who is placing before the irascible old gentleman engravings from a portfolio.

Then, too, there is the frontispiece to Volume II.; the old bookseller in small clothes, spectacles on forehead, standing in his doorway, watching his possible customers as they turn over the books on the outside stalls, "casting envious looks at them all the while," and apparently half-fearful that they may buy one of his treasures. The headpiece to the Table of Contents of the second volume is equally good. The old gentleman in his armchair, in after-dinner comfort, wineglass in hand and decanter at his elbow, is gazing at the wine, and in fancy enjoying its color and rich flavor before actually tasting it.

But perhaps best of all are the three illustrations to "Poor Relations," who are known by their knock—"a rap between familiarity and respect, that demands and at the same time seems to despair of entertainment. * * * A puzzle to the servants who are fearful of being too obsequious or not civil enough." The headpiece to this essay shows the poor relation in all his glory of humility. He is stopping his more fortunate kinsman to shake his hand as they pass—the cringing look on the former's face, the half-up in the full-page illustration which follows: "He casually tosseth it upon the nose time." The game is laid in the card room just after the cards is served, and the whole air of apologetic timidity, which yet is mingled determination to remain, and in fact the advancing figure in every aspect is superbly done. "He holdeth out his hand for you to shake, and draweth it back again. * * * He offereth to go away, seeing you have company, but is indeed to stay."

Again Lamb writes: "There is a worse evil under the sun, and that is a female poor relation. * * * provokingly humble and ostentatiously sensible to her inferiority. * * * She calls the servant Sir, and insists upon not troubling him to hold her plate." The picture shows her shrinking, exasperating manner when, on being sent soup at dinner, "she begs to be helped after the gentlemen." Her own attitude and the look on the faces of the men on either side of her, the young man, half startled; the older man's mingled perplexity and disgust, tell the story perfectly.

As is usually the case, many of these Lamb illustrations are better and more appropriate than others; some of them are more or less commonplace, and a few are simply pretty pictures. But where so many are fine it is unnecessary to criticise the others. Just one more must be mentioned: an interior of a barber's shop, where one old fellow is standing up and "spelling out a paragraph," and all the others intently listening, barber included, who with uplifted razor is paying more attention to the reader than to the seated figure in the chair, whose lather-covered face seems all alert not to miss one of the reader's words, as is the case with the two old gentlemen in the background.

The cover lining is most attractive, too, with its figures of the bluecoat boy, and of Lamb, offioeward or homeward bound with some old folio under his arm. In short, if all illustrated books were as successful as is this one, how glad we should be to hear that our old favorites were to appear in such guise. Unfortunately, comparatively few illustrated books do fall into the first class we mentioned. We have in mind another old favorite, of not quite the same rank as Elia, but still almost a classic, which has recently appeared in beautiful type and broad-margined, well-proportioned page, where the illustrations are a positive detriment.

Du Maurier was most fortunate in being able so charmingly to illustrate his own works, and so is Ernest Seton-Thompson. When one reads a book by either of the latter or by any other fine artist-author, we hardly know whether the pictures best illustrate the text or the text the pictures. Hugh Thompson, too, is always fine—his illustrations to the recently published "Peg Woffington" are full of character and action, especially the frontispiece, where Peg is dancing a jig to the old tune of "The Wind That Shakes the Barley." At this late day, however, it is unnecessary to go into details about Mr. Thompson's work. Many of us never think of Elizabeth Bennet or dear Miss Mattie without seeing them as Hugh Thompson has pictured them for us.

In the new Stevenson letters will be found one to Gordon Browne, who had illustrated "The Beach of Falesa." The following extract is so much in touch with the subject of illustrations which illustrate that it may well be given here. Stevenson had no acquaintance with the artist, simply knowing him as "G. B.," the man who had illustrated one of his stories.

Such numbers of people can do good black and whites! So few can illustrate a story or apparently read it. You have shown that you can do both, and your creation of Wiltshire is a real illumination of the text. It was exactly so that Wiltshire dressed and looked, and you have the line of his nose to a nicety. His nose is an inspiration. Nor should I forget to thank you for Case, particularly in his last appearance. It is a singular fact which seems to point still more directly to inspiration in your case, that your missionary actually resembles the flesh and blood person from whom Mr. Tarlton was drawn. The general effect of the islands is all that could be wished. * * * But the great affair is that you have been to the pains to illustrate my story instead of making conscientious black and whites of people sitting talking. I doubt if you have left unrepresented a single pictorial incident.

Equally interesting and appropriate, but quite too long for quotation, is Ste-

A certain well-known New York artist-author has published a book of which we are very fond, but the pictures, by another hand, are positive eyesores, which distractions rather than interpret its characters. Let us welcome, then, "our friends the books" in illustrated dress, but only when, as in the case of these "Essays of Elia," the drawings are really through merit or suggestiveness entitled to rank among our first class—the illustrations which really illustrate.

RECENT MEMOIRS AND LETTERS.

Notwithstanding the ephemeral character of many volumes in the great flood of books which has been descending upon us from the publishers since the cessation of hostilities with Spain and the revival of business prosperity, the year which is drawing to a close has been exceptionally rich in its contributions to one department of literature, and that a most delightful one—the autobiographies, letters, and reminiscences. Quite apart from the entertainment which works of this kind furnish in their value—and it is by no means a light one—as pictures of the times and surroundings amid which their authors lived, and their impressions of the many interesting persons with whom they have been brought in contact.

Among them stands "Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences," covering both Europe and America, a work which may well be supplemented by "The Recollections of Sir Algernon West," which are the personal reminiscences of Mr. Gladstone's private secretary. The "Memoirs of a Revolutionist," by Prince Kropotkin, give a charming account of the boyhood days of the Prince, in Russia, and a realistic and fascinating narrative of his life as an agitator for political freedom and a revolutionist in the Czar's dominions, together with a study of European social and political conditions. "The Memoirs of Victor Hugo," tinctured as they are by his own strong individuality, and in some ways disappointing, will command a wide circle of readers, while John Sartain's "Reminiscences of a Very Old Man," covering practically all of the present century, will make a strong appeal to all persons of literary and artistic tastes.

In addition to these, we have had Mrs. Oliphant's remarkably pathetic life of noble self-sacrifice, as told in her "Autobiography and Letters"—truly a soul-inspiring book!—Max Müller's "Auld Lang Syne"; Bishop Whipple's story of his interesting life in the wilderness, with its innumerable dangers, on the American frontier and among the Indians, whose hearts he completely won—doubtless the most thrilling tale in the annals of Episcopal diocesans, and Julia Ward Howe's sprightly "Reminiscences," presenting vivid pictures of social life in New York City in the early part of the century, of the dark days of the civil war, and of the illustrious persons on both sides of the Atlantic whom she came in contact with in the course of her long career. Other scenes of equal interest are presented by "Sir Arthur Sullivan's Life Story, Letters, and Reminiscences," the "Recollections of an Old Musician," by Thomas Ryan, and Mrs. John Drew's "Reminiscences."

And then the letters! How delightful at all times is a fresh volume of letters from the pen of a son of genius, with its side-lights upon men and things and its delicate and often unconscious self-revelations! "Letters," Hamerton declares, "carry the writer into the reader's presence just as he really is, not such as by study and art he might make himself out to be," and Lord Bacon says that, in his judgment, "letters, such as are written by wise men, are, of all the words of men, the best."

The recent additions to this kind of literature have been rich indeed, and as varied as rich. There are the scholarly and versatile Jowett, the tender, almost sacred, correspondence of the Brownings; the new letters of Walter Savage Landor, those of Dean Swift, and those of Sidney Lanier; "Charles Lamb and the Lloyds," Emerson's "Letters to a Friend," Carlyle's "Letters to His Youngest Sister," and, most delightful of all, "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson," edited by with some old folio under his arm. In short, if all illustrated books were as successful as is this one, how glad we should be to hear that our old favorites were to appear in such guise. Unfortunately, comparatively few illustrated books do fall into the first class we mentioned. We have in mind another old favorite, of not quite the same rank as Elia, but still almost a classic, which has recently appeared in beautiful type and broad-margined, well-proportioned page, where the illustrations are a positive detriment.

Du Maurier was most fortunate in being able so charmingly to illustrate his own works, and so is Ernest Seton-Thompson. When one reads a book by either of the latter or by any other fine artist-author, we hardly know whether the pictures best illustrate the text or the text the pictures. Hugh Thompson, too, is always fine—his illustrations to the recently published "Peg Woffington" are full of character and action, especially the frontispiece, where Peg is dancing a jig to the old tune of "The Wind That Shakes the Barley." At this late day, however, it is unnecessary to go into details about Mr. Thompson's work. Many of us never think of Elizabeth Bennet or dear Miss Mattie without seeing them as Hugh Thompson has pictured them for us.

In the new Stevenson letters will be found one to Gordon Browne, who had illustrated "The Beach of Falesa." The following extract is so much in touch with the subject of illustrations which illustrate that it may well be given here. Stevenson had no acquaintance with the artist, simply knowing him as "G. B.," the man who had illustrated one of his stories.

Such numbers of people can do good black and whites! So few can illustrate a story or apparently read it. You have shown that you can do both, and your creation of Wiltshire is a real illumination of the text. It was exactly so that Wiltshire dressed and looked, and you have the line of his nose to a nicety. His nose is an inspiration. Nor should I forget to thank you for Case, particularly in his last appearance. It is a singular fact which seems to point still more directly to inspiration in your case, that your missionary actually resembles the flesh and blood person from whom Mr. Tarlton was drawn. The general effect of the islands is all that could be wished. * * * But the great affair is that you have been to the pains to illustrate my story instead of making conscientious black and whites of people sitting talking. I doubt if you have left unrepresented a single pictorial incident.

Equally interesting and appropriate, but quite too long for quotation, is Ste-

A certain well-known New York artist-author has published a book of which we are very fond, but the pictures, by another hand, are positive eyesores, which distractions rather than interpret its characters. Let us welcome, then, "our friends the books" in illustrated dress, but only when, as in the case of these "Essays of Elia," the drawings are really through merit or suggestiveness entitled to rank among our first class—the illustrations which really illustrate.

RECENT MEMOIRS AND LETTERS.

Notwithstanding the ephemeral character of many volumes in the great flood of books which has been descending upon us from the publishers since the cessation of hostilities with Spain and the revival of business prosperity, the year which is drawing to a close has been exceptionally rich in its contributions to one department of literature, and that a most delightful one—the autobiographies, letters, and reminiscences. Quite apart from the entertainment which works of this kind furnish in their value—and it is by no means a light one—as pictures of the times and surroundings amid which their authors lived, and their impressions of the many interesting persons with whom they have been brought in contact.

Among them stands "Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences," covering both Europe and America, a work which may well be supplemented by "The Recollections of Sir Algernon West," which are the personal reminiscences of Mr. Gladstone's private secretary. The "Memoirs of a Revolutionist," by Prince Kropotkin, give a charming account of the boyhood days of the Prince, in Russia, and a realistic and fascinating narrative of his life as an agitator for political freedom and a revolutionist in the Czar's dominions, together with a study of European social and political conditions. "The Memoirs of Victor Hugo," tinctured as they are by his own strong individuality, and in some ways disappointing, will command a wide circle of readers, while John Sartain's "Reminiscences of a Very Old Man," covering practically all of the present century, will make a strong appeal to all persons of literary and artistic tastes.

In addition to these, we have had Mrs. Oliphant's remarkably pathetic life of noble self-sacrifice, as told in her "Autobiography and Letters"—truly a soul-inspiring book!—Max Müller's "Auld Lang Syne"; Bishop Whipple's story of his interesting life in the wilderness, with its innumerable dangers, on the American frontier and among the Indians, whose hearts he completely won—doubtless the most thrilling tale in the annals of Episcopal diocesans, and Julia Ward Howe's sprightly "Reminiscences," presenting vivid pictures of social life in New York City in the early part of the century, of the dark days of the civil war, and of the illustrious persons on both sides of the Atlantic whom she came in contact with in the course of her long career. Other scenes of equal interest are presented by "Sir Arthur Sullivan's Life Story, Letters, and Reminiscences," the "Recollections of an Old Musician," by Thomas Ryan, and Mrs. John Drew's "Reminiscences."

And then the letters! How delightful at all times is a fresh volume of letters from the pen of a son of genius, with its side-lights upon men and things and its delicate and often unconscious self-revelations! "Letters," Hamerton declares, "carry the writer into the reader's presence just as he really is, not such as by study and art he might make himself out to be," and Lord Bacon says that, in his judgment, "letters, such as are written by wise men, are, of all the words of men, the best."

The recent additions to this kind of literature have been rich indeed, and as varied as rich. There are the scholarly and versatile Jowett, the tender, almost sacred, correspondence of the Brownings; the new letters of Walter Savage Landor, those of Dean Swift, and those of Sidney Lanier; "Charles Lamb and the Lloyds," Emerson's "Letters to a Friend," Carlyle's "Letters to His Youngest Sister," and, most delightful of all, "The Letters of Robert Louis Stevenson," edited by with some old folio under his arm. In short, if all illustrated books were as successful as is this one, how glad we should be to hear that our old favorites were to appear in such guise. Unfortunately, comparatively few illustrated books do fall into the first class we mentioned. We have in mind another old favorite, of not quite the same rank as Elia, but still almost a classic, which has recently appeared in beautiful type and broad-margined, well-proportioned page, where the illustrations are a positive detriment.

Du Maurier was most fortunate in being able so charmingly to illustrate his own works, and so is Ernest Seton-Thompson. When one reads a book by either of the latter or by any other fine artist-author, we hardly know whether the pictures best illustrate the text or the text the pictures. Hugh Thompson, too, is always fine—his illustrations to the recently published "Peg Woffington" are full of character and action, especially the frontispiece, where Peg is dancing a jig to the old tune of "The Wind That Shakes the Barley." At this late day, however, it is unnecessary to go into details about Mr. Thompson's work. Many of us never think of Elizabeth Bennet or dear Miss Mattie without seeing them as Hugh Thompson has pictured them for us.

In the new Stevenson letters will be found one to Gordon Browne, who had illustrated "The Beach of Falesa." The following extract is so much in touch with the subject of illustrations which illustrate that it may well be given here. Stevenson had no acquaintance with the artist, simply knowing him as "G. B.," the man who had illustrated one of his stories.

Such numbers of people can do good black and whites! So few can illustrate a story or apparently read it. You have shown that you can do both, and your creation of Wiltshire is a real illumination of the text. It was exactly so that Wiltshire dressed and looked, and you have the line of his nose to a nicety. His nose is an inspiration. Nor should I forget to thank you for Case, particularly in his last appearance. It is a singular fact which seems to point still more directly to inspiration in your case, that your missionary actually resembles the flesh and blood person from whom Mr. Tarlton was drawn. The general effect of the islands is all that could be wished. * * * But the great affair is that you have been to the pains to illustrate my story instead of making conscientious black and whites of people sitting talking. I doubt if you have left unrepresented a single pictorial incident.

Equally interesting and appropriate, but quite too long for quotation, is Ste-

MORGAN'S "LEAGUE OF THE IROQUOIS."

At a charity sale in Rochester last week, a book turned up of a rarity and local interest that gave to the "find" a dramatic character. And, though this is not altogether unusual, the quality fails, generally at least, to arouse as much popular curiosity as has this.

The volume is a small and apparently a third, edition of Lewis H. Morgan's "League of the Iroquois," (the best book ever written on the Indians of Central New York, and one which ought to be reprinted,) though it bears the same date as the known first edition—1851. Its peculiarity is that it contains a colored map and twenty-two full-page illustrations in colors. In the edition that was issued for general sale the maps and plates are all in black and white, and in another small edition which is known only the map and two out of twenty-three plates are in colors. This seems, then, to be the édition de luxe, for which $35 is said to have been offered in a Rochester advertisement many years ago, and about the existence of which there has been some skepticism. It is full gilt and is bound in French morocco. The assertion is now made that in ten years the principal catalogues of Americana have contained only one copy of the "League of the Iroquois," and that was the edition for general sale, with the map and plates in black and white. The price was $15.

The bazaar at which the book appeared was for the benefit of the City Hospital, and had as one of its principal features this year an "old curiosity shop," to which householders were invited to contribute any old rubbish, or "truck," that they did not want, with the understanding that it be placed on sale for the good of the charity. So many old books and prints came in that a special department had to be opened for them, and to that lowly throne was brought this rare copy of the "League of the Iroquois." But it had come from even a lowlier one, for the story is that the woman who contributed the volume had won it with a twenty-five-cent ticket at a book raffle forty years ago. Morgan, the gifted author of the book, was himself a Rochester man, and there will be cynics to declare that the familiar dictum about prophets explains the lack of appreciation. But the lucky purchaser of the book at the "old curiosity shop" left the charity $25 richer for his "find," and the book, which is really a treasure, has leaped this week into local newspaper fame and popular discussion.

A November Morning.

A flock of white pigeons
Against the blue sky;
A crisp breath of Winter
In winds whistling by.
Cold, glistening grasses
Still green on the slopes,
And the mischievous ivy
Fastening its ropes
About the bare branches
Of shivering trees,
And climbing the fences,
Defying the breeze
That tosses the brown hair
Of dry, sleepy flowers,
Queen Anne's lace and golden-rod,
Counting the hours
Till warm snowy covers
Shall over them lie,
And frost fairies croon them
A long lullaby.
A spirit of Autumn
Yet lingers and shines
Through the dark witching le
Of the blackberry vines;
My brave honeysuckle,
Erect, unafraid,
Still laughs at the hoar frost
And gladdens the shade.
A fleet of gray cloudlets
Adrift in the blue;
And shimmering cobwebs
Spread out in the dew;
A sunburst of pumpkins
Aglow in the field,
The essence of Summer
Ensnared and congealed.
Earth rests from her labor,
Thanksgiving is near;
Love stands in the doorway
And blesses the year.

ELIZABETH ROOSA CODDINGTON.

Oradell, N. J., Nov. 20, 1899.

The New Amsterdam Book Company have just published "Lockhart's Advance on Tirah," by Capt. L. F. Shadwell. Capt. Shadwell was special correspondent to The London Daily News during the recent Afridi war in Northern India, and was present at the famous charge of the Gordon Highlanders up the heights of Darghai. The book contains a striking description of this memorable charge.

1899

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Up to and Including Thursday Afternoon.

HISTORY AND BIOGRAPHY.

THE LIFE AND CAMPAIGNS OF ALEXANDER LESLIE, First Earl of Leven. By Charles Sanford Terry. 8vo. Pp. xix.-518. New York: Longmans, Green & Co. $5.

AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MRS. JOHN DREW, with an Introduction by Her Son, John Drew. With biographical notes by Douglas Taylor. Illustrated. 12mo. Pp. xiii.-200. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.50.

THE LETTERS OF ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. To His Family and Friends. Selected and edited with notes and introduction by Sidney Colvin. 2 Vols. 8vo. Pp. about xliii.-443. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $5.

MONTCALM AND WOLFE. By Francis Parkman. Illustrated. In 2 Vols. 12mo. Pp. xix.-529. Boston: Little, Brown & Co. $6 per set.

THE BEACON BIOGRAPHIES. Edited by M. A. De Wolfe Howe. John Brown, by Joseph Edgar Chamberlin. 24mo. Pp. xv.-138. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. 75 cents.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF A LONG EPISCOPATE. Being Reminiscences and Recollections of the Right Rev. Henry Benjamin Whipple. Illustrated. 8vo. Pp. vi.-576. New York: The Macmillan Company.

THE MASTER MUSICIANS. Beethoven. By Frederick J. Crowest. Illustrations and portraits. 12mo. Pp. x.-319. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $1.25.

REMINISCENCES, 1819-1899. By Julia Ward Howe. With portraits and other illustrations. 12mo. Pp. vi.-465. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. (Advance sheet.)

THE RIVER WAR. An Historical Account of the Reconquest of the Soudan. By Winston Spencer Churchill. In two volumes. 8vo. Pp. about xxii.-462. New York: Longmans, Green & Co.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK. By Charles B. Todd. 12mo. Pp. 299. New York: American Book Company.

FINANCIAL NEW YORK. A History. By William Ten Eyck Hardenbrook. Volume I. Folio. Pp. vii.-382. New York: Published by the author.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE MISSISSIPPI HISTORICAL SOCIETY. Edited by Franklin L. Riley. Volume II. 8vo. Pp. 234. Oxford, Miss.: Published by the society.

ESSAYS ON SUBJECTS CONNECTED WITH THE REFORMATION IN ENGLAND. By the late Samuel Roffey Maitland. Introduction by Arthur Wollaston Hutton. 12mo. Pp. xix.-467. New York: John Lane. $2.

DRAKE AND HIS YEOMEN. A True Accounting of the Character and Adventures of Sir Francis Drake. By James Barnes. Illustrated by Carlton T. Chapman. 12mo. Pp. xiii.-416. New York: The Macmillan Company. $2.

MEMOIRS OF A REVOLUTIONIST. By P. Kropotkin. 12mo. Pp. xiv.-519. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $2.50.

REMINISCENCES, 1819-1899. By Julia Ward Howe. With portraits and other illustrations. 12mo. Pp. vi.-465. Boston, Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $2.50.

BROWNING. Poet and Man. A Survey. 8vo. Pp. ix.-282. Illustrated. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $3.75.

THE MAGNA CHARTA AND OTHER GREAT CHARTERS OF ENGLAND. By Boyd C. Barrington. 12mo. Pp. 342. Philadelphia: William J. Campbell.

RELIGION AND SCIENCE.

THE WIDER VIEW. A Search for Truth. Collected and edited by John Monroe Dana. 16mo. Pp. xxvii. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.50.

THE EVE OF THE REFORMATION. Studies in the Religious Life and Thought of the English People in the Period Preceding the Rejection of the Roman Jurisdiction by Henry VIII. By Francis Aidan Gasquet. 8vo. Pp. 460. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $3.50.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH. Being a review of the world's belief on the subject, a consideration of present conditions of thought and feeling, leading to the question as to whether it can be demonstrated as a fact. By Minot Judson Savage. 12mo. Pp. xv.-336. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.50.

THE OLD BOOK AND THE OLD FAITH. Reviewed in a series of lectures by Robert Stuart MacArthur. 12mo. Pp. 432. New York: E. B. Treat & Co. $1.50.

SCIENCE AND FAITH; Or, Man as an Animal and Man as a Member of Society. With a discussion of animal societies. By Dr. Paul Topinard. Translated from the author's manuscript by Thomas J. McCormack. 12mo. Pp. vi.-374. Chicago: The Open Court Publishing Company. $1.50.

SCIENCE SKETCHES. Chemistry, its evolution and achievements. By Ferdinand G. Wiechmann. 16mo. Pp. vii.-176. New York: William R. Jenkins.

THE HONEY MAKERS. By Margaret Warner Morley. 12mo. Pp. viii.-424. Chicago: A. C. McClurg. $1.50.

A HISTORY OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY, 1838-1899. Including some bare wire proposals for subaqueous telegraphs. By J. J. Fahie. 12mo. Pp. xvii.-326. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

RELIGION OF ISRAEL TO THE EXILE. American Lectures on the History of Religions. Fourth series, 1898-1899. By Karl Budde. 12mo. Pp. xix.-326.—New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.50.

CHRISTIAN MYSTICISM. Considered in eight lectures delivered before the University of Oxford. By William Ralph Inge. 8vo. Pp. xv.-379. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $2.50.

HOW MUCH IS LEFT OF THE OLD DOCTRINES? A Book for the People. By Washington Gladden. 16mo. Pp. iv.-321. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.25.

A CENTURY OF SCIENCE AND OTHER ESSAYS. By John Fiske. 12mo. Pp. vii.-477. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $2.00.

A SYSTEM OF INSTRUCTION IN QUALITATIVE CHEMICAL ANALYSIS. By Arthur H. Elliott and George A. Ferguson. Third edition. 8vo. Pp. 158. 317 Chambers Street, New York: Published by the authors.

SHALL WE DRINK WINE? A Physician's Study of the Alcohol Question. By Dr. John Madden. 8vo. Pp. 220. Milwaukee: Press of Owen & Wehlbrecht Company.

TRAVEL.

AMERICA TO-DAY. Observations and Reflections. By William Archer. 12mo. Pp. v.-260. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.25.

FAMOUS HOMES OF GREAT BRITAIN AND THEIR STORIES. Edited by A. H. Malan. Illustrated. 8vo. Pp. xvii.-392. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $7.50.

THE LAND OF CONTRASTS. A Briton's View of His American Kin. By James Fullarton Muirhead. 12mo. Pp. viii.-332. New York: John Lane. $1.50.

THROUGH UNEXPLORED ASIA. By William Jameson Reid. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman. 8vo. Pp. 490. Boston: Dana Estes & Co. $4.50.

POETRY.

SPARKS AND FLAMES. Poems by Henry Wilson Sweetser. 12mo. Pp. 87. New York: M. F. Mansfield & A. Wessels. $1.25.

MASTERLY PICTURES. By American Poets. Selected and edited by Annie Russell Marble. 12mo. Pp. xiii.-295. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.25.

BANDANNA BALLADS. Verses and Pictures by Howard Weeden. Introduction by Joel Chandler Harris. 12mo. Pp. xvi.-96. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $1.

THE GOLF GIRL. Illustrated by Maude Humphrey. Verses by Samuel Minturn Peck. Square octavo. Pp. 15. New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company. $1.25.

SATAN RESOLVED. A Pictorial Mystery. By Winfred Gertrude Smith. Illustrations after George Frederick Watts. 16mo. Pp. viii.-52. London: John Lane. $1.25.

A BOOK OF SERVICE. Poems of Country Life. Selected and arranged by Lucy Rider Meyer. 12mo. Pp. 160. Chicago: Cable Printing Company.

FLORILEGIUM LATINUM. Translated from Latin Verse Pre-Victorian Poets. Edited by Francis St. John Thackeray and Edward Daniel Stone. 12mo. Pp. xvi.-244. New York: John Lane. $2.

FICTION.

TROOPER TALES. A Series of Sketches of the Real American Private Soldier. By Will Levington Comfort. 12mo. Pp. ix.-248. New York: Street & Smith.

THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE. A Story of the Southampton Insurrection. By Pauline Carrington Bouve. 12mo. Pp. 202. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.25.

JAMES COPE. The Confessions of a United States District Attorney. By Cuthbert Barmby. 16mo. Pp. 329. New York: New Amsterdam Book Company. $1.50.

IN OLD NEW YORK. A Romance. By Wilson Barrett and Elwyn Barron. Illustrated by H. C. Edwards. 12mo. Pp. 410. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

NEPHELE. A Musical Romance. By Francis William Bourdillon. 12mo. Pp. 166. New York: New Amsterdam Book Company. $1.

SMITH BRUNT. A Story of the Old Navy. By Waldron Kintsing Post. 12mo. Pp. vi.-459. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.50.

A PRETTY TORY. Being a Romance of Partisan Warfare During the War of Independence in the Provinces of Georgia and South Carolina, Relating to Mistress Geraldine Moncrifte. By Jeanie Gould Lincoln. 12mo. Pp. 288. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.50.

THE SIGNORS OF THE NIGHT. The Story of Fra Giovanni, the Soldier-Monk of Venice, and of Others in the Silent City. By Max Pemberton. 12mo. Pp. x.-268. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $1.50.

WINE ON THE LEES. By J. A. Steuart. 12mo. Pp. 362. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $1.50.

RED POTTAGE. By Mary Cholmondely. 12mo. Pp. 374. New York: Harper & Brothers. $1.50.

THE MAN'S CAUSE. By Ellen Napier Letroy. 12mo. Pp. 343. New York: John Lane & Co. $1.50.

TO LONDON TOWN. By Arthur Morrison. 12mo. Pp. 236. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.50.

THE GENTLEMAN DIGGER. Being Studies and Pictures in Johannesburg. By Anna, Comtesse De Brémont. 12mo. Pp. xii.-301. A new and revised edition. London: Greening & Co.

THE WIFE OF HIS YOUTH, AND OTHER STORIES OF COLOR LINE. By Charles W. Chesnut. Illustrated by Clyde O. De Land. 12mo. Pp. 323. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.50.

TALES OF SPACE AND TIME. By H. G. Wells. 12mo. Pp. 358. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $1.50.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE DE WILLOUGHBY CLAIM. By Frances Hodgson Burnett. 12mo. Pp. 442. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.50.

OSBERN AND URSYNE. A Drama in Three Acts. By John Oliver Hobbes. 12mo. Pp. 94. New York: John Lane. $1.25.

ROSE ISLAND. The Strange Story of a Love Adventure at Sea. By W. Clark Russell. 12mo. Pp. 359. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.25.

GREY WEATHER. Moorland Tales of My Own People. By John Buchan. 12mo. Pp. 297. New York: John Lane. $1.50.

WAS IT RIGHT TO FORGIVE? A Domestic Romance. By Amelia E. Barr. 12mo. Pp. 294. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.50.

THE GAM. Being a Group of Whaling Stories. By Capt. Charles Henry Robbins, who gratefully acknowledges the editorial suggestions of his friend, Mr. Rollin Lynde Hartt. 8vo. Pp. 203. Boston: A. J. Ochs & Co. $1.50.

ARCHIBALD MALMAISON. By Julian Hawthorne. Illustrated by Freeland A. Carter. 16mo. Pp. 264. New York: Funk & Wagnells Company.

A YOUNG SAVAGE. By Barbara Yechton. 12mo. Pp. 311. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.50.

LOVE MADE MANIFEST. By Guy Boothby. 16mo. Pp. 230. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.25.

THE QUEEN'S TWIN, AND OTHER STORIES. By Sarah Orne Jewett. 16mo. Pp. 232. Boston: Houghton, Mifflin & Co. $1.25.

HEART'S DESIRE. By Vanda Wathen-Bartlett. 12mo. Pp. 329. New York: John Lane. $1.50.

SCOUNDRELS & CO. By Coulson Kernahan. 16mo. Pp. x.-330. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.25.

WITHIN THE TEMPLE OF ISIS. By Belle M. Wagner. 16mo. Pp. 156. Denver: Astro-Philosophical Publishing Company.

MISS POLLY FAIRFAX. A Black Letter Story of Our Time. By Joy Wheeler Dow, Architect. 18mo. Pp. 72. New York: William Street: printed at printing house of F. F. McBreen.

NEW EDITIONS.

THE WORKS OF SHAKESPEARE. Edited by Israel Gollancz. Volume I., "The Tempest"; "Two Gentlemen of Verona"; "Merry Wives of Windsor," "Measure for Measure." Volume II., "The Comedy of Errors"; "Much Ado About Nothing"; "Love's Labour's Lost"; "A Midsummer Night's Dream." 12mo. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

A NEW VARIORUM EDITION OF SHAKESPEARE. Edited by Horace Howard Furness. Volume XII., "Much Ado About Nothing." Octavo. Pp. xxxiii.-490. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company.

PEG WOFFINGTON. By Charles Reade. Introduction by Austin Dobson. Illustrations by Hugh Thomson. 12mo. Pp. ii.-297. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $2.

GULLIVER'S TRAVELS. By Jonathan Swift. 12mo. Pp. xx.-355. Illustrated by Herbert Cole. New York: John Lane. $1.50.

ESTHER WATERS. A Novel. By George Moore. Revised and enlarged edition. 12mo. Pp. ix.-508. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co. $1.50.

BOB. The Story of Our Mocking Bird. By Sidney Lanier. With sixteen illustrations in color. 12mo. Pp. 64. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.00.

SHAKESPEARE'S SONNETS. Reconsidered and in part rearranged with Introductory chapters, notes, and a reprint of the original 1609 edition. By Samuel Butler. 8vo. Pp. xii.-223. New York: Longmans, Green & Co. $3.50.

MAUDE ADAMS' ACTING EDITION OF "ROMEO AND JULIET." With drawings by Ernest Haskell and C. Allan Gilbert. Published with the authorization of Charles Frohman. 12mo. Pp. 116. Nagel York: R. H. Russell. Paper.

THE BRUSHWOOD BOY. By Rudyard Kipling. 12mo. Pp. 119. With illustrations by Orson Lowell. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $1.00.

VANITY FAIR. A Novel Without a Hero. By William Makepeace Thackeray. Becky Sharp Edition. With many illustrations of the comedy as produced by Mrs. Fiske and her company of players. 12mo. Pp. xviii.-676. New York: Harper & Brothers.

BOOKS FOR THE YOUNG.

THE SQUARE BOOK OF ANIMALS. By William Nicholson. Rhymes by Arthur Waugh. Square octavo. Pp. 14. New York: R. H. Russell.

THE THREE BEARS. By Frank Ver Beck. Square octavo. New York: R. H. Russell.

ANIMAL JOKES. Drawings by M. Baker Baker. Jokes by A. Crawford. Oblong quarto. New York: R. H. Russell.

MOTHER DUCK'S CHILDREN. By Guy. Square octavo. Pp. 48. New York: R. H. Russell.

SONGS OF THE SHINING WAY. By Sarah Noble Ives. With pictures by the author. Octavo. Pp. 48. New York: R. H. Russell.

THE WONDERFUL STORIES OF ANN AND JOHN. By Gertrude Smith. Illustrations by Alice Woody. 16mo. Pp. 71. Chicago: Frederick A. Stokes & Co.

BOY LIFE ON THE PRAIRIE. By Hamlin Garland. 12mo. Pp. 298. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.25.

"The Supreme Novelist of the Century."—M. W. Hazeltine in the N. Y. Sun.

BALZAC

The BARRIE EDITION

Absolutely the only complete translation in the world.

"Admirably printed and illustrated, BARRIE & SON'S edition is neither abridged nor expurgated. It is the only English version which contains all that is in the original." M. W. Hazeltine in the N. Y. Sun.

"At the last, his (Balzac's) name will be placed higher still than Shakespeare's." Professor Peck of Columbia University.

"Barrie & Son's is the edition par excellence of Balzac." Richard Henry Stoddard in The Mail and Express.

"There is only one English translation of Balzac that is complete and unexpurgated, and that is published by Geo. Barrie & Son." The Bookman.

"The most powerful of any novelist that ever lived and his understanding of human nature equals Shakespeare's." The N. Y. Times.

"Stands alone among his contemporaries." New York Tribune.

"It is difficult to speak in terms of too high praise of the beautiful etchings, which really illustrate the text, the splendid paper, print and binding, which in simple elegance and good taste meet the demands of the most exacting book lover." Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The text is printed on paper of superfine quality, from type made especially for these editions. The illustrations are the choicest examples of modern etching, proofs of same having been exhibited at the Paris Salon.

For specimen pages and illustrations, apply

GEO. BARRIE & SON, 1313 Walnut St., Phila.

SPANISH PEGGY. A Story of Young Illinois. By Mary Hartwell Catherwood. 8vo. Pp. 85. Chicago: Herbert S. Stone & Co.

THE BRAVEST OF THEM ALL. A Story for Young People. By Mrs. Edwin Rohler. Illustrated by Charles E. Brock. 12mo. Pp. 214. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

ULYSSES; OR, DE ROUGEMONT OF TROY. By A. H. M. Square octavo. New York: New Amsterdam Book Company.

KATOOTICUT. By C. F. Carter. Illustrated by J. M. Condé. Square octavo. Pp. 153. New York: R. H. Russell.

OLD FATHER GANDER OF THE BETTER HALF OF MOTHER GOOSE RHYMES, CHIMES, AND JINGLES. Scratched from his own goose quill for American goslings. Illustrated with impossible geese hatched and raised by Walter Scott Howard. Oblong quarto. Pp. 80. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $2.

FIERRETTE. By Henry De Vere Stacpoole. Illustrated by Charles Robinson. 12mo. Pp. xvi.-294. New York: John Lane. $1.50.

TELEGRAPH TOM'S VENTURE. By James Otis. Illustrated. 12mo. Pp. iv.-228. Akron, Ohio: The Werner Company.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OLD ENGLISH PLATE. Ecclesiastical, Decorative, and Domestic. By Wilfred Joseph Cripps. Its Makers and Marks. 8vo. Pp. xvi.-477. Sixth edition. Revised and Enlarged. New York: Francis P. Harper. $6.

THE FAMILY OF THE SUN. Conversations with a Child. Home Reading Books. By Edward S. Holden. 16mo. Pp. xxiv.-252. New York: D. Appleton & Co. 50 cents.

THE GREAT COMPANY. Being a History of the Honorable Company of Merchants-Adventurers Trading in Hudson's Bay. By Beckles Willson. 8vo. Pp. xxii.-541. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $5.

POINT AND PILLOW LACE. A Short Account of Various Kinds, Ancient and Modern, and How to Recognize Them. By A. M. S. 12mo. Pp. xv.-202. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. $3.

THE FUTURE OF THE AMERICAN NEGRO. By Booker T. Washington. 12mo. Pp. x.-244. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.50.

THE CIPHER IN THE PLAYS AND ON THE TOMBSTONE. By Ignatius Donnelly. 12mo. Pp. 372. Minneapolis, Minn.: The Verulam Publishing Company. $1.25.

PRIMITIVE LOVE AND LOVE STORIES. By Henry T. Finck. 8vo. Pp. xvii.-551. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $3.

A WORLD IN A GARDEN. By E. Nesbit. 12mo. Pp. 223. London: J. M. Dent & Co. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.75.

THE UNPUBLISHED LEGENDS OF VIRGIL. Collected by Charles Godfrey Leland. 12mo. Pp. xx.-306. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.75.

BEASTS, Thumb-Nail Studies in Pets. By Wardlaw Kennedy. 12mo. Pp. xv.-152. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

THE EVOLUTION OF GENERAL IDEAS. By T. Ribot. Authorized translation from the French by Frances A. Welby. 12mo. Pp. xl.-231. Chicago: The Open Court Publishing Company. $1.25.

THE ROMANES LECTURE, 1899. Humanism in Education. By R. C. Jebb, delivered in the Sheldonian Theatre, June 7, 1899. 12mo. Pp. 43. London: Macmillan & Co. 80 cents. (Paper.)

THE SURFACE OF THINGS. By Charles Waldstein. 16mo. pp. xv.-330. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co. $1.25.

THE BIBLE IN COURT. The Method of Legal Inquiry Applied to the Study of the Scriptures. By Joseph Evans Sagebeer. 16mo. pp. xiv.-301. Philadelphia: The J. B. Lippincott Company. $1.25.

TROOP "C" IN SERVICE. An Account of the Part Played by Troop C of the New York Volunteer Cavalry in the Spanish-American War of 1898. By Anthony Fiala. With contributions by Richard Harding Davis, Major Flagler, Franklin Clarkin, and Robert Haskell. 8vo, pp. 154. $4.

WATER WORKS FOR SMALL CITIES. By John Goodell. 8vo, pp. 296. New York: The Engineering Record. $2.

WHAT IS GOOD ENGLISH, AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Henry Thurston Peck. 12mo, pp. 313. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $1.50.

THE NATIONAL MUSIC OF AMERICA AND Its Sources. By Louis C. Elson. Illustrated. 16mo, pp. viii., 326. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.00.

MYTHS AND LEGENDS OF OUR NEW POSsessions and Protectorate. By Charles M. Skinner. 16mo. pp. 264. Philadelphia: The J. B. Lippincott Company. $1.50.

DOCE CUENTOS ESCOGIDOS. Edited for class use, with notes and vocabulary, by G. Fontaine. 16mo, pp. 116. New York: William R. Jenkins. 60 cents.

HISTORY OF MODERN PHILOSOPHY IN France. By Lucien Levy-Bruhl. With portraits of the leading French philosophers. 8vo, pp. x., 500. Chicago: The Open Court Publishing Company. $3.

LAIRD AND LEE DIARY AND TIME SAVER. 1900. 32mo. Chicago: Laird & Lee. 75 cents.

LAXDAELA SAGA. Translated from the Icelandic. By Muriel A. C. Press. The Temple Classic Series. 24mo, pp. viii., 276. London: J. M. Dent & Co. 60 cents.

THE HOMERIC HYMNS. A New Prose Translation. And Essays, Literary and Mythological. By Andrew Lang. With illustrations. 12mo, pp. xv., —. New York: Longmans, Green & Co. $2.

ESSAYS IN LIBRARIANSHIP AND BIBLIOGRAPHY. The Library Series, Vol. V. By Richard Garnett, LL.D. Pp. xiv.-242. New York: Dodd, Mead & Co. $2.

THE GEORGE MUNSON MONTHLY BOOK. Edited by Arthur Stanwood Pier. 12mo. New York: George Munson & Co. $1.

CHILD LIFE IN COLONIAL DAYS. By Alice Morse Earle. 12mo. Pp. 436. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.75.

American Deeds and Daring.

The Romance of American Conquest.

The Story of American Expansion through Arms and Diplomacy.

By WILLIAM E. GRIFFIS, D. D.

Illustrated by FRANK T. MERRILL.

312 pp. Cloth, $1.50.

The historical events of 1898, which placed the United States in the front rank among the world's great nations, are here pictured with accuracy and great power.

The movements of these days, full of moment to every one, read like a novel under Dr. Griffis's facile pen.

No one can read the book without feeling profoundly grateful to the God under whose leadership this nation has moved forward into a larger life.

Our other notable new books for this winter's reading are:—

"A Revolutionary Maid." By AMY E. BLANCHARD.

"Barbara's Heritage." By DESBRISAY L. HOYT.

"The Queen's Rangers." By CHARLES LEDYARD NORTON.

"With Perry on Lake Erie." By JAMES OTIS.

"Wheat and Huckleberries." By CHARLOTTE M. VAILE.

"Golden Talisman." By H. PERLEY WHITTAKER.

SOLD BY ALL BOOKSELLERS.

For illustrated, descriptive catalogue send postal to

W. A. Wilde Company,
BOSTON AND CHICAGO.

THE COVENANT OF SALT. As Based on the Significance and Symbolism of Salt in Primitive Thought. By H. Clay Trumbull. 12mo, pp. x., 184. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. $1.50.

THE KIPLING KALENDAR. 1900. Size 15½ by 10½ inches. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $3.50.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF LOGIC. By Paul T. LaFetr. 12mo. Pp. v.-97. Boston: Ginn & Co.

THE CHILD'S NAME. A Collection of Nearly Five Hundred Uncommon and Beautiful Names for Children. With an introduction on the tasteful use of Christian names by Julia McCormick. New York: William R. Young & Co. 50 cents.

FANTASIES IN HA! HA! Forty pictorial stories told by Henry Mayer. An appreciation by Roland Burke Hennessy. Folio. New York: Meyer Brothers & Co.

JULIA MARLOWE AS BARBARA FRIETCHIE, the Frederick Girl, in the new American play of Clyde Fitch. Together with a collection of pictures representing Miss Marlowe in some of her most notable impersonations. Drawings by C. Allan Gilbert. Published with the authorization of Mr. Charles Frohman. Folio. New York: R. H. Russell. Paper.

SKETCHES OF LOWLY LIFE IN A GREAT CITY. By M. A. Woolf. Edited by Joseph Hunter. Oblong 4to, pp. 128. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons. $1.

SERMONS IN STONES AND IN OTHER THINGS. Some Practical Lessons for Life Drawn from Everyday Surroundings. By Amos R. Wells. 12mo. Pp. x.-246. New York: Doubleday & McClure Company. $1.

A HUNDRED FABLES OF LA FONTAINE. With pictures by Percy J. Billinghurst. 8vo. Pp. 168. New York: John Lane. $2.

QUAINT BESTIARIES. Collected by Susan Darling Sedgwick. Revised edition. 16mo. Pp. 97. Boston: L. Cobb & Co. $1.

THE A-B-C OF COOK BOOK. Or, 365 ways to do the same. Mary Chesley Powell. 12mo. Pp. 365. Published by the Author. Detroit, Mich.

OUTLOOKS AND INSIGHTS. By Lyman Abbott. 12mo. Pp. 350. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.50.

NEW LANDS OF OURS.

Caspar Whitney and Franklin Matthews Write of Hawaii and Cuba.*

Two additional volumes in the series of books descriptive of the new possessions of our country have lately appeared from the press of Harper & Brothers. Both are from the pens of special correspondents of that firm, and a large portion of the material contained in each volume has already appeared in the columns of the Harper publications. Both volumes are profusely illustrated and will prove valuable additions to the literature describing our new territories. Mr. Whitney, who has officiated as the athletic editor of Harper's Weekly for several years, is the author of "Hawaiian America." "New Born Cuba" is the work of one of the ablest writers on Harper's staff, Franklin Matthews. His latest work is a splendid example of clean-cut description.

The flood of books upon Hawaii, which has deluged the book market since 1893, would naturally seem to include all the information obtainable or desirable upon that country. Mr. Whitney's volume, "Hawaiian America," possesses so much information that is either new or attractively arranged, that the reader will certainly decide that in his new rôle the author has won fresh laurels. The other products of his pen, in book form, have been on sporting subjects, and while interesting, yet scarcely afforded the opportunities that the present topic yielded. "Hawaiian America" is neither a handbook nor a history, but an exhaustive summary of the resources, industries, and prospects of our first outlying Pacific territory, together with a highly interesting sketch of the inhabitants and their modes of life. In the limited space which we can give this interesting work it will be possible for us to simply refer to a few of the interesting items with which the volume teems.

After a brief introductory chapter which ably reviews the movement which resulted in the annexation of the islands, the author passes to a consideration of the local political situation. In this he lucidly explains the real conditions, giving us the views of a student and philosopher. He declares that two things are absolutely necessary in the statutes which Congress is expected to provide for the government of the island: (1.) Property and educational qualifications exacted of all voters and (2) previous residence of at least three years made necessary to eligibility for any territorial office. In making these suggestions, the author indulges in a fierce attack, not without reason, on the legislators who oppose the first of the above proposed regulations. It is gratifying to learn that American influence is so predominant in every feature of Hawaiian life, in the school and legal systems, in their temporary government, in their shipping interests—three-fourths of the foreign shipping calling at Honolulu is American, a statement that cannot be made of any other port in the world—and in their banking and manufacturing interests. This American influence began with the enterprising Yankee whalers and was spread by the band of American missionaries who so ably aided in shaping the early destinies of the island. The day is not far distant when Americans will be as numerous in Hawaii as they became in the Louisiana Purchase after its annexation.

The chapters in which the author sets forth the results of his journey through the islands are very instructive. While the opportunities for new settlers are limited, it is gratifying to learn that the sugar, rice, and coffee plantations are numerous, prosperous, and of great prospective value. The commercial development of the islands is a story which reads like a fairy tale. It dates its greatest progress from the adoption of the reciprocity treaty which was entered into with the United States in 1875. At that time the value of the imports was $1,506,570, and of exports $2,089,736; while for 1897 imports were $7,062,628 and exports $16,021,775. Jan. 1, 1898, balance sheet showed receipts $5,042,504, expenditures $4,654,926, cash balance in treasury $456,804, value government lands $4,500,000, other assets $3,000,000, and public debt only $3,679,700. This is certainly a remarkable showing, and proves that Hawaii is solvent, self-supporting, and prosperous. The labor question is undoubtedly the foremost one in the consideration of Hawaiian development. With a preponderance of Oriental labor, it can hardly be expected that the agricultural interests of the archipelago will attain their fullest development. It is cheap labor, and the experience of many of the largest growers shows that the future of the islands demands the importation of intelligent white labor. If the farm help of the United States could realize the opportunities that awaited them in the pleasant climate of the islands, we imagine that there would be a marked increase in the movement toward Hawaii. Sugar is the staple crop, and in its cultivation nearly one-quarter of the population of the islands is engaged. Rice comes next on the list, but coffee is advancing with remarkable strides. In 1892 only 13,568 pounds of coffee were exported. In 1897 the amount exported was 337,158 pounds. While the author encourages farm help to go to the islands, he discourages those who would seek to buy land and enter into sugar or coffee raising, by stating that practically all of the best land is owned or held on long leases.

The policy of President Cleveland, "Paramount" Blount, and Minister Willis is handled without gloves, and their efforts to restore the corrupt Hawaiian monarchy is denounced in severest terms. Some will not relish the author's views on this point. In fact, as much satisfaction will not be derived from a perusal of the portions of the book devoted to political matters as will result from reading the remaining chapters. In the latter we will see more of the work of the specialist and less of the newspaper correspondent. The descriptive rather than the disputatious features of the book are what render it attractive, and it certainly does possess unusually valuable information on Hawaiian conditions and development.

In an appendix to the volume we find statistical tables as to population, distances, public lands, leprosy, education, industries, labor, railroads, commerce, revenues, and elections. The volume will take rank as one of the best on Hawaii which has yet appeared, and will be of indisputable value as a book of reference for our libraries.

Franklin Matthews's book "The New-Born Cuba" is a tale of reconstruction. The story is admirably told and the excellent pictures which adorn the volume make it easy for the reader to understand the wonderful work which has been accomplished by the American officers to whom the task of preparing Cuba for national independence was delegated. The book is a splendid example of up-to-date journalism, the detached Harper's Weekly articles having been supplemented and woven into this most attractive narrative. The two months just succeeding the Spanish evacuation of Cuba is the period which the author deals with, he having witnessed the stirring scenes which attended the birth of the new Cuba. From the opening chapter, which describes "Havana Under American Military Rule," we note the work of a master of narrative, a person who is experienced in preparing a comprehensive, finished article. The most notable achievements in the line of sanitation, government, police, and customs reforms are detailed in a very attractive manner. The corrupt customs system was replaced with one which was a surprise and disappointment to many who had become rich through the dishonesty of corrupt Spanish officials. What the Custom House was under the old rule need not be told at length. It was unclean, the author says, in more ways than one, from top to bottom. The present system is a marvel to the merchants of Havana. Honesty and integrity in business affairs were new features to that branch of the Government, and the installation of such beneficial reforms will certainly have a salutary influence on the successors of the Americans, who are preparing the way for Cuban self-government.

Havana's new police force is the product of an ex-Superintendent of the New York police, John McCullagh. The splendidly equipped force is a tribute to his ability and good judgment. He replaced the old force, which consisted of about 1,800 men, of whom 1,200 were really soldiers, with 1,000 men, who were drilled and trained for police duty pure and simple. The men were uniformed, the streets measured, and posts laid out, and Havana became possessed of a genuine police force, prepared to do all that could be expected from such a branch of service. This, considering the utter lack of police traditions and experience, was a splendid bit of organizing work. Of the labors of the talented and devoted officers, both regulars and volunteers, in various sections of the island, we find here the highest commendation. Major Gen. Ludlow in Havana performed his work of rehabilitating that city in a superb manner. He had to grapple with a herculean task, but proved himself equal to the work. Few would think of the numerous duties imposed upon him by his position. He had to perform his military duties as Governor of the cities, clean the city outside and inside, plan reforms in taxation, customs, and police, disarm the volunteers, and keep the municipal machinery in motion.

The author pays a high tribute to Gen. Gomez, whom he met at Cienfuegos during the latter's tour of triumph through the island. Of him the author says:

He asked me not to quote what he said to me, but not in the classroom of the university have I ever heard more profound philosophy as to the duties of a man toward his fellow-men, or heard words that had a more sincere ring of personal disinterestedness, than those he uttered in an excited voice in that clubroom. In an active experience of fifteen years as a newspaper man I have never met a man who was so impressive at first sight as a statesman, in the broadest sense, and as a lover of liberty, as Maximo Gomez. * * * If Gomez were a citizen of the United States, I am convinced that he would be one of the foremost men of the country. He seemed a Tilden in cunning and resource, a McKinley in affability, a Grant in simplicity, a Lee in dignity.

In the chapters entitled "Taxation and Finance in Havana" and "Americans in Cuba" we have some very interesting facts arrayed which throw much light on the Spanish system and the methods some Americans would like to install. The Provinces of Pinar del Rio, Matanzas, Santa Clara, and Santiago were visited, and excellent summaries are given showing their progress under Gens. Davis, Wilson, Bates, and Wood, respectively. Sugar and tobacco are discussed in two chapters, and the future of those industries carefully considered.

Altogether, the volume is highly satisfactory. It is an excellently arranged description of Cuba's first experience under American control. It leads us to believe that the hopes of Cuba's most ardent admirers will be fully realized, and, either as an independent nation or as a part of the American Nation, it is bound to become a powerful country. A large share of the thanks for the realization of this great success will be due to the wise and energetic American officers above referred to.

*HAWAIIAN AMERICA. Something of Its History, Resources, and Prospects. By Caspar Whitney. Crown 8vo. 357 pages. With 50 full-page illustrations. New York and London: Harper & Brothers. $2.50.

*THE NEW-BORN CUBA. By Franklin Matthews. Crown 8vo. 391 pages. Illustrated. New York and London: Harper & Brothers. $2.50.

BEFORE SELECTING

Your Magazine for 1900

Send for the illustrated booklet describing the interesting features offered by Scribner's Magazine to its readers for next year. This little book has a beautiful cover in colors by Maxfield Parrish, and contains illustrations by Ernest Seton-Thompson, F. C. Yohn, H. C. Christy, and Walter Appleton Clark, also printed in colors. It is the most attractive magazine prospectus ever issued, and it tells of a most interesting magazine programme for next year. It will be sent free to any address.

AUTHORS WHO WRITE FOR NEXT YEAR'S SCRIBNER'S

James M. Barrie — Gov. Theodore Roosevelt
Richard Harding Davis — Ernest Seton-Thompson
Thomas Nelson Page — Henry Norman
Henry James — Walter A. Wyckoff
Henry van Dyke — Senator Hoar
Joel Chandler Harris — John R. Spears
Octave Thanet — William Allen White
John Fox, Jr. — John La Farge

and many others

ARTISTS WHO DRAW FOR NEXT YEAR'S SCRIBNER'S

Howard Pyle — A. B. Frost
Ernest Seton-Thompson — Bernard Partridge
Walter Appleton Clark — F. C. Yohn
H. C. Christy — E. C. Peixotto
Henry McCarter — Seymour Lucas
Clifford Carleton — B. W. Clinedinst
W. Glackens — A. I. Keller
Maxfield Parrish — C. Marchetti
Rene Reinicke — Claude Shepperson

and others

"SCRIBNER'S IS POPULAR AND PROGRESSIVE"

"There is something about Scribner's which one does not find in the other magazines of the day. It seems to have a progressive spirit back of it."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"It [Scribner's] has mingled, with a judgment not at all frequent in the annals of illustrated journalism, the style of ephemeral things with that of permanent and seriously instructive topics. Its second claim upon public appreciation lies in its artistic character . . . illustrations which are not only artistic but which speak of the very latest and freshest ideas in current literature."—New York Tribune.

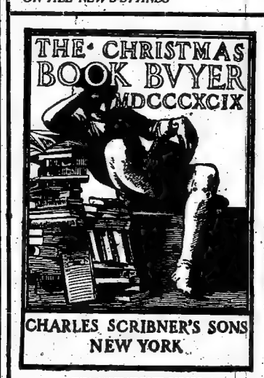
"The feature of Scribner's which distinguishes it from other American periodicals is the attention bestowed upon practical topics that touch directly upon the life of the people."—San Francisco Chronicle.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, 153-157 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK

THE CHRISTMAS BOOK BUYER

A Complete Illustrated Résumé of the Holiday Books.

ON ALL NEWS-STANDS — FIFTEEN CENTS



THE COVER IN FOUR COLORS BY MAXFIELD PARRISH.

CONTENTS

R. L. Stevenson's Letters.....Will H. Low
A Review of the collection edited by Sidney Colvin.

The Reminiscences of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.....M. A. DeWolfe Howe
A Review of Mrs. Howe's autobiography.

Hugh Wynne in Court Dress.....Winston Churchill
A Review of the "Continental Edition" of Dr. Mitchell's famous novel.

John Sartain.....Richard Henry Stoddard
A Review of the "Reminiscences of a Very Old Man."

Twenty-five Years After.....E. S. Martin
A Review of Mr. Howells's "Their Silver Wedding Journey."

An American Painter's Memorial.....Russell Sturgis
A Review of "The Art Life of William Morris Hunt."

Childhood in Colonial New England.....Harriet Prescott Spofford
A Review of Mrs. Earle's "Child Life in Colonial Days."

Paul Du Chaillu in High Latitudes.....Philip G. Hubert, Jr.
A Review of "The Land of the Long Night," with three illustrations.

Books of the Holiday Season.....Roseltle Johnston
Descriptive comment upon the new publications, with illustrations by G. W. Glackens, G. D. Gibson, Ernest Peixotto, A. B. Frost, Ernest Seaton-Thompson, R. B. Birch, Howard Pyle and others.

Holiday Books for Young People.....Tudor Jenks
Notes of the Autumn's books for boys and girls, with many illustrations.

Final Notes. Classified Lists of the Holiday Books. Notes of New Editions.

MORE THAN 200 PAGES AND OVER 100 ILLUSTRATIONS.

AN ILLUSTRATED CIRCULAR containing full announcement of THE BOOK BUYER for 1900 sent free on application.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, Publishers, New York.

1899 1899

R. H. RUSSELL'S BOOKS.

The Most Attractive and Artistic

CHRISTMAS GIFTS

FOR OLD AND YOUNG ARE NOW ON EXHIBITION AND FOR SALE AT THE 5TH AVENUE BOOK STORE: 365 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

SOME UNUSUAL OFFERS.

Stevenson's Works.
Thistle edition. 22 vols. 8vo, half red morocco. Subscription price, $88.00; net, $50.00.

Kipling's Works.
Outward bound edition. Subscription price, $48.00; net, $30.00.

Poe's Works.
Stone & Kimball's $15.00 edition. Net, $10.00.

Ridpath's History of the World.
Best edition, 16 vols, half morocco. Cost $56.00; net, $25.00.

Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature.
30 vols. Full turkey morocco. Subscription price, $180.00; net, $100.00.

In our Theological Department we offer the following New Books at less than half price.

Dr. A. M. Fairbairn's Religion in History and in Modern Life at 50c. postpaid.

Peloubet's Commentary on St. Matthew. Covering a part of the 1900 S. S. lessons at 50 cents postpaid.

Dr. George Matheson's Spiritual Development of St. Paul at 50c. postpaid.

We have just enlarged our store and doubled our stock. Correspondence invited.

CHARLES P. EVERITT & CO.,
18 East 23d St., New York.

"MY SMOKING-ROOM COMPANIONS"

By WILLIAM HARVEY KING.

12mo, Cloth, Illustrated. Price $1.00.

"The scene is chiefly in the smoking room of the steamer, and is ingeniously set. Various types of character are introduced, the conversations are animated and witty, and the mock heroic sensations are devised with much skill."—BOSTON GLOBE.

THOMAS WHITTAKER, Publisher,
2 & 3 Bible House, New York.

A Powerful Story of Adventure.

THE BLACK WOLF'S BREED

12mo, Cloth, Illustrated, $1.18. By mail, $1.30.

BRENTANO'S, Union Square, New York.

Illustrated Gift Books,
Books for Young People,
Bibles and Prayer Books.

Standard Authors in various bindings. In fact, any book you want at LOWER PRICES than can be had at any other store.

Send for Grand Holiday Catalogue.

LEGGAT BROS., 81 Chambers St., N.Y.

We Sell

All $1.50 Books at 99c.

Can be sent anywhere in the United States. Add 15c. when books are to be sent by mail.

SPECIAL NOTICE—We wish to notify the patrons of the "Rector Street Bookstore Circulating Library" that we have added 3,000 books. We are sorry that we had to disappoint so many this past week, as we were not prepared for such a tremendous rush. We think we have enough stock now, so we say again—You can read

All $1.50 Books for 25c.

"RECTOR STREET BOOKSTORE."
New York City.

The Shellback

OR, AT SEA IN THE SIXTIES

By ALEC J. BOYD.

With Introduction by Rupert Hughes, the well-known Writer of Sea Tales.

E. G. RAINS,
Importer and Dealer in OLD, RARE, AND MODERN BOOKS.
369 FIFTH AVENUE, COR. 35TH STREET.
NEWEST PUBLICATIONS ON SALE FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

Brentano's Edition

THE STANDARD OPERAGLASS

BRANDER MATTHEWS.

Friends from Far and Near Rally in Defense of Him.

Where Criticism Is Lese Majeste.

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

Indeed, I must protest upon your permitting your columns to be used to criticise Prof. Brander Matthews! He is a professor in Columbia University, and it is nothing less than lèse majesté!

I regret to see one of your correspondents complaining that he can only recognize Prof. Matthews's writing when his name is signed to it, another claiming that he never ends his stories, but chops them off, when they run to the 2,000 lines required, with a cleaver, &c. If Prof. Matthews does chop his stories off this way, then Writer No. 1 must be wrong when he says he (Prof. Matthews) is undistinguishable except when his name is attached. And, besides, Emil Souvestre and Lopez de Vega did this same thing! I once heard Prof. Matthews, who is the only Professor of English Fiction in Columbia, by the way, lecture his classes on the art of writing short stories, and remember his elucidating at some length that the real way to write a short story was to write it short. In fact, he urged with some warmth that a short story must be short, and that if long it was not short, and could not in any way be properly classified as short. I think myself that he is justified then in supplying comment to his text and in making his own stories short, even if he does have to "cut them short with a cleaver," and surely shortness is a merit!

CLIFFORD GOLLINS.
Columbia University, N. Y., Nov. 23, 1899.

His Stories More than Fiction.

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

In your SATURDAY REVIEW of Nov. 11 is a letter signed "Iconoclast," in which the writer attempts to find fault with Mr. Brander Matthews's style and also endeavors to take to task certain editors for continuing to present to their readers stories from that author's pen.

I do not desire to present any defense of Prof. Matthews, for he needs none, and I will also pass over the supercilious manner in which "Iconoclast" refers to him, but perhaps a word as to the spirit in which his stories should be read may call to "Iconoclast's" attention the error into which, in my opinion, this death-dealing iconoclast has fallen.

I do not think that these stories should be read and digested as though they were fiction pure and simple. True, many of them bear a cloak of fiction, but why not look a little deeper? Do they not then seem to be artistic sketches of human nature, of the everyday occurrences in the great Empire City? The old saying about the little things of life certainly applies to these sketches with the pen. They tell us of the many happenings that occur in our own observation, but which fail to impress us when we see them, because we are so absorbed in unraveling the threads of our own lives, that we fail to see the small romances that enter into the lives of others. That trip of the ambulance up Columbus Avenue—what a serious affair it is to the poor unfortunate within it—yet perhaps we are not even interested enough to step out on the curb and watch the ambulance disappear within the hospital gate. Or that walk down Broadway—who that has been part of that jostling strip of humanity, unless he be an iconoclast, can fail to recall just such things as are described in that most delightful of narrations.

No, I cannot agree with "Iconoclast." I feel sure I express the sentiments of many others when I hope that Prof. Matthews will give us many more of these heart-warming sketches, and as for the editors, I believe they will still continue to print them.

HERMAN G. OVERBECK.
Denver, Col., Nov. 19, 1899.

Memorial Tablets at West Point.

It is announced that the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the two memorial tablets to be placed in the chapel at West Point by the Daughters of the Revolution of the State of New York in honor of Revolutionary patriots and heroes of the Spanish-American war will take place on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 5, at 3 o'clock. Special cars will be attached to the train leaving the Grand Central Station at 11.30 a. M., arriving at West Point at 12.57. Stages will convey guests to the West Point Hotel, where luncheon will be served to those present as guests of Mrs. Charles Francis Roe. Reduced rates on tickets are provided for members, who must present cards of identification at the Grand Central Station. The committee in charge of the ceremonies comprises Mrs. D. Phoenix Ingraham, Chairman; Mrs. David H. Carr, Mrs. Bradley T. Johnson, Miss Maude Trent Peterkin.

Putnam's New Books.

Life Beyond Death

Being a review of the World's Beliefs on the Subject, a consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling, Leading to the Question as to Whether it can be Demonstrated as a Fact. By MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D. 8vo; $1.50.

CONTENTS: Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

No problem possesses more interest for men than that contained in the question asked centuries ago, "If a man die shall he live again?" The orthodox Christian believes it to be the gift of God through the atoning sacrifice of Christ. Others seek a scientific demonstration. To the former class Dr. Savage's volume will not appeal, but to the latter group his book will be welcomed as a valuable contribution to the knowledge on this great question.

The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well-authenticated communications from persons in the other life.

Bacteria

Especially as they are related to the economy of nature, to industrial processes, and to the public health. By GEORGE NEWMAN, M. D., F. R. S., etc., Demonstrator of Bacteriology in King's College, London. Science Series No. 6.

With 24 micro-photographs of actual organisms and over 70 other illustrations. 12mo, $2.00.

Professor Newman's volume is not a record of original work, nor is it a text-book for the laboratory, but it is of a less technical nature, being an attempt to set forth a popular scientific statement of our present knowledge of bacteria.

The application of biology to life and its problems has in recent years been nowhere more marked than in the realm of bacteriology. Turn where we will, we shall find the work of the unseen hosts of bacteria daily claiming more and more attention from practical people, and there can be no doubt as to the advantage of a wider dissemination of the ascertained facts concerning them. As the world learns its intimate relation to science and the interdependence between its life and scientific truth, it may be expected more heartily to support science.

Previously Published in the Science Series:

1—The Study of Man. By A. C. HADDON. Illustrated. $2.00.
2—The Groundwork of Science. By ST. GEORGE MIVART. $1.75.
3—Rivers of North America. By ISRAEL C. RUSSELL. Illustrated. $2.00.
4—Earth Sculpture; or, The Origin of Land Forms. By JAMES GEIKIE. Illustrated. $2.00.
5—Volcanoes: Their Structure and Significance. By T. BONNEY. Illustrated. $2.00.

The Religion of Israel to the Exile

By KARL BUDDE, of the University of Strasburg, Germany. Fourth Series in the Course of American Lectures on the History of Religions, 1898-99. 12mo, $1.50.

Previously Issued in the Series:

1. Buddhism.—ITS HISTORY AND LITERATURE. By T. W. RHYS-DAVIDS. 12mo, $1.50.

"As a clear and concise exposition of the subject Prof. Rhys-Davids's book is unsurpassed. . . . The clearness and condensation of the work are remarkable, and it is doubtful if any exposition of the Buddhist doctrines has ever been made in English so satisfactory as this. . . . The book is an admirable handbook of Buddhism, written from a point-of view at once scholarly and unprejudiced, and will take a creditable place among books of its class."—PIONEER PRESS, St. Paul.

2. Primitive Religions.—RELIGIONS OF PRIMITIVE PEOPLES. By DANIEL G. BRINTON. 12mo, $1.50.

"That this volume will have a strong interest for the student of religious thought and observance goes without saying. The scholarship and calm and discriminating method of Dr. Brinton's mind, and his reputation as an authority on anthropology, archæology, and comparative mythology, ensure as much."—PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN.

3. Jewish Religious Life After the Exile. By REV. T. K. CHEYNE. 12mo. $1.50.

"Few men are as well qualified as Canon Cheyne to discuss the Jewish literature and life of the period covered by this course. * * * exceedingly interesting and instructive."—INDEPENDENT.

The Eve of the Reformation in Great Britain

By FRANCIS ADRIAN GASQUET. 8vo, $3.50.

A study of the religious life and thought of the English people during the period immediately preceding the rejection by Henry VIII. of the jurisdiction of Rome.

A Prisoner of the Khaleefa

Twelve Years' Captivity at Omdurman. By CHARLES NEUFELD. Illustrated with 36 photographs taken by the author. Second Edition. 8vo, $4.00.

"Mr. Neufeld has at any rate furnished us with a most thrilling and interesting volume, which will be read far and wide by vast numbers of our countrymen, over whom the mysteries and tragic history of the Soudan have exercised an almost antique fascination."—THE SPEAKER.

READY SOON:

The Yangtze Valley and Beyond

An Account of Journeys in Central and Western China. By ISABELLA L. BIRD (Mrs. Bishop), author of "Unbeaten Tracks in Japan," etc. With about 100 illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo, per set, $6.00.

Miss Bird is one of the most remarkable writers of the day. Her famous book on Japan, published in 1876, is still considered one of the most satisfactory works on the subject.

Romance of the Feudal Chateaux

BY ELIZABETH W. CHAMPNEY. With 40 photogravure and other illustrations 8vo, $3.50.

Mrs. Champney has chosen a few of the Feudal Chateaux as typical. She writes sympathetically concerning the ruins of these chateaux and the traditions which cling to them. Some of these traditions were told to her by simple people on the spot; others she has derived from the old chronicles.

 Send for our New Illustrated Holiday Catalogue of 48 pages.*

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS, 27 AND 29 WEST 23D ST., New York.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

is the name of a writer who will be more and more spoken of, and each month he is being "discovered" by those who read knowingly. As yet he has written but two books, and even in the wilderness of publications which are appearing they stand out as shining lights.

THE COURT OF BOYVILLE

is a book which Droch in Life has well described when he says: "The charm of this story is in its exquisite style. Simple and poetic; full of fire when the action demands it, and always wonderfully picturesque." Price, $1.50.

THE REAL ISSUE

is an older book, of Kansas stories, and has already passed through four printings. $1.00.

DOUBLEDAY & McCLURE CO., Publishers.

THE OLD ANN STREET BOOK STORE.
BARGAIN 44.
LORD STRATFORD DE REDCLIFFE.
The Life of Stratford Canning, First Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, and Ambassador to the Sublime Porte. By Stanley Lane-Poole. With Portraits. London: 1888. Pub. Price $3.50. Our Price, Postpaid, $1.

Three Notable Atlases

Modern—Biblical—Ancient

Imperial Atlas of the World 128 pages of colored maps, each page of which covers an entire story in the United States, of the Provinces of Canada, and of all political divisions of the world. Maps of important cities on a special scale. This work marks an advance in atlas publishing, because it presents at a popular price exactly what every intelligent person desires, on a scale sufficiently large to be entirely satisfactory, and because no other handy atlas of the world is so completely up to date. All recent territorial changes, whether resulting from the Spanish-American war, or from treaties or discoveries (including disputed territory in Venezuela), are clearly and accurately shown. Remarkable value; low price. Heavy paper; tasteful cloth binding. Page size, 11¼ x 16¾ in. Price, $2.50.

Bible Atlas 160 pages, 32 colored maps and charts. Original and effective method of printing maps by periods, whereby confusion is avoided. Maps of the great empires of the Ancient World, showing relation of Biblical and secular history. Special maps on large scale of important localities and cities. Biographical maps illustrating campaigns or journeys of important characters. Many pages (profusely illustrated) of exhaustive historical and descriptive matter, prepared by Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, Secretary of the Methodist Sunday School Union; an eminent authority upon the history and geography of the Bible. This is the latest and most comprehensive Biblical Atlas. Fine paper; substantial cloth binding. Page size, 10 x 13½ in. Price, $2.75.

Atlas Antiquus Twelve double-page maps, nineteen smaller ones, prepared by Dr. Henry Kiepert, of Berlin, the world's foremost authority upon the Geography of Antiquity. Printed in Germany, from new plates. The work is a monument of patient research. It embodies all modern geographical knowledge of the Ancient World. Separate maps of all important divisions. Detail maps and special topographical index of Ancient Rome. Complete and practical index. Heavy paper; cloth binding; maps mounted on muslin guards. Page size, 10 x 14½ in. Price, $3.00.

For sale by all booksellers. Special introductory terms to schools, colleges and libraries. Correspondence solicited.

RAND, McNALLY & COMPANY,

142 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK (Address nearest house) 160 to 174 Adams St., CHICAGO

"It is a book no lover of Stevenson or, in fact, no lover of good literature can afford to be without."—N. Y. Times Saturday Review.

The Letters of

2 Vols., 8vo, $5.00 net.

"An invaluable contribution to English literature."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

"Contains more than twice the number of letters that have appeared in magazine form."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Portraits and Illustrations.

Stevenson

"By all odds the most beguiling volumes since Fitz Gerald's are the two in which the intimate confessions of Robert Louis Stevenson are now made public."—N. Y. Tribune.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, Fifth Ave., N. Y.

PUBLISHED TO-DAY First Edition Sold in Two Weeks

A NEW DRUMMOND BOOK

Stones Rolled Away

By PROF. HENRY DRUMMOND,

Author of "Greatest Thing in the World," "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," "Ascent of Man," etc.

CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION
STONES ROLLED AWAY
THE MAN WHO IS DOWN
ONE WAY TO HELP BOYS
AN APPEAL TO THE OUTSIDER; OR, THE CLAIMS OF CHRISTIANITY
LIFE ON THE TOP FLOOR
THE KINGDOM OF GOD AND YOUR PART IN IT
THE THREE ELEMENTS OF A COMPLETE LIFE

12mo, cloth, handsome binding, gilt top, $1.00.

JAMES POTT & CO., Publishers,

119-121 West 23d St., New York.

"The best history of Europe in the nineteenth century that has yet appeared."

—PROF. H. MORSE STEPHENS OF CORNELL.

SEIGNOBOS' POLITICAL HISTORY OF EUROPE SINCE 1814.

Translation edited by Prof. S. M. MACVANE of Harvard. 880 pp. 8vo. $3.00 net.

HENRY HOLT & CO.

29 W. 23d St., New York; 378 Wabash Av., Chicago

Cashel Byron's Profession

A clever and whimsical study of [illegible]

by G. Bernard Shaw

("The author of 'Trops Finished and Unfinished')

BRENTANO'S

MEXICANA.

My Catalogue No. 3 of old books, relating chiefly to Spanish America, is ready for distribution. W. W. BLAKE, Gante 8, Mexico.

Bangs & Co.,

91 and 93 Fifth Avenue,

Will Sell at Auction

MONDAY, Dec. 4th, at 3 P. M.,

A large and interesting collection of BOOKS, comprising valuable works on a great variety of topics—the books all in good condition.

TUESDAY and two following afternoons at 3 o'clock,

THE LIBRARY OF

JOHN C. CLEGG, ESQ.,

comprising editions of the famous Greek and Latin authors, specimens from the Aldine, Elzevir, and other well-known presses. Old Bindings, also American and English Books.

FRIDAY, Dec. 8, at 3 P. M.,

An unusual collection of Books, comprising Americana—works on New York, Dramatic Literature, Scarce Books, etc.

Sales of Books every afternoon except Saturday.

TO AUTHORS.

WE want literary and musical manuscripts; large royalties paid to writers. 1899 has produced three great novels. The third is "Chickens Come Home to Roost." $1.25.

WRIGHT & COMPANY, Publishers,

1,368-70 Broadway, N. Y. City.

LONDON LITERARY LETTER.

Written for The New York Times Saturday Review by William L. Alden.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Mr. Kipling's poem, "The Absent-Minded Beggar," has made a sensation. It is nightly recited by Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, and it has been copied in nearly all the papers, except The Daily Chronicle, which, as the organ of the Little Englanders, has a spicy low opinion of all patriotic poetry. The poem, with its splendid swing, its burning patriotism, and its earnest appeal for help for the families of the men of the reserve, has gone straight to the popular heart. Mr. Kipling gave the £250 which he received for the poem to the Reservist Fund, and, stimulated by his example as well as by his verse, the public has poured its shillings into the fund.

Once more Mr. Kipling has shown that he is the voice of the empire. That the amiable Mr. Austin should be the nominal poet laureate, instead of Mr. Kipling, seems more absurd to-day than ever before. Mr. Kipling, the uncrowned laureate, is a power in politics as well as literature. He has done more to weld Greater Britain into one compact empire than has any statesman or soldier of them all. By this single poem, "The Absent-Minded Beggar," he does more in behalf of the British soldier than the Government could dream of doing. Mr. Swinburne's hysterics and Mr. Austin's platitudes fall on dull ears after the blast of Kipling's trumpet has been heard. Fate has placed Mr. Austin in a very painful position. When Lord Salisbury, who knows rather less about poetry than does the average Scotch mathematician, appointed him Poet Laureate, he could hardly do otherwise than accept. Had not Mr. Kipling been living, the public would have accepted the appointment with resignation, on the ground that a worse one might have been made. But now that Mr. Kipling is universally recognized as the rightful heir—the one man in the whole empire who should have been made Poet Laureate—what is Mr. Austin to do? He cannot resign, for in so doing he would be treating the Government, which appointed him, with a lack of respect. He cannot continue to hold the place without feeling that his laurels ought of right to belong to another man. No blame can be attached to him for this state of things, but he is certainly greatly to be pitied. The public, recognizing the fact that Mr. Austin is in the wrong place, shows a tendency to ridicule even his best work, and no matter what he may write, it will never be judged fairly so long as he is the Poet Laureate. Lord Salisbury meant to do him a kindness, but he has done him the worst injury that he could have devised.

***

Mr. Melville's "Life of Thackeray," of which I wrote the other day, is selling well, and it is more and more evident that it is destined to be the standard life of the great novelist. It has the one great fault that it leaves us somewhat in the dark as to the true character of Thackeray. The author evidently greatly admires Thackeray as a man, and quotes many instances of his kindliness of heart and his true magnanimity. At the same time he tells us enough of the weaknesses of Thackeray to come near to justifying Disraeli's bitter satire. The only reasonable conclusion is that Thackeray, like many other men, was capable both of great and of little things. He could be the genial, warm-hearted, sincere man that we have usually been taught to believe him, and he could also be the jealous, ill-tempered egotist that Disraeli drew. In view of revelations made by Mr. Melville, it is to be regretted that his book is so good in most respects that it is sure to live. Why should we be told of the unlovable things in Thackeray? It may be replied that Mr. Melville tells only what is the truth, but it is not necessary to tell the truth on all occasions. Zola told the truth when he wrote "La Terre," but does not every one who admires and loves Zola wish that he had not written the book? When a man has done as much for the delight of his fellowmen as was done by Thackeray, he ought to be exempted from the law that the truth should be told about every man. Mr. Melville might have left us the Thackeray of our imagination, instead of compelling us to look at the minute and merciless photograph of the man.

***

Mr. Frank Bullen, whose "Cruise of the Cachalot" was so widely read last year, has published a volume of reminiscences, entitled "The Log of a Sea Waif." I doubt if Mr. Bullen has the imagination of a novelist, but he certainly has the art of describing in a thoroughly fascinating way the things that he has seen and felt. I like his new book far better than his first one. It is a faithful picture of the life of a sailor, and told by a man who might perhaps have been a poet if he had had the misfortune to spend a prosperous life on dry land.

***

A new book by George Cupples is almost as sensational as would be a new book by the author of "Tom Brown's Boys." It must have been nearly fifty years ago that Cupples wrote "The Green Hand." It was an impossible novel, considered merely as a novel, but it was full of vivid and truthful descriptions. Few writers of stories of adventure have done anything better than the chapter which describes the night in the African River. It is said that two of the best writers of sea stories should have been landsmen. Neither Michael Scott nor George Cupples were sailors, but how delightfully they painted the sea! I have been reading "The Cruise of the Midge" ever since I was a boy, and I enjoy it to-day almost as much as I did when I was a youngster, hot with the fever of the sea. There is a great deal of simple rubbish in the book, but it is a book that is alive, and that is the reason why it will live as long as the English language.

***

The second number of The Anglo-Saxon Review is decidedly inferior to the first. With the exception of Mr. Stephen Phillips's poem, some lines of which are conspicuously good, there is little in the number that is worth reading. It opens with a short story that is so hopelessly bad that it would be unkind to insist upon the author's name. The binding is admirable, but a review cannot live by binding alone. Lady Randolph Churchill seems to have exhausted herself as an editor with her first number. If The Review is to live, it must be edited hereafter with more discretion than it is at present.

***

I see that Mr. Arthur Balfour is to tell the readers of The North American Review some of the misfortunes which the Ritualists have brought upon the Church of England. If The Review applied to Mr. Balfour to write on this precise subject, as it probably did, The Review made a wrong selection. Clever as Mr. Balfour is, he does not happen to be in a position to know thoroughly the subject which he is to treat. Only a churchman, and one who has made the present state of parties and schools in the Church of England an especial and careful study, can write authoritatively of the matter. Now, Mr. Balfour is a Presbyterian, although his orthodoxy is certainly somewhat open to doubt, and as such he is incapable of appreciating the motives and mental processes of the men whom he calls Ritualists. His paper will necessarily be unsatisfactory to churchmen, although it will probably give the enemies of the Church considerable satisfaction.

***

The death of Miss Florence Marryat may put an end to the flood of stories which she poured forth during so many years. Still, it is possible that, like the late Mrs. Henry Wood, she left reams of manuscript behind her, and new novels by Miss Marryat may continue to appear for some years to come. She was certainly a most industrious writer, and she had a public which eagerly devoured her books. They were not great books in any sense. Indeed, most of them were apparently turned out by machinery. But she was a well-meaning woman, who worked hard to make a living, and surely no one ever grudged her the measure of success that she attained.

***

I cannot see that the war has lessened the publication of books. Beyond any doubt it has seriously interfered with their sale, but if the advertisements are any guide, the number of books published this season is, if anything, greater than it usually is. At the same time it is undoubtedly true that the publishers are withholding many books which would have been published had not the war broken out. The enormous annual increase in the number of books published in London must mean that before very long there will be a "slump" in the publishing trade. Publishers will grow tired of sending out novels not 10 per cent. of which pay the cost of manufacture, and the trunk and handbox trade will become overstocked with waste paper.

***

The translator of "Fécondité" has published an explanation of the failure of the book to appear. It had been extensively advertised, but at the last moment it was decided that in the present state of public opinion in England the publication of the translation would result in the prosecution of the publisher. I do not know that the British public has lost much by the absence of the promised translation. The book is certainly worth reading, as is everything that Zola has written, with the exception of certain of his early stories, but I have found it undeniably dull. The subject which Zola has set himself to treat in "Fécondité" may be interesting to the mother of a family, but it is not one in which the average reader can be made to take an interest.

W. L. ALDEN.

The Macmillan Company are publishing four important pieces of fiction. Hamlin Garland's new book, which is intended for the young as well as old, "Boy Life on the Prairie"; "The Drummer's Coat," by J. Fortescue, author of "The Story of a Red Deer"; "The Bravest of them All," by Mrs. Edwin Hohler, and "Nell Gwyn's Diamond," by I. Hooper.

The Week in Art.

An exhibition of the works of Maximilien Luce has just closed at the Durand-Ruel Galleries in Paris. Luce is a painter, who has come into vogue in France, and who has reached his chief success in his paintings of Parisian street and river scenes and of the country around the French capital. The French critic, Pellier, speaks warmly of his work, and calls particular attention to its freshness and clearness of color. Luce is an impressionist, as indeed, are almost all the younger French painters.

An exhibition of the works of Rodin, the French sculptor, is at present being held at The Hague. The initiative for this exhibition was that held last Spring at Brussels, where such works of the master as "Victor Hugo," "Meditation," "Eve," and the busts of Puvis de Chavannes and other notable achievements of the sculptor were shown. At this, as at previous exhibitions of Rodin's work, a young girl, Mlle. Judith Cladel, daughter of Leon Cladel, gives a series of talks on the works of the sculptor, and those who have heard her expressed themselves as charmed with her erudition, sympathy with and appreciation of Rodin's work, and her diction.

The proposed statue of Lafayette, to be erected in Philadelphia, is to show the great Frenchman in his twentieth year standing on the battlefield and consecrating himself to the American cause. His tall, lithe figure stands erect and is full of action and spirit; the shoulders are thrown back. The right hand grasps a drawn sword, his left covering his heart, as if to emphasize those memorable words:

"The feeling of my heart, long before it became my duty, engaged me in the love of the American cause."

The right foot rests on a broken cannon, the left on the ground.

The lines are very graceful and the figure dignified, yet full of virility and enthusiasm and suggestive of spirit and buoyancy, so characteristic of Washington's dearest friend.

The pedestal will be of polished New Hampshire granite and will be tall and graceful, giving the best effects of the French and Italian schools of sculpture, and will have a large bronze medallion of Mme. de Lafayette on its face.

Philadelphia sculptors will be represented at the Paris Exposition by Alexander Stirling Calder, Samuel Murray, and Charles Grafly. Mr. Grafly will have five pieces, two portrait busts and his bronzes, "From Generation to Generation," the "Symbol of Life," and "War." Mr. Calder will send his "Narcissus," and Mr. Murray his portrait bust, which in 1894 won him the gold medal of the Art Club.

The works left by the industrious painter, Adolphe Schreyer, who died recently, are now on exhibition at the Berlin National Gallery.

For three years past Hubert Vos has been engaged in painting a series of types of races of the world for exhibition at the Paris Exposition. When he passed through San Francisco two years ago he had, as a nucleus of his collection, a number of studies of types of European races, besides several American types, including North American Indians of the Chippewa, Sioux, and Pueblo tribes. During the last two years he has been sketching native types in the Orient, and has now between forty and fifty pictures in his collection. His latest paintings are of the Javanese and Soudanese, the two principal Malayan races in Java; Hawaiians, the Sikhs of India, the Gotticks of Afghanistan, Chinese, Chinese Mongolians, Thibetans, and Coreans.

Vos says that his many paintings are all intended to portray correct types of the races they represent. To paint a type and not a portrait has been his aim, and in each case he has found it necessary to study the country and the people before proceeding with his sketch. Then he has made a composite picture, leaving out the marks of individuality that distinguish one native from his brother, but retaining the dominant racial peculiarities of form and visage that establish the character of the race. Vos became an American citizen two years ago and it is his desire to exhibit his collection in the American section of the fine arts display. He married Mrs. Graham, formerly a Hawaiian belle.

Baronne Nathaniel de Rothschild's legacies to the Louvre, Cluny, and Carnavalet Museums, enumerated in her will dated Nov. 25, 1890, did not, says the Figaro, exhaust the generous donor's liberality. In a new will, dated Feb. 14, 1899—a few months, in fact, before her death—she left to the Cluny Museum a relic which, in her eyes, was particularly precious. It is a cross of Saint-Thibaud de Marly, a monk of the Citeaux order, who died in 1247, abbot of that Abbaye des Vaux-de-Cernay, which became the property of Baronne Nathaniel de Rothschild and her favorite resort. In the same will she gave to the Paris Conservatory of Music all her musical instruments and her autographs of Chopin, Rossini, and Cramer.

"Skating Days in Old Holland," by George H. Boughton, R. A., now on exhibition in London, may be highly commended, both for the human incident it conveys and its scholarly manipulation of color. Mr. Boughton is par excellence a colorist, and in this Winter scene he has with inimitable adroitness and erudition brought into a harmonious whole elements which, in other hands, would have been overpowering in the opposite direction. As in other similar performances, Mr. Boughton has happily caught the quaint Old World air of the skaters.

There have been a good many inquiries in England recently as to what has become of the celebrated "Peacock Room" which existed in the house of the late Frederic Leyland at Prince's Gate, London. It was at first said that James McNeill Whistler's remarkable decorations had been destroyed after Mr. Leyland's death, when the house was sold and remodeled. This was afterward denied, and it is probable that the Cordova leather and shutters on which the artist painted his famous peacocks exist in some cellar or attic, and will be destroyed by neglect if not by more direct means. The most astonishing feature of the matter is the report that the person supposed to be responsible—or at least mainly responsible—for the neglect or destruction of perhaps the most famous decorative work of the century is a Royal Academician, James Sant, who married Mr. Leyland's daughter. It would be curious to know whether Mr. Sant and Mr. Whistler ever had any quarrel, professional or otherwise.

It is not generally known that the well-known "Italian Girl at a Fountain," by Leon Bonnat, in the Catharine Lorillard Wolfe gallery at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, was only acquired by the museum after a prolonged, but friendly, struggle. When Miss Wolfe died she left all her pictures to the museum, and all the house fixtures and decorations, with her town house in Madison Square, to David Wolfe Bishop. The Bonnat had been let into a recess in the wall of the dining room, and Mr. Bishop therefore claimed that it was part of the decorations of the room. By mutual agreement William Allen Butler was appointed the umpire to settle the dispute, and rendered his decision in favor of the museum. It was said that the circumstance which had chief weight in deciding the matter in Mr. Butler's mind was that the original frame of the picture had not been destroyed.

Every now and then we hear that the Italian Government has at last decided to make a serious effort to recover some of the treasures of antique art which are known to exist beneath the soil and underneath the rivers of Italy. At one time it is Lake Nemi which is to render up the contents of the pleasure triremes of Tiberius, at another the Tiber which is to be dredged, while recently it was declared that organized search was to be made for the priceless gems and works of art that were buried with Algric. All these reports seem to end in talk, but it appears strange that, in view of the condition of Italian finances, real efforts should not be made to realize on the wealth which only needs to be properly searched for. Every find of importance in recent years seems, with the exception of the objects dug up at Pompeii, to have been the result of accident.

A unique and novel kind of decorative work has made its appearance in several of the art centres this season, and is attracting considerable attention. It consists of a fungus on which are carved out most attractive reliefs. The fungus is gathered from partially decayed oak and sugar maple trees, and has a smooth surface of a delicate cream color, which, when cut into discloses a rich dark brown interior. When the fungus is first taken from the tree it is fresh and moist, but on being kept a proper period of time it becomes as hard and durable as wood. The subject or study stands boldly out in relief, with shades of coloring produced by deft manipulation of the light surface and brown interior. The work requires very delicate handling of the tools, not only to bring out effectively the shading, but to avoid the slightest false move, which would ruin the relief. The work originated with, and is done by, Miss Ida Musselman, a young artist who resides in Johnstown, Penn., and who has already become known through her clever sketches and water colors. The titles of some of her best examples of fungous work are "Paul Revere," "Forgotten," "A Family of Lions," "Pay Toll," "The Parting," and "A Troop of Horses."

A rare occurrence is reported from Liege, Belgium. A lawyer named Forgeur has given, under the orders of some person who desires to remain unknown, to the Burgomaster, M. Leo Gerard, a collection of pictures, many of great value. Among these are examples of Corot, Felicien Rops, Claude Monet, and Raffaelli. An entire gallery in the new Liegus Museum will be set apart for this collection.

The T-Square Club will hold its annual architectural exhibition in the galleries of the Philadelphia Art Club, Dec. 16, 1899, to Jan. 6, 1900. The T-Square Club is one of the societies included in the Architectural League of America. Other societies in the league will hold exhibitions, as follows:

Architectural League of New York, Feb. 3-24, 1900.
Chicago Architectural Club, March 10-31, 1900.
St. Louis Architectural Club, April 7-21, 1900.
Detroit Architectural Club, April 15 to May 12, 1900.
Cleveland Architectural Club, May 13 to June 2, 1900.
Pittsburg Architectural Club, June 9-30, 1900.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

REMINISCENCES
By JULIA WARD HOWE. With many Portraits. Crown 8vo, gilt top, $2.50.

Mrs. Howe's long and unusually rich experience, her wide acquaintance with illustrious persons in America and Europe, and her active interest in the great questions of her time make her "Reminiscences" a book of great interest. It is richly supplied with attractive portraits.

MEMOIRS OF A REVOLUTIONIST
By PRINCE KROPOTKIN. With 3 Photogravure Portraits. Crown 8vo, $2.00.

A book of extraordinary interest. Hardly any man of this generation has had a more varied and adventurous life than Prince Kropotkin, the famous Russian revolutionist. Aside from the fascination of the story, the book is of great value for its views of European social and political conditions.

A CENTURY OF SCIENCE AND OTHER ESSAYS
By JOHN FISKE. Crown 8vo, $2.00.

A book of uncommon value and charm containing papers on: A Century of Science; The Doctrine of Evolution, its Scope and Purport; E. L. Youmans; The Part Played by Infancy in the Evolution of Man; Sir Harry Vane; The Arbitration Treaty; Francis Parkman; Edward Augustus Freeman; Irish Folktales, etc.

HOW MUCH IS LEFT OF THE OLD DOCTRINES?
By WASHINGTON GLADDEN, D. D., author of "Who Wrote the Bible?" etc. 16mo, $1.25.

A book of great value, showing how the doctrines of the Christian Church have been modified by recent thought, yet all that is essential remains unshaken.

CONTEMPORARIES
By THOMAS WENTWORTH HIGGINSON, author of "Cheerful Yesterdays," etc. 12mo, $2.00.

The subjects treated in this delightful volume are: Emerson, Alcott, Theodore Parker, Whittier, Whitman, Lanier, "H. H.," John Holmes, Garrison, Phillips, Sumner, Dr. S. G. Howe, etc.

THE QUEEN'S TWIN, AND OTHER STORIES.
By SARAH ORNE JEWETT. 16mo, $1.25.

This volume contains Miss Jewett's latest short stories, and some of her best. Two of these include scenes and characters connected with her delightful story of "The Country of the Pointed Firs."

IS POLITE SOCIETY POLITE? AND OTHER ESSAYS
By JULIA WARD HOWE. With a Portrait. Square 8vo, $1.50.

A noteworthy volume, containing, in addition to the title essay, papers of great interest and scholarly value, on Greece Revisited, Aristophanes, Dante and Beatrice, The Holiness of Nature, The Salon in America, and Paris.

THE WIFE OF HIS YOUTH, AND OTHER STORIES
By CHARLES W. CHESNUTT, author of "The Conjure Woman." Illustrated. Crown 8vo, $1.50.

"The Conjure Woman" has produced so favorable an impression of Mr. Chesnutt's power and skill as a story-writer that this new volume of his stories will be heartily welcomed. Many readers will recall "The Wife of His Youth" as one of the strongest and most touching tales of the year.

A YOUNG SAVAGE
By BARBARA YECHTON, author of "We Ten," "Derick," etc. 12mo, $1.50.

Juanita Kyle, the "young savage," is transferred from the free, unconventional life of a Colorado ranch to a charming family in New York City, and Miss Yechton tells delightfully how she became "civilized."

ECHOES OF GREEK IDYLS
By LLOYD MIFFLIN, author of "The Slopes of Helicon," and "At the Gates of Song." 12mo, $1.50.

Mr. Mifflin, who has proved his uncommon mastery of the sonnet, here reproduces in English Sonnets many lyrics of three famous Greek poets,—Bion, Moschus, and Bacchylides. He has been remarkably successful, and his sympathetic appreciation of Grecian life and customs adds special grace to this group of sonnets.

Sold by all Booksellers. Sent, postpaid, by
HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO., 11 East 17th St., New York. BOSTON:

To Welcome New Writers

THE highest form of book-publishing achievement is to go out and meet the coming author—to discover and help secure his audience. We venture to predict the greater fame and success of the following new writers whose first books we have had the honor and pleasure of publishing:

BOOTH TARKINGTON OF INDIANA — the author of "A Gentleman from Indiana"; now in its tenth thousand, although published only a few weeks ago; a book which appeals to all lovers of good, clean, interesting American fiction.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE OF KANSAS — author of "The Court of Boyville" and "The Real Issue," the last named being in its fourth printing, and the first in its fifth thousand. Mr. White is certain of the great audience "who know."

WM. R. LIGHTON OF NEBRASKA — author of "Sons of Strength," a romance of the Kansas-Border Wars, which will be much read in the years to come.

EDWIN MARKHAM OF CALIFORNIA — author of "The Man with the Hoe." Now in its tenth thousand, a poet whose influence in the world has only just begun.

SEUMAS MACMANUS OF DONEGAL, IRELAND — author of "Through the Turf Smoke," now in its fifth printing, and "In Chimney Corners," just published.

FRANK NORRIS OF CALIFORNIA — author of "McTeague," now in its fourth printing; "Moran of the Lady Letty," second edition, and "Blix," a charming love story just published.

ALFRED OLLIVANT OF ENGLAND — author of "Bob, Son of Battle," now in its 20th thousand and selling more month by month.

Ask your Bookseller or Librarian about these books by new writers. They deserve to be read and welcomed.

DOUBLEDAY, & McCLURE CO., Publishers.

8TH WEEK
123D THOUSAND

An Illustrated Holiday Edition of

Janice Meredith

has just been issued

Containing 58 full-page drawings by Howard Pyle and his Pupils. 14 Facsimiles and Reproductions from old Prints; and 2 miniatures in color (frontispieces). Gilt top, deckle edges, etc.

Price, $5.00.

DODD, MEAD & CO.
Publishers, New York.

THE HOME MAGAZINE

FOR DECEMBER
WILL CONTAIN

Four Articles of Unusual Interest.

The Truth About the Transvaal.
By the Hon. John S. Seymour, Legal Representative before the State Department of the Americans in the Transvaal. With many illustrations.

Cecil Rhodes the Great.
A pen portrait of the Great Young Man who is making an empire.

Washington's Home and Last Resting Place
A description of Mount Vernon as it is to-day, made timely by the approaching centenary of the First President's Death. With many illustrations.

Two Unpublished Poems by Washington.
Copied from an old note-book used by Washington and now in the Archives of the State Department.

A Sea Story by Cutcliffe Hyne.
"Christmas in the Far South Seas,"
By Louis Becke.

Other timely fiction, poetry, editorial departments, etc. Ask your newsdealer for a copy or send 15 cents to the Manager, Home Magazine, 27-29 West 23d St., New York.

THE KING'S MIRROR

"Mr. Hope has never given more sustained proof of his cleverness than in 'The King's Mirror.' In elegance, delicacy, and tact it ranks with the best of his previous novels, while in the wide range of its portraiture and the subtlety of its analysis it surpasses all his earlier ventures." — London Spectator.

"Animated, gracefully delicate in humor and perfect in taste."—New York Tribune.

"It is subtly done, with a delicacy of touch, felicity of dialogue, and distinction of treatment."—Daily News, London.

"A strong book, charged with close analysis and exquisite irony; a book full of pathos and moral fiber—in short, a book to be read."—Daily Chronicle, London.

12mo. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.50

D. Appleton and Company
Publishers

ANTHONY HOPE'S NEW NOVEL

An Ideal Holiday Gift.

Robert Browning's

Complete Works,

Camberwell Edition.

Edited by Charlotte Porter and Helen A. Clarke. Twelve Pocket Volumes, size 4x6 inches. Cloth, gilt top, per set, $9.00. Limp leather, per set, $15.00. Half calf, per set, $25.00.

Positively the only edition containing the necessary apparatus to understand or even to intelligently enjoy his works.—William Lyon Phelps, Professor of English Literature, Yale.

The ideal edition, and cannot fail to become the favorite one with all readers and students of the poet.—William J. Rolfe.

Is more inclusive and better annotated than any Browning which has yet appeared.—Edmund C. Stedman.

The most attractive and valuable set obtainable of the poet's complete works.—John F. Genung, Professor of Rhetoric, Amherst.

Complete Catalogue, Illustrated Announcement or Educational Catalogue sent free.

T. Y. Crowell & Co.
New York and Boston.

There are no Philanthropists in the BOOK BUSINESS.
They are not in it for pleasure.
They are in it for the ducats.
Patronize the man that has the best assortment.
That man is

HENRY MILLER,
Bookseller and Importer,
122 NASSAU ST.,
Bet. Ann and Beekman.

BOOKS.—All OUT-of-PRINT BOOKS SUPPLIED, no matter on what subject. Write me. I can get you any book ever published. The most expert book finders extant. Please state wants and when in England call and inspect my 20,000 rare books. BAKER'S GREAT BOOKSHOP, Birmingham, England.

The Third Volume of the Bishop Preacher's Autobiography.

In notices similar to that which THE DIAL gave to the first and second volumes of the Autobiography of Charles H. Spurgeon* were fully noticed in Volume III., which covers for us the period covered in between 1856 and 1878. It was in September, 1856, that Spurgeon commenced his third series of sermons at Exeter Hall. Of Sermons Spurgeon writes: "Since I came to London I have seen the last of a former race of Dissenting gentlemen, rather stiff and uncompromising, and quite according to my mind, but respectable, prudent preachers of Dissent, in semi-clerical dress, with white cravats." Spurgeon had too much ability, too much reliance in himself, to be ruled by Deacons. He was master, his Deacons only aides. Spurgeon's church was a live one. He wrote: "I am very thankful that I have never been the pastor of a dead church, controlled by dead Deacons." He tells of having once preached in such a mausoleum. "The singers drawled out a dirge, while the members were like mutes. I found it hard preaching, there was no 'go' in the sermon. I seemed to be driving dead horses." One of Spurgeon's experiences was as follows:

On going into the Tabernacle one day I gave directions about some minor alterations that I wished to have made, not knowing at the time that I was cancelling the orders given by the Deacon who had the main care of the building resting upon him. When he arrived in the evening he saw what had been done, and at once asked who had interfered with his instructions. The reply was, "The Governor, Sir." The spirit of unquestioning loyalty at once asserted itself over any temporary annoyance he may have felt, and he said, "Quite right; there must be only one Captain in a ship," and for a long while that saying became one of our most familiar watchwords. I have often been amazed at the devotion of our brethren. I have told them many a time that if they would follow a broomstick as they have followed me, the work must succeed.

More than once Spurgeon suffered from serious illness, and was often requested by his Deacons to take a necessary rest. For a long time his answer was:

"It is not possible for me to leave my work for any lengthened period until the Lord calls me home, and besides, there is a Scriptural reason why a minister should not be away from his people more than six weeks at a time." "What is that?" they asked. "Why, don't you remember that when Moses was up in the mount with God for forty days, Aaron and the children of Israel turned aside to the worship of the golden calf?"

Perhaps as much as anything else, Mr. Spurgeon's popularity arose from his course of lectures, which, beginning in 1857, were continued up to 1878. One notable lecture was on the "Gorilla." (1861.) Paul du Chaillu's volume had been recently published, and much curiosity had been awakened. On the occasion Mr. Du Chaillu was present. There always are censorious persons, and because Spurgeon occasionally raised a laugh he was found fault with. To one of his critics he replied:

To me a smile is no sin and a laugh no crime. The Saviour, the Man of Sorrows, is an example of morality, but not of misery, for He bore his griefs that we might bear them, but I am not John the Baptist, nor a monk, nor an ascetic, either in theory or practice. Unhallowed mirth I hate, but I can and I do, enjoy my Father's works, and the wonders of creation none the less, but all the more, because I am a Christian. At any rate, I hold my own views upon this point, and during eleven years of ministry I have seen no ill-effect, but very much good, from my preaching, although the charge has been always laid at my door that I sometimes provoke the risible faculties.

During 1867 Mr. Spurgeon attended many religious meetings in various parts of London and delivered a sermon to the costermongers. The attendance on this special occasion was large, consisting of street dealers, and a costermonger paid Mr. Spurgeon the following compliment. As the coster's living depends largely on the sonority of his voice in calling his wares, one of them eulogized the preacher as having a "wonderful," "a stunning voice."

One touching incident has to do with President Garfield. Mr. Spurgeon had preached from a text in Job in 1867. Mrs. Garfield wrote to Mr. Spurgeon after the President's murder:

It is a choice treasure from my storehouse of beautiful memories that I sit beside Gen. Garfield in the Metropolitan Tabernacle one bright Summer Sunday morning (Aug. 4, 1867,) and listened to your voice. I have this morning reread from his journal his account of the day. A sentence from it may interest you. After describing his impression of the great audience, of the preacher, and of the sermon, he adds: "God bless Mr. Spurgeon. He is helping to work out the problem of religious and civil freedom for England in a way that he knows not of."

Nothing explains better Spurgeon's practical good sense than his method of conducting the Pastors' College. Applicants were many. Among them was one thus described:

"Sir," said he, "I was put into a lawyer's office, but I never could bear the confinement, and I could not feel at home in studying law. Providence clearly stopped up my road, for I lost my situation." "And what did you do then?" "Why, Sir, I was induced to open a grocer's shop." "And did you prosper?" "Well, I do not think, Sir, I was ever meant for trade, and the Lord seemed quite to shut up my way there, for I failed and was in great difficulties. Since then I have done a little in a life assurance agency and tried to get up a school, besides selling tea, but my path is hedged up, and something within me makes me feel that I ought to be a minister." "My answer generally is, 'Yes, I see; you have failed in everything else, and therefore you think the Lord has specially endowed you for His service, but I fear you have forgotten that the ministry needs the very best of men, and not those who cannot do anything else.' A man who would succeed as a preacher would probably do right well either as a grocer or a lawyer, or anything else. A really valuable minister would have excelled in any occupation.

*THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF CHARLES H. SPURGEON. Compiled from His Diary, Letters and Records. By his wife and private secretary. Vol. III., 1856-76. Illustrated. Chicago, New York, Toronto: Fleming H. Revell Company. $2.50.

Mr. Leicester's School.*

"Mrs. Leicester's School"—Charles and Mary Lamb's delightful book for children, appears in one of Dent's dainty editions, with charming old-fashioned illustrations in color by Winifred Green, the artist who illustrated the reprint of "Poetry for Children," published last year.

These dainty colored plates, which are all inclosed in a border of fruit or flowers, were lithographed by Messrs. J. S. Virtue & Co. of London, and are very successful, both in design and execution.

The stories, which are delightful, not only in their moral, but above all, in their manner of telling, are ten in number, three of which, "The Witch Aunt," "First Going to Church," and "The Sea Voyage," are by Charles Lamb, the remainder, as well as the introduction, being by his sister.

The book was originally issued by Mary Godwin, The Juvenile Library, 41 Skinner Street, in 1807, and in 1836 Mary Lamb sold the copyright of this book and of "The Tales from Shakespeare," to Baldwin & Craddock for £15.

As is usually the case with books published for children, the copies were quickly read to pieces, and rapidly disappeared, so that when E. D. North's Lamb Bibliography appeared in 1890 there were no records of prices to be found for "Mrs. Leicester's School" in the first edition; but a copy of the second edition, 1809, in the original boards, sold at Sotheby's in 1888, for £16 10s. The Foote copy of this second edition, however, only brought $6 for the reason that several copies of the first edition are now known; a copy selling at Sotheby's in June, 1892, for £28 10s., while the Foote copy—first edition, in full crushed levant, by Stokeman—only fetched $80.

There is something in the very simplicity of the language and the style in which the stories are to be found in "Mrs. Leicester's School" are written which appeals very strongly to older readers; but it might seem that nothing more charming than this book could be put in the hands of girls about twelve years of age.

For those who may happen not to know the scope of this book we may add that the introduction, "Dedication to the Young Ladies at Amwell School," is supposed to be written by a teacher in that school during its first vacation. The school had been newly established, the young ladies on their arrival being not only strangers there, but to each other.

"Traces of tears were on every cheek, and I also was sad, for I, like you, had parted from my friends, and the duties of my profession were new to me. • • • I knew it was my first duty to divert the solitary young strangers. • • • I invited you to draw near a bright fire which blazed in the chimney and looked the only cheerful thing in the room. During our first solemn silence, which you may remember was only broken by my repeated requests that you would make a smaller and still smaller circle, till I saw the fireplace fairly inclosed, the idea came into my mind, which has since been a source of amusement to you in the recollection, and to myself in particular has been of essential benefit, as it enabled me to form a just estimate of the dispositions of you, my young pupils, and assisted me to adapt my plan of future instruction to each individual temper."

The different stories are all most interesting, Elizabeth Villier's tale, "The Sailor Uncle," being perhaps the best, where all are so good. The book is very attractively printed, and is bound in boards, the front cover being decorated with wreath of apple blossoms in the natural colors, inclosing three dear little girls in blue.

Besides full-page illustrations and title page, in color, there are numerous most attractive head and tail pieces in black and white scattered through the volume, the whole being one of the most attractive books of the Autumn output.

*MRS. LEICESTER'S SCHOOL. Written by Charles and Mary Lamb. Illustrated by Winifred Green. London: J. M. Dent & Co. New York: Macmillan & Co. $2.25.

BEATRICE D'ESTE,
Duchess of Milan, 1475-1497.
A STUDY OF THE RENAISSANCE.
By JULIA CARTWRIGHT (Mrs. HENRY ADY). 8vo. Illustrated with four photogravures. $5.00.

Beatrice D'Este, wedded with all Ludovico Sforza (Il Moro), reigned barely six years over the most splendid court of Italy. Nothing connected with the splendor of Northern Italy at the close of the fifteenth century but throws a fresh and attractive light on this beautiful character, and Mrs. Cartwright has made a most attractive book. The book is delightfully written.

WHEN GEORGE III. WAS KING.
A Story of England and the Cornish Coast, by ARYOT SAGON.
12mo, 348 pages. Illustrated. $1.50.

UNDER THE SJAMBOK.
A TALE OF THE TRANSVAAL.
By GEORGE HANSBY RUSSELL.
12mo, 348 pages. $1.50.

The new Transvaal story, "Under the Sjambok" deals with the race question from the English point of view, and the "sjambok," or whip, appears in it with picturesque effect.

THE FIVE WINDOWS OF THE SOUL.
A popular account of the Human Senses. By EDWARD HAMILTON AITKEN. 12mo, gilt top, $2.00.

"There is probably nothing in recent literature which will so surely lead to a thirst for further and more technical knowledge than the author's treatment of these difficult subjects. . . . It is admirably written, and cannot fail to give pleasure."

Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of prices.

E. P. DUTTON & CO.,
PUBLISHERS,
31 West 23d Street, New York.

The Temple Dickens.

We believe that the Temple Dickens, 1,000 sets of which we are making in connection with J. M. DENT & COMPANY of London, bound in limp lamb skin, with illustrations in color, is the most beautiful set of books ever published at a low price.

You can see the books by sending us a postal. You don't have to buy them then if they don't suit, and it will cost you nothing to find this out.

DOUBLEDAY & McCLURE CO.
141-155 E. 25th St. New York

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE SOWERS"

51,000
COPIES HAVE BEEN SOLD OF MERRIMAN'S GREAT NOVEL
YOUNG MISTLEY

12mo Cloth, $1.25 Postpaid.

FOR SALE at all BOOKSTORES
PUBLISHED BY
A. MACKEL & CO. N. Y.

Brentano's

Now exhibit a splendid collection of

Holiday Books,

Sweeping reductions from publishers' prices.

Safe delivery of Books by mail guaranteed throughout the world.

31 Union Square, New York.
Catalogues free.

1899 1906

M. F. MANSFIELD & A. WESSELS

Announce

A new volume of essays by "Iscrafel,"

Ivory Apes and Peacocks.

Small 8vo, gilt top, 274 pages. $1.75 net. Contains (in addition to a number of Indian sketches) papers on Paderewski, Music in India, Tschaikowski, etc.

"A charming bundle of essays."—The Star. "Undeniably clever and interesting."—Glasgow Herald.

Previously issued in the same series:

VERNON BLACKBURN — The Fringe of an Art. With portraits of Gounod, Berlioz, Mozart and Tschaikowski. Quarto, gilt top, $1.75 net.

"One might congratulate Mr. Blackburn on writing a book that is music to read."—The Criterion.

JOHN F. RUNCIMAN—Old Scores and New Readings. Quarto, gilt top, $1.75 net.

"Mr. Runciman has produced what is certainly one of the most readable books of musical criticism that have ever come to our notice."—The Dial.

Send for our Holiday Catalogue.

Of all Booksellers or the Publishers.

1135 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

Rudyard Kipling's story, "The Brushwood Boy," is a uniquely fanciful dream-tale, which many critics consider his finest achievement.

We have just issued a holiday edition of this, with forty drawings, living pages and cover by Orson Lowell, whose artistic work is known to every lover of fine books.

At all booksellers or sent postpaid "on approval" Price $1.50.

DOUBLEDAY & McCLURE CO., 141-155 East 25th St., N. Y.

Brentano's Edition.

THE STANDARD OPERAGLASS

An invaluable Hand-book for Music Lovers

ONE OF CLEOPATRA'S NIGHTS And Other Fantastic Romances by GAUTIER

FOR HOLIDAY GIFTS.

First Editions—"Presentation copies." Autograph Letters—Original Manuscripts of Kipling, Stevenson, Tennyson, Swinburne, Dickens, Thackeray, the Brownings, and other FAVORITE AUTHORS.

A large number, including many rare and expensive items, as well as others of small commercial value, are offered for sale by

ALEX'R DENHAM & CO., (of London,) at 157 Fifth Avenue, NEW YORK.

☞Catalogue ready next week. ☜

GERMAN BOOKS AT BRENTANO'S 31 UNION SQUARE

LITERARY PORTRAITS,

Newly etched, on plates 21 by 14 inches, by Jacques Reich, limited edition, on Japan paper and on parchment.

BRYANT, HOLMES, LOWELL, MRS. STOWE, TENNYSON and WHITTIER.

For description and terms, address the artist, JACQUES REICH, No. 2 W. 14th St., New York.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

"Another Times Reader," Brooklyn, N. Y.: "Miss Ida B. Sprau, who inquired for the poem the first lines of which are—

'Life held in her hand a measure,
And swung it lightly and low,'—

will find it in a little book of poems entitled 'Mimosa Leaves,' by Miss Grace Denio Litchfield, published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. The poem to which she refers is called 'A Mystery.'"

L. N. Thorburn-Arte, 215 West Fifty-first Street, New York City: "In to-day's SATURDAY REVIEW, C. S. Lincoln, 113 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, asks: 'What was the name of the man who had the big silver watch and took delight in seeing the pickpockets try to pull it from his pocket?' It was a gold watch and worth, I'm afraid to say how much, but as much as a watch can be. But the owner of this valuable bit of property is nameless, although Mr. Samuel Weller, Jr., is responsible for his origin, and his history may be found in the twenty-ninth chapter of 'The Pickwick Papers.'"

Dennis Moore, 474 Madison Avenue, Albany, N. Y.: "Has 'A House Boat on the Styx,' by John Kendrick Bangs, ever been dramatized?"

No.

James J. Pearson, 40 Wall Street, New York City: "Sophie E. Minton, Narragansett Pier, R. I., will find the poem with the refrain, 'And the angels all were silent,' under title 'The Self-Exile,' in 'Morals of Evolution,' by Dr. Minot Savage. The authorship is anonymous, but it is alleged to have been found in the notebook of the late James Guthrie, D. D., of Glasgow. If she cannot secure it elsewhere, I will be pleased to forward a copy."

"Brooklyn," Brooklyn, N. Y.: "I have a copy of the New Testament, (Latin,) 1644, with a map of Palestine and ground plan of Jerusalem. Also the 'Confessions of St. Augustine,' (Latin,) 1647. Both are in perfect state of preservation. Kindly state in the SATURDAY REVIEW if they are of any value."

Only the earliest editions of these books are valuable. Those named are not the earliest.

"S. K.," Ithaca, N. Y.: "Can you give me the name and date of the magazine in which 'The Passing of Thomas,' by T. A. Janvier, appeared several years ago?"

Harper's, August, 1892.

Max Cornisky, 277 Sackett St., Brooklyn: "Can you tell me where I can find, in print, Ben King's poem entitled, 'Jane Jones?'"

"Ben King's Verse," edited by Nixon Waterman, Forbes & Co., Chicago. Cloth, $1.25; paper, 25 cents.

D. C. Toal, 599 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn: "In reply to the inquiry of Edward Jay Allen of Braddock Avenue, Pittsburg, I beg to state that the quotations, 'Where peace was tinkling on the shepherd's bell, and singing with the reapers,' will be found in Dr. Bird's play of 'The Gladiator.' It occurs in Act IV., I think."

"M. W. M.," Brooklyn: "I have an old English Prayer Book, printed in London in 1617, in good condition. What is its value?"

Though rare, this edition of the Book of Common Prayer is not very valuable. In England it is worth about £2; here a little less.

"Librarian," Worcester, Mass.: "Can you give me the correct pronunciation of 'Harum' ('David Harum')? We have no Harums here, and can reach central New York easiest through your SATURDAY REVIEW."

Hare-um.

Wanted and to Exchange.

Charles S. Graham, 26 Rutgers Place, New York City: "I would like to dispose of the following mathematical works at a reasonable price: 'Elements of Euclid,' 'Sequel to Euclid,' and a 'Treatise on the Analytical Geometry of the Point, Line, Circle, and Conic Sections,' 564 pages, by John Casey; Todhunter's 'Algebra for Beginners,' Hall & Knight's 'Algebra for Beginners,' Todhunter's 'Algebra for Colleges and Schools,' Hall & Knight's 'Algebra for Colleges and Schools,' Todhunter's 'Mechanics.'"

B. Marlis, 433 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York City: "I would like to dispose of the following: Volumes 1 and 2, Weekly Tribune, in one volume, 1841-1843, first-class condition. New York Journal, morning and evening, from the sinking of the Maine until end of Spanish war. New York Journal Sunday Comic Sheet from commencement to date. NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, from commencement to date. Davenport's Cartoons in Journal, commencement to date, all dated on day of issue. Publishers' Weekly, Volumes 48 to 54. Century Magazine, Volumes 27 to 32. Will exchange for books, or will sell."

Charles B. Sweeny, 20 Exchange Place, New York City: "I have eighty-five posters which I wish to dispose of. Most are magazine and book posters. Three are the original advertisements of 'The Geisha,' (very rare.) These would make a valuable addition to any collector's lot. I would like an offer."

G. Zippel of 1,419 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, New York: "I have a new volume of Graham's revised edition of phonography which I would like to exchange for a rhyming dictionary."

M. Joseph Browne, 314 East One Hundred and Fiftieth Street, New York City: "I will pay cash for any of the following, or, if preferred, have many desirable books which I will exchange for them: 'Mrs. Somerville's Mechanism of the Heavens,' 'Hutton's Mathematical Recreations,' 'Page's Economic Geology,' 'Grant's History of Physical Astronomy,' 'De Morgan's Budget of Paradoxes,' 'Whitworth's Choice and Chance,' 'Architectural Record,' Volume 1, or Nos. 1 and 2 of Volume 1."

Appeals to Readers.

A. J. Phillips, 17 Prospect Street, East Orange, N. J.: "Who is the author of the following lines, and where are they to be found:

'Because the good old rule
Sufficeth them, the simple plan
That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can.'"

Thomas Stephenson, Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn: "I would like to find a poem containing this couplet:

'Whoso seeks truth, albeit he err,
God counts him as a worshipper.'"

Does any reader of THE TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW know where in this country can be seen a copy of Lamsden's "Family of Forbes," (the Aberdeen, Scotland, family,) and, knowing, will he kindly inform the editor? Search has been made for the book in vain in the Astor and Lenox Libraries, which have large collections of family histories.

C. E. Wells, P. O. Box 11, Ulster Park, New York: "Will some kind reader of your delightful SATURDAY REVIEW furnish me with a list of the magazines and papers which publish puzzle and charades?"

W. T. Bunner, West Hampton Road, L. I., New York: "Who was the author of this book: 'A Tour in Holland in 1786. By an American.' Worcester, Mass., printed by Isaiah Thomas, 1790?"

Mrs. C. H. Smith, 40 Perkins Street, New Haven: "In which of Carlyle's works does the following line occur: 'Blessings be upon the head of Cadmus, the Phœnician, or whoever it was that invented books?'"

Joseph L. R. Hays, 227 East Sixtieth Street, New York City: "Where can I find a copy of

OUT TO-DAY.

THE LIGHT OF SCARTHEY.

By EGERTON CASTLE, author of "The Pride of Jennico," "Young April," etc.

Of this stirring romance the author has just written as follows: "Among a writer's literary family is there not one nearer his heart than all the rest—his dream-child? . . . This book is my child."

The story is of one Adrian Landale, a young English nobleman of a hundred years ago—"the days when in Liverpool the privateers were daily fitting out or bringing in the 'prizes' . . . the days of war and the fortunes of war; days of press-gangs, to kidnap unwilling rulers of the waves"; days of "the now rather incomprehensible pursuit of gold-smuggling—a romantic subject, if ever there was one."

"It is not times of now-a-days, no ordinary scenery that would suit such adventures as befell Adrian Landale or Captain Jack, or 'Murthering Moll the Second,'" the chief characters in the story of the loves and life of a light-keeper, "who was once a 'Dreamer of Beautiful Things."

The first edition of this book has already been oversold, and the second edition is now printing.

Size 4¾ by 7½ inches, cloth, 434 pages, $1.50.

For sale by all booksellers or sent postpaid.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY, 5 and 7, East 16th St., New York.

Important New Books

Lessons of the War with Spain

AND OTHER ARTICLES. By Captain A. T. MAHAN, author of "The Interest of America in Sea Power," "The Influence of Sea Power Upon History," etc. Crown 8vo, $2.00.

CONTENTS: Lessons of the War with Spain, 1898; The Peace Conference and the Moral Aspect of War; The Relations of the United States to their New Dependencies; Distinguishing Qualities of Ships of War; Current Fallacies upon Naval Subjects.

Kate Field: A Record

By LILIAN WHITING, author of "The World Beautiful," "After Her Death," etc. With portraits. 12mo, $2.00.

"She knew almost everybody worth knowing in her own generation. She not only knew them, she became a vital episode in the story of their lives."—New York Herald.

Under Three Flags in Cuba

By Captain GEORGE CLARKE MUSGRAVE. Illustrated. 12mo. $2.00.

The author was a correspondent for a prominent English paper, suffered imprisonment in Cuba and narrowly escaped death. Arriving at Cuba with prejudices in favor of Spain, his sympathy was soon aroused for the Cuban patriots, whose sacrifices and heroic deeds he recounts.

The Three Musketeers

By ALEXANDRE DUMAS. With numerous photogravures and etchings, including original pictures by E. Abot, Felix Oudart, Edmund H. Garrett, and other artists, historical portraits, the Dorè statue of d'Artagnan, etc. 2 vols., crown 8vo, cloth wrappers and in cloth box, $3.50.

Three Normandy Inns

By ANNA BOWMAN DODD. Illustrated Holiday Edition. 8vo, white and gold, cloth wrapper and in box, $3.00.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO., Publishers

254 Washington St., Boston.

S. G. RAINS

has just opened at

389 FIFTH AV., COR. 36TH ST.

with a large Imported Stock of OLD, RARE AND MODERN BOOKS, and will have on sale for the Holidays the Newest Publications at DISCOUNT PRICES.

BURTON'S ARABIAN NIGHTS.

An extra illustrated fac simile (unabridged) of the first edition in 16 vols. is being issued for free distribution among its members by THE BURTON SOCIETY.

Cost of Membership, $100. Full particulars on application.

THE BURTON SOCIETY.

81 BARTH BLOCK, DENVER, COLO.

FATHER GOOSE: HIS BOOK.

"Lives there a boy with soul so dead that his pulse does not quicken when he hears stories about real Indians? And girls are just as fond of this subject; they like to learn how their brothers and sisters among the redskins live; how they play, what they eat and wear. A book that will delight young folk beyond any fairy stories that we know is "Indian Child Life," an elaborately pictured work by Edwin Willard Deming and Therese O. Deming. The illustrations are in color and in black and white, the prettiest color, too, not exaggerated as so many Indian pictures are, and the scenes portrayed show one just how a little Indian boy and girl pass their time, what their games are, how they learn to hunt, to weave, (the girls,) to ride, in fact their education from the time they are tiny babies until they grow to manhood and womanhood.

"The text is as delightful in its way as the illustrations. The didactic tone is widely avoided, and in an easy conversational style the writer introduces her little people, and before we know it we have acquired a number of very interesting friends who are the liveliest kind of company. Some things must command our admiration in Indian boys and girls. They are not half the trouble to their parents our children are; indeed, if one were to judge impartially sometimes, candor would compel a person to say that Johnny Jones was far more uncivilized than his little red brother. * * *

"Too extravagant terms cannot be used in describing this exquisite book. It is beautifully printed, and the quality of both illustration and text is of the highest order."—Chicago Evening Post.

Indian Child Life

This consists of 18 stories about Indian children. Each one tells some anecdote, illustrating some phase of their life, describing their customs, their pets, and everything curious and interesting connected with their childhood.

These are illustrated by 18 facsimiles of water-colors, and 25 half-tone engravings after designs in black and white by the author, done in his inimitable style. Size 8½ x 11 inches, boards, $2.00.

Little Red People.

Little Indian Folk.

Each of these books contains just half the illustrations and text in the preceding volume. Size 8½ x 11 inches, boards, $1.25.

For sale by all Booksellers or sent postpaid.

Frederick A. Stokes Company

5 & 7, East 16th St., New York.

CHILD VERSE

Poems Grave and Gay.

By JOHN B. TABB. Price, $1.00.

"The prettiest, gayest trifling with words; brief songs, each concealing a lesson in natural phenomena; verses about animals; lyrics for babies; small homilies on etiquette; two little prayers; three gems collected under the head "The Child at Bethlehem" are gathered in this volume on the cover of which a hare discourses wisely to his brethren and harebells ring out their changes. Like Stevenson's verses, these contain meanings which may not for many a day fully dawn upon the young reader, who is taken by their pleasant sound, but that is a merit. "The Insectarian" and the explanation of the famous Washingtonian remark as a mere device to avoid going to bed, are especially funny."—Boston Transcript.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

Poems (8th edition) $1.00

Lyrics (4th edition) $1.00

For sale at all Bookstores, or by the Publishers.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY BOOK PAGE

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY'S list for holidays of New Illustrated Books, of which still others were described last week. Next week a few of their new books for Young People will follow for the aid of holiday book buyers. Full descriptive circulars of any of the books named will be sent on request.

ASK TO SEE THESE BOOKS AT ANY FIRST-CLASS BOOKSTORE.

Intended to answer the questions of visitors to or readers about the ruins of the ancient city.

By AUGUST MAU

POMPEII.

ITS LIFE AND ART.

Profusely illustrated with half-tones, photogravures, pen-and-ink plans, sections and other drawings.

Translated by FRANCIS W. KELSEY, Professor of Latin in the University of Michigan. Illustrated with ten full-page photogravures and plans, and about 200 half-tone illustrations, drawings and plans in the text. With maps, plans, etc. Cloth, 8vo, gilt, $4.00 net.

The plan of the book falls naturally into several divisions, the first of which recounts the early history of the city, and its destruction. A large portion is devoted to a description of the excavations which have been made, and the various buildings, public and private, which have been uncovered. The volume closes with some account of the life and customs of the inhabitants as exhibited in their surroundings.

LIGHTS AND SHADOWS OF A LONG EPISCOPATE.

Being the reminiscences and recollections of the Right Reverend HENRY BENJAMIN WHIPPLE, Bishop of Minnesota. With a portrait of the author and other illustrations. 8vo. Cloth, gilt top. $5.00.

"Of varied and absorbing interest."
—CHURCHMAN.

"Unconscious, informal, conversational."
—OUTLOOK.

LETTERS FROM JAPAN.

A RECORD OF MODERN LIFE IN THE ISLAND EMPIRE.

By Mrs. HUGH FRASER, author of "Palladia," "The Looms of Time," "A Chapter of Accidents," etc. In two volumes. With over 250 illustrations. 8vo. Cloth extra, gilt tops. $7.50.

"Every one of her letters is a valuable contribution to our knowledge of the Japanese. The illustrations, whether original photographs or reproductions of Japanese art, are as fascinating as the letter-press."—LITERATURE.

"Charming pen pictures . . . diversified by delightful character sketches."
—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

THE LIFE AND WORKS OF ALFRED LORD TENNYSON.

IN TEN VOLUMES.

New edition fully illustrated with portraits, facsimiles, etc. 12mo. Sateen, gilt tops. $20.00. Sold only in sets.

"Uniformly fascinating, so rich in anecdote and marginalia as to hold the attention with the power of a novel."—THE TRIBUNE, New York.

A NEW BOOK BY

CHILD LIFE IN COLONIAL DAYS.

MRS. ALICE MORSE EARLE.

Comments on her Earlier Book:

"Useful and attractive with its profuse and interesting pictures . . . a fascinating volume."
—DIAL.

"The volume is unique; nothing quite like it has ever been attempted before."—MAIL AND EXPRESS.

A COMPANION TO

HOME LIFE IN COLONIAL DAYS.

Profusely illustrated. Cloth, $2.50.

Mrs. Earle has spent years in collecting and verifying the facts of the story, which she retells in a manner vastly entertaining and most instructive, with the fullest illustration, of incomparable value.

Illustrated by photographs. Cloth, $2.50.

To the charm of a delightful narrative Mrs. Earle adds greatly by her distinctive style, at all times clear, sympathetic, and thoroughly enjoyable. The book has been widely read.

THE DESTRUCTION OF ANCIENT ROME

A SKETCH OF THE HISTORY OF THE MONUMENTS.

By RODOLFO LANCIANI, D.C.L., Professor of Ancient Topography in the University of Rome. Fully illustrated. Handbooks of Archæology and Antiquities. 12mo. Cloth. $2.00.

A pleasing narrative embodying the results of his investigations into the fate of the great buildings and art masterpieces of ancient Rome in the Middle Ages and modern times.

THE MOORISH EMPIRE:

A HISTORICAL EPITOME.

By BUDGETT MEAKIN, author of "An Introduction to the Arabic of Morocco," "The Moors," "The Land of the Moors," etc. With 115 illustrations.

8vo. Cloth, gilt. Price $5.00.

"A comprehensive account, unequaled in English at any rate, of a strange people jealous of intrusion by foreigners, yet more and more attracting the gaze of Europe. A useful book."
—TRIBUNE.

AVE ROMA IMMORTALIS

STUDIES FROM THE CHRONICLES OF ROME.

By F. MARION CRAWFORD, author of "Via Crucis," "Corleone," etc. Two Volumes, illustrated with photogravures and pen-and-ink drawings of parts of the ancient city.

Cloth, $6.00 net.

"So original and so available that it must surely take the place of all other books about Rome which are needed to help one to understand its story and its archæology."—Dr. WEIR MITCHELL.

THE BEST NOVELS OF THE MOST FAMOUS AMERICAN NOVELISTS. ILLUSTRATED BY ORSON LOWELL.

SARACINESCA.

By F. MARION CRAWFORD. Sateen, gilt tops, $5.00.

A NEW EDITION IN TWO VOLUMES.

Illustrated by ORSON LOWELL, whose illustrations made "The Choir Invisible" the most widely sold of last year's holiday editions.

"It is by far the most stirring and dramatic of all the author's Italian stories. . . . The plot is a masterly one."—The Times, N. Y.

THE CHOIR INVISIBLE.

By JAMES LANE ALLEN. Cloth, $2.50.

ILLUSTRATED BY ORSON LOWELL.

"One reads the story for the story's sake, and then re-reads the book out of pure delight in its beauty."—HAMILTON W. MABIE in The Outlook.

"An enormous stimulus to all that is highest and best in one's nature."—GEORGE HAMLIN FITCH.

TALES OF LANGUEDOC.

BY SAMUEL JACQUES BRUN. With an introduction by HARRIET W. PRESTON.
Illustrations by ERNEST C. PEIXOTTO. Cloth, $1.50.

DIOMED.

THE LIFE, TRAVELS AND OBSERVATIONS OF A DOG.
By JOHN SERGEANT WISE.
Illustrated by J. LINTON CHAPMAN. $2.00.

STORIES FROM FROISSART.

By HENRY NEWBOLT, author of "Admirals All," "The Island Race," etc.
Illustrated. 12mo. Cloth extra. $1.50.

Full of pen and pencil delights, from the puzzled wee kitten with butterfly wings to the quaint "instructiphone."

THE JINGLE BOOK.

By CAROLYN WELLS. With illustrations by OLIVER HERFORD. Square small 8vo. Cloth extra. $1.00.

No more delightful gift for young people could be imagined than this charming book. Author and artist are so happily in sympathy with each other that the clever drawings seem essential to the verses and each strives to outdo the other in whimsical comicalities.

For those who learn or those who teach the alphabet there are pleasure and help in these taking rhymes.

AMONG ENGLISH HEDGEROWS.

Written and illustrated by CLIFTON JOHNSON. With an introduction by HAMILTON W. MABIE. Crown 8vo. Cloth extra, gilt top. $2.25.

The illustrations cover a remarkable range of subjects, and present a collection of pictures of English rural life of notably high quality; the text and pictures are thoroughly in harmony and afford a most interesting study of characters and scenes in the rural districts of England.

THE GREAT MASTERS OF PAINTING AND SCULPTURE.

BERNARDINO LUINI. By G. C. WILLIAMSON, Litt. D., editor of the series.
Cloth extra, gilt top, $1.75.

VELASQUEZ. By R. A. M. STEVENSON, author of "Peter Paul Rubens," etc.
Cloth extra, gilt top. In press.

Useful handbooks, each of which will contain a large number of representative half-tone illustrations.

SCOTLAND'S RUINED ABBEYS.

By HOWARD CROSBY BUTLER, A. M., sometime Lecturer on Architecture in Princeton University and Fellow of the American School of Classical Studies in Rome. Fully illustrated. Square 8vo. Cloth extra, gilt top. $3.50.

A twofold purpose has produced this valuable work—a desire to supply, in convenient form, an accurate guide to the ruined abbeys of Scotland, and to furnish a trustworthy history of their building and description of architectural features.

For fuller descriptions of these and other of the season's Holiday Books see our Illustrated Christmas Catalogue, which with a special list of selected Books for Boys and Girls, if desired, will be sent without charge on request by

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, 66 Fifth Avenue, New York.

DAILY, ONE CENT. SUNDAY, THREE CENTS.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

E WEATHER.
Fair, w nds becoming fresh r rthwesterly.

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. XLIX...NO. 15,569. NEW YORK, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1899.—TWENTY-EIGHT PAGES. PRICE THREE CENTS.

LONDON STILL TALKS MAINLY OF THE WAR

Britain Determined to Win, Whatever Be the Cost.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN CENSURED

His Attack on France Regarded as Unjustified.

Resignation of Daily Chronicle's Editor Indicates Intolerance of Public Opinion — Another Quarrel Over Turkey Possible.

Special to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The South African war is still our one preoccupation. Foreign politics, imperial visits, confabulations of statesmen and politicians may be said to interest the public only in relation to this great struggle now darkening South Africa.

And the worst of it is that we are getting scarcely any news from the seat of war. Since Gen. Buller went to Natal, indeed, he has closed the sources of information altogether, and it cannot be said that the advance from Cape Colony to the relief of Kimberley is much better reported. Lord Methuen described the battle as one of the fiercest struggles in the annals of the British Army, and the conditions under which it was fought by our troops, who were for ten hours without food or water, appeared to point to a desperate situation instead of a victory.

What was actually accomplished by the battle, whether it is the Modder River which has been crossed, or only its tributary, the Riet; what bridging materials the General commands, how his food supplies are coming forward—on these and many other points the nation is absolutely ignorant, and proportionately anxious. Nobody loses heart or has any fear of the ultimate result, but it is gradually dawning upon the nation that this conflict is the most tremendous we have engaged in since the Indian mutiny. In some respects it is being waged under conditions similar to those that prolonged the struggle against our revolted sepoys and their allies of the native States.

But whatever the sacrifice, there will be no turning back now. The war must be a determined one, carried out to the bitter end. That other division of troops about which I told you is to be hurried off at once, and every man in it will be needed.

***

THE MILITARY PROBLEM.

People sometimes ask why we require such a tremendous army to put down the resistance of perhaps 50,000 burghers, all told. Such queries betray a complete ignorance of the military problem, which is to organize the striking forces in sufficient strength to quell opposition, and at the same time maintain communications over, by one route, more than 1,000 miles, by another more than 250, amid a population growing more and more hostile.

The utmost resources of our military organization will be taxed to accomplish this purpose. In fact, we have already been compelled to depend, in a manner to suggest uncomfortable thoughts, upon our navy, and there is justice in the criticism made that if we are forced to use our sailors to fight our battles on land, how are we going to man the fleet should it be required? The naval brigades at the front have borne the brunt of the artillery fighting, and have suffered in proportion to their numbers more severely than any other branch of the service.

Why was it necessary to send so many sailors up country with their guns? The answer is, I fear, because our field artillery is outclassed by that of the Boers, and this again raises unpleasant reflections. Most of the Boer artillery has been purchased from Continental manufacturers, principally Krupp, but some from the French Hotchkiss Company, and some, it is said, in the United States. Evidently the guns supplied by foreign manufacturers are of excellent quality, and of a range superior to ours, so much so that, had it not been for the opportune arrival of two naval guns, with sailors to work them at Ladysmith, the probability is that Sir George White would have been overwhelmed there.

I must not weary your readers with these details of military criticism, but it is very difficult to get away from them in the present condition of public feeling. We are all hoping for the best, but want very much to be sure of it.

***

INTERNATIONAL QUESTIONS.

Next to the war two questions this week have created a good deal of discussion. One is, What has the German Emperor got through his visit to England? The other, Shall we boycott the French Exposition because of the bestial attacks made by the degraded section of the French press on our Queen?

On the first of these interesting problems no definite light can be thrown. Mr. Chamberlain's claim that the German people and the Anglo-Saxon have been drawn together in something like a political alliance is distinctly repudiated from Germany, and I am assured by Germans in London who are in a position to speak with some certainty that no such thing as an alliance has been discussed or contemplated.

It may, however, be true that some friendly understanding has been come to, securing to Germany our support as against Russia in that Asia Minor railway project, which is to carry a line via Bagdad down to Busra, on the Persian Gulf. Also, in the Far East, it is quite probable that the Emperor consented to support us and the United States in a policy of friendly relations with Japan and the open door in China. But that beyond amiable and benevolent sentiments of this description, and the absence of financial competition for exclusive privileges, we obtained any substantial promise about the Transvaal war is more than doubtful.

***

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE.

My impression is that the German Imperial Government decided from the first not to intervene in the present struggle. Enough bad blood was caused by the Kaiser's telegram to President Krüger at the beginning of 1896, and that blunder will not be repeated. Neither during the war nor when terms of peace come to be discussed will any outside interference be allowed by us. That is the present temper of the British Nation, and the greater the resistance in South Africa the stronger our resolution is likely to become.

Mr. Chamberlain therefore went further than his brief in talking with the enthusiasm he did about an Anglo-German alliance, and the result is sneers from Germany and rebukes here.

Also he made a mistake in his handling of the French people over the insults to the Queen. As a member of the Tory party said to me, "That kind of haranguing is a trifle vulgar, and does us no good abroad; and it is not fair to the present French Government, which is the best and strongest the republic has had for many years, to threaten the nation because of the misdeeds of a few obscene scamps." There is truth in that view, and Lord Rosebery struck the right note in saying we have had too much of this flouting of foreign nations.

***

FRANCE STILL IN PERIL.

France is in a most delicate position, so far as her internal affairs are concerned, and her Government requires the support of every other civilized and progressive Government of the world at the present time to enable it to stem the flood of passion urged to the surface almost every week at some point. This vulgar, contemptible abuse of a venerable lady, whose years and sex alone might have secured her immunity from attack, is merely one of many manifestations of the degraded passions fermenting among large sections of the urban population of France. The lower classes there are hunger-pinched and always steeped in misery, and are therefore an ever-menacing source of danger to the Government.

Were anything to occur, such as the again talked-of boycott by Great Britain of the coming exhibition, to produce an increase in the people's misery, or create financial embarrassment for the Government, it is almost certain that no effective barrier could be placed between all that is worthy of respect in France and the upheaval of the lowest animalism, surcharged with destructive hate.

The words of statesmen ought, therefore, to be well weighed when dealing with any ebullition of the baser side of the French character, and the cordial hand of sympathy be held out to the men now in charge of France's destinies, because they, one and all, are striving to save the country. Look how moderate and sensible M. Delcassé's attitude has been, and remember that we are only a year away from the passions excited over that wretched swamp Fashoda. The Chauvinists of France would only be too pleased to find some way of tormenting Great Britain just now, and of exciting her fears so that we might be compelled to mobilize our fleet or reveal the defenselessness of our islands in the matter of troops for active service. But the Government of the republic says: "No. We will have no hand in embarrassing Britain. The conflict in which she is engaged is her own domestic affair, not ours."

***

FRENCH COMMERCE.

There are even indications of a better temper in the matter of international commerce on the part of this Government. As you doubtless know, Brazil has been threatening France and Italy with retaliatory tariffs sufficient to destroy much of their export trade to her unless she lowers the import duties on coffee. France, we hear, is about to accede to this request, and there is also some probability that the monstrous bounty system by which French beet-root sugar is made a profitable industry may be taken in hand and rendered less noxious.

We should be not at all surprised in a short time to see considerable modifications in the commercial system, brought to its present state of rigor by Méline, whom economists in France have nicknamed "Le Père la Ruine," and not without reason. Possibly a successful exhibition year might do much to modify the temper of France in this respect, and were this the case, in spite of the bitter rivalry in the Far East and France's efforts to open China from the south regardless of other interests, something like co-operation between the republic and other powers might yet become possible.

These are speculations relating to the future, but they arise naturally enough out of the apparently trivial incidents connected with Mr. Chamberlain's utterances this week. He is undeniably a dangerous man to let loose on foreign affairs, because, with all his magnificent gifts and splendid powers of oratory, his mind has never quite shaken itself clear of what might be called "Town Council manners," and he talks to the world as he would address a bench of Aldermen.

***

MR. MASSINGHAM'S RESIGNATION.

A rather painful journalistic incident occurred since I last wrote to you, in the resignation by Henry W. Massingham of the editorship of The Daily Chronicle. While deeply sympathizing with that brilliant journalist, and admiring him for the conscientiousness which impelled him to give up a prominent position rather than conceal his opinions, I think the abuse from some quarters heaped upon the proprietors of the paper, the Messrs. Lloyd, especially by Truth, altogether without justification.

The whole episode is illustrative of the present tyrannical temper of public opinion. Our war press dominates the situation to such an extent in the south of England that any newspaper opposing its attitude runs considerable danger of being allowed to die from neglect. I have no doubt whatever that the determined and pertinacious upholding of the other side of the question by Mr. Massingham and his loyal colleagues was telling upon the circulation of The Daily Chronicle, and that the Messrs. Lloyd, who are men exceptionally humane and considerate, had no choice but to take a step that would abate the passion born of the hostility of the hour. The paper will still be as much an advocate of Liberal principles as ever, but it will no longer sustain the Boer side of the dispute, nor criticise the political action that has led up to this fearful conflict.

I believe no other course was open to the Lloyds, although one cannot help regretting that the trend of popular feeling should be so intolerant as to make the fair statement of views contrary to those which are popular nearly impossible in the London press. The only prominent anti-war daily paper now left in England is The Manchester Guardian.

***

DANGER SIGNALS ABROAD.

Nothing important has occurred this week in Austria, although no truce has been declared between the warring factions.

From Constantinople, however, come stories of the arrest of the members of the Young Turkish Party and of the general routing out of the supposed enemies of the Sultan, which, together with the impecunious condition of his treasury, might reawaken the quarrel over the "Sick Man's" effects.

So, likewise, Russia's Kabul Embassy, and her movement of troops eastward in Siberia, may betoken a design to facilitate aggression in the Orient.

As one notes these symptoms one cannot help feeling what a cauldron of abominations Europe might become were Great Britain to be beaten or permanently crippled in South Africa. A. J. W.

FILIPINO PRAISE OF BRYAN.

Text of the Proclamation Published at Tarlac in the Official Organ of Aguinaldo.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Mail advices from Manila give the following extract from the Filipino proclamation, notable for its references to W. J. Bryan, Rizal, and Aguinaldo, the substance of which was cabled and published some weeks ago. The proclamation was published at Tarlac in La Independencia, the official organ of Aguinaldo, Oct. 28. As translated from the Spanish the preface reads:

"A message of gratitude to the illustrious Democrats of the United States, the true representatives of institutions founded on liberty, proclaimed by the great men of the North American Republic in the meeting, will be celebrated to-morrow in the capital of the Nation, initiated by the sons of that grand liberal association that dominated the country, which interprets very well the sentiments of the people and the desires of the Government, this meeting in the Presidential palace for to-morrow was organized.

"All the preparations that have been going on for the last few days are certainly worthy of the illustrious head of the anti-imperialist party. American by birth, he has been educated in and practiced the teachings of the greatest Presidents of the United States, and for that reason cannot consent that ambition for power shall send to useless and shameful sacrifice the sons of free America, and for that reason has sympathized with President Aguinaldo, whom he recently acclaimed the hero of this century, a follower of the teachings which have immortalized Washington, Monroe, and Jefferson. The historians of the Philippines ought to write in pages of gold the name of this great American, a crusader for justice, for that ideal justice of which Zola spoke in an address to the French youth.

"In this struggle which we sustained with the old sovereignty the sword of freedom was Rizal and the arm which put the idea into execution was Aguinaldo. In the present time Bryan replaces the great martyr. Sublime lessons for the very enemies which they meet with among their own brothers, who are fighting the injustice which they are coming to commit upon a weak people. So what grade of justice—if there be grades of justice—has our cause, when it finds champions, not among foreigners, but among the very soldiers of the great Republic?

"There should be pictured, then, in Filipino history, with the same glory, Rizal, Bryan, and Aguinaldo, glorious trinity of our political redemption, and for a foreigner, who has Anglo-Saxon blood in his veins, to defend our cause, we ought to look upon with the same veneration with which we regard our greatest martyrs and heroes.

"Bryan, American by blood, by ideas, an illustrious son of the Filipinos. Bryan is the clasp that links and unifies two friendly peoples, torn by the same dissensions and deserving of the applause and admiration of the world.

"The American people are not hostile to the Filipinos. The people have all the time been the victims of the lust of the men in power. This war the President of the Republic has said is not one of a people against a people, but of a party against a nation, if weak in force, a giant in heroism, courage and sublime sacrifice. A thousand times there has been shown this friendship that unites the American people with the Filipinos in clubs, assemblies, associations, and meetings; consequently these manifestations which the people are to make to-morrow in honor of Bryan and the party directed by him, representatives of the good sons of the Union, as a debt of gratitude and a duty of friendship.

"God grant that in no distant time we may see fulfilled the aspirations of the two friendly peoples. Meanwhile, let the organizing committee receive our message of congratulations, which faithfully expresses the desires of the Filipino people, on whose coat of arms appears the gratitude to all who, yesterday or to-day, have interested themselves in our cause."

THE BELL TELEPHONE DEAL.

Directors Vote to Turn Over All Assets to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—The Directors of the American Bell Telephone Company have voted to turn over the assets of the company to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This is the first step in the removal of the company from Massachusetts to New York.

The action was taken yesterday, but was not announced until to-day, when President Hudson authorized the following statement:

"The substance of the action of the Directors is that the assets of the American Telephone Company are to be taken over by the long-distance company, (American Telephone and Telegraph Company.)

"It is to be recommended that two shares of long-distance company stock be exchanged for one share of American Bell Telephone Company stock. The balance of $19,000,000 or $20,000,000 of long-distance company stock will be held for the benefit of the long-distance company."

The Bell Telephone people say that they are as yet unprepared to announce the rate of dividends to be paid on the long distance company stock, as well as the exact date when the new plan will become operative. Outside opinion is to the effect that the new stock will carry yearly dividends of 8 per cent. a share.

As a result of the announcement Bell Telephone stock dropped below 350 in the Boston market this morning.

OFFICES TO COME TO NEW YORK.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 2.—Henry S. Hyde of this city, Vice President of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, was interviewed this evening concerning the report that, because of the transferral of American Bell assets to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Bell Company's offices of this State will be removed to New York. As to whether the transferral of assets meant the removal to New York of the offices, Mr. Hyde said:

"I'm afraid it does; and I'm very sorry, too, though the move has nothing to do with the New England Company. The removal means the taking away of a large amount of taxation money, probably between $300,000 and $400,000. There is another effect. It is that the residents of this State who own American (Long Distance) stock will now be obliged to pay taxes on it. Heretofore the company has done this."

Mr. Hyde said he could not say when the offices would be removed, but that he did not expect an immediate change.

HUDSON TELEPHONE COMPANY.

Water Register William H. Peckham of Jersey City announced yesterday that he would resign as a Director of the Hudson Telephone Company. The resignation of Mr. Peckham will enable Col. J. B. Curtis to secure a Director in his place.

Col. Curtis, who is seeking to get control of the company, it is believed, is acting for the Bell Company. The Board has eleven Directors. Directors Henry Vance and Edwin Brooks are acting with Col. Curtis. It is predicted that at the next meeting Col. Curtis will have a majority of the Board.

New York to Cleveland, 14 Hours.
By the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited, 5:30 P. M. New York, 7:45 A. M. Cleveland. Every day in the year. No excess fare.—Adv.

TO REFUND THE NATIONAL DEBT

This Likely to be a Feature of the Senate Currency Bill.

NEW BONDS AT TWO PER CENT.

Substitutes for $635,000,000 Bearing Four and Five Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Republican members of the Senate Committee on Finance met in the room of that committee to-day in accordance with the call of the Chairman, Senator Aldrich, to consider a currency bill to be presented at the approaching session of Congress. There were present Senators Aldrich, Allison, Platt of Connecticut, Wolcott, and Burrows, Mr. Platt of New York being the only absentee.

Secretary Gage appeared before the committee, and was in consultation with the members until after 1 o'clock. He went over the general situation with them, making various recommendations as to the details of the measure to be introduced. One of the points discussed was the advisability of a general refunding of the bonded debt of the country at a lower rate of interest than now prevails. The indications are that a feature of this kind will be incorporated in the Senate bill.

The proposition to refund the outstanding 4 per cent. bonds of 1907 and the 5s of 1904 was gone over at some length. Secretary Gage, it is understood, has had this subject under consideration, and it is learned that his views practically agree with those entertained by the members of the committee. The plan involves at least two amendments to the National Bank act. One is to reduce the circulation tax from 1 to one-half of 1 per cent., and the other to authorize the increase of circulation of National banks up to the par value of bonds deposited.

There are now outstanding of the 5 per cents due in 1904 about $90,000,000, and of the fours due in 1907 about $545,000,000, taking into account those purchased by the Government under the Secretary's recent offer, making a total of $635,000,000, which are payable within the next seven years. The members of the Senate Finance Committee are of the opinion, which is fully shared by the Secretary of the Treasury, that those bonds could be refunded for others running for a long period of time, bearing 2 per cent. interest, and it is believed that a proposition of this kind will be incorporated in the Senate bill before it is introduced.

The members of the committee refused to give out any details concerning the bill which is to be introduced. All other members referred inquirers to Chairman Aldrich, who said that the bill would not be made public until introduced in the Senate. He would only say that the Senate would have an independent measure, not based upon the House bill, and that it probably would be introduced next Wednesday. To this statement he added the remark that the bill probably would not be more satisfactory to the opposition than the House bill.

Speaking of the probability of early consideration of the bill by the Senate, Mr. Aldrich said no decision had yet been reached as to whether the bill would be taken up immediately or the date postponed until after the House should act upon its measure. He was of the opinion, however, that the latter course would be pursued. He thought there would be no filibustering on the part of the opposition to defeat the bill, and that there would therefore be no necessity for a change of the rules. Possibly a month's time would be required to debate the bill, the disposition being to allow ample time, but Mr. Aldrich had no doubt that in the end the bill would be passed.

It can be definitely stated that the Senate measure will make provision for the maintenance of the gold standard. It is also quite definitely understood that the Senate bill will be an entirely different measure from that prepared by the House Republican Caucus Committee. It will necessarily cover much of the same ground, but will differ from the House bill in phraseology and detail and cover some points not included in that measure. These differences will have the effect of requiring a Conference Committee to settle the points as to which the two houses disagree.

MR. QUAY MAY GET HIS SEAT.

Indications that Republicans in the Senate Will Not Be Governed by Precedents.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—M. S. Quay may be seated, eventually, as a member of the Senate, but it is evident that he will not get in without a struggle. Until a vote is taken on his case it will be difficult to ascertain his exact strength, but it is not difficult to ascertain that Mr. Quay has a certain standing with his Republican colleagues that creates the impression that the Senate will not be governed altogether by its own precedents in determining his case.

Mr. Corbett of Oregon was unable to obtain a seat under conditions like those of Mr. Quay's coming to the body. Mr. Quay, however, passes among Senators for a sort of "good fellow." His political obliquities are not regarded, so far as may be learned, as offenses in the eyes of the Senate. As for his moral delinquencies, his admirers say they have not been proved, and they will not set themselves above the courts.

The Democratic view, which is, political purely, is that it is not necessary to go further than to learn that Mr. Quay is not a Democrat to be justified in keeping him out of the Senate, if possible. Col. J. M. Guffey of Pennsylvania, who brought here a protest signed by the Democrats in the Pennsylvania Legislature and by the Democratic State Committee against the seating of Mr. Quay as the appointee of Gov. Stone, did not wait to have his protest introduced in the Senate as a public paper, but took it to Senator J. K. Jones, who is to see that it gets before the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Senate, this announcement indicating that good-fellowship will not prevent the Democrats from helping the anti-Quay Republicans of Pennsylvania who desire to keep Mr. Quay at home.

The direction of the case by Senator Jones is taken as an indication that the Democratic Party intends to make an issue out of the Quay case. The Democrats are apprehensive that to reverse the custom of the Senate would be to provoke imitators of Mr. Quay to similar tactics to prevent the election of others and to elect themselves. The prospect is that the debates on the case may take a long time after the report on the matter has been made, and that a vote may no be reached in many weeks.

PETITION AGAINST MR. CLARK.

His Opponents in Montana at Work to Bar Him from the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 2.—A petition will be presented to the United States Senate next Monday protesting against W. A. Clark of Butte being permitted to occupy a seat in that body, on the ground that his election was brought about by means of bribery and corruption. The petition has been in circulation throughout the State for two weeks.

As soon as it was seen that a decision in the Wellcome disbarment case could not be had until after the convening of Congress, J. H. Durston, editor of The Anaconda Standard, Marcus Daly's personal organ; Congressman Campbell, and Attorney General Nolan are said to have adopted this method of questioning Clark's title to the seat. Gov. Smith, State Treasurer Collins, State Auditor Poindexter, Congressman Campbell, ex-Congressman Harman, and Speaker Stiff are among the signers of the protest, which contains a long recital of the improper use of money alleged to have been instrumental in securing his election.

It is rumored here that should this method fail, Daly has still another plan to prevent Clark being seated.

STEWART MAY LOSE SEAT.

Circumstances Attending the Trial of Election Law Cases Believed to Indicate a Contest.

Circumstances attending the trial of George T. Sullivan before Justice Werner on an indictment charging a violation of the election laws in the Nineteenth Assembly District of New York County are construed as indicating an intention to contest the right of Perez M. Stewart to fill the seat occupied by Robert Mazet at the last session of the Legislature. While John Proctor Clarke is not an attorney of record in the case, he has been in attendance, and furnished Deputy Attorney General W. M. Rogers with questions to ask those summoned for jury duty.

Frank Hart has already pleaded guilty to violation of the election laws in the Nineteenth District, and it is admitted that he has made certain confessions. It is also claimed that Charles Moon, a "barker" at McGurk's place, has made damaging admissions. He is said to be one of the men who arranged for colonization.

It is not claimed that the Republican organization will seat Mr. Mazet, but it will institute a contest for Mr. Stewart's seat for the purpose of getting on record proof that Mr. Mazet was not fairly beaten. It is intimated that this will not be difficult, as the Assembly Committee on Privileges and Elections will have a good working Republican majority.

TRAGEDY REVEALS A ROMANCE.

Trolley Car Conductor Killed While at Work Came to the City Full of High Ambitions.

It was just an ordinary fatal accident, such as might occur any day in any great city, which the newspapers would dismiss in a paragraph, if they devoted any space to it at all. The victim was a street-car conductor. He was entered in the books of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company as William J. Davis, but was better known to the company officials and his colleagues as No. 2100. Yet the tragedy brought to an end one of those romances that are common enough in the varied life of the metropolis, but one perforce brought to the cognizance of the work-engrossed or pleasure-seeking multitude only occasionally—by chance or by a tragedy.

The accident occurred Friday evening. The Sixth Avenue double car, to which Davis was attached, was swinging out of Sixth Avenue into Fifty-ninth Street, on its way to Amsterdam Avenue. The conductor was on the footboard of the open section, collecting and giving transfers. Rumbling eastward and very close to the car track was a heavy delivery wagon owned by Nathan Huget, glass dealer, of 109 Wooster Street. The hapless conductor was caught and crushed between the two vehicles. There was a delay until an ambulance arrived and whisked the injured and unconscious man to Roosevelt Hospital and a policeman had entered in his memorandum book the names of victim, motorman, wagon, and witnesses (in case they might be wanted.) Then the wagon rumbled on again, the car, and the string of cars filled with impatient passengers behind it, proceeded on their way uptown, the corner resumed its wonted appearance, and few people knew what had happened. Davis succumbed to his injuries yesterday morning.

Davis was a young man, and lived at the Exchange Hotel, 1,612 Broadway, where he took up his residence a month ago. The proprietor of the hotel, Bernard Brennan, paid little attention to him at first, but one night he heard the sound of a violin in the new-comer's room, and, being a lover of music himself, began to take an interest in his lodger. The young man appeared to appreciate the attention, and from passing the time o' day gradually became communicative to the point of confiding to Mr. Brennan scraps of his history, which, pieced together, tell an interesting story.

Young Davis was a native of West Bangor, Penn., where, with his brothers, he owned a farm and dairy known as the Mount Pleasant Dairy. A year ago their father died, bequeathing the property to them. William Davis had never taken kindly to work upon the farm. He aspired to higher things than cleaning out the cow-shed and marketing the milk. He was passionately fond of music, and his tastes impelled him toward the greater refinement and activity of city life.

He chafed under parental restraint, and when his father died came to New York, full of high hopes and ambitions that were destined never to be realized. The stern realities of the struggle for existence in New York speedily aroused him from his day dreams. After exploring the streets wearily and vainly in search of the position that was to bring him fame and fortune he was soon glad to thread them on a car in the capacity of a conductor and lose his personality in a number.

In his spare moments he sought solace in the music of his violin, but this, which had once impelled him to leave the farm, now only added to his homesickness, and, besides, there was another tender reason which ever carried his thoughts back to West Bangor. At least so he hinted to his sympathetic landlord.

He had about concluded to give up struggling against the stream in the bewildering tide of New York and return to the quieter life of his native place when death summoned him to set out on the final journey that all must make.

HAWAII TO BE A TERRITORY.

Senator Cullom Announces the Administration Programme.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Tribune to-morrow will say:

"The first legislation inaugurated in the Senate at the coming session of Congress will be that concerning Hawaii. Senator Cullom, Chairman of the Hawaiian Commission, is authority for this statement. It may also be stated positively that he speaks with the approval of President McKinley.

"Congressman Henderson, the next Speaker of the House, is in thorough accord with Senator Cullom in this matter.

"In other words, what Senator Cullom states is the Administration programme, and it is assured that the launching of Hawaii as a territory of the United States will be accomplished as soon as the proper legislation can be enacted."

ACCUSED OF STEALING A HORSE.

A Former Wall Street Broker Arrested by Mistake.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 2.—Joseph Burtis Husted, formerly a Wall Street broker and once owner of the present country home of William Rockefeller, Jr., who resides in Greenwich, went to Stamford today, taking with him a horse and carriage belonging to his brother-in-law, T. F. Secor, of Brooklyn. He had been authorized to sell the same, and while watering the horse at the city trough saw what he thought was a prospective customer.

He offered the rig for $75 and then $65. This caused the man's suspicions to be aroused, and he notified Chief of Police Bowman. Mr. Husted was locked up on suspicion of being a horse thief, but was released to-night.

He intends to bring suit for false arrest. He sold the rig later to Frank E. Provost for $50. His release was secured only after he had referred the officials to State's Attorney Fessenden and Mr. Rockefeller.

Otto Huber's Golden Rod
the world's perfection in brewing and bottling.—Adv.

RICHARD MANSFIELD GIVES UP.

Actor Unable to Finish His Performance of "Cyrano"—His Manager Blames the Steam Pipes.

Richard Mansfield, who has been playing at the Garden Theatre in "Cyrano de Bergerac," was unable to finish his performance last night owing to an attack of nervousness, and the curtain was rung down in the first scene of the last act. Mr. Mansfield, who was immediately taken to his residence, 316 Riverside Drive, it was said by A. M. Palmer, his manager, is not in a serious condition.

Mr. Mansfield does not appear in the first scene of the last act, but while the actors on the stage were going through their parts the curtain was suddenly rung down, to their surprise. Immediately an employe of the house came before the curtain and announced to the audience that, owing to an attack of nervousness, Mr. Mansfield would be unable to continue the performance. The audience then left the theatre.

Mr. Palmer said early this morning at Mr. Mansfield's home that Mr. Mansfield had to stop his performance on account of noise in the steam pipes of the building. The building, Mr. Palmer said, was being heated for the bicycle races in the Garden, and the steam rushing into the cold pipes made such a clatter that Mr. Mansfield could not hear his own voice. His company could not hear him, and this made him very nervous.

As the noise could not be stopped, Mr. Palmer said Mr. Mansfield decided that he would have to close the performance. Mr. Palmer did not say whether or not Mr. Mansfield will go on with the play to-morrow night. He said there was no doctor in attendance upon Mr. Mansfield.

E. WILLARD ROBY HURT.

Well-Known Polo Player Thrown While Following the Meadow Brook Hounds.

HEMSTEAD, L. I., Dec. 2.—E. Willard Roby, a lawyer and well-known polo player and clubman, was badly injured while following the hounds over the Meadow Brook Hunt Club course to-day. Just before reaching the check Mr. Roby's horse fell, pinning its rider down.

Mr. Roby was picked up unconscious and taken to his home in the carriage of his sister, Mrs. E. T. Cushman. Dr. John Mann attended the injured man.

The physician refused to say how badly Mr. Roby was injured. He said, however, that his patient was suffering from internal injuries. Mr. Roby is single, forty-five years old.

Mr. Roby has an office at 55 Liberty Street, and his town address is 36 West Twenty-first Street. He is a member of the Union, Racquet, and Harvard Clubs, and also of the Bar Association.

MR. HANNA RESENTS REPORTS.

None Authorized to Speak on National Chairmanship Question—His Visit to Senator Depew.

"No one in this world is authorized to speak for me," said Senator M. A. Hanna to a TIMES reporter yesterday.

That was the opening remark that the Senator from Ohio made to a reporter at the Waldorf-Astoria when he asked him for a definite answer concerning the persistent reports in circulation that he was to retire from the Chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

"I think," the Senator continued, "that I am fully competent to talk for myself concerning my actions, past, present, or future.

"I have told nobody that I wanted to retire from the Chairmanship of the National Committee. Nor have I informed anybody that I desired to remain in the position. I see that, according to one report, I am to be 'bounced.'"

Then the Senator laughed heartily.

"It is," he added, "a very delicate question to discuss, but I can't stop the papers from printing whatever they see fit to print. But I have never said anything at any time to any one that would warrant the reports in circulation. I am still Chairman of the Republican National Committee, my term will not expire for some time to come, and you will pardon me for saying that I cannot discuss what may occur when my term is at an end.

"There won't be much to do in the next campaign. There will be no National ticket. By that I mean there will be no Palmer and Buckner electors in the field, and Mr. McKinley's victory will be more pronounced than it was in 1896.

"I am quite content with the outlook. There is prosperity everywhere, and I do not believe the people of this country will vote to change existing conditions. I have too much faith in their intelligence. I am going to Washington to-morrow, and I think the coming session of Congress will enact much legislation that will operate to the benefit of the people at large."

Senator Chauncey M. Depew received yesterday a visit from Senator Hanna, and they talked for half an hour. Senator Depew said that the call was a social one, and announced that in the afternoon he would go to Washington. "I go," he said, "to look over the ground before the assembling of Congress, and I shall be going back and forth frequently until then."

ROCKEFELLER'S ASSESSMENT CUT

Judge Barnard Signs an Order to That Effect.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Dec. 2.—This morning Judge Barnard heard the arguments of counsel in a certiorari proceeding instituted by Mr. Rockefeller on an application to reduce the 1899 assessment on his property at Tarrytown to the amount fixed by the court under the 1897 assessment. The Assessors of the town of Mount Pleasant raised the valuation $55,917.50 over that fixed by the Supreme Court, but when legal proceedings were commenced they made no opposition and were not represented before the court to-day.

Judge Barnard signed an order directing the Assessors to reduce the assessment on several different parcels so that the total assessment will amount to the valuation fixed by W. E. Poysradt as referee, at about $398,000.

ALABAMA COAL LANDS SOLD.

State University Parts with a Big Tract for $56,000.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 2.—To-day a deed was filed in the Probate Office conveying 3,440 acres of the coal land of the State University to the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company for $56,000. The deed bears date of Nov. 1, and is signed by Gov. Johnston as President of the Board of Trustees of the university, and Robert Robinson secretary.

The price was paid in cash. Attached to the deed is a copy of the resolution adopted at the meeting of the Board of Trustees in September, ordering the sale. It is this deal which has brought forth so much criticism on Gov. Johnston and caused the alumni of the State University to start an investigation of the transaction. The opponents of the Governor allege that the price obtained was too low and that the lands could have been leased to a greater profit than sold. There is talk of contesting the sale on the ground of irregularity, but this has taken no definite shape.

Pleasure-Giving Thoughts of Ale suggest, the best, which, of course, is Evans'.—Adv.

THE NAVY SUCCUMBS TO ARMY'S PROWESS

West Point Defeats Annapolis on the Football Field.

OFFICIALS SEE THE GAME

Mr Long Congratulates Mr. Root on the Good Work of "His Boys."

Soldiers Do Much the Better Playing and Get 17 Points to Their Opponents' 5—27,000 People in Attendance.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2. — The army which ed the navy on Franklin Field this afternoon in a hard-fought football battle by the score of 17 to 5. The result of the contest was somewhat of a surprise not only because the West Point cadets were victorious, but because they won by such a wide margin. The Annapolis cadets before the game were looked upon as winners because of their good work throughout the season, and the defeat was a bitter dose for the sailors to swallow.

The soldiers won because they played better football. They were masters of the situation all through the game, with the exception of the last few moments of the contest, when the navy by a mighty effort managed to score a touch-down.

The game was the most notable ever played in this city. It seemed as if every army and navy officer in the Government service was present. The President's Cabinet was represented by Secretary of War Root and Secretary of the Navy Long. The Cabinet officers received a great ovation when they entered the grounds. Secretary Root and his party occupied a box on the army's side of the field, while Secretary Long watched the game from the grand stand on the opposite side.

Between the halves, Secretary Long was greeted across the field and congratulated Secretary Root on the good work done by "his boys." This little incident started a great hurrah, in which the yells of the West Point and Annapolis cadets were mixed up with the long, loud roar of the Pennsylvania students who were massed on the grand stand.

OFFICERS IN THE STANDS.

The weather was beautiful, and the scene was a memorable one. Every seat was occupied, and every aisle was jammed with enthusiastic spectators. Over 27,000 persons saw the contest. Banked on the south stand were the followers of the army, and it was thick with the black, gold, and gray of West Point. Their mascot, a donkey bedecked in the three colors, was constantly paraded up and down in front of the stand, and caused much merriment. The navy was well represented. There were Generals, Colonels, Lieutenant Colonels, Majors, Captains, Lieutenants, and privates scattered all through the crowd.

On the north stand the navy had its headquarters, and this stand also was covered with the colors of the Naval Academy, blue and gold. Among those who were seated in the crowd were Assistant Secretary of the Navy Allen, Rear Admirals Bell, McNair, and Rodgers; "Fighting Bob" Evans, Col. F. L. Denny of the Marine Corps, Lieut. Sidney A. Staunton, who was Rear Admiral Sampson's Flag Lieutenant at Santiago; Lieut. Charles Plunkett, son of Ex-Governor Voorhees of New Jersey, and Mayor Wanamaker of this city.

There were many other officers of both branches of the service in the crowd. Society, too, turned out in full force, and fair women in rich dress, adorned with the colors of their favored eleven, added to the gaiety of the scene.

The two academies had their brass bands with them, and there was no end of music during the contest.

FIRST GAME IN SIX YEARS.

The two elevens came on the field soon after 2 o'clock, and after the usual formalities began playing. It was soon seen that the game would be a stubborn one. The representatives of the army and the navy had not met in six years, and this had a great deal to do with the fierceness of the game. The soldiers made one touch-down in the first half. They secured the ball on the navy's 45 on their own forty-three-yard line, by a fine exhibition of line bucking gradually carried it to and over the sailors' goal line.

Every time as they would, the middies could not get them, almost every attempt netting from one to eight yards for the soldiers. In the second half the West Point team made their touch-downs by simply pegging away at the Annapolis line, carrying the ball a little more than half the length of the field.

The soldiers seldom attempted an end play, because they easily made their gains by solid line plunging. Clark, for the soldiers, did brilliant work, both at line bucking and whenever he was given the ball for a spin around the ends.

Annapolis's only touch-down was in the first few minutes of play, and was made on the hardest kind of work. They got the ball on off-side play on the army's forty-five-yard line, and by steady plunging carried it fifteen yards, where it was held on downs. The pigskin, however, was immediately regained on off-side play, and then the middies took it over the soldiers' goal by good bucking.

The soldiers were almost wild over their victory and started in to celebrate it. They paraded the streets and wound up at the Hotel Walton, where their heroes were being while in the city.

The entire corps of cadets left to-night for their respective academies.

HOW THE GAME WAS PLAYED.

Aknap kicked off for the navy at 2:18 o'clock. West Point ran the ball back five yards, and Clark took it around the navy's left end for twenty-five yards. Line plunges brought the ball to the middies' fifty-yard line, where they got it on downs.. They made ten yards on two scrimmages, and were awed this with five yards more. They then the ball on downs on the soldiers' forty-three yard line.

West Point then bucked the line for four and three yards and five more around Annapolis's left end, taking the ball to mid-field. Clark, for West Point, made another gain, and followed this with eight around the middies' right end. This brought the ball to the middies' forty-yard line.

THROUGH THE NAVY'S LINE.

On the other charge by the Soldiers, and the play was on the thirty-five-yard mark, and in two more plays the West Pointers took the ball to the thirty-yard line.

The soldiers kept up their good work against the sailors' line and gradually pushed the pigskin toward the Annapolis goal. Clark was being used with good effect. The soldiers in a short time had the ball on the middies' five-yard line.

The navy made a brave stand, but could not hold the soldiers, and Cassad was pushed over the line for a touch-down. Bentley kicked the ning. West Point here got the ball on a fumble by Wade.

Clark then made eight yards around the navy's left end. A plunge through centre netted five more, and then West Point took it to their own fifty-one-yard line, where Annapolis got it on downs.

Wade made eight yards around West Point's right end. Three line plunges and the ball was on West Point's thirty-five-yard line. Then Wade ran through West Point's line for ten yards, and five more were made on an end play, the ball resting on West Point's thirteen-yard line. The army made a stand, got the ball on downs on their own ten-yard line, and Jackson kicked to his own forty-five-yard line.

A delayed pass failed to gain, and a quarter back kick netted the navy four yards. Fowler made five through the army's line, bringing the ball to the soldiers' thirty-four-yard line.

The navy lost the ball on downs on the army's thirty-seven-yard line, and Jackson kicked to the navy's thirty-yard line. A fake kick netted the navy five yards, and then Wade punted to the army's thirty-nine-yard line. Jackson punted to the navy's twenty-eight-yard line, where the half ended at 3:17 o'clock. Score: West Point, 6; Annapolis, 0.

THE SECOND HALF.

Annapolis ran West Point's kick-off back to the forty-yard line, where West Point got the ball on a quarter back kick, and Jackson punted to navy's eighteen-yard line. Wade returned the punt to the army's fifty-two-yard line.

Jackson then kicked to the navy's thirty-eight-yard line, and the sailors returned the punt to the soldiers' twenty-nine-yard mark. The army tried the centre for three yards, and Jackson was forced to kick the ball, being downed on the navy's thirty-seven-yard line.

The sailors made five yards through the line, and then Wade kicked to the army's ten-yard line, and Wesson made ten yards by pretty dodging.

Jackson then kicked to his own fifty-two-yard line, Osterhaus being hurt in the scrimmage, but remaining in the game. Two scrimmages failed to gain, and Wade kicked to the army's twenty-yard line. Clark made his distance, and then he went around the navy's right end for ten yards. A centre plunge netted the army five more, the ball being down on the army's forty-two-yard line.

ARMY SCORES AGAIN.

Line bucking added four yards, and then Clark took the ball to the fifty-yard line. Two more plunges, and the ball was in midfield. The army continued to buck the navy's line and gained on every attempt. They carried the ball to the navy's forty-four-yard line, and then held a conference.

The result was that they made six yards on one scrimmage. The army was given five yards for off-side play, and then the soldiers made four more, the ball being downed on the sailors' twenty-six-yard line. Then Clark went around Annapolis's right end to the sailors' twelve-yard line. On the next play both teams came together, and when the ball was down it was on the sailors' two-yard line.

Another play and the ball was within a foot of the line and on the next scrimmage Rockwell, who succeeded Cassad, took it over for the second touch-down. Bettison kicked the goal. Score—West Point, 12; Annapolis, 0.

GAINS BY PLUNGES.

The navy kicked off to the army's thirty-yard line, and then Clark took the ball to midfield around the navy's left end. Two plunges took the ball ten yards, and on the next play the ball was downed on the navy's thirty-eight-yard line. Clark bucked for three yards. The army then made eight yards more on two plunges.

The army's right half back followed this up with a good plunge through the navy, bringing the ball to the sailors' sixteen-yard line. Jackson was pushed along for five more. The soldiers kept up their great exhibition of line bucking, and took the ball steadily toward the goal line until they rammed it over for their third touch-down. Bettison failed to kick goal. Score—West Point, 17; Annapolis, 0.

Annapolis kicked off to the army's ten-yard line, and immediately thereafter was penalized ten yards for off-side play. Two plunges gained eight yards. Jackson kicked to his own fifty-yard line, and the army was penalized fifteen yards for a foul tackle on a fair catch, and Annapolis was given a free kick, which resulted in a touch-back.

NAVY TRIES ARMY'S TRICKS.

Jackson kicked out to the army's fifty-yard line, and the punt was returned to the army's sixteen-yard mark.

The army carried the ball on plunges to the r own twenty-five-yard line, where Annapolis got the ball for off-side play. The navy here braced up and did a little line bucking on its own account. They made ten yards by this style of play and received five more for off side. They, however, lost the ball on downs on the ten-yard line, but immediately regained it for off-side play. Three scrimmages, and the sailors had the ball on the soldiers' five-yard line. Another plunge netted two yards, and on the next play the sailors took it over the line for their first touch-down. The goal was missed. Score: West Point, 17; Annapolis, 5.

West Point kicked off to Annapolis's five-yard line and the sailors ran it back twenty yards. Osterhaus made eighteen yards around the army's left end. The game ended with the ball in Annapolis's possession on their own forty-five-yard line.

THE LINE UP.

West Point.	Positions.	Annapolis.
Smith (Capt.)	Left end	Long, Read
Farnsworth, Enis.	Left tackle	Wortman, (Capt.)
Hopkins	Left guard	Halligan
Bettison	Centre	Adams
Boyers	Right guard	Belknap, Fremont
Bunker, Nelly	Right tackle	Nichols, Williams
Burnett, Zeel	Right end	Berrien, Weaver
Wesson	Quarter back	Osterhaus
Cassad	Left half back	Fowler, Freyer
Clark, Rockwell	Right half back	Gannon, Lund
Jackson	Full back	Wade

Score—West Point, 17; Annapolis, 5. Touchdowns—Rockwell, 2; Jackson, 1; Wade, 1. Goals from touch-downs—Bettison, 2. Missed goals from touch-downs, Bettison, 1; Wortman, 1. Referee—Edgar Wrightington, Harvard. Umpire—R. D. Wren, Harvard. Timekeeper—Bert Waters, Harvard. Linemen—John C. Bell, University of Pennsylvania, and J. Hallowell, Harvard. Time of halves, 35 minutes.

DEFEAT ASTOUNDS ANNAPOLIS.

Decorations Bought for Last Night Will Be Laid Away.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Dec. 2.—The news of the decided defeat of Annapolis by West Point was received with astonishment by those who remained in Annapolis. At different stages of the game, the score was telegraphed and bulletined at the different offices. All but a very few were confident that Annapolis would win by a large score, and as the successive scores were made, the crowd was astonished beyond measure.

Nevertheless, the sentiment is sympathy for the team and confidence that they did their best. The fact that Annapolis scored is something of consolation, and also that Smith, the Captain of West Point, is a Marylander and an alumni of St. Johns.

The first section of the special train with the team and their friends reached Annapolis at 10:35 o'clock to-night. They were met by a crowd of the faithful, who wished to know how it happened. The only account given was that West Point developed a surprisingly strong game. Other sections arrived at a later hour. Thousands of yards of bunting had been provided for decorations, but will be laid away for some other year.

Result Pleases Army Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The halls and offices of the War and Navy Departments were well nigh deserted to-day, almost everybody who could get away having gone to Philadelphia to see the Annapolis cadets whitewash the West Point cadets. Confidence on the part of the navy people was strong until the receipt of a dispatch in the middle of the afternoon that West Pointers had made a touch-down and a goal and had not permitted Annapolis to score.

The second half was not finished before the close of business, so that the dejection of the navy is in the way of being hidden behind Sunday. Somehow the notion that the West Point men were not quite up to the Annapolis boys had gained ground even in the War Department, and the army officers here are crowing lustily to-night.

$50,000 for Teachers' Pensions.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology announces a recent gift of $50,000 from Augustus Lowell, a member of its Executive Committee. This is to serve as the nucleus of a fund, the income of which shall be used for the benefit of the teaching staff of the institute in cases of illness, death, or retirement. The donor has left the door open for others to associate themselves with him by requesting that the fund shall have no personal designation.

"Saying and Doing Are Two Things."

It is not what we say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does that tells the story of its merit. Its great record of cures of all forms of blood diseases, including scrofula, rheumatism, dyspepsia, catarrh, prove its power to cure you also. You may be sure Hood's Sarsaparilla will do you good.

The Blood—"A grand blood purifier is Hood's Sarsaparilla. This and Hood's Pills have greatly benefited me." Mrs. F. G. Smith, Cleburne, Tex.

Impure Blood—"I am pleased to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as a tonic and blood medicine." Miss Nellie Hilenbrant, Rochester, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

TRANSCONTINENTAL RATE WAR.

Rio Grande and Rock Island Lines Threaten to Fight Southern Pacific and Santa Fe.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The Tribune to-morrow will say:

Representatives of the Rio Grande Western, the Denver and Rio Grande, and the Rock Island have been in conference for several days discussing ways and means to fight what they declare is a secret agreement on the part of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fé to control Pacific Coast business. It is said that the hottest transcontinental rate war that ever has been waged probably will result from the conference.

"The Southern Pacific and Santa Fe traffic officials held a meeting in Salt Lake City last September, and it has leaked out that they came to an understanding by which they expect to divide coast and San Francisco business," said one of the men who attended the conference to-day. "It all resulted from the Santa Fé gaining an entrance into San Francisco, and it means, if carried out, that the competition that city expected will not follow. It works also to the injury of the lines that propose to fight the agreement.

"It is understood that the Southern Pacific agreed to take off its 'Sunset limited' in order to give the Santa Fe a clear field in first-class travel to Southern California. Large concessions have been made by the Southern Pacific to the Santa Fe on Southern California business, and the Santa Fe demands on San Francisco business have also been complied with in the allotment of a large passenger traffic to that company voluntarily by the Southern Pacific. Other concessions were made, and all classes of business practically were controlled by the combination.

"The compact provides for the delivery of special trains to the Santa Fé at Chicago only, which shuts out the Rock Island from participation in the Raymond & Whitcomb business west-bound, that company having heretofore handled the Raymond & Whitcomb special trains from Chicago to Kansas City, delivering them at that point to the Santa Fé. It also nullifies existing contracts for delivery of special trains from California to the Iron Mountain, as the Southern Pacific insists on hauling special trains through to New Orleans.

"The agreement even goes so far as to include brokerage business on the coast and military business. In addition to this the Union Pacific is given the fast train for California—the only one which carries dining cars on the Southern Pacific—and the Rio Grande lines are discriminated against in every way."

TO IMITATE THE GOVERNOR.

Lieutenant Governor and Legislators to Box and Wrestle.

ALBANY, Dec. 2.—Lieut. Gov. Wodruff, it is reported, will emulate the example set by Gov. Roosevelt and take boxing and wrestling lessons. He is negotiating, it is said, with the Western fighter Karl Johnson, otherwise known as the "Terrible Swede," who is now in this city. Johnson also is to start a boxing and wrestling class on Jan. 1 for the benfit of the legislators during their three months' stay in Albany.

He arrived in Albany last week under contract to wrestle M. J. Dwyer, Gov. Roosevelt's trainer. This match came off on Tuesday, Dwyer being the winner. The prospect of a legislative gymnasium is hailed with delight by State politicians here.

Gov. Roosevelt, in addressing the Boys' Club here to-night, alluded to the fact that some years ago when a member of the Legislature he engaged a boxing tutor, who one day suddenly disappeared, only to be found later in the penitentiary, where he had been sent for burglary. The Governor drew the moral from this that if wickedness could increase its value by physical culture, righteousness should certainly not neglect the same advantages.

RUN OVER BY MR. STOKES'S RIG.

Victim Makes no Complaint on Owner's Promise to Pay Expenses.

Andrew J. Clark, fifty-five years old, of 438 Manhattan Avenue, was knocked down and run over by a coach at Seventy-third Street and Columbus Avenue last night. He was not seriously injured. The coach is owned by W. E. D. Stokes and was driven by his coachman, Hugh Rogers of 228 West Seventy-fifth Street.

Policeman Clancey of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station was about to arrest Rogers when Mr. Stokes, who witnessed the accident, told Clark that if he made no complaint he would pay the expenses necessary on account of the accident. Clark consented, and Rogers was not arrested.

Y. M. C. A. Literary Society Debate.

The Literary Society of the West Side Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, in West Fifty-seventh Street, held a debate last night on the following question: "Resolved, That we should condemn the course that Great Britain has pursued toward the Transvaal Republic." The affirmative side was taken by A. Trudeau Smith, Arthur S. H. Jones, and John Nicolson, Jr.; the negative side by James A. McGrath, W. N. Weston, and Fred E. Tasker. Internal Revenue Collector Charles H. Treat acted as judge and gave the decision to the negative side. The association will hold another debate on England's course in the near future.

Union College Alumni Dinner.

The Union College Alumni Association of New York will hold its annual reunion and banquet on the evening of Dec. 14 at the Hotel Savoy, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street. Among the prominent persons expected to be present and speak are Thomas L. James, Henry W. Cannon, Daniel S. Lamont, Daniel N. Lockwood, Gen. Daniel Butterfield, Frederick W. Seward, President J. G. Schurman of Cornell, and President A. V. V. Raymond of Union. Dr. Daniel M. Stimson, President of the Alumni Association, will preside. Tickets may be obtained from Edgar S. Barney, Secretary, No. 36 Stuyvesant Street.

Consumption Hospital Discussed.

ROCHESTER, Dec. 2.—A special committee appointed by the State Board of Charities to inquire into the advisability of establishing a State sanitarium for consumptives in the Adirondacks met in this city this afternoon. The committee is composed of Harvey W. Putnam of Buffalo, Chairman; Dr. Enoch V. Stoddard of Rochester, and Dr. Stephen Smith of New York. Dr. Smith was not able to be present to-day. The matter was discussed by a number of physicians.

To Talk of Puerto Rico.

"My Experiences in Puerto Rico" will be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Edgar W. Williams at St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church Friday evening. Mr. Williams, who was sent to Puerto Rico with the Evacuation Commissioners by the Government, was one of the first Americans to enter San Juan after the signing of the protocol. The lecture is to be illustrated by stereopticon views.

Fire in Van Cortlandt Park.

Fire last night destroyed the skatehouse and the restaurant near it in Van Cortlandt Park. The damage done amounted to about $1,500. The two buildings were on the lake near the station. The restaurant caught fire first. It was owned by Margaret Dominick. The skatehouse caught fire in a few minutes, and soon burned. The skates, of which there were several hundred pairs, were destroyed.

SANTO DOMINGO MUST PAY.

Minister to Haiti Directed at Once to Press Claims of Americans to a Settlement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Mr. Powell, Minister to Haiti and Santo Domingo, has been instructed to proceed to Santo Domingo to urge upon the Jimenes Government the payment of the overdue installment in the arbitration award to the McKay estate on account of the absorption by the Government of a bridge concession. Mr. Powell is also looking generally after American interests in Santo Domingo during this visit, including those involved in the concession held by the Weed syndicate for farming the customs revenues of the republic for a term of years.

Another matter that will be presented to the Dominican Government grows out of the repudiation of certain debts incurred by the late President Heureaux to Mr. J. Sala of New York. These amount in the aggregate to about half a million dollars, and it is sought to have the Dominican Government held responsible for them, or at least such part as is not chargeable against the late President personally. Certain German creditors also have sought to hold the Government house occupied by Heureaux security for some of his debts, and altogether Mr. Powell may find the problem of separating these conflicting claims a difficult task.

FORTY YEARS A STAGE DRIVER.

Silas Derby Gives Up the Line He Established Between Greenwich and Banksville, Conn.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 2.—Silas Derby, who for forty years has driven a stage almost daily from Greenwich station to Banksville, a distance of sixteen miles, today made his last trip, and will now retire to his home in Banksville to spend the remainder of his days. He is seventy-seven years of age, and was a shoemaker before he became a stage driver.

Just before the civil war a boarding school was established in Banksville by Miss Ann Purdy of Syracuse. There was then no regular connection with the outside world, and Miss Purdy induced Derby to start a stage line. She loaned him $100 for the purpose and this he paid back soon, for the enterprise was very successful. There was no competition for many years, and Derby made money carrying passengers and freight, and when the Banksville Post Office was started he combined the duties of mail carrier with those of stage driver.

It was his custom to leave Banksville at 6 o'clock in the morning with his team and four-seated covered stage, arriving in Greenwich two hours later. The return trip was made late in the day. Years ago, while waiting in Greenwich between the trips, he often took William M. Tweed and his followers from the Americus Clubhouse, where now is located the mansion of E. C. Benedict, to Rye Beach on their pleasure excursions. Tweed always occupied the front seat alongside of Derby.

The first interruption of Derby's trips was in 1888, when he was ill for three days. His health until then had been perfect, but a short time afterward he had a paralytic stroke while driving. This only took away the senses of smell and taste. Last Summer he was nearly overcome by the heat. His wife recently induced him to give up the business, at least until Spring, and he has sold his horses and stage, said good-bye to his Greenwich friends, and gone to his home in Banksville to take his first rest in forty years.

EQUIPPED FOR SWINDLING.

Man Captured in Chicago Had Blank Checks and Other Paraphernalia.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Herman Cohn, alias Grossman, alias Valentine, and numerous other names, was arrested to-night by Chicago detectives as he was trying to escape from the Sherman House. In Cohn's valise were blank checks on many banks, letterheads of various clothing firms, a check perforator, lists of firms, and letters addressed to himself and purporting to be from B. Selig & Co., manufacturers of boys' clothing at Philadelphia. One letter purported to be written on the firm's printed letterhead and to inclose a check for $50 as an advance of salary.

It is alleged that Cohn obtained money at two Chicago hotels. The Chicago police say they have complaints against him from the police of Cleveland, Indianapolis, Pittsburg, Saginaw, (Mich.,) Detroit, Milwaukee, Allegheny, Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, and many smaller cities. According to the police, Cohn has been operating for the last three or four years and has obtained from $25,000 to $50,000 in sums ranging from $50 to $200.

The blank checks found were on the following banks: Riverside Bank, New York; Central Bank, Rochester; Northern National Bank, Philadelphia; Bank of New Amsterdam, New York; First National Bank, Baltimore; Manufacturers' National Bank, Baltimore; Traders' National Bank, Rochester; Ellicott Square Bank, Buffalo; Merchants' Bank, Buffalo; German-American Savings Bank, Cleveland; National Mechanics' Bank, Baltimore; American Express National Bank, Cleveland; Central National Bank, Boston; Monongahela National Bank, Pittsburg, and German Bank, Buffalo.

POSTAGE STAMPS FOR BUFFALO.

Pan-American Exposition Managers Ask for a Special Series.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Buffalo Pan-American Exposition managers appear to be seeking to convince the Post Office Department that it would be a good thing to issue a set of special postage stamps to direct attention to the coming show in 1901. The idea is to have a set of nine distinctive stamps, after the style generally of the Columbian Exposition and the Omaha Exposition stamps. It is said to be opposed chiefly by philatelists. There is also some objection to the stamps on the part of the general public, that does not care to have the size of its stamps increased. The Columbian stamps became wearisome long before the supply contracted for was exhausted, and the Omaha stamps were rejected whenever smaller stamps could be obtained where they were offered. While it is considered highly probable that the request for the new issue of stamps will be approved, Assistant Postmaster General Madden has this to say of the matter:

"The whole subject is in embryo. My attention has been called to the advisability of issuing a Buffalo series of stamps to commemorate the exposition, and I can see no objection to it at this time, provided, of course, the cost is not too great. The Omaha Exposition had a series of nine stamps, and I suppose the Buffalo Directors would want as many. I know there will be objection from stamp collectors, but that must be expected. The stamps will be of great benefit to the exposition as an advertising medium, and up to the present time I am in favor of them."

RIVALS FOR THE GLASS TRUST.

Many Independent Plants Are Starting Up.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 2.—The D. O. Cunningham Glass Company's independent window glass factory, on the South Side, was put in operation to-day. The other independent plants on that side of the river will begin to blow glass within the next ten days. The factory at Blair Station will be started on Monday. It is believed that all the plants not controlled by the trust will be in full operation by Dec. 9.

Altogether fifteen factories were started in the country to-day with a capacity of 375 pots, making a total of over 800 pots in opposition to the new trust. Six independent and co-operative window glass companies are being formed in this city and many others in various parts of the gas belt.

LAKE TOWING TRUST OPPOSED.

Owners of Toledo Lines Will Not Join the Combination.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 2.—The Great Lakes Towing Company will not operate the Nagle and Sullivan lines of Toledo; and the owners will refuse further overtures from the trust. The Toledo options amounted to nearly $147,000, and after considerable negotiation Capt. Nagle has announced that his line is not for sale. The hitch occurred when he was asked to take stock instead of cash.

Capt. Nagle said to-day that he believed the trust would now fail, as he knew of other lines that felt the same as he did. The Toledo tug men intimate that they are prepared for a finish fight in case the trust puts in a line here. Nagle and Sullivan would then form a defensive combination.

HENDERSON FOR SPEAKER

Nominated by Acclamation by the Republican House Caucus.

REED RULES AGAIN ADOPTED

Necessity of Constant Attendance Urged in View of the Slender Majority Over the Opposition.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The caucus of the Republican members of the House to-night was a cut-and-dried affair. The selection of a candidate for Speaker by the party in power is usually an animated affair, but months ago all the other candidates who entered the field after the retirement of Speaker Reed abandoned the contest, laving Gen. David B. Henderson of Iowa the unopposed candidate. His nomination, therefore, was a foregone conclusion.

The officers of the last House, except Col. Russell, the Sergeant at Arms, were renominated without opposition, as follows: Clerk—Alexander McDowell of Pennsylvania; Doorkeeper—W. J. Glenn of New York; Postmaster—J. C. McElroy of Ohio; Chaplain—The Rev. Henry M. Couden of Michigan. Col. Russell was not a candidate for re-election and Col. Henry A. Casson of Wisconsin was nominated in his stead.

The caucus was held in the House of Representatives, and was largely attended. It was presided over by Gen. Grosvenor of Ohio, who was re-elected Chairman of the caucus. Mr. Loudenslager of New Jersey was re-elected Secretary. Gen. Henderson's name was presented by Mr. Payne of New York, and the nomination was seconded by Mr. Hopkins of Illinois, both of whom had been candidates for the Speakership. The roll was not called, the nomination being made by acclamation.

Gen. Henderson remained in the Speaker's room in the rear of the House lobby until after the House officers had been selected. He was then escorted to the rostrum of the House by Messrs. Hopkins of Illinois and Payne and Sherman of New York. His appearance was greeted with cheers, and in response to them Gen. Henderson addressed the caucus as follows:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: You will permit me to speak from my mind and from my heart on this occasion. Perhaps no man has ever had more reason for being grateful to the Republicans of this great legislative organization that I have at this hour. I assure you that no man ever felt more grateful than I do. The manner in which this nomination has come, the friendship abounding, if I may say it, in affection, has loaded me down with obligations which I do not attempt to conceal. Those who aspired to the same high office, by their generous treatment of me only demonstrated the greatness of the men who aspired with me to your recognition, and their generous followers, blending into one kindly body, made me feel how worthily they were supported. [Applause.]

"We have great responsibilities resting upon us in this Congress, and greater responsibilities in the coming year, and upon our wise action much depends for the prosperity of the country that we all love. May I impress upon your minds the absolute necessity for devotion to the Republic in more than one particular? Economy must be our watchword—care in the expenditure of the people's money. At the same time, let us be large enough in intellect to grasp the situation which presents a growing country with opening and expanding conditions which demand our careful and patriotic consideration.

"We are going to be met by a well-organized and able minority, led by accomplished leaders. This involves the necessity for the Republicans touching elbows in the great work before us. We have got to realize that in this Congress, with our small majority, every man, like a true soldier, must be constantly at his post of duty. [Applause.] And I urge with great earnestness that this will be the determination of each and all.

"Accepting this generous nomination, as I do, I have no fears that the united wisdom and work of this great body will increase the confidence and happiness of the Republic. Profoundly and gratefully, I thank you. I ask that I may lean upon you, each one of you—and that is the highest request that I can make to-night."

Mr. Payne of New York called attention to the narrow majority in the House and the necessity of having all the Republicans present throughout the session. He offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that no leaves of absence be granted except for urgent reasons and that one member be appointed to look after the pairs.

Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, who was a member of the Committee on Rules in the last Congress, offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the caucus that the rules of the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Congresses (the Reed rules) should be adopted by the incoming House. He made a speech of considerable length in support of his resolution. Under the operation of the rules of the last two Congresses, he argued, the majority had been able to transact business to its satisfaction and the satisfaction of the country. They were the only rules under which the House had been able to do business.

Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, who fought the rules in the last Congress, attempted to argue several points with Mr. Dalzell, but the latter refused to yield. When he had concluded, however, Col. Hepburn took the floor, and attacked the resolution vigorously. He insisted that the rules should be modified, laying particular stress upon the question of recognition, which, he said, should go to the first member who addressed the Chair. This has been one of Mr. Hepburn's causes of complaint in preceding Congresses.

He also contended that the Committee on Rules should be entirely independent of the Speaker and that there should be a general decentralization of power from the Speaker in the direction of the committees. The Speaker and the Committee on Rules, he contended, had too much power under the rules proposed to be adopted, and the power of committees and individuals should be expanded. He proposed an amendment to the resolution providing that the rules should be adopted for forty days, during which modifications could be decided upon.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois, who will again be Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, warmly supported Mr. Dalzell's resolution. He argued, and cited many instances to show, that, while the committees were theoretically equal, the business of some committees exceeded that of others in importance, and it was right that such should have privileges others did not enjoy. It was proper, he argued, that the Committee on Rules, having regard for the business and rights of all, should often designate what business should have the right of way.

Mr. Reeves of Illinois favored a modification of the rules which would enlarge the Committee on Rules to make it a more representative body. Mr. Moody of Massachusetts spoke for the adoption of the Dalzell resolution. Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania was the last speaker. He was generally favorable to the Reed rules, which, he said, were a great improvement over the rules of former days.

Mr. Hepburn then withdrew his amendment, and the Dalzell resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote, after which the caucus adjourned.

RICHARDSON MINORITY LEADER

Democratic House Caucus Nominates Him for Speaker on the Sixth Ballot—Mr. Roberts Present.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Democrats of the House of Representatives, at their caucus held this afternoon, selected Representative James D. Richardson of Tennessee as their candidate for Speaker after a spirited contest, which lasted through six ballots. This carries with it the Democratic leadership on the floor. Mr. Richardson has served fourteen years in the House, and is the oldest Democratic member in point of service except Mr. McRae of Arkansas. The candidates against Mr. Richardson were Representatives De Armond of Missouri, Bankhead of Alabama, and Sulzer of New York.

Representative Hay of Virginia was elected Chairman of the caucus by a vote of 77 to 62 cast for Mr. McRab of Arkansas. It has been customary for the oldest member in point of service to preside over the caucus, and the selection of Mr. Hay, who has served only one term, was an unusual honor. The name of Mr. Norton of Ohio was also presented for presiding officer, but was withdrawn. Representatives Cummings of New York and Robertson of Louisiana were elected Secretaries of the caucus.

Mr. Richardson was placed in nomination by Mr. Carmack of Tennessee, Mr. De Armond by Mr. Benton of Missouri, Mr. Bankhead by Mr. Ball of Texas, and Mr. Sulzer by Mr. Cummings of New York. The first ballot resulted: Richardson, 43; De Armond, 39; Bankhead, 34; Sulzer, 24.

The four following ballots showed little change. At the end of the fifth ballot Mr. Underwood of Alabama withdrew Mr. Bankhead's name, and on the first roll call of the sixth ballot about two-thirds of Mr. Bankhead's supporters went to Richardson. At the end of the first roll call the vote stood: Richards, 65; De Armond, 45; Sulzer, 20.

Before the second roll call began Mr. Sulzer withdrew and asked his friends to vote for Richardson. There was a general stampede to the Tennesseean and he was nominated, receiving 90 votes, against 47 for De Armond, and 2 for Sulzer. The nomination was then made unanimous.

Mr. Richardson, who was in the Ways and Means Committee room, was escorted to the hall by Messrs. Ball of Texas; Carmack of Tennessee, and Sulzer of New York, and made a speech. Owing to the lateness of the hour, he said, he would not do more than return his profound thanks, trusting that he had a proper appreciation of the great responsibilities placed upon him by the action of the caucus. His highest ambition, he said, would be to meet these responsibilities and discharge them so as to meet the approbation of the Democrats of the House and of the country. His chief regret, he declared, was that the result of his victory would bring disappointment, which he hoped would be only temporary, to other gentlemen who had aspired to the trying position to which he had been chosen. He said he could hope for success only with the cordial and hearty co-operation of every member.

The following candidates for House officers were then selected: Clerk—James Kerr, Pennsylvania; Sergeant at Arms—Ex-Representative Brookshire, Indiana; Doorkeeper—Henry Moler, Illinois; Postmaster—George L. Browning, Virginia. The caucus also selected the following Democrats to fill the four special positions allotted the minority party in the House: Special employe, Col. Isaac R. Hill, Ohio; special messengers, Ewing T. Bland, Missouri, a son of the late Representative Bland, and Pelton B. Knight, Georgia; special page, James English, California.

A resolution was adopted, on motion of Mr. Bailey of Texas, instructing Mr. Richardson to confer with Speaker Henderson and request a larger Democratic representation on committees. In the last Congress the minority had six men on each committee. They now desire seven.

Mr. Roberts of Utah was present and participated in the caucus. He voted for Mr. Richardson for Speaker.

RICHARDSON'S VICTORY POPULAR.

Democrats Outside the House Say He Will Be a Wise Leader.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Many Democrats who were not directly interested in the contest for the leadership of the minority in the House are greatly pleased to-night with the victory of Representative James D. Richardson over his several competitors in the Democratic caucus.

The pro-silver Democrats, who insist upon renominating Col. Bryan for President, were seemingly in favor of De Armond of Missouri. De Armond is a man of brains, the best orator of all the candidates presented to the caucus, and as strongly addicted to free silver as his late colleague, Mr. Bland. Mr. Sulzer's candidacy proved, as was expected, helpful to the cause of Richardson. If free from pledges, the Eastern Democrats might have been picked up for other candidates. As it was, they were kept in a bunch until the tendency to go to Richardson was developed, and then were put to use quickly and effectively.

After the caucus, in the restaurant of the House, members gathered to talk over the outcome. There was no ill-feeling over the defeat of the opponents of Richardson, and there was general satisfaction because a man had been chosen who possesses great prudence, no inclination to merely oratorical display, and who believes that one object of maintaining the Democratic organization is to win elections.

"We have been several years devoting ourselves to advertising the ambition of one Democrat," said a strong Richardson manager. "Now let us try and do something to renew confidence in the party, and rid ourselves of the public notion that the Democracy is a crank party. I consider it great good fortune to have elected Richardson to be the Democratic leader in the Fifty-sixth Congress." There is no more accomplished parliamentarian on our side, and what we need in a leader is a man with the knowledge, readiness, experience, and industry to enable us to seize and use every opportunity offered to us by the opposition."

REPUBLICAN SENATE CAUCUS.

Reorganization of the Committees of the Upper House to be Effected Without Delay.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Republican members of the Senate probably will hold a caucus next Tuesday afternoon to make provision for the reorganization of the committees. There are many vacancies on committees caused by the retirement of Senators. These will be filled, and in cases in which the Republicans are in the minority on committees steps will be taken so to change the membership as to give them control.

Having so clear a majority of the members of the Senate, the Republicans are disposed to assert their privilege of controlling its committee work throughout. No decision has yet been reached as to what shall be done about filling the elective offices of the Senate, but the present disposition is to postpone action upon that subject for the present.

The general interest in the committee changes centres in the Committee on Finance. There are two vacancies in that committee caused by the retirement of Senators Turpie of Indiana and White of California, and the Republicans will insist upon filling both of these places. The friends of Senator Hanna are urging his selection for one of the places.

The probabilities are that the detailed work of filling the committees will be delegated to a committee, and that no actual changes will be made for several days.

BLISS FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Mr. Wakeman Says the West Favors His Candidacy.

Appraiser Wilbur F. Wakeman last night came out strongly for the nomination of Cornelius N. Bliss for Vice President on the Republican ticket. "Mr. Bliss is very popular in the Western States," said Mr. Wakeman, "and when the time comes I think it will be found that there will be a general demand for his nomination.

"During the time he was in the Cabinet as Secretary of the Interior he was very close to the people of the Western States, and I firmly believe there is no Republican in the country who holds a higher place in the estimation of the Republicans of that section than does Mr. Bliss. He would make an admirable candidate and would be an excellent presiding officer for the United States Senate."

President McKinley and Mr. Bliss are close personal friends.

HARVARD MEETING IN CHICAGO.

Japanese Minister Represents a Club He Founded in Tokio.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The third annual convention of the Associated Harvard Clubs was held at the University Club to-day. This was the largest convention yet held by the association in Chicago, and representatives from the largest Western cities were in attendance. St. Louis, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, and San Francisco were represented.

All the members of the organization were entertained at a banquet this evening at the University Club. Jutaro Komura, the Japanese Minister, who was graduated from the Harvard law department in 1877, was the guest of the evening. He represented the Harvard Club of Tokio, of which he is the founder.

GERMEA
(FOR BREAKFAST.)

Ask your grocer for a trial package of GERMEA. It is made from California wheat. No hulls, no woody substance. Is healthful, nutritious, and a builder.

TRIED TO LYNCH A NEGRO.

An Alleged Murderer Had a Narrow Escape at the Hands of a New Jersey Mob.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 2.—Edward Williams, a colored man, narrowly escaped lynching to-night at the hands of a big crowd of angry citizens at Hamilton Square, a small place just outside of this city.

Williams, it is alleged, murdered Minnie Eisley on the farm of William White, at Yardville, on Thanksgiving Day. He escaped and nothing was seen of him until to-night. E. R. Good, a merchant of Hamilton Square, while standing in front of his store at 9 o'clock, recognized Williams as he passed down the street.

Good enticed the colored man into his store, and then seized and held him, until assistance arrived. Half a dozen men rushed into the place, and Williams was overpowered after a hard fight. He was turned over to Squire Smith, and the latter started for his office with the prisoner.

Immediately a crowd of a thousand persons gathered and captured Williams. A rope was called for, and amid shouts of "Lynch him!" "Shoot the nigger!" and "Burn him!" Williams was hustled toward a part of the settlement that was open and where there were few houses.

Squire Smith followed the mob, and getting near the prisoner shouted for silence. He asked the men to deliver Williams over to him and called for help from some of the crowd. The leaders at first protested against this, but the colored man was finally turned over to the officer, who led him back to his office.

Once inside the building the fury of the crowd broke forth again, and they made a rush for the place. The windows were smashed and some of the crowd started to break down the door with a pole.

Meanwhile an appeal for assistance had been sent to this city, and 100 policemen, under charge of Chief of Police Hiner, had hurriedly left for the scene. They arrived just in the nick of time and surrounded the place. Sheriff Atchley and Prosecutor Crossley were with them, and they advised the crowd to let the law take its course. The mob refused to listen to this advice and resumed the attack.

After ineffectual attempts to break through the police guard the mob at length became quieter, and amenable to reason. Then Detectives Maddock, Clancy, and Pilger emerged with the prisoner. The entire force of police surrounded them, and in this way the accused man was brought to the city, though under a heavy bombardment with stones. He was immediately taken before Magistrate Mathis, who committed him to the county jail to await trial. Fears of an attack on the Central Police Station caused the police to arraign the murderer at once, so that he could be confined in a secure place.

LITTLE GIRL TRAVELER LOST.

Supposed to Have Come from Philadelphia—Aunts Failed to Meet Her.

Ella May Sourmilch, a child, who said that her home is in Philadelphia, was found crying in the Cortlandt Street ferryhouse last evening by a policeman, who took her to the Church Street Station.

There Matron Green learned that the child is about five years old and had been waiting for her two aunts, Mamie and Liddie, to meet her and take her to their home, where she was to pay a visit. She had a slip of paper on which was written: "Put this little girl off at Liberty Street Ferry. Some one will meet her there." She also had a doll and a small parcel of clothing.

She did not know the address of her aunts, and, after being kept at the station until nearly midnight in the hope that somebody would claim her, she was taken to Police Headquarters.

Here the police thought they understood the child to say that her home was in Cambridge Street. Some men connected with the Central Railroad of New Jersey telegraphed to Philadelphia about her, but got no answer. She has dark eyes and light brown hair in two braids, and she wore a gray mixed waist, red hat, and plaid skirt.

JOHN WEBSTER STILL MISSING.

Believed that Nellie McHenry Knows Where He Is.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Miss Nellie McHenry, who has notified the police that her husband, John Webster, is missing, played to a large audience in "Green Room Fun" at the Peattie Academy at Fishkill Landing this evening, and then the company disbanded. When they arrived at Fishkill Landing this morning, the manager called at a local newspaper office and indignantly denied the published reports, and declared that Webster and the whole company were in town, and everything between Miss McHenry and her husband was all right. This proved to be false.

The members

METHUEN'S HEAVY LOSSES

British Killed, 73, and Wounded, 372, at Modder River.

SEVEN OTHERS ARE MISSING

List Sent Includes Only Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates—Another Battle Expected Soon.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The meagre official dispatch giving a list of the British casualties at Modder River and announcing the bare fact that Lord Methuen is still there awaiting reinforcements is only supplemented by a brief special message from Cape Town to-night stating that the Boers destroyed the bridge over the Modder River before the battle and are now concentrating at Spytfontein, where the final battle before Kimberley is relieved is expected to take place.

The censor has apparently stopped all press messages from the front relating to the battle, which is not regarded as a favorable indication. As to the material results of Lord Methuen's engagement, it is not yet clear whether Lord Methuen's force actually crossed the Modder River or is still awaiting the rebuilding of the bridge before the artillery and cavalry can cross. In any case, the railway must be carried over the bridge before the indispensable big naval guns can pass, because Lord Methuen's last message showed that they were worked on trucks along the railroad.

It is a significant fact that Lord Methuen's cablegram makes no mention of the Boer loss, which, therefore, is assumed to be small.

A dispatch from Cape Town this evening says Lord Methuen's advance undoubtedly is beginning to affect the Boer strategy and probably explains the withdrawal from Mooi River. The continued presence of commandos in Cape Colony tends to confirm the opinions that the Boers are making desperate efforts to recruit their forces from the Dutch residents. While it is impossible to obtain exact statistics, it is absolutely certain that the disaffected Dutch have joined the Boers in great numbers, which are still increasing. Most of the recruits, however, are young men. Gen. Buller's message clearly indicating the punishment for disloyalty having deterred the actual holders of farms from joining the Boers through fear of confiscation of their property.

There are now clear profs that the loyalty of the border Dutch is unable to withstand the proximity of Boer commandos. The rest of the Colony is apparently quiet, but there is a strong undercurrent of sympathy for the Boers. The outlook regarding Cape Colony, however, may be regarded as hopeful.

The Boers, as well as the British, underestimated the strength of their opponents, and every engagement has evidently tended to establish a hearty respect for Tommy Atkins.

The revised list of casualties among the non-commissioned officers and men at the battle of Modder River is divided as follows:

Ninth Lancers, 1 wounded.
Engineers, 2 wounded.
Artillery, 3 killed, 25 wounded.
Second Coldstreams, 10 killed, 56 wounded.
Third Grenadiers, 9 killed, 38 wounded, 4 missing.
Scots Guards, 10 killed, 37 wounded, 1 missing.
Northumberland Fusiliers, 11 killed, 34 wounded.
First Northumberlands, 3 wounded.
Second Yorkshire, 9 killed, 44 wounded.
First North Lancashire, 3 killed, 16 wounded.
Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, 18 killed, 91 wounded, 2 missing.
First Coldstreams, 20 wounded.
South African Reserve, 1 wounded.
Medical Corps, 1 wounded.
Remington's Guides, 3 wounded.

This makes a total of 452 killed, wounded, and missing.

The War Office has received the following from Gen. Forestier-Walker:

"CAPE TOWN, Dec. 1.—Gen. Gatacre reports no change in the situation.

"Gen. French has made a reconnaissance from Naauw Poort to Rosmead. The troops returned to-day.

"Gen. Methuen's flesh wound is slight. He is remaining at Modder River for the reconstruction of the bridge. Am reinforcing him with Highlanders and a cavalry corps. Horse artillery, the Canadian regiment, Australian contingents, and three battalions of infantry, moved up to the De Aar and Belmont line."

By this dispatch it is proved that all reports of Gen. Methuen's advance after the battle of Modder River were premature, though, with the railroad working, he should not be long in constructing a temporary bridge. His enforced delay doubtless will be of considerable service in giving his hard-pushed column needful rest, and in allowing the arrival of reinforcements, of which he must be sorely in need, after three such fights; placing hors de combat upward of 1,000 men out of less than 7,000.

Gen. Forestier-Walker's announcement that the Canadian marksmen and other reinforcements have been pushed forward to the neighborhood of the Orange River, to protect Gen. Methuen's line of communications, has relieved much anxiety here, where it was fully expected the Boers would attempt to attack the vulnerable points of the line of communications.

The latest news from Natal indicates that the bulk of the Ladysmith relief force has arrived at Frere, though there is considerable conjecture as to the whereabouts of Gen. Clery, whose movements have not been chronicled recently. It is surmised in some quarters that he may reappear in a totally unexpected quarter, on the flank or rear of Gen. Joubert's force, which is supposed to be concentrated at Grobelaar's Kloof, north of the Tugela River. As Gen. Hilyard's advance guard was in touch with the Boers as long ago as Tuesday last development should not be long delayed.

Dundonald's mounted force, Nov. 28, accompanied by four guns, went in pursuit of a body of Boers, returning to Colenso. They followed the Boers to within two and a half miles of Colenso, when the Boers replied to the British shells with long-range guns. There were no casualties. Colenso bridge, it is added, was afterward blown up.

Another detachment of 3,000 British troops sailed for South Africa to-day.

WAS GEN. JOUBERT KILLED?

Death of Boer Commander Is Again Rumored.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—According to a special dispatch from Cape Town, Gen. Joubert was killed Nov. 10, but Gen. Buller's dispatch of Nov. 28 shows, apparently, that Gen. White was in communication with Gen. Joubert, or somebody personating him, about Nov. 19.

METHUEN A POPULAR FAVORITE.

Gains Greatly in the Public Estimation of Great Britain.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The South African war progresses slowly. Gen. Methuen is described in a weekly paper as being a bright spot in the Boer campaign. He has won great popular favor by his victories on the march to Kimberley. No one, it is said, knows the topography between the Orange River and Kimberley better than he does. He traversed in 1884 all the ground he is now operating on. The General works his men harder than almost any other British officer, and is somewhat Spartan in his habits, taking enlisted men's rations and living their life, in contrast to Gen. Clery, who is accompanied by a special French chef and strictly orders his staff to take out an ample supply of stores and delicacies.

Col. Baden-Powell's book, "Aids to Scouting," proofs of which he read at Mafeking, will be published this week.

The story is now told as to how Col. Baden-Powell went to Mafeking. It appears that while on leave in London, in July, having left his regiment in India, he met Lord Wolseley in Piccadilly.

"Hullo," said the Commander in Chief, "you ought to be in South Africa. Can you get out at once?"

Col. Baden-Powell left on the following day.

According to M. A. P., (Mainly About People,) the Queen is grieving so deeply over the heavy losses of the British troops in South Africa that she can scarcely be induced to talk on any other topic, and as a result she is subject to severe sciatic and other nerve attacks.

It appears that Rear Admiral Harris, commanding at Cape Town, much disapproved of sending a naval brigade to the front, and Sir John Colomb, (an ex-Captain in the navy,) and others have written to The Times and service papers protesting against the habit of employing sailors in land fighting, on account of the greater difficulty in procuring sailors than soldiers, the greater cost of their production, and the consequent undermanning of vessels.

The army recruiting returns for November show an unusually low total, almost the smallest on record. It is said, in explanation, that the calling out of the reserves and militia has created a labor demand which is not yet supplied.

PRO-BOER IRISH ARE PUNISHED.

Two Magistrates Removed from Office for Talking.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Two Irish Magistrates were deprived this week by Lord Ashbourne, the Lord Chancellor of Ireland, of their offices on account of anti-British comments on the Boer war. The proceeding is most unusual, especially as one of the delinquents was a nobleman, Lord Emly, who, speaking to some laborers at Limerick, inferred that Great Britain might have another Ladysmith in Ireland.

Lord Ashbourne asked for an explanation, but Lord Emly haughtily refused, whereupon he was removed. Lord Emly is prominent in Ireland, both socially and politically, and an ardent home ruler.

AMERICAN WOMEN CHAGRINED.

Feel that Their Attitude on the War Was Misinterpreted.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The Society of American Women will give a musical and theatrical entertainment Dec. 4 in aid of the hospital ship Maine. Those heretofore prominent in the movement are expected to be present, though it has been decided not to repeat the features which distinguished the chantant.

Many members of this society, which was asked by the originators of the Maine idea to help them, are considerably chagrined at the fact that their efforts were interpreted in such a partial spirit. Many of them, at first, thinking the hospital ship would indicate a mere desire to alleviate sufferings on both sides, instead of being taken to mean a warm support of Great Britain, as has been done.

POST FOR SECRETARY HAY'S SON.

Will Proceed to South Africa to Act as Consul.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The President has designated Adelbert F. Hay to proceed at once to South Africa as the representative of the State Department and take the place of Mr. Macrum, the present United States Consul at Pretoria.

The State Department has yielded to Mr. Macrum's repeated appeals to be relieved, and he will not await the arrival of Mr. Hay before quitting his post. Mr. Hay is the son of the Secretary of State.

No Fear that War Will Spread.

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—Count Goluchowski, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, made a cheerful speech to the foreign committee of the Hungarian delegation, to-day, regarding the South African war. He expressed confident hope that the conflict would maintain its local character, and said the apprehension of widespreading complications therefrom were not justified. The Foreign Minister spoke of the Dreibund as a veritable "stronghold of peace," from which Austria-Hungary would be wise not to depart.

Denies Aiding New York Volunteers.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The Duchess of Uzes has telegraphed to the newspapers here indignantly denying the report that she is paying the expenses of an alleged pro-Boer volunteer corps, said to be forming in New York.

Jamaica Helps British War Fund.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 2.—Following the example of Demerara, the Mayor of Kingston to-day launched a popular subscription to contribute to a fund for the families of the British soldiers in South Africa. The Jamaican militiamen have agreed to contribute one day's pay each.

WILL STUDY TRANSVAAL WAR.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior Goes to Africa.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 2.—The Times to-morrow will say:

"Assistant Secretary Webster Davis of the Interior Department will sail from New York next Tuesday for Cape Town, South Africa. He expects to be gone at least three months. It is his intention to see something of the Boer war. He will be the guest while in Capt Town of Col. J. G. Stowe of Kansas City, Consul General at that port.

"Mr. Davis expects later to get into the Transvaal as the guest of President Krüger. There he will compile material for a series of lectures on the different aspects of the war, and will try to reach the United States before the struggle is ended."

Volunteers for Boers to be Ignored.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The State Department will take no cognizance of the party recruited by Gustav Theilkuhl for the alleged purpose of going to South Africa, as the department officials say the British authorities have not called attention to the movement, and it is not looked upon as serious.

BRITISH ARMY ORGANIZATION.

Military Arm Consists of Eight Classes of Men.

An inquiry has been received by THE NEW YORK TIMES in which the writer asks how many "calls" Great Britain has made for troops since the war with the Boers began, or whether all the soldiers now in or being sent to South Africa were ordered for active service at once. There have also been inquiries as to the constitution of the British Reserves, about whose organization there seems to be considerable ignorance.

The entire British Army at the beginning of this year, including the forces of all classes, in Hindustand, the Channel Islands, Malta, and Bermuda, consisted of 742,421 men. This total was made up as follows:

Regular army at home and in the colonies, 471,394; regulars in India, 73,162; first class army reserve, 83,000; second class army reserve, 122,450; militia, including permanent staff and Militia Reserve, 132,493; militia in Channel Islands, 3,996; militia in Malta and Bermuda, 2,472; yeomanry cavalry, including staff, 11,891; volunteers, including staff, 263,963.

These figures do not include Colonial volunteers, of which the number is very elastic, and who would doubtless be an important factor were Great Britain to be threatened by another European power. As it is, there are several regiments of Colonial Volunteers fighting the Boers.

What the regular army is does not, of course, need explanation. As for the reserves, they are a vital part of the army organization, being liable, by the terms of their agreement, to general service with the arms in which they were first enrolled. The Second-class Reserves are dying out, as can be seen by their insignificant number. First-class Reservists are men who have served their period with the colors, and who for this reason are really better fighters and more inured to the hardships of a campaign than the regulars, who are frequently little more than boys. The Reserve men are pensioners of the respective territorial regiments, and look to the officers commanding the districts in which they happen to be as their commanding officers. About 47,000 of them are under thirty years of age, the rest being between thirty and thirty-five.

The next body of men—in the order in which these bodies are sent on active service—is the militia. It is a force of very old standing, the purpose of which is to provide a body of trained men, available in case of need or imminent national danger, to supplement or relieve the regulars and reserves at home and in Mediterranean garrisons. At the same time, the militia has acted as a feeder to the regular army, notably during the Crimea, when it contributed many officers and about 30,000 men to the line. In time of peace, also, the militia supplies many army officers annually, while a large number of recruits are also transferred to the regulars.

The ballot for the militia—the last relic of the conscription in Great Britain—was suspended in 1829, and recruiting is now done by volunteering. The ballot, however, remains in reserve upon emergency, and may yet be resorted to before the war in South Africa is over.

The recruit is enlisted for six years, and is obliged to go into camp for training for four weeks in every year. Considering the short period, it is said that the system of training produces remarkably good results, and a large proportion of the militiamen compare not unfavorably in smartness and soldier-like bearing with the regulars. The last occasion before the present war when the militia was embodied for service was during the Soudan campaign of 1885, when militia regiments replaced several regiments of regulars in home stations.

The difference between the militia and the militia reserve, which is a comparatively new body, is that the latter must enter upon active service "in case of national emergency." It is a very popular branch of the service, and is raised by volunteering from the ranks of the militia. There are always many more volunteers than posts to be occupied.

The Yeomanry are virtually only a body of volunteers, the single difference being that they can be called out for service at home when there is "danger of invasion." This term is elastic, and allows the Yeomen to be called out when the army at home is depleted, as at the present time. The Yeomanry consist almost entirely of cavalry, the officers being members of the nobility and landed gentry. Formerly the rank and file consisted mostly of farmers, but latterly a large number of tradesmen in country towns have joined the force. A large proportion of the expenses of the various squadrons is defrayed by the officers. The Yeomanry are assembled annually for training for eight days, and these occasions are usually marked by "Yeomanry balls" and other festivities.

THE NEW YORK TIMES published an account of the volunteers when it was announced that the reserves were to be mobilized.

Thus far Great Britain has called out the reserves and the militia. The former have for the most part been sent either to South Africa or to replace regulars in the colonies. The militia are, of course, garrisoning home stations. It is rumored that the Yeomanry are also to be called out, and, if necessary, there is no doubt that the volunteers would be willing to go on active or home service.

EAGER FOR TRANSVAAL'S FALL.

Dr. Mary P. Jacobi Upholds Great Britain's Course in South Africa.

The Transvaal question was discussed by Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi yesterday morning before two hundred or more interested members of the League for Political Education. Dr. Jacobi first took up the question from the general point of view, and then discussed its special aspects from the standpoint of woman suffrage. After sketching the historical relations of Great Britain to the Transvaal Republic, and reviewing the diplomatic correspondence leading up to the present conflict, Dr. Jacobi said:

"Whether by Germans like Karl Blind, by Austrians like Max Nordau, or by critics nearer home, I have never found an attempt to answer the question, 'Were the demands of England reasonable or unreasonable?' If England's demand for equal rights for the Outlanders was reasonable, why should it not have been made and, if resisted, enforced with whatever force necessary? It is said that no State, though it be England, has a right to interfere in the internal affairs of another State, though this be the little Transvaal Republic, hardly fifteen years old. But here is the gist of the situation. The Transvaal has never attained the dignity of a sovereign State.

"After the concessions which followed the rising in 1880, the English Government had the foresight to retain the shadowy claim of suzerainty for the very purpose of having a formal right to interfere if the new and untried State began to give trouble. A certain number of Boer inhabitants have been passionately anxious that the Transvaal should be a sovereign State, and had they behaved themselves in decent and civilized fashion it is possible that at the end of another century their dream might have been fulfilled. In that case, however, old Krüger would not have been alive to see, and there can be no doubt that the senseless personal ambition of this stubborn old man has been a powerful factor among the agencies which have precipitated the war. The issues that are trembling in the balance are terrible. There is no comparison between the misfortune to the world of the loss of England's prestige should she be compelled to withdraw from South Africa and the flimsy advantage to the Transvaal of declaring it free of British suzerainty, free to continue to exclude from its franchise the aliens who sustain the prosperity of the country. Developing on civilized lines, the Transvaal could have become a leading member of the South African Federation. Now all friends of civilization must look forward eagerly to the moment when so turbulent and trumpery a little State shall have been blotted out and an English Governor installed at Pretoria in place of the picce Oom Paul."

After comparing the electoral disabilities of the Outlanders with the general disbarment of women from the franchise throughout the world, Dr. Jacobi continued: "Had there been an infusion of women of a suitable degree of personal development in the Volksraad, is it not probable that tendencies toward peace and conciliation would have mingled with the primitive belligerency of the crude farmer delegates? To my mind, the only rational excuse for excluding women from the franchise at the present day is that there still remains so much rough work to be done in the world, so much fighting with barbarians, before the establishment of the new 'Roman peace,' that decisions on the frontiers of national affairs had better remain for a while in the hands of the sex with the stronger and more brutal nerves. Nevertheless, it remains true that among all the agencies to which we may look for the gradual abolition of war, one of the most powerful is certainly the general enfranchisement of women."

MR. GLEASON EXAMINED.

Long Island City's ex-Mayor Up in Supplementary Proceedings.

Ex-Mayor Gleason was examined in supplementary proceedings yesterday at the County Court House, Long Island City. The examination was conducted by Louis J. Grant, counsel for ex-Capt. Anthony S. Woods. The latter has a judgment of $2,250 against Gleason which he is unable to collect. After the judgment was obtained Mr. Gleason spent six months in the "jail limits" for not paying.

Lawyer Grant questioned the ex-Mayor as to his manner of living. He said he had a room in Miller's Hotel, and that he lived there on the European plan, paying for meals when he ate them. He said his room cost him $15 a month. He was asked if he could tell his expenses a month, and he replied that he could not, but that they were not more than $500.

Mr. Grant asked Mr. Gleason when he had drawn his last check. Mr. Gleason's memory became very poor, and he replied that he could not remember. Mr. Grant requested that at the next meeting the witness produce his bank book and check book.

Mr. Gleason denied when he offered at a political meeting to give $500 to any charitable institution if John B. Merrell would go upon the platform with him he waved a five-hundred-dollar bill in the faces of his hearers. He said he had friends who would gladly put up that amount for him. He also denied that he had a bundle of money the day he and Magistrate Healy had an argument in font of Miller's Hotel.

After a few more questions had been asked, the hearing was adjourned until Friday next.

Installation of Press Club Officers.

The installation of the newly elected officers of the New York Press Club took place last night in the club rooms, 34 West Twenty-sixth Street. The installation was followed by a musical entertainment, at which Mme. Emma Nevada sang for the guests.

Small Offering of Bonds Here.

The offering of bonds at the Sub-Treasury yesterday was the smallest up to date, the total amounting to only $3,500 of 4s, offered in two lots.

Specially chartered steamers City of Rome and Nebraska will leave New York June 30 with Clark's various excursions, $210 and up. F. C. CLARK, 111 Broadway, N. Y.—Adv.

BEST & CO
LILLIPUTIAN BAZAAR

Hygienic Shoes
For Children

Built on a felt foundation—proof against damp and chill,—neat, dressy, substantial—has no equal for winter wear $2.35 to $3.75, according to size.

Special Shoes for special needs, at moderate prices.

To prevent toeing-in;
For weak ankles and flat-foot;
To cure bow-legs without braces

We have more sizes and styles of Shoes for Children than are ever found elsewhere, made from special lasts, insuring perfect fit and well-formed feet.

60-62 West 23d St.

"Standard of Highest Merit."
FISCHER PIANOS.

Attention is called to the large assortment of Fischer Pianos now on exhibition at our warerooms. Cased in rare and choice woods and artistically designed.

Also several styles expressly designed for the Holiday season.

Especial attention is called to our new small Grands.

Open evenings from Dec. 18th to 23d inclusive.

FISCHER PIANO WAREROOMS
33 Union Square—West,
Between 16th and 17th Streets, New York.

ALL EYES ON CHAMBERLAIN

Press Continues to Comment on the Secretary's Speech.

OPEN DOOR UNDER DISCUSSION

It Is Believed China Is the Subject of Negotiations—One French Paper Says War Is Inevitable.

(Copyright, 1899, The Associated Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Mr. Chamberlain's liking for straight-flung words has not only thrown the capitals of Europe into a turmoil, but his declarations have been by no means acceptable to those in England who are responsible for the relations with the United States. It appears that when Mr. Choate made his Thanksgiving speech he was quite ignorant that Mr. Chamberlain was speaking so definitely regarding tangible alliances, and the Ambassador did not intend his generalisms regarding Great Britain, Germany, and the United States to be taken as confirmation of the Colonial Secretary's outspoken remarks.

It would appear that Mr. Chamberlain told only half the truth, for in these dispatches Nov. 25 it was pointed out that negotiations were afoot for an alliance looking for a settlement of the Far Eastern question. The Outlook, particularly well informed on Chinese matters, says this week:

"The keynote of the new understanding will be found in the words 'open door.'"

In view of Secretary Hay's denial to the Chinese Minister, it is presumed that the United States has not yet decided to claim any sphere in China. According to opinion here, Secretary Hay's denial was only to be expected at this stage, and, whether or not it correctly forecasts the attitude of the United States, it is not regarded as dissipating the belief that the "open door" is now the basis of negotiations between the powers, far more comprehensive than mere answers to the United States' requests for assurances.

In addition to being the centre of attraction in Europe's excitement over mooted alliances, Mr. Chamberlain occupies the centre of the stage in the French-British dispute. His official recognition of the French press diatribes and threat of retaliation made in his Leicester speech have incurred the censure of many of his own supporters, while his utterances irritated France almost to an alarming extent.

The Speaker declares Mr. Chamberlain's head has been turned by his interview with Emperor William, and expresses the hope that the French nation will not forget that he is not yet Foreign Secretary.

The fact that the French Naval Attaché, speaking at the Temple Yacht Club dinner, simultaneously with Mr. Chamberlain, emphatically disowned, before Admiral Beresford and the other attachés and 700 prominent Britons, the attacks on the Queen, has rendered Mr. Chamberlain's notice of them more striking. It is learned that the French Naval Attaché's speech was revised by the French Ambassador and was made at his personal request.

The conservative French papers contrast Mr. Chamberlain's remarkable utterances with those of Admiral Beresford, who, following the French Naval Attaché, declared that a few caricaturists could not be taken to represent a nation.

The Autorité to-day says: "We are confronted by the positive threat of war. Possibly it does not correspond with British national sentiment, but it is Mr. Chamberlain who commands. We would assuredly have desired to preserve the peace, but the Minister who leads Great Britain wants war, which is, consequently, inevitable."

This extract from the Autorité voices the extreme tone. The Petit Parisien believes Mr. Chamberlain tried to throw dust in the eyes of the British public "in order to avoid attention being attracted to the defeats in South Africa."

The utterances of Cabinet Ministers and others on the subject of the suggested Anglo-Saxon-Teutonic alliance have distracted public attention, to some degree, from the list of casualties that marks British progress in South Africa. But the glowing insinuations of triumphs of British diplomacy cannot stem the growing tide of private sorrow that manifests itself with the ever increasing prevalence of crape and the absence, through mourning, of many prominent families from social festivities.

As Ambassador Choate said at the American Thanksgiving banquet yesterday, there is scarcely an English family of his acquaintance without relatives already either killed or wounded in the war.

Yet, the press has taken kindly to this new topic, though the more conservative papers, such as The Times, point out that a sympathetic alliance with the United States is an easy matter compared with one with Germany, on account of the difference in race and language. While it is not actually so stated, the palpable deduction has evidently occurred to the writers on this topic that the United States is far more fitted, from racial and other conditions, to ally herself with Germany than is Great Britain, the development of which, judging from popular opinion, would be decidedly unsatisfactory to Great Britain at present unless she managed in some way to become a party to the new Dreibund.

The bitter controversy between the British and French press is not without its amusing features. All manner of Frenchmen and Frenchwomen, resident in England, from lady's maids to authors and Abbes, have kept the correspondence columns of the English papers full of disavowals of the attacks on the Queen which have marked some of the Paris papers, while the French papers themselves take little pains to conceal their satisfaction over the irritation they have created, though the better class of people discountenance the vulgarity of the criticism. The English papers have violently assailed every anti-Dreyfusard in France, but they cannot conceive the justice of tit-for-tat argument when the Queen's personality is involved.

A duel just fought in Paris between M. Jules Huret of the Figaro and M. Viau of the Libre Parole, sprang partly out of the controversy. M. Huret has been in England sending over pro-British articles to his paper and was denounced by M. Viau, who accepted a challenge and paid for his criticism with a wound in the arm, which has paralyzed two of his fingers.

No Official Utterance on the Speech.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—There will be no official utterance by our Government respecting the speech of Mr. Chamberlain dealing with the entente between the United States, Great Britain, and Germany, for the reason, it is pointed out, that it is not proper to thus take notice of matter merely mentioned in a speech delivered before a social organisation.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

UTICA, Dec. 2.—Fire destroyed about $16,000 worth of property in the Village of New Hartford this morning. The property burned is the Seaton Block, occupied by Jerome Gorman as a grocery store, a two-story block that was unoccupied, a doctor's office, and two meat markets. The goods were removed from other stores and houses on the street, and considerable damage resulted from smoke and water.

GEORGETOWN, Del., Dec. 2.—This city narrowly escaped destruction by a fire which occurred early to-day. The residence of Joseph D. Truxton, the residence and livery stable of Charles Marsh, the Eagle Hotel stables, and several smaller buildings were destroyed.

Attorney General White's home and the Sussex Republican Building were badly damaged. Georgetown is without water works, and only the hard work of the citizens saved the town. The loss is estimated at $15,000.

SAMOA TREATY IS SIGNED

The Representatives of Interested Countries Agree on Division.

AGREEMENT MUST BE RATIFIED

Action of the Senate Necessary to Make It Effective—How the Islands Are Partitioned.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The treaty for the partition of the Samoan Islands was signed at the State Department at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon.

There was little of ceremony connected with the signature of the treaty. In the Diplomatic Room were Secretary Hay, with Sidney Smith, the Chief of the Diplomatic Bureau; Lord Pauncefote, the British Ambassador, and an attaché in the person of Mr. Bromwell, and Dr. von Holleben, the German Ambassador. The three copies of the convention were read carefully to insure their identity, and the signatures were attached in the usual manner, each representative signing first the copy which his Government is to retain.

The seals were affixed by William Gwynn, who has performed that ceremony for a quarter of a century, and after a general exchange of congratulations the principals parted, each carrying off his own copy of the treaty.

There has been some speculation as to whether the Samoan treaty was to be signed in Washington or London, although it was considered probable that the former city would be chosen. The treaty signed yesterday was the tri-partite agreement between the United States, Great Britain, and Germany; the other treaty, which deals with the agreement between Great Britain and Germany, has already been signed, and with it the United States has nothing to do. The text of the agreement just signed probably will not be made public until it comes up before the Senate for ratification.

By the terms of the tri-partite agreement Great Britain abandons all claims to any rights in the Samoan group, which is divided between Germany and the United States. Germany retains the two largest islands, Upolu and Savaii, while the United States gets Tutuila, the only other important island of the group. There are eleven other islands in the Samoan Archipelago, but they are volcanic reefs of little consequence. Though their disposition has not been made public, it is supposed that all or most of them will go to Germany.

The chief advantage obtained by the United States in this agreement is that the Island of Tutuila contains the Harbor of Pago-Pago, one of the finest in the South Pacific, and which cuts the island nearly in two. Tutuila is seventeen miles long by five broad. Although not so important as Upolu, there are nevertheless a number of European traders on Tutuila, who are mostly engaged in the copra trade.

It is expected that this division of the islands will result in the settlement of what at one time appeared to be a difficult problem, and one that might have led to international troubles. The joint rule by Great Britain, Germany, and the United States was found to work very unsatisfactorily, and since 1868 a series of petty native wars has been almost continual. The native population, partly owing to these wars, has considerably decreased since the advent of Europeans in any number.

The islands were discovered by Bougainville in the eighteenth century. Christianity was introduced by John Williams in 1830, and is now the religion of the islanders.

So far as is known, the United States gives no quid pro quo for the Island of Tutuila either to Germany or Great Britain; but Germany surrenders a large amount of territory and other important rights to Great Britain in return for the latter's surrender of rights in Samoa. Germany gives up the portion of the Solomon group which she owned, and has consented to a division of the neutral zone in West Africa, giving to Great Britain the territory about the mouth of the Volta River, which British diplomatists had long tried in vain to obtain, and allowing the division of other territory, which will effectually prevent squabbles in the future as to rights in that portion of the Dark Continent.

WRECKS ON PACIFIC COAST.

Many Lives, It Is Feared, Have Been Lost and Much Property Has Been Destroyed.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—A special to the Chicago Record from San Francisco says:

That a large number of the vessels on their way to coast ports, now long overdue, are suffering from lack of food and are damaged by the series of gales that have been blowing at sea for some time past is evident from stories brought here to-day by the steamer Robert Adamson. The Enterprise made this port a few hours before the Adamson in a disabled condition, after a terrible experience. The Adamson reports that she spoke the overdue schooner Wing and Wing, and supplied her with provisions. The men on the Wing and Wing had been living for five days on seagulls' flesh, and were all but starved to death when the steamer went to their rescue.

A large number of vessels are still off Cape Flattery on their way here. It is hoped the cutter McCulloch will be able to assist many of them that are near the harbor. The gales off the coast are said to be the worst that have occurred in many years, and it is feared that great loss of life and property will result from the storms.

MISHAPS TO VARIOUS VESSELS.

Fire, Storm, and Other Causes Bring Disaster.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The fire reported yesterday on board the British steamer Comeric, Capt. Kennedy, from Galveston, at Havre, catching while discharging cargo, is now under control and no further danger is apprehended.

The British steamer Durango, Capt. Oliver, from Sunderland Nov. 26, for Baltimore, has returned to the Clyde with machinery out of order.

The British steamer Jersey City, Capt. Watkins, which arrived at Bristol on Nov. 30, from New York, reports that while she was hove to on Nov. 11 in latitude 45 degrees north, longitude 53 degrees west, a sea swept over her port quarter, carrying off the wheel, starting the skylights and filling the cabin with water.

The British steamer Planet Mercury, Capt. Pye, from Dundee Nov. 25, for New York, has put back to Moville with steam and feed pipes broken.

The Norwegian bark Beda, Capt. Halvorsen, from Nouvelle for London, which was reported abandoned on Nov. 10 in latitude 48 north, longitude 26 west, was sighted on Nov. 20 in latitude 50 north, longitude 25 west, and had become a complete wreck, strewn on the surface of the sea.

The British steamer Shillito, Capt. Olsen, from Galveston via Norfolk for Aarhuus, before resported ashore near Stavanger, Norway, lies in a perilous position with the waves sweeping over her. The beach is strewn with broken boats and gear. Arrangement has been made for salvage on the basis of "no cure, no pay."

TWO DIE IN A SHIPWRECK.

Steamer Lost on the California Coast Near Eureka Harbor.

EUREKA, Cal., Dec. 2.—The steamer Wecott lies a total wreck on the south jetty of Humboldt Bay, having struck the rocks there, and of the twenty-four persons on board all are safe but two. One passenger, Mrs. Carmichael, a resident of Ferndale, this county, and Gus Nelson, a seaman of the steamer, lost their lives. Mrs. Carmichael was the first person the life saving crew tried to rescue. She was in the basket which was on the life line run to the doomed vessel from the jetty. A big breaker struck the basket as she was almost in the arms of her rescuers, and she was swept away. Her body was not recovered. Nelson was killed by a falling spar which struck him, breaking his neck. The bar was unusually rough, and it is almost a miracle that there is a single survivor.

To the bravery of Matt Morgan is largely due the rescue. He plunged into the terrible breakers, managed to get to the rocks of the jetty, climbed upon them, and then upon the piling, carrying a line with him. Soon the life saving crew arrived, slung their basket and rescued the others with the exception of Mrs. Carmichael. The Weeott was owned by the N. H. S. Steamship Company, otherwise the Charles P. Doe Company of San Francisco.

HARD BATTLE WITH A STORM.

Sufferings of a Rescue Party in the Pacific Ocean.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 2.—Mail advices by steamer Warrimoo state that the steamer Darius arrived at Adelaide Nov. 3 after an exciting trip through the breaking of her tail shaft while on her way from Melbourne to Ceylon. The second officer, Reginald Lyon Inston, two passengers, and five Lascars who volunteered to obtain assistance for the vessel after her propeller had gone, sailed in one of the ship's boats Aug. 18 for Padang, a port on the Sumatra coast just 650 miles from her position at the time. For twelve days and thirteen nights the little craft battled with adverse gales, accompanied with almost incessant squalls of rain, interspersed by several calm and intensely hot days.

They finally sighted a steamer bound west Aug. 30. She passed very close to the boat, but, although the ensign was flown upside down and other distress signals were made, absolutely no notice was taken. The men were still 150 miles from Padang and were forced to continue their battle with the elements until Sept. 1, when they attracted the attention of the Dutch steamer Reael. The rescuing steamer was so small that the voyagers were forced to abandon their gallant craft, which had carried them within 110 miles of Padang. The party was taken to Calcutta, via Batavia and Singapore, arriving at Calcutta the same day the Darius was towed in.

Schooner Hazel Dell Lost.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 2.—The schooner Hazel Dell, Capt. H. Duffy, of Blue Hill, Me., bound from Windsor for New York with lumber, put in here for shelter this morning and anchored near Round Reef. Later she dragged onto the reef, and when the tide fell she pounded her bottom out. The cargo kept her afloat. Quite a sea was on and the crew were rescued with some difficulty, one man having three ribs broken.

Schooner Goes Ashore.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Dec. 2.—The schooner Eureka, which left San Francisco Nov. 14, has gone ashore near Bandon, Coos Bay. It is not known whether any lives were lost. She carried a crew of about five men.

BIG DRY DOCK TO BE BUILT.

San Francisco to Have One of Huge Dimensions.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—One of the largest dry docks in the United States is to be constructed at Hunter's Point, in this harbor. It will be built over a natural rock basin, and will cost about $750,000. The dock is to be 750 feet long, 80 feet wide at the bottom, and 120 feet wide at the top. It will have twenty-eight feet of water over the sills at low tide.

It will be slightly larger than the dock at the Boston Navy Yard, and will be able to accommodate any vessel that enters this port.

BRIDGE TRAINMEN MAY STRIKE.

Men Said to be Dissatisfied with the Treatment by Mr. Rossiter.

Railroad circles in Brooklyn were disturbed yesterday afternoon by rumors of trouble between the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company and the trainmen employed on the Brooklyn Bridge railroad, which is controlled by the transit company. The bridge trainmen are said to be greatly dissatisfied with the treatment they are receiving at the hands of the company, and one persistent report had it that a strike was threatened for to-morrow morning.

When the bridge railroad passed into the hands of the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad Company the wages of the trainmen were reduced, and the men now claim that the Rapid Transit Company is grinding them down in other ways. One of their alleged grievances is that the company has been keeping back part of their pay from time to time until a week's wages is now being withheld from each of them. What the purpose of the company is in holding back this money, as is claimed by the men, is not explained.

A meeting of the trainmen is said to have been held last Wednesday night, at which their troubles were discussed at length. A committee, it was said, was appointed to wait upon President Rossiter of the Rapid Transit Company and present certain demands to him. The men say that this committee visited Mr. Rossiter on Thursday, but got no satisfaction from him.

Mr. Rossiter declared yesterday that no such committee had waited upon him. He also said that he knew of no dissatisfaction among the bridge trainmen.

The Sergeant in charge of the bridge police said last night that he had heard reports of coming trouble on the bridge among the trainmen and had instructed his men to be ready to meet it should any occur.

Carnegie Lyceum

57TH STREET AND 7 1 AVENUE.

Marvellous Exhibitior —
Wonderful Der onstration—
Illustrated Lecture—
De f Cured Free.

Friday, Decemb r 8, 1899.
AFTERNOON AT 2. - - - - - - EVENING AT 8

ADMISSION FRE TO ALL.

Those who are fortunate enough to obtain seats, or even standing room, in the Carnegie Lyceum on the above date, either afternoon or evening, will witness one of the most marvellous and interesting entertainments ever seen upon any stage since the history of the world began.

Streams of fire will be seen emanating from living human beings, while from their eyes, ears, nose and mouth there will appear to grow beautiful and highly colored bouquets of flowers. Artificial thunder and lightning will be produced by the juggling of millions of volts of electricity. This section of the exhibition may well be termed electrical pyrotechnics, fireworks.

The wonders of the great Edison X-Ray will also be exhibited. This is the only genuine Edison X-Ray ever operated for exhibition purposes in New York. All other so-called X-Ray machines are but toys as compared with this monster machine, which enables any one to see clearly all the bones of the human skeleton while yet in the flesh.

Wagonloads of machines, electrical devices and the more than wonderful Biochymic Generator, a mammoth machine used only for the cure of deafness and blindness, will be exhibited and used in the remarkable demonstration illustrating how disease, and especially deafness, may l almost instantly cured by scientific n hanism.

Dr. lson, the inventor and perfector of, th only treatment that ever cured deafn and who is

GEN. OTIS ON THE PHILIPPINE WAR.

Reports on All Events Since He Took Command.

AGUINALDO'S PLAN MISCARRIES

Rebel Intended to Massacre All Foreigners in Manila.

Insurgents Are Misled by Their Leader and the Large Amount of Anti-Imperialist Literature Sent to the Islands.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The report of Gen. Otis on the operations in the Philippines up to Aug. 31 last has been made public by the War Department. It is a volume of 273 pages, with an appendix of minor reports almost as large. The report is a chronological recapitulation of events in the Islands since Gen. Otis took command. One of the most interesting features is the immense amount of detail involved in Gen. Otis's administration of the affairs of the Islands.

Gen. Otis throws some light on his Chinese exclusion act, declaring it a matter of public policy. He goes at some length into the racial differences between the Filipinos and the Chinese, explaining that strong prejudice against the Chinese prevailed among the natives because of the success and the unscrupulous dealings of the Chinamen in all trade matters.

He says that, in view of the race hatred between the Chinamen and the natives, as well as the factional differences among the Chinamen themselves, which sometimes broke out into open riot and bloodshed, he deemed it expedient to apply the American immigration laws to the island. This was done, and arrangements have been made for identifying such Chinamen as have rights of prior residence in the islands, so that no unnecessary hardship may be worked.

The correspondence between Gen. Otis and Aguinaldo before the outbreak of active hostilities occupies much space, and more is taken up with the detailed accounts of the various engagements.

In connection with the Filipino uprising in the suburbs of Manila on the night of Feb. 22, Gen. Otis prints the translation of one of Aguinaldo's proclamations which incited this demonstration. The paper fortunately was discovered on Feb. 15, and the plans of the insurgents were checkmated. It called for the assembling of the Manila militia in the rear of the American outposts. At the sound of attack from the outside, the insurgents in the city were to fall on and butcher the whole of the foreign population, respecting nothing but native Filipino families. All the jail prisoners were to be released and armed to assist in the massacre.

The plan was successful in so far as about 1,000 armed insurgents assembled behind the American line. In the fight of that night and the following day about 500 of these were killed.

Gen. Otis relates minutely the difficulties encountered in dealing with the foreign merchants whose business was interfered with by the war, the outlining of plans of revenues and customs, the negotiations with the Sultan of Sulu, from whom he says Gen. Bates secured more concessions in a month than Spain had been able to secure in 300 years; the institution of town governments, the establishment of schools, and caring for a large number of prisoners, both Spanish and native.

In concluding his report, Gen. Otis says that it may prove fortunate that Aguinaldo's insurrection was not stamped out instanter upon its inception. He says that the natives throughout the island have peacefully and even gladly accepted American occupation of their towns whenever the American troops appeared, and that they have learned by experience that the insurgents have made a specialty of murder, outrage, and robbery under the guise of establishing a free and independent government.

They have had the chance upon the withdrawal of American troops to see the difference between American and native methods of government, and his opinion is that they will gladly submit to the former so soon as they can be protected from the latter.

A column of 8,000 troops, he says, could at any time during the insurrection have marched from one end of the island to the other without encountering serious difficulty, but the insurgents would inevitably have closed in behind them as soon as they passed, showing the necessity of having sufficient troops to hold the country after it has been captured.

Gen. Otis dwells upon the necessity of establishing a good school system, and says that the native population is very insistent upon the divorce of the schools from clerical control. This was promised by the Spanish Government during the last insurrection, but the Archbishop of Manila has protested against its being carried out.

Gen. Otis says finally, that the insurgents are duped by their leaders as to the political situation in the United States, and that the cry all along has been to hold out until the assembling of Congress, when the views of the anti-expansion party, whose literature has been extensively circulated in the Islands, would be sure to prevail.

MUNRO'S SUCCESSFUL BLUFF.

Wired Rebel Commander at Bayonbong He Was Coming with a Large Force and Demanded Surrender.

MANILA, Dec. 2.—The capture by Lieut. Munro and fifty men of the Fourth Cavalry of the Filipino General Conon, with 800 officers and men, with rifles, several American and 70 Spanish prisoners, at Bayonbong, Province of Nueva Viscaya, was a successful bluff. He tapped the rebel wire, telegraphed to Conon that he was advancing with a large force, and demanded his surrender.

After negotiations, Conon consented to capitulate to a "superior force," whereupon Lieut. Monro telegraphed that he would enter the town with a small guard and receive the garrison's surrender. He captured the whole Filipino force and secured their arms, the rebels supposing Munro had an army behind him.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Considerable interest is felt here in the news that the insurgents at Bayonbong have surrendered, particularly as the number is said to exceed that captured by the United States troops at any one time. Bayonbong is the city to which Aguinaldo at one time contemplated retreating for the purpose of locating the rebel capital, after he was forced to flee from Tarlac, but the American troops pressed him so hard that he was unable to carry out his intention.

Gen. Otis's dispatch, repeating information received from Gen. Lawton, said it indicated that Bayonbong had been captured Nov. 28, and it is thought that this is the same place referred to in the Manila dispatch.

This is the text of Gen. Otis's dispatch on the surrender of Bayonbong:

"Manila, Dec. 2.

"Reports received that Bayonbong, Province of Nueva Viscaya, surrendered Nov. 28 to Lieut. Munro, Fourth Cavalry, who commanded advance scouts on Carranglan train, consisting of fifty men, Fourth Cavalry, and three native scouts. Insurgent Gen. Conon surrendered entire force, numbering 800 men armed with Mausers, and a number of officers; seventy Spanish and two American prisoners secured, and probably considerable insurgent property."

Lieut. James N. Munro entered West Point from Minnesota in 1893, and was graduated in 1897, when he became an Additional Second Lieutenant in the First Cavalry. He was transferred to the Fourth Cavalry in November of last year, and served as Second Lieutenant of Troop A.

PHILIPPINE CASUALTIES.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Gen. Otis's latest casualty list is as follows:

Killed—Harry O. Lee, B, Ninth Infantry, Nov. 25, near Capas; Henry W. Landfohr, Thirty-fifth Infantry, engagement, Tobantin Bridge, Nov. 24.

Wounded in action, near Leon, Panay, Nov. 20, Harry Hiseock, sergeant L, Twenty-sixth Infantry, abdomen, mortal; in action Imus, Nov. 25, John Finger, F Fifth Artillery, leg, moderate; George M. Duncan, B, Fourth Infantry, forearm, moderate; in action Iloilo, Panay, Nov. 21, Twenty-sixth Infantry, A, Abraham Frappier, thigh, severe; D, Eugene E. Blower, corporal, head, severe; Edward Sweet, leg, severe; Sixth Artillery, G, Edward England, sergeant, chest, severe; James T. Murphy, shoulder, severe; Sixth Infantry, L, Lawrence E. Grennan, corporal, hand, severe; Paul Rink, thigh, severe; Eighteenth Infantry, B, Charles J. Ling, shoulder, severe; Simon T. Barker, shoulder, severe; George Backwith, thigh, severe; Carl Strohm, elbow, slight; C, James O'Connell, thigh, severe; Harry S. Dunton, corporal, chest, severe; Brice Leach, hand, severe; Christopher C. Coats, leg, severe; F, Bert J. Reed, corporal, leg, severe; Timothy J. Flynn, arm, severe; James Jones, corporal, hand, severe; Charles Weber, corporal, chest, severe; in action beyond Mabalacat, Nov. 28, Matthew A. Batson, First Lieut. Fourth Cavalry, foot, severe.

STORMS DELAY A TRANSPORT.

The Fort Stevens Was Driven Far Out of Her Course.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—The steamer Coptic has arrived from the Orient via Honolulu. No mail or passengers will be landed until after quarantine inspection. Purser Goodrich reports that the transport Fort Stevens, which left Seattle Nov. 11 with troops for Manila, put in at Honolulu Nov. 24, after having been driven far out of her course by a storm. The Captain reports "All well on board."

Among the Coptic's passengers are ex-Attorney General Smith of Honolulu and Mrs. Haywood, wife of the Consul General at Honolulu. Haywood was a passenger from Yokohama, but left the steamer at Honolulu to resume his duties.

AN OFFICER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Capt. John J. Brereton Kills Himself While Insane.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The War Department has received the following from Gen. Otis at Manila, dated Dec. 2:

"Lieut. Col. Brereton of the Twenty-fourth Infantry while temporarily insane committed suicide at Santa Thomas, near San Fernanteo, Union Province, Luzon, at 6 o'clock this morning. Insanity first manifested Nov. 29 at Aringay."

Capt. John J. Brereton of the Twenty-fourth Infantry was a Lieutenant Colonel in the Thirty-third Volunteer Infantry. After being graduated from West Point in 1877 he was appointed a Second Lieutenant of the Twenty-fourth Infantry. In 1882 he became First Lieutenant, and in 1895 was promoted to the rank of Captain. For gallantry at San Juan Capt. Brereton was made a Major of Volunteers in November, 1898, and from December, 1898, to May of the same year he served as a Collector of Customs at Cienfuegos, Cuba.

British Comment on Philippine Rule.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Commenting on the Philippine situation, The Saturday Review says: "We have heard the story of Aguinaldo's defeat and flight so often that it has ceased to stir our credulity. But, even if true, it in no way disposes of the most serious problem the Americans have to face. This is not how to conquer, but how to administer, the Islands. It is high time the men in the United States who honestly desire to take up the work of civilization should assert themselves, and show they do not intend that their officials or soldiers shall be the moral successors of the Spanish."

Soldier Shot for Resisting Arrest.

HONOLULU, Nov. 23.—The transports Pennsylvania and Olympia, conveying the Thirty-ninth Infantry and part of the Thirty-fifth from Portland, arrived here Nov. 15, and left for Manila on the same day. During their stay here Sergt. Jones, colored, of the Thirty-ninth, was shot while resisting arrest. Private J. E. McCullin, a guard, who had ordered Jones to his ship, fired the shot, striking Jones in the breast and inflicting a dangerous wound. McCullin's act was approved by his superior officers.

Pension for a Naval Captain's Widow.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—A pension of $30 a month was to-day granted to Mrs. Juliet E. Nichols of East Oakland, Cal., widow of Capt. Henry E. Nichols, United States Navy, late commander of the United States steamship Monadnock. Capt. Nichols died at Paranaque, in Manila Bay, last June as the result of overheating himself during an action with the insurgents.

The Philippines' Official Time.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Gen. Greely has lately received the official returns for the Signal Corps in the Philippines for September last. Among other matters of interest is the establishment of official time for the Philippines, which is that of the one hundred and twentieth meridian east of Greenwich.

The Logan Arrives at Gibraltar.

GIBRALTAR, Dec. 2.—The United States transport Logan, from New York Nov. 20 for Manila, with the Forty-first Infantry and a number of women nurses on board, has arrived here.

BILLS TO HELP THE SURGEONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Surgeon Gen. Sternberg has prepared two bills for introduction immediately upon the assembling of Congress, intended to correct an injustice worked to volunteer and Acting Assistant Surgeons in the army, through a construction of law made by the Controller.

The first is an act for the relief of Acting Assistant Surgeons. It appears that under the Controller's decision if one of these officers falls ill or is shot or wounded in the line of duty, his pay must cease during the period of his disability. To meet this ruling, the Surgeon General has prepared a bill conferring upon these officers the same rights and privileges as commissioned officers of the regular army, and providing for the payment of their salaries during absence.

The other ruling of the Controller to the effect that, notwithstanding the Volunteer Army act providing for the assignment of an Assistant Surgeon, with the rank of Captain, to each regiment of volunteers, such officers could only receive the pay of a Lieutenant, this construction being based on a regular army requirement that medical officers shall serve five years in the grade of Lieutenant before being entitled to a Captain's pay. To meet this difficulty Surgeon General Sternberg has prepared a bill specifically providing for the payment of the salary of a Captain, mounted, to such Assistant Surgeons.

Movements of Naval Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Brooklyn sailed to-day from Colombo, Island of Ceylon, for Manila, her next stop being at Singapore, 1,270 miles distant. From that point she will have to travel 1,386 miles to complete her journey. She will require at least ten days to make the trip.

The New Orleans is at Colombo taking on coal and she will probably get off also for Singapore to-morrow, one day behind the Brooklyn.

The little Marietta, also bound for Manila, sailed to-day from Aden for Pointe de Galle on the Island of Ceylon.

Admiral Schley arrived to-day on his flagship the Chicago at St. Lucia, on his way to the South Atlantic Station.

The Lancaster has arrived at Barbados.

The Adams had arrived at San Francisco.

The Marblehead has reported at Acapulco.

MR. AND MRS. WEIGHTMAN HURT

George Weightman of 120 Hancock Street, Brooklyn, connected with the Hazard Gunpowder Company, was driving in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, about 3 o'clock, accompanied by his wife, when his horse, attached to a buggy, took fright and ran away on the East Driveway.

Near the foot of a hill close to the Malbone Street entrance to the park the horse ran into a runabout, driven by a man whose name is not known, and Mr. Weightman, his wife, and the man in the runabout were thrown out. Mrs. Weightman fell against a lamppost and received a severe scalp wound. She and her husband were taken to the King's County Hospital, and the man in the runabout went home in a friend's carriage.

Both vehicles were wrecked.

The driveway was crowded at the time of the runaway, and considerable excitement was caused. Mrs. Weightman remained at the hospital all night.

MRS. PLANT BEGINS SUIT

Wants New York Courts to Take Charge of Husband's Estate.

FIGHTING PROBATE OF WILL

Says Millionaire's Lawyers Tricked Her Into Allowing Them to File It in Connecticut.

Margaret J. Plant, widow of Henry B. Plant, has begun an action in the Supreme Court, individually and as trustee of her husband's estate, against Lynde Harrison, Morton Freeman Plant, George H. Tilley, and Robert G. Erwin, individually and as trustees of the will, in which she asks that a receiver for certain property of her husband be appointed and that the courts of this State take entire charge of the estate, pending a settlement of the suit.

Mrs. Plant further asks that the will and codicils, as far as they are consistent with the laws of this State, be upheld; that the defendants be required to bring back into the jurisdiction of the New York courts all securities and property removed to the State of Connecticut, and that all proceedings in connection with the probating of the will in Connecticut be declared null and void.

The complaint in the case, which was filed yesterday, is a voluminous and involved affair. Mr. Plant, who died last June, left a will and three codicils. It is the last codicil to the will, executed three days before his death, that forms the basis of the legal proceedings. The codicil in question was executed in New Haven, and under its provisions, Mrs. Plant asserts, the estate is tied up for a longer period than the laws of this State permit. Mr. Plant created a trust extending until the time when a great-grandchild shall have attained his majority.

It is alleged in the complaint that Mr. Plant went to New Haven shortly before his death and claimed a residence under the laws of the State of Connecticut, when in reality he had been for many years a resident of the State of New York. This, asserts Mrs. Plant, was done with fraudulent intentions. Referring to this, the complaint says:

"It was the design and scheme and object of the testator (Henry B. Plant) to circumvent and evade the law of the State of New York, and to suspend the absolute ownership of personal property, and the absolute power of alienation of real property for a longer period than is permitted by the laws of the State of New York, and the testator declared in said codicil that decedent was a resident of New Haven, and this was done for the purpose of carrying out said scheme." In case the will is probated in Connecticut, the estate will be tied up for thirty-five years at least, but if the matter is given into the hands of the New York courts, the codicil will be attacked and probably set aside.

In her complaint Mrs. Plant asserts that her husband was a legal resident of the State of New York for upward of twenty-five years, having his home at 586 Fifth Avenue. She further claims that he never under any conditions became a resident of Connecticut. She says that he owns no real property to any extent in either New York or Connecticut, but that his personal property is in New York, and is estimated at upward of $10,000,000 in value.

Under the laws of New York, Mrs. Plant says, she is entitled to one-third of the personal property as a widow's dower. The will bears the date of Jan. 23, 1893, while the codicils are dated Nov. 22, 1894, May 25, 1899, and June 20, 1899. The will and codicils, says Mrs. Plant, are now out of the jurisdiction of the New York courts, having been taken to New Haven after her husband's death.

In this respect Mrs. Plant alleges that after the funeral the defendants, Harrison, Tilley, and Erwin, came to her house and asked her for the will. At the time of Mr. Plant's death the will and codicils were locked in a safe in his New York house. They were sealed in an envelope. The defendants told Mrs. Plant, so she asserts, that it was necessary for the protection of the estate that she give them the will.

After getting possession of the documents, says Mrs. Plant, the defendants, without her knowledge or consent, removed them to New Haven, where they were subsequently offered for probate in the Surrogate's office at New Haven. Harrison and Erwin were Mr. Plant's attorneys. The former practiced in New Haven, while Erwin practices in Georgia.

Not only were the will and codicils removed from the jurisdiction of this State, claims Mrs. Plant, but the defendants Harrison and Erwin went to the safe deposit vaults and removed from there certain securities. These were also removed to Connecticut. In doing this Mrs. Plant asserts that the lawyers took advantage of her unfamiliarity with the law and practice of this State.

Mrs. Plant further says that she attended the funeral of her husband at Branford, Conn., his country home. On the day of the funeral she says her husband's lawyers asked her to come to their office on the following day. When she did, they asked her to sign a petition for the admission of the will to probate in Connecticut. When petition called their attention to the residence clause, saying that her husband was not a resident of Connecticut, Harrison told her that he had seen to the matter, and that Mr. Plant had become a resident of the State shortly before his death.

On the advice of the lawyers, and without consulting other legal advisers, Mrs. Plant says that she signed the petition, relying on the advice of her husband's attorneys. The following day the will was offered for probate, and according to the plaintiff, upon the presentation of the petition an order was signed admitting the will to probate in the State of Connecticut.

Subsequently Mrs. Plant consulted other attorneys and learned, so she says, that the representation made by the defendants relative to the residence of her husband was untrue, and that the advice they gave her was against her interests. It is alleged that no notice or citation was served on Mrs. Plant, and that she was entirely ignorant of the Connecticut proceedings.

Mr. Plant was one of the best-known railroad and steamboat men in this country. For many months prior to his death he suffered from a peculiar disease. Those who knew him best say that during the latter years of his life everything in his mind became subservient to the name "Plant."

There was much comment at the time his will was made public. After making a number of bequests to friends and relatives, he provided for his widow and son Morton by leaving them an income of $30,000 annually. The remainder of the estate he tied up in trust funds.

DARING NAVIGATOR AT HOME.

Capt. Blackburn Crossed the Ocean in a Little "Great Eastern."

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday by the steamer Umbria was Capt. Howard Blackburn, a daring seaman, known as the "Fingerless Navigator," who last Summer crossed the Atlantic in a small boat. He has neither fingers nor toes, and the cutter in which he sailed is called the "Great Eastern." It is 30 feet long, 4½ tons burden, 25 feet on the water line, 8½ feet beam, and 4 feet in depth.

It was on June 18, in the presence of 10,000 spectators, that Capt. Blackburn started on his voyage from Gloucester, Mass., to Gloucester, England. He arrived on the other side on Aug. 19.

In speaking of his voyage, Capt. Blackburn said: "I hove to every time I wanted to light a pipe or go down into the cabin, and I was also hindered by head winds and rough weather. When it began to blow, I fastened the cabin door, locked my legs about the binnacle, and went ahead.

"When yet off the American coast, and also when I was nearing England, I slept in the afternoon and sailed during the night, because passing vessels could then see me and steer clear of me, but at night I had to look out. On two occasions I was nearly run down. Once in the fog off Newfoundland, while in the cabin, I heard a steamer coming along. I seized the fog horn and hurried on deck. I fell down and broke the horn, and thought I was done for. I shouted, and the next minute a big steamship skimmed past so close that water from her propeller was washed on deck. Another time, when off Sable Island, a steamer passed so close as nearly to upset my boat."

Capt. Blackburn was formerly a Great Banks fisherman, and in 1883 he and a mate went astray from their boat, and while trying to row ashore the mate froze to death and Blackburn was so badly frozen that they had to amputate his fingers and toes. He was five days and nights in the boat without either food or water.

CUBA AND CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

Veterans Want a Cuban, but La Lucha Says Whoever Is Appointed Would Be Unsatisfactory.

HAVANA, Dec. 2.—Civil Governor Emilio Nunez had a conference to-day with Secretary of State Capote, in the course of which he announced that he had officially instructed all the Mayors in the Havana Province to refrain from joining in the protests against the establishment of a civil government, which are being made at the veteran centres, as the Mayors and superior authorities cannot, under existing laws, take part in politics.

La Lucha says that in war times Marti, Gomez, Maceo, and Garcia stood distinctly above all others, but now there cannot be found one who would be accepted by the people as their truest representative, or who possesses sufficient talent to cause him to be selected as superior to others.

The paper also says the veterans protest against the appointment of an American Civil Governor, and want a Cuban appointed to that office, but that if one of their own members were nominated, the selection would cause protests as energetic as those now being made.

The chief aspirants, La Lucha says, would be Señores Lanuza, Capote, Freyre, Andrade, Lacret, Collazo, Bandera, Rabe, the two Sanguilys, and several other persons of similar position, not one of whom would be acceptable to the people.

Three leading Cuban Generals—Lacret, Morlot, and Acevedo—are organizing a syndicate to form into a canal the Conca River. They expect to employ 3,000 men. All three declare themselves averse to any change in the public order.

Gen. Maximo Gomez presided at a meeting of the Emilio Nunez Club to-day, and proposed that all the provinces in the island should immediately be asked to send members to a meeting to be held in Havana for the purpose of electing a committee empowered to represent Cuba to the American Government, and to endeavor to obtain from the United States what the meeting authorized them to ask for.

In answer to inquiries regarding the condition of affairs in the various provinces of the island, the Civil Governors have replied that the greatest calm prevails.

COLONISTS GOING TO CUBA.

Band Under Leadership of Gen. Van Der Voort Will Settle in Santiago.

Gen. Paul Van Der Voort of Omaha, who will speak in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church this evening on "Our New Possessions," will start for Cuba on Dec. 23 with a colony of 500 men from all sections of the country, but principally from the West. It is their intention to colonize a large section of the northern shore of the Province of Santiago de Cuba. They will locate on tracts of land ranging from five to forty acres each. The land is covered with valuable timber. Other colonists will follow, it is said, as soon as facilities for transportation can be provided.

Gen. Van Der Voort says the people associated with him are among the best citizens in the United States. Railroad men, it is said, have taken hold of the idea of owning Cuban lands, and as the land upon which it is proposed to settle is capable of producing all sorts of tropical and semi-tropical foods, it is predicted the experiment will be a pronounced success. It is also said that this colonization may further the movement to annex Cuba to the United States.

TO FIND MILLER'S BACKER.

Police Board Still Searching for Evidence and Identity of Policemen Who Encouraged the Scheme.

The Brooklyn police are no nearer success in finding William F. Miller, the originator of the Franklin Syndicate, than they have been at any time since his disappearance. It is freely stated that the most uncomfortable persons just now are the members of the force who, as alleged, managed to make a good thing out of Miller's scheme while it lasted, for if their identity can be learned it may be inferred from what President York said yesterday that an example will be made of the speculators who knew that they had nothing to lose and everything to gain by helping Miller's scheme along.

President York said that he had the books of the concern, which were practically valueless, so far as they contained any trace of the syndicate's business, especially in its relations with the members of the police force. He said that there was a great mass of papers, and that, while only a partial examination had yet been made, he hoped by a thorough overhauling to find the matters the board is hunting for. In addition to this, Mr. York said, the papers might also show who was back of Miller, and in that way the man and his backers may be brought to justice. Mr. York said that as soon as the examination was completed the result would be made public, no matter who was affected.

An effort is to be made to test the legality of the action of Postmaster Wilson of Brooklyn in sending to the dead letter office for redistribution several thousand letters addressed to Miller, which contained about $150,000 from would-be depositors. A firm of attorneys have notified Mr. Wilson that on Dec. 9 they would make an application for an injunction to restrain the department from redistributing such letters as still remain in its possession. The application will be made to Judge Thomas, in the United States District Court, and will be based on the contentions that any person who sent money to Miller became from that moment one of his creditors, and should stand in the same position in relation to the distribution of the assets as the other creditors. It is claimed that this $150,000 should have gone into the general assets of the concern.

Postmaster Wilson has taken the ground that the innocent senders of money to Miller had a right to be protected from the start, and that it would be manifestly unfair to have the money belonging to these people go into a fund which would be distributed among the persons who had already drawn more or less in profits from the concern. Mr. Wilson acted quickly, and all the letters were out of his hands, stamped fraudulent and sent to the department in Washington twenty-four hours before notice of the suit was served on him.

Deputy Chief Mackellar of the Borough of Brooklyn has made a report to the Police Board in regard to the Franklin Syndicate case and the escape of Miller. The report gives in detail the history of the entire case and the disappearance of Miller.

The report was considered at Friday's meeting of the board, and it was referred to the Committee on Rules and Discipline. President York is Chairman of this committee.

Mr. York said yesterday that he would not give out the report nor any gist of its contents, as it is in the hands of the committee.

MILLER'S BRANCH SUED AGAIN.

Third Attachment Issued Against the Investors' Trust.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—A third attachment was issued to-day against the Investors' Trust, the concern supposed to be affiliated with the Miller syndicate of Brooklyn. Alice M. Biggart filed an affidavit in the Common Pleas Court, alleging that the Investors' Trust, with Lipman Keene as President, is indebted to her in the sum of $200, fraudulently contracted.

Two attachments had previously been issued against the "trust." It was learned to-day that the business of the concern was much more extensive than was at first supposed. It is believed that there are between 6,000 and 7,000 subscribers to the stock.

Charles L. Work and J. Wells Levitt, managers of the trust, are still missing, and the office remains closed.

GERMAN MILLS FOR AMERICA.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The high duty on woolen manufactured goods has had the result of determining several German mill owners, who have customers in the United States, to establish manufacturing branches in this country. At least three of the plants will be located in this city, all of which expect to turn out cloth for the Spring trade.

One of these is a branch of the house of Hugo Bruhm & Sons, Geru, Saxony. Forty looms have been set up, and as many more will be in position next week. Otto Steckle, who is in charge of the mill, says the firm will henceforth compete with American manufacturers without the disadvantages which a virtually prohibitive tariff imposes on them.

The second plant is to be known as the Saxonia Dress Goods Mill. Arthur C. Schoenning, one of the proprietors, declined to discuss the company's plans, other than to say that fifty looms would be put in operation.

The name of the third plant is kept secret. An agent of the firm is now here looking for a desirable site for the factory.

JOHN INSLEY BLAIR DEAD

Leaves a Name for Philanthropy and Many Millions.

BLAIRSTOWN, HIS HOME, FAMOUS

His Determination to Acquire Wealth —His Vast Railroad, Mining, and Financial Enterprises.

John Insley Blair, "Plain John I.," as the people about his home in Blairstown, N. J., were wont to call him, died yesterday morning at the age of ninety-seven years. The end came in the town which bears his name and in the house in which he lived nearly all his life. He was one of the richest men in the world, and he made all of his vast fortune, estimated at nearly $70,000,000, himself. He was one of the most interesting figures in contemporaneous history, and he was known to financiers and railroad men for nearly three-quarters of a century as a man who built and aided in operating more lines and miles of railroads in this country than any other one man ever built or controlled.

It is a marvelous fact that these enormous enterprises were directed from one of the quaintest and most inaccessible little towns in New Jersey—Blairstown. Within its confines Mr. Blair established his first general store, the foundation of his fortune, and he was satisfied with it during all the years that he remained in the business of money-getting.

Mr. Blair was of Scotch Presbyterian stock, and his earliest American ancestor was John Blair, who settled in New Jersey in 1720. Both he and his brother were clergymen, and were among those who obtained from Gov. Belcher Princeton's original charter as a college. Samuel Blair was afterward Professor of Rhetoric and Vice President of the college, and his brother John was Professor of Moral Philosophy there. Mr. Blair's father was sent to Foul Rift, two miles below the town of Belvedere, to look after the shipping of iron, and it was there, on Aug. 22, 1802, that John Insley Blair was born. When he was two years old his father moved to a farm on Beaver Creek, near the village of Hope, and young Blair spent his boyhood on the farm that is still in possession of the family.

DECLARED HE WOULD GET WEALTH.

It was early in his career that young Blair demonstrated what his life work would be. His one desire was to make money, and one day, shortly after his tenth birthday, he said to his mother:

"Mother, I have seven brothers and three sisters. That's enough in the family to be educated. I am going to get rich."

He started by trapping muskrats and rabbits and selling their skins for $1 for sixteen. He used to say that he never felt so rich since as he did the day he got the first dollar. A year later he was a clerk in a general store owned by his cousin John, and at fourteen he was considered the smartest storekeeper in those parts. At the age of seventeen he owned a store of his own, and took his cousin in as a partner. It was not long before he bought out his cousin with money borrowed from his mother. Then he branched out, and in 1830 he had five general stores in operation, and every time he opened one he brought one of his brothers from the home farm to take charge. The profits were steady, but not large, and the young merchant kept his eye open for the main chance.

The story of his start is interesting. When the Morris and Essex Canal was being built, he heard that the workmen preferred strong to sweet butter. It did not take Blair long to figure that out, so he bought all the rancid butter he could find and mixed it with that which was sweet. In one year that operation netted him $4,000. Not long after that a cargo of damaged cotton came up the Delaware from New Orleans. It was offered at a low price for cash, and Blair bought it. When he looked it over, he found that nearly all of it was sound and intact, and he was $14,000 ahead.

But if Mr. Blair laid the foundation of his fortune as a storekeeper it will be as the owner of railroads that he will be remembered, financiers throughout the country knowing him as "Blair of Blairstown." In 1839 he became interested, through association with George W. and Joseph Scranton, in the iron mines of Pennsylvania. The Scranton brothers settled at Slocum, Penn., and in 1846 Mr. Blair's money helped them to build a large rolling mill there. This done, Mr. Blair induced Moses Taylor, William E. Dodge, Gardner Colby, Israel D. Condit, Christopher Robert, Marshall O. Roberts, and Robert C. Winthrop to go into the iron business. Slocum became Scranton, and Scranton required some outlet for its product. Mr. Blair and his associates bought a little road which led from Oswego, N. Y., to Ithaca, and as it was not of much account Mr. Blair reconstructed it. That was the beginning of his career as a builder of railroads.

BUILDER OF THIRTY ROADS.

In the years which followed this first venture in railroad building Mr. Blair built with his own capital, or with the capital of those associated with him wholly or in part, nearly thirty railroads. Some of them are not well known, even by name, in the East, but they were the roads that developed the Western country.

The list includes the Oswego and Ithaca; Leggett's Gap; Warren; sections of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western; the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg; Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern; part of the Union Pacific; Sioux City and Yankton; Sioux Falls and Dakota; Chicago and Northwestern; Chicago and Pacific; Chicago, Iowa and Dakota; sections of the New York, Susquehanna and Western; St. Louis and Hannibal; Bangor and Portland; Kansas City and Southern; Cayuga and Susquehanna; Cedar Rapids and Missouri River; Green Bay, Winona and St. Paul; Green Bay and Stevens's Point; Sioux City and Pacific; Iowa Falls and Sioux City; Chicago, Iowa and Nebraska; Fremont, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley; Maple River, Sussex and Mount Hope; Kansas City, Osceola and Southern.

From the first railroad he built Mr. Blair with others developed what is now the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western system. It is said of him that he never lost sight of a chance to build roads or to develop country, and it was while on his way to Chicago in 1860 as a delegate to the convention which nominated Lincoln for the Presidency that he first became interested in Western railroads. As a result of a trip on the Chicago, Iowa and Nebraska Road after the convention he decided to put money in the scheme for enlarging the road, and soon afterward took the work of construction off the company's hands. That road is now a part of the Chicago and Northwestern system. It was Mr. Blair's boast that he had built every one of his roads with cash, and had never put a dollar's worth of the stock of any of them on the market to raise money.

In the building of all his Western roads Mr. Blair secured enormous land grants as premiums. In connection with his work on the Union Pacific he got 1,000,000 acres of land in Iowa. For finishing the Iowa Falls and Sioux City Road he got 700,000 acres. For building the Sioux City and Pacific Road, from Sioux City to Omaha, and the Blair cut-off from Missouri Valley Junction, on the Chicago and Northwestern, connecting it with the Union Pacific at Tremont, he got 640,000 acres of land. He built a railroad up the Niobrara Valley in Nebraska and took the premium offered by the State of 100,000 acres of land.

CITIES HIS MEMORIALS.

With all this land on his hands, he formed land companies, and they laid out sities for what are now more than 100 flourishing cities and towns in the West. In railroad building Mr. Blair's favorite method was to take a road that somebody had begun and failed to complete. He rebuilt or completed it, and then leased or sold it to a trunk line, after making the necessary connections. In this way he made three separate profits. First for the construction, again on the valuable land that he acquired, and still again by leasing the road he had thus rehabilitated.

The last road that Mr. Blair built was the Kansas City, Osceola and Southern. This was only completed last year, and the finishing touches were put on under a direction other than his. Before it was completed Mr. Blair leased the road to the St. Louis and San Francisco line, and the terms of that lease show what kind of a bargain he was in the habit of making. The San Francisco line wanted it for a connection, and as no one else owned a dollar in the road the company's officials had to come to him for terms. He said his property was not for sale, but that he would lease it to them at a monthly rental of $2,000, and in addition, 40 per cent. of the gross receipts. The road is 110 miles long, and connects Kanoche Junction with Osceola, Mo. The directors laughed at the proposal, and Mr. Blair promptly told them he didn't care whether they took his road or not. They took it.

Mr. Blair had many interests outside of railroads. He founded the banking house of Blair & Co. at 33 Wall Street, which has in late years looked after his interests in his various enterprises. He founded the Belvedere Bank of Belvedere, N. J., and was for sixty years its President. He was also prominent in mining circles, being connected with various ventures in the Rock and Sierra Nevada Mountains. Not many years ago he sold his interest in the Blair Mines at Silver Peak, Nev., for $1,000,000. He was also interested in manufacturing enterprises, principally iron foundries, connected with his different mines.

HIS WORK FOR PHILANTHROPY.

If John I. Blair made a business of money getting he made a part of that business the spending of it. As a philanthropist, a generous, public-spirited citizen, and a promoter of education he was noted throughout the country. His great pride was the Presbyterian Academy, which he founded at Blairstown. The buildings, endowments, and grounds that it received through him aggregated in value more than $600,000. Besides his liberal endowments and gifts to Blair Hall, he gave freely to Princeton and Lafayette, and rebuilt Grinnell College, Iowa. Blair Hall was his last gift to Princeton, and in addition to it he gave other buildings and money, and endowed a professorship. He gave Lafayette nearly $90,000, and built a house for its President.

Mr. Blair gave a great deal of money to churches and responded liberally to calls from various charities. He built the Methodist Church in Blairstown, and it is said that more than 100 churches were built by him west of the Great Lakes.

Mr. Blair's habits were always simple and unpretentious and his acquirement of millions made little change in his mode of living. To Blairstown he was a veritable patriarch, and his birthdays were observed as holidays. His garments were usually ill-fitting and shabby, and he looked in his walks much like a figure left over from the last century. He never drank liquor or smoked, and he used to say gleefully that he had never speculated, attended a horse race or a baseball game, and had only been once to a theatre. The house in which he lived nearly all his life is on a hill back of the Post Office. It is a large two-story frame building, painted white, with green blinds, and with a cupola in the centre of the flat roof. It was furnished with a sparseness that suggested poverty, but John I. Blair thought it and Blairstown the paradise of the world.

Until four years ago Mr. Blair was at his desk at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, and business claimed his attention during all the day, but it was not until about a year ago that old age compelled him to give up the active management of his affairs. For nearly a year before his death he did not leave his room. A trained nurse attended him constantly, and three or four times a week he was lifted from his bed to the great armchair near the window, where he looked out over the town he had founded.

ONCE DEFEATED FOR GOVERNOR.

The only part he ever took in politics was in 1868, when the Republicans of New Jersey induced him to run for Governor. The campaign cost him $90,000, and he was defeated. When it was all over some of his managers and friends tried to console him, and told him what a great shame it was and how the politicians had simply sold him out.

"Oh, don't worry about that," said Mr. Blair. "I'm not worrying a bit. I have had the benefit of a lot of experience. I wouldn't begin to part with that experience for what it cost me. You see, I was like the fellow down in Missouri who raised hogs. He had always marketed them in St. Louis. Somebody told him that he could get a good deal more money for his hogs in Chicago. So he set out to drive a lot to Chicago. When he got there he found the market had just switched around and hogs were worth much more in St. Louis. When he found this out he remarked: 'Well, if I haven't got any money, I've had the society of the hogs.' I wasn't elected Governor, it is true, but I have had the society of the finest lot of hogs you ever saw."

At one time the late John B. Alley and Mr. Blair were involved in a lawsuit. Alley sued Blair for $2,500,000, and when the counsel for the latter asked for an adjournment, the Court granted it on condition that the defendant furnish a bond for twice the amount sued for.

"As I understand it," said Mr. Blair, "the bond required will be for $5,000,000."

He was told that his understanding was correct, and then muttering that he expected something of that kind, he put his hand into a bag he carried and taking out Government bonds worth $5,000,000, offered them to the astonished Court. He asked if that security would be satisfactory.

"They are," remarked the Court, "and I will make you custodian of them until this suit is decided, with the understanding that none is to be used while the bond is in force."

"Your honor need have no fear on that score," said Mr. Blair. "I only brought a few bonds with me this morning, and I will have no immediate use for them."

Mr. Blair is survived by one son—De Witt Clinton Blair—and two daughters—Emma E., who is the wife of the late Charles Scribner, under of the publishing house of Scribner's, and Aurelia A., who was the wife of Clarence G. Mitchell. Besides Charles Scribner, who, as grandson, is one of the principal heirs of John I. Blair;

Cut-Glass Lamps and Bric-a-Brac.

A most wonderful collection of beautiful specimens collected from al parts of the world, and submitted to you at prices that elsewhere would buy but the very ordinary sorts.

Umbrella Stands, of English Majolica, 30 inches high, in three colors, fancy embossed designs with scalloped top, worth $7.50; special for Monday at . 4.50

Dinner Sets, best quality English semi-porcelain, complete service for twelve people; extra large soup tureen and meat dishes, new and attractive shapes, the very latest designs in underglazed decorations, imported to sell at $10.50; special at 7.95

Table Tumblers, best quality lead flint glass, with neat engravings, regularly sold at 75c.; special, per dozen . 39c

Austrian China Dinner Sets.—A large importation order that should have arrived several months ago has just been received, and as we need every available inch of counter room to display our Holiday Goods, the price will be about one-third less than their actual value. These sets contain 101 pieces, with extra large soup tureen, in new and attractive shapes, with hand-painted decorations, in pink and yellow wild rose designs, with gold-finished handles, good value at $20.00; special for Monday at 15.00

Lamps.—For this sale we have arranged a separate table of $7.50, $8.00 and $10.00 lamps in the new squat shapes with 10 and 11 inch globes, all hand-painted to match base of lamp, solid brass feet, with best centre-draught burner; special for Monday, your choice at 5.95

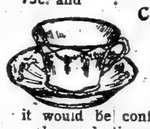
Another table will contain our $20.00, $22.50 and $25.00 Art Lamps; your choice for Monday at . . . 15.00

Marbles.—A very attractive selection of Italian Marble in Busts, Groups and Figures, &c. Many new subjects, ranging in price from $10.00 to . $250

Bric-a-Brac.—This department can boast of the greatest variety of best selected and moderately priced lines of Bric-a-Brac to be found in the city. New decorations and shapes in Royal Vienna, Sevres, Wedgwood, Adderly, Royal Bonn, Old Dutch, Cloisonne and other wares from all the famous makers of three continents.

American Cut Glass.—Space will not permit us to go into details, therefore we can only say that this department was never so well equipped to meet the demands of the holiday purchaser. Everything in the cut glass line from the medium to the highest priced will be found here, and for less than elsewhere.

Bohemian Glass Vases.—Your special attention is called to several lines of vases, which you will find to be about one-third less than similar goods are priced elsewhere. Vases at 10c., 25c., 39c., 45c., 60c., 75c. and 1.00



Cups and Saucers; a popular article for a holiday gift. As our collection contains hundreds of different styles with equally as many prices, it would be confusing for customers to make a selection without the waste of much valuable time, therefore, to facilitate matters, we have arranged our entire line into four great lots:

Lot 1, contains Cups and Saucers, worth from 35c. to 50c., special at . 25c

Lot 2, worth from 60c. to $1.00, your choice at 50c

Lot 3, worth from $1.00 to $1.50, your choice at 75c

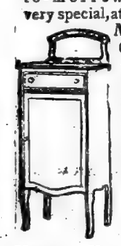
Lot 4, worth from $1.50 to $3.00, your choice at 1.00

Furniture Dept.

Have you a newly married son or daughter just commencing life in a new home? If so, you couldn't present them with a better Christmas present than a handsome bit of furniture. Perhaps you need some new furniture yourself, to replace something worn out in your own home. Whatever it is, we have it and will sell it to you for less money than it will cost you elsewhere. Look at some of our low prices:

Ladies' Desk of solid oak, 3 ft. 6 in. high and 29 in. wide, has swell carved legs and 3 drawers in base; fully worth $9.75; here to-morrow very special, at . . . 5.50

Golden Oak Heavy Rocker, has hand-carved back, very highly polished and covered with beautiful tapestry; fully worth $9.50; here to-morrow very special, at 5.50



Music Cabinet, with one drawer in top, bevel glass, French plate, 5 separate compartments for music; 4 feet high 19 inches wide; here to-morrow at . . 7.50

Heavy Morris Chair, of solid oak; with reversible cushions of velour or corduroy; here to-morrow at . . . 3.90

Handsome Couch, with spring edge all around covered with velour or corduroy in all the pleasing shades and patterns; here to-morrow at 9.50

These prices are so low that we must reserve the right of limiting quantities to be sold to any one person.

A Sale of Gloves.

A pair of fine Gloves for a Christmas gift would surely be greatly appreciated by your sweetheart or your wife or any of your female relatives. Why not buy them now, when you can get your pick of a full range of colors and sizes? Later on you may not be able to get any size you want in any desired shade. Our offerings for to-morrow afford the desired opportunity. Buy early. No such fine gloves obtainable elsewhere at these low prices:

Ladies' 2-clasp very finest velvet finish Mocha Gloves, in the best gray and brown shades, perfect fitting and well worth $1.50 a pair; your choice to-morrow at . . 1.19

Ladies' 2-clasp Craven Tan Pique Walking Gloves, the best glove for everyday wear that we know of, worth $1.25; here to-morrow at 98c

"The Rouillon," a masterpiece of glove making, made by one of the largest makers in France, and the French are admittedly the best glove makers in the world; our own brand and made especially for us, in suede and glace, overseam and pique styles; here to-morrow at the very special price of 1.75

Gray Suede Gloves are the most sought for and we have found it hard to get the desired popular shades. An order placed very late in the season enables us to offer for to-morrow a fine line of Ladies' 2-clasp Gloves in all the good shades of gray (they've just arrived); your choice to-morrow at 85c

In Men's Gloves.

We can fit you and suit you, too, no matter what your tastes or your wants may be, and your selection will cost you less money here than elsewhere. A notable special for to-morrow will be a fine line of Coachmen's Gloves of all kinds—Mocha, Buck, Dogskin and Furs of all kinds, such as mink, beaver, skunk, &c., on which the prices will be so reasonable as to excite your admiration and secure your patronage.

Fox Brand Umbrellas

Make most appropriate holiday presents. Select one now before the rush of holiday shopping commences.

This famous brand of fine umbrellas is to be had here only. We have them in styles to suit all tastes and pocket books, from the plain substantial umbrella at $1.25 to the most elaborate ones at $18.00. We keep these umbrellas in repair for one year FREE OF CHARGE.

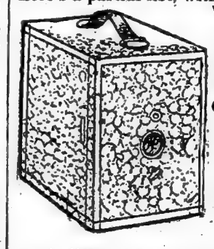
Trimmed Millinery at 1/3 Off.

After the Horse Show and Thanksgiving it's the usual custom for most millinery stores to make a reduction in the price of their stock all around, although there is no apparent good reason for it beyond the fact that the ladies expect it and look for it. We can't afford to disappoint them, nor can we afford to do less than the other stores are doing in this respect. We will therefore offer every trimmed Hat and Bonnet in our immense show rooms for sale on Monday at ONE-THIRD less than the regular price. There isn't a finer line of Trimmed Millinery in the city than our Millinery Department contains at the present time, so this is really a most extraordinary offer.

Manhattan Optical Co.'s Cameras

at less than market values! We never misrepresent our goods, and when we advertise a certain line of goods we're sure we have them and have the right to sell them at the prices at which they are advertised. This obviates the necessity of making a humiliating retraction, which a certain firm was recently compelled to publish concerning these goods.

975 high grade Manhattan Optical Company's Cameras on sale to-morrow. Here's a partial list, with prices:



Wizard V Cameras; list price $5; takes pictures 4x5 inches, here at just 1.95

Cycle Wizard A, double lens, takes picture 4x5 inches, has carrying case and double holder, list price $12; here to-morrow at . . 6.25

Cycle Wizard B, takes pictures 4x5 inches, has carrying case and holder, list price $16; here to-morrow at . . 8.75

Cycle Wizard C, takes pictures 4x5, has carrying case and double holder, list price $25; here to-morrow at 13.50

Cycle Wizard, long focus, takes pictures, 5x7 inches, has carrying case and double holder, list price $35; here to-morrow at 19.75

We have also several styles of these cameras in box form, at the same ratio of prices. Ask to see them.

Handkerchiefs for Holiday Gifts.

Six months ago we began to gather what we intended to be the largest display of handkerchiefs ever attempted.

Our labor is finished, and we are now prepared to serve our patrons—ready to meet them at the fountain with an assortment that for richness and low prices alike has no equal anywhere.

We can mention but a few of the many good things we have to offer—Box Goods, ready to serve their purpose, packed ½ doz in neat fancy boxes:

Ladies' Initial Handkerchiefs, made of sheer lawn with lace corner. A marvel of the manufacturer's ingenuity; confined to our store: per ½-doz. box 50c

Ladies' Pure Linen Initial Handkerchiefs, with handworked letters, ½-inch hems, per ½-doz. box, $1.00 and 1.50

Ladies' Swiss Embroidered and Lace Edged Handkerchiefs, richly worked, immense variety, per ½-doz. box, $1.00, $1.50 and . . 2.00

Men's Cambric Initial Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, large size, per ½-doz. box 59c

Men's Pure Linen Initial Handkerchiefs, hand embroidered, ½ and 1 in. hem, per ½ doz. box, $1.50 and 2.00

Men's Pure Linen Plain White Handkerchiefs, ¼, ½ and 1 in. hems, per ½ doz. box, 90c., $1.00, $1.25 and 1.50

Children's Handkerchiefs, ¼ doz. in little fancy box, at 15c., 20c. and 23c

The Big Store is Absolutely Fireproof.

THE BIG STORE — A CITY IN ITSELF

SIEGEL COOPER Co.

SIXTH AVE. — MEET ME AT THE FOUNTAIN — 18TH & 19TH STS.

No Other Store in New York is.

The Christmas Stores Are Now Complete.

Two million dollars' worth of the world's best and choicest merchandise collected under one roof, embracing every avenue of Art and Fashion—the useful as well as the ornamental—the expensive as well as the inexpensive—the things that will delight the little folks and the things that will make their elders happy—all here in a profusion not even attempted elsewhere; and all here at prices that will bring them within the reach of even the slender purse.

Sensible, far-seeing people begin their Christmas shopping early so as to avoid the great crowds and secure the first pick of the holiday goods. It's hard to get just what you want when the stores are thronged with eager buyers, and harder still for any store to satisfy the exacting demands made upon it. We therefore recommend early purchases as likely to be most satisfactory from every point of view.

The Xmas Windows and Store Decorations Are Now Ready---Come and See Them!

Toys for Girls and Boys.

It would take this whole newspaper to enumerate even a considerable fraction of this "World of Toys," so we must content ourselves with quoting a few—merely hints—so you may see how much you can buy here for little money.

Surprise Boxes—Every child knows him, the old familiar Jack in a Box, with strong springs and beautifully decorated boxes, large size, with comical heads, special at . . 18c

Hook and Ladder Truck, with brass gong, frame 40 in. long, with side and middle ladder 4 feet long, handsomely painted and strongly constructed, the regular $1.75 kind, special for Monday at 1.35

Boats—Handsomely painted clockwork boats substantially made, a perfect-sailing little toy, the regular 45c. kind, for 35c

Skin-Covered Horses attached to milk wagons, filled with 6 milk cans, complete, with harness, &c., a regular $1.35 article, special at 1.00

Dolls—A fine assortment, containing Jointed Dolls, 14 in. long, with flowing hair and fitted with shoes and stockings; Kid Body Dolls with flowing hair, and stylishly dressed Dolls, 13 inches long, all in bright colors and made of the best materials; "Nigger Dolls," the kind white children like so much; also the much-loved Rag Doll; your choice of all at the very low price of 23c

China Toy Tea Sets, including 21 pieces nicely decorated and put up in a strong box, special at . . . 15c

Desks for Children, strongly made of hard wood; have two covers, including inside blackboard and handsomely varnished, special at . . . 85c

Dolls' Go-Carts, full size and made strong of fine reed, with steel wheels; also Go-Carts strongly made of hard wood, and handsomely varnished, the regular 50c. kind, special at 35c

Engines—These genuine little steam models are practical constructed and reliable, with perfect steaming qualities, the elsewhere 45c. kind, special at . . 35c

Handwerck Dolls—This name is a guarantee of the quality of this doll; it is 16 inches long, has flowing hair and eyes that close, the elsewhere $1.25 size; here 95c

The Hill Climber—A fascinating and amusing toy; the most powerful locomotive in the world; will climb a hill without the aid of clockwork, steam or electrical power, and is strongly constructed; don't fail to see our demonstration in main aisle of second floor; price . . 95c

Velocipedes, made of steel and malleable iron; strongly built, fitted with improved saddle and bicycle handles; regularly $1.50; special at . . . 1.15

Games—Chess India, played exactly like the well-known 65c. game of Parchesi, has four dice boxes, eight dice and four colored counters, special at . . 35c

Lead Soldiers—This set contains 24 pieces, all handsomely painted, regularly 20c., special at 15c

Boys' Express Wagons—They are made of hardwood and strongly built in every particular, size of body 22x13 inches, the 75c. kind, special at . 50c

Tool Chests, containing, among other articles, auger, brace, hatchet, clamp, &c., really worth 75c., special at . . . 49c

Pianos, have 8 keys, and all nicely polished, the 45c. kind, special at . 30c

Iron Trains—This train is strongly made of malleable iron, has engine, tender and two passenger cars, the 50c. kind, special at . . . 33c

The genuine Chautauqua Blackboard and Desk Combination, strongly constructed, has 20 different subjects, all very instructive and amusing, really worth $1.25, special at . . 95c

Drums—Have metal bodies and strongly made with sheepskin heads and handsomely figured, regular value, 25c., special at 19c

Dolls' Carriages, made strongly of reed, with well-made wheels and axles, regular value $1.35, special at . . 95c

Books for the Holidays.

Our gathering this year is a library in itself—a library containing the choicest literature of other days and other times as well as of to-day—a library from which all minds can make a selection and of which all purses can afford to buy. You will make some Christmas presents, of course, to your home folks or your intimate friends. You couldn't select anything better than a good book, nor anything that will cost you less in proportion to its real value. Here are a few selections which will give you an idea of some of the good things that await you and the low prices which prevail throughout the department generally:

BOOKS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Over 200 titles to select from, published at 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.00, our price, per vol. 35c

A few of the titles:

A Sailor Boy with Dewey.—Bonehill.
The Boat Club.—Optic.
Now or Never.—Optic.
Lost in Samoa.—Ellis.
Red Rose and Tiger Lily.—Meade.
The Children's Pilgrimage.—Meade.
The Little Lame Prince.—Muloch.
Sundown Songs.—Laura Richards.
A Hole in the Wall.—Louisa M. Alcott.
The Cottage Neighbors.—Nora Perry.
Nonsense Songs.—Lear.
Off for Hawaii.—Bonehill.
Life of Kit Carson.—Ellis.
The Man Without a Country.—Hale.
The Blue Fairy Book.—Lange.

Bound Volume of Harper's Round Table 1899, published at $2.50; our price 1.25

Chatterbox for 1899, published in cloth at $2.00 and in boards at $1.25; our price, in cloth, 1.10, and in boards, 65c

The Gypsy Series, by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, 4 volumes containing Gypsy's Cousin Joy, Gypsy Breynton, Gypsy Sowing and Reaping, Gypsy's Year at the Golden Crescent, published at $2; our price 1.15

Complete Works of William Shakespeare, Handy Volume Edition, illustrated with steel engravings, good print, 13 vols., bound in flexible cloth, published at $7.50; our price . . . 3.45

The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, Riverside Handy Volume Edition, bound in flexible cloth, gilt top, published at $1.25; our price 35c

The Dutch and Quaker Colonies in America, by John Fiske, 2 volumes, published at $4.00; our price . 3.00

The New Illuminated Holy Bible, Teachers' Edition, self-pronouncing, with marginal references, concordance, maps and numerous helps and nearly 600 original illustrations, bound in flexible leather, divinity circuit, round corners, with red under gold edges; published at $2.50; our price 1.25

The True Mother Goose, a new edition from the original text first issued in 1719, charmingly illustrated by Blanche McManus; bound in canvas, published at $1.50; our price . . . 50c

Holiday Edition of Poetry, from the Riverside Press. Each volume 16mo, gilt top, with engraved titles and frontispieces and other illustrations; bound in dark blue silk cloth; published at $1.25; our price 35c

Comprising the following titles:

Lady of the Lake—Scott.
Enoch Arden—Tennyson.
Childe Harold—Byron.
Lay of Last Minstrel—Scott.
The Princess—Tennyson.

A Beautiful Holiday Edition of well-known books, bound in cloth with gold stamping, profusely and charmingly illustrated from half-tones and printed on the best paper, each volume in a box. Published at $2.00; our price . 1.10

Titles as follows:

Leaves from the Life of a Good-for-Nothing. Translated from the German of Joseph Freiherr von Eichendorff by Mrs. A. L. Wister. Illustrations by Philip Grot Johann and Prof. Edmund Kanoldt.

A Sentimental Journey Through France and Italy, by Laurence Sterne, with 220 Drawings by Maurice Leloir.

Lamia, by John Keats. Illustrated by Will H. Low.

The Sketch Book, by Washington Irving. Illustrated with 120 engravings on wood from original designs.

Teachers' Bible—Contains new helps, new Concordance, 350 illustrations, maps, etc., bound in flexible leather, divinity circuit, red under gold edges; special price 65c

Prayer Book and Hymnal, Protestant Episcopal, bound in leatherette; special price 75c

Key of Heaven, bound in leatherette, gold edges; special price . . 25c

Catholic Child's Prayer Book, bound in cloth 9c

Diaries for 1900—A complete assortment; price from 12c. up to . 1.85

Calendars—A handsome assortment for 3c. up to . . . 4.00

Special Sale Five Carloads High Class Preserves in Glass, also Brandied Fruits, Jellies, Jams, Sauces, Preserves, Pickles, Relishes, etc., etc.

100 cases Alden & Nicholson Choice N. Y. State Preserved Raspberries, regular wholesale price, per doz., $2.25; our price, per doz., $1.75; per jar . 15c

50 cases Fancy Preserved California Apricots, regular wholesale price, per doz., $3; our price, per dozen, $2.35; per jar 20c

200 cases Hazel Brand Preserved Whole Fruit, absolutely the finest selected fruit and refined sugar, per doz., $2.95; per bot. 25c

200 cases Hazel Pure Fruit Jellies, all varieties, finest selection fruit and pure, refined sugar, per case, $4.60; per doz., $2.35; per bot. 20c

150 cases Hazel Pure Fruit Jam, assorted, only the choicest fruit used, per case, $4.60; per doz., $2.35; per bot. . . . 20c

100 cases Milford Jams, made from pure fruit in season only, per case, $3.25; per doz., $1.65; per jar 14c

100 cases Milford Pure Fruit Jelly, per case, $1.35; per doz., 95c.; per jar . 8c

100 cases Hazel Sweet Pickled Pears and Peaches, a rich, spicy preserve, absolutely pure, per doz., $8.85; per bot. 75c

100 cases Hazel Brand Brandy Peaches and Pears, exceptional quality, 2½-lb. jars, per doz., $11.25; per bot. . 95c

100 cases Hazel Gherkins, Mixed Pickles, Chow Chow or Onions, choicest quality, 20-oz. bots., per doz., $2.85; per bot. 24c

100 cases Hazel Sweet Gherkins, Onions or Mixed Pickles, very appetizing, finest production, 20-oz. bots., per doz., $3.45; per bot. 29c

150 cases Milford Brand Gherkins, Mixed Pickles and Chow Chow, excellent quality, per case, $4.45; per doz., $2.25; per bot. 19c

50 cases Crown Brand Mixed Pickles, Chow Chow or Gherkins, gal. bots., per case, $6.20; per doz., $4.15; per bot., 35c.; ½ gal. bots., per doz., $2.70; per bot. 23c

200 cases Hazel Tomato Catsup, made from choicest red ripe Tomatoes and seasoned with the finest spices, per case, $3.45; per doz., $1.75; pea bot. . . (15c

100 cases Hazel Brand or Mason's A1 Worcestershire Sauce, a delicious relish for meats and soups, per case, $3.75; per doz., $1.90; per bot. . . . 16c

200 cases Hazel Brand Queen Olives, new season's pack, very choice and tasty, per case, $5.65; per doz., $2.85; per bot. 24c

200 cases Hazel Brand Chopped Pickles, per doz., $3.65; per bottle . . . 31c

50 cases Hazel Brand Mushrooms or Walnut Catsup, per doz., $1.90; per bottle 16c

100 cases Milford Queen Olives, choice stock, case, $5.15; per doz., $2.59; per bot. 22c

50 cases Kenwood Queen Olives, large bottles, per case, $5.65; per doz., $2.85; per bot. 24c

200 cases Hazel Brand Chili Sauce, a piquant relish, case, $3.75; per doz., $1.90; per bot. 16c

100 cases Columbia or Snider's Chili Sauce, very delicious; per case, $3.45; per doz., $1.75; per bot . . 15c

100 cases Hazel or Royal Salad Dressing; per case, $4.95; per doz., $2.50; per bot 21c

50 cases Hazel Brand or Shrewsbury Tomato Chutney, a dainty relish, per doz., $2.35; per bot . . . 20c

100 cases Hazel Brand or Beaumarchand Olive Oil, first pressing from the crushed olives, qt. bot., per doz., $5.85; per bot., 49c

Imperial or Crystalized Ginger Chips, a delicious confection; ½ lbs., per doz., $1.90; per box 16c

50 cases Santa Leon Salad Oil, per doz., $2.60; per qt. bottle . . . 22c

Also the following goods at especially low prices for this occasion:

Mild Sugar-Cured Ham or Lean Strip Bacon, per lb. 10½

Sugar: 19 lbs. H. & E. Granulated Sugar 1.00

Coffee: Combination Java, makes a delightful, rich, aromatic cup of coffee, 5 lbs., $1.00; per lb 22c

Tea: Just received, special lot New Season 1899 Chop, choicest picking Green, Black or Mixed Tea, generally sold at 50c. and 60c. per lb., this sale, 5 lbs., $1.75; per lb., 38c

Spices: Absolutely pure Pepper, Ginger or Mustard, fresh ground daily, per 2 lbs. 35c

Baking Powder: Price's Cream Baking Powder, per lb. 33c

Canned Vegetables: Solid red ripe Tomatoes, New York State Sweet Sugar Corn, choice Creamy Succotash, Prize Winner String Beans, tender Green Peas, fancy Lima Beans, choice Kidney Beans and Boston Baked Beans, plain or in tomato sauce, per case, $2.25; per doz., $1.15; per can 10c

Fancy Fruit: Fancy White Cherries, choicest Bartlett Pears, Green Gages or Egg Plums, fancy Maine Blueberries or Newark Red Raspberries, per case, $2.75; per doz., $1.40; per can 12c

Prunes: New crop choice Santa Clara Valley Prunes, 10 lbs. 49c

Rice: Choice Carolina Rice, 20 lbs. . 1.00

Cornstarch: Milford Brand Cornstarch, pkg. 5c

New York State Buckwheat, 10 lbs. 35c

Jewelry, Silverware, Watches and Clocks.

Any article in the following list would make a handsome and appropriate Christmas present, and one that would not cost the giver very much money. Prices at The Big Store do not advance around the holidays as at some stores, but we recommend an early selection and purchase before stocks are broken and the crowds become so great as to make shopping an unpleasant duty.

Solid Gold Brooches, handsome wreath design, set with ruby, emerald, sapphire or pearl doublets; also an assortment of knots and heart designs; worth up to $5.00; here to-morrow at 1.95

Diamond Tie Clasp, solid gold, handsomely chased, with fine cut diamond at 4.95

Diamond Screw Earrings, with good, heavy solid gold mountings, and fine cut diamond; worth $7.50; special for to-morrow at 4.75

Diamond Stud, solid gold, fancy Tiffany mounting, good size stone; here to-morrow at 3.45

Diamond Ring, solid gold Tiffany or Belcher mounting, fine cut stone; worth $5.00; here to-morrow at . 3.75

Diamond Cluster Ring, turquoise, ruby, emerald or sapphire doublets, surrounded with 12 genuine chip diamonds; worth $16.00; special for to-morrow at 12.00

Solid Gold Neck Chains, with heavy gold heart, jewel set; special for to-morrow at 2.25

Men's Solid Silverine Watches, open-face style, fitted with American full jewelled movement; here to-morrow at 2.25

Boys' 14-Karat Gold Filled Open-Face Watch, case guaranteed for five years, fitted with a fine Seth Thomas 7-jewelled movement; regular $7.50 value; very special for to-morrow at . 5.75

Sterling Silver Teaspoons, good, heavy weight, at, each . . 48c

Sterling Silver Dessert Spoons and Forks, heavy weight, at each 1.45

Sterling Silver Medium Spoons and Forks, heavy weight, at, each 1.65

Toilet Set, quadruple plated, handsome embossed pattern, bevelled mirror, extra fine quality of bristles in brush, set of 3 pieces in a lined case; worth $7.50; special for this sale 3.95

Cup and Saucer, quadruple plated, handsomely embossed, gold lined; worth $2.75, special at . . 1.75

Crumb Tray and Scraper, quadruple plated, handsomely chased, worth $1.50, special to-morrow at . 95c

Ladies' 14-Karat Gold Filled Open-Face Watch, handsomely embossed case, sold with manufacturer's guarantee for 25 years, fitted with fine American movement; here to-morrow at . . 6.25

Handsome Bronze Clock, Ansonia 8-day movement, porcelain dial, strikes hour and half hour on cathedral gong; here to-morrow at very special price of . . 8.40

Cheval or Opera Glasses, in white and oriental pearl mountings, 4 ligne, extra fine finish, regular $5.25 value, here to-morrow at . 4.75

Cheval or Opera Glass, with long handle, black leather with nickel mountings, worth $5.50, here to-morrow at . . . 3.00

Children's Sterling Silver Nethersole Bracelets, "The Baby Curzon," worth 48c., here to-morrow at 25c

Ink Stands, cut glass, with Russian enamel, gold filled top, really worth $1.50, here to-morrow at . . . 98c

Condensed-Milk Holder, quadruple plated, bright and satin finished, with handle and extra Borden's glass; worth $1.25; here to-morrow at . . . 87c

Fruit Dish, quadruple plated, fancy stand with handsome pink glass dish, worth $3.00, here to-morrow at 1.95

Lunch Set of 4 pieces in imitation of fine cut glass, with open salt and sterling spoon, pepper has extra heavy sterling silver top, the set complete for 25c

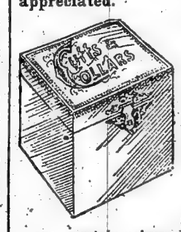
Bread Tray, quadruple plated, satin engraved, full size, worth $1.75, special for to-morrow at . . 95c

24-piece Set of Rogers Arlington Plate, 6 tea spoons, 6 tablespoons, 6 tablefork, 6 dinner knives, all in a handsome lined case, at . 4.25

Purchases made for holiday gifts will be laid aside and kept until called for, provided a small deposit is made at the time of selection.

Leather and Fancy Goods.

Our Celluloid Goods this season are certainly better than anything we have ever offered. We have the largest and most complete stock of these goods of any house in New York, ranging in price from $1.50 to $40. Below we quote a few special items, but the stocks are so large that they really must be seen to be fully appreciated.



Celluloid Collar and Cuff Boxes, in very pretty designs, satin-lined lid, a number of colors to choose from, at . . . 73c

Celluloid Work Boxes, size 8x5 in., satin lined, in pale blue, pink, Nile and other colors, contain scissors, bodkin, thimble, crochet hook and button hook, mirror let in lid, boxes of pretty colorings, 1.00

Manicure Sets in pretty satin-lined boxes, containing scissors and nail file, button-hook, color box and polisher . 1.00

Celluloid Toilet Sets of three pieces, in satin-lined boxes, containing brush, comb and mirror, a very pretty box, for . . 2.00

Toilet and Manicure Sets combined, satin lined, in various colors, containing brush, comb, mirror, cuticle scissors, nail file, polisher and color boxes; sizes of box, 14x6 . . . . . 3.00

Toilet and Manicure Sets combined, in upright boxes of pretty design, containing brush, comb, mirror, nail file, polisher, cuticle scissors, button hook and color boxes 3.40

Combination Pocketbooks of genuine morocco, all leather, leather gussets and inside change pocket, sterling silver corners and sterling silver front initial in centre; value $1.50, special at . . 90c

Chatelaine Bags of real seal, with outside handkerchief pocket, leather, lined, seal covered frame, value $1.50 . . 1.15

Fitted Bags of Bison, Alligator and Cowhide Leather, containing brush, comb, mirror, whisk broom, soap box and bottles, nickle and gilt; plaited tops; also ebony, make very handsome and useful presents, at prices ranging from $9.50 to 16.50

Men's Genuine Alligator Full-Size Letter Case, leather lined; also in grain leather, black or colored . . 98c

Genuine Alligator Combination Pocketbooks, all leather, calf lined, with alligator flap 1.25

Genuine Seal One-piece Combination Pocketbooks, fine quality seal, usually sold for $2.50 . . . 1.90

Pictures (3d Floor, Centre).

Have you seen our new stock for the Holidays? It's worthy of your inspection. Many novelties in pictures and frames. A good place to buy inexpensive Holiday presents. These unequalled specials for to-morrow:

150 Remarque Proof Etchings, fitted in a 3-inch ornamental gilt frame, with mat (size 30x40 inches); sold elsewhere at $5.00; here to-morrow at just . . 3.50

1,000 Handsome Framed Artotypes, fitted in a gilt frame with matched metal corners and mat (size 20x24 inches), all the latest and most popular subjects; formerly sold at $1.50 apiece; here to-morrow 75c

Edison Phonographs, 14.75.

The Edison Standard Phonograph is the most popular of all the talking machines. The regular agents are bound by agreement not to sell for less than $20. We furnish it complete with wood carrying case, 14-inch brass horn, two way hearing tube reader, reproducer, oil can and battery at 14.75

Dress Goods

This week we will make a special display of dress goods suitable for Holiday gifts. Brilliant plaids and bright shades in Henriettas will have conspicuous places, while several tables will contain extremely stylish dress patterns. Some of the items worthy of special mention are as follows:

FOR XMAS GIFTS.

Black Dress Goods.

Black Broadcloth, 52 in. wide, worth $1.50. Brilliantine, rich silky finish; Camel Hair Cloth, very stylish; French Poplin, handsome weave; Mohair Crepon, beautiful designs; Zibeline, now so popular, and several other handsome weaves, all with a finish from $1.00 up to $1.25 a yard, all for to-day at the special price per yard, of 85c

Dress Patterns.

We have not advertised them largely of late, but our assortment is, nevertheless, immense, having been selected with great care, so that colors and combinations may please you, and that prices may always prove lower than elsewhere.

Chene Suitings, a liberal dress pattern, for 1.15

Homespuns, a liberal dress pattern, for 1.75

Novelty Suitings, a liberal dress pattern, for 2.10

Imported Novelties, a liberal dress pattern, for 2.50

Serges, all colors, a liberal dress pattern, for 2.85

Also Robe Lengths of Broadcloths, Venetians, Homespuns and Plaids, put up in dress patterns, at prices ranging up to 9.00

Homespun Plaids, in grays and bright shades, 54 in. wide. Boucle Plaids in high color combinations. Zibeline Plaids in various shades of grays, greens, heliotropes, &c., and a large and well assorted line of Plaid Serges. This stupendous collection of Plaids will have full sway on special counters and will be sold Monday at the remarkable price, per yard, of 75c

Smokers' Articles.

Exceptional values for Monday's sale. All the following at a positive saving from prices charged elsewhere:

Imported—Manuel Garcia:

Cha Selectos, box of 50 . 4.85

Titanos Finos, box of 50 . 6.20

Imported—La Carolina:

Perfecto de Gusto, box of 25 . 4.00

Our "Every Monday" Cigar, a high-grade 5c. cigar. Sold but once a week, Monday, at half price.

Box of 25 . 1.25 | Box of 50 . 2.50

Turkish Water Pipes, single tube; $2.00 value; here at . . . 1.25

French Briar Pipes, first quality, 6 assorted shapes, in good cases, elsewhere 75c.; here to-morrow at . . 39c

French Briar Pipes, first quality, bulldog shape, 3-inch genuine amber mouthpiece, in double plush leather case, elsewhere priced $1.50; here to-morrow at 95c

French Briar Pipes, bulldog shape, real amber mouthpiece, with 14-kt. rolled-gold mountings, elsewhere priced $2.00; here to-morrow at 1.45

GERMAN NAVAL BILL FIGHT

To Begin This Week with the First Reading of the Budget.

EMPEROR'S POLICY IN FAVOR

Public Opinion Indorses the Plan to Make the Country the Second Sea Power of the World.

(Copyright, 1899, The Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—After a fortnight of preliminary skirmishing, the Reichstag, during the coming week, will begin serious work, starting with the first reading of the budget, which always leads to serious and heated debates, the important part of which will be the advance fight for and against the new naval bill. The whole energy of the Emperor and the Government will be used toward making the bill law, and thus assuring for Germany the second place in the world as a naval power.

After surveying the parliamentary field, it seems pretty certain that the bill will pass, as the whole Right, part of the Centre, and a portion of the Left seem sure to vote for it. No doubt German public opinion overwhelmingly favors the bill, as the people believe, with the Emperor, that it is absolutely necessary for Germany's continued prestige as a world power and for the extension of German trade and influence abroad. Besides, the conviction is now held generally here that France need no longer be feared as a serious military competitor; she having reached her ultimate limit in increasing her army, and being unable to compete with Germany's additional fifteen millions of inhabitants. Thus it may be said that Germany now has her hands free for naval expansion.

The Government's purpose to transform Emden, hitherto a small North Sea harbor, into a first-class naval port, has become plainer every day. On excellent authority it is learned that these plans embrace the deepening of the river bed so as to allow the largest warships to enter the port. The Government will also erect big naval shipyards and dry docks at Emden. The dry docks will be pushed so that a number of the vessels demanded by the new Naval bill can be built at Emden.

The Imperial budget estimates, copies of which were distributed to-day among the members of the Reichstag, differ but slightly from the figures telegraphed Nov. 20. The revenue expenditure balance is 2,058,833,551 marks, showing an increase of 105,678,544 marks. The permanent expenditure is estimated at 1,783,042,498 marks, an increase of 107,004,605 marks, this comprising an additional outlay for the army of 21,496,449 marks, and for the navy of 4,895,065 marks. The non-recurring expenditure is estimated at 275,291,053 marks, being a decrease of 1,326,121 marks. The estimated revenue shows an increase of 47,404,040 marks, under the heads of customs and taxes and articles of consumption.

DILLON DECLINES TO SERVE.

Will Not Take Part in Irish Unity Negotiations.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—John Dillon, M. P., declines to serve on the committee appointed by the recent Dublin meeting to carry on the unity negotiations. In a letter to Timothy Healy he says he believes the country has lost all faith in the possibility of the reconstruction of the United Irish Parliamentary party by negotiations between the members of Parliament, and adds that he does not believe the country will accept a settlement so reached. Hence, while wishing well for the efforts of unity, he declines to serve on the committee.

AMERICAN DIPLOMATS' TRIALS.

Illustrations of the Desirability of Having Permanent Homes.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—The desirability of the United States having suitable permanent diplomatic residences is again unpleasantly illustrated by the recent humiliating experience of Ambassador White, and by the fact, just revealed, that Minister Harris, at Vienna, is undergoing a worse experience. Mr. White's trouble is likely to be tided over, as it is understood the little Government of Baden has offered to allow the American Ambassador to continue to occupy the top flat of the building it has purchased until the end of President McKinley's term.

Since Mr. Harris arrived in Vienna he has been vainly searching for a suitable house. The difficulty is the unwillingness of Austrian landlords to rent to Americans. Mr. Harris's predecessor, Bartlett Tripp, had a dispute with his landlord, and the latter sued Mr. Tripp successfully. He pleaded extraterritoriality, but without effect. Even the Vienna tradesmen are disinclined to supply any one connected with the legation unless paid in advance.

These incidents are causing much astonished talk in diplomatic circles at Vienna and Berlin, and many disparaging remarks have been made about the policy of the United States in this respect.

UPROAR IN FRENCH SENATE.

The Prisoners Create a Disturbance and Are Ejected.

PARIS, Dec. 2.—In the Senate High Court to-day M. Guerin asked for an adjournment of the proceedings to permit the selection of new counsel. The Public Prosecutor objected, and M. Guerin argued, amid a fearful din from the prisoners, among whom M. Andre Buffet, Vice President of the Young Royalist League and representative of the Duke of Orleans's Political Bureau, was distinguishable as especially violent.

The Public Prosecutor demanded M. Buffet's expulsion, whereupon the uproar increased, and the President of the court, M. Fallières, ordered the prisoners to be ejected, which was done, after considerable trouble. The session was then suspended, and the Court ordered that M. Buffet be expelled from the sessions for a week.

M. Fallières eventually rejected M. Guerin's application, whereupon M. Guerin asked to be allowed to withdraw. M. Fallières promptly refused this extraordinary request, and M. Guerin retorted, theatrically, that he wished it to be understood that he only remained in court under compulsion. The President of the court paid no attention to this protest and resumed hearing the witnesses.

An ex-soldier, named Michel, who was on duty at Neuilly Barracks the day the Déroulède-Roget incident occurred, testified that M. Déroulède made a violent speech to the officers, reproaching them for not joining in his proposed march on the Elysée.

Gen. Roget, who was called to the stand, denied that he or any other officer heard the remarks attributed to M. Déroulède. Michel, however, maintained the truth of his assertion.

Counsel for the defense protested against reopening the Neuilly affair, which, he pointed out, had already been tried.

Cotton Workers Threaten to Strike.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Representatives of 80,000 cotton and cloth workers have appealed to the Home Secretary, declaring they will go out on strike unless the provisions of the law regulating the sanitary conditions of factories are enforced. They specified violations of the health law committed by manufacturers. A vigorous prosecution was promised, and, as the men apparently made reasonable demands, it is not likely the threatened strike will occur.

Russian Sailors Coming to America.

SOUTHAMPTON, Dec. 2.—The American Line steamer St. Louis, which sailed for New York to-day, had among her passengers sixty Russian sailors and two Russian officers. They are probably part of a detachment bound for America to take charge of one of the Russian cruisers built in the United States.

Railroad to Khartoum to Open.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Gen. Kitchener has decided to open the Wady Halfa-Khartoum Railroad Dec. 4 with a weekly service of trains. Tickets are now being issued to the Second Cataract and Khartoum, where a tourist hotel is being erected.

ULLMAN COLLAMORE & CO.

Royal Dresden China | Figures, Groups, Vases, Plates, Cups, &c.

Choice Pieces. Great Variety.

Fifth Avenue and 30th St.

RUSSIA ASKS MORE TERRITORY.

Compensation Wanted to Counterbalance the Anglo-German Agreement on East Africa.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 15.—The news of the partial defeat of the English troops in South Africa was received with great enthusiasm in St. Petersburg. Many voices have already been heard of an immediate action by Russia in favor of the Boers. But, as I have before pointed out in the columns of THE NEW YORK TIMES, let the friends of the Boers have no illusions on that subject. The Russian Government will continue to act with the greatest prudence, and no action will be taken until it is clearly proved that the campaign undertaken by Great Britain against the South African republics is a task beyond her. It is a fact, nevertheless, that considerable military forces, some 80,000 men in all, have been stationed for the past two months along the Trans-Caspian Railway, as far as Kouchk, near the Afghan frontier, and are prepared to begin an active campaign at a moment's notice, either to take possession of Herat, the key of British India, or to advance toward the Gulf of Persia.

In connection with this much-talked-of seizure of Herat by Russia, it should be said that the prevailing opinion in St. Petersburg is that some compensation is due Russia to counterbalance the advantages derived by Germany from the recent Anglo-German Convention in Eastern Africa. The Russians think that the most suitable compensation would be the annexation of Herat, the Afghan capital, and also of the island of Korgado, which would greatly facilitate communication between Vladivostok and Port Arthur. Rumors have likewise been current concerning Russian designs on Bender-Abbas, in the Ormuz Channel, and on a group of neighboring islands, the possession of which would insure Russia the supremacy in the Persian Gulf, while the occupation of the Sultanate of Raheita would give her the key of the Red Sea.

A novel duel will shortly take place between two well-known Russian authors, Messrs. Novikoff and Bodisco—but it will be a bloodless contest. Mr. Novikoff, who is at present Marshal of the Nobility, an important post in the Civil Service, also holds the office of "Semmski natchalnik," that is to say, one of the numerous officials appointed fifteen years ago by Count Dmitri Tolstoi, the then Minister of the Interior, to keep a close watch over the peasantry, and to check as much as possible the freedom granted the moujiks by Alexander II. Lately, in a highly interesting pamphlet, Mr. Novikoff described in an extremely realistic and graphic manner the present wretched condition of the peasantry. At the same time he accused a number of great landed proprietors of taking a mean advantage of the peasants' wretched plight to increase their revenues by making the starving wretches work for absurdly low wages. Mr. Bodisco, Marshal of the Nobility in another province, and likewise an author of repute, has taken up the cudgels for the land owners, and declares Mr. Novikoff's statements to be unfounded and false. The two adversaries have now decided to have a committee of investigation appointed, consisting of mutual friends of their own. The members of this committee will carefully investigate the matter on the ground. Mr. Novikoff has solemnly pledged himself never again to publish any article whatsoever if the committee decide that Mr. Bodisco's statements are well founded, and Mr. Bodisco has taken the same pledge, if the committee decide in favor of Mr. Novikoff.

The article recently published in the Parisian newspaper La Russie against ex-King Milan and the Obrenovitch dynasty has been widely commented upon and heartily approved by the St. Petersburg press. To-day the Peterbourgskia Viedomosti makes use of the article in La Russie as a pretext for renewed diatribes against ex-King Milan and his son, King Alexander. As the Peterbourgskia Viedomosti is the official mouthpiece of the Government, the article is in the nature of a severe warning to the young Servian sovereign and a kind of "silium abeundi" to his father. The following quotation shows the gist of the article in question:

"Whatever may be the personal origin of Milan Obrenovitch, King Alexander is the legitimate sovereign of Servia. It is the young King's duty to labor for the welfare of his subjects and to put an end to the present disturbed state of affairs in the kingdom. To accomplish this, however, it is absolutely necessary that the Servian monarch should take the reins of Government in his own hands and do away with the suspicion that Milan is the virtual ruler of the kingdom, and this because the ex-King not only solemnly abdicated, but renounced all his rights as a citizen of Servia. Should Milan continue to remain at the helm of the Servian ship of state, the result can only be a fatal one for the Obrenovitch dynasty. If Milan perseveres in his present course, the setting sun of the Obrenovitch dynasty will soon be eclipsed by the princely family of Montenegro."

This is the latest warning given King Alexander by the Russian Government; should it remain unheeded, it is probable that the Czar's advisers will before long resort to more energetic measures.

B. C. DE W.

WOMEN IN INSURANCE FIELD.

A Fair Agent of a Big Company Relates Her Experiences.

"There is a field for women in the insurance business," says the woman who is a general agent in a big insurance company, "and when they get well started in it it proves very profitable. There are a good many ups and downs in it as in any other kind of business. I have not been so long in it but what I have a feeling of timidity at first when I am going to talk insurance to any one, but I have always been most courteously treated.

"I have always insured men so far. I have made some attempt to do business with women, but without much success. Women are afraid of insurance. They have the feeling about it that many people have about making their wills—that it is ominous—and they will not insure themselves or have their husbands insure if they can help it. Many men are insured without letting their wives know anything about it.

"The pleasantest way to do business is to send out notices and call upon the people who respond, and then you find an open field for your work. It is harder to make calls upon absolute strangers, but that has to be done. A woman going into the business usually begins with her friends, and through them she will very likely get a good deal of business when it is known what she is doing. The business is perfectly legitimate. I believe in insurance thoroughly, and insurance people should be always as well received as other business people.

"There is a trouble with it is that it is so easy to become an agent that many people have taken up the work who are too lazy to do anything but bore people, and they get the business into bad repute. There are some men who are too lazy to do anything by which they can support themselves. At the same time, they like to earn a little money sometimes, and they become agents for insurance companies. They are not willing to work hard enough to support themselves then, but now and again when they have good luck they will get some one to insure, and in the meantime they have made themselves such a nuisance to business people that energetic, hard-working people who go to work properly have a hard time of it.

"The work is profitable when you do well and have worked up a clientele, but there are many disappointments. For instance, I had a man who was to be insured the other day for a large amount, and I would have made a couple of hundred dollars, but, though he passed the examinations well, his family records were not good and the company would not take him. That is a disappointment when you have done the work, think you see the results, and then lose it all. I happened to see the name of an old friend of my family in the directory the other day, and went to call upon him. I had not seen him for a long time, but I told him what I was doing, and he was thinking of increasing his insurance, and he will probably give it to me. Like business of any kind, you have to work if you are going to succeed."

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

A FRENCH PROTEST AGAINST ANGLOPHOBIA.—M. Urbain Gohier, whose book attacking the French Army, "L'Armée Contre la Nation," caused him to be prosecuted by the French Government, has now entered the lists against his fellow-journalists, who are attacking Great Britain. His first article, published in L'Aurore, has not only excited much comment on the Continent, but it has been widely copied in England. Writes M. Gohier:

"'Death to the English!' 'The End of England!' 'Let us Boycott English Houses!' 'La Chasse à l'Anglais est Ouverte!' Such are the principal titles of articles which abound to-day in the French press. Below are columns of invective and insult to the English people. A newspaper affirms that the French soldier is burning to try his magazine rifle on the sons of perfidious Albion. Another offers to transport the French Army in balloons to Charing Cross. A third proposes the hanging of the Queen of England as soon as possible."

All this shows a very deplorable state of mind on the part of Frenchmen, the writer goes on to say, and is particularly offensive to intelligent Frenchmen; for France, "which has allowed so many abominable crimes to be committed beneath her flag in Indo-China, Madagascar, and the Soudan," should be the last to denounce other nations. Further on M. Gohier asks his countrymen if they have forgotten how they have benefited by many acts of kindness from their neighbors across the Channel. "I remember," he writes, "when a schoolboy after the siege of Paris, that I made a good meal of bread sent from England."

M. Gohier then proceeds to point out the moral of this wave of Anglophobia that is agitating France: "Parisian trade will probably feel the effects of this policy next year. The English would be naïfs if they brought their guineas to people who talk of nothing but their extermination and who incessantly insult their country. When the fine dreams of receipts disappear in smoke, the shopkeepers of the Rue de la Paix, the managers of theatres and of all the other places of amusement, will perhaps know whom they have to thank for this."

***

CONCERNING THE ALLEGED ALLIANCE AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN.—Le Petit Marseillais, which frequently manages to secure important and exclusive diplomatic news from St. Petersburg, recently printed a dispatch from that city in which it gave the details of an attempted scheme on the part of certain powers to form a coalition against Great Britain. A passage from the dispatch reads as follows:

"Russia was the soul of the movement, which explains the journeys of Count Mouravieff. Diplomatic intervention was first of all to take place, and a suspension of arms to be imposed on the two parties to enable a European congress to be summoned. If, as was probable, England refused to submit, she risked a rupture with the greatest States of the Continent. This might be her ruin, because the landing of an army in England would lead to a rising in India and Ireland, the evacuation of Egypt, the loss of Canada, the restitution of the Cape to the Dutch and of Gibraltar to the Spanish. The three great powers of the coalition were Russia, Germany, and France. The neutrality of Austria, the adhesion of Holland, Spain, and probably Portugal were certain.

"Now, I am told here on good authority that the French Government flatly refused to have anything to do with the proposal. In spite of the representations of Count Mouravieff it gave it clearly to be understood that it would not 'in any case' make war against England. The pretext was the present insufficiency of the fleet and the disorganization of the chief military commands. It was added at Paris that the coasts of France were unprovided with defensive works, as well as those of Algeria, and that the cables were in the hands of the English."

***

THE CASE OF BARCELONA AND THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT.—Cable dispatches from Madrid recently announced that the police had arrested the Barcelona merchants who had refused to pay their taxes. The technical charge against them was sedition. Owing to influence brought to bear upon the Government, a respite of five days was granted the persons arrested until the Attorney General of the Supreme Court of Justice might define the case against them. The Attorney General has now addressed a circular to the law officers of the other courts proving that the refusal in Barcelona to pay taxes does actually constitute a transgression of existing laws. A collective refusal to pay taxes is a conspiracy to render government impossible, and is, therefore, punishable as an act of rebellion under an article of the ordinary criminal code.

The legality of the arrest and imprisonment has therefore been placed beyond question, but the Government so far has not ordered the delinquents to be rearrested, and the period of respite has been extended. The temporizing policy of Señor Silvela, the Premier, is said to have a most demoralizing effect upon the country. A recent statement that he made to the Chambers of Commerce is regarded more in the light of an apology than anything else.

That the people have lost all hope of better times, and even the spirit to rebel is said to be emphasized in the fact that hundreds of the inhabitants of Catalonia are emigrating every week to South America. The Catalan Deputies demand that a fair sum total should be fixed as their contribution to the State revenue, and that the people of Catalonia should be left to impose the necessary taxes and to collect them. Other provinces are making similar demands. This, it is pointed out in the Ministerial press, means nothing less than the splitting up of the Kingdom of Spain into the kingdoms and provinces into which it was formerly divided. It is said to be the belief in foreign diplomatic circles in Madrid that some of the Ministers are inclined to look favorably upon this desperate remedy, but that they cannot make up their minds to sanction it.

***

THE NILE VALLEY NOW OPEN TO TOURISTS.—Lord Kitchener's recent statement, made in Cairo, that he would proclaim the Soudan open to all comers early in December has been rendered practicable by the recent death of the Khalifa and the utter annihilation of the last remnant of the dervish host by Sir Francis Wingate. A further statement of the Sirdar was also cited in these columns, in which he said that preparations had already been made to organize a tourist service between Wady Halfa and Khartoum, with dining and sleeping cars, and that a small hotel would shortly be opened in Khartoum. Recent advices also show that the railway is probably now completed to Khartoum.

In the light of all this, it is not, perhaps, surprising that a cable dispatch was received last week at the New York office of Thomas Cook & Sons, announcing that the first Cook tourist party for Khartoum will leave Cairo Jan. 4, 1900. The spot where Gordon died, the tomb of the Mahdi, and other places of considerable interest to many persons are thus made easily accessible. Incidentally, the tourists may have a hunt for the famous treasure of El Mahdi, which is said to be hidden somewhere near Khartoum or on the opposite bank of the river in the neighborhood of Omdurman.

***

THE TRANSVAAL'S YIELD OF GOLD FOR OCTOBER.—The report of the Transvaal Government concerning the output of gold for October has just been received in London. In commenting on it, the financial papers say that for the first time on record they can say without fear of contradiction that British shareholders will positively congratulate themselves on the falling-off in the Transvaal output. The smaller the yield the better, they say, since it is not very desirable to present the yield to the Transvaal Government. The Minister of Mines calls his report an "interim announcement," and ironically remarks that "some of the companies did not work the full month."

The returns announced by the Minister of Mines are as follows: Wemmer, 6,525 oz.; Village Main Reef, 6,619 oz.; Johannesburg, 1,364 oz.; Ferreira, 3,338 oz.; total, 17,846 oz., against 426,556 oz. for September and 482,108 oz. for August. The October return of 1898 was 423,217 oz.

***

BRITISH MILITARY PENSION RULES AMENDED.—In the future wounded British officers will be provided for in a more equitable manner, the Queen having recently approved by royal warrant a change in the existing pension rules. Her Majesty orders that:

"An officer who has received in action a bodily injury, certified by the regulated military authority to be very severe, though not equivalent to the loss of a limb, may, at the discretion of our Secretary of State, be allowed a gratuity of from three to twelve months' full pay of the appointment held by him at the time of the injury. If at or after the expiration of the period for which the gratuity has been awarded the injury be certified to be likely to be permanent in its effects, the officer may be granted a temporary pension at half the rates prescribed in the scale laid down. Such pension shall be renewable from year to year at the discretion of our Secretary of State, according to subsequent reports of the regulated military authority. If the temporary pension is renewed for five years, and the bodily disability continues, the pension may be converted into a permanent pension."

Prices Are Vital—

what we want is your confidence. Competition may strive to impress you with the idea that our prices are high—they're certainly higher than the cheap and shoddy—positively a third less than the exclusive shops; yet trade information will tell you we import the finest fabrics, and buyers, that they purchase reasonably.

Burnham & Phillips

Custom Tailoring Only.

Temple Court Annex, 119 Nassau St.

VIENNA'S LATEST GOSSIP

Austrian Parliament Obstructing the New Cabinet.

GOETHE'S LAST LOVE IS DEAD

The Art of Photographing in Relief Said to be Discovered—Great Balloon Ascension Is Planned.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—The Austrian Parliament is again working, but now the neutral and non-political Cabinet of Count Clary, which started it working, is shaky. The Conservative majority, of which the Czechs form a part, naturally desire a Cabinet of their own, although no such Cabinet could as yet keep its ground. So the majority fight against the Cabinet, openly and clandestinely—that is, by means of disguised obstruction. The Germans are contented with the Ministry.—Although it is not a Parliamentary one, it is better for their purpose than any Cabinet, taken from the Czecho-Polish majority could possibly be. In fact, Count Clary has turned out to be more faithful to the Constitution than were the last Cabinet members. His first act was solemnly to declare that he would never employ that notorious emergency clause (14) of the Constitution which, in a flagrantly unconstitutional manner, was misused by Count Thun.

It will be remembered that the latter Count, pushing Parliament on one side, used that clause to sanction the budget, the prolongation of the treaty between Austria and Hungary, and many other most important measures. When at the first meeting of the House motions were brought in for the abolishment or the amendment of that dangerous clause—likely to expose the Austrian Parliament to ridicule—the reactionary majority made every effort to procrastinate, and thus to frustrate the motion. Most probably the present neutral Premier by declaring that he would never employ the clause in an unconstitutional way himself but his Cabinet's thread of life.

The Czechs and Poles are trying to trip him up whenever they can. The other day the commission for the control of the State debt, in which the majority, by means of the Chairman's casting vote, can turn the balance, refused to deliver up 50,000,000 florins in gold which the Government, in accordance with the terms of the Ausgleich, had taken upon itself to hand over to the Austro-Hungarian Bank. The time for the use of the money is approaching, and the Government is in the greatest embarrassment. Thus Count Clary's Cabinet is being remorselessly driven to the use of Clause 14 or resignation. The situation is such a very difficult one that the Emperor himself has intervened. His Majesty is summoning to audiences one after the other of the important members of the majority and explaining to them that in the present position of affairs no Cabinet but a neutral Cabinet d'affaires is possible. Hitherto, whenever the Emperor intervened in this manner his influence on all parties sufficed to settle matters; it remains to be seen if it will be so this time.

GOETHE'S LAST LOVE.

Goethe's last love, the Baroness Ulrike von Levetzow, died at her château at Triplitz, in Bohemia, aged ninety-five years, on the 13th inst. The greatest German poet and lover was already seventy-three years old when he conceived a passionate attachment for her. She was a girl of only eighteen, but endowed with all the charms of soul and body.

To his enthusiastic admiration of Ulrike the German people owe the "Trilogy of Passion," which the ever-youthful poet of seventy-three wrote when at Marienbad and Carlsbad he made the acquaintance of Ulrike von Levetzow, who was then staying there with her mother. The "Olympian" conceived such a violent love for the charming maiden that her soul was filled with a noble pride lasting all her life. Her whole being was devoted to Goethe's memory. She remained unwedded; the experiences of her nineteenth year still occupied all her thoughts and feelings when she was an old woman. Even at her advanced age she retained all her mental freshness; nor did she lose the charm which had captivated the poet any more than a love of the beautiful and the indescribable piety which she preserved for Goethe's memory. In former years her estate at Triplitz was a veritable Mecca for all writers on Goethe. In German literature whole volumes are devoted to his last love.

PHOTOGRAPHS IN RELIEF.

A Vienna photographer named Pietzner has, it appears, succeeded in carrying the application of photography to the production of reliefs just the one step further that was needed to render it practically useful.

It is uncertain who made the first efforts in this direction, but at the Paris exhibition of 1867 some very imperfect achievements in this line were to be seen. Quite recently came from Berlin the news of a process which the inventor named "photosculpture," and it, too, consisted in the preparation of more or less high reliefs by means of the photographic camera. These and numerous other tentative attempts in the same direction are based on the swelling of gelatine, but until photosculpture was invented the other day they were all most imperfect. Now, however, it seems that Herr Pietzner's process, named by him "plastophotography," surpasses all that had previously been accomplished in this direction. The inventor has produced reliefs after models, paintings, drawings, &c., which are said to be no imperfect essays, but really artistic productions. Seike's photosculpture hardly does more than fix the contours of numerous parallel longitudinal sections of the model, leaving all the details to be made by hand; Pietzner's process goes far beyond that and produces all the detail and the finest shades. Consequently the artist's work is confined to adding just the very finest features; for instance, emphasizing some very high light, or, say, when a photograph is reproduced by the new process, to make the drapery more flowing than it was in the photograph itself. This invention will make reliefs much cheaper, and will open up a new branch of art industry. At present no less a sum than $12,000 is asked for the stamp for a relief scarfpin by Charpentier, whereas this new invention will make the cost of such stamps comparatively inexpensive.

The other day Herr Pietzner showed to a number of invited persons reliefs in metal, plaster, wax, china, &c., all produced by plastography. Among them was a raised portrait of the Emperor, the lines and detail wonderfully soft, reminding the beholder indeed of the best French work. Another remarkable reproduction was Dupuis's "Wave," on metal plates, as likewise on vases of the most modern shapes, in which the clearness was remarkable. Then there were reproductions of some works by the great Austrian painter, Makart. Very interesting were likewise the brass fittings for doors and furniture in the English style, an article of great importance for art industry. Plastography seems likely to find very extensive application in the production of plates for embossing leather and wall papers, besides name plates, &c. The production of these things is very slow, and consequently expensive, both of which drawbacks will be removed by Herr Pietzner's invention, and already a firm has been started for the commercial exploitation of plastography.

NEW ROENTGEN RAYS.

A new kind of Röntgen rays appears to have just been discovered. On the occasion of the annual meeting of the Chemical-Physical Society, recently held in Vienna, Herr Stefan Meyer and Dr. von Schweidler made some very interesting demonstrations with the newly discovered element, "radium." That element gives off rays similar to but weaker than the Röntgen rays. The former, like the latter, produce a clearly discernible fluorescence, and can penetrate sheets of aluminium and other metals, nay, pretty thick lead also. Another important property of radium is that it makes the air a better conductor for electricity. The first public demonstrations took place before the Society of Physicists at Munich, and now experiments with it have been made in the presence of a number of scientists in this city. They were carried on in a perfectly dark room. The first thing shown was a screen coated with cyanide of barium platinum, and radium produced fluorescence on it. The preparation was distinctly visible at a distance of about two meters, and in regard to the intensity of its light it reminded the beholder of the glow worm. The insertion of an aluminium plate made the effect produced a little weaker, while copper and iron diminished it more, but still the phosphorescent light was visible to those near. Further demonstrations showed that radium makes the air conductive for electricity. Then some radium was placed near an electroscope, and the resultant effect shown on a white sheet on the wall. All the experiments were most successful.

GREAT BALLOON ASCENSION.

A great aeronautic event is to take place at Friedrichshafen, on the Lake of Constance, within a few days. Strangers from all parts of the world are flocking thither. For some weeks the first ascent of Count Zeppelin's steerable airship has been expected, an invention concerning which wonders are related, although hardly anybody has as yet seen it. Only a very few privileged persons have been allowed to glance into the mysterious workshop.

The ascent will take place very shortly. All the preparations are said to have been completed, and the filling of the balloon is declared to have commenced. The first thing to be done with the aeronautic ship is practically to test its steering capacity according to the demands made on it. Not until all the defects coming to light have been removed will it be publicly tried.

The correspondents of American and British newspapers have chartered steamers in order to follow the balloon across the lake. The larger boats will contain the reporters and photographers, while the smaller ones will keep up communication with land and the nearest telegraph office. The ascent is to take place from the water. The enormous hall in which the colossal balloon is being put together is a little more than 500 meters from the shore. It was decided to start from the water because there the course is perfectly clear, and so no damage to the expensive apparatus is to be feared. This is the more advisable, as the car does not hang freely, but is fastened to the balloon with aluminium rods. Strictly speaking, there is not a single balloon, but rather there are fifteen small balloons fastened together. This has the advantage of minimizing the danger to be feared from bursting, for now even should one, or even a number of the balloons, burst, it would not cause the whole to fall to the ground, and, indeed, would hardly do more than reduce the carrying power. The fifteen balloons hold 10,000 cubic meters of gas, and can support an equal number of kilograms, but as the load on the trial trip will not weigh nearly so much, even including the aeronauts a considerable quantity of ballast will be carried on that occasion. It is probable that there will be only four persons in the car, namely, Count Zeppelin, the inventor and constructor of the apparatus which is called after him; Director Kuebler, who is managing the work, and two assistants.

DR. JOHANNES HOROWITZ.

MINNESOTA'S PINE FAILING.

Estimated that the Entire Supply Will Be Exhausted Within the Next Five Years.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 2.—According to the best estimates available there are now 7,000,000,000 feet of white pine still standing within the borders of the State of Minnesota. To one who is unacquainted with the magnitude of the lumber interests in the State this would seem to indicate that lumbering will continue to be one of the State's great industries for some years to come; but when it is stated further that this pine is melting away at the rate of 1,600,000,000 feet every year, it requires but a minute's computation to demonstrate that this industry is rapidly drawing to a close and that, in another five years, if the present rate of consumption continues, an end will have been reached to the lumber business of the State.

The mills of Minneapolis will cut almost 120,000,000 feet more lumber this year than in any that has preceded it, and preparations are making for an even larger output for next season. This Winter more than 15,000 men will be employed in the pine woods, and more logs will be banked, if conditions are favorable, than ever before. The wages paid these men will aggregate about $450,000 per month, and they will be steadily employed until the Spring break-up.

The remaining pine lands of the State are mostly held by large operators, the Weyerhauser syndicates controlling the larger portion. In the name of the Pine Tree Lumber Company, they hold over 900,000,000 feet; the Northern Lumber Company of Cloquet, another Weyerhauser concern, controls not far from 800,000,000 feet; the Cloquet Lumber Company, 600,000,000 feet, and the Mississippi River Logging Company 300,000,000 feet. Then come the immense holdings of the Pillsbury family, the Shevlin-Carpenter Company, T. B. Walker, the Akeley interests, and many other smaller concerns.

When the Minneapolis mills began sawing, the centre of the white pine industry was in Maine; Maine lumbermen were brought out to build the mills and do the early logging. Michigan pine was the first to be assailed. It has been practically gone for the past fifteen years, about the only remaining tracts being found in Ontonagon County, in the upper peninsula, where, until destroyed by fire, the Diamond Match Company had its mills. Then the lumbermen moved upon the forests of Wisconsin, and so great has been the work of destruction that the last remaining pine in the State will be cut upon the Chippewa River this Winter. Five years more and the pine of this State will be gone, and already the lumbermen are casting their eyes toward the Pacific Coast. From Minnesota the next step will be to Oregon, Washington, and California. Already Frederick Weyerhauser has acquired vast holdings in Washington, T. B. Walker is somewhere in Northern California on his own account, and others are looking over the forests of Oregon and Washington; among the latter, ex-Gov. D. M. Clough. In fact, every lumberman in Minnesota to-day is thinking about the Pacific Coast, whether he has actually made up his mind to go there or not.

In a general way it may be said that 20,000 of the 220,000 inhabitants of the City of Minneapolis are engaged in the business of making lumber, and that the amount of capital invested is not far from $10,000,000. The amount paid annually to the men who work in the mills and yards as wages is about $3,000,000. In view of the fact that the end is sure to come soon, these men are naturally a little apprehensive as to their future. The probable solution will be that they will follow their present employers to the Coast, and there find work in the same industry in which they are now engaged.

Business men of this city view the situation with equanimity. They are confident that with the passing of the lumberman there will be a great addition to the agricultural population, and that the added trade which will naturally come as the result of the development of the rich farming lands of the northern part of the State will more than compensate them for any loss they may sustain by the closing down of the sawmills.

GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY'S PLANS.

Special Steps May Be Taken to Honor President Daly's Memory.

As a mark of honor to the memory of the late Charles P. Daly, who for thirty-five years was President of the American Geographical Society, it is not likely that a successor will be chosen at the annual meeting of the society in January. Such is the presentiment of the members, and in all probability the society will get along without an official President during the coming year. The future meetings, therefore, will be presided over by one of the three Vice Presidents, each one being on an equal footing with the others, as the distinction of First, Second, and Third Vice Presidents is not recognized. The present holders of that office are W. H. H. Moore, the Rev. Dr. C. C. Tiffany, and Gen. Egbert L. Viele.

The next meeting of the society will be held in Chickering Hall on Monday evening, Dec. 11, when a lecture on "The Heaths and Hollows of Holland" will be given by the Rev. Dr. William Elliott Griffin.

Plans for the society's new building on West Eightieth Street are being made, and it is hoped that ground may be broken next Spring.

B. Altman & Co.

Silk Department

Waist, Skirt and Dress Lengths of Colored and Black Silks, including Satins, Bengalines, Foulards, Taffetas and Fancy Silks, also in

Colored Dress Goods Dep't,

1,000 Dress Lengths Imported All Wool Suitings,

$3.50 and $4.00 Each.

And a large assortment of Plain, Fancy and Mixed effects cut in Dress Patterns for Holiday Gifts, all at reduced prices.

Ladies' Coat Department.

Reefers of Black Kersey, silk lined; value $14.00, at . . . $10.00

Reefers of Unfinished Worsted or Cheviot, fancy silk lined; value $21.00, at . . . $15.00

—also—

Velour Coats, embroidered with jet and braid, value $28.00, at . . . $22.50

Fur Department

Fur Neck Pieces and Muffs

of Black and Silver Fox, Russian and Hudson Bay Sable, Blue and Brown Fox, etc.

Paletots, Eton Jackets and Coats of Broadtail, Seal and Persian Lamb, with collars and revers of Sable, Chinchilla, Mink, Marten, etc.

Opera Wraps, Fur Lined Capes.

B. Altman & Co.

Announce the receipt of a Fine Collection of Silver Fox Skins,

suitable for Muffs or Boas, ranging in prices as follows:

$200, $350, $500, $625, $750, $1,000, $1,250, and $1,500 Per Skin.

Eighteenth Street, Nineteenth Street and Sixth Avenue.

NEW PUBLICATIONS. | NEW PUBLICATIONS.

First Large Edition Exhausted. Second Edition Ready Tuesday, Dec. 5th.

Owing to the great demand for Miss Cholmondeley's novel, aroused by the tremendous enthusiasm with which the book has been received in London, the first edition was exhausted before a second could be prepared. This book is now in its 18th thousand in England, and is everywhere greeted as the best work of its kind since George Eliot's day.

Red Pottage

BY MARY CHOLMONDELEY

"The novel of the moment. Selling at the rate of

$1.50 1000 COPIES A DAY. $1.50

is Mary Cholmondeley's 'Red Pottage.' The Spectator started the furor, and the other critics followed enthusiastically. Society is now heralding the author as a second George Eliot or Charlotte Bronte."—London Correspondence of the Evening Post, Sat., Nov. 18th.

HARPER & BROTHERS, Publishers, Franklin Sq., N. Y.

BARS ISOMERIC TURPENTINE.

Bureau of Combustibles Takes Steps Against Its Sale.

The Bureau of Combustibles has taken steps against the sale and use of a compound known as isomeric turpentine, which is sold in place of turpentine in violation of the law. After discovering during the week that the market had been flooded with it the Bureau turned a sample of the compound over to W. S. Purdy, official tester of oils and combustibles for the Fire Department. Mr. Purdy after analysis found it to be practically a mixture of benzine and turpentine.

Inspector Murray of the Bureau said that its sale is a menace to life and property, for it has all the properties of benzine, and yet is used by painters, druggists, and others. The law governing the use and sale of combustibles states clearly that no one is allowed to use benzine where there are more than three families in a house, yet this compound is sold in tenements containing many families.

TURN AGAINST CAPT. SOLOMON.

Company H of the Eighth Regiment held a meeting last week and withdrew its support from Joseph Solomon, a candidate for the Captaincy of the company. Soloman was Captain of the company prior to the war with Spain, but he did not go to the front.

A new Captain is to be selected shortly, and Solomon rallied his old supporters, who circulated a petition which was sent to Gov. Roosevelt favoring his reappointment. Solomon claimed that he was being abused and maligned by higher officers in the regiment, and his old company stood by him for a short time.

At the last company meeting, however, a committee was appointed to report upon another candidate. Solomon was defeated by several members of the company, who claimed that he had deceived them and induced them to sign his petition to the Governor.

Efforts to locate Capt. Solomon yesterday were fruitless. He has moved several times recently, and his official address as given at the Eighth Regiment Armory is 555 West One Hundred and Sixty-first Street. At that number it was said he had moved away, and no one seemed to know where he had gone.

Patriotic Memorials at West Point.

Ceremonies attending the unveiling of two memorial tablets in the chapel at West Point, placed there in honor of the Revolutionary heroes and the heroes of the Spanish-American war by the Daughters of the American Revolution, will take place on Tuesday afternoon. Special cars will be attached to the New York Central and Hudson River train leaving the Grand Central Station at 1:30 A. M. Mrs. D. Phoenix Ingraham is Chairman of the Committee of Arrangements for the Daughters of the Revolution.

Woman Arrested Queerly on the Street.

A well-dressed young woman, who gave her name as Agnes Livingston of Ellenville, N. Y., was picked up by the police last night at Fifty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, acting in a queer manner. She was removed to the station and held for examination as to her sanity. She is 5 feet 2 inches tall, a brunette, dressed in black, and wore a lace-

THE BOER SECRET SERVICE

Said to be Unequaled for Cunning and Device.

PLOTS AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN

Pamphlet Recently Issued Exposes the System and Makes Serious Charges Against Germany.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 31.—Cape Town has been startled by the issue of a brochure on the Transvaal secret service system. The existence of this system and the application of its funds for the furtherance of the interests of the Afrikander Bond in Cape Colony have long been matters of notoriety, but the charges which from time to time have been made in this connection against persons in prominent positions have hitherto never been definitely substantiated. The revelations now made are of the most sensational character, but of the writer's veracity there can be little doubt. Not only does he append his own name, but gives those of persons implicated, (many of whom are on the spot,) with the dates of the various transactions and the means by which he was enabled to obtain the facts recorded.

The complications which rather more than ten years ago arose between the United States and Germany will still be fresh in the minds of Americans, and possibly the name of Dr. Wilhelm Knappe, who had previously been Consul General for Germany, may not be unfamiliar to them. At any rate, in consequence of his cruelty and mismanagement, Bismarck found it necessary to recall him.

His next appointment was a remarkable one. In 1889, through the understanding that existed between Bismarck and Dr. Leyds, the States Secretary to the South African Republic, Dr. W. Knappe and Herman Militz were appointed joint general managers of the National Bank of the South African Republic. In April, 1891, there was a very heated discussion between Dr. Leyds and certain members of the Volksraad as to the advisability of having two German instead of two Hollander gentlemen as responsible heads of the Government bank, but Dr. Leyds, as usual, succeeded in carrying his point. It was the two German managers of the National Bank who laid the foundation of the Transvaal secret service system, "the administration of which, as to cunning and device, has yet to find its equal."

PLOTTING AGAINST GREAT BRITAIN.

The writer of the pamphlet gives a copy of a document dated at Pretoria, Aug. 24, 1892, and bearing the name of Herr von Herff, then German Consul at Pretoria, showing "How a few regiments of Prussian infantry could be landed at Delagoa Bay and force their way into the Transvaal territory," and, "once in," defy British suzerainty and for all time "hang the annoying question of her paramountcy on the nail."

It was by simulating stupidity that the author of the pamphlet, who was in the service of the bank, was able to gain much information, the pilots being thin in consequence less careful in his presence than in the case of an ordinary outsider. The names of those attending the secret meetings at the bank are given, and include, besides several prominent men in South Africa, (some of whom were Directors of the bank,) the two managers, and Dr. Leyds, State's Secretary. President Krüger, who was present with his son-in-law, Jan Eloff, at one of these meetings, said: "England must not be the supreme power in South Africa. We feel sure that, provided we have Germany with us, and with the Orange Free State and the colony, we shall win the day." This statement was received with loud cheering, and the posse of zarps stationed at the Landdrost court adjoining rushed to the bank, wondering what had happened. The rumor next day was that an attempt had been made to break into the bank.

About the same time the feeling between the progressive and bond parties in Cape Colony being very bitter, and a forced being short of funds for election purposes in connection with two seats in the House of Assembly that had become vacant, a member of the present Cape Ministry, it is alleged, received in April, 1892, eight hundred-pound notes of De Nationale Bank, signed by W. Knappe, manager, and S. Meintjes, accountant, the notes being taken from Book A, 1892. A prominent Cape politician, sometimes termed the dictator and Ministry maker, received during the general elections of 1894 from £1,200 to £2,000 for electioneering and like purposes from the Berliner Handelsgesellschaft, (Chamber of Commerce.) Among other like instances mentioned, it is stated that in consequence of a certain mission intrusted to a man named Erasmus, from Pretoria, in May, 1892, the present Treasurer General returned home one afternoon considerably better off financially than when he left in the morning. Bond politicians have frequently been accused of being the recipients of large sums of money from the Transvaal for political purposes, but have always emphatically denied receiving such financial support.

CONFEDERATES IN EUROPE.

It is said that the mysterious meetings at the National Bank chambers were initiated at the express desire of the Handelsgesellschaft at Berlin, and that the Emperor used his influence in connection therewith. The Secret Service agents were at work, not only in Cape Colony, but in the Portuguese provinces and at Lisbon, where every effort was made to obtain a port at Delagoa Bay. The whole of the decorations in connection with the festivities over the opening of the Pretoria-Lorenzo Marques Railway in 1895 were paid for out of the funds of the Transvaal Secret Service, although openly the Volksraad voted £25,000 for the purpose. Aided by Germany, Dr. Leyds approached Lisbon over and over again, with a view to get Delagoa Bay ceded to the Transvaal, but, in spite of enormous deficits in the royal budget, Portugal evidently did not quite see its way clear to yield to Dr. Leyds's courteous representations.

It is stated that the amount lately expended in Secret Service averages annually a total of £80,000, and the following list of prominent agents is given, who, it is stated, together with a large number of others, receive annual support from the Pretoria "chest": Henry Labouchère, member of Parliament for Northampton, England; Reginald F. Stabham, late Standard and Diggers' News, now on Daily Chronicle staff; Victor Schoenmehl, manager National Bank, Paris; P. J. Malan, C. A. Colliers, Pretoria; T. W. Beckett, N. J. Smit, (late Commissioner of Railways,) Pretoria; Van der Merwe of Van der Merwe, near Pretoria; C. Pott, Managing Director of De Vost Afrikaansche Compagnie, Delagoa Bay; Dr. Hoffman, M. L. A., Cape Colony; T. O'Brien, Irish National Alliance, Vancouver, Canada. Among the subsidized press are the following: Die Hamburger Nachrichten, Hamburg, Germany; Vossische Zeitung, Germany; Berliner Neueste Nachrichten, Germany; Siecle, Paris.

HOW THE SERVICE IS RECRUITED.

Any person doing secret service for the State always receives his remuneration through an intermediary channel, so that in the event of his turning against the Government he cannot show a clear case. Persons outside Pretoria desirous of joining the Secret Service of the Transvaal have to show reasons and give exemplary references and bring with them to Pretoria such personal introductions, leaving no doubt as to their guarantee of good faith. The newly appointed servant then enters upon a nine months' course of instruction and probation, during which he is carefully watched and shadowed by other agents in the same employ, quite unknown to himself, but to whom he has to report. His salary ranges, according to circumstances, from £5 to £10 a week, with, in some capacities, a substantial bonus at the expiration of his term. If satisfactory reports are sent to headquarters regarding his trustworthiness and abilities, the novice, at the completion of the nine months, is sworn to secrecy and acquainted with the more important branches of the service. He is then engaged for a period of two years at a monthly salary of from £35 to £50, with all traveling expenses; if he has to make long journeys to the Continent or elsewhere, the salary is considerably increased.

In 1894 the National Bank was reported to have suffered a dead loss of some £80,000 owing to the gross carelessness of the joint managers in advancing Government overdrafts on securities not existing. These two gentlemen left Pretoria with the connivance of Dr. Leyds, but, it is alleged, turned up in Europe occupying yet more responsible positions at the express desire of the Kaiser. The Secretary of the bank, who was also concerned in the affair, and occupied a house belonging to the State, was appointed manager of the Paris branch and hear of the Secret Service in France. Most of the Directors still retain their positions.

ALLEGED PLANS OF GERMANY.

It is stated that Germany, through its agent, E. Lippert of Johannesburg, endeavored to obtain Mashonaland and Matabeleland for the German Crown. Being forestalled by Rhodes, the Secret Service sent emissaries into those parts to stir up the natives against British rule. This was prior to the Jameson raid. It is well known that a considerable number of guns and cases of ammunition, bearing the Transvaal Government mark and "made in Germany," were sent from Middleburg, in the Transvaal, and conveyed to the Matabele and Mashonas, and that many of these guns fell into the hands of the British during the disastrous campaigns that followed. At this time there was no particular cause of quarrel between the two Governments.

Much of the pamphlet deals with matters with which those following the trend of events in South Africa must be already acquainted; such as the Langberg revolt of a couple years since, when native chiefs gave evidence of the share of the Transvaal therein, and the Berliner Neueste Nachrichten commented on the Cape Premier's "folly" in believing the statements of "mere Kafirs."

THE BOERS AS COLONIZERS.

Rougemont has left the Cape for Durban, where he has given his views and impressions to the representative of a local paper. He asserts that the criticism in the press has made him the best known man of the century, also that he has caught the war fever so strongly that he has made up his mind to go to the front. Being a Frenchman, he believes that he will be well received by Joubert, and hopes to obtain such privileges as will enable him to make his observations from the Boer side of the campaign. The Dutch, he says, are a wonderful people in Holland, but wherever they colonize they become Boers. The Dutch Indies form a striking example of this. There, almost alongside them, are the British, with all the evidences of commercial enterprise, while the Dutch of to-day in their colonies are much what they were 200 years ago. He remarked that New Guinea forms one of the richest of pearling grounds, which, however, though they will not work them themselves, they will not allow anybody else to exploit.

The Boers, Rougemont adds, require the British to rule and inspire them. Wishing, he says, to do something for the people of Durban, he has informed them of a rich pearling station that lies unexploited. While not exactly on the coast of Natal, it is near enough for Durban to become the entrepôt through which the commerce connected with the industry will pass. He states seriously and deliberately, "I will not myself take any part in exploiting the pearling ground, as, of course, I am well off without it, but I throw out this hint of what I may do in the way of having the industry mentioned opened up for your benefit."

USE OF WAR BALLOONS.

Fifty vats, each containing a ton of materials for making gas for captive balloons, are being dispatched to South Africa with a number of balloons sent from Aldershot, England. From the tests recently made with captive balloons, and from the tactics likely to be made use of by the Boers, it is believed that they will prove exceedingly useful in the Transvaal expedition. It has been found that a height of 100 fathoms, at a horizontal distance of 600 fathoms from the enemy enables the observers to secure the widest expanse of view. The war balloon, having taken a stationary position, eight cameras and lenses spread round the balloon at equal distances will enable a complete view of the surrounding country and the enemy's camp to be photographed and subsequently examined and discussed at leisure by the General commanding.

Dr. Hoffman, member of the Cape Legislative Assembly, organized at the Paarl, a picturesque village about thirty miles distant from Cape Town, an ambulance corps for service under the Boers. No steps were taken by colonial authorities to prevent him, and he and his corps have now safely arrived in the Free State. Dr. Farrelly, the well-known international legal authority, has arrived in Durban from Pretoria, from which city he escaped just in time, a warrant having been issued for his arrest on a charge of high treason.

A number of young men had been engaged in Rome recently by agents of the Transvaal to be carried to South Africa to serve as volunteers with the Transvaal forces. Serious disagreements, however, arose. The agents would pay only for the passage, while the volunteers demanded an immediate installment on their pay. In consequence most of the volunteers abandoned the idea of leaving for South Africa.

THE VENEZUELAN REBELLION.

Hernandez Has from 6,000 to 8,000 Men and Battle Is Expected—An Outlaw Commands Castro's Army.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacoa, Nov. 27.—The Hernandist revolution is gaining ground in Venezuela from day to day, and is supported by the leading members of the commercial and financial worlds, who supply the revolutionists with all the arms and money they need.

"El Mocho," that is, Gen. Hernandez, is at present at Tocuyo, a short distance from Valencia, at the head of an army of from 6,000 to 8,000 men, and a great battle is expected to occur at any time.

Castro's army is under the command of a negro named Benjamin Ruiz, otherwise known as Rafael Bolivar, a Colombian, on whose head a price was put by the American Government at the time of the burning of Colon, in 1885.

Venezuelan Tariff Laws Repealed.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 15.—A decree appeared in yesterday's Official Gazette announcing that the customs tariff which came into effect Sept. 1 last was repealed and that the former one, that is, the tariff of 1898, should alone be applied. American exporters should be guided accordingly.

BACKS FAITH WITH HIS LIFE.

East Indian Wants to Prove Mohammed's Greatness.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A curious proposition has been made to Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the Viceroy of India, by Mirza Ahmad, a well-known Mohammedan of Kadian. He wants the British Government to call a public conference of all the religions and submit them to competitive examination under two demonstrations of the sublimity of their moral teachings and an outward sign of Divine support by the performance within a year of some miracle transcending all human limits.

If he fails to prove that Mohammed was greater than all others, Ahmad offers to submit to crucifixion.

SAMPSON REMANDED ONE WEEK.

Alleged Chicago Embezzler Held by London Court.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Michael J. Sampson, who was arrested near Limerick Nov. 28, at the request of the Chief Detective of Chicago, was rearraigned at the Bow Street Police Court here to-day. The United States Embassy presented the Magistrate with a cable dispatch from the Secretary of State, at Washington, asking him to hold Sampson on the charge of forgery, pending the arrival of a Chicago detective.

The Magistrate declined Sampson's request to be repatriated, and the prisoner was remanded for a week, no bail being asked for. Mrs. Sampson was in court. Sampson declares that he can explain everything satisfactorily. He is practically penniless.

Von Miquel's Tax Return Questioned.

BERLIN, Dec. 2.—Dr. von Miquel, whose skill in financially squeezing the German subjects for the benefit of the State is proverbial, has fallen a victim to his own tax gatherers. They have rejected Dr. von Miquel's own income tax return, declaring that he omitted the income of his Silesian estate, which Dr. von Miquel claims is unproductive. The controversy, which the courts probably will have to decide, involves only a small amount; but the department insists on its alleged rights against its own chief.

Mrs. Druce's Appeal Is Dismissed.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The appeal of Mrs. Anna Maria Druce, who claims to be a daughter-in-law of the Fifth Duke of Portland, against the decision prohibiting the opening of the Druce vault in Highgate Cemetery, unless the owner of the grave consents to have the coffin opened, has been dismissed, no one appearing in support of the reference.

TALKED ABOUT IN BERLIN

The Empress Takes a Hand in the Church Building Dispute.

IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA

Herr Loewe Says United States Leads Germany in Electrical Development—Studying the Plague.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 20.—The Empress has descended into the political arena. In accordance with a loyal tradition, the two branches of the Berlin municipality—the Magistrates and Councilors—sent her an address of congratulation on her forty-first birthday. To the Magistrates she returned thanks in a letter which excites surprise by a passage declaring that of recent years religious development and peace had been hindered instead of being promoted. The explanation of this sentence came on Thursday, when Dr. Langerhans, the President of the Municipal Council, announced that he had received, instead of the Empress's usual letter of thanks, an epistle from her Imperial Majesty's Lord Chamberlain, Baron von Mirbach, which he read to the Assembly.

In this document Baron von Mirbach said that he was instructed to express her Majesty's regret that the Council had refused to sanction the compromise by which the conflict between the municipality and the evangelical ecclesiastical authorities might be closed. Further, her Majesty had been deeply pained to learn that recently a member of the Council and lecturer at the Royal University had—without being duly censured—turned holy evangelical and Biblical words to ridicule in a manner offensive to all sense of propriety, and especially wounding to Christian feeling.

The first point of this imperial reprimand concerns the pretension of the Evangelical Church authorities to make the Berlin municipal finances support, in a large measure, the cost or building new churches. A consistorial ordinance made in 1573 is the basis of this claim. Not unnaturally, the Berlin City Fathers, recollecting that the town contains nearly a quarter of a million Roman Catholics and over a hundred thousand Jews, refuse to build Protestant churches with corporation money. Lawsuits brought by the various parishes have been prosecuted for years and are still pending, and the Brandenburg Provincial Synod has finally offered a compromise all present and future claims for a few million marks in cash.

It is the municipality's non-acceptance of this offer which primarily angered the Empress. She is a woman who places implicit trust in her clerical advisers, and they have explained to her that Berlin is a Protestant city, in which members of other churches are merely tolerated.

Dr. Preuss, a Jew, is the culprit who provoked the second part of the Empress's rebuke. It may be said that had Dr. Preuss been a Protestant no notice would have been taken of his adaptation of a Biblical phrase. Stöcker, the former Court preacher, has similarly "parodied" hymns and Scriptural texts without causing the least offense. Dr. Preuss some weeks ago, in a speech, said: "His Excellency (the Minister for Public Worship and Education) gave, his Excellency hath taken away, blessed be the name of his Excellency." The letter of Baron von Mirbach betrays the fact that the Empress was not aware that exception was taken to the parody by two speakers in the Municipal Council, and that Dr. Preuss himself declared that he had no intention of offending anybody's religious susceptibilities, and much regretted having used language which might be so interpreted. However, the matter gave rise to a campaign in the anti-Semite press, which either overlooked or was unaware of the fact that the text "The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord," is part of the book of Job, and consequently is regarded as Holy Writ by Jews as well as by Christians.

The Empress's action has been very unfavorably judged in all quarters, only excepting the anti-Semitic and bigoted Lutheran camps. In the Municipal Council itself the Lord Chamberlain's letter was received with murmurs, and a speech by Dr. Langerhans declaring that the building of churches concerns the respective congregations, not the municipality, and that the Councilors were governed solely by the consciousness of their duty toward the burghers, was warmly applauded.

In the Liberal press the Empress is reminded of the severity with which Bismarck condemned the "Damenpolitik" of the Court of William I. By endeavoring to influence the Berlin Municipal Council through her public reprimand, the Empress has invited the Opposition to raise in the Prussian Landtag the question of the position of the monarch's spouse in a constitutional state. Even organs friendly to the Government, such as the Hamburger Korrespondent, disapprove of the letter and say that the Empress's unlucky politics can only have regrettable results.

Baron von Mirbach comes in for a due share of blame. He is reproached with not having pointed out to the Empress that the responsible Minister of the Interior alone is entitled to address criticisms to the Municipal Council, and is told that he should have resigned rather than obey the Empress in this affair.

IMPRESSIONS OF AMERICA.

Kommerzienrath Loewe, the well-known Berlin manufacturer, has returned from the Philadelphia Commercial Congress and has been interviewed on his impressions of America. He was absolutely astounded, he says, at the development of electrical industry in the United States. With a view to satisfying himself whether the assertion made in Germany that electricity has already reached the full extent of possible development is justified he visited most of the large centres where electric power is employed. Everywhere he found that the Americans are far in advance of the Germans in the employment of electricity as a substitute for manual and other power.

The application of electricity in the Carnegie Works and the Illinois Steel Works proved a surprising revelation to him. Even more astounding was the employment of the Niagara Falls for the development of electrical power. Herr Loewe looks forward to the time when instead of 100,000 horse power nearly the whole of the 2,000,000 horse power of the Falls will be utilized.

In electrical tramways Herr Loewe, as the head of one of the biggest German companies, was especially interested. He says that in electric street cars and railways Europe is a long way behind, as compared with America. The chief station of the New York Metropolitan Railway, with its three machines of 15,000 horse power each, particularly impressed him.

From his personal observations and conversations with American electricians, Herr Loewe has come to the conclusion that the increased employment of electricity in industrial enterprises is an absolute necessity if Germans are to hold their own in the world's markets.

The competition of the American manufacturers, Herr Loewe declares, is at present scarcely felt because, on account of the National prosperity, the products of American industry find such a large home market that there is practically no need to seek foreign custom. When, however, the existing home requirements are satisfied, Americans will turn their attention more and more abroad, and unless Germany makes headway with the application of electricity she will be unable to resist American competition.

GERMANY'S NAVY.

Prof. Adolf Wagner publishes in Die Woche an article on the new naval plans and the national finances. He considers that the Spanish-American war demonstrated the necessity for a larger German navy, and says: "The bragging of the Yankees over the 'victories' of a Dewey knows no bounds, inconsiderable though all the deeds of the Americans were from a military and naval point of view. The arrogance of the Yankees, their unheard-of chicanery in economic-political matters, and their threats toward Germany, are also matters on which Prof. Wagner enlarges. It is only fair to Prof. Wagner's colleagues of the Berlin University to say that his ridiculous anti-Americanism is disapproved by them.

The Lokal Anzeiger considers that the moment is well chosen for an increase of the navy, and says that England and America are drawing closer together for common action in East Asia. The eventuality of an alliance between England, America, and Japan must be reckoned with. In this case a union of the Continental powers will become a necessity. The Lokal Anzeiger goes so far as to speak of France and Russia as "our future allies."

THE REICHSTAG SESSION.

By a curious coincidence the German, French, and Italian Parliaments reassembled on the same day—Tuesday last. The least exciting sitting certainly occurred in the Reichstag, where the order of the day was devoted to the discussion of petitions for a dwellings-for-the-poor law and the repression of drunkenness. Both were referred to special committees. In the succeeding sittings Postmaster General von Podbielski managed to push through his much-debated bills modifying the postal charges for the transmission of newspapers, abolishing private postal enterprises, and increasing the telephone fees.

All three bills encountered enormous opposition in the Spring, and have undergone modification in committee. The newspaper postage bill is condemned by the Newspaper Publishers' Union and by the paper manufacturers, and Herr von Podbielski has proved himself a strong man by securing its acceptance in spite of such opposition. It increases the postage on the small, cheap provincial papers and favors big, expensive papers like the Kolnische Zeitung, which has hitherto paid 7 marks 20 pfennigs for postage per copy per annum, but which will henceforth pay only 4 marks 26 pfennigs.

POSTAL SERVICE SHOWS PROFIT.

The Post Office report for the past year shows that Herr von Podbielski favors the employment of women in his administration. During his first year of office the number of women employed increased from 2,977 to 4,655, while the increase of male postal assistants was only 272. The total number of persons employed by the department is 173,976. At first sight, it appears curious that the number of inland letters transmitted has diminished by a million, but the key to the enigma lies in the new custom of sending illustrated postcards. This practice has increased the post card traffic from 533,000,000 to 632,000,000.

The foreign letter service shows that Germany sent 20,000,000 more letters abroad than in the preceding year; 1,022,500,000 of newspapers were delivered through the postal service. The money forwarded through the Post Office shows a diminution from 26½ milliards of marks to 23 milliards. The increased use of checks is said to be the cause of the falling off. There is also a diminution of the number of letters posted without pre-payment, the figures being 15,639,700, as against 16,710,500 in the foregoing year. The net surplus earnings of the department amount to 37,780,492 marks.

ON THE PLAGUE.

The results of a three days' conference of the leading scientists of the empire in regard to the plague danger have now been published in the Deutsche Medizinische Wochenblatt. Contagion is caused most easily, we are told, by contact with a plague-stricken patient or with clothing, linen, and other articles used by him. The dust in the air of a closed room is also a possible vehicle of infection, but dust in a free current of air is declared to be without danger. All kinds of animals and insects, especially rats, flies, and fleas, are undoubted causes of the spread of the disease. On the other hand, water is not considered as a vehicle of plague.

As to frontier inspection, the Imperial Health Office lays the greatest stress on the survey of incoming ships. Land quarantine is said to be unreliable, but it is recommended that persons coming from plague-stricken districts should be submitted to ten days' supervision after their arrival in Germany. Railway cars and trucks are to be disinfected at the frontier stations. Formalin is recommended as a disinfectant. In case of suspicious illness, the medical attendant is required to inform the authorities without delay, and an expert from one of the three "flying plague laboratories" already organized will report on the case at once. Arrangements are being made to procure plague serum for inoculation purposes.

The Senate of Berlin University invaded the Pathological Museum on Wednesday for the purpose of congratulating Rudolph Virchow on the fiftieth anniversary of his appointment as a university professor. The "Grand Old Man of German Science" is still as active as a young man, and besides spending several hours daily among his assistants and pupils, finds time to participate in the labors of the Prussian Chamber of Deputies and the Berlin Municipal Council, of which he is the senior member.

BERLIN'S FIRST WOMAN DOCTOR.

Fräulein Agnes Hacker is the name of the first woman doctor authorized to practice medicine in Germany. She is a native of Berlin, obtained her doctor's diploma at Zurich, and has been allowed to take the State examination for medical practitioners. She has been appointed to the post of medical officer of the Berlin Police Department, and will be given control of the special medical inspection to which certain women are subjected in this city.

THE NEW COURT CHAMBERLAIN.

Count Frederick Solms-Baruth, the only son of Prince Solms-Baruth, has been appointed Lord High Chamberlain to the Emperor. This is the highest office at the Berlin Court, and was held until recently by Prince von Hohenlohe-Ochringen, who vacated it on account of the friction caused by the Canal bill. On Prince Hohenlohe devolved the unpleasant duty of notifying those members of the aristocracy who as members of the Prussian Chamber of Deputies voted against the Canal bill that they would no longer be received at Court. He himself is an opponent of the Canal scheme, and resigned the Chamberlainship in order to be free to vote as he pleases on the measure in the House of Lords. His successor is married to the sister of Prince Henri of Pless.

J. P.

MUTINY ON BRITISH STEAMER.

Drunken Cattlemen Try to Seize the Vessel and Are Overpowered After a Fight.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Dec. 2.—The Donaldson Line steamer Amaryntnia arrived here from Glasgow to-day with a mutiny on board. As soon as the vessel dropped anchor in the harbor Capt. Taylor sent for the police to take off thirteen cattlemen, who were attempting to take possession of the ship. Chief Clark and a squad boarded the steamer and after a fight, during which knives were drawn, the cattlemen were overpowered and placed in irons.

It appeared that the cattlemen broke into the cargo of whisky just before the vessel reached the port and drank liquor freely.

Tidal Wave on the Chilean Coast.

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Dec. 2.—A tidal wave to-day caused considerable damage on the coast, destroying moles, boats, and other property along the shore.

Peru's Cabinet Resigns.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 2.—Owing to the attitude of the Chamber of Deputies, the members of the Cabinet have tendered their resignations to the President.

MISS DI CESNOLA MARRIED.

Becomes the Wife of Alfred P. Delcambre of the 71st Regiment.

Following an emphatic denial on the part of Gen. Louis di Cesnola of the published report on Nov. 12, last, of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Gabrielle di Cesnola, to Mr. Alfred P. Delcambre, Jr., a member of the Seventy-first Regiment, and who took part in the storming of San Juan Hill last year, came the announcement of the marriage of the young couple at St. Patrick's Cathedral yesterday morning.

The ceremony was a private one. Gen. di Cesnola was not present. The Rev. Father Thomas Murphy of the cathedral parish officiated. The bride was given away by Mr. C. Stacey Clark. She wore a gown of blue Henrietta cloth trimmed with velvet and lace and a large hat to match. Her sister, Miss di Cesnola, wore dark blue cloth, black velvet toque, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Mr. F. S. Wynn. The ceremony was followed by a breakfast at the di Cesnola residence, 100 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Mr. Delcambre, who is twenty-two years old, returned to Mount Kisco, his home, in September, 1898, ill and weak from his war experience. He was welcomed by a brass band and the entire population of the village, and has been a popular hero there ever since.

STEEL TRUST BEATEN IN COURT.

Plant Closed by It Is to be Opened Again.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 2.—In the United States Circuit Court to-day Judge Allen entered an order in the foreclosure suit of S. Leonard Boyce, trustee, versus the Continental Wire Company of Granite City, Ill., authorizing the receiver to enter into an agreement with the Merchants' Wire and Nail Company to operate the plant.

The motion of the order was made by the receiver and several judgment creditors and was resisted by the American Steel and Wire Company, (the Steel Trust.)

By the terms of the agreement, which the Court makes part of its order, the Merchants' Wire and Nail Company agrees to pay to the receiver $2,000 per month, beginning Dec. 1, 1899, for one year, and to equip, furnish the material, and pay all expenses of operating the plant and receive all profits arising from the sale of the product. The American Steel and Wire Company had secured the bonds of the company, aggregating about $150,000.

W. C. WHITNEY'S LENOX HOME.

The Ten-Thousand-Acre Estate on October Mountain Contains Buffalo, Elk, and Game Birds.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., Dec. 2.—William C. Whitney is so much interested in his place on October Mountain that he has been up frequently during the Autumn, and while his house is closed, he has so many people living on his large estate that he can have it opened on very short notice. He greatly enjoys this most secluded spot. From the railroad station it is a drive of five miles up a mountain road, through a primeval forest, and when Mr. Whitney reaches his house on the hilltop, over 2,000 feet above sea level, he can look over a vast territory which now belongs to him. He has, including purchases made during the present year, nearly 10,000 acres. It is a rough, wild country, with many high hilltops that command extensive views reaching to the Catskills. He has laid out bridle paths and private roadways of several miles already, and will make more next year.

The big game, including the buffalo, elk, and game birds, have done fairly well this year. The buffalo, however, are not increasing as rapidly as was expected when they were brought on from the Rocky Mountains. Mr. Whitney now has nine cows and four bulls, and two calves were born this year. The largest bull, said to be the largest buffalo in America, which cost Mr. Whitney something like $10,000, is an ugly old fellow, and no strangers can approach him with safety. Frank Chapel, the gamekeeper, is so familiar with the buffalo that he can do almost anything with them. Sheds have been built for them, where they stay a large part of the time in the Winter. They are now being fed on hay and grain, and are in fair condition. During the pleasant weather of the past month they have been out on foraging expeditions through the woods and over the rocky hillsides which are included in the several hundred acres inclosed for them.

There have been twenty-three elk born on the estate during the present year, making the number of these animals fifty-nine. The herd is increasing so rapidly that the inclosures devoted to them will have to be enlarged. They seem to thrive as well in this climate as in the Rocky Mountains, from which they were brought. The black-tailed deer, which were brought on from the Rocky Mountains at the same time as the buffalo and elk, have died or disappeared in some way, as some of them have never been accounted for. Mr. Whitney and his son, Harry Payne Whitney, conceived the idea of also stocking this great estate with game birds. They brought on a large number of pheasants and quail, which have multiplied remarkably fast, but since cold weather came on they have gone down further into the valleys. The native partridges have wonderfully increased upon the place since Mr. Whitney purchased it, as no outsiders are allowed to hunt within the limits of the estate, and Mr. Whitney's men are so watchful that it would be rather difficult for hunters to evade them. The result is that when Mr. Whitney or his son comes up with a party of friends for a shooting expedition they have fine sport, and in the future it will be still better, as this is one of the best regions for the native partridge and woodcock in Berkshire.

Mr. Whitney has had built very comfortable houses about his place for his employes. They live here the year round and look after the game and care for the place generally. On the whole, Mr. Whitney's establishment is a unique one, as there is nothing like it in this part of the country. The land was purchased at a small price, and Mr. Whitney continues to add to it. He pays about half the taxes of the town of Washington, where the bulk of his estate is located.

Mr. Whitney has made many improvements upon the place the past year, building private driveways and bridle paths and clearing up the groves about the various small lakes and stocking the brooks with trout. He has had golf links laid out and built a fine tennis court, so that sport of all kinds can be had here. It will be one of the most attractive and interesting places in this country before Mr. Whitney gets through with it.

NEWPORT'S NEW POLO GROUNDS.

Westchester Club Is Pushing the Work on Its Field.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 2.—With a large force of men, horses, and implements Contractor Maccolini is pushing ahead the work on the new polo grounds for the Westchester Polo Club, on Bateman's Avenue, near the Newport Golf Club, and when the work is completed it will be the finest polo field in this country. Large eight and ten inch drain pipes are being laid, with a five-inch drain running across the playing field, and added to these precautions for perfect drainage one drain will be laid alongside the field for discharging purposes. The playing field will be 1,100 feet long and 550 feet wide, and of this area 900 by 450 feet will be thoroughly sodded. Fifty feet on each side, with 100 feet on each end of the playing field, will be sodded and used for carriage stands and for spectators. The grading of the field is six inches in the centre, sloping to six inches on the sides, and when part of the work is concluded the whole field will be covered to a fraction of an inch. Half of the playing field is already graded and sodded, and, weather permitting, the playing part of 900 feet by 450 feet will be ready before frost. A race track marked out and on the outside of the playing field in an oval shape, has a length of three-quarters of a mile by eighty feet wide and will make a splendid track.

A number of gardeners from Central Park, in New York, have arrived to assist in the work. Last week a strike manifested itself on the new polo field, but, owing to the favorable condition of the weather, Contractor Maccolini thought it best to give up a contest with the labor trouble and continue the work, and he therefore decided to pay the men union wages. In the Spring the grounds will be rolled and sprinkled with loam; then later the grass will be cut. Playing on the new field will begin early in May, when it will be in perfect order. The clubhouse, stables, and observation stands will be started next Spring.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

Folger—Burr.

Miss Harriet Burr, a daughter of ex-Corporation Counsel Joseph A. Burr of Brooklyn, and Edward P. Folger of New Rochelle were married yesterday in the Hotel Margaret, on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph D. Burrell, pastor of the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church. A sister of the bride, Miss Jessie D. Burr, was the maid of honor, and the best man was Albert E. Bruen. Miss Lida Wells, who is a niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. After the ceremony a reception was held and a wedding breakfast was served. After their honeymoon trip the couple will make their home in New Rochelle.

Schlitt—Somers.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWALK, Conn., Dec. 2.—William J. Schlitt was married to-day to Miss Amelia Louise Somers, daughter of Mrs. Mary A. Somers. The ceremony was performed at the bride's home by the Rev. F. W. Norris, pastor of Trinity Church. The bride was gowned in a traveling costume of navy blue broadcloth, with white satin trimmings, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor, who was similarly attired, was Miss Kathlene Ireland. The best man was Thomas Garry.

Former New Yorker Is a Bankrupt.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—S. J. Newell, merchant of New Bedford, who was formerly engaged in business as a partner with W. A. Presby in New York City under the firm name of Presby & Newell, to-day filed a petition in bankruptcy at the office of the Clerk of the United States District Court in this city, with unsecured claims amounting to $334,040.39. The only assets shown by the schedule are household goods valued at $100. The indebtedness is mainly upon judgments which were obtained in the courts of New York City against the firm. These amount to $212,168.14.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Charles Potter.

After a brief illness with a complication of diseases, Charles Potter, President of the Potter Printing Press Manufacturing Company of Plainfield, N. J., died at his home, on West Seventh Street, that city, yesterday morning. He was born in Madison County, N. Y., April 21, 1824. Mr. Potter came from an old Colonial family, his grandfather, Benjamin Potter, having been a prominent publisher in Philadelphia. Mr. Potter became associated in 1854 with George H. Babcock in the manufacture of a printing press. Later he became interested in a printing press invented by Merwin Davis of New York City. In 1856 Mr. Potter began building cylinder presses at Westerly, R. I. During the civil war he suffered a failure in business. In 1863 he fell and broke his leg so that it had to be amputated. In 1865 he formed the firm of C. Potter, Jr., & Co. The plant was established at Norwich, Conn. In 1879 it was moved to Plainfield, and employs several hundred skilled mechanics. Mr. Potter was a Director in the First National Bank. He was a member of the Seventh Day Baptist Church. In accordance with his religious faith, his factory was never operated on Saturday, but such men as cared to were allowed to work on Sundays. Mr. Potter leaves a wife and three daughters—Mrs. William Hubbard, Mrs. David Titsworth, and Mrs. Florence Ross.

William L. Clark.

Ex-Judge William L. Clark of Winchester, Va., died at the home of his son, William L. Clark, Jr., at Northport, L. I., Friday. He had been a sufferer from paralysis. Pneumonia set in on Saturday last and hastened his death. Mr. Clark was born at Winchester, Jan. 16, 1830. He was a Captain of the staff of Stonewall Jackson during the civil war. He studied law in Yale and served as Judge for eight years. Mr. Clark was prominent in Masonic and Oddfellow circles in Winchester and a member of the Confederate Camp. He leaves four sons, Chapman S. of Port Collins, Col. William L. and Briscoe B. of Northport, L. I., and J. Peyton of Seattle, Washington, and three daughters, residing at Winchester, Va.

Valentine C. Turner.

Valentine C. Turner, seventy-six years old, and a pioneer citizen of Chicago, died there yesterday. Mr. Turner was born at Malta, N. Y., and was educated at Williams College for the legal profession, and practiced in Chicago several years. In 1862 he connected himself with the North Chicago Street Railway Company as secretary, continuing in that capacity for a number of years. In 1871 he became President of the company, and a few years later disposed of his stock to the Yerkes syndicate. Since then he had lived in retirement. He was an active Democrat, and was largely instrumental in bringing out the large vote in Illinois for Tilden in 1876.

Abram A. Van Vorst.

Abram A. Van Vorst, who was Mayor of Schenectady for two terms, died at his home there, yesterday, in his ninety-fourth year. Mr. Van Vorst was credited with being the oldest bank President in the country. He had been at the head of a local banking institution for years, and had attended to his duties regularly till a week ago, when he was stricken by the illness that resulted in his death.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. ALPHEUS B. STICKNEY, wife of the President of the Chicago Great Western Railway, died yesterday at St. Paul, Minn., after an illness of two years.

JOHN CANFIELD, millionaire lumberman, died at Manistee, Mich., yesterday, aged sixty-nine years. He had suffered from kidney troubles for several months.

DEXTER STETSON is dead at Lynn, Mass. He was at one time a member of the United States Lighthouse Board, and was the builder of the lighthouse at Cape Hatteras. He was eighty-four years of age.

GEORGE CLARK, aged eighty-seven years, and prominent as a horticulturist, died suddenly near Oswego yesterday of Bright's disease. He was born in Madison County, but had lived in Oswego seventy-five years.

HANNAH F. PEARL, widow of Elbridge Gerry Pearl, a Wall Street broker, died yesterday at her home, 90 West One Hundred and Thirtieth Street. Mrs. Pearl was sixty-five years old. She was born in Washington Territory and was educated in New York. She married in 1853, and leaves four children.

WALLACE I. ALLEN, a dealer in women's apparel at 2 West Fourteenth Street, died yesterday morning at 44 West Twelfth Street. He was for

WOODRUFF EMPTY HANDED

Lieutenant-Governor Casts Gloom Over a Brooklyn Conference.

PLATT OFFERS NO PROSPECTS

Kings Republican Delegation Likely to Get Little at Albany—Discussion of Party Policy.

A long conference over legislative matters between Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff and the Republican organization leaders of Brooklyn was held at the Montauk Club, that borough, yesterday afternoon. The conference followed a luncheon given by Mr. Woodruff, which was attended by Walter B. Atterbury, George H. Roberts, Jr., Naval Officer Sharkey, State Senators Davis and Marshall, Assemblymen Morgan, Colton, Degraw, Waite, Price, Brennan, Wilson, Remsen, and Adams; Register-elect James R. Howe, Alfred T. Hobley, and George E. Waldo.

The aim of the conference was to unite the nine Republican Assemblymen and the two Senators from Kings County on a certain policy to be pursued at Albany this Winter.

The luncheon began at 1 o'clock and lasted about two hours and a half. Then the real business which had brought the party together was taken in hand. The first matter discussed, according to the information obtainable after the conference, was the Assembly Committee appointments. Assemblymen Degraw and Brennan were anxious to learn what places would fall to them. Lieut. Gov. Woodruff said that he had seen Senator Platt and State Chairman Odell on Friday night, and he added: "I came away empty-handed." There were some long faces at the conference when this information was given. Continuing, Mr. Woodruff said that fifty-five of the ninety-three Republicans in the Assembly had been re-elected, and that nearly all the important committee Chairmen had been returned. The only thing that was not being held with a tenacious grip by somebody, Mr. Woodruff explained, was the Chairmanship of the Insurance Committee, and an Assemblyman (Coughtry) of Albany was reaching eagerly for that office.

Mr. Woodruff expressed the belief that Assemblyman Degraw would be kept on the Cities Committee, and he thought it possible that either Mr. Wilson or Mr. Brennan might get on the same committee. As for the new members, they would have to take what came to them. The new members present evinced no disposition to applaud this statement.

It was decided to reintroduce the Marshall bill of last year, which does away with the fee system in the county offices in Kings and makes the positions salaried ones.

The alleged abuses which have developed under the operation of the new city charter were then discussed. Assemblyman Brennan announced that he would introduce a bill greatly enlarging the powers of the borough Presidents. There was a manifest need of more power in the hands of the borough officials, he declared.

The conference closed with a general consideration of the State constabulary measure. There was a division of opinion as to the wisdom of putting through any radical police legislation. It was said after the conference that Mr. Atterbury expressed himself in favor of the proposition. He had been quoted as saying that he was opposed to the measure.

Mr. Woodruff talked freely to the reporters after the conference closed. He merely smiled, however, when asked if National politics had been considered.

Michael J. Dady was not at the conference. He is in Washington.

NIXON CONFERS WITH PLATT.

Legislative Committee Appointments Under Discussion — Forthcoming Conferences with Governor.

Speaker Nixon of the Assembly returned last night to his home in Chautauqua after a two days' stay in New York, during which he held a conference with Senator Thomas C. Platt and other Republican State leaders and saw many of the Assemblymen who are interested in securing desirable committee appointments. Before going to his train he said:

"Nothing is settled yet. I am going home to-night and at present do not intend to come down to New York next week. I expect to see Gov. Roosevelt in Albany next Thursday. All announcements of appointments to Chairmanships are guesses, and I want to say that some of them are pretty poor guesses."

The Speaker had a short talk with Chairman Odell during the day. But he said he did not see Senator Platt before the latter's departure for Washington. Several city members and one or two from up the State had brief conversations with the Speaker.

According to his present plans, Gov. Roosevelt will come down from Albany next Thursday night. On Friday morning he will meet Gen. Francis V. Greene, Chairman of the Canal Advisory Committee; Wallace MacFarlane, and Austen G. Fox, who were the Governor's special counsel in the recent investigation. The Governor will discuss canal matters with Gen. Greene and ascertain definitely when the committee will be ready to submit its report to him. This conference will be held at the residence of the Governor's brother-in-law, Mr. Douglas Robinson, 500 Madison Avenue.

The Governor on Saturday morning at the same place will meet Senator Platt, Chairman Odell, and other leaders at breakfast. Not only political matters, but the Governor's annual message, now in course of preparation, will be discussed. It is expected that the State Constabulary bill and other measures advocated by the Republican leaders will be thoroughly gone over and some sort of a legislative programme mapped out.

CONNECTICUT IN 1900.

Republicans Will Get Electoral Vote, ex-Gov. Waller Declares, If Democrats Indorse 16 to 1.

"Just so sure as the Democratic National Convention declares for 16 to 1, just so sure will Connecticut's electoral vote go to the Republican candidates next year."

So declared Thomas M. Waller, Democratic ex-Governor of that State, to a TIMES reporter at the Gilsey House yesterday. He continued:

"The results of the city and town elections sufficiently indicate that the Gold Democrats have returned to the party fold. Still, no Democrat who voted against 16 to 1 in 1896 will vote for it in 1900. There are many additional reasons why the Gold Democrats should not do so. The killing of no fatted calf will bring the Gold Democrats back into line if the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 is one of the issues of the campaign.

"There are some features of the proposed Currency bill that I admire. The Republicans should have brought such a measure forward two years ago or more. But the Republicans seem to do many things which might make it appear that the Silver Democrats are right in their premises.

"About imperialism? People in Connecticut are not bothering themselves much about it, but there are very few Democrats in that State who would consent for a moment to have the United States troops evacuate the Philippines.

"Business is generally very good in all parts of our State."

NO CONSTABULARY BILL.

Republicans, as Reported, Will Lack Votes to Pass One.

No State Constabulary bill will be introduced in the next Legislature, it is stated. The managers of the Republican organization have declared they would not introduce the measure unless they were assured in advance of sufficient votes to pass it in the Senate. Politicians yesterday were predicting they could not get the votes.

Ex-Judge Lewis E. Griffith of Rensselaer, intimate friend of ex-Gov. Black and an acquaintance of ex-Superintendent of Public Works George W. Aldridge, said to a TIMES reporter at the Waldorf-Astoria:

"There will be no Constabulary bill. In the first place, the Senators who opposed it last session cannot consistently support it in the next. Troy has elected a Republican City Administration, and talk as they may Mr. Payn will do what he can for Black and the latter wants no State Constabulary bill. He knows he will get something in Troy under the new condition of things, but he does not know what he can rely upon with a police head in Albany.

"George W. Aldridge advanced the same argument with relation to Rochester, in a recent talk with me.

"No, I think it is a good gamble that there will be no State Constabulary bill introduced."

OCCUPATIONS OF LEGISLATORS.

Few Farmers and Many Lawyers in the New Assembly—Many Trades and Professions Represented.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 2.—A glance at the official compilation of the occupations of the members of the new Assembly shows that the farmers are less numerous than formerly in that body. In 1897 there were nineteen farmers in the lower house, and the lawyers had to be content with forty-two. The Assembly of 1899 had fewer farmers and more lawyers, and the Assembly of 1900, which will convene here the first Wednesday in January, has but a dozen farmers, while the lawyers number forty-four.

While there is a preponderance of lawyers in the next Assembly, many other trades and professions are represented. The list of members and their occupations, as they themselves describe them, includes ten manufacturers, nine merchants, five doctors, and a plumber. This plumber, who can afford to spend the season of frozen water pipes at Albany is George Geoghan, a Democrat, from the Third Erie District. There are several members who lay claim to more than one occupation. This list is headed by Speaker S. Fred Nixon, who styles himself a manufacturer and farmer.

Fordyce of Cayuga, who introduced the Pure Beer bill of 1899, writes his occupation down as lumber, coal, and grain; John T. Smith of Dutchess is labeled banker and dry goods, and his colleague, Tripp, of the Second Dutchess District, calls himself a freighting and boat merchant. Beebe of Essex claims "hotel and real estate" for his occupation, and Harris of Fulton and Hamilton is engaged in lumber and real estate. J. J. O'Connor of New York says real estate and printing is his trade, and several members go in for insurance and real estate. A. J. Hyman of Onondaga calls himself a bookkeeper and journalist, and Babcock of St. Lawrence claims to be a miller, electrician, and coal dealer. Hallock of Suffolk and Stevens of Franklin are editors and publishers, and Phipps of Orleans is a farmer and manufacturer, like Nixon. Thomas D. Lewis of Oswego's First District says that he has retired, but does not say from what.

Albany's four members have four different occupations. Coughtry puts himself down as a clerk, McEwan as a manager, Kelly as a lawyer, and McCreary as a manufacturer. Bradley of Erie is a metermaker, Metzler of Erie a woodworking machinist, Cotton of Kings a stationer, Hawkins of Kings a gold penmaker, and Remsen of Kings Chief of Indexing Department of the Hall of Records.

Bierdon of New York is a silk hatter, Julius Harburger, the anti-Raines law crusader, gives his occupation as collections; Prince of New York is a cigar packer, Maurice Minton of New York is a journalist, while Fitzgerald of New York is an ice dealer. A plasterer is O'Connell of New York, while Eagan of the same county is a bricklayer.

Sullivan of Oneida is a drayman, while Herrick of Onondaga finds occupation as proprietor of a stage line. Everett of Putnam gives his occupation as President of a steamboat company, which is the People's Line, between Albany and New York. Doughty of Queens and Nassau is an oyster planter, Ahern of Rensselaer a nickel plater and polisher, Hitchcock of Warren a tobacconist, and Apgar of Westchester, who was the late Speaker Husted's clerk for many years, signs himself a secretary. Timothy P. Sullivan of New York still calls himself a law student. There is a jeweler in the Assembly in the person of Meister of New York, and a grocer in Russell of Rensselaer.

The list as compiled by the Clerk of the Assembly gives S. Slater the Thirty-first New York District seat, and makes the House stand 93 Republicans and 56 Democrats, while Perez M. Stewart, who defeated Robert Mazet in the Nineteenth District of New York, is classified all by himself as an independent Democrat.

THE DEATH OF MRS. WERNBERG

Her Husband Explains How He Remained in Ignorance of It for Forty-eight Hours.

The death of Mrs. Mary J. Wernberg, the wife of Jere A. Wernberg, a well-known lawyer of Brooklyn, who was found dead in her apartments at 80 Lafayette Avenue on Friday, occasioned much talk yesterday. The circumstance that the husband did not know of his wife's death until long after she had died was regarded as singular. When the body was found decomposition had been advanced, and Coroner's Physician E. F. Hartung gave it as his opinion that Mrs. Wernberg had been dead about forty-eight hours.

Mr. Wernberg could not be found by the reporters on Friday, and no explanation as to his remaining in ignorance of his wife's death for two days could be obtained from him. Mr. Wernberg, however, was seen yesterday, and he consented to make a statement.

"I believe that my wife's death was accidental," he said. "On Tuesday night she was up at her sister's house, and I went there to bring her home. We talked there for some time, and she appeared to be very happy. We went home late, and we occupied the same room that night. She seemed to be very well; better, in fact, than she had been for some time. It is true that Mrs. Wernberg had been complaining of indigestion and neuralgia, and she occasionally spoke of a pain in the region of the heart.

"On Wednesday morning I went to business as usual. That is the last time I saw her alive. I dined out that night, and did not get home until 12:30 o'clock on Thursday morning. At that time I supposed that Mrs. Wernberg was in her room asleep, and I did not disturb her. We both had a habit of staying abed in the morning, and I never disturbed Mrs. Wernberg before I went to business. It has been our custom for years to dine separately on Thanksgiving Day. I go to my parents' house, and she has always taken dinner with her brother and sisters.

"I did not see my wife on Thursday morning. I dined with my people, and in the afternoon went over to Maurice Daly's billiard room in Manhattan and refereed a pool match. It was late when I got home. As I entered the house I looked up at my wife's window, which was partly open. That indicated to me that she was not at home, and I supposed that she had remained at her sister's house.

"I did not smell gas during the night, and on Friday morning got up and went to my office. It was after 11 o'clock that morning when Miss Reilly came to me and said that she had been unable to get into my wife's room and that there was a strong smell of gas there. I told her to go back and have the door broken open. That was all I knew of the matter until I learned that my wife had been found dead. I had no reason to believe that she intended to kill herself and I think that her death was due to an accident purely. Mrs. Wernberg and myself were always on the best possible terms."

Coroner Burger said yesterday that he would hold an inquest, but had not decided as to the date. Dr. Hartung reported to the Coroner yesterday afternoon that he had held an autopsy in the case and found that death was due to gas asphyxiation. The body, he said, was much decomposed, but his report contained no other particulars.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR A BANK.

Mercantile Co-operative Concern of New York in Court.

NEWBURG, Dec. 2.—John T. Coyne, representing the Attorney General's office, moved before Judge Hirchberg this morning for the appointment of a receiver in the case of The People vs. The Mercantile Co-operative Bank of New York City. He alleged that the bank had a deficit of $408,000 and was insolvent.

Mr. Hoyt, the bank's attorney, denied that the bank was insolvent, but admitted that the bank had lost money. The shareholders who had lost 50 per cent. of what they had put in the bank only were concerned, and he demanded that they be allowed to liquidate the affairs of the bank in their own way. He asked for an adjournment.

The case was held open until Wednesday, when it will come up in Brooklyn. The bank has assets in fifteen States and is now under injunction.

LIFE INSURANCE IN PRUSSIA.

Requirements Exacted from Companies Applying for Admission to the Kingdom.

ALBANY, Dec. 2.—The settlement of the Prussian insurance matters by Superintendent Payn, on admitting the Prussian fire insurance companies, has developed the fact that the insurance regulations of Prussia are the most critical and exacting of any Government. The New York Life Insurance Company, which complied therewith and received a license, filed with Superintendent Payn a copy of the rules governing its admission after the favorable reports on its examination by the Prussian companies had been filed. They are as follows:

1. Of each and every change of the by-laws notice must be given under penalty of losing the concession, and before they can be put into execution they must be approved by the Prussian State Government.

2. The concession must be made public in the official papers, and in the official organs of publication of those districts where the company intends to do business, and at the Company's expense.

3. The Company must establish at least at one determined place in Prussia a chief establishment with a business office and a general representative domiciled at the same place. The latter is obliged to remit to the President of that Royal District Government under whose jurisdiction he lives—in Berlin, to the Royal President of Police—within the first six months of every business year, the report of the Company as required in accordance with the regulations issued by the Prussian State authorities, and a vcucher for the fulfillment of the conditions stated under Paragraph No. 6. The Company's assets in Prussia are to be stated separately from the remaining assets. The balance sheet, the closing of the accounts, and a summary of all the business done in Prussia must be made public every year in the German Reichs-Anzeiger and the Prussian Staats-Anzeiger at the cost of the Company. The General Representative must be answerable for the correctness of the balance sheet and the summary of the closing of the account, (profit and loss account,) as well as for the books kept by him, and, if necessary, must give security in favor of all the creditors residing in the country. Besides, if officially so requested, he must give every information in regard to the manner in which the business is carried on by the Company, or the installation of the Company in Prussia; further, present for perusal all documents, books, accounts, &c., that may be required for this purpose.

4. All contracts of the Company are to be made out with citizens of the Prussian State through the General Representative and from his domestic domicile. The Company must, as defendant, on account of all obligations arising from its business dealings with the inhabitants of the country, at the option of the insured residing in the country, accept service either at the legal domicile of its General Representative or at that of the agent who acted as intermediary for the insurance, and must expressly state this obligation in every policy issued to a resident of the country. If the differences are to be settled by arbitration, the arbitrators, including the referee, must be citizens of the Prussian State.

5. All announcements made by the Company in conformity with its by-laws have to be published in the German Reichs-Anzeiger and the Prussian Staats-Anzeiger.

6. The Company must invest one-half of the yearly premiums devolving upon the Prussian insured, besides the interest thereof, in Prussian Consols for the purpose of registration in the Prussian State Debt Register, and must cause the condition to be entered into the Prussian State Debt Register that these sums, invested as above, cannot be disposed of by the Company without the approval of the Prussian Minister of the Interior.

7. In Prussia the Company can issue policies with participation in the profits only with annual distribution of the profits, so that the first profits are paid at the beginning of the second insurance year. Tontine policies or policies with deferred participation in profits cannot be issued by the Company in Prussia.

8. The Company must combine all policies with annual participation in the profits in a separate division and keep a special profit and loss account for this division, submit this to the Prussian Officials of Supervision and publish it in the German Reichs-Anzieger.

9. The company must effect the distribution of the general expenses which devolve upon the policies with annual participation in such a way that those expenses are divided into two classes, namely, (a) in regard to the first year's premiums, the new business; (b) in regard to the renewal policies, the old business. On policies with annual participation in profits is calculated such a share of all the expenses of the first class as will correspond to the first year's premiums of the policies with annual participation of the profits in proportion to the first year's premiums of the total business of the company, and in such proportion to the total expenses of the second class as the premiums of the following years, with annual participation in the profits bear to the total business of the company.

10. The company must embody the Regulations 7 to 9 in the policies and prospectuses, and carry out the yearly calculations of the dividend falling to the share of each policy from the total dividends on the basis of the following rule: The profits of the company from the insurances issued with annual participation in the profits are ascertained as follows: At the end of each year the calculation of profit and loss is made for the totality of the policies issued, with annual participation in the profits. The share of the general expenses of the company which is to fall to the policies, with annual participation in the profits in this calculation, is determined in the following manner: The total amount of the expenses is divided into two classes, namely, (a) those expenses which concern exclusively the premiums of the first year; (b) those expenses which concern the premiums of the following years; policies with annual participation in the profits will be charged with such a proportionate share of the total amount of the first class as results from the proportion between the premiums of the first year on policies, with annual participation in the profits, and the premiums of the first year, on the total business of the company. In the same way they will be charged with such a proportionate share of the total amount of the expenses of the second class as results from the proportion between the following year's premiums on the policies, with annual participation in the profits and the premium of the following years on the total business of the company. After the profits of the year have been ascertained, in so far as they concern the policies with annual participation in the profits, by means of this calculation, the company's Board of Managers may apportion certain sums, to be taken from the said profits, to certain special reserves (as, for instance, reserve fund for military risks, for mortality fluctuations) on the condition that the total amount of these sums in the course of the year does not surpass one-fourth part of the total amount of the profits. The remainder of the profits of the year, (which can never be less than three-quarters of the total profits,) is then distributed in cash among the holders of policies, with annual participation in the profits on the anniversary of such policies in the following year. The share of the different policies in the total amount of the dividends to be distributed is as follows: Policies of the year's standing participate in proportion to the yearly premium; policies of two years' standing participate in proportion to the yearly premium increased by one-sixth; policies of three years' standing participate in proportion to the yearly premium increased by two-sixths, and so on, one-sixth more for every additional year during the continuance of the policies. The limited payment life policies of which the premiums have not been paid in full receive their share according to the above progressive method in proportion to the yearly premium, calculated in accordance with the rate of ordinary life insurance and the age of the insured at the time the policy is issued, and the policies of this same class which have been paid in full for their original amount, in proportion to the twentieth part of the single premium for life insurance, as stated in the printed rates of the company, calculated according to the age of the insured at the end of the business year.

11. The company must pay as cash surrender value on each policy after the third year of its existence 65 per cent. of the reserve; after the fourth year of its existence 67½ per cent., and so on, 2½ per cent. more each year, and the full reserve after the seventeenth year. The surrender values must be clearly shown in the prospectuses and policies. The company must grant the corresponding surrender value of 40 per cent. less 5 per cent., as a loan, at 5 per cent. interest, and must embody in the policy a table showing the amount of these loans every year.

12. The company calculates the premiums according to the American table of mortality. The premium reserves on the policies issued since 1898 are calculated at the rate of 3 per cent., policies with annual participation in the profits at the rate of 3½ per cent.; all other policies at the rate of 4 per cent. The so-called Zillmer method, or any similar one, cannot be used in the calculation of the reserves. Any change relating to the Prussian business and to the basis of the calculation of the premiums and reserves, as, for instance, the table of mortality, rate of interest, additions made to the net premium for the expenses of the administration, are to be submitted to the Prussian supervising authority for approval before they can be introduced.

13. All changes made by the company in the insurance conditions, to be used in Prussia, must be submitted to the Prussian supervising authority for approval before introduction.

14. The company must assume the war risks of ordinary citizens insured in its company without extra premium. Professional soldiers must pay an extra premium of 5 per mill. of the amount insured, from the beginning of the insurance, for the carrying of the war risk. The company must at once establish a war risk reserve fund, which will begin with $500,000, and gradually increase.

15. The company has established a fluctuation reserve for securities, which must not be less than $1,000,000.

16. The company must calculate, in the report to be handed in to the Prussian supervising authority, the value of the securities in its possession, upon which it has granted loans, in accordance with the Prussian regulations.

17. A rule must be embodied in the by-laws of the company to the effect that the assets of the company must be invested in values to be more particularly defined, mentioned in Sections 13 and 16 of the New York State Insurance laws; still, mortgages cannot be granted on any unimproved property or pieces of ground that bear no income, hotels, theatres, churches, breweries, factories, or mining enterprises, or other industrial undertakings; nor can its assets be invested in industrial enterprises; furthermore that it will not increase its present holding of stocks nor the loans at present granted on stocks as collateral-security, but must wholly dispose of both by the end of 1901, so that in the yearly report of the company for 1901 there will be no stocks either in the possession of the company, nor upon which it has granted loans; that real estate can only be acquired by the company for the purpose of establishing business offices, or in order to secure registered claims.

18. The Prussian supervising authority has the right, at the expense of the company, to send delegates to the home office of the company in New York, or to any branch office of the company in any other place at any time, and without previously informing the company, for the purpose of examining all business books, vouchers, &c., and in fact the whole business of the company! The latter will instruct all its employes to impart to the Prussian delegates any information they may desire.

19. The company must furnish its yearly report to its insured in Prussia in exactly the same form as it is handed in to the Prussian supervising authority.

20. The first year's commission (agents' commission) for life insurance and endowments issued in Prussia must not surpass 2 per cent. of the insured amount.

The present concession, which does not give the right to acquire real estate in Prussia, for which purpose the permission of the Government of the country must in each case be especially sought and obtained, can at any time be revoked and declared null and void at the discretion of the Prussian State Government, without the statement of any reasons for this action.

HEAVY INSURANCE LOSSES.

Underwriters Suffered Greatly in Philadelphia During This Year.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The present year will be the most disastrous in the history of Philadelphia in respect of fire losses. The amount paid in premium for insurance in this city during 1899 will not exceed $3,500,000, and already the losses which must be met by the various companies amount to over $4,000,000. The total losses for the year 1898 were $1,368,277.

The nearest approach to this year's figure was in 1869, when the total losses amounted to $4,000,000.

Receiver for an Insurance Company.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—Judge Braley of the Superior Court has appointed Thomas Weston receiver of the New England Mutual Accident Association. The association entered into an agreement with the General Accident Assurance Corporation, Limited, of Perth, Scotland, last April, whereby all the association's policies were assumed by the Scotch corporation. The liabilities for accidents prior to April 1, however, were not assumed, and, while they have been partially liquidated, others, amounting to some $25,000, remain. Application was made for a receiver, in order to reach and apply the emergency fund, amounting to $26,840, to this purpose.

NOTES OF INSURANCE INTERESTS.

F. P. Thomas & Co. have been appointed Cleveland agents of the Hanover Fire Insurance Company of New York, to succeed H. M. Brooks & Co.

Nathan Kaufman, Agency Superintendent of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company in Missouri, has been appointed Detroit General Agent of that company.

Advices from Wheeling state that A. F. Faulkner, West Virginia agent of the Globe and Rutgers Fire Insurance Company, which has just retired from that State, has been appointed agent of the Helvetia Insurance Company of Switzerland and the National Assurance Company of Ireland.

The Western Underwriter of Cincinnati states that "it is understood that the Thuringia American Insurance Company will shortly make application to join the Western Union." The reason stated is that "its representation is largely in offices controlling large lines, where most of the companies are members of the union."

Auditor Hart of the Indiana Insurance Department has declined the request of several non-union fire insurance companies for a ruling in regard to the legality of the discriminatory clause of the graded commission rule of the Western Union. The opinion of New York underwriters in regard to the merit of this rule is divided.

The questions as to the conditions of eligibility for brokerage licenses and the expediency of a fee, which were not taken up at the meeting of the Brokerage Committee of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange last Friday, will probably come up for consideration at the Exchange meeting to be held Thursday, with a view to definite action at that time.

An agreement was reached yesterday among nearly all of the fire insurance companies maintaining agencies in Suffolk County in regard to dwelling-house rates, and the local agents will be notified on Tuesday that dwellings situated within fire protection in that territory are to be insured at a premium rate of 50 cents per $100 of insurance for terms of three years.

E. ARDEN NOBLETT ARRESTED.

The Watsons Institute Criminal Proceedings Against Their Quondam Partner.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 2.—E. Arden Noblett of Llewellyn Park was arrested to-day by Policeman McDonald of West Orange on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. His wife, who owns the house in the park, furnished bail for him in the sum of $3,000.

The first intimation that Noblett was wanted by the police came yesterday afternoon, when Detective McNaught of New York went to West Orange with papers showing that the accused had been indicted by the New York Grand Jury for grand larceny. Walter S. and Edward L. Watson of 40 West Twenty-fifth Street, New York City, are the complainants.

When arraigned in the West Orange Police Court, Noblett said the charge was a trumped-up one and that he was ready and willing to meet it. He said he organized a company which purchases coal lands and railroads in Texas. The firm prospered and his share of the profits was $100,000. He said that his partners are endeavoring to cheat him out of his share.

Noblett is practically a new comer to Llewellyn Park. He is thirty-four years of age and lives in handsome style. His turnouts are among the finest in the Oranges.

Walter S. Watson and Edward L. Watson are represented by Hatch & Wickes, to whom inquirers were referred yesterday. When informed of the arrest E. S. Hatch said: "I have never seen the indictment, but I suppose it is in connection with some of Noblett's operations against the Watsons. They have lost about $20,000." Mr. Hatch said the Watsons, who are both young men, formed a partnership known as the Noblett, Watson & Watson Company early in the present year to do a general financial business. After a few months they found his business methods not to their liking, he said, and the firm was dissolved, William L. Turner, a lawyer, being appointed receiver. A civil suit was begun against Noblett, and afterward the criminal proceedings were instituted.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for Noblett, said Noblett had been engaged in a general brokerage business when the Watsons paid him $10,000 for a half interest in it. They made money, but mutual suspicions arose between Noblett on one hand and the brothers on the other that each side was engaging in private enterprises and not working wholly for the benefit of the firm. When steps were taken for the dissolution, Mr. Steuer says, Noblett joined the Watsons in their application for it. Then the brothers charged that Noblett had converted to his own use securities on which he was to have raised a loan of $7,500, but instead pledged them as collateral for notes which they had to pay.

Noblett's answer is that he held a railway grant from the Mexican Government, and that this was expressly exempted from the copartnership assets. The Watsons wanted it, and he offered them a half-interest in it for $7,500, and he raised the money for this purpose. All the notes, Mr. Steuer says, were paid by the Watsons except the last, which amounted to $1,500.

Mr. Steuer admitted that Noblett had been in similar trouble before. A man once accused him of defrauding him of $100. He was tried and convicted, but fought the case until the verdict was set aside. He was never sentenced, or did he ever return the $100, but spent not less than $10,000 in contesting the matter in the courts.

CALLS IT TRAFFIC AGREEMENT.

William Salomon Explains the Trunk Line Railway Deal.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2.—William Salomon of New York, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, had a conference here to-day with President Cowen and other officials of the company concerning traffic arrangements between the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania, and other trunk lines.

Mr. Salomon, after the meeting, informed several friends in financial circles that a very close traffic arrangement was being effected, but that there had been no absolute sale of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The stockholders' meeting scheduled for next Monday has been postponed for a fortnight.

THE DEAF CURED FREE
next Friday, 2 and 8 P. M., at Carnegie Lyceum, 57th St. and 7th Av.

WEBER PIANOS
"A harmonious creation of art."
"An inspiration to a musical temperament."
"Supports the voice most admirably."
"The achievements of Albert Weber, Senior, in the realm of tone production, like the violin masterpieces of Cremona, still stand unrivalled."
In addition to the regular styles of Grands and Uprights in the choicest woods, we are displaying some special designs in LOUIS XIV., RENAISSANCE, and COLONIAL cases, and will give estimate on other designs conforming to any architectural requirements.
Inspection Invited. Correspondence Solicited.
Old instruments taken in exchange.
WEBER WAREROOMS,
Corner Fifth Ave. and 16th St., N. Y.
605 Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST PLAGUE.

Third Engineer of the Taylor Now on Swinburne Island—More Steamers from Santos.

Steamers laden with coffee from the port of Santos, that is infected with the bubonic plague, are arriving one after another, and President Murphy of the Health Board said yesterday that about ten ships from that port will be here, and expressed his determination not to allow any coffee from them to be landed in the city, at least until all danger of infection shall have passed.

Health Officer Doty yesterday afternoon removed to Swinburne Island Third Engineer Story of the steamer J. W. Taylor, whose Captain and mate have been suffering from a mild attack of the plague. Story had been under observation for the past four days, and yesterday morning revealed a small pimple on the little toe of his left foot, which was very painful. His temperature, however, was normal, and there were no other general symptoms. The rest of the crew of the steamer are well.

None of the coffee from the J. W. Taylor, which had been put into lighters for transmission to New York, will be allowed to be landed in the city if President Murphy of the Health Board can help it, even though it should be released by the Health Officer and entered by the Collector of the Port. The agents of the vessel yesterday asked Collector Bidwell that a Deputy Collector be detailed to go where the Taylor is anchored and take the Master's oath in the manifest, at the ship's side, but at a safe distance. Collector Bidwell communicated the report to President Murphy.

President Murphy yesterday sent the police boat Patrol with several policemen and what called sanitarians down the bay to see that none of the lighters from the J. W. Taylor—one of which was released in the afternoon by the Health Officer—be allowed to discharge in New York. He said that the Patrol would remain on watch all night, and would this morning be relieved by the Health Board boat Edison to keep up the watch. Messrs. Busk & Jevons, the New York agents of the plague steamer, said the coffee would remain on the lighters until they can find a port where the authorities will allow them to land.

President Murphy said that Messrs. Busk & Jevons had asked him how they could get the cargo they expect aboard the ship and then proceed out of the harbor. He told them that care would have to be exercised in getting the cargo aboard, and that barges or lighters would be allowed to take the cargo from the shore or docks out to the ship. But such barges and lighters must remain ten feet or more away from the ship, and must not touch it. The cargo must be lifted in some improvised manner, as by ropes or cranes, or otherwise, and placed in the vessel; but none of the men from the smaller craft must board the Taylor.

Another steamer, the Lassell, laden with 23,000 bags of coffee from Santos, arrived yesterday for Busk & Jevons. At the office of the agents it was said that rather than have the cargo of this ship and that of the Roman Prince, which arrived a few days ago, detained they would send them to Halifax, where they believed merchants would receive better treatment.

The steamer Ragusa, with coffee from Santos for Funch, Edye & Co., arrived last evening and was put into Quarantine. All on board were well.

DEPUTY SCARES PASSENGERS.

Elevated Train Delayed and Its Occupants Thrown Into Panic by Disorderly Sheriff's Man.

A Deputy Sheriff, accompanied by a friend, caused a disturbance, as alleged, in a Sixth Avenue elevated train going northward at 10 o'clock last night. Both men were arrested and locked up at the Church Street Police Station. Great annoyance and some alarm were caused among the passengers in the car in which the men occupied seats.

At the station house the prisoners gave their names as Daniel J. Terry, forty-eight years old, a Deputy Sheriff, of 667 East One Hundred and Fifth Street, and Thomas Huntington, forty-one, of 10 Morris Street. Huntington said he was a clerk, but the police could not find that he lived at the address given. The men were locked up only after much difficulty and considerable wrangling in the police station.

The two men boarded the train at Battery Place, and got into the last car. The car contained peaceful passengers, among them many women. Terry and his friend soon became boisterous, and, it is asserted, used much profane language. They were both intoxicated, as alleged, and made themselves so obnoxious that William F. Crane, a contractor of 100 St. Nicholas Avenue, remonstrated with them. The conductor, whose number was 1,170, also tried to pacify the two men, but without effect.

Terry finally became so abusive that Mr. Crane, it is alleged, went near to him, when Terry attempted to strike him. The blow failed to land, but Crane succeeded in getting in a blow that staggered Terry, whose friend, Huntington, essayed to take his part. Mr. Crane then knocked Huntington down.

Passengers in the cars were in the utmost state of confusion, and the engineer blew his whistle for help and brought the train to a standstill at the Park Place station. Policeman Blohm ran up the stairs, and soon found that he had his hands full in trying to take Terry from the train. Terry tried to throw him down the stairs leading to the street, when Policeman Cohn arrived and went to his aid, and the two policemen finally landed Terry in the station house.

There Terry became abusive and requested the Sergeant to release him. He pulled a batch of warrants from his inside pocket and flourished them. He wore a Deputy Sheriff's badge, and over $30 was found in his pockets. He wore valuable diamonds, also, which he said he would not trust the policemen to remove. Both men were locked up.

During the disturbance the train was held for nearly ten minutes, the passengers running wildly about.

Mr. Crane said he would appear in the Centre Street Police Court this morning against the prisoners, who are charged with disorderly conduct.

CITY BROKER'S SON INJURED.

EASTHAMPTON, L. I., Dec. 2.—Vance Manson, son of T. L. Manson, a New York broker, went to his Manhattan home yesterday with a bullet wound in his foot. With two companions he went out in the bay duck shooting, between Three Mile Harbor and Gardiner's Bay, on Thanksgiving Day. They used a battery in shooting. Manson had a hammerless gun, and was lying in the battery when the gun went off, and he, with the weapon pointed toward his feet, received the full charge of duck shot in the heel and instep of the left foot. The heel and sole of the shoe were completely cut off, and a painful flesh wound was inflicted.

Manson was taken to Capt. Hussey's house, on the shore near by, and the wound was treated with carbolic acid and cotton, until the arrival of Dr. J. Finley Bell from this place. Young Manson was then removed to his father's Summer home here, where the party remained for a time. The friends of the young man were not informed of the accident, as Manson did not want them to worry.

Rothenberg & Co.
FORMERLY Ludwig Bros.
34, 36, 38, 40 & 42 WEST 14TH ST.
Money refunded on any unsatisfactory purchases.

Bargain Carnival at the New Store.
A grand assortment of useful articles to be found in every department. Christmas Goods are here in immense assortments. No matter where one turns in this commodious new store there is brightness and suggestive Holiday thought. It's just such a great store as this which is ready under all circumstances to cater to the welfare and comfort of its patrons.

Books for the Holidays. A new series of choice literature for children, selected from the best and most popular works. Handsomely printed on fine super-calendered paper from large, clear type and profusely illustrated the most famous artists, making the handsomest and most attractive series of juvenile classics before the public. With beautifully colored lithographic frontispieces.

PRICE PER COPY, 24c.

The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, 70 illustrations.
Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, 42 illustrations.
Through the Looking-Glass and What Alice Found There. 50 illustrations.
Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress. 46 illustrations.
A Child's Story of the Bible. 72 illustrations.
A Child's Life of Christ. 49 illustrations.
Aesop's Fables. 62 illustrations.
Wood's Natural History. 80 illustrations.
Fairy Tales. 234 illustrations.
Lives of the Presidents of the United States. With portraits and illustrations.
Fine English cloth, handsome, new, original designs.
Dickens's Child's History of England. 80 illustrations.
Grandfather's Chair. By Nathaniel Hawthorne. 58 illustrations.
Flower Fables. By Louisa M. Alcott. 50 illustrations.

Wood's Illustrated Natural History, 248 pages, with new illustrations by eminent artists, bound in boards, cloth back, per copy 45c
Baby's Bible, by A. O. Kaplan, with pictures by Frances Brundage, bound in full cloth, all colors, per copy 2.69
The Naval History of the United States, by Willis J. Abbot, giving a complete history of our war with Spain, bound in full cloth, published at $1.50, per copy 94c
Scott's International Postage Stamp Album, 1899 edition, bound in full cloth, per copy 1.98
Scott's International Postage Stamp Albums, illustrated with engravings, 1899 edition, bound in boards, cloth back, per copy 98c
The Green Banner, by James E. Farmer, a beautiful story of the Empire; published at $1.25; bound in full cloth, per copy 25c
Young Folks' Story of Our Country, an interesting story of our country told in the simple language of childhood, in words of one syllable, lavishly illustrated, per copy 59c
Oliver Optic's New Story Book or Songs and Poems for Little Folks, bound in a beautiful board cover, 287 pages, illustrations on every page, per copy 36c
Painting Days for rainy days, with easy drawing lessons, bound in boards, cloth back, per copy 27c

Fancy Goods, Jewelry, Art Goods, Gloves, &c., for the Holiday Trade.
We have made extensive preparations in these departments for holiday buyers. Here will be found an extensive assortment of useful goods suitable for making gifts at Christmas tide. The grandest collection of Holiday Bargains to be found anywhere, including all the latest novelties produced in America and Europe, all carefully selected with a view of pleasing all tastes, and priced to fit every size pocketbook.

Fancy Holiday Goods.
Celluloid Toilet Sets, three piece, Comb, Brush and Mirror . . . 75c
Large Sets, satin lined, 98c up to 5.98 per set
Gl

LORD MAYOR TALLON SAILS

He and Mr. Redmond Carry Away Over $30,000 for Parnell Fund.

GRATIFIED AT THEIR SUCCESS

Irishmen Hope America Has Not Been "Foolish Enough to Make an Alliance with England."

Daniel Tallon, Lord Mayor of Dublin, and John E. Redmond, the Irish member of Parliament, sailed for home yesterday on the Cunard Line steamship Campania. With them sailed Thomas Kennedy, the Lord Mayor's secretary. They took back with them over $30,000 in American money, which will be used in saving Parnell's house and in erecting a monument to him in Dublin.

The corridors of the Hoffman House were crowded in the morning with Irishmen and Irish women, members of societies, representatives of Irish clubs, and personal friends of Lord Mayor Tallon and Mr. Redmond, who came to bid them good-bye. Among the early callers were Mayor Van Wyck, Randolph Guggenheimer, Aldermen Ledwith and McMahon, Supreme Court Justices Kehoe and O'Brien, Justice Wauhope Lynn, and William Temple Emmet, Chairman of the Parnell Monument Committee.

On their way to the dock the Lord Mayor and Mr. Redmond were driven to the home of Edward O'Flaherty, 323 West Forty-sixth Street, where they stopped for a few moments and condoled with the family on the death of Mr. Harris, Mr. O'Flaherty's uncle by marriage, which occurred in the morning. The Lord Mayor and Mr. Redmond left two wreaths to be placed on the casket. Henry G. Bannon, Edward O'Flaherty, and Col. P. J. Cody accompanied the Irish envoys to the dock, where another big crowd had gathered to bid them godspeed.

"The result of our work of less than two months in America has equaled, if not exceeded, the most sanguine expectations of the committee of the Parnell Monument Association in Ireland before we left for America.

"Roughly speaking, it is believed that the statue to Parnell which it is proposed to place in the streets of Dublin will cost about $50,000. The memorial at his grave in Glasnevin will cost at least $5,000; and the purchase of the Parnell homestead, at Avondale, will not in any case be less than $15,000. That, in round numbers, would mean about $75,000.

"Of that sum we have succeeded in raising since coming to America upward of $30,000, and if we could have remained here for a month longer we would almost certainly have been able to double the amount, or, in other words, to practically raise the entire amount necessary. Unfortunately, however, Lord Mayor Tallon discovered that the old statute which provides that the Lord Mayor cannot be absent from Dublin longer than two months is absolute, and it is therefore necessary that he shall be back in Dublin by Dec. 11.

"Just about the time the Lord Mayor learned of this Mr. Redmond received a cable from Ireland telling him that, after two years' refusal to accept his proposal for a committee meeting, consisting of delegates from all sections of the Nationalist Party, to consider the question of reunion, the proposition had been accepted and that such a meeting will be held as soon as he can get back to Ireland."

Mr. Redmond at this point said: "I may say for myself that, much as I would have desired to remain in America and work for our mission, the fact that England's difficulty seems to have arrived, to some extent, at any rate, makes it of supreme importance that the Irish Nationalist parties should, if possible, be united so as to take advantage of it."

Continuing the joint statement, the Lord Mayor and Mr. Redmond said: "We received from the public of America, without exception, and from public men of all parties, nothing but the most kindly treatment. They were all ready to assist us in forwarding the project for which we came here. Tammany's generosity will never be forgotten by Ireland, but we also received assistance of the most valuable character from men of the Republican Party. Richard Croker and Theodore Roosevelt, as well as the members of their respective parties, vied with each other in the desire to show us sympathy and give us assistance.

"We shall look forward with considerable and an earnest hope that when the Parnell Monument is unveiled America will be represented at the ceremony by a large delegation of those friends who have shown themselves such earnest and devoted friends of the movement."

Both the Lord Mayor and Mr. Redmond made a few caustic remarks on the situation in England. Mr. Redmond said: "There is nothing that I can say on the war in South Africa that I have not already said. The whole affair is infamous. And as to the report that there is an alliance between England, America, and Germany, I believe that is false. America is not so foolish."

"I do not believe there is such an alliance between this country and England," said the Lord Mayor. "You are not foolish. England hates republics, and once before when she was on the back of the United States you threw her off. Don't let her get there again. I believe that you will refuse to pull her chestnuts out of the fire. Let her burn her own fingers."

THE COST OF BUILDING.

Advances in Material Affect Little the Erection of Big Structures—Steel the Principal Item.

When it became certain last Spring that there was about to be a rapid and general advance in the price of all building materials, predictions were freely made that its effect would be the serious interruption, if not a complete check, upon building operations throughout the city. Now that the higher scale of prices has been operative for eight or nine months it is possible to look over the field and see what in reality has been its effect.

Figures issued by the Building Department about two weeks ago show that the total valuation of improvements for which plans had been filed since Jan. 1 was something over $100,000,000, or an increase of about $40,000,000 over that for the corresponding period last year. Of course these figures are likely to be misleading. Plans may be filed for a small city of frame houses to anticipate an extension of the fire limits or the formalities gone through with at the Building Department for some other reason when the immediate improvement of the property in question is not even seriously thought of. But even taking these facts into consideration, it is difficult to account for the $40,000,000 increase, and it is safe to say that the amount involved in building operations now in progress would compare favorably to that of previous years—a statement which is borne out by the views of some of the largest architects and builders of the city.

The advance in the price of material has been general, and has affected almost every commodity entering into construction, but while brick, cement, and lumber have shown increases, it has been the jump in the price of steel which has overshadowed everything else and made the other items in the cost of building appear insignificant.

In addition to this the great demand for steel and the difficulty experienced by builders in getting it at any price has added not a little to the unpleasant situation.

The base price of plain steel has practically doubled since the first of the year. This does not mean, however, that the cost of the steel work in a modern structure here in New York will show the same percentage of increase, because in that cost are included the very considerable items of fitting, hauling, and erecting, in which there has been no such advance.

F. W. Kindl, structural engineer of the Carnegie Steel Company, in the course of a paper read recently before the American Institute of Architects, using one of the best recognized formulas, computed the cost of the structural steel in a fifteen-story office building on a plot 100 by 100, at about $133,000. Another advance in the price of steel since that time would bring the figure very close to $150,000, which, at a conservative estimate would be 50 per cent. more than the same work would have cost a year ago.

For a specific instance of this increase one has to go no further than the new Hall of Records, where the steel work, instead of costing $260,000, as originally estimated by the contractors, will involve an outlay of at least $400,000, an increase of nearly 60 per cent.

Steel men and builders are not anxious to venture opinions as to whether a high limit in prices has been reached, or whether there is to be a decline, and when it will come. It is, they say, largely a question of supply and demand, and while the present lively demand exists there is small prospect of any great break in prices.

J. Hollis Wells, C. E., who from his connection with the firm of Clinton & Russell, architects, is competent to speak on the subject, says that the price of structural steel and of other materials has not so far seriously retarded building operations.

"Of course," he said, "it is to be expected that speculative builders will find themselves working under rather more difficult conditions, and their unwillingness to undertake new buildings just at present is not surprising, but among those who build for permanent ownership the recent advances have not caused any noticeable alarm.

"It is easy to jump from the fact that steel has doubled in price to the conclusion that a building will cost about twice as much, but here is an instance: A little over a year ago we put up a building the cost of which figured down to about 32 cents per cubic foot. We are now planning a structure almost exactly similar in size and construction, and a careful estimate shows that at present prices it will cost a little over 34 cents per cubic foot—to be exact, an increase of 2.2 cents per cubic foot. Now, there isn't much in that to get excited over.

"Another case: We recently received bids on a building to be put up in the near future. I made a rough estimate on the job, merely to get a general line on it, using the lowest possible prices and not honestly expecting that any bid would be within sight of my figures. When the bids were opened, however, several of them were found to be below my estimate. We became skeptical, and thought that possibly some bad error had been made in the specifications, but a careful examination showed that everything was all right.

"As to the structural steel prices," continued Mr. Wells, "it is difficult to tell what course they will take. It is possible that there may be something of a readjustment within the next few months, although I do not think that the low rate of 2.35 cents per pound will be approached. At present the cost of the steel work in a building figures down to between 3½ and 4 cents per pound."

The steel work on the new Hall of Records will, it is expected, be begun this week. Work on the Andrews estate's building at Broadway and Chambers Street, on the International Bank Building, and on the American Exchange National Bank's new structure, the only large buildings now going up in the down-town district, is progressing rapidly. The Mutual Life Insurance Company will begin the construction of its two annexes on Liberty and Cedar Streets at a cost of $1,000,000, early in the Spring, and the new building to be erected by William Waldorf Astor at Broadway and Thirteenth Street, at a cost of $400,000, will go up as soon as possession of the property can be obtained. The filing of plans by Mr. Astor for a five-hundred-thousand-dollar apartment house at Seventh Avenue and One Hundred and Sixteenth Street is, it is believed, only the first step in a policy which will have for its ultimate outcome the improvement of many of the more desirable of the Astor properties in the upper part of the city.

Definite plans have not matured yet, but according to reliable report the scheme will involve the outlay of several millions of dollars in modern apartment houses. What tends to support this rumor also is the recent sale of several lots on One Hundred and Eighth Street by William Waldorf Astor, and the announcement that several of his less desirable holdings are in the market.

So far then as an opinion may be based on present indications, it would seem that building operations of the better class have not suffered, and will suffer but little, aside from aggravating delays, on account of the increased price of steel and other materials. If speculative building and operations conducted on a slim financial margin receive a setback, the effect is liable to be altogether wholesome, with the result that there will be less talk about overbuilding and fewer instances of buildings being planned, erected, and sold under foreclosure within a period of eighteen months.

In the matter of dwellings, builders are showing a disposition to hold off even more than in the erection of large structures. Several months ago one west side builder threatened to go out of business because he could buy houses cheaper than he could put them up, and although this statement must be taken with a grain of salt, yet it shows the general desire to keep out of new ventures until the material market shall offer more favorable inducements.

The problem which confronts the dwelling house builders at present is in a way more serious than that which confronts the builder of a large business structure. In other words an increase of $50,000 in the cost of a $500,000 building will not be such an element in its marketable quality or income-producing power as will an increase of $3,000 or $4,000 in the cost of a dwelling. How the dwellings will be received which have been put up since the advance in material prices it is hard to say, as few of them have as yet come on the market, but the builders themselves do not see their way clear toward advancing their prices, and have resigned themselves to being satisfied with a smaller margin of profit.

"I do not see," said a Columbus Avenue broker, "how it will be possible to make the purchase of a dwelling bear its increased original cost. The market for dwellings is good. Whether or not the material market is going to decline, every prospective buyer will at least think that it is, and any attempt to raise prices on him would only result in frightening him off—temporarily, and perhaps permanently. It looks as though those who have built under present conditions would have to face the music and get out as best they can."

NEEDS OF COUNTY ALMSHOUSES.

ALBANY, Dec. 2.—The State Board of Charities has made the investigations of county almhouses and the recommendation to Boards of Supervisors of improvements to be made therein.

The investigations were made of these institutions by the member of the board having charge of the district in which each institution is situated; and by Byron M. Child, Superintendent of State and Alien Poor. Reports on the result have already been sent to the various Boards of Supervisors.

Superintendent Child has submitted to the State Board of Charities a report summarizing the conditions found. In it he says that the needs were found to exist more in equipment than in the methods or manner of management. The county poor authorities were found to be entirely willing to follow any recommendations made, but were restricted in making improvements by the lack of appropriations. Existing conditions can be remedied only by appropriations by the Boards of Supervisors.

The presence of idiots and feeble-minded persons, and the commitments in some counties of able-bodied vagrants and disorderly persons to county poor houses were two of the most serious evils found.

FATAL CYCLONE IN AUSTRALIA.

Much Damage Done by a Storm in New Castle.

VICTORIA, British Columbia, Dec. 2.—Details are brought here of a terrific windstorm which swept over the colonies, causing great damage. The cyclone was most disastrous at New Castle, passing over the city about the middle of the afternoon on Nov. 6, and during the twenty minutes it lasted damaging property of that city to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars. Over three hundred houses were unroofed and several buildings were leveled to the ground.

The most serious casualty was the collapse of the Adamstown Roman Catholic school, in which forty children were assembled. One scholar was killed and two others seriously injured.

Train Wreckers' Attempt Frustrated.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, Dec. 2.—An attempt was made last night to wreck the Northwestern east-bound Colorado Special at State Centre, seventeen miles east of here, but it was frustrated by a tower operator. He observed two men placing ties upon the track, and flagged the train. The ties were removed and the train proceeded without any damage being done. The railroad officials sent detectives to the scene, and warrants were sworn out for two men named Funk, charging them with being the persons who placed the ties on the track, but they have not yet been arrested.

Tarrytown Victim a New Yorker.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 2.—The body of the young man who was killed on the railroad here on Thursday night while endeavoring to get on a freight train has been identified by his father as John Ferdinand Scars of 2,128 Second Avenue, New York City. He had not been home since last July, but had been away with some associates, and when the accident occurred they were trying to steal a ride on a freight back to New York. The father has taken the body home.

Left 500 Passengers Behind.

When the steamer Ems sailed yesterday from Hoboken about 500 Italians who had tickets for Genoa were left on the dock. The officials of the line said they had a full passenger list and could not take on any more. Many of those who were left were women and children. The emigrants will be sent on another steamer to-morrow afternoon.

MR. GROUT'S REFORM PLAN

Suggests Amendments in Greater New York Charter.

FOR THE MAZET COMMITTEE

Benefits Have Arisen, He Says, from Local Borough Boards—Would Simplify Municipal Government.

President Edward M. Grout of the Borough of Brooklyn has written Frank Moss, counsel for the Mazet committee, a letter in which he makes some observations upon the machinery of the present government of Greater New York, and indicates the lines upon which he believes amendatory improvements to the charter should proceed. Mr. Moss has recently written all of the Borough Presidents, asking for suggestions to guide the Legislature in its attempts this Winter to better the present charter.

Mr. Grout is a Democrat, but in this letter he does not hesitate to make suggestions, which, if carried out, would tend to decrease the number of Tammany supporters. One of the offices believed by Mr. Grout to be superfluous is that now occupied by Maurice F. Holahan, President of the Board of Public Improvements. Mr. Grout believes that money set aside for public improvements should be controlled by local officials under proper supervision. Regarding the continuance of the local borough boards, Mr. Grout says:

"The meetings of the local boards in Brooklyn have approached as nearly the town meeting plan of villages, at which all citizens have a voice, as can be attained in a city. The Councilmen and Aldermen composing the boards, being under the eyes of their constituents at the meetings, have been prompt, faithful, and attentive to all the interests concerned. What is needed now is power in the local boards to make their action effective—to direct the making of the various street improvements, and to see that they are done at once by the departments, instead of being limited, as now, merely to the power to make recommendation, which, under the complex system of the charter, means long delay before it results in action."

Mr. Grout further says that the local boards have secured benefits for his borough. He does not believe that the allotment of money per the city to the borough should be based upon the proportion of Greater New York's taxes paid by the borough. He says:

"Take, for instance, the case of a Brooklyn capitalist who owns one of the large office buildings on Broadway. Perhaps one-half of his tenants live in Brooklyn. Probably more than one-half of the employes of his tenants are Brooklynites. All of these live in Brooklyn, their children are educated in this borough, and they secure police and fire protection here and the benefits of street and other improvements. It is only fair, therefore, that a portion of the revenue from the taxes on the Broadway office building should be applied to maintaining Brooklyn institutions."

Mr. Grout says that the street cleaning, fire, and police services in the various towns and villages of his borough have improved since the consolidation, but that the repaving of streets and the accomplishment of improvements of an assessable nature have not been as rapid as they would have been under local officials. He makes the following suggestion:

"I would suggest that as far as possible money be set aside by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for each branch of public service in each borough and for the making of public improvements in each borough, and that borough officials have charge, under the supervision of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, of the expenditure of that money; thus avoiding the delay which the present jurisdiction of the Board of Public Improvements necessitates."

President Grout, continuing, says:

"Each Borough President's office should have its own engineering and topographical bureaus attached. Some of the present six departments created out of the former City Works Department might well be consolidated, and the Board of Public Improvements, its powers being thus largely distributed among the Borough Presidents, would not need its present staff and equipment, nor a President having no other duties, and might profitably be reduced to a board which should meet but once a month and have to do only with matters affecting more than one borough.

Furthermore, President Grout not only believes that outlying districts of Queens and Richmond do not require elaborate department arrangements, but that they are not needed to the extent now prevailing in Manhattan or Brooklyn. He declares:

"Three or four Commissioners in each borough under the direction of some official in the borough with money allotted to the borough by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment could very easily conduct the administrative affairs of the borough. I have always been unable to comprehend the necessity of Deputy Commissioners for the Borough of Manhattan, when the Commissioners themselves are located in that borough."

YALE LOSES AT HOCKEY.

Succumbs to the St. Nicholas Club by a Score of 3 to 1.

The St. Nicholas Hockey Club of this city and the Yale University Hockey Club played a very interesting match game at the St. Nicholas Rink last evening. The game was witnessed by 2,000 spectators, who liberally applauded the numerous brilliant plays made by members of both teams. It was the second game of the season for both teams, but the St. Nicholas boys have had far more practice than the sons of Eli, as there is no rink at New Haven. The final score was 3 to 1 in favor of St. Nicholas. The best work for Yale was done by Smith and Inman and for St. Nicholas by Collender and Barron. The game was played in two halves of twenty minutes each. The next game at the St. Nicholas Rink is on Tuesday evening, when Yale plays the Hockey Club of New York. Following is the line-up in last night's game:

ST. NICHOLAS—Barron, forward; Collender, forward; Gordon, forward; Conway, forward; Livingston, cover point; Mortimer, point; Hayward, goal.

YALE—Campbell, forward; Bronson, forward; Inman, forward; Cox and Buckwalter, forward; Brock, cover point; Sturges and Strong, point; Smith, goal.

Referee—Howard Walton. Score—First half, St. Nicholas, 2; Yale, 1. Second half, St. Nicholas, 1; Yale, 0. Time of game, 40 minutes. Goals—Barron, 2; Livingston, 1; Inman, 1.

SEVENTH REGIMENT RIFLE MATCH.

The annual athletic games of the Seventh Regiment last night made entries in the sharpshooters' match at the armory rifle ranges unusually light. Only twenty-one riflemen competed, Alexander Stein, Veteran, being the winner. These were the best scores:

	200 Yds.	500 Yds.	Total.
A. Stein, veteran	34	34	68
Corp. C. J. Austin, Co. C	33	33	66
Sergt. A. Stevens, Co. F	30	35	65
Priv. W. H. Palmer, Jr., Co. G	32	32	64
Capt. W. H. Palmer, staff	31	33	64

FIGHT IN THE PARKER HOUSE.

Son of the Proprietor Accused of Assaulting a Guest.

During a fight in the grill room of the Parker House last night W. F. Lyons of 161 West Forty-sixth Street was severely cut about the face. Lyons, in company with several other men, entered the place to eat. F. R. Parker, a son of the proprietor of the place, attempted to eject an intoxicated man from the place and Lyons interfered. Lyons and Parker then had an argument, and the latter left, going up stairs, and Lyons resumed his eating.

Soon after two other men entered the place, and sitting near Lyons started at once to pick a fight with the latter. A fight ensued, during which Parker entered the room. A policeman was called from the West Thirtieth Street Station, and Lyons made a complaint against Parker, claiming that he had been struck by Parker. Parker was taken to the station house, followed by Lyons.

At the station house Lyons said Parker had purposely sent the two men into the place to start a fight with him. Parker denied the charge. Charles F. Gall, a lawyer, who lives at the Democratic Club, bailed him.

Railway Increases Wages.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 2.—One of the most highly appreciated Thanksgiving gifts made in this city was the announcement made by the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad to the yard conductors and brakemen of a 10 per cent. increase in their wages, to begin the 1st of this month.

COSTUMES FOR THE STAGE

Views of the Designer of Those for "Barbara Frietchie."

STYLES DEPEND UPON WEARERS

Ideas for Different Periods Come from Paintings and Miniatures—Family Portraits Made to Do Service.

It is not a bit strange that a woman likes to dress a play, or that when she is clever enough to do it she does it very well. It is only playing dolls on a large scale, with the one thing every child longs for, dolls that will walk and talk. And when there is the artistic temperament and a brain with queer little quips and quills and a way of taking in not only the general effect but particular characteristics of old portraits and scenes, classifying them all and stowing away all sorts of odd peculiarities of dress in the mind without the owner being actually conscious of it, there is a good stock to draw upon and the owner of the brain makes a good designer.

Miss Virginia Gerson, a clever young woman up town, who designed all the pretty gowns worn in "Barbara Frietchie," Miss Marlowe's popular play, and the men's costumes as well, has a real talent for the work. It is a talent to see at a glance effects and details, and Miss Gerson is an artist as well. She received the education of an artist and she has done good work in illustrating, particularly pretty, quaint books for children. She hasn't given that work up yet, for she is now illustrating a little book of stories and rhymes of her own, entitled "The Merry Go Round," which promises to be very clever.

Clyde Fitch, who knew her other work, proposed that she design some costumes for one of his plays, which was some of her first work; it seemed to be entirely in line with her talents, and she has been very successful since. Her first costumes were those of Annie Russell as Ada Ingot, in "David Garrick." Miss Gerson always had a particular delight in the characteristics of people and periods and that has given her a particular interest in the work.

"It is strange," she said, the other day, talking of stage gowns, "how, when some one mentions a period to you, all sorts of costumes that belong to those days rush into your head as if they had been waiting for the chance, although you may not have been thinking of that time. I don't make a study of plates for costumes, but old pictures, portraits, and miniatures, and whenever I see a picture I am unconsciously noticing the peculiar characteristics about it, so that when I need them they come back to me. Sometimes it is not necessary to make any study for the costumes.

"In the children's costumes worn in the first act of 'The Moth and the Flame,' they only had to be thought out. That was supposed to be a fancy dress party, and so the children could be taken from any age, and it was very simple. It was not necessary, either, to make an effort to have them humorous, for the mere fact of grown people wearing children's clothes was as funny as could be. The only thing to be studied with particular care was Miss Shannon's dress, for she played a serious part in it later, and there could be nothing about it that would suggest anything laughable.

"It makes a great deal of difference in preparing the costumes who is to wear them. In designing the gowns for 'Nathan Hale' I had pictures of Maxine and Gertrude Elliott, and while it was preparing the designs I had them always in mind. It was very easy to arrange their costumes, for they are both beautiful women. They would look well in anything. For instance, Maxine Elliott wears her hair straight back from her face, with a curl on either side. It is a very picturesque way of dressing the hair, and true to the period, but if she had been a less beautiful woman she might not have been able to wear her hair in that trying fashion, and I would have had to think up another style or compromise between the style of the woman and the style of the time. The Revolutionary period is so familiar to people through pictures that they would be likely to know if costumes were incorrect.

"There is real satisfaction in doing this work now, for people have a growing appreciation for it. They appreciate the small details that make up the accuracy of the stage setting much more than in former years.

"The colors are important features of the costumes. Everything has to be taken into consideration—the scenery in which they will appear and the different costumes that will be thrown together. That appears in reading the play and the people whose parts will bring them together. Now, I select all my own materials, get them by electric lights in the stores, and fasten samples to the different designs, and the materials are bought from them, and I am sure they will be correct. Being on the stage does not apparently make any difference as to the colors if they are chosen by electric light, but I find that I have to make allowance for stage effects in selecting designs. I see a pretty little sprigged material that I think will be just the thing, but on the stage you can't see the pattern and there is the effect of a solid color.

"In the furniture shops I find the brocades and materials for different periods. They have them there to upholster furniture of the periods, and I find just what I want. It takes a long time to get up the costumes if it is done conscientiously, and when the water-color sketch is completed only the smallest part of the work is done. Everything has to be watched carefully as it is made, for it is in the small details of the costumes that the character effects appear, and there are many changes made from time to time, as things are found that are more satisfactory than those first decided upon.

"I was very much interested in 'Barbara Frietchie.' The one thing I tried to do was to have the costumes look absolutely natural without stage effect. It is a period that is difficult to cover in one way. There are probably a great many people in the audience who remember that time, and they are likely to be critical. A woman might say, 'I think I ought to know about that; I wore things like it myself.'

"Then there was 'Trelawny of the Wells,' which had been brought out the Winter before with costumes of the same period, but that was a comedy, and the comic effects of the period could be used. 'Barbara Frietchie' is a serious play, and while there was humor in it, there could be nothing about the costumes that would suggest anything humorous.

"In every period there is something about the dress that lends itself to ridicule. Men don't know anything about fashions, and they always find extreme points in every style to pick out and make fun of, as they did our big sleeves. In Angelica in 'Nathan Hale' I could bring out the comical side of the costume. There was no minor note in her work. One of her gowns with a queer little hat I took from a miniature of some one in my own family, the same queerly shaped hat with only the alterations made to suit the play. The girl of the miniature was only fifteen and the one in the play sixteen or seventeen, and it was the same period.

"To avoid any chance of anything humorous happening there could be no hoop-skirts worn in 'Barbara.' There was that minor note running all through the play, and with the girls running up and down steps in the house with hoopskirts on there might have been many funny accidents which would have spoiled everything, so ruffled skirts, which fell with the outside skirts as the girls moved, took their place and gave the effect and could not make trouble. There is a great difference in people wearing costumes. Some people never seem to look a character no matter what they wear. They look modern in everything, but all the girls in 'Barbara Frietchie' wear their gowns as if they had always belonged in them.

"Then the style seemed to particularly suit Miss Marlowe. She is used to character parts, and she is a clever woman and can adapt herself to anything, but on some people those styles would be very trying. The long puffed sleeves which come to just above the elbow, would be ugly on some people, but Miss Marlowe's arms seemed just suited for it. The style of the waists also suited her.

"In selecting the colors of the gowns the leading woman always receives first consideration. She usually has some idea of her own as to what color she thinks most becoming, and which she would prefer, but usually she is very good about taking some other if that is found to be more appropriate for the part. Actresses can make up to make any color becoming. Miss Marlowe was very careful in all the details of the costumes, and where cameos were called for in the designs—every one's mother had a cameo pin—she bought beautiful ones. There is a bracelet and a brooch of cameos in blue for the first act, with the blue gown, and a white cameo with the white gown in the last act.

"Miss Marlowe's wedding bonnet is worn at just the proper angle. In 1863 the bonnets were worn forward over the face like a poke, and had flowers on either side. But in 1863 the further back a bonnet was worn the more stylish it was. There is a picture showing a servant going behind his mistress, carrying her bonnet on a cushion, where it was as serviceable to her as in its usual place. There is a little curtain, as they call it, in the back of this bonnet, one little flower in front, and the profile of the wearer must always be plainly seen.

"The bridesmaid's costume of Miss Lamison was made from portraits in my family. That is one of my favorite costumes. It has the zouave jacket, as it was called then, and what we now call the Eton; the Spencer waist, tucked, and the little round hat, and the parasolette was made from one that I have. The little belt is of patent leather, like one in a picture, as you can see from the high lights. Both Miss Marlowe and Miss Lamison wear one-button lemon colored gloves.

"One trouble in getting up the costumes of that period was that we have come back to so many of the fashions now that great care had to be taken not to get a modern effect. It was easy in other ways, for the styles of thin goods of that time were easy to find. Everything had to be simple for the play, for it was in the Summer, when people wear thin, simple gowns. Elaborate clothes were not worn anyway, and particularly during the war, when people were not spending much money. It is hard for people sometimes to keep entirely to simple materials on the stage. There is a feeling that costumes always should be of elaborate materials."

BICYCLE CRACKS COMPETE.

Elkes Beats French Racer in 25-Mile Paced Match—Other Events in the Garden.

Madison Square Garden was packed to the doors last evening at the opening of the indoor bicycle season under the auspices of the American Cycle Racing Association. It is seldom that so many champions of international fame are assembled on the same track.

The entries included Giovanni Tommaselli of Italy, champion of Europe; Henri Meyers, champion of Holland and England; George Banker, Paris, world's champion of 1898; "Tom" Cooper, champion of America; Earl Kiser, holder of the second American championship, and J. A. Newhouse of Buffalo, five-mile champion of America.

There were one or two nasty spills, but no one was seriously injured. The management hurried the preliminary races through as rapidly as possible in order to get the two long-distance paced events over by midnight.

The most exciting event of the evening was the twenty-five-mile paced match between Harry Elkes of America and Albert Champion of France. Elkes won in 49:09 3-5. Champion was three-quarters of a mile behind the finish, but he rode in hard luck throughout the race.

The first start was spoiled through an accident to Elkes's motor-pacer, which slipped the track and gave its riders a bad collision with the railing.

Early in the race Champion lost several laps through a bent saddle-post, which necessitated a change of wheels. In the eleventh mile Champion was only two miles behind when his pacer gave out and another one was put on, but at a loss of several laps to the Frenchman.

In the thirteenth mile the crowd cheered when Champion passed Elkes. Elkes immediately dropped his pacer and hung to Champion. He was soon, however, picked up by his own pacer, and then passed his rival. Again Champion passed Elkes and the American dropped his pacer and tried to catch Champion, but this time failed.

Champion showed up several times as if he was undecided about continuing the race. At the twentieth mile Champion was six laps behind Elkes, whose time at this point was 39:25. When Elkes finished Champion was seven and a half laps behind.

The fifteen-mile amateur paced race between Arthur W. Ross and Johnny Nelson came to a premature finish through Nelson's spill in the second mile. It was so late then that the management decided not to let them start again, but called for the twenty-five-mile race.

The trial heats of the Madison one-mile handicap, professional, and of the one-mile amateur indoor championship were run off, but the finals were postponed to another occasion, to give place to the distance events.

Probably the best time made during the evening was that of F. L. Kramer in his trial heat for the half-mile amateur. He rode it in 1:02 4-5, and did it again in the semi-final. Summaries:

Kramer Handicap; Half-Mile Amateur.—Won by J. O. Jacobson, amateur American fifty-mile champion, (15 yards;) Time—1:03 2-5. F. L. Kramer, Harlem Wheelmen, amateur American champion, (scratch,) second; G. C. Schreiber, H. W., New York, (10 yards,) third.

International Mile; Professional; Open.—Won by Henri Meyers, champion of Holland and England; Time—2:10 1-5. George Banker, Paris, world's champion of 1898, second; W. A. Rutz, New Haven, Conn., third. A. B. Stone of Denver, Col., got fourth money for riding second in the fastes semi-final heat.

25-Mile Paced Match.—Won by Harry Elkes of America. Time—49:09 3-5.

James J. Jeffries will start the great six-day race at midnight to-night.

Another team has been added in the six-day race. Last evening Oscar Julius and "Gus" Lawson, both of Sweden, entered by wire from Kansas City. They will arrive just in time to start in the contest. Both were riders who finished well up in the Kansas City race. Lawson is a brother of John Lawson and Iver Lawson, the first named being known as the "Terrible Swede."

Nineteen teams will be on the track at 11:30 o'clock to-night, and just previous to the start of the contest the entire field will encircle the track abreast of the regularly organized teams, at the close of which parade the nineteen men who are to represent their teams at the start will remain on the track. After drawing for positions they will be lined up in four lines of four men each and one of three.

Drafts on Foreign Countries. Banking Dept., Main Floor.

Bloomingdale's 3d Ave., 59th & 60th Sts. — All Cars Transfer — Bloomingdale's 3d Ave., 59th & 60th Sts.

Toys. The big brilliantly illuminated basement has been transformed into fairyland for the children. Everything from the simplest play toy to the latest mechanical marvel is shown here. Quaint old Nuremburg itself never boasted an exhibition so varied, interesting, and complete.

Books. Historical Works, Standard Sets, Juvenile Books, Devotional Books, Classical Works, Presentation Books, Picture Books, Books embracing the whole story of English Literature,—are gathered in our giant book store. They were selected understandingly and bought advantageously. Hence the lowest prices on this continent.

18 Days. Just 18 days — secular days — then Christmas.

Art Goods. Bronzes and marbles, carved ivory, Dutch silver, ivory miniatures terra cotta statuary, Limoges, Vienna and French enamels, new art miniatures mounted on leather, artistic leather goods silver mounted, paintings on porcelain, new art French vases in Sevres and other effects, French and Vienna hand-painted plates and plaques, French Cloisonne enamelled paper racks, inkstands, etc.; fine Swiss carvings—in fact, an infinity of articles for ornamentation and curio cabinets are embraced in this comprehensive collection.

Main Floor, 59th St. Section.

Girls' Dresses.

Girls' Dresses, in wool mixtures, full blouse fronts, plaited yokes, capes on shoulders and cuffs of cashmere, jacket front trimmed with insertion and buttons, 4 to 14 yrs., 2.98

Girls' Dresses, of wool plaid, full plaited fronts, large revers of velvet trimmed with insertion, 4 to 12 yrs., 4.98

Girls' Dresses, of all-wool plaid, plaited taffeta silk fronts, large revers and cuffs of velvet, trimmed with lace insertion and ribbon, 4 to 14 yrs., 5.98

Second Floor, 59th St. Section.

Dress Patterns for Holiday Presents.

Just received 5,000 Very Handsome Dress Patterns; will be offered on Monday at a half to a quarter off regular prices. They are a special purchase and include all the best selling and most popular fabrics of the day. There is positively not one dress pattern in the entire lot worth less than $6.50, while many would readily bring $10; our very special price for each dress pattern of 6 yards will be only 3.00

See Window Display. Main floor, centre.

The "Army and Navy" Linen Collars and Cuffs. FOR MEN and BOYS.

The World's Best Quality at the Price.

The "Army and Navy" Collars and Cuffs are four-ply and made for us exclusively. The outside linen in both the collars and cuffs is guaranteed to be 1800 threads fine. The same quality is sold elsewhere in collars at 15c. our price, collars, 10c.; cuffs, 18

Main Floor, 60th St. Section.

RECORDS OF THE BOWLERS.

Empire Club's Score of 1,103 Not Likely to be Excelled Soon.

The feature of the bowling during the week was the record score made by the Empire Club in the Harlem League last Monday night. Their record score of 1,103 will probably stand for a long time. In every tournament now in progress there is an interesting fight for first place. The Corinthian Club holds a prominent position in three tournaments. It is in the lead in the American National, is tied for first place in the National League, and holds second place in the Columbia League. The following tables show the standing of the clubs in the various tournaments:

NEW YORK ROYAL ARCANUM.

	W.	L.	Sc'e.		W.	L.	Sc'e.
N. Y. No. 1	6	0	858	Citizens'	4	4	830
Our No. 1	8	1	906	Colfax	2	4	799
Lenox	6	2	823	Manhattan	3	7	739
Harlem	3	1	823	De Vinne	1	8	749
Colonial	4	2	800	N. Y. No. 2	1	5	741
Americus	5	3	829	Stanley	0	4	690
Yonkers	4	3	797	Defendam	0	4	685
Our No. 2	5	4	844	Knick'bock'r	0	5	548
Empire City	5	5	880

HARLEM LEAGUE.

	W.	L.	Sc'e.		W.	L.	Sc'e.
Knick'bock'r	11	1	995	Standard	4	6	901
Empire	7	1	1103	Corinthian	4	6	900
Riverside	7	1	916	Columbia	5	5	892
Washington	8	2	906	Central	4	8	892
Oriental	9	3	994	Cyclone	4	8	885
Phoenix	5	3	946	Grove Hill	3	7	936
Morningside	6	4	941	Audubon	3	7	882
Belvidere	7	5	965	Boulevard	3	7	867
Premier	5	5	938	Friendship	1	7	904
Morris W.	5	6	1004	Harlem W.	1	9	900
Lotus	5	5	892

ARLINGTON NATIONAL.

	W.	L.	Sc'e.		W.	L.	Sc'e.
Alco	11	1	890	Oradell	5	5	849
Bleecker	9	1	870	Linwood	5	7	759
Edison	7	3	790	Glendale	3	7	855
Gotham	5	3	881	Homestead	3	8	817
Welcome	4	3	884	Black Bass	3	9	783
Straglier	6	4	818	Manhatta	2	8	798
M. M. M.	6	4	813	Amity	0	10	704
Holschen	6	4	751

COLUMBIA LEAGUE.

	W.	L.	Sc'e.		W.	L.	Sc'e.
Oriental	11	1	1023	Village	5	5	892
Corinthian	9	1	938	Audubon	5	7	823
Standard	10	2	942	Mercury	4	8	838
Empire	8	2	958	Boulevard	4	8	837
Belvidere	7	3	922	Enterprise	3	7	826
Riverdale	9	5	923	Orrell	4	8

AS TO HEALTH AND DEATH

Novel Theories of a Quaint California Philosopher.

HOLDS THAT NO ONE EVER DIES

Wants Health Bulletins on the Weather Bureau Plan and Machinery to Fight Heat and Death With.

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 27.—"I know I am a crank—every one is who has ideas different from some one else; but that's the very reason I came out here and went to bee keeping," said a little old man who lived in one of the cañons of the Sierra Santa Monica range, California. "If I want to talk to the bees," he added, "eat while standing on my head, believe that animals go to heaven, or that we are about a thousand years behind the times in our ideas of life and health, there is no one to dispute me or object. I am a chank bee keeper, and that's all there is to it. I came out from New York State for my health, and if you wish to do some good get the Government to warn the people about the weather as it does the farmers about their crops. Why? Because the rise and fall of the thermometer and barometer have everything to do with health.

"You can see this," continued the bee keeper, "by dividing your climate up. Say that in the course of the year you have six distinct kinds that have been recognized by experts. In Boston I have counted thirty, but we will start on six; first, cold; second, dry cold; third, dry hot; fourth, plain heat; five, moist heat, and six, moist cold. We know these different kinds and their variations and combinations. Now, then, there they are. Which one is the most killing? An easy matter. I have a record of a year giving the temperature and climatic conditions of each day or group of days. I also have the deaths of each day and the causes, and I have made from this a table something after the fashion of Draper's tables, where by clockwork a line marks the rise and fall of the temperature any hour in the day or night.

"What does it show? Why, that certain climates are deadly and should be avoided. When the weather man announces that this climate is coming he should sound the alarm and prepare people for it exactly as he warns the farmer of an impending frost. In one case he saves the plants; in another he would save lives. Interesting? Certainly, and by no means morbid. When we strike a week of No. 6 (moist cold) you will see the death line rise, and the warning should go out to those of delicate lungs and hearts or subject to rheumatism, as during such a period you will find the doctors making out their death causes almost entirely of measles, diphtheria, heart disease and rheumatism. Any doctor will tell you this. With No. 1 weather you will find the doctors busy with pneumonia, bronchitis, grip, &c. No. 2 (cold and dry) is distinguished by its brain diseases; now also comes whooping cough, and infants are liable to convulsions.

"Dry warm weather will surprise you. Almost all the suicides, or a great proportion of them, occur then—statistics show it; and if smallpox is around it will develop with marvelous rapidity. Climate No. 5 is favorable to the development of bowel troubles; these prevail, say, in New York in June, July, August, and September at different periods.

"These periods have been located, examined, and compared year by year, and show an extraordinary state of affairs, which can be corrected, more or less, in every large city. How? By having your weather man give the warning, and then have a well-equipped machinery in New York to fight heat and death as you have to fight flames and destruction of property by fire. Why, in New York from 2,500 to 3,000 people die every year from heat alone. The relation of temperature to these cases is beyond dispute. Take diarrheal cases; in the week ending May 7 in New York there were eight deaths, and the maximum temperature was 72 degrees; in the week ending July 9 382 died, and the maximum temperature was 100 degrees.

"There you are. Now, if you know it is a question of heat why not fight it? If the heat got so intense at any building along Broadway that the stock was threatened with destruction the alarm would be sounded all over the city. Engines would rush to the spot, and the underwriters would do all they could to save the goods. But when the thermometer runs up to 100 degrees, and every one knows that it means sudden death to so many people in four months, there is no alarm sounded, no department rushes to the rescue. Why? I don't know, unless it may be that it is the poor who mostly die in this way.

"Looking at the question thus you have a line that we may start at—May, the healthiest month in the year. So we should study May and invade it in weather all the year. Starting with a minimum death rate, we find that the line rises gradually until the third week in July, which in large cities is generally a season of disaster. From then it decreases—you must remember that I am referring to large cities. It drops after the third week in August. As an example: Deaths from germ diseases in New York in one July numbered 1,433; in November of the same year there were but 460. By the middle of that month the line of increase of death begins to rise, and from now on until about the middle of April, when the maximum fatalities occur.

"There is no reason for so many people dying. It is merely a question of care, information, education. The principles of climatic change are not known to one person in five hundred. What we need is more light on the subject of general health. People should be drilled to look out for themselves on days that the weather man says are going to be cold and moist. The fatal character of these kinds of climates is the reason why great health resorts are growing so rapidly. The San Gabriel Valley along the mountains, including Los Angeles County, is dry, but not too dry, and warm. The Riviera corresponds to it, and both these localities are the Mecca of thousands who are victims of the cold, moist days of the year."

THERE IS NO REAL DEATH.

"You know, or perhaps you do not," continued the old man with the reputation of being a crank, but who, in point of fact, thought a great deal and spoke rarely, "the idea of death is, so far as the wiping out of an individual is concerned, more or less of a misnomer. We look at it in the wrong way. We have been educated to believe that our individuality is centred in one frame, one body, one brain, when nature has provided just the reverse, and to make it plain has divided man about, scattered his blood, good and bad, his brains, stupid or brilliant, among many. In a word, a man has a son, is not the son an integral and absolute part of his father and mother? No parent can be said to die so long as the son lives.

"You think I am a crank. Well, perhaps I am; but I am the founder of the new school of philosophy that has hundreds of followers who believe that there never has been a real death, as you understand it, since the creation. A man dies. Is he really gone? By no means; he has merely served his purpose, and, to put it brutally, nature has no further use for him. But to say that that man's influence in the world is at an end is folly. His energy and his brain power have all been a strain, and the machinery has worn away, but his personality, his mental characteristics, his physical being, have been merely transferred to another, who, with youth and vigor, passes them on to some one else.

"You may laugh at this now, but the more you think it over the less you will laugh. That this is so explains many singular things. Have you met some one or seen something that was unaccountably familiar to you, and that made you feel that you had seen it before? Well, so you had. The person who would say in this age that the impression made upon the brain of a grandfather or great-grandfather cannot be transmitted from father to son or several generations is very much behind the day. If a man has been a great General for several generations you will not deny that the mental bent can be transmitted to the great-grandson. He wishes to be a soldier and exhibits qualifications for that profession without knowing why. This is the A B C of inheritance. Is it any more difficult to believe that if your seventh great-grandfather lived in a home that was his chief delight, that if his son lived there, and also spent a life of devotion to this place, that you coming suddenly upon this house, never having heard of it, should feel that you had seen it before, though you knew not why? This is a common phenomenon, and proves what I say, that a man does not die in the accepted sense; he simply passes all his faculties to some one else; his frame crumbles to dust, but he lives.

"Of course," added the learned bee keeper, "looking at it in this way a man is pretty well distributed around after a while, but it is distribution, not death. I make no attempt to urge my views. What is the use? But it is a consolation to me that I am going to live on for ages; not by any reincarnation or any of that kind of bosh, but live in my son or daughter, influencing them all their lives."

"Suppose you have no children," suggested the listener.

"Well," was the reply, "in that case you revert back to some other branch, and you live of course, but greatly distributed, and your influence is liable to be lost in the combination of hundreds of others. But mark my word we never die in the ordinary sense. Our body exists until it is worn out, then disappears, and we reappear again—a sort of endless chain."

GOWNING NEW JERSEY'S JUDGES

Many Lawyers Favor a Return to Old Time Court Form, but the Judiciary Is Obdurate.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 2.—There is an interesting discussion at the present time between the judiciary and the bar of New Jersey over the proposition to have the Justices and Judges of the New Jersey courts wear black gowns. The lawyers are much divided on the question, but the Judges are almost a unit in their opposition, so that the gowning of the judiciary of New Jersey is not likely to happen at once.

The spirit and the traditions of the New Jersey judiciary are democratic to an intense degree, and the same spirit that led to the abolition of the gown in 1791 by the shining lights of the bar of other generations still exists and is assertive.

When the gowns were taken off both the Judges and the barristers, the question of the personal appearance of either during the period of court received no further consideration. The new State Bar Association intends to improve the Judges as well as the lawyers, and, as far as can be ascertained, the principal reason for the agitation of placing gowns on the Judges comes from the fact that when the Court of Errors and Appeals is in session, the fifteen Judges on the bench are liable to be attired in fifteen kinds of wearing apparel, not only as to the color of the cloth, but the cut of the garments. Several of these consult frequently with fashionable tailors, and have a variety of clothing sufficient to enable them to be arrayed more gloriously than the lilies of the field, appearing every day of the term of court in new toggery of the "swell" variety. But there is a variety of coats; some wear the sack, others have the cutaway with a fancy waistcoat; few have the conventional Prince Albert. Some take to white ties, others to red and blue ones.

Attorney General Grey, President of the New Jersey Bar Association, strongly favors the gowning of the Justices and Judges in very much the same way as the Justices of the United States Supreme Court, and even thinks it would be well for counselors who come into court to argue their case to be clad in dark clothing.

Chancellor Alexander T. McGill is somewhat in doubt about the wisdom of the innovation. His position is a peculiar one. He has been in England, and has met and admired the Lord High Chancellor of the court from which New Jersey obtained its Chancery.

"When I was abroad," he said during a conversation on the subject, "I saw the Chancellor of England wearing his purple gown with all the dignity that a man could put in it. If we must have gowns in New Jersey, I should favor only a black silk gown and nothing else."

Vice Chancellor Grey says: "Gowns may be all right, but not for Vice Chancellors. We are entirely too much on the circuit, sitting one day in one chamber and the next day in some chamber many miles away. We would have to carry our gowns around with us as a Bishop does his vestments, when he goes around his diocese."

Chief Justice William J. Magie does not take kindly to gowns. He thinks they would be a burden in hot weather and not necessary at any time.

The venerable Justice David A. Depue was very positive in his declaration against gowns. "I don't like the idea," he said. "Because it is going backward. Just as soon as the Legislature says we are to wear gowns, then I resign."

Ex-Gov. George C. Ludlow, who is now a Supreme Court Justice, said that there is no need of gowns at all. Supreme Court Justice Charles G. Garrison said: "Put me down as opposed to gowns. There is no need for them." Supreme Court Justice Job H. Lippincott is very positive in his mind that he does not want anything to do with the gowns. "I am absolutely and unalterably opposed to the gowning of the Judges of any branch of the Judiciary," he said.

The Judges of the Court of Errors, who are not Justices, do not take kindly to the idea. There was not one who gave the slightest indorsement to the agitation. Gov. Voorhees is at the head of the opposition which is made principally on the ground that the State dropped the gown for democratic reasons and those same reasons should keep the gown in the closet for all time.

Among the lawyers, about 50 per cent. of those seen favored the wearing of the black gown. The State Bar Association will, in all probability, at its next meeting, appoint several prominent lawyers to prepare papers on the question of vesting the judiciary, which will be read at the annual meeting in Atlantic City in June.

MINERAL WATER MAIL BOXES.

Expedient Adopted in Chicago After the Post Office Fire.

Assistant Postmaster J. M. Hubbard of Chicago, who is at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, has a great liking for the compartment boxes used by manufacturers of mineral waters. He was talking with a friend about the destruction of the Post Office in Chicago by fire. None of the distributing boxes was saved, and much time was necessary to construct others. Mr. Hubbard obtained temporary quarters in a large building.

"I had the mail distributed on the bare floor," he said, "and the men worked so well that we did not miss a delivery. But I knew they could not keep up the pace much longer. One day I saw them falling behind, and I was discouraged. I went to the door of the building, when I saw a wagon owned by a mineral water manufacturer. I happened to glance at one of the wooden boxes, when a happy thought struck me. Three hours later I had about all the mineral water boxes to be obtained in Chicago in position. They were placed end to end and labeled, and when Superintendent Bangs of the Railway Mail Service arrived everything was working splendidly."

NEW NEW HAVEN BOAT IS FAST.

Chester W. Chopin Shows Twenty and a Half Miles.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 2.—The twin-screw passenger steamer Chester W. Chopin, built by the Maryland Steel Company for the New Haven Steamboat Company, on her trial trip in Annapolis Roads to-day developed a speed of 20½ statute miles an hour, which was a surprise to the builders, as well as to the officials of the steamboat company. The steamer is to run between New York and New Haven, and in addition to the officers of the company there were a number of guests from those cities on the trial trip, the party including the designer of the steamer, Carey Smith; E. F. De Young, Treasurer and General Passenger Agent of the New Haven Company; D. A. Geraty, Superintendent; W. W. Abbott, J. D. Cox, C. J. French, United States Inspector Barnett, Frank Soop, supervising engineer; Capt. Edgar Hardy, who will be in charge of the new steamer after she is turned over to the company in New York; Chief Engineer W. McDonald, and First Assistant Engineer Haynes, who will also go with the steamer to New York.

The Chopin is built of steel, and is the largest vessel of her kind ever launched at this port. Her dimensions are: Length on deck, 324 feet; length on water-line, 310 feet; depth of hold, 17 feet 2½ inches. The lower deck has ten staterooms, with accommodations for twenty officers, and some passenger accommodations.

The main deck contains the ladies' cabin. The promenade or saloon deck has a double row of staterooms on either side. The vessel has steam heat throughout, and is fitted with two iron water tanks, each of a capacity of 2,000 gallons. Two inclined engines furnish power for the electric plant, which gives current to 650 16-candle-power incandescent lamps and an 8,000-candle-power searchlight.

Power is furnished by two inverted, direct-acting, surface-condensing, triple-expansion engines, with cylinders of 24.38 and 60 inches diameter by 30 inches stroke.

The high-pressure cylinder is equipped with piston valves, and the low-pressure cylinders with slide valves. To these engines, which develop 4,200 indicated horse power, steam is supplied from six Scotch boilers.

BIGGEST POWERHOUSE YET

Wonders of the Third Avenue Trolley Company's New Plant.

ELECTRICITY FOR THE SYSTEM

An Average of 1,200 Cars, Capable of Carrying 48,000 Persons, Will Soon Be Running Daily.

The average patron of the trolley car in New York does not realize the tremendous energy required to move him and his fellow-passengers throughout the city during one given moment of the day. He knows that the electrical power which propels the car on which he happens to be riding comes from somewhere somehow, and he never gives the matter a thought except to kick—frequently—when there is a break in that supply. And yet the electrical powerhouses of the average street railway are among the biggest engine houses in existence, and require a tremendous outlay of capital in their construction.

When the generation of power for one big system is concentrated in one plant that plant is startling in its immensity, and is an inspiring monument to the potentiality of the nickel. The Third Avenue Railroad Company, which is equipping all of its lines electrically, furnishes a good example of the magnitude of the electrical supply required to operate a street railway system. This company, which is at present getting along as best it can with a series of huge but temporary plants in various parts of the city, has in course of construction on the banks of the Harlem near King's Bridge the largest railway powerhouse in the world. This great plant is designed to furnish the motive power for every car on the lines owned or controlled by the Third Avenue Company, not excepting the Union Railway system, that network of lines that spreads like a spider web over the entire Bronx district.

Some idea of the requirements of this plant may be gained when it is stated that by the time of its completion there will be an average of 1,200 cars running daily over the various lines, with an average carrying capacity of forty passengers, so that, besides the immense weight of the rolling stock, the dynamos in this plant must be capable of moving at least 48,000 persons at a given moment. As a matter of fact, this plant is designed to do far more than this when necessary, for the company naturally intends to increase its business, and such plants cannot be built every day, even by a corporation.

SITE OF THE PLANT.

The site of this huge plant is on Ninth Avenue, extending from Two Hundred and Sixteenth Street to Two Hundred and Eighteenth Street, and from the avenue eastward to the Harlem River. The company already has an immense car barn directly across the avenue and a few years ago began the erection of a cable powerhouse on the site of the proposed new structure destined to operate the King's Bridge division of the company's system. Then came the substitution of electricity for cable power, and the company was compelled to tear down the partially completed structure to make way for the many times larger electrical plan. This work was begun last February, and every vestige of the former building was removed several months ago and the foundation of the new structure begun. A force of from 400 to 600 workmen has been employed every day since, and yet such was the magnitude of the proposed construction that work on the building will scarcely begin before early Spring.

The foundation work presented many difficulties, which were successfully overcome by Superintendent of Construction William Reeves. The excavations covered a space 360 feet in length by 260 feet in width, and were made to a depth of 14 feet. The proximity of the river made it necessary to build a coffer dam throughout the eastern frontage of this space and extending inland to either end, making a total length of 560 feet. Within the excavated space 16,000 oak piles 40 feet in length were driven, the piles being placed 1½ feet apart.

Notwithstanding the proximity of the river, the soil a few feet below the surface was found to be so hard that the piles could not be driven, except with the aid of water pressure. The work is done by water forced through a pipe at an enormous pressure. This is sufficient to tear a hole in the soil to the depth required, into which the pile is inserted. The piles have been driven, and the work of laying the concrete foundation has progressed to a considerable extent. The concrete will be 7½ feet in depth, and on this will be laid the foundation of the structure proper.

The building will be 320 feet long and 246 feet wide, running lengthwise north and south. For a distance of twenty feet above the concrete foundation the walls will be of granite. The remainder of the walls as viewed from the exterior will be of brick with terra cotta dressing, but the main body of the building will be of iron and steel in order to support the enormous weight and sustain the vibration to which it will be subjected.

The structure will tower 120 feet from the sidewalk to the cornice work around the upper edges and at each corner will rise a parapet about 20 feet higher. Rising 100 feet higher still will be four great steel chimneys, each 15 feet in diameter.

DIVISIONS OF THE BUILDING.

The building, considered longitudinally, will be divided into two parts. The eastern half facing the river will have two floors, on which will be ranged thirty-two batteries of boilers of the latest pattern. Above these, running the entire length of the building, will be an immense coal storage bin, with a capacity of 10,000 tons. Leading from this bin will be chutes connecting with automatic "stoker" arrangements that feed the boilers with coal, largely doing away with the need of firemen and coalpassers. The coal will be loaded on the wharf from lighters and hoisted by steam directly to the big coalbin. The space given up to the generation of steam will be 320 feet long and 100 feet wide on each of the two floors.

The remaining or western half of the building will be the more interesting to the casual spectator. There will be only one floor, an immense area 320 feet long by 246 feet in width, and stretched along its entire length will be sixteen great dynamos, each with a capacity of 3,000 kilo-watts and each driven by a vertical cross-compound two-cylinder engine. Each engine will be capable of developing 7,000 horse power, making a total engine capacity of 112,000 horse power. The Cunard liner Umbria crosses the ocean with engines developing less than 9,000 horse power. The dynamos will be huge affairs, each weighing many tons. The basement of the big building will be taken up with the many pumps and the great wilderness of auxiliary machinery used in the operation of the plant.

This central plant is situated miles from the centre of the Third Avenue Company's system of roads. Some of its power will be applied to the car motors as far distant as fifteen miles, but this energy will not be applied directly. To maintain a direct current to all the various lines at that distance would require tons upon tons of copper cables. Instead the plant will operate on what is known as the transforming receiver system. Running the entire length of the powerhouse, directly behind and connected with the dynamos will be an immense copper rod known as the "buss bar." This will receive the combined voltage of the dynamos in operation.

THE TRANSMISSION CABLES.

Leading from this rod will be the transmitting cables. The transmitting cable consists of three small copper cables about ⅝ inch in diameter, each of these in turn being made up of abou fifty small copper wires 1-32 of an inch in diameter. The three copper cables are insulated in gutta percha, the whole being incased in lead and making the complete cable about 2 inches in diameter. These cables extend from the powerhouse to a number of receiving stations. Two cables will run to Amsterdam Avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-eighth Street, two to One Hundred and Thirtieth Street and Third Avenue, and one to Amsterdam Avenue, near Fifty-ninth Street; one to Forty-second Street, near the East River; one to Bayard Street and the Bowery, and three to points in the Bronx not yet located.

These various receiving stations will be powerhouses in a certain sense, as they will receive the supply of electricity from the great central plant and distribute it over the various underground trolley lines. They will serve practically as reservoirs. The transmitting cables referred to as leading from the central plant will transmit a voltage of 11,000 by the high-pressure system. At the transforming station this dangerous current will be received in what are known as rotary or step-down transformers, exceedingly complicated affairs, absolutely unintelligible to the average person. By their use, however, the electricity is stored very much as water would be stored in a tank, and is sent out over the underground trolley wires in direct currents of 500 or 550 volts, which is as high as is considered safe for trolley purposes. In this manner the energetic fluid is served up to the halting trolley car, and is manipulated at will by the merry motorman.

It is not absolutely certain just when the great generating plant will be completed, but it will scarcely be in operation within a year.

The cost of the plant, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. The expense of operating such a huge plant will be very large, but not so great as might at first be imagined. By the use of the automatic coaling chutes for feeding the boilers the fire-room force will be largely done away with. Every part of the machinery will be fitted with automatic oilers and many other labor-saving devices will be employed, but with all that hundreds of artisans will be required. Superintendent Robertson of the Third Avenue Company announced yesterday that the force would work in three shifts of eight hours each.

The coal consumption of the plant will be 450 tons per day, and the company expects to bring its coal supply up the river on its own river craft purchased for that purpose.

BIG MOTOR CAB PLANT PLANNED.

Will Be Inaugurated in Chicago Before Christmas.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—With an organization that was perfected last week, and which is to be incorporated at Springfield Monday, Chicago before Christmas Day will be the central site for the largest electric motor cab and carriage service in the world.

The incorporators, to be entitled "Woods Motor Cab Company," is capitalized at $500,000, and will have headquarters in this city. The company is fully established, and nothing is lacking to hinder its proposed plans. Cabs and carriages for public use is the object of the organization. On Christmas day the first fifty vehicles will be ready for use. On or before May 1 1,500 cabs and carriages of the company will be on the streets.

R. T. WILSON'S SISTER INJURED.

May Die as the Result of a Runaway Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 2.—As the result of a runaway to-day Mrs. E. J. Cook, sister of R. T. Wilson of New York and aunt of young Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, was severely, perhaps fatally, injured. The physicians say she has a fractured skull. Her arm is also broken, and it is thought she received internal injuries. She had not at a late hour to-night regained consciousness since the accident.

Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Peyton Smith of Macon were out driving in a trap. The horse became frightened and ran away. Mrs. Cook could not control the animal, but endeavored to do so until she was thrown out by a collision with a coal wagon. Mrs. Smith was considerably bruised and injured, but not seriously. Both women were carried to a nearby residence and a doctor summoned.

Later they were removed to their own home. Mrs. Cook is living with her brother, J. M. Johnston, banker and capitalist of Macon, and spends most of her time here. She has frequently visited her sister-in-law, Mrs. Wilson, in New York, and is well known there. To-night the physicians say Mrs. Cook's recovery is doubtful. She is a native of Tennessee, but spends most of her time in Macon with her brothers, Messrs. J. M. and W. M. Johnston.

Mr. R. T. Wilson, when seen at his residence last night, declared that the statement that Mrs. Cook is fatally injured was exaggerated. "She is not fatally hurt, thank God," he said, "but her injuries are severe. That is all I care to say about the accident, and all that it is necessary to say."

JEE GAM'S NUMEROUS FAMILY.

Chinese Missionary Relates How He Made Use of Christian Names.

The Chinese do not object to the repetition of names in their families. There has been an interesting little Chinaman in New York recently, making his first visit here for twenty years. He is a missionary in San Francisco, and he has been East to collect money for his mission. He is a small man, dressed in the Chinese costume, and wears his gray hair braided in a queue down his back, because, as he says, he has more influence with his countrymen when he wears the national costume. He speaks English fluently, and has the air of a man who has met many people.

He first came to this country in 1863 at the time of the civil war, coming over what his family at home thought was a sea of darkness, over sunken mountains, to the land of gold. For the last twenty-nine years he has been a missionary and an interpreter in the court at Oakland, a business in which some of the Christianized Chinamen here engage, and by means of which they are often of great service to their countrymen.

Mr. Jee Gam was the honored guest at a little tea party given by an old resident of Brooklyn the other day, and there, when some reference was made to his family, he gave the names of his seven children, and the meanings and reasons for giving them. Jee is the family name, after which, among the Chinese, comes the given name.

"When my first boy was born in China," said Mr. Jee Gam, "everything was going very well with me, so I called him Prosperity. Then, when I thought of the place where I first heard of Christianity, and I said I must name him after that family, so his name is Jee Wong Linforth. Then my second boy was came. This is a gift from heaven, I said, and I called him Shin Fwe (God's gift.) Then there was my dear friend, Dr. Moore, who was at the head of the missionary association, and I said I must name my boy after him, and then there was good Dr. Pond, who was the minister at the church where I was one of the first three Chinamen west of the Rocky Mountains to join a white church, and I must call him after him, so I named him Shin Fwe Pond Moore.

"Then when my third boy was born I said that is the Grace of God. And then it was the great celebration for Luther—400 years—and I had to call him Luther; and then there was my good friend, Dr. McLean, who was minister in the church after Dr. Moore left. I needed some help very much once and he helped me through the Sunday school, so I had to call my third boy after him, and I named him Shin Yien (God's Grace) Luther McLean. The little girl came next and I said, Oh, the Beauty of God, and I called her Shin Mae. We were living in the little mission and we had been sick because there had been some trouble with the sewer and the landlord had said to me:

"'Now, Jee Gam, I shall have to fix this sewer, and it has made you sick. Here is $50; you go and take a vacation, and while you are gone I will have it fixed.' That was the first vacation I ever had, so I had to call the little girl after the landlord, Felt; and then there was good Dr. Blodgett, who had been a missionary to China. I had met him at the house of Dr. Pond, and I named the little girl Shin Mae Felt Blodgett.

"When the next boy came I said this is the Greatness of God, and so I named him. Then there was the good Judge Henshaw at the police court where I had been so many years, he had been a friend to me, and I said I must name this boy after the Judge, so I called him Shin Gwong Henshaw.

"When the sixth boy came, that was at the time of the celebration of the Christian Endeavor Society, and so I called him God's Endeavor. Then there was Prof. Benton, whom I liked so much, and I had to name him after Prof. Benton, Shin Min Benton. When the seventh child came, it was a boy, too, and that was just at the time of the war between China and Japan. I wanted very much to have peace, so I said I will call my boy God's Peace. Then there was that good man Gen. Howard, and there was Mr. Lovejoy, who was a friend of Dr. Pond. I must name one of my boys after him, so I called my last boy Shin Hong Howard Lovejoy.

"That is all my family—Jee Wong Linforth, Jee Shin Fwe Pond Moore, Shin Yien Luther McLean, Jee Shin Mae Felt Blodgett, Jee Shin Gwong Henshaw, Jee Shin Min Benton, Jee Shin Hong Howard Lovejoy."

Negro Ex-Postmaster Goes to Jail.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Dec. 2.—In the United States Court here to-day Zach B. Bailey, colored, ex-Postmaster at Milleview, Fla., was sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio, for embezzlement.

To Take Exhibits to Paris.

It was said at the navy yard yesterday that the naval transport Prairie would start for Havre, France, to-day with the first installment of the Government exhibit for the Paris Exposition. The Prairie will stop at Norfolk and Baltimore for parts of the exhibit.

Our little essay to-day gives this bit of clothing philosophy: You can't choose wrong from where there's only right. Our materials are as perfect as our work. Prince Albert coat and vest, made of fine black vicuna thibet, silk lined and faced throughout, with an imported fancy striped or checked trousering. Suit to order, $29.00. Full dress or Tuxedo, $30.00. Samples of materials and linings mailed free.

ARNHEIM,

OUR ONLY STORE,

BROADWAY & 9TH STREET.

WAYS OF THE PIANO TRADE

How Players and Music Teachers Add to Their Incomes.

WOMEN AGENTS IN SOCIETY.

They Tell of the Merits of Bangup's Instruments and Pay Their Bills With the Commissions.

"Yes," said the piano man, "when you hear them saying that the pianists who come to this country are bought by the piano manufacturers and play the pianos for which they are best paid, they are right every time. They are bought body and soul by the highest bidder, and it's not the second-rate players, either. Take the very best of 'em, and it's just the same. I tell you we don't think much of 'em when they come in here. I suppose it's so with everybody. Familiarity breeds contempt. You never want to know an artist too well. But they are not the only people who sell their preferences.

"Now perhaps you wouldn't believe it, but about half the people who come in here to buy pianos, we know by sight as soon as we catch a glimpse of them and can tell to a T what they expect to get. How do we do it? That is easy enough. Some one has been in to tell us. We have them all down on our books. There's Mr. Brown, a stout old gentleman, with a wart on the end of his nose, always carries a cane, has a gruff manner, but is a pretty good fellow when you get him started right. He wants to buy a piano for his daughter. Doesn't know anything about music, but will try to make a shrewd bargain.

"Then the next one is Mrs. T. Hifalutin Smith. Will probably wear a Persian lamb jacket with a chinchilla collar, and a turban of blue velvet with chinchilla. Carries a lorgnette, and doesn't know high C from the bass notes, but will say she has been playing so much lately she has sprained her wrist and can't try the piano. She can't, for that matter. She will want a showy piano.

"Here's the next one—a timid little girl with blonde hair. Wants to be an opera singer. A rich uncle is going to give her the piano. She will get a good one and a baby grand. She has plenty of room, for she has hired a studio and is playing Bohemian in a mild way in the city, and she won't have much else for furniture.

"Here's another one—Mrs. Grubin Jenkins. Nothing distinctive in her appearance, clothes inexpensive, will bring with her a little girl who will choose the piano. The child has taken a term of music lessons; they think she is going to be a genius.

"Well, that's the way if goes indefinitely. You might have a whole list of 'em like that. Of course, not quite all those particulars are noted down, but the details I have in my memory, and the minute Mrs. T. Hifalutin Smith comes into this establishment I shall know her.

"Who tells all this? Why, the women who send them here and who are going to get a commission. Some of them are music teachers and some of them are society women who like to make a little extra money to help pay their social expenses. You see, a woman goes out a good deal and she meets a good many people. She will be at a big euchre party one afternoon and hear you say that you are going to buy a piano. It is a very natural thing to speak of it. The majority of people would do it and perhaps ask a friend's advice. Well, the woman who helps pay her tailor's bills in this way overhears that remark about the piano, and she gets an introduction to you if she doesn't know you already, and it is very easy for her to bring the conversation around to pianos. You are quite ready to talk on that subject.

"'Oh, I do hope you will buy one of Bangup's pianos,' she will say. 'I have hapened to have several friends buy them within the last two or three years'—that is true enough, too—'and they have invariably given such satisfaction, and the tone is really remarkable.'

"She goes on that way for some time, and you begin to think that there is no piano that will suit you quite as well as Bangup's. But you remember you and your husband had about made up your mind to get another make.

"'We were thinking of getting one of Thumpum's' you admit, almost ashamed of having had the idea.

"'Oh, my dear,' begins your new friend, and then she hesitates a moment; 'really,' she will go on, 'I don't want to advise you, but there is such a difference in pianos, and if you get a piano with a cold, hard tone, you will never forgive yourself. Of course Thumpum is well known and I wouldn't say a thing against the piano for the world, only I happen to know—well, never mind. I am not going to say another word. The only thing I am really sure of is that Bangup's piano is a wonderful instrument, and so many people I know think there is no other. But don't pay the least attention to me. Get the piano you like best yourself, and don't let any one make you change your mind and you will be satisfied.'

"Then she smiles and talks of something else, but you may be sure that she is down here bright and early the next day giving us a full description of you, and you are pretty sure to come in later and get the piano, while she gets the commission. Oh, its a regular practice, and while it is not done so much in the better class houses, the smaller ones, where the name of the piano is not known, does almost all its business in that way. A little music teacher somewhere off in the suburbs, who knows so little about music that it is a disgrace to call her a musician, will shrug her shoulders at the mention of any other piano that the one by which she gets her commissions, and in the families where she teaches they look upon her as a marvel of musical knowledge, and go where she tells them.

"Of course, a rich woman would not get a piano in that way. She goes to some good musician and says she wants his judgment on a piano and he goes where he can get the largest commission and selects the piano for her. It is not only in this business; it is the same in everything. You get a man to decorate your house and he goes around where he can get the cheapest goods, and then charges you the highest rates. But you learn something of human nature when you make selling pianos a business.

"Of course, every one is not like that. You have a good many people come in who know your piano by name, know that it is good, and come to tell you that they want a good piano, that there are to be no commissions, and they want you to do the best you can for them and trust to your judgment to get a good piano if they don't know anything about it themselves. As a matter of fact, you have got to play yourself to get a really good idea of the tone of the piano. You must have your fingers on the keys and bring out the tones yourself.

"The pianos are supposed to be all alike, and they are as to quality of makeup, but there is always some difference in tone. No two pianos could be made alike. The manufacturer may vary the tone to some extent in the tone-regulating branch by doctoring up the hammer and working up the mellowness or brilliancy of the instrument, but that is all, and he can't guarantee any certain result, and you choose the piano which has a tone that suits you.

"It is a great deal easier usually to sell a piano to a musician than to any one who is not. The musician knows exactly what he wants, and knows when he finds it. Sometimes you will sell a piano in fifteen minutes, and then it may take a year. The people who are always trying to make bargains will take no end of trouble to get one. They go to the export house, they try to work through an out-of-town agent, and then come at last and buy a piano, as they might have done in the first place.

"To a certain extent the outside is one of the first things considered in a piano. It must not conflict with the furniture of the house to which it is to be taken. Mahogany is sold now more than any other wood, and the Colonial style is one that is popular. The pianos usually follow to some extent the prevailing styles of furniture. It is probable that more people prefer a Colonial than an Empire style of decoration for one particular reason. The most expensive pianos have the greatest amount of carving upon them, and the lower priced pianos sell more readily always than the more expensive ones. Hence the Colonial design is popular because it is simple and may make nearly $100 difference in the cost. The upright and the baby grand are the pianos that go into most houses, the former taking the lead on account of its convenience, but where there is room for the baby grand it is popular, for it will give a larger volume of tone."

CANADA'S NICKEL.

The Ontario Government Prohibits Export of Ore and Matte.

From The Toronto (Ont.) Mail and Express.

The Ontario Government has, without consulting the Legislature, passed an order in Council which it is believed will have a far-reaching effect on the commercial affairs of the province. The order prohibits the export of nickel ores and matte, and it is stated to be the intention of the Government to open negotiations with the Lords of the British Admiralty, with a view to inducing them to take an interest in the nickel lands of the province still unlicensed. It is hoped that this will result in the home production of nickel for use in the manufacture of British warships. In 1891 similar negotiations were entered into, but were unsuccessful, but the Premier hopes for better luck this time.

The memorandum on the subject by the Hon. E. J. Davis, Commissioner of Crown Lands, is as follows:

1. That in the interests of our relations with the empire it is desirable at an early opportunity to renew the negotiations opened with the British Government in April, 1891, which had for their object the concession of an interest in nickel ores of the ungranted lands of the crown for imperial and National uses, on such terms as may be mutually agreed upon.

2. That having in view a larger scope for the employment of capital and labor in the copper-nickel mines and works, it is desirable to secure the establishment in the province of refining plants in accordance with the scheme of the charter of the Canadian Copper Company or otherwise; and, if necessary to the success of this object, to ask that effect be given to the provisions of the act (Chapter 67 of 60-61 V.,) for imposing export duties on nickel and copper, subject to such modifications in favor of the United Kingdom and the other colonies of the British Empire as may appear to be in the common interest.

3. That for safeguarding the public interest in ungranted lands of the Crown it is advisable that all grants of mining lands hereafter issued shall provide in the patent or lease that the copper and nickel ores upon or in such lands shall be treated and refined in the province so as to produce fine nickel and copper of marketable quality, and that for any violation or evasion of this proviso by the grantee, his heirs or assigns, such lands shall revert to and be vested in her Majesty, her successors, and assigns, for the public uses of the province, freed and discharged of any interest or claim of any other person or persons whatsoever, as if they had never been granted.

SIMPSON, CRAWFORD & SIMPSON.

Our Great Holiday Book Dept.

Is Now in Full Swing.

All the new books are here. They show a variety of reading and binding and press work that is truly amazing. Also a wonderfully rich collection of all the famous books of English literature, many of them in exquisite holiday dress. Library sets of the great authors—the grandest collection we have ever shown. Story Books for boys and girls by the hundreds of thousands. Superb Holiday Gift Books, Fine Art Publications, Prayer Books, Bibles, Religious Works, etc.

Altogether a truly grand stock, consisting of the very cream of the publications of England and America. Now about prices.

Recent (Copyrighted) Books.

Honorable Peter Stirling, Adventures of Francois, Choir Invisible, Sorrows of Satan, Under the Red Robe, Celebrity, Phroso, in cloth bindings, all at 37c each.

Janice Meredith . . . 72c
Richard Carvel . . . 79c
Via Crucis . . . 79c
David Harum . . . 85c
A Gentleman Player . . . 85c

Not more than one each of above works to any one customer, and no mail orders can be filled.

Famous Books of Famous Authors—25c.

A fine illustrated library edition of standard works, richly bound in silk cloth. This line cannot be purchased anywhere below 45c. each; special price . . . 25c

Holiday Edition of Standard Works—50c.

60 of the great masterpieces of literature in beautiful holiday bindings. Each one in box, actual value $1.00; special price, 50c

Classics in Dainty Volumes—12½c.

A clean cut of one-half from the regular price of this beautiful line, nearly 100 titles . . . 12½c

"Exquisite" Series of Handy Volumes—30c.

The daintiest binding ever designed. We have always sold this series at 45c. each; special price . . . 30c

Library Sets.

Incomparable Bargains.

Th... Scott, ... and hands... $9.00 . . . vols., new type, fine paper, ...e library binding, value 5.75

Kipling, ...uthorized edition, 15 vols. . . . 6.90

Dickens, ...a good edition, 15 vols. . . . 4.00

Miscellaneous.

Illustrat... American ... History of the Spanish-...ar by Col. Watterson 1.00

The Lif... Dewey. ... and Letters of Admiral 88c

Dodd-M... Books fo... cloth bind... price . ...

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

WALLACK'S, B'WAY & 30TH ST. Evgs., 8:30. Mats., 2:15.
MONDAY, DEC. 4TH,
THE COMIC OPERA TRIUMPH,
FRANK DANIELS
In Victor Herbert's New Comic Opera,
THE AMEER
MATINEE SATURDAY AT 2:15.
!!! NOW READY !!!
VOCAL SCORE, VOCAL GEMS, SELECTIONS, MARCH, WALTZES, and all VOCAL NUMBERS of Victor Herbert's successful Opera, THE AMEER.
M. Witmark & Sons, Publ. N. Y., L'don, Chic. At DITSON'S and all Music Counters.

BROADWAY THEATRE. 41st St. & B'way. Evgs. at 8. Wed. & Sat. Mats. at 2.
JACOB LITT .....Proprietor
THE 20TH CENTURY SPECTACLE.
Klaw & Erlanger's Stupendous Production. GEN. LEW WALLACE'S
Ben-Hur
Arranged for the stage by WILLIAM YOUNG. Music by EDGAR STILLMAN KELLEY.
CONCEDED THE DISTINCT AND OVERWHELMING SUCCESS OF THIS DECADE.
Under stage direction of BEN TEAL.
Every Evening at 8 o'clock sharp.
Matinées Wed. & Sat. at 2.
Seats on sale for every performance in next four weeks.
MAIL ORDERS MUST BE ACCOMPANIED BY CHECKS PAYABLE TO JACOB LITT OR BROADWAY THEATRE.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE, B'way & 38th St
AL HAYMAN & CO. .....Proprietors
Evenings at 8:20. Matinées Wed. & Sat., 2.
Special Wednesday Matinee.
"Such acting is seldom seen on the stage of the world."—Clement Scott.
Mr. & Mrs. KENDAL
(Management of DANIEL FROHMAN,) in their London success,
THE ELDER MISS BLOSSOM
"It's worth going a long way to see."—Eve. Sun.
Seats Booked Three Weeks Ahead.

PROCTOR'S 23d ST. Mane Tavary, DeForcont, Perf. rests, Mov'g Pict'res. 15, 25, 50c
PALACE 58th St. & 3d Av. Cont. Perf. Ezra Kendall, Hall & Staley, Mov'g Pict'res. 15, 25, 50c. Clarice Vance, others

WEBER & FIELDS' Music Hall, B'way & 30th St. | Matinées Tues. & Sat.
WHIRL-I-GIG AND THE OTHER WAY.
Thurs. Evg., Dec. 7, first production of BARBARA FIDGETY.

IRVING PLACE THEATRE.
Every night (except Tuesday) and Sat. Mat.
HOFGUNST (at Court.) Comedy by Torthe.
Tuesday, (pop. pr.,) Pfarrer von Kirchfeld.

THIRD AVE. THEATRE. Sheldon & Co., Lessees. HEART OF CHICAGO. Monday Matinee.

EMPIRE THEATRE, B'way and 40th St. Evenings, 8:20. Matinées, 2:15.
Charles Frohman.....Manager
LAST WEEKS.
Mr. Charles Frohman Presents
Mr. JOHN DREW
in Haddon Chambers's Comedy of Temperament,
THE TYRANNY OF TEARS
Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

MADISON SQUARE THEATRE 24th St., nr. B'way. Hoyt & McKee, Lessees. Charles Frohman, Mgr.
Last Week for the Present.
Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.
Charles Frohman Presents
The Roaring Farce Success,
MAKE WAY FOR THE LADIES.
Monday, Dec. 11, Messrs. Frohman will present "WHEELS WITHIN WHEELS." By R. C. Carton, author of "Lord and Lady Algy." Seats Ready Thursday.

CHARLES FROHMAN'S CRITERION THEATRE, Cor. Broadway and 44th St.
Evenings, 8:30. Matinée, 2:15.
7TH WEEK.
MATINEES WEDNESDAY & SATURDAY.
CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS
JULIA MARLOWE
in Clyde Fitch's Great Play,
BARBARA FRIETCHIE.
DEC. 14th—50th TIME—JULIA MARLOWE Pictorial Souvenir.
MATINEES WEDNESDAY & SATURDAY.

GARRICK THEATRE, 35th St., near B'way. Evgs., 8 o'clock. Matinées, 2:15. Hoyt & McKee, Lessees. Charles Frohman, Mgr.
2D MONTH.
CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS
William Gillette
in the new four-act drama, entitled,
SHERLOCK HOLMES,
By Wm. Gillette and A. Conan Doyle.
ONLY MATINEE SATURDAY.

GARDEN THEATRE 27th St. and Madison Av.
Charles Frohman.....Manager
THIS WEEK, EVENINGS, 7:45.
Only Matinée Saturday at 2.
—MR. RICHARD—
MANSFIELD
Beg. To-morrow Evg.—Farewell Week of CYRANO DE BERGERAC.
NEXT WEEK—MONDAY, Dec. 11th, A REVIVAL OF BEAU BRUMMELL.
Seats Ready Thursday, 9 A. M.

KEITH'S
14th St., bet. Broadway & 4th Av.
Continuous Performance. 12:30 to 10:45 P. M.
GREATEST HIT EVER KNOWN!
THE GIRL with the AUBURN HAIR.
THE TALK OF THE TOWN!
FELIX MORRIS & CO. in "KERRY."
THE CRAGGS, BLOCKSOM & BURNS, JOE WELCH, ECKERT & BERG, BARNEY FAGAN AND HENRIETTA BYRON.
BIOGRAPH: Boer War and Other Pictures.

5th Ave THEATRE, B'way and 28th St. Evenings at 8. Matinées at 2. Edwin Knowles.....Sole Mgr.
"THE DRAMATIC SENSATION OF THE SEASON."—TRIBUNE.
FOURTH MONTH.
100th Performance Sat. Evg., Dec. 9th.
Mrs. Fiske
AND HER ADMIRABLE COMPANY IN BECKY SHARP
(Founded on Thackeray's "Vanity Fair.")
By LANGDON MITCHELL.
MATINEES WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY.

HERALD SQUARE THEATRE. Ev'g., 8:15. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
MR. CHAS. E. EVANS.....Proprietor
F. C. Whitney presents, by arrangement with the estate of Augustin Daly,
A GREEK SLAVE
As rendered for a year and a half at Daly's Theatre, London. One hundred people in the company.
"The piece has great possibilities."—Herald.
"Much better that the 'Geisha' or 'The Circus Girl.'"—Journal.
"A showy and tuneful extravaganza."—Times. "A fanciful and charmingly blended story."—Eve. Telegram.
"won the success which it undoubtedly did."—Sun.

KOSTER & BIAL'S 34 St. & Bdway.
THIS SUNDAY NIGHT
PAULINE HALL,
Beatrice Moreland & Co., Bedini & Arthur, Chris Bruno & Mabel Russell, Florenz Troupe, Etta Butler, Kathlyn Warren, The De Forrests, Sisters Tyson, Howe & Scott, Kitty Mitchell, Jess Dandy, and the Vitagraph Pictures.
TO-MORROW, MONDAY NIGHT
5TH WEEK. WONDERFUL SUCCESS.
ROUND NEW YORK IN 80 MINUTES
FIRST TIME.
A POSITIVE NOVELTY.
JEFFRIES AND SHARKEY
in Living Statues of Ancient & Modern Gladiators
500 PEOPLE ON THE STAGE.
Including many famous local favorites.
Bargain Mats. Wed. & Sat.
50c. To all parts of the house.

MURRAY HILL THEATRE, Lex. Av. & 42d St. One Block East Grand Central Depot. Mats. at 2. Evgs., 8:15.
SECOND YEAR HENRY V.
SECOND YEAR MATINEE 25c. EVERY DAY DONNELLY
SECOND YEAR STOCK
SECOND YEAR CO.
THIS WEEK, THE By David Belasco & Henry C. De Mille.
CHARITY BALL.
Evening Prices: 25, 35, 50. Subscribers' seats reserved each week without extra charge.

MANHATTAN Theatre, 33d & B'way. | To-night at 8:15. Sat. Mat. Only.
F. ZIEGFELD, JR., PRESENTS
ANNA HELD
With Chas. A. Bigelow and Great Cast.
Smith & De Koven's PAPA'S WIFE.
Musical Comedy,
SEATS SIX WEEKS IN ADVANCE.
Buy now and avoid paying speculators $4 or $5 a seat. Box office telephone, 281 Madison Sq.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE. JAMES O'NEILL in THE MUSKETEERS.
Saturday Night, MONTE CRISTO.

DALY'S B'way & 30th.....at 8:15.
Daniel Frohman, Manager.
Matinées Wed. & Sat.
Daniel Frohman's Stock Company,
PRESENTING HENRY ARTHUR JONES'S latest & merriest 4-act comedy entitled
The Maneuvers of Jane
The Maneuvers of Jane
"History will repeat itself. What happened in London will happen in New York. The play will be as it was in London Town Talk."—Clement Scott in Herald.

LYCEUM. 4th Av. & 23d.....at 8:30
Daniel Frohman.....Manager
Matinées Thursday & Sat., 2.
—THIRD MONTH—
CHARLES FROHMAN PRESENTS
ANNIE RUSSELL
IN MISS HOBBS
TO-MORROW (MONDAY) EVENING, COMMEMORATION OF THE 100TH NIGHT.

BIJOU B'way & 30th St. Eve., 8:15. Matinée Saturday only.
—TELEPHONE NO. 2224 MAD. SQ.—
The Woman who makes you laugh. MAY IRWIN Best Orchestra Seats $1.50. and her company in her new deliciously funny comedy,
SISTER MARY.
The crowning triumph of her many successes.

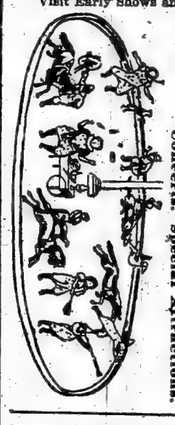
ACADEMY OF MUSIC. 14th St. & Irving Pl.
E. G. Gilmore & Eugene Tompkins, Propr's. & Mgrs.
THE GREATEST OF SUCCESSES.
WAY DOWN EAST
Direction Wm. A. Brady.
REALISTIC SCENES AND SITUATIONS IN PICTURESQUE NEW ENGLAND.
PRICES 25, 50, 75c., $1.00.
Mats. Wed. & Sat., 2. Evenings, 8:10.

HURTIG & SEAMON'S MUSIC HALL 125th St. near 7th Ave.
TO-NIGHT.
MINNIE SELIGMAN AND COMPANY, PRESS ELDRIDGE, MELVILLE & STETSON FIVE CORNALLAS, AND OTHERS.
NEXT WEEK.
THE ORIGINAL BROADWAY BURLESQUERS,
Incl. McAvoy & May, Gilbert & Goldie, Dave Lewis, Emma Carus, etc

THE NEW YORK MATINEE TO-DAY (SUNDAY), AT 2:30.
THIS SUNDAY (EVENING), AT 8:30.
BROADWAY, 44th & 45th sts.
3d Week JEFFRIES-SHARKEY 3d Week CONTEST.
BIOGRAPH PICTURES.
Matinées every day at 2:30.
Prices, Mats: 25c. to $1.00. Nights, 25c. to $1.50.

Mendelssohn Hall, Wed. Aft., Dec. 6, at 3:15 P.M.
ROGERS RECITAL. FRANCIS ROGERS —RECITAL
Res. Seats on sale at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

14th ST. THEATRE, Cor. 6th Av. Mats. Wed. and Sat. Res. orch. circle or bal., 50c.
LAST TIMES of the Quaint Rural Drama, THE DAIRY FARM.
"A clean, strong, wholesome play."—World.

HUBER'S 14th St. MUSEUM. 10c. TO ALL
CHANGE OF BILL IN EVERY DEPARTMENT.
Visit Early Shows and Avoid the Crowds.


FIRST TIME IN THIS CITY OF THE GREAT NOVELTY.
BIJOU MIDWINTER CIRCUS.
All the great features of the up-to-date Hippodrome, Japanese Troupe, Trained Animal Barnoch Riders, Trained Ostriches, Bronco Busters and Wild Horses, Trapeze, smallest human beings, Blondin and La Rose, Fire Kings: Chief White Moon's Indians, Allen's Punch, Lottie Grand Guessing Contest Sunday, Odascats, Special Attractions. THEATRE 2 Co's, Continuous Show. Murphy & Drew, Grecia & Earle, Edison's Projectoscope, the Grimes, Ray & Gilroy, Dave Anderson, Le Blon.

HAMMERSTEIN'S VICTORIA
Eves. at 8:20. Mat. Saturday at 2:15.
No smoking or drinking at matinées.
KLAW & ERLANGER PRESENT
Greatest of all Fun Shows.
ROGERS BROTHERS IN WALL STREET.
J. J. McNally's Vaudeville Farce.
Staged by Ben Teal. Music by Maurice Levi.
14th week in New York.
IN PREPARATION. Special Feature Burlesque, "Barbara Frietchie."

ADMISSION 25c. SUNDAYS.
WORLD IN WAX.
EDEN MUSEE
NEW TO-DAY
SPECIAL GROUPS AND FIGURES.
THE NEAPOLITAN TROUBADOUR ORCHESTRA
This Afternoon and Evening.
CINEMATOGRAPH To-morrow and Each Week Day
Every Hour from 1 to 10 P. M.

THE DEWEY 14th St. Between 3d & 4th Aves.
TO-NIGHT
GRAND GALA BILL.
ROSE EYTINGE & CO.
McAVOY & MAY.
DOLAN & LENHARR,
GERALD GRIFFIN & CO.
FIELDS & WARD.
4—CECILIANS—4.
COAKLEY & HUESTED.
MLLE. AZARA,
(The Chameleon Lady.)
Robt. Recker's Harmonists.
Monday Mat. & all week.
Weber & Fields. HURLY-BURLY CO.
Mlle. Alcide Capitane, Binns & Binns
A Great Show. Don't Miss It.

CASINO! 7th Thronged Week! of the MELODIOUS TRIPLE TRIUMPH!
ALICE NIELSEN SOUVS! 100th Time! Dec. 22.
OPERA COMPANY. Evgs. at 8:15.
in The Singing Girl! Carriages 10:55. Mats. Sat. at 2.

CARNEGIE HALL
TO-NIGHT AT 8:15
Kaltenborn Orchestra
FRANZ KALTENBORN.....Conductor
Mlle. ELSA RUEGGER, Cello.
Mme. EVTA KILESKI, Soprano. EMANUEL WAD, Piano.
Sig. A. CARBONE (Late of Metropolitan Op Co.) Baritone.
RESERVED SEATS $1.00, 75c., 50c., 25c. 1,000 SEATS AT 25c.
BOX OFFICE OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY.
SIXTH POPULAR CONCERT NEXT SUNDAY. Direction VICTOR THRANE. Knabe Piano Used.

AMERICAN CASTLE SQ. OPERA CO. 42nd ST. AND 8th AVE.
TO-MORROW NIGHT.
GREAT DOUBLE BILL.
ENTIRE FIRST ACT OF BEETHOVEN'S FIDELIO
FOLLOWED BY MASCAGNI'S
CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA
SUNG IN ENGLISH.
Misses Kronold, Golden, Linck, Mattfeld, Holmes, Niven, Stender; Messrs. Berthald, Sheehan, Davies, Elder, Mertens, Luckstone, Clark, Belcher.
GREAT SINGING CHORUS OF 60.
Evenings, 25c., 50c., 75c., 1.00 Nothing Higher.
Matr. Wed. & Sat., 2.15—1,100 Res. Seats, 25c.
Next Week—Mon., Tu., Il Trovatore; Wed. Mat. & Ev., Romeo & Juliet. Th., Fr., Carmen. Sat. Mat. Aida.

CARNEGIE HALL.
PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY of New York.
EMIL PAUR.....Conductor
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 8, at 2 P. M.
SATURDAY, DECEMBER 9, at 8:15 P. M.
PROGRAM.
Overture, "Freischuetz".....Weber
Concerto for Piano: E flat major.....Liszt
MR. MARK HAMBOURG.
Symphonic Prologue to Heine's "William Ratcliff" (first time in N. Y.) conducted by the composer:
MR. FRANK VAN DER STUCKEN.
Symphony, No. 3, A minor, "Scotch".....Mendelssohn
Tickets at Carnegie Hall and Tyson's. Seats 75 cts. to $2; Boxes, $12 and $15. Admission, $1.
AUG. ROEBBELEN, Secretary.

Five Concerts for Young Children
At Mendelssohn Hall,
on Saturday mornings, at 11:30 o'clock,
Dec. 23, Jan. 20, Feb. 10, March 3, March 24.
FRANK DAMROSCH.....Director
Subscription tickets now on sale at SCHUBERTH'S, 23 Union Square.

WANDA Koppel and the KALTENBORN QUARTET
MENDELSSOHN HALL, 119 WEST 40th St.
First Song Recital,
Thurs. Eve., Dec. 7, at 8:15.
Tickets $1.50. Balcony $1.
General Admission $1.00.
Tickets at Schirmer's, Schuberth's, Sohmer's.

KNABE HALL. Thurs. Eve., Dec. 7, at 8:15. Res. seats, $1.50 and $1.
20th St., cor. 5th Av.
NEW YORK STRING QUARTET
assisted by Constantine von Sternberg, Pianist
Direction VICTOR THRANE. Knabe Piano Used.

INTERNATIONAL PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION
AT American Institute, Nos. 19 and 21 West 44th St.
AMERICA, ENGLAND, FRANCE AND GERMANY —REPRESENTED.—
OPEN DAILY
10 A. M. TO 10 P. M.
DEC. 4TH TO DEC. 24TH

HARLEM OP. HOUSE. Evs. 8:15. Mat. Sat. 2:15.
LOUIS MANN & CLARA LIPMAN IN THE GIRL IN THE BARRACKS.
Dec. 11—Denman Thompson, "The Old Homestead."

Mendelssohn Hall, Friday, Dec. 8th, at 8:15 P. M.
Mme. CAPPIANI'S GRAND CONCERT.
Prima Donna, Soprano.
Dudley Campbell, Mezzo-soprano,
Laura Belli-Campbell, Contralto.
Mme. Helen McLewee, Contralto.
Mrs. Dorothy Ch[illegible]
Mathilde Hopkins, Jr., Mr. Albert Quesnel, and Sig. Giuseppe del Puente, the famous Baritone.
INSTRUMENTALISTS:
HUBERT ARNOLD, the great Violinist.
Mr. G. Dinell Mr. J. C. Warhurst, at the piano.
Tickets, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Square.

MENDELSSOHN HALL.
THURSDAY AFTERNOON, December 7, at 3.
Song Recital by
Mr. David Bispham, kindly assisted by
Mr. Walter Damrosch
PROGRAMME:
DICHTERLIEBE, (Heine).....ROBERT SCHUMANN
FOUR SONGS.....WALTER DAMROSCH
SONG CYCLE (new).....
"In Memoriam," (Tennyson)..LIZA LEHMANN
Reserved seats $1.50, now on sale at Schuberth's.

PADEREWSKI
CARNEGIE HALL, 57TH ST. & 7TH AV.
SEATS, $2.50, $2, $1.50, & $1.
STEINWAY PIANO USED.
Dec. 12, & Jan. 6, 20, at 2:30.
SEATS at SCHUBERTH'S, 23 UNION SQUARE.

MUSICAL ART SOCIETY
SEVENTH SEASON.
Two Concerts—Dec. 21 and March 15.
FRANK DAMROSCH.....Director
CHORUS OF 400 ARTISTS.
Works by PALESTRINA, CORNELIUS, BRAHMS, &c.
Subscription tickets now on sale at SCHUBERTH'S, 23 UNION SQUARE

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE.
TO-NIGHT AT 8:15.
Henry W. Johnson's Sunday Night Concert.
CLARA BUTT, (Farewell appearance,)
VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN, H. EVANS AND WALTER DAMROSCH
WILLIAM H. Symphony Orchestra of 75.
And F[illegible]
GENERAL ADMISSION, 50c.
BOX OFFICE OPEN ALL DAY SUNDAY.

CARNEGIE HALL. 27th Season. 1899—1900.
ORATORIO SOCIETY
FRANK DAMROSCH.....Conductor
Fri. aft., Dec. 9, at 2, and Sat. Eve., Dec. 30, at 8.
"THE MESSIAH."
Thursday Evening, April 5, at 8.
"BACH'S MASS IN B MINOR."
Sale now at box office for old subscribers; for new subscribers opens Monday, Dec. 4.

MENDELSSOHN HALL.
Wed. Evg., Dec. 6, at 8:15.
Second Pianoforte Recital by
MR. ARTHUR WHITING
Res. seats $1.50, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

KNABE HALL. 6th Av. & 22d St. Tuesday Evg., Dec. 5th, at Third Piano Recital, JOSEF WEISS
Seats $1.00, at Knabe's, 154 5th Av.

MUSIC HEARD YESTERDAY.

First Young People's Concert, Pachmann, and Saalfield's Concert.

The first of Mr. Frank Damrosch's series of young people's concerts was given yesterday afternoon at Carnegie Hall. The audience was not one of extraordinary size, but there was close attention to the music and to the explanatory remarks which prefaced the performance of each orchestral number. The plan pursued this season is the same as that of last Winter. Mr. Damrosch begins the entertainment with an exposition of the form and the musical content of the first work to be heard, and illustrates his talk by causing to be played the principal themes of the composition. He also throws some light upon the nature of the instruments to be heard in the utterance of the leading motives. After this the composition is played in its entirety.

The plan is admirable and its success is demonstrated by the manner in which the audiences follow the explanations, and the interest which they show in the subsequent performances. It must be said, however, that the grown persons in the assemblies show quite as much interest as the children, and it is not at all improbable that they need the instruction more than the little ones. These concerts are in line with other valuable work done by Mr. Damrosch toward rearing a new generation of music lovers, and, though they may not appreciate it, musicians will hereafter have reason to call him blessed. The orchestral numbers played and explained yesterday afternoon were the overture to "William Tell," two Swedish folk songs by Svendsen, and Glinka's "Komarinskava." Between the instrumental pieces Miss Clara Butt, the English contralto, sang "Ombra mai fu," from Handel's "Xerxes," (the air known as an orchestral piece under the musical title of Handel's largo,) and two English songs—"Barbara Allen" and Somerwell's "Shepherd's Cradle Song." It cannot be said that Miss Butt sang the Handel air well. Her manner was lacking in classic repose.

At Mendelssohn Hall yesterday afternoon Vladimir de Pachmann, the distinguished pianist, gave his last recital in this season. For the occasion he chose to play one of those Chopin programmes in which the public likes so well to hear him. The numbers were the B flat minor sonata, the G minor ballade, F sharp major barcarolle, etude in A flat; opus 25, No. 1 nocturne; opus 55, No. 1; valse, opus 64, No. 2; three mazourkas—opus 56, No. 2; opus 67, No. 4, and opus 63, No. 1; the "Berceuse," and the A flat polonaise. This was a programme well suited to a full display of the pianist's best qualities. In its performance M. de Pachmann revealed his usual sympathy with the sensubus side of the music of the Polish composer and his unfailing command of tone color.

It is undeniable that de Pachmann has the finest touch that can be imagined. No one can play so gently as he can, and there are times when it is impossible to avoid wishing that he would be just a trifle more emphatic in his accentuation. He let himself loose yesterday in the polonaise, which he played with sufficient tonal power and with splendid spirit. His treatment of the mazourkas was very dainty, but he played the valse and the D flat one which he gave as an extra number, with his wonted vagaries in rhythm and shading. The G minor ballade was played in a restrained style, with much delicacy of sentiment and continence of tint. Perhaps the most satisfying work of the recital was the reading of the barcarolle. That was beautifully played indeed. It is an immeasurable pity that a pianist so gifted otherwise is so deficient in the intellectual department of his art.

The first of a series of concerts under the management of Mr. Saalfield, who gave popular concerts years ago in this city, took place at Carnegie Hall last night. There are some persons who hold that it is not a part of the business of newspaper criticism to comment on the nature of an entertainment, but merely on its merit in its kind. Such a view can hardly prevail in a newspaper which is striving to uphold all that is best in musical art, and therefore the truth must be told. Concerts such as that given last night were liked here in their day, but it is very doubtful whether a public can be found for them now. There were no evidences of general joy last night. The audience was small, and the applause of the kind that does not inspire confidence.

Mr. Saalfield provided a liberal array of soloists and a piano accompanimist. The chief soloist of the evening was Mme. Emma Nevada, who sang "Come per me sereno" from "La Sonnambula." Her small, sweet voice was heard to much greater advantage in the hall than in the Metropolitan Opera House, where she last sang. She was particularly happy in her delivery of staccato notes, which she sang with clearness and perfect intonation. Others who figured on the programme were Signor Liberati, the cornetist; Rosa Boerl, 'cellist; Anna Otten, violinist, and Belle Newport, contralto. It is likely to be learned that the Sunday night popular concerts have filled the place of such entertainments as that of last night.

A TRAMP, NOW ORGANIST.

Bowery Mission Hears Victor Benke's Story, Rejoicing with Him at His Conversion Anniversary.

Great enthusiasm reigned at the Bowery Mission last night, when Victor H. Benke, the organist, celebrated the fifth anniversary of his conversion. The platform was handsomely decorated with plants and cut flowers, and over the centre hung a great laurel wreath, emblematic of Victory, with the figure "5" worked in it in bright holly. Contrary to the usual practice, there were many women in the hall and on the platform, a great number of them from the North Newark Baptist Church, of which Mr. Benke is now the organist. The room was densely crowded.

Mr. Benke first gave a half-hour organ recital which included several classic selections and a few of his own compositions, one of which, "Like a Shepherd," attracted especial attention. Then he was presented to the gathering by J. G. Hallimond, the Superintendent, and told the story of his career from the day when he entered the mission a homeless, ragged tramp, to get a cup of coffee, to the present time, when he occupies a recognized position among the evangelical workers of the city. There was no organ in the mission then, and Mrs. Sarah Jane Bird, who presided, found herself without a pianist and asked for a volunteer. Benke responded, and though he had not touched an instrument for a year, and his fingers were stiff and trembling, he showed the result of the careful musical education he had received in his native Germany, and was asked to come again and again, and shortly after professed his conversion.

Dr. Louis Klopsch secured the organ now in the mission from Princeton University about three years ago and Mr. Benke added to it an ingenious apparatus by which he plays a drum and cymbals with his feet while his hands are at the keys. He has been called upon to assist Mr. Moody and other prominent evangelists and has been offered many excellent positions, but will take none that will interfere with his daily work at the mission, where he was converted.

Mrs. Bird was present to extend her congratulations last night, and among those who spoke were Dr. George Dowkontt, the Rev. Dr. Alexander McGregor, pastor of the North Newark Baptist Church; John Jaeger, Superintendent of the Chrystie Street Mission; the Rev. James Francis of the Second Avenue Baptist Church, and the Rev. W. T. Ebling of the De Witt Memorial Church. Many in the meeting gave testimony which was interspersed by solos and hymns by the assemblage.

MYSTERY IN COBB'S DEATH.

Body of Brooklyn Man Killed in Nashville Coming Home To-day.

The body of Frederick W. Cobb of 1 Ashland Place, Brooklyn, who was killed in Nashville, Tenn., Thursday night, will be brought to this city this evening. Cobb, who was a well-known decorator, lived with his wife and two young children at the Ashland Place address. His family believe that he was a victim of foul play, and the police of Nashville, it is said, are also of this belief.

Cobb went to Nashville two weeks ago to help decorate the city for the homecoming reception to the First Tennessee Regiment from the Philippines. According to the report of his death, received from Nashville, he went to a resort in that city on Thursday night and tried to enter, but was prevented by two men who came to the door. Some time later Cobb was found lying dead on the sidewalk with his neck broken.

The first report from Nashville was to the effect that Cobb had been seized by a fit of apoplexy, which caused him to fall to the sidewalk and break his neck. Later, it is said, the police came into possession of information which led them to believe that Cobb had met with foul play. They learned, it is said, that he had been knocked down in a scuffle with the two men who had prevented him from entering the resort mentioned.

Mrs. Cobb said yesterday that she believed her husband had considerable money with him when he went to Nashville. She said that she did not believe his death was caused by apoplexy, as he was not subject to such attacks.

Celebrate the Feast of Hanukah.

The Jewish Feast of Hanukah, which occurred during the past week, was celebrated last night in the West End Synagogue, under the auspices of the Young People's Association of the synagogue. Addresses were made by the rabbi, F. De Sola Mendes, and Prof. Richard Gotthell of Columbia University, and a musical programme was given, in which part of Handel's "Judas Maccabeus" was sung by a quartet and a chorus from the Cantata Singing Society.

HAD $1,700 IN HER PURSE.

Police Sergeant Refused to Hold a Woman Accused by Another of Taking Her Pocketbook.

With a party of friends a Mrs. Rouch of 142 West Eighty-sixth Street dined yesterday evening in a café at 105 West Twenty-fifth Street, sitting at a table near the front of the building. After finishing the meal Mrs. Rouch and party left the café, and a woman giving the name of Mrs. Florence Raymond of 30 West Sixty-fourth Street, came in and sat down at the table just vacated by the Rouch party.

Scarcely had she seated herself when the Rouch party came rushing back, and Mrs. Rouch asserted that she had left her pocketbook containing about $17 on the table. Mrs. Raymond said she had seen nothing of it, but despite this assertion Mrs. Rouch accused her of having stolen it and demanded her arrest.

A policeman was summoned, and Mrs. Raymond was taken to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station, followed by the entire Rouch party. To Sergt. Comboy Mrs. Rouch told her story, and again accused Mrs. Raymond. Mrs. Raymond protested her innocence and said to the Sergeant:

"Why, Sergeant, I don't have to steal," and opening her pocketbook she showed to Sergt. Comboy $1,700 in bills. She was handsomely dressed, wearing a sealskin sacque, and over her fingers were many rings.

Mrs. Rouch was unable to identify any of the money as hers, although she said one of the ten-dollar bills looked like one of those she had had. Turning to the newspaper men standing near, Mrs. Rouch singled out one and accused him of being an accomplice of the Raymond woman. This angered Sergt. Comboy greatly, and he rebuked Mrs. Rouch severely.

"I know that man well," said the Sergeant. "I do not believe he ever saw you before, and I know he hasn't to-night. I will not hold this woman on your complaint."

Mrs. Rouch and party were then escorted out of the station house.

FUNERAL OF MR. SCHROEDER.

Services in the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, Brooklyn.

The arrangements for the funeral of ex-Mayor Frederick A. Schroeder of Brooklyn, who died on Friday at the Hotel Margaret, that borough, were completed yesterday. The body will be taken from the hotel at 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, where services will be conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. McLeod. The burial in Greenwood Cemetery will be private.

The honorary pall-bearers at the funeral will be William C. De Witt, I. N. Bon, Jesse Johnson, August Kurth, Gen. James Jourdan, Alonzo D. Slote, John French, and H. B. Scharmann.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO CHARITY.

The Charity Organization Society acknowledges the following contributions received in response to its recent appeals in behalf of three widows with large families, a partially blind woman, two consumptive lads, and a woman suffering from cataract:

Miss Eleanor F. Clark, $100; Mrs. E. B. Monroe, $40; Mrs. F. M. Warburg, $25; "C. M. H.," N. Witherell, and K. Otani, $20 each; "E. M. S. $12; "J. B. J.," "E. M. D.," "A Sympathizer," "W. E.," George M. Clausen, and "A. M. S." $10 each; "I. B. C.," "B. A. C.," "B.," "Mrs. Thanksgiving," and "E. B. C." $5 each; "P. C. L.," "J. D.," "A. M. K. M.," "Hope," "E. and O.," R. A. Harrat, and cash through The Herald, $2 each; "Little Bertault tots," C. B. Hawley, "A. W. W.," J. Gould's Son & Co., $1 each, and an overcoat for one of the consumptive lads from "I. D."

Eighty dollars is still lacking in the fund to pay board in the country for the two lads of consumptive tendencies. It is hoped that by putting them in favorable surroundings their health will be restored. Any money for this case sent to the Charity Organization Society, 102 East Twenty-second Street, will be publicly acknowledged.

Died in the Post Office.

Isaac Hirsch, a cigarmaker, living with his family at 1,811 Lexington Avenue, was seized with a hemorrhage in the General Post Office Building yesterday afternoon, and died before an ambulance could arrive. His body was removed to the City Hall Police Station, and later to his home.

To Lecture on Colonization.

The lecture in the Board of Education course, at Cooper Union, by Alleyne Ireland on Wednesday at 8 P. M., will be on "The Commercial Aspect of Colonization."

RECTOR BLAMES CHURCHMEN.

District Visitors Cause Trouble in Neighboring Episcopal Parishes.

A house-to-house religious canvass by district visitors of the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Tompkins Avenue and McDonough Street, Brooklyn, has caused the Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers, the rector of the neighboring Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, at McDonough Street and Stuyvesant Avenue, to protest in the columns of his parish paper. Dr. Rogers charges that the district visitors of the Church of the Epiphany have tried to induce some of his people to go over to that church. It is also charged that the district visitors called at the homes of vestrymen of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

In reply to these charges the Rev. Dr. Dean Richmond Babbitt, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, said yesterday:

"As some of the people of the Church of the Good Shepherd live, so to say, under the shadow of my church's steeple, my district visitors necessarily run across them. Some who are further away will also be met, but the strictest instructions are given by me to these visitors not to try to detach members of other churches for our church, but only to note them for our parochial man 'not to be disturbed.' Our methods will not be changed, but we shall always be most courteous, we trust, toward our religious neighbors. I trust my brother Rogers will not be misunderstood by the public, for he is really a very fine man, and I do not want him to appear in an ungracious light. Nor will he blame us, when he knows us better, for obeying the command of the Master to go into the highways and byways to get people who are lapsed, indifferent, sick, poor or needy."

Dr. Rogers and Dr. Babbitt were only recently called to the churches of which they are now respectively the rectors.

LIQUOR MEN'S POLITICAL FIGHT.

Goodwinites Defeat Sheehanites at Saloon Keepers' Election.

Political partisanship was at the bottom of a lively fight for the Presidency of the Liquor Dealers' Association of the Seventeenth Precinct, which took place at the annual election of that organization on Friday night. The issue was a re-echo of that which troubled the Ninth Assembly District last Fall, and Councilman Frank Goodwin scored a triumph over John C. Sheehan, who defeated him for the Tammany leadership in that contest.

The Seventeenth Precinct lies mainly in the Ninth Assembly District, and the Association of Liquor Dealers is an old and large organization which has had much to do with the results of political struggles in the past. John McGarry, who conducts a saloon at 268 Ninth Avenue, and who is one of John C. Sheehan's district captains, has been the President of the association for fifteen years. Things had run so smoothly under his administration that he appeared to have no opposition for re-election.

When the meeting was called to order in the Utah House, at Twenty-fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, however, the crowd which filled the room was found to be composed mainly of men who had openly espoused the cause of Goodwin in the revolt against Sheehan, and it was soon developed that there was a surprise in store for the Sheehan men, for when nominations for President were called for the Goodwin men presented the name of Thomas M. Murray, a saloonkeeper of 268 Eighth Avenue, and the owner of the building in which the Horatio Seymour Club, the Goodwinite organization, holds its meetings.

The adherents of Mr. Sheehan were amazed at the boldness of the attack, but they rallied soon, and in a few moments messengers were scurrying to call in all of Sheehan's supporters who could be found. A dozen or more of these men responded to the summons, but even then the Sheehan representation was inadequate, and Murray was chosen by a majority of 5.

The Goodwin men claim that this victory is an important one, as it indicates that the powerful saloon interest will be arrayed against Sheehan in the struggle for the leadership next Fall. On the other hand, the Sheehan men say that the meeting was packed in Murray's interest, and they threaten to bring about another election on that account.

Automobile Shop for Jersey City.

There is much rejoicing in the Marion district of Jersey City over the fact that the big United States Watch Factory, which has stood empty for more than ten years, has been leased by the National Automobile Company. It is expected that work will begin before the end of the year, and that more than 200 hands will be employed.

FIRE IN FIFTY-NINTH STREET.

Building Owned by Bloomingdale Brothers Badly Damaged.

The four-story brownstone building at 137 East Fifty-ninth Street, owned by Bloomingdale Brothers, was badly damaged by fire last evening. It was shortly after 6 o'clock, when the streets in the vicinity were crowded with workers going to their homes, that flames were discovered in the second floor of the structure, occupied by Jacob Wohlfield, dealer in furs. The flames spread to the third floor, occupied by Frank Intemann and family as living apartments, and then to the top floor, where Charles Weil and family reside.

Before the firemen could extinguish the blaze much of the furniture in the two upper floors and the stock of Wohlfield had been considerably damaged. Much water soaked through the first floor where George Elliot's shoe store was located. Wohlfield's damage is $1,000. Intemann's, $800. Weil's $500; Elliot's, $300, and the damage to the building, $1,500. The cause of the fire is unknown.

FOR A MOORE MEMORIAL.

New Maine Seminary Building Proposed—Grindston Inn Improvements.

Steps have been taken by the heirs of John G. Moore of the banking firm of Moore & Schley to erect as a suitable memorial to him a building at the East Maine Conference Seminary, at Bucksport, where Mr. Moore was once a student. An architect has been sent from this city to look over the ground and make preliminary sketches. The seminary, which is attached to the Methodist Episcopal Church, is not far from Mr. Moore's native town of Steuben. He was always greatly interested in its welfare, and in his lifetime made several substantial gifts to it.

Mr. Moore's executors have now taken steps to complete a pet

DOUGLAS WON GOLF MATCH

Ex-Champion Captured Lakewood Club's Trophy and Medal.

PRESENT CHAMPION'S FALL

In a Consolation Event Herbert M. Harriman Was Defeated by Jasper Lynch.

Findlay Douglas, ex-champion of the United States, won the Lakewood Cup yesterday in the final match for the chief trophy on the Lakewood Golf Club links. He met in the deciding round F. P. Kimball, whose game last week clearly marked him as the strongest Lakewood Club golfer, and the latter was defeated by 6 up and 5 to play.

The victory was the first important one that Douglas has won in a long time, as his career for the past year has chiefly been noticeable by defeats. Travis beat him for the Lakewood Cup in last Fall's tournament, and in the Spring event he was put out in the semi-final round by R. C. Watson, Jr. Douglas has got back into true championship form, and he has probably never played better golf than he has done on the Lakewood links since Thursday morning.

Douglas and Travis divided the honors as favorites in the final round, but the latter, like many another good man, was put out of the game on Friday. Douglas won another honor during the day, the gold medal given for the lowest gross score in the club open handicap, eighty strokes, the record for the links and the third time that last year's champion has turned in those figures. Travis, with eighty-two, gave him a close race for leading medal play honors.

The consolation cup, contrary to expectations, was not won by the amateur champion, Herbert M. Harriman. He capped the climax of his peculiar career in this tournament by allowing Jasper Lynch, Secretary of the home club, to beat him by 2 up and 1 to play. Consequently the unique spectacle was presented of the golf champion of the United States being defeated in a consolation event. Lynch beat Harriman in the semi-final round, played in the morning. Harriman won the first hole, the next was halved, and Lynch made all even on the third. Four holes were then halved in succession, and Lynch, by getting the next two, closed the first half of the round leading by that number. The champion failed to improve on the next nine, and at the seventeenth hole had to acknowledge that, for the present at least, Lynch was his superior. The cards were:

Lynch—Out	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	3	5	—43
Harriman—Out	4	5	6	5	5	5	5	4	6	—45
Lynch—In	6	7	5	4	4	4	4	4	4	—44—87
Harriman—In	5	8	5	5	5	3	4	5	4	—44—89

When Douglas met Kimball for the final struggle in the afternoon, the largest crowd of spectators that has been seen on the course this week assembled around the first tee to watch the struggle. Kimball made a game fight, but against such golf as Douglas maintained, Kimball's game never became exciting. Douglas took the first two holes and led by four at the end of the ninth, and finished the match at the thirteenth hole, by 6 up and 5 to play. The scores were:

Douglas—Out	4	4	6	5	4	6	4	4	5	—42
Kimball—Out	5	6	3	5	6	6	5	5	5	—46
Douglas—In	6	6	5	5						—22—64
Kimball—In	5	7	6							—25—71

L. T. Boyd, the crack golfer from Milwaukee, won the Consolation Cup, defeating Lynch in the final round by 5 up and 4 to play. The cards were:

Boyd—Out	5	6	4	5	6	5	5	3	5	—44
Lynch—Out	4	5	5	5	4	6	6	4	6	—45
Boyd—In	5	6	5	6	5					—27—71
Lynch—In	6	6	5	8						—32—77

Boyd had a hard fight in the morning to beat James G. Thorp of Boston, but finally got the victory by one hole.

Findlay Douglas was right up to his best game in the morning, when he met a namesake, J. Gordon Douglas of the Oakland Club, in the semi-final round. For a young golfer the latter deserves credit for the excellent showing he has made in the tournament, but in Findlay Douglas he met a foe of a higher class, and that fact made him palpably nervous for the first nine holes. Three halved holes were the best the younger player could do, and Douglas had six holes to his credit at the end of the nine and the enviable record of thirty-nine strokes. He won the tenth, making him seven up. Then one was halved, and Gordon Douglas braced up to save himself from a defeat too overwhelming, and won two holes, but lost the next and the match by 6 up and 4 to play. The bye-holes were played out, and the ex-champion duplicated his grand record of the previous day by finishing the eighteen holes in eighty strokes. The figures counted in the all-day handicap, and, as eighty was the lowest gross score turned in, it gave Douglas the gold medal in that event. The cards were:

	Gross.	H'cap.	Net.
F. Douglas, Fairfield	80	0	80
R. C. Watson, Jr., Westbrook:
Out ...4 5 6 5 4 4 4 4 5—41
In ....4 5 6 4 7 4 4 4 3—41
Total	82	2	80
G. O. Winston, Westchester:
Out ...6 3 5 6 5 6 6 4 4—45
In ....6 5 6 4 6 3 3 3 5—41
Total	86	6	80
Irving Brokaw, Deal Beach:
Out ...6 6 5 5 5 6 4 5 4—46
In ....8 7 5 4 6 5 3 5 5—48
Total	94	14	80
H. C. Villepique, Laurence	91	10	81
Jasper Lynch, Lakewood	87	6	81
L. J. Pratt, Nassau	90	9	81
L. T. Boyd, Milwaukee	88	6	82
A. W. Black, Lakewood	96	14	82
F. P. Kimball, Lakewood	86	4	82
J. J. Manning, Seabright	96	14	82
P. H. Bohlen, Philadelphia	89	6	83
Daniel Bacon, Ardsley	97	14	83
J. W. Biddle, Philadelphia	92	8	84
J. G. Thorpe, Oakley	89	4	85
C. M. Hamilton, Baltusrol	89	4	85
R. L. Redfield, Westchester	100	14	86
W. R. Kirk, Onwentsia	93	6	87
F. W. Menzies, St. Andrew's	90	3	87
A. M. Robbins, St. Andrew's	92	5	87
H. M. Harriman, Meadow Brook	88	0	88
James A. Tyng, Morris County	92	4	88
G. E. Armstrong, Staten Island	98	10	88
G. E. Cabot, Brookline	102	14	88
Dr. Parker Syms, Ardsley	104	16	88
J. Morehead, Jr., Pittsburg	93	4	89
A. W. Biddle, Philadelphia	99	10	89
T. C. Ennever, Montclair	101	12	89
I. T. Burden, Jr., Newport	93	4	89
A. D. Compton, Westchester	95	5	90
G. O. Smith, Lakewood	104	14	90
W. B. Dowd, Lakewood	102	12	90
R. W. Haughton, Lakewood	108	18	90
H. A. Colby, Essex County	97	6	91
Harry Suydam, Lakewood	101	10	91
S. B. Ferris, Lakewood	108	16	92
Ira Barrows, Lakewood	95	2	93
R. S. Minot, Essex County	114	18	96
R. G. Douglas, Essex County	109	12	97
R. H. Syms, Ardsley	115	18	97
T. M. P. Mills, Westchester	122	18	104

The summary of the match-play rounds for the two cups is:

Lakewood Cup.—Semi-Final Round—Findlay S. Douglas, Fairfield, beat J. Gordon Douglas, Oakland, 6 up and 4 to play; F. P. Kimball, Lakewood, beat F. W. Menzies, St. Andrews, 2 up and 1 to play.

Final Round—Douglas beat Kimball 6 up and 5 to play.

Consolation Cup.—Semi-final Round—L. T. Boyd, Milwaukee, beat James G. Thorp, Oakley, 1 up; Jasper Lynch, Lakewood, beat H. M. Harriman, Meadowbrook, 2 up and 1 to play.

Final Round—Boyd beat Lynch 5 up and 4 to play.

HARBOR HILL GOLF TEAM 1 WINS.

Defeated No. 6 in the Semi-Final Round.

One match in the semi-final round of the team competition begun by the members of the Harbor Hill Golf Club, Staten Island, on Thursday was played yesterday. Eight teams originally started in the game. Of the four victors, Team 1 defeated Team 6 in the semi-final round, the contest having the close finish of 5 holes to 4. Teams 4 and 7 will play to-day, and the victor will play the members of Team 1 in the final match on Saturday. The players and scores in yesterday's game were:

Team No. 1.	Holes.	Team No. 6.	Holes.
J. E. C. Leavitt	0	V. Hochmeyer	1
W. S. O'Connor	3	C. C. Goldsborough	0
S. G. Jansen	1	A. E. Whitman	0
L. Van Vechten	0	A. W. Rechau	3
L. Jessup	0	William Lambert	0
Miss Worth	1	Miss Bennett	0
Total	5	Total	4

ARDSLEY CLUB GOLF HANDICAP.

Gilbert Colgate the Winner in the Class A Contest.

Gilbert Colgate won the Class A handicap yesterday on the Ardsley Club links by a net score of 79 strokes. His gross score of 93 came within one of being the best of the day. That honor, however, went to Paul A. Proal, who got a place among the first sixteen in the qualifying round at Lakewood. L. M. Geer won in Class B. The players and scores were:

CLASS A.

	Gross.	Hdcp.	Net.
Gilbert Colgate	93	14	79
A. O. Beebe	106	19	87
A. E. Barron	99	10	89
F. W. Sanger	97	9	88
H. H. Gayley	95	7	88
Paul A. Proal	92	3	89
F. L. Eldridge	94	4	90

CLASS B.

	Gross.	Hdcp.	Net.
L. M. Geer	101	17	84
W. B. Anderton	104	17	87

FOX HILLS' ONLY GOLF EVENT.

Result of the Staten Island Cricket Club's Foursome for Members.

A club foursome was the only golf event played yesterday by the members of the Staten Island Cricket Club on their links at Fox Hills. J. A. Janin, Jr., and Clinton Miller won in 102 strokes, and second place was taken by E. L. Richards and I. Cryder Lea. Their cards were:

J. A. Janin, Jr., and Clinton Miller—
Out .....4 5 5 8 4 7 8 5 5—51
In .....7 6 6 7 8 5 6 5 6—51—102

E. L. Richards and I. Cryder Lea—
Out .....6 5 6 6 5 6 5 5 5—52
In .....7 5 5 9 6 5 5 6 5—53—105

The final round for the Branch Gold Medal and the championship of the island will be played to-day between Louis Livingston, Jr., and J. A. Janin, Jr.

SEVENTH REGIMENT GAMES.

Company E, Thanks to S. K. Thomas's Agility, Is Now Its Crack Athletic Body.

Company E of the Seventh Regiment will be known hereafter as the crack athletic company of the regiment, for its members scored first in the contest for points in the thirty-sixth set of games of the regiment, held last night at the armory, Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue. The company's victory was due mainly to the efforts of Samuel K. Thomas, who won almost every event he was entered in, and these included more than half of the number on the programme. His success was not confined to the track events, for he won two of the three field events as well. A large crowd was on hand to witness the games. One of the visitors who came on crutches was warmly welcomed. He was Capt. Donovan of the Twenty-first United States Infantry. Formerly Capt. Donovan was Lieutenant Colonel of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, but he enlisted in the Thirteenth United States Infantry and went into service in the Philippines. He was wounded in the campaign, and returned recently from Manila.

The half-mile run for the Officers' Cup was the feature of last night's programme. The eleven candidates were men who had never won a prize in a running race. William J. Place of Company F led the other ten until the last lap was started, and then he and G. D. Borden of Company E, who was running behind him, fell. The others went on, and at the end Donald Nicoll, Jr., of Company A, and H. L. Lovell of Company C, finished in the order named with only a few inches between them. Both fainted as they passed the finish mark. In the two-mile bicycle race, which was won by Fred U. Drake of Company H, I. H. Covell of Company F fell and cut his face badly.

The results of the contests were as follows:

93-Yard Run, Scratch.—Final heat won by Donald Nicholl, Jr., Company A; Harold Moore, Company D, second; E. W. Scott, Company K, third. Time—0:10 1-5.

93-Yard Run; Handicap.—Final heat won by Samuel K. Thomas, Company E; Harry L. Stratton, Company I, second; Frederick C. Terry, Company B, third. Time—0:09 4-5.

500-Yard Run; Handicap.—Won by Marvyn Scudder, Company K, (25 yards;) John J. Storms, Jr., Company E, (20 yards,) second; George Bliss Holbrook, Company E, (24 yards,) third. Time—1:17 2-5.

One-Mile Bicycle Race; Handicap. Won by P. A. Dollard, Company C, (40 yards;) J. H. Covell, Company F, (15 yards,) second; Fred N. Drake, Company H, (scratch,) third. Time—2:33 4-5.

Half-Mile Roller Skating Race; Handicap.—Won by J. L. Martin, Company G, (25 yards;) F. C. Newcombe, Company K, (25 yards,) second; Charles L. McClave, Company B, (scratch,) third. Time—1:45.

440-Yard Run, Scratch.—Won by G. D. Borden, Co. E; H. L. Lovell, Co. C, second; William J. Place, Co. F, third. Time—1:00 4-5.

One-Lap Wheelbarrow Race, Handicap.—Final heat—Won by John J. Storms, Jr., Co. E; Halsey Hazelton, Co. C, second; H. W. Wilson, Co. D, third. Time—0:25 3-5.

220-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by Frederick C. Terry, Co. B, (18 yards;) George Bullwinkle, Co. A, (22 yards,) second; G. D. Arthur, Co. I (17 yards,) third. Time—0:24 1-5.

One-Lap Sack Race, Scratch.—Won by John J. Storms, Jr., Co. E; Andrew J. Thomas, Co. E, second; H. L. La Petra, Co. G, third. Time—0:30 2-5.

93-Yard High Hurdle, Handicap.—Won by Samuel K. Thomas, Co. E, (scratch;) Frederick Gaisel, Co. F, (one-half yard,) second; Irving K. Baxter, Co. C, (scratch,) third. Time—0:12 4-5.

Potato Race, Scratch—Won by H. H. Wotherspoon, Jr., Company H; Halsey Hazelton, Company C, second; Martin J. Waters, Jr., Company E, third. Time—0:55 4-5.

One-Mile Run, Handicap—Won by Marvyn Scudder, Company K, (40 yards;) C. E. Snedecor, Company B, (scratch,) second; Paul W. Doll, Company E, (60 yards,) third. Time—4:51 4-5.

220-Yard Hurdle Race, Scratch—Won by Ernest Merwin, Company E; Charles P. Osborn, Company A, second; C. P. Loeser, Company D, third.

220-Yard Hurdle Handicap—Won by Samuel K. Thomas, Company E, (scratch;) Frederick Gaisel, Company F, (7 yards,) second; E. A. Del Monte, Company F, (12 yards,) third. Time—0:30 2-5.

Half-Mile Run, Scratch, for the Officers' Cup—Won by Donald Nicoll, Jr., Company A; H. L. Lovell, Company C, second; Frederick C. H. Bull, Company H, third. Time—2:20 3-5.

Two-Mile Bicycle Race, Handicap—Won by Fred N. Drake, Company H, (scratch;) P. A. Dollard, Company C, (75 yards,) second; Walter A. Hughes, Company E, (95 yards,) third. Time—5:56 4-5.

One-Mile Inter-Battalion Relay Race.—Won by Second Battalion's team, composed of M. J. Waters, Company E; J. J. Horms, Jr., Company E; C. B. Holbrook, Company E; M. Scudder, Company K, and E. Merwin, Company E. First Battalion's team, composed of T. R. Fisher, Company F; H. S. Stratton, Company I; F. C. Terry, Company B; B. W. Wenman, Company I, and E. C. Snedecor, Company B, second. Time—3:39 1-5.

Putting the 16-Pound Shot, Handicap.—Won by Samuel K. Thomas, Company E, (12½ feet,) with an actual put of 32 feet; F. W. Cobb, Company B, (13 feet,) with an actual put of 30 feet 1 inch, second; A. W. Hankinson, Company B, (12 feet,) with an actual put of 30 feet 1 inch, third.

Running High Jump, Handicap.—Won by W. W. Lee, Company D, (12 inches,) with an actual jump of 5 feet 2 inches; F. M. Edwards, Company F, (12 inches,) with an actual jump of 5 feet, second; Frederick Gaisel, Company F, (10½ inches,) with an actual jump of 5 feet 1 inch, third.

Pole Vault, Handicap.—Won by Samuel K. Thomas, Company E, (6 inches,) with an actual vault of 10 feet 6 inches; Irving K. Baxter, Company C, (scratch,) with an actual vault of 10 feet, second; J. K. Morgan, (2 feet,) with an actual vault of 8 feet, third.

Polo Games Yesterday.

At Meriden, Conn.—Meriden, 6; Waterbury, 5.
At East Weymouth—East Weymouth, 4; Taunton, 3.
At Plymouth, Mass.—Plymouth, 5; Rockland, 3.
At Clinton Mass.—Clinton, 8; Salem, 3.

Oil Well Supply Dealer Bankrupt.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 2.—John McKay of Titusville, Penn., an old-well supply and iron pipe dealer, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court to-day. His liabilities are $178,883 and his assets $235.

Another South Carolina Cotton Mill.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 2.—The Monarch Cotton Mills, Union, S. C., was chartered to-day with a capital stock of $200,000. The officials are J. A. Fant, T. C. Duncan, and E. Nicholson.

GOLFERS AND THE SABBATH

Sunday Games on Staten Island Raise a Protest.

SIMILAR TROUBLES IN BOSTON

All Right to Play for Fun Is the Common Sentiment, but Not for Cups or Medals.

Shall it be golf on Sunday or not on Sunday has been the question that has given Staten Island golfers more to talk about and think about recently than any other local event of the year. This Sunday question was forced upon the attention of the Richmond County fraternity through the offer by Col. J. R. Branch of a gold medal that should represent the championship of the island. It was a good idea, for the friendly rivalry among the three clubs where golf is a leading feature—the Richmond County, Staten Island Cricket, and Harbor Hill—had made the time ripe for such an interclub championship contest, and under wise management the contest would have been received with open-hearted enthusiasm from one end of the borough to the other.

The tournament, after having been announced for Saturday, Nov. 25, was changed on account of other games being held on that day to the Sunday following. This step met with loud opposition from the Harbor Hill golfers, and a special meeting of the Board of Directors was held to take official action on the subject. Otto Hockmeyer, Captain of the club, did not feel that he could act singly for the club on so important a question. The board denounced Sunday competitive golf, and by a vote of 8 to 1 decided that the club would not sanction the championship event, which was held on the links of the Staten Island Cricket Club at Fox Hills. J. A. Janin, Jr., who in the same week won the Captain's Cup given by Otto Hockmeyer, and W. A. Hamilton disobeyed the request of the Directors and played in the Sunday match. They have been asked for an explanation.

***

A number of other objections besides the moral side of the question have entered into this Sunday golf subject at Staten Island.

"I do not object entirely to Sunday playing," said Otto Hockmeyer, "and I often play a friendly game myself on that day, and scores of other Harbor Hill members do the same. But I do object to the precedent establishing competitive Sunday games on the island. It then becomes, in one way, compulsory for a man to play, and many men who would play in a Saturday match and make good scores would be shut out of a Sunday competition through principle. It is something that, to my knowledge, was never done on the island before, and I do not think it will be repeated very soon."

Mr. Hockmeyer's idea of the matter is the one that has tacitly been recognized by most of the golf clubs whose links are open on Sunday to those who wish to play. At Arosley, where Sunday golf is probably as popular as at any other club in the Metropolitan district, the idea of holding a regular competition has never entered the committee's mind. The nearest approach to it has been the occasional playing off of a match between two or more members in a weekly handicap contest.

At Morris County no golf is allowed on Sunday at all, but while the clubs are very few that shut down absolutely on the Sabbath, the occasions are probably fewer where regular tournaments have been announced for that day. It is a fact that many men will go to their clubs on Sunday and play a quiet game who would not have their names appear under any consideration as taking part in a Sunday tournament.

***

Another objection raised by the Staten Islanders, or some of them, was the shortness of the time given to prepare for the championship contest. This did not mean that the golfers wanted the length of many days to toil over the links in practice play, but it was owing to a desire that the conditions might be thoroughly understood so that the initial event might be started in a manner befitting a Staten Island championship, and that definite arrangements could be made for continuing the event year after year under fixed conditions. However displeased those who favored the quickly arranged tournament may be at the objectors, they must at least allow that the point is well taken.

While Col. Branch deserves credit for fostering so worthy a cause, many hold the opinion that the results would have been more satisfactory had his gold medal been flashed before the golfers earlier in the year or kept in its velvet case until another season.

A championship of a New York borough is surely no one-club affair, but thus far no committee consisting of representatives from all the clubs has been brought together to take any action upon the matter, either to thank Col. Branch for his gift or to accept his conditions. As the matter stands now the Cricket Club is to hold the tournament each year until the medal is won three times by one player.

***

The unfortunate fact remains, therefore, that the first effort to hold a golf championship of Staten Island has failed of success. This lamentable result is seen still more clearly in the fact that only thirteen competitors appeared in the qualifying round, and only twelve scores were turned in. Staten Island has become famous for the number and enthusiasm of its golfers, and even with the conditions limiting the event to those who have won a scratch competition during the year there should have been at least from twenty-five to thirty starters. Only two of the scores turned in were under the hundred mark. It has been an unfortunate championship in many ways, and the memories of it will hardly serve to brighten the Staten Island golf annals for 1899.

***

There is no doubt that the game of golf has led in many localities to a more open Sunday than was the case before the sport came to America. Scores of men who would not think of playing baseball go out regularly to the links every Sunday. The sociability and pleasant exercise of the game have made it wonderfully popular on the church day of the week. Many excuse their action when accused by some friend of strict moral views by saying that Sunday offers one of the few possibilities to a business man for exercise, and a quiet game of golf is surely harmful to no one. The game itself is not noisy or boisterous, and as most of the clubs where Sunday playing is indulged in are well removed from residential localities there has been little cause for complaint. The few efforts that have been made occasionally to stop Sunday golf in this vicinity, notably at Englewood and Greenwich, have not been successful, and the country constables have evidently agreed to let it alone.

***

The question recently has come prominently to the front around Boston, and some of the suburban clubs have stopped all Sunday playing until one or two test cases on the subject now before the Supreme Court of the State are settled. The police of Saugus about two weeks ago issued notice on the officers of the Riverside Golf Club that they would allow no playing on the Sabbath, and since that time the Saugus links have witnessed the quiet of the old Pilgrim Sabbath. In many other towns the police have stated that they are ready to swoop down upon the golfers if complaints are made.

The fashionable Brookline Country Club has a notice posted in the house calling attention to the fact that members who play golf on Sunday do so on their own responsibility, but if this is done the use of the greens and tees near Clyde Street is prohibited. Golf has always been played on Sunday to a certain extent on the Brookline links, and it is said that the present notice in the clubhouse would probably not have been posted had not a prominent office holder in the State been hit by a golf ball while driving by the Country Club grounds one Sunday. He immediately notified the police that the game should be stopped. That accounts, therefore, for the caution now observed by the Sunday golfers at Brookline and their avoidance of the Clyde Street greens.

***

The members of the Commonwealth Club at Newton were recently notified that Sunday golf must cease, and because some of them were less obedient than the Saugus players a mounted officer rode out to the links one Sunday and took down the names of all who were darting merrily from green to green. The Massachusetts law which is said to cover the case is not one of the relics of blue law days, but was passed in 1895 and enacts that "whoever takes part in a game, sport, play, or public diversion on the Lord's Day shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $50."

***

Bicycling and golf have become sharp thorns in the sides of Sabbath observers. It was Dr. Rainsford who said in his church report that these two amusements were leading to a looser conception of Sabbath ideas by the youth of America. It is generally recognized, however, that the law has little effect. That is, the law may be a good thing when the followers of a sport make it a nuisance for any community, but there is no reason to suppose that because a man is told by a police officer that he cannot play golf that he will turn around and become a consistent church member.

***

The police of New York, however, are in no danger of stopping Sunday golf, for the public links at Van Cortlandt Park, controlled by the Park Commissioners, are thronged with golfers on the Sabbath, that day vieing with Saturday in activity. So crowded are the Ardsley links on some Sundays that a member recently said: "Why, it's no use trying to play golf here on Sunday, for unless you get on the first tee, ready to drive off by 8 o'clock in the morning, you will probably have a two hours' wait for your turn."

***

Favorable comment has been bestowed upon Miss Ruth Underhill from many quarters for her willingness to enter competitive matches and stand defeats without a murmur. Since winning the championship of the United States, Miss Underhill was beaten in the women's open tournaments at Baltusrol and Ardsley. She is a typical "sportsman" golfer, and does not allow a defeat to bother her to such an extent as to keep her away from the next big tournament. She visited the Morris County links last week and played a match with Miss Marie G. Bryce, a recent champion of the club, and one of the youngest, as well as best, players. Miss Bryce won by 2 up and 1 to play.

***

Severe criticism was meted out to the Philadelphia golfers last week by one of their own newspapers, and incidentally credit was given to the women for showing a broader golfing spirit than has been noticeable among the sterner sex. Much of the criticism is true, for apart from F. H. Bohlen, W. M. McCawley, H. M. Forrest, and the Biddles, although the latter have not been seen in any big local tournaments this season, scarcely any other Quaker City golfers are known beyond their own district. This arraignment of Philadelphia golfers concludes as follows:

"Philadelphia, with its numerous links, never shows any progressive spirit in the way of big open tournaments, which should be made sufficiently attractive to draw the leading players here; but instead each club goes its own way, holding its own events for its own members, most of whom never play over any other course than their own and naturally do not improve in their game. The women have done a lot more for Philadelphia golf than the men, and it is high time the latter got together and held at least one big open tournament each year."

***

The friendly rivalry that has always added spice to the inter-club contests of the Agawam Hunt and Wannamoisett Golf Clubs of Providence, R. I., has led to the challenge from W. B. Brownell, champion of the latter club, being sent to Abram Barker, the Agawam golf champion, for a home-and-home contest for the championship of the two clubs, which will carry with it the golf supremacy of Providence. The first match at eighteen holes was recently played on the Agawam links, and Barker led by two holes. The members are now anxiously awaiting the result of the Wannamoisett contest. Some of the women in the Agawam club have large handicaps, as shown by the victory for the cup given by Mrs. R. I. Gammell by Miss Margaret Hazard, the latter having a handicap of sixty strokes. Mrs. Chandler, who was runner-up, enjoyed the liberal allowance of eighty strokes. Miss A. F. Low won the women's cup tournament of the season by defeating Miss L. L. Peck by one hole in the final round.

***

The East Orange Golf Club, which has enjoyed a very successful season, has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President—John McIntyre; Vice President—William W. Palen; Secretary—J. W. Alford; Treasurer—Sandford E. Cobb; Captain—Edward G. Kent; Directors—Austin Colgate, Charles Smith, Richard H. Dana, William P. Thorp, William G. Barr, Miss Julia Mix, and Miss Tennille.

***

The Washington (D. C.) Golf Club practically opened its links for the season on Thanksgiving Day by holding tournaments for both men and women. A number of competitions will be given at intervals during the Winter.

***

F. H. Bohlen, who recently won the amateur golf championship of Philadelphia, stands a good opportunity to win the championship of the Philadelphia Country Club. The competition for that honor is now under way, and it will be the last event of importance to be played on the Bala links this season. In fact, the golf links of the club were practically closed last week, when Rodman E. Griscom won a handicap bogie competition. He made the best gross score of the day, 86 strokes, and Bohlen took 89. William M. McCawley was beaten in his semi-final round for the club championship by H. M. Forrest. The other semi-final round has not yet been reached, but the event will probably be concluded during the coming week. Several of the Quaker City prominent golfers will be seen in many of the Southern tournaments this Winter.

***

The enjoyments of golf were pursued on Thanksgiving Day to a large extent by the golfers of Boston, and there were interesting matches on some of the Philadelphia courses. To many clubs it marked the close of the season, and the greater severity of the Winter around Boston will prevent as many courses being left open, even for practice on temporary greens, as is the case in the Metropolitan district. The Allston Club, in the suburbs of Boston, has arranged a schedule of club events extending through December, and the Seapoint Club, near the coast, will keep open house. These are among the exceptions, and some of the leading golfers will be found during the Winter at Aiken and other Southern resorts.

***

L. C. Servos, who has been the Medford Club's professional during the Summer, is still busy with pupils, but before the end of this month he will be seen on one of the courses in the Florida East Coast Golf Association. He holds the record of the Medford nine holes at 38 strokes, and 82 strokes for the eighteen holes. The amateur record is 46. The club has had a very successful season, and as its members are drawn from Charlestown, Everett, Malden, Cambridge, and other suburbs, preparations are being made for a more commodious clubhouse next year.

RECORD-BREAKING WEDDINGS.

Alderman Wentz Unites Twelve Couples in Twenty Minutes.

Twelve couples who were anxious to get married gathered in the Marriage Bureau at the City Hall yesterday morning. Noon was approaching and the clerks were watching the hands of the clock with eager eyes, but there was no Alderman about the place to perform the ceremonies.

Just before noon, however, Alderman Wentz came over from Brooklyn on business, and he was hailed to the Marriage Bureau, where he broke all records by marrying the dozen couples in twenty minutes. He did not, however, observe the usual rule by kissing the brides.

Chevalier De Toppo Buried.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 2.—The funeral of Chevalier John De Toppo, who died at his residence, 80 Halsted Street, East Orange, on Thursday, was held from his late home to-day. The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Louis Francis of the Kent Street Reformed Church, Brooklyn. The interment was at Hackensack. Chevalier de Toppo was a native of Trieste, Austria. He inherited his title from his father, who was an official in that city. He was thirty-eight years old. He leaves a wife.

THE DEAF CURED FREE
next Friday, 2 and 8 P. M., at Carnegie Lyceum, 57th St. and 7th Av.

BROOKLYN ADVERTISEMENTS.

WISSNER

SPECIAL OFFERS

this week on all second-hand stock.

Not all old Pianos, you must remember, but many good instruments—of good makers—not used over two or three years.

One is worth a score of cheap new Pianos.

Holiday Stock

arriving daily from our factory claims room and attention, and this stock must be sacrificed.

UPRIGHTS
$75, $90, $115.
$5 MONTHLY.

SECOND-HAND GRANDS,
$150, $250.

Good Square Pianos for beginners, $35.

Have you seen and heard
The Wissner Grand in Upright Form?
A Revelation to Musicians.

BROOKLYN: Fulton & Flatbush Ave.
JERSEY CITY: 80 Montgomery St.
NEW YORK: 25 East 14th St.
NEWARK: 611 Broad St.
FACTORIES: 1068 to 1088 Atlantic Ave.

PIANOS

IN THE BOWLING ALLEYS.

Colgate & Co. and the National Lead Company divided the honors in the Drug Trade Bowling Association tournament, at Reid's alleys, 200 Church Street, yesterday afternoon, both winning two games. Dodge & Olcott and Seabury & Johnson each won one game. In the fifth game the team of Colgate & Co. defeated the representatives of R. W. Robinson & Son by seven pins. The former's victory was largely due to Faulkner's steady bowling. He made twenty-nine pins in the last frame. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

National Lead Company—Kemble, 170; Saunders, 174; C. E. Meek, 135; Sedford, 150; R. P. Meek, 109. Total, 738.

Roessler & Hasslacher Chemical Company—Furgang, 122; Bode, 141; Hore, 131; Klahre, 150; Malsch, 123. Total, 667.

SECOND GAME.

Seabury & Johnson—Dezeller, 132; Scrimshaw, 202; Caughey, 154; Withers, 145; Judge, 148. Total, 777.

Roessler & Hasslacher Chemical Company—Furgang, 110; Bode, 158; Hore, 106; Klahre, 155; Malsch, 150. Total, 679.

THIRD GAME.

National Lead Company—Kemble, 147; Saunders, 128; C. E. Meek, 169; Sedford, 145; R. P. Meek, 169. Total, 756.

Seabury & Johnson—Dezeller, 131; Scrimshaw, 167; Caughey, 137; Withers, 132; Judge, 136. Total, 703.

FOURTH GAME.

Colgate & Co.—Barnes, 178; Chrystal, 169; Kennedy, 114; Faulkner, 187; Colgate, 150. Total, 798.

R. W. Robinson & Co.—Kimball, 150; W. R. Robinson, 130; Littell, 243; Hopper, 128; Smith, 170. Total, 791.

FIFTH GAME.

Dodge & Olcott—Howe, 172; Ely, 133; Olin, 143; Robertson, 158; Ruddiman, 157. Total, 763.

R. W. Robinson & Son—Kimball, 173; W. R. Robinson, 135; Littell, 166; Hopper, 148; Smith, 166. Total, 748.

SIXTH GAME.

Colgate & Co.—Barnes, 138; Chrystal, 134; Ranson, 171; Faulkner, 188; Colgate, 143. Total, 774.

Dodge & Olcott—Howe, 136; Ely, 158; Olin, 117; Robertson, 151; Ruddiman, 171. Total, 733.

In the first game in the Fire Insurance League at Reid's Alleys last night between the Niagara and Caledonian Company teams a decision was not reached until the last man had bowled. The Niagara representatives won by 10 pins through the steady work of Faulkner and O'Connell. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Niagara—Cook, 133; Esselmont, 177; Millan, 146; Turner, 128; Barley, 168. Total, 752.

Caledonian—Stoney, 140; Toombs, 152; Franck, 160; O'Connell, 179; Prior, 111. Total, 742.

SECOND GAME.

Niagara—Cook, 132; Esselmont, 116; Millan, 140; Turner, 143; Barley, 159. Total, 690.

Northern—Bubler, 181; Schwekhardt, 124; Gendar, 93; Schlatter, 100; Sullivan, 125. Total, 623.

THIRD GAME.

Caledonian—Stoney, 145; Walton, 129; Toombs, 122; Franck, 137; O'Connell, 139. Total, 672.

Northern—Bubler, 157; Schwekhardt, 102; Gendar, 111; Schlatter, 123; Sullivan, 143. Total, 636.

Only one of the teams that competed in the Bank Clerks' League at Reid's alleys last night rolled a score of over 700. The team representing the Broadway Bank of Brooklyn won two games. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

Broadway—Schaller, 124; Johnson, 110; Sandall, 123; Schneider, 151; Wortman, 136. Total, 653.

Mercantile National—Wright, 134; Harding, 133; Kright, 117; Skillman, 121; Grant, 140. Total, 645.

SECOND GAME.

Mercantile National—Wright, 156; Harding, 107; Kright, 134; Skillman, 159; Grant, 177. Total, 733.

Kountze Brothers—Mecabe, 136; Nelson, 107; Farrington, 150; Poole, 125; Schmitt, 135. Total, 653.

THIRD GAME.

Broadway—Schaller 140; Johnson, 116; Sandall, 144; Schneider, 138; Wortman, 154. Total, 692.

Kountze Brothers—Mecabe, 191; Nelson, 120; Farrington, 96; Poole, 122; Schmitt, 160. Total, 619.

TROLLEY PASSENGERS SCARED.

Burning of Feed Wires Caused Flashes of Flame from Slot.

By the burning out of feed wires in one of the conduits of the Sixth Avenue electric car line at Fifty-seventh Street yesterday at noon, much excitement was caused by the sudden flash of fire which shot up through the slot in the centre of the track. In a short time the damage had been repaired. The burning out of the wires necessitated the stopping of the cars on the Sixth and Eighth Avenues and Fifty-ninth Street car lines for an hour. The passengers on the approaching cars were badly frightened, but no one was injured.

Woman Run Down by a Train.

HILLSDALE, N. J., Dec. 2.—An unidentified woman was instantly killed by the 5:15 P. M. train for New York on the New York and New Jersey Road this evening. When just beyond Carlstadt the train slowed up and the engineer notified Conductor Blauvelt that the train had struck something. Blauvelt and a brakeman went back with a lantern. They found the body of a middle-aged German woman near the track.

Dr. McGlynn's Illness Serious.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Dec. 2.—While the Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn has rested quietly to-day, and his condition is regarded as slightly improved, his illness excites consid

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL CHRISTMAS.

Special Sale Of New Upright PIANOS made by reliable manufacturers and fully guaranteed by us.

$175.00

buys a thoroughly good full size piano with every modern improvement.

$200.00

buys same quality as above, but concert grand size.

$250.00

buys a beautiful, rich toned, high grade piano that will last a lifetime.

$300.00

means piano satisfaction for life, for it means an

OLD and RELIABLE

STERLING.

200 Beautiful Sterlings in stock to choose from.

Prices range from $250.00, $300.00, $350.00, $400.00 to $500.00.

SLIGHTLY USED PIANOS

High Grade Uprights

in perfect repair,

$125.00 to $250.00

Medium Grade Uprights

$75.00, $125.00 to $175.00

Square Pianos

$35.00, $50.00 to $90.00

(40 to select from.)

Monthly payments if desired.

Regina Music Boxes

50 different styles. 1,000 tunes. Regina concert every day. Come and see and hear.

The STERLING Piano Co.,

MANUFACTURERS.
Wholesale and Retail Warerooms
(Entire building, four floors).
536 FULTON ST., Brooklyn.
Look for the name Sterling.
OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL CHRISTMAS.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL TEAMS.

Question of the Relative Excellence of These Organizations Complicated—Points Scored.

The question as to which college was represented by the best football team for the season just closed is rather a complicated one. Princeton's defeat of Yale after the New Haven collegians had played a tie game with Harvard will lead many to believe that Princeton is entitled to the honor. Harvard, it must be considered, has played throughout the season without a defeat, while all the other prominent universities have suffered one or more defeats. Princeton lost one game, to Cornell, while Yale was twice beaten, first by Columbia and then by Princeton. Harvard has gone through the season with the smallest number of points scored against her—ten points by the Carlisle Indians. Yale has had sixteen points scored against her. Princeton comes next, her opponents having scored twenty-one points. The scores of games played by the prominent elevens are as follows:

HARVARD.

Harvard	29	Williams	0
Harvard	13	Bowdoin	0
Harvard	20	Wesleyan	0
Harvard	41	Amherst	0
Harvard	18	West Point	0
Harvard	29	Bates	0
Harvard	11	Brown	0
Harvard	22	Carlisle Indians	10
Harvard	16	University of Penn.	0
Harvard	11	Dartmouth	0
Harvard	0	Yale	0
Total	210	Total	10

PRINCETON.

Princeton	28	Univ. of Maryland	0
Princeton	5	Annapolis Academy	0
Princeton	12	Lafayette	0
Princeton	11	Columbia	0
Princeton	12	Pennsylvania State	0
Princeton	23	West Point	0
Princeton	17	Lehigh	0
Princeton	0	Cornell	5
Princeton	18	Brown	6
Princeton	30	Univ. of N. Carolina	0
Princeton	12	Carlisle Indians	0
Princeton	6	Wash. and Jefferson	0
Princeton	11	Yale	10
Total	185	Total	21

YALE.

Yale	23	Amherst	0
Yale	40	Trinity	0
Yale	28	Bates	0
Yale	12	Dartmouth	0
Yale	6	Wisconsin	0
Yale	0	Columbia	5
Yale	24	West Point	0
Yale	42	Pennsylvania State	0
Yale	0	Harvard	0
Yale	10	Princeton	11
Total	191	Total	16

CORNELL.

Cornell	42	Colgate	0
Cornell	17	Syracuse	0
Cornell	12	Hamilton	0
Cornell	12	Williams	0
Cornell	6	Chicago University	17
Cornell	5	Lehigh	0
Cornell	5	Princeton	0
Cornell	29	Columbia	0
Cornell	5	Lafayette	0
Cornell	0	Univ. of Pennsylvania	20
Total	134	Total	43

COLUMBIA.

Columbia	30	Walton	6
Columbia	20	Rutgers	0
Columbia	21	Union	0
Columbia	0	Princeton	11
Columbia	40	New York University	0
Columbia	18	Amherst	6
Columbia	5	Yale	0
Columbia	46	Stevens	0
Columbia	0	Cornell	29
Columbia	10	West Point	0
Columbia	22	Dartmouth	0
Columbia	0
Carlisle Indians	45	Total	91
Total	224

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Pennsylvania	48	Franklin & Marshall	0
Pennsylvania	29	Lehigh	0
Pennsylvania	47	Bucknell	10
Pennsylvania	6	Brown	6
Pennsylvania	33	Virginia	6
Pennsylvania	5	Indians	16
Pennsylvania	17	Wesleyan	6
Pennsylvania	0	Lafayette	6
Pennsylvania	5	Chicago	5
Pennsylvania	0	Harvard	16
Pennsylvania	11	Michigan	10
Pennsylvania	47	Pennsylvania State	0
Pennsylvania	20	Cornell	0
Total	259	Total	81

JOURNEAY & BURNHAM.

Flatbush Avenue, Junction Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

Holiday Goods Now Ready.

Christmas Day is only three weeks away. It is desirable to begin the selection of holiday presents at once. Do not wait until the streets are crowded and the stores jammed with shoppers. We are showing large and choice stocks of holiday goods at popular prices. Inspection and comparison are invited. An early selection will be to your advantage.

Dress Patterns,

$2.95, Reduced from $5.00—The Greatest Offer of the Season.

For to-morrow we offer 500 full Dress Patterns of fine all wool goods, a variety of excellent mixtures and desirable colors, 52 inches wide—goods sold until yesterday at $1.00 per yard—for $2.95 per pattern of five yards, instead of $5.00. (Main Aisle, Center Table.)

Also a large variety of other Dress Patterns, in wool, at $1.50, $1.95, $2.25, $2.50, $2.75, $2.95, $3.25, $3.60, and up to any price you wish to pay.

200 Black Dress Lengths

in Fine All Wool Cheviot, 50 inches wide, sold this season at $1.00 per yard, reduced to $3.15 for full dress length.

Other Black Goods Patterns at $1.50, $1.75, $2.50, $2.65, $3.95 and upward.

Umbrellas.

Regular $10.00 and $15.00 Quality for $5.00.

We recently purchased a lot of fine Umbrella Handles (samples), at our own price, and had them mounted on pure all silk serge, with steel rods, cases and tassels. The handles are pearl, burnt ivory and horn, trimmed with sterling silver. The entire lot is marked to sell at $5.00 each, and they are sure to sell quick at that figure, $10.00 and $15.00 being the regular prices for such fine goods.

Electric Seal Jackets, $33.50.

Winter has been very slow in coming this way this year, but it may be expected to appear any day with its nipping, biting force—and then, oh how welcome Fur Jackets will be. We have some Ladies' Electric Seal Jackets—such as are really worth $50.00 on the basis of the present market value—that we offer at $33.50.

KERSEY JACKETS,

all wool, double-breasted or fly front, lined with Skinner's Satin, actually worth $12.50, to be sold to-morrow at $9.50.

LADIES' SUITS,

gray, brown or black, with fly front, $12.50 instead of $17.50.

GOLF CAPES,

fine goods, black and white, $10.00 instead of $15.00.

Specials in Men's Goods.

All of our 50 and 75 ct. quality of Imperial Four-in-Hand, Puff, Tecks and Band Bows at 35 cts. each, or three for $1.00, to-morrow only; all new goods.

$1.00 and $1.50 Percale and Madras Shirts, with attached or detached cuffs, all new stripes and neat effects, reduced to 65 cts.

Suede Gloves.

59 Cts. Instead of $1.25.

Women's 4-button Suede Gloves—a limited quantity—handsomely embroidered in one and four rows of plain and two-toned effects; soft, elastic skins; sewing and general finish of the best; shades, russet, Havana, brown, lemon, ficelle and butter—gloves that usually sell at $1.25—reduced to 59 cts.

Finger Purses, 50 Cts.

The present fashionable Finger Purses, in genuine imported real Seal, with a double pocket—same kind as are regularly sold at 75 cts.—to go to-morrow at 50 cts. each.

Trimmed Hats.

$5.00 to $7.00; Less Than Half of Regular Prices.

A choice selection of Ladies' and Children's Hats, exclusive styles and colors—no two alike—to be closed out at $5.00 to $7.00 to-morrow.

Also imported models at greatly reduced prices.

Especial attention is called to our choice display of Hair Ornaments.

Millinery Dept., 2d floor.

Oriental Rugs.

We added many bales of Oriental Rugs last week to the large lot already on special sale on the third floor. The sizes are those most in demand for holiday gifts. The patterns and colorings recommend them at sight, and the low prices add to their attractiveness. You will find Rugs in fine antique and modern Shirvans, Shiraz, Anatolian, Bokhara, Beloochistan, Kazak, Cabistan, Daghestan, Khivan, Somac, India and other makes, ranging in size from 3.6x4.6 feet to 5x7 feet, and the prices from $7.50 to $20.00. One lot of the choicest Antique Iram, Kirmain and other fine Persian makes, 4x6.6 feet, at $80; were $125 to $150.

CARLISLE INDIANS.

Indians	21	Gettysburg	0
Indians	56	Susquehanna	0
Indians	18	Pennsylvania	6
Indians	16	Dickinson	5
Indians	10	Harvard	22
Indians	32	Hamilton	0
Indians	0	Princeton	12
Indians	81	Oberlin	0
Indians	45	Columbia	0
Total	277	Total	44

These figures will doubtless keep football experts busy in discussion for some time to come.

GOSSIP OF THE CYCLISTS.

Conway W. Sams of Baltimore will be a candidate for the Presidential honors of the League of American Wheelmen at the annual assembly in February. Mr. Sams is now serving his third term as Chief Consul of the Maryland division. It is reported that he will be supported by the New York division on a strong anti-racing platform. With New York as his chief support, Sams is expected to gather enough recruits from other anti-racing quarters to make him a strong opponent of Thomas Keenan, Jr., the present head of the league, if his adherents can induce him to again accept a nomination. Sterling Elliott and Isaac B. Potter, whom Thomas Keenan, Jr., succeeded, have both announced that the Presidency has no attraction for them.

***

President Thomas Keenan, Jr., of the League of American Wheelmen has announced that, as favorable railroad rates cannot be secured, the National Assembly next February will not be held at Jacksonville for the assembly, and many believe that Detroit should receive the decision. The majority are in favor of holding it in the East. The Executive Committee will render its decision in a few days.

***

C. A. Lehritter won the mileage competition of the Century Wheelmen, for which prizes are offered every season. From Feb. 1 to Oct. 31 he rode 12,151 miles; nearly 5,000 miles more than any other member. He also heads the prize winners for the greatest number of "centuries," having taken part in eighty-six century runs. W. H. Anderson won first prize in the five-mile competition for members who have ridden five miles a day the greatest number of days from Feb. 1 to Oct. 31. Anderson covered the distance 252 days.

***

Owing to the large demand for space to exhibit various lines of goods, the management of the Cycle and Automobile Show to be held in Madison Square Garden during the week following Jan. 20, 1900, has decided to have only bicycles and horseless vehicles on the main floor. The American Bicycle Company will occupy 104 spaces, which is nearly one-third of the entire space of the show.

***

The new models of bicycles for the season of 1900 introduce many radical changes and improvements. The machines are much lighter than those shown this year, the difference in weight being particularly noticeable in the chainless models. The main frame tubes are 1⅛ inch in diameter, a reduction of one-eighth of an inch as compared with this year's models. The new seat post binder is devised with a view to securing the advantages of the bolt principle and those of the wedge and expander methods as well, a very slight pressure of the wrench being sufficient to secure the seat post so that it will remain immovably in place. The head expander is of the internal type, a single bolt fastening the handle-bar adjustment and operating the expander. The fork crown is a single piece, drop forging, similar in appearance to one used a few years ago, but entirely new in its construction. It preserves the characteristic grace of the old type, while greatly surpassing it in strength and reliability. This fork crown admits much closer forward construction, thus contributing greatly to the trim appearance of the machine. The pedals are of an entirely new design, and exceptionally light and strong. One of the most important of the new features is the hub, which retains the straight spoke with all its advantages of strength and tenacity, at the same time presenting a smooth symmetry of outline, which is at once distinctive and pleasing. Each spoke has a small sphere at the inner end, beyond which projects a small curved pin. Channels for receiving the spokes are made tangentially in the outer portion of the hub, each groove widening at one end into a spherical recess for receiving the ball on the spoke. The introduction of this hub has compelled the designing and building of some of the finest automatic machinery used in the manufacture of bicycles.

***

The new chainless machines are far lighter than any chainless machines heretofore made and the mechanism has been changed in important ways. The sleeve for carrying a forty-toothed driving gear has been enlarged and modified so that the gear itself with the ball race is changed to a form much better adapted to symmetrical tempering. The axis of the sleeve has been made accurately perpendicular to the plane of the disk which receives the gear and absolute uniformity in the running of the gear is assured. When the gear is screwed upon the sleeve, every part and working piece necessarily takes its assigned position without straining or warping. The adjustment of the crank shaft and its pinion has been so modified that the forward locking device is easily adjusted by moving the nuts with a key inserted in a hole provided in the frame, and a similar but not strictly identical arrangement is used for the adjustment and control of the rear pinion. Means have also been provided for adjusting the pinions forward and backward on the gear shaft, while by the crank bracket and rear hub adjustments each pair of gears that work together can be drawn closer or separated without difficulty and so as to secure a smooth, easy action.

Enlarging His Stock Farm.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Dec. 2.—Lucien O. Appleby is preparing to go into thoroughbred horse breeding on an even more extensive scale than ever at his farm here. Thirty head of brood mares have already been added to the score or more of turf matrons already here, the new arrivals coming from several Kentucky stock farms, where Mr. Appleby has had them during the past year. Knight of Ellersile, imp. King Thistle, and that good race horse Tristan are the horses to which the mares will be mated in the early Spring. Mr. Appleby is a firm believer in this State as a good breeding ground, as the water is pure and the grass all that can be desired. His past successes in breeding can, he believes, be more than duplicated by an extension of his facilities here. Mr. Appleby has returned from a visit to Kentucky, where he purchased a score or more of mares at the Woodward & Shanklin sale, which will reach here during the coming week. These will find homes in the new barns recently built for the accommodation of his stock.

Deformed with Speed.

There is a deal of humor stowed away in the carcass of some of the men who make horse trading and horse dealing their business. One of these characters was at the recent Madison Square Garden sale, and was descanting volubly on the merits of one of the horses he had consigned for sale. Of course the trotter had a "record," and this horse dealer made it a fast one, some ten seconds faster than the records would show, as a matter of fact. There was a suspicious-looking lump on one leg of this marvelous trotter, a lump too plain to be passed over unnoticed.

"Hurt received on the cars on the way here, I suppose," laconically remarked the party upon whom the dealer was trying to impress the advantage of buying the animal.

"No, I won't deceive you," replied the honest horse dealer. "I never knew a man to make nothin' by deceivin'. I'll tell you the truth. That lump don't hurt the hoss a bit. It's been there since she was foaled, and it's a funny lump, for when she's out of training it sort o' disappears like, and when she's right at her best it shows up again. It's a sort of speed indicator, you see. I tell you, pardner, you don't often see a hoss deformed with speed but there's one that is."

ABRAHAM AND STRAUS.

BROOKLYN.

Our Private Carriage Driveway Is Again Open to the Public.

Our Private Driveway running through from Schermerhorn Street to the Livingston St. and Gallatin Pl. entrance to our store—which was temporarily closed while the extensive additions were being made to the building through which it extends—is again open to the free use of the driving and bicycling public.

We are ready as never before to supply your Holiday wants. Read with the best store, the best stocks, the best service and the best values Brooklyn has ever known. Don't fail to bring the children to see the wonders of Toyland on the fourth floor—and don't fail to do your buying EARLY. Begin to-morrow.

Women's Jackets & Suits, Two Great Values.

Tailor Made Suits at $9.50.

Fifty-five tailor made Suits are here for fifty-five lucky women. You can be one of the number if you get here in time, but you'll have to be prompt, for there'll be no lack of buyers once these suits are seen. They are made of good quality homespun suiting, in dark blue, gray and black. The coats are finished in fly front effect and are lined with taffeta silk or satin romaine; the skirts are cut in the approved latest style and they're percaline lined and velvet bound. They're uncommonly good value at $9.50

$15.00 to $20.00 Jackets at $9.75.

We've 150 of these Jackets in all sizes from 32 to 40. They're made in the most fashionable shapes of Kersey, Cheviot and heavy curl Boucle, in black. All are lined throughout with black or fancy silks, and they are as thoroughly good and stylish and up to date as any woman could wish for. They were made for retailing at $15.00 to $20.00, but we've secured them for selling at $9.75

Second floor.

Some Splendid Silks at Small Prices.

Waist Lengths for Holiday Gifts.

We've 600 waist lengths of fine quality fancy Taffeta Silk, comprising a choice assortment of the season's most desirable styles and colorings—all marked at less than the cost of production. Each pattern is prettily boxed, ready for giving to someone who will appreciate such a delightful holiday present.

And These Attractions, Too.

3,000 yds. of 21 inch all silk Liberty Satin, an excellent quality, in a complete assortment of colors for street and evening wear, at 49c

1,200 yds. of C. J. Bonnet's 21 inch double faced black Peau de Soie, soft rich and lustrous, at 99c

1,200 yds. of C. J. Bonnet's 22 inch double faced black Peau de Soie, heavy and very superior quality $1.25

Stirling-guaranteed black Taffeta, the best and most reliable black Taffeta made in this country—sold only by us in Brooklyn—at $1.00

Main floor, New Building.

Ostrich Feather Boas.

1 yd. long black ostrich feather Boas, excellent black and long flue feathers $5.98

1¼ yd. long black ostrich feather Boas, excellent black and long flue feathers $7.49

1½ yd. long black ostrich feather Boas, excellent black and long flue feathers $8.95

Trimmings—Main, right, rear.

Men's Blanket Robes.

Men's gray Blanket Robes with borders of contrasting colors and girdle to match $2.69

Main, front, left.

Some Fur Suggestions.

When you buy your Furs here you're sure of getting reliable quality, first-class workmanship, correct styles and the best values obtainable. Every one of the following items is an illustration of these facts:

Fur Coats.

Alaska Sealskin Coats, made of Rice's London dyed XX skins, 24 and 26 inches long—perfect in model and fit, lined with Skinner's guaranteed satin, $145.00

Persian Lamb Coats, with large full revers and collar of Chinchilla, fancy silk lined $158.50

Electric Seal Coats, 22 in. long, jaunty model, satin lined $25.00

Electric Seal Coats, 26 in. long, made double breasted, Skinner's satin lined, $32.50

Electric Seal Coats, 22 in long, with large revers and top collar of mink, $55.00

Fur Neck Wear.

Blended Stone Marten Cluster Scarf, with eight blended wolverine tails, $8.95

Alaska sable cluster Scarf, (natural fur,) with ten Alaska sable tails $6.45

Alaska sable cluster Scarf, (natural fur,) with eight dyed sable tails $4.45

Mink cluster Scarf, with eight full fluffy fox tails $7.45

Mink cluster Scarf, cut extra wide and long—can be worn either up or down, with eight full fox tails $10.95

Natural Baum Marten Neck Piece, trimmed with cluster of eight natural Baum marten tails, at $34.50

Second floor.

A Coat Chance for the Little Tots.

All our novelties in Children's high class Coats, in sizes 6 mos. to 4 yrs., comprising beautifully made garments of silk, velvet and fine cloth, that have been selling up till now from $30.00 to $65.00, have been reduced to

$15.00 to $35.00

We also offer a lot of children's plain cloth Coats, prettily made in several styles and attractively trimmed with lace and fur, regular $7.00 and $10.00 garments, at

$4.89 and $6.98

Children's Aprons and Underwear.

A large variety of Children's Aprons in plain lawn crossbar and fancy materials, trimmed with embroidery, made in waist and yoke effects; sizes 2 to 12 years 48c

Children's Masonville muslin Gowns, V-shape neck, yoke of solid embroidery, with embroidery ruffles, herringbone finish, sizes 2 to 14 yrs. 98c

Children's Canton flannel Drawers, in Knickerbocker and straight drawer, all sizes, 2 to 14 yrs. 15c

Second floor.

Women's Mackintoshes at $3.48.

These Mackintoshes are made with single or double capes and velvet collar. They've a blue, brown or black all wool serge surface, a pretty plaid lining, and they're warranted waterproof. They're exceptionally good value at

$3.48

Second floor.

Men's Socks.

Men's heavy cotton Socks, fast black, with double soles, heels, and toes, per pair 19c

Main, front, right.

Another of Our Unequalled China & Glassware Opportunities.

A new open stock pattern of Limoges China, in the new "Province" shape, with very neat pink rosebud and spray decoration, heavily trimmed with gold lace border, sold as you may select, in single pieces or sets, as follows:

Dinner Sets of 102 pieces at	$41.66
Dinner Sets of 113 pieces at	$43.75
Dinner Sets of 125 pieces at	$63.21
Dinner Plates, each	39c
Breakfast Plates, each	33c
Tea Plates, each	25c
Soup Tureens, each	$3.97
Covered Dishes, each	$2.44

Limoges china Tea Sets of 53 pieces, decorated with wild flowers and heavily stippled with gold, regularly $8.97 set, at $6.49

Latest importation of Limoges china decorated Salad Bowls and Comports, ranging in price from 89c. to $5.49

200 doz. Limoges china Tea Cups and Saucers, your choice of three decorations, usually $4.50 doz., at, per pair. 19c

1,000 doz. crystal glass water Tumblers, engraved with Grecian border and stars, regularly sold at 60c. doz., go at each 3c

Lamps, Onyx Tables and Clocks.

75 antique brass Banquet Lamps, a number of styles and shapes, at prices ranging from $6.50 to $22.75

A collection of Vase Lamps in the following celebrated wares: Royal Bonn, Old Moravian Austrian Flambric, Louwelsa and English Fayence, from $10.00 to $25.00

Hand painted Lamps, foreign and domestic, a large and complete collection, from $15.98 to $72.00

Oriental hall Lights and Lanterns, in brass, bronze and antique silver, studded with assorted colored jewels, prices from $1.59 to $9.00

Our collection of onyx Tables is the most complete assortment ever shown, prices range from $2.98 to $35.00

Decorated and hand painted Globes, sizes 6 to 12 inches, over 100 styles and decorations, at from 29c. to $25.00

Rich gold mantel Clock Sets, consisting of clock and pair candelabras, painted porcelain panels (our leaders), at $16.98 and $18.49 set

Bric-a-Brac.

250 pieces of Rudolstadt Art Pottery, new cameo effects in placques only, at from 19c. to $3.98

Majolica Placques, Old Dutch paintings, at from 49c. to $3.98

Royal Bonn Vases, new and choice decorations, including painted figures, at prices ranging from $1.75 to $35.00

Our stock of Teplitz and Gobelin Busts and Figures represents the most complete and varied collection, at prices ranging from 39c. to $85.00

In addition to the above we are showing complete lines of Coalport, Crown Derby, Royal Worcester, Limoges, Cloisonne and other celebrated wares.

Basement, New Building.

Rich Cut Glass.

100 doz. rich deep cut glass Water Tumblers, strawberry diamond cutting, regularly $3.25, at, per doz. $2.39

Rich deep cut glass sterling mounted Puff Boxes at $1.59

Lot of rich deep cut glass Salad Bowls, value $5.75, at $4.19

Court, New Building.

Children's Stockings.

Children's fast black cotton Stockings, with double knees, heels and toes, per pair 12½c

Children's fast black cashmere Stockings, both ribbed and plain, with double soles, heels and toes, per pr. 25c

Main, front, right.

A Rare Chance to Buy Oriental Rugs at Low Prices

Want an Oriental Rug? Come here, then, and choose from this lot, and you'll find it an easy matter to suit both your taste and purse. There are five hundred carefully selected Rugs in this offering—many of them Antique, all in good condition and all especially rich in color and designs. They're marked at decidedly less than the prevailing prices for equally excellent and attractive grades.

ANATOLIAN MATS, all selected, choice antique specimens, a few rare Senas in this lot, average size 2 ft. x 3 ft., regular prices $5.00 to $12.00, at $3.75, $6.50 and $7.25

HAMADAN and KARABAGHS, selected goods, perfect in shape, subdued in color, average size 3 ft. x 4 ft., regular price $10, at $6.75

GUENGES antique and silky, average size 3 ft. x 5 ft., regular price $12.00, at $8.50

SHIRVANS, DAGHESTANS and Beloochistans, fine in texture, beautiful in design and color, average size 3 ft. 6 x 5 ft. 6, regular price $14.00, at $9.75

ANTIQUE SHIRVANS, DAGHESTANS, Beloochistans and Kazaks, a handsome lot of rich, lustrous and silky rugs in this lot, average size 3 ft. 6 x 5 ft. 6, regular price $18.00, at $12.00

ANTIQUE AND SILKY SELECTED KAZAKS, some beautiful pieces in this lot, average size 3 ft. x 5 ft. 6, regular price $22, at $14.75

ANTIQUE BOKHARAS, a choice and carefully selected lot of dark, rich, perfect pieces (good Bokharas are very scarce and hard to get), average size 3 ft. x 4 ft, regular price $25, at $17.50

ANTIQUE ANATOLIANS AND LAKES, a rare, superb and magnificent piece of color and texture in this lot, really art pieces, average size, 3 ft. 6 x 6 ft., regular price, $25.00 to $35.00, at $18.50

LARGE KAZAKS, a fine, selected lot of antique, silky pieces, with a heavy, thick pile, average size, 4 ft. x 7 ft., regular price $25.00 to $30.00, at $19.75

Fine old ANTIQUE PERSIAN RUGS, some rare old beautiful and artistic pieces of coloring in this lot, average size, 4 ft. x 7 ft., regular price, $20.00 to $50.00 $12.50 to $25.00

And an exceptionally large lot of fine antique Shirvan, Daghestan and Persian pieces, at correspondingly low prices.

Silver Are Suggestions That Shouldn't Be Overlooked.

Sterling Silver.

Hair Brushes	$1.79
Cloth Brushes	$1.79
Hat Brushes	89c
Military Brushes	$2.25
Mirrors	$6.75
Combs	98c
Pickle Forks	59c
Sugar Spoons	98c
Picture Frames	$1.24

Quadruple Plated Ware.

Tea Sets, 3 pieces	$5.98 & $8.75
Tea Sets, 5 pieces	$10.75 & $13.75
Tete-a-Tete Sets, 3 pieces	$4.75
Cake Baskets	$2.75
Butter Dishes	$2.98
Berry or fruit Dishes, with imported glass bowls	$1.69
Child's Cups	49c
Napkin Rings	49c
Bread Trays	$1.98

Court, New Building.

Men's and Boys' Pajamas

Men's and boys' Pajamas made of fancy domet flannel in plaids and stripes, 69c

Main floor, left.

FITZSIMMONS AND JULIAN PART.

Disagreements Lead to Blows and a Rupture of Relations.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The News says: "Ex-Champion Robert Fitzsimmons and his old-time manager, Martin Julian, have parted company. This resulted after a bitter quarrel in the pugilists' room at the Sherman House last night, in which fists were freely swung and a revolver displayed.

"Fitzsimmons left for New York City today, vowing he was done with Julian for good. The disagreement comes after a series of misunderstandings.

"According to the stories of both men, it grew out of Fitzsimmons's inability to obtain a box at the Lyric Theatre during a crowded period. Julian is interested in the Lyric. The pugilist, it is said, made certain remarks of an uncomplimentary nature concerning the Lyric, and Julian took him to task for it. After a little talk, Julian slapped the big fellow's face, and the fighter swung on his manager's eye, skinning it and raising a slight bump."

Cornell Runners Defeat Yale.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 2.—In a cross-country run over a six-and-one-half-mile course here to-day, the Cornell team defeated the Yale team by a score of 36 points to 19. Capt. Sweet of Cornell won first place. Smith of Yale was the only member of that team who gave Cornell cause to worry. At the first half mile he had second place, Sweet having taken the lead at the start and held it until the finish, covering the distance in 38 minutes and 36 seconds. Capt. Adams of Yale finished, after having run fully half of the distance suffering from cramp.

Another Cable College Chess Match.

Oxford and Cambridge Universities, England, have accepted the challenge of Columbia, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton Universities to play a second chess match by cable. The month of April is agreeable to the English players, and the games will probably be played April 20 and 21. The American team will be named by the representatives of the universities interested after the intercollegiate tournament, which will be held here during the Christmas holidays.

Football Player Injured.

Jacob Wurts, seventeen years old, of 301 West Forty-sixth Street, while participating in a game of football on Manhattan Field yesterday afternoon between the elevens of the New York High School and the High School of the Bronx, was thrown to the ground and his collar bone fractured. He was taken home. Wurts played quarter back on the New York High School team.

Shot an Albino Deer.

While albino deer are less of a rarity than albinos of most of our wild animals, they are by no means common. Albino deer, so called because they have a considerable marking of white in their coats, are not infrequently killed by hunters who visit the Canadian and New Brunswick woods. The best specimen of the true albino deer killed during the season now closing seems to have fallen to the rifle of Oliver Whyte of Boston. Mr. Whyte and three companions found the deer in the Schoodic Lake region about 100 miles from Bangor, Me. They followed the animal for two days, chasing down every report about and trace of the animal, and Mr. Whyte was rewarded by bagging him. The animal was almost entirely white, weighed fully 200 pounds, and had a spread of antlers rather in excess of the ordinary. The head was taken to Bangor and mounted, and an attempt is making to secure it for the Sportsmen's Show, to be held here during the Winter.

Racing Results at Oakland.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—To-day's races at Oakland resulted as follows:

FIRST RACE.—Three-quarters of a mile; selling; maidens. St. Appolinaris, 102 pounds, (Powell,) 3½ to 1, won; Furia, 102, (Bullman,) 6 to 1, second; Florence Fink, 102, (Morse,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:15½. Del Reta, Jael, Wild Het, Braw Lass, Averne, Vinctora, Midia, and My Dear also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Three-quarters of a mile; selling. Lothian, 102 pounds, (Hegerty,) 4 to 1, won; Rio Chico, 102, (Ruiz,) 4 to 1, second; Anchored, 102, (Ross,) 25 to 1, third. Time—1:15. Marvelot, Bill Howard, Lost Girl, Aluminum, Ballsta, Terence, Whaleback, Sylvan Lass, and Petal also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Mile and a half; selling. Dr. Bernays, 102 pounds, (Vittatoe,) 4 to 6, won; Meadowthorpe, 110, (Bullman,) 8 to 1, second; Billy McCloskey, 102, (Henry,) 6 to 1, third. Time—2:35¾. Coda, Don Vallejo, Granger, and Tom Calvert also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—For two-year-olds; Futurity course; purse. Yellow Tail, 113 pounds, (E. Jones,) 4 to 5, won; Princess Zolka, 105, (Bullman,) 6 to 1, second; Anjou, 108, (Thorpe,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:10⅘. Midday, Bogus Bill, and Artilleryman also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Mile and a sixteenth; handicap. Roseomondo, 100 pounds, (Bullman,) 2½ to 1, won; Rosinante, 105, (Vittatoe,) 2½ to 1, second; Topmast, 107, (Conley,) 4 to 1, third. Time 1:47¾. Dr. Sheppard and Satsuma also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Six furlongs; selling. Sly, 107 pounds, (Bullman,) 30 to 1, won; Moringa, 107, (Thorpe,) 5 to 1, second; Bita H., 107, (Conley,) 5 to 1, third. Time—1:14⅘. Sister Alice, Imperious, Don Luis, Mike Rico, and Peace also ran.

Hawaiian Sugar Interests Growing.

HONOLULU, Nov. 23.—Complete returns from all the island sugar plantations to the Hawaiian Planters' Association show that the crop for the year ending Sept. 30 amounted to 202,807 tons, valued at over $22,500,000. This is an increase of 53,393 tons over the previous year. Estimates indicate that there will be a like increase in next year's crop.

Testing a Cure for Leprosy.

HONOLULU, Nov. 23.—Experiments are to be made with a new cure for leprosy obtained from a Venezuelan shrub, of which samples were forwarded here by Surgeon General Wyman of the United States. The shrubs are growing here under the care of Dr. Carmichael of the United States Marine Hospital service, who has been asked by the department at Washington to make experiments with them.

New Jersey's Supervisor of Bills.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 2.—Jesse R. Salmon of this city was to-day appointed by Gov. Voorhees as Supervisor of Bills, an office created by the last Legislature. The law in question abolishes the offices of Engrossing Clerk of Senate and House, and provides that hereafter "all bills and resolutions requiring the approval of the Governor shall be preserved by the art of printing, and not through being copied or transcribed by the pen."

Street Railway to Pay More Taxes.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 2.—Definite action was taken by the Tax Commissioners to-day to increase the assessment on the property of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, situated within the City of Newark. It is understood the increase of the valuations will be about $2,000,000.

Norwalk Rector Called to Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWALK, Conn., Dec. 2.—The Rev. S. B. Pond, rector of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church of this city, has accepted a call to the rectorship of Christ Church, Chicago.

Arm Blown Off by an Accident.

TUXEDO PARK, Dec. 2.—A young man by the name of Cooper had his left arm blown off at the shoulder to-day by the accidental discharge of his gun.

New York Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The following fourth-class Postmasters were appointed to-day:

NEW YORK—Martindale Depot, Thomas C. Sperd; China, Mary E. Slitar.

SMOKY FIREPLACES
MADE TO DRAW OR NO CHARGE
Examinations and Estimates Free.
References—Wm. W. Astor, Jos. H. Choate, Morris K. Jesup, and many other prominent people.
J. WHITLEY, "Chimney Expert," 215 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Tel. 1613.

CHURCHES TO MAKE A CANVASS.

Will Discover Those Who Do Not Attend Services on Brooklyn Heights.

Under the direction of the Federation of Churches and Christian Workers, and at the request of practically all the churches on Brooklyn Heights, a house-to-house educational and religious canvass of that neighborhood will be begun to-morrow morning. This canvass will be carried on systematically under the direction of experts in the business.

It will be ascertained whether the occupants of each house have any church affiliation, and, if they have, to what denomination they belong. The results will be given to the different ministers according to the past affiliations of those not now attending church.

The canvass is to be in the interest of all the churches on the Heights, and is intended to give the people an opportunity to find the church they may desire to attend.

Sampson Will Speak at Cornell.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 2.—President Schurman has announced that Admiral Sampson will deliver the Founder's Day address at Cornell on Jan. 11 on the navy. This is the fourth Founder's Day address in a series on professions or occupations in life inaugurated by President Schurman.

Killed by a Railroad Train.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Dennis McCue, an Italian laborer, was struck by a freight train on the New York Central Railroad and killed this afternoon at this place.

Ohio Politician Fatally Shot.

JACKSON, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Ben Justice, one of the Trustees of Cole Township, was fatally shot last night at the Comet Mine, near Wallsville, by She

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Gradual Improvement and Broadening of the Market Evident.

SALES SHOW A GOOD VARIETY

Latest Dealings by Brokers—Quality of Offerings Makes Auction Business Dull—This Week's Schedule.

In those who look for an improved real estate market, patience would seem to be a most necessary attribute. As the season advances each week shows a slight increase in the volume of business, as well as a somewhat wider scope in the character of dealings, but the transition is so gradual that the improvement from week to week is often questionable. That the market is gathering strength all the time, however, there is little doubt, and even with the Thanksgiving Day interruption the transactions of the last few days make up a list that is far from discouraging.

The announcement of the organization of the Alliance Realty Company was among the significant events of the week. The field which the new company expects to occupy was pretty clearly defined at the time of the organization of the Central Realty, Bond and Trust Company, of which the new concern is an offshoot. But with the incorporation of the Alliance Company the scheme of the purchase, development, and operation of valuable properties such as few individuals could or would handle will be put to an immediate and thorough test—perhaps not a test, for the soundness of the principles on which the plan is based is everywhere conceded. It is as safe to say, however, that the new concern will be a party to some of the largest transactions in Manhattan realty, its operation at Broad Street and Exchange Place, concerning which fuller details may be expected any day, promising a very creditable start.

Vacant property again figured in the week's business to a noticeable extent. After the collapse of negotiations a few months ago for the sale of Archibald Watt's block—Seventh and Lexington Avenues, One Hundred and Forty-second and One Hundred and Forty-third Street—fourteen lots on the Seventh Avenue and One Hundred and Forty-second Street corner were sold on Friday. It is understood that Daniel E. Seybel's purchase of eight lots on the north side of Sixty-seventh Street, east of Columbus Avenue, is part of a scheme involving considerable adjoining property.

Russell Sage sold early in the week the northwest corner of Central Park West and Sixty-seventh Street, but the transaction may bear no relation to Mr. Seybel's purchase. The deal covering the Tiffany and Cook lots at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street will perhaps become interesting when the buyer's name is known.

Sales of business property included 80 Warren Street, 77 and 79 Bleecker Street, and 40 to 44 West Fourth Street—the latter for improvement. Rumor made another attempt to sell the Madison Square Presbyterian Church property to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, but was thwarted by the officials of the latter, who say that at present they are not even negotiating for the parcel. According to the latest authentic reports the deal for the Orphan Asylum block is in statu quo.

Latest Sales by Brokers.

Douglas, Robinson & Co. have sold for Addison Thomas the two old dwellings 77 and 79 Bleecker Street, 100 feet west of Broadway, 35.8 by 100. The buyer is said to be the owner of abutting property on Broadway.

Douglas, Robinson & Co. have also sold to D. R. Kendall the dwelling 28 East Twentieth Street.

J. Romaine Brown & Co. and F. E. Barnes have sold for the Chesebrough estate the four-story dwelling 119 East Thirty-first Street.

Adelson & Stone have bought the old buildings 140 and 142 East Seventeenth Street, 25 by 90.

D. H. Scully has sold for Mrs. L. E. Smith the five-story flat 28 West One Hundred and Eighteenth Street, 25 by 100.

The estate of Henry Keine has sold the two six-story tenements 74 and 76 East Third Street, 50 by 100.9.

William R. Mason has sold for John A. Murray, to Caleb A. Hines, 356 West Thirty-first Street, a three-story brick dwelling, for about $15,000.

Edward Polak has sold for William Wainwright, to Elizabeth Dwyer, the new two-family house at 597 Union Avenue.

Alois Gutwillig has sold the three four-story dwellings 243, 245, and 247 West One Hundred and Second Street.

George Schreimer has sold to Peter F. Downey the two five-story tenements 338 and 340 East Twenty-second Street, each 25 by 100.

The Auction Room.

Several improved parcels on Third Avenue, One Hundred and Sixty-first Street, and Cauldwell Avenue, sold by Auctioneer Wells, by order of the executors of the Decker estate, found buyers at fair figures and furnished practically the only business in the salesroom aside from a few uninteresting foreclosures. Auctioneer Harpett had announced executors' sales of properties on Sixth, Lenox, and Madison Avenues, which, however, resulted only in withdrawals.

Future schedules continue to show indifferent quality, and that for this week promises few exciting developments. On Tuesday, Philip A. Smyth will put up the dwelling 356 West Fifty-seventh Street and John N. Golding that at 11 West Twentieth Street. No. 497 Broome Street will be offered by Auctioneer Ingraham at executor's sale on the same day. William M. Ryan will sell 29 and 31 Ridge Street in partition on Thursday, and among the properties to be sold under foreclosure are the seven-story building 64 Grand Street, near Wooster Street, and 33 Bowery.

There were recorded last week 308 mortgages, for $3,894,490, of which 115, for $1,285,960, were at 5 per cent.; 121, for $1,136,510, were at more, and 72, for $1,472,020, were at less. In the corresponding week last year there were recorded 404 mortgages, for $5,637,481, of which 145, for $2,053,112, were at 5 per cent.; 172, for $1,537,169, were at more, and 87, for $2,047,200, were at less.

AUCTION SALES THIS WEEK.

To Take Place at 111 Broadway, Unless Otherwise Specified.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.—By John N. Golding, foreclosure sale, Chase Mellen, referee, 1,088 Jennings Street, south side, 94.6 feet west of Stebbins Avenue, 22.5 by 77.3 by 26.4 by 63.9, two-story brick dwelling. Due on judgment, $4,327.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Henry Hoyt, referee, 225 East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Street, north side, 254.6 feet east of Third Avenue, 17 by 99.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $13,169.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.—By Philip A. Smyth, public auction sale, 356 West Fifty-seventh Street, south side, about 115 feet east of Ninth Avenue, 16.8 by 100.5, four-story brownstone-front dwelling.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Edward J. Gavegan, referee, 7 and 9 Abingdon Square, begins at the northeast corner of Bleecker Street and Eighth Avenue, runs northeast along Eighth Avenue 44.11 by southeast 40 by east 17.2 by south 25.5 by west 76.9 to Bleecker Street by north 27.7, seven-story brick flat, with stores. Due on judgment, $77,275.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Eugene H. Pomeroy, referee, 332 East Thirty-eighth Street, south side, 200 feet west of First Avenue, 25 by 98.2, five-story brick tenement. Due on judgment, $20,088.

By John N. Golding, trustee's sale, 11 West Twentieth Street, north side, 273.6 feet west of Fifth Avenue, 18.6 by 92, four-story brownstone-front dwelling.

By Bryan L. Kennelly, foreclosure sale, Henry P. McGown, referee, 102 West One Hundred and Ninth Street, south side, 100 feet west of Columbus Avenue, 25 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $21,892.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Henry P. Griffin, referee, Monroe Avenue, Twenty-fourth Ward, east side, 300 feet north of Columbia Avenue, 25 by 100, two-story frame dwelling. Due on judgment, $2,867.

By D. Phoenix Ingraham & Co., executor's sale, 497 Broome Street, south side, 20.10 feet east of West Broadway, 20.10 by 64.8, four-story brick building.

By D. Phoenix Ingraham & Co., foreclosure sale, Carlos C. Alden, referee, 66 West Ninety-third Street, south side, 80.10 feet east of Columbus Avenue, 19.2 by 100.8, five-story one-front flat. Due on judgment, $18,926.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Augustus Van Wyck, referee, 156 and 158 West Ninety-eighth Street, south side, 230 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue, each 20 by 100.11, two five-story brick flats. Due on judgment, on each, $21,104.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Charles D. Olendorf, referee, 312 and 314 East Ninety-first Street, south side, 200 feet east of Second Avenue, each 25 by 100.8, two five-story brick flats. Due on judgment, on each, $3,887; subject to other mortgages, on each, for $17,000.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Morris Cukor, referee, Thirteenth Street, William's Bridge, north side, 171.8 feet east of Second Avenue, 33.4 by 114, two-story frame dwelling. Due on judgment, $2,850.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Thomas J. Sandford, referee, 8 Seventh Street, Wakefield, north side, 77.6 feet east of Second Avenue, 27.8 by 103, two-story frame dwelling. Due on judgment, $2,384.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.—By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Morris Cukor, referee, One Hundred and Fifty-ninth Street, north side, 98 feet west of Courtlandt Avenue, 50 by 101, vacant. Due on judgment, $9,956.

By Bryan L. Kennelly, foreclosure sale, Myron H. Oppenheim, referee, 64 Grand Street, north side, 75 feet west of Wooster Street, 25 by 100, seven-story brick building. Due on judgment, $8,221; subject to another mortgage for $20,000.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., executor's sale, 323 West Fifty-first Street, north side, 300 feet west of Tenth Avenue, 25 by 100.5, four-story brick and stone tenement.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Charles D. Olendorf, referee, 507 West Twenty-seventh Street, north side, 125 feet west of Tenth Avenue, 25 by 98.9, six-story brick tenement, with stores. Due on judgment, $3,995; subject to other mortgages for $23,000.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Nelson J. Waterbury, referee, 1,513 Madison Avenue, east side, 26.11 feet north of One Hundred and Third Street, 20 by 70, five-story brick single flat. Due on judgment, $16,912.

By E. H. Ludlow & Co., public auction sale, 301 West Twelfth Street, north side, 94.6 feet east of Hudson Street, 23 by 80, four-story brick dwelling.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7.—By William M. Ryan, partition sale, Herbert S. Ogden, referee, 29 and 31 Ridge Street, west side, 61.6 feet south of Broome Street, 40 by 75, two three-story brick tenements, with stores. Subject to mortgages for $16,800.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Edward W. S. Johnston, referee, 124 to 130 West One Hundred and Eighteenth Street, south side, 275 feet west of Lenox Avenue, each 20 by 100.11, four three-story stone-front dwellings. Due on judgment, on each, $19,278.

By D. Phoenix Ingraham & Co., foreclosure sale, Arthur D. Truax, referee, 126 East Eighty-fourth Street, south side, 67.2 feet west of Lexington Avenue, 25.6 by 102.2, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $2,416; subject to another mortgage for $15,175.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Lansing W. Walsh, referee, 33 Bowery, east side, 25 feet north of Bayard Street, 25 by 81.4 and irregular, six-story stone-front building. Due on judgment, $34,826.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Frank M. Holahan, referee, 58 West One Hundred and Fourth Street, south side, 227.4 feet east of Columbus Avenue, 23.4 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $40,645.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, William L. Turner, referee, 598 Courtlandt Avenue, east side, 148 feet north of One Hundred and Fiftieth Street, 29.8 by 100, five-story brick flat, with stores. Due on judgment, $23,644.

By John T. Boyd, foreclosure sale, Louis Hanneman, referee, Brook Avenue, east side, 286 feet south of One Hundred and Sixty-eighth Street, 75.3 by 104.5 by 75 100.6, three four-story brick flats. Due on judgment, $6,174; subject to other mortgage for $19,916.

FRIDAY, DEC. 8.—By L. J. Phillips & Co., foreclosure sale, J. P. Solomon, referee, 319 West One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Street, north side, 275 feet west of Eighth Avenue, 25 by 99.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $15,912.

By William Kennelly, foreclosure sale, David R. Daly, referee, 861 and 863 Elton Avenue, west side, 50 feet north of One Hundred and Sixtieth Street, 50 by 100, two four-story brick flats. Due on judgment, $2,869; subject to other mortgages for $20,000.

By Herbert A. Sherman, foreclosure sale, Charles G. F. Wahle, referee, 57 and 59 Ann Street, north side, 144 feet west of William Street, 28 by 122.11 and irregular, four and five story brick factory buildings. Due on judgment, $50,731.

By Herbert A. Sherman, foreclosure sale, John M. Stoddard, referee, 147 West One Hundred and Eighth Street, north side, 250 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue, 25 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $19,396.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., sale by order of the Sheriff, 125 Columbus Avenue, west side, 102 feet north of Eightieth Street, 25.6 by 100, leasehold, one-story frame building; all title and interest of John Thomas on Dec. 19, 1893.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Wilber McBride, referee, 575 Mott Avenue, west side, 50 feet south of One Hundred and Fiftieth Street, 25 by 98, four-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $12,388.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, John J. McCauley, referee, Mosholu Parkway, south side, the block front between Decatur and Hull Avenues, being 246.9 on the parkway, 50 feet on Decatur Avenue, and 122.7 feet on Hull Avenue, vacant. Due on judgment, $993; subject to another mortgage for $6,500.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Jacob Marks, referee, Railroad Avenue, Unionport, north side, extending from Washington to Jackson Street, 21.6 by 265, two-story frame building, with hall. Due on judgment, $2,225; subject to another mortgage for $7,000.

THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

List of Plans Filed for New Structures and Alterations.

St. Nicholas Avenue, west side, 118.5 feet north of One Hundred and Thirteenth Street, for a seven-story brick and stone flat, with stores; Gundlach & Koch of 204 East Sixteenth Street, owners; John Hauser, architect; cost, $140,000.

Ogden Avenue, east side, and Nelson Avenue, west side, 100 feet north of Kemp Place, for twelve two-story and basement frame dwellings, 21.4 by 45; J. H. Jones of 117 Woody Crest Avenue, owner; J. W. Limer of 2,557 Third Avenue, architect; cost, $57,000.

Bathgate Avenue, northeast corner of One Hundred and Eightieth Street, for two three-story frame dwellings, with store, 24.5 by 116; Edwards & Blanchard of 2,233 Bathgate Avenue, owners; H. A. Kapp, architect; cost, $7,000.

No. 613 Sixth Street, for a six-story and basement brick flat, with store, 25 by 77.10; Lowenfeld & Prager, owners; G. F. Pelham, architect; cost, $25,000.

Nos. 972 and 974 Union Avenue, for two three-story frame tenements, 21.4 by 61.3 and 18.6 by 72.8; Serena Clark of 970 Union Avenue, owner; E. R. Will, architect; cost, $9,000.

Seventeenth Street, southeast corner of Livingston Place, for a seven-story brick flat, 53 by 107; Polstein & Cohen, owners; M. Bernstein, architect; cost, $150,000.

One Hundred and Forty-first Street, south side, 525 feet east of Lenox Avenue, for a one-story frame shop, 25 by 99.11; Mary G. Pinkney, owner; C. A. Leonardi, architect; cost, $850.

Alterations.

No. 40 West Eighteenth Street, to a three-story brick office building; F. S. Phillips, owner; H. W. Nelson, architect; cost, $150.

Nos. 255 and 257 West Seventy-first Street, to a three-story brick dwelling; N. J. Davis, premises, owner; A. T. Mackey & Co., architect; cost, $800.

Main Street, west side, 50 feet south of Orchard Street, a two-story frame dwelling; Mrs. C. L. Bryant, City Island, owner; Samuel E. Bell, architect; cost, $750.

Nos. 25 and 29 West Nineteenth Street, to a four-story brick house; estate of Emilia Wheeler, owner; M. F. Campbell, architect; cost, $75.

No. 587 Eleventh Avenue, to a four-story brick building; Annie Wittemore, owner; William J. Diltbey of 1 Union Square, architect; cost, $350.

No. 257 Canal Street, to a six-story brick store and lofts; Mathew Clarkson of 15 West One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, owner; W. E. Bloodgood, architect; cost, $750.

No. 22 West Twenty-second Street, to a four-story and basement brick store and office building; estate of T. F. Clarkson of 17 West Tenth Street, owner; H. E. Ficken, architect; cost, $1,200.

Nos. 151 and 153 West Seventieth Street, to a four-story brick and stone dwelling; estate of T. W. Bracker of 30 Broad Street, owner; J. A. Hays of 1,123 Broadway, architect; cost, $560.

No. 147 Thompson Street, to a three-story and basement brick dwelling; the Rev. A. De Angelis of 151 Thompson Street, owner; P. M. Coco of 8 Union Square, architect; cost, $2,000.

Malting Company's Big Mortgage.

The American Malting Company placed on record yesterday a mortgage for $5,000,000, to secure a bond issue for that amount and covering its property on the East River, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth Streets; on Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets, near First Avenue, and also holdings in Brooklyn, Syracuse, Rondout, Buffalo, and Erie. The mortgagees named in the instrument are Walter G. Oakman and George R. Turnbull, acting as trustees.

Recorded Real Estate Transfers.

Saturday, Dec. 2.

BROOME ST, 82, n e corner of Columbia St, 25x87; William Tubridy to Morris Weinstein 1

BROOME ST, n e corner of Pitt St, 55x44.8; Angeline C. I. Anderson and another to Nathan Silverson 100

GILES PLACE, e s, Lots 36, 37, 38, 39, map of property of William Q. Giles; Catharine C. Giles to Alfred L. Roy ... 1

GREENWICH ST, 4, w s, 30.6x irregular; Ellen R. Lynch to Daniel J. Lynch 1

HOE ST, e s, 79.1 ft s of Home St, 25x100; Alicia M. Reynolds to Mary A. Colazzi 1

LIVINGSTON PLACE, s e corner of 16th St, 17.6x84; Harris Mandelbaum and another to Joseph Polstein 1

MADISON AV, 1,883, n e corner of 122d St, 20.11x100; Michael Feeney to Agnes B. Wynne and another 100

MORRIS ST, s e corner of Central Av, 85.11x125x116x128.8; William E. Brooker and another to John M. Blauvelt 100

RIDER AV, w s, 275 ft n of 135th St, 150x100; Emil Robitzek to Gustavus Robitzek and another, ½ part 1

RIDGE ST, 152, e s, 27x100; Louis Sroka to Abraham Goldberg 27,250

TRINITY AV, 872, n e corner of 161st St, 25x88.7; Trinity Av, 874, e s, 25.8x100; Gustavus Robitzek to Edward Robitzek, ½ part 1

WALLES AV, s w corner of 152d St, runs w 255x s 141.8x e 255x n —; Emil Robitzek to Gustavus Robitzek and another, ½ part 1

WASHINGTON AV, n w corner of 155th St, 25x99.6; Paul Mayer to John T. Dooling 100

2D AV, 1,830, w s, 25x96; Henry Feldmann to John Yule 1

2D AV, s e corner of 102d St, 25.11x100; Henry Feldmann to Amelia M. Wheaton. 1

10TH ST, 442 to 446, s s, 69.8 ft w of Avenue D, 70.1x92.3x irregular; Michael Fay and another to Hiram Rinaldo and another, executors, &c $1,750

33D ST, s s, 330 ft w of 8th Av, 60x98.9; Frederick W. Meyer to John L. Montag. 1

90TH ST, 121 East, 25x100.8; Pauline Tarerner to Louis Frankenthaier 1

92D ST, 325 East, 25x100.8; Mary Briel to Gertrude Brtel 1

100TH ST, s s, 123.3 ft w of Park Av, 100x100.11; George W. Arthur to German Real Estate Title Guarantee Company. 1

104TH ST, 202 East, 20x50.5; Samuel Altheimer to Michael Haas 7,000

115TH ST, s s, 200 ft e of Amsterdam Av, 100x100.11; John Yule to Henry Feldmann 1

116TH ST, 129 West, 25x100.11; Arlington C. Hall to Frank Becker, Jr. 1

135TH ST, s s, 181.6 ft e of Alexander Av, 19.2x100; Emil Robitzek to Gustavus Robitzek, ½ part 1

136TH ST, n s, 166.8 ft e of Willis Av, 16.8x100; Emil Robitzek and another to Gustavus Robitzek 1

144TH ST, 503 West, 16.8x½ block; 144th St, 515 West, 16.8x½ block; Edgar Logan to Gussie H. Raymond 1

146TH ST, s s, 100 ft e of Brook Av, 50x100; Emil Robitzek and another to Gustavus Robitzek, ½ part 1

Recorded Leases.

HYMAN, Moses, and another to Antonia Verderosa; 2d Av, 2,081 and 2,083, 10 5-12 years 2,040

BEYER, George H., to William Z. Johnson and another; 9th Av, 285, 287, and 283, about 3 years ..... $18,000 to $20,000

CRAWFORD, Mary T., individually and executrix, to Robert Mitchell; 6th Av, 116, and 73 West 9th St, 5 years 1,825

PENTZ, Mary E., to Eugene Arnstein; 75th St, 16 East, 2 years 2,700

Recorded Mortgages.

AMERICAN MALTING COMPANY to Walter G. Oakman and George R. Turnbull, trustees; Avenue A, e s, 63d to 64th St, extending to river; 47th St, n s, 400.4 ft e of 1st Av, 74.8x200.10 to 48th St x75x irregular; 47th St, s s, 60 ft e of 1st Av; 61st St, s s, 125 ft e of 2d Av; 48th St, n s, 375 ft e of 1st Av, extends to river, with land under water, &c; also land in Brooklyn, Syracuse, South Rondout, Buffalo, Erie, N. Y., &c, secures gold bonds 5,000,000

ARNOUX, Clementine W., to Robert T. Meeks; 20th St, s s, 166 ft w of 2d Av, leasehold, demand 2,500

BEYER, Meyer, to Bernhard Hermann; 140th St, s s, 127.9 ft e of St. Ann's Av, ½ year 2,000

BECKER, Frank, jr., to Frank Johnson; 129 West 116th St, 5 years 20,000

RINSCHLER, Anton, to the Harlem Savings Bank; Willis Av, w s, 118 ft s of Tremont Av, 1 year 5,000

BLAUVELT, John M., to Frederick W. Pitcher; Morris St, s e corner of Central Av, 1 year 3,000

BROWN, Henry, to Harold M. Sill and another, trustees; 232 East 114th St, 5 years 21,000

BROWN, Henry, to Augustus F. Holly; 234 East 114th St, 5 years 21,000

CHILTON, Mary S., to the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church in United States of America; 125 5th Av, 2 years 65,000

DONEHUE, Josephine, to Provident Savings Loan and Investment Company; Tinton Av, e s, 242.7 ft s of 166th St, installments, (two mortgages) 6,600

DOTY, Ellsworth E., and wife to Provident Savings Loan and Investment Company; Marrin St, n s, at s w s of Fort Schuyler Road, 10 years 2,400

DOTY, Ellsworth E., and wife to Provident Savings, Loan, and Investment Company; Marrin St, n s, at s w s of Fort Schuyler Road, installments 3,300

FELDMAN, Henry, to John Yule; 115th St, s s, 200 ft e of Amsterdam Av, 3 years 6,000

GOLDBERG, Abraham, to Louis Sroka; 132 Ridge St, 3 years 1,350

GOLDSTEIN, Hussman, to Allen L. and Benjamin Mordecai; 124th St, s s, 200 ft e of Amsterdam Av, demand 10,000

HAAS, Samuel, to Louis Goldberg; 133 East 47th St, installments 4,000

HAAS, Samuel, to Joseph Blau; 133 East 47th St, 2 years 9,500

HAHN, Viola, to Hyman Marks; 133 and 135 Prince St, 3 years 32,500

HOLLY, Emma C. and John I., to Produce Exchange Building and Loan Association; 9, 515, and 465 3d Av, 370 Pearl St, 430 and 432 Grand St, 66 East 3d St, and 10-foot alley in rear of 15 and 17 Lewis St, 1-3 part of all, 1 year 7,718

JOHNPOLE, Samuel, and Harry L. Weis to Ely Greenblatt; 89th St, s s, 500 ft w of Columbus Av, demand 5,000

KATZ, Max J., to Samuel D. Tomback; 1181 St, n s, 360 ft e of Lenox Av, demand 1,000

KINGSTON, John H., to Thomas Carroll; Fulton Av, w s, 163.11 ft s of 167th St, 3 years 10,000

LE ROY, Alfred, to Title Guarantee and Trust Company; Lots 36, 37, 38, and 39, map of William O. Giles, 24th Ward, 3 years 5,000

LYNCH, Daniel J., to Thomas D. Miller; Greenwich St, 4, 3 years 3,000

MANDELSTEIN, Morris, to John Simmons Company; 100th St, n e corner of Park Av, 2 years 6,000

MANDELSTEIN, Morris, to John Simmons Company; 100th St, n s, 86 ft e of Park Av, 2 years 4,000

MANDELSTEIN, Morris, to John Simmons Company; 100th St, n s, 28 ft e of Park Av, 2 years 4,000

MANHEIM, Jacob, to Allen L. and Benjamin Mordecai; Henry St, s w corner of Clinton St, collateral security 10,000

MONTAG, John L., to Frederick W. Meyer; 33d St, s s, 330 ft w of 8th Av, 1 year 17,250

MORRONE, Frank, to William L. Flanagan, as Managing Director; Hoffman St, w s, being n ½ of Lot 106 and s ½ of Lot 107, map of the heirs of William Powell, Fordham, demand 1,500

PETERS, Henry H., jr., to Charles C. Worthington; 283 and 285 7th Av, 5 years 90,000

POLSTEIN, Joseph, to Harris Mandelbaum and another; Livingston Place, s e corner of 16th St, 1 year 8,500

POLSTEIN, Joseph, to Samuel H. Stone; Livingston Place, e s, 17.6 ft s of 16th St, 1 year 4,500

RAYMOND, Russie B., to Edgar Logan; 144th St, n s, 84 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 3 months 1,000

SCHWARZLER, Amelia, to Duane S. Everson; 173d St, s s, 150 ft e of Webster Av, 1 year 3,000

SILVERSON, Nathan, to the Park Mortgage Company; Broome St, n e corner of Pitt St, 1 year 28,500

SILVERSON, Nathan, to Rebecca Cohn and another; Broome St, n e corner of Pitt St, 1 year 5,650

VARIAN, James A., to Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company; Becker Av, n corner of Fulton St, 1 year 5,000

WHEATON, Amelia M., to John Yule; 2d Av, s e corner of 102d St, ½ year 14,000

Assignments of Mortgages.

BARR, John C., to Isabella G. Francis.. 4,500

JOHNSON, Frank, to William H. Hall, (2 assignments) 2,900

McGUIRE, Thomas J., to Bernard Tielemann 3,000

PETERSON, Charles, to Louis Brandt and another 1,000

POLLACK, Hattie, to Title Guarantee and Trust Company 9,500

RICHTER, Daniel, to Hattie Pollack.. ....

ROBITZEK, Gustavus and Emil, to Edward Robitzek, (5 assignments) ..... Nom.

TOMBACK, Samuel D., to Dimock & Fink Company ..... Nom.

UNIVERSITY REAL ESTATE COMPANY to Title Guarantee and Trust Company. 32,000

WEINBERG, Abraham, and another to Louis Manheim ..... Nom.

Mechanics' Liens.

AMSTERDAM AV, s w corner of 86th St, 100x100; Jacob Du Bois against Mark E. Stevens and Arthur C. Searles, owners and contractors $5,100

AMSTERDAM AV, s w corner of 86th St, 100x100; Jacob Du Bois against Mark E. Stevens and Arthur C. Searles, owners and contractors 3,500

BLEECKER ST, n s, 25 ft e of West Broadway, 25x60; Joseph McCarty against Joseph O. Clement, owner; Kelly & Murray, contractors 18

LEXINGTON AV, s e corner of 129th St, 100x100; Jacob S. Haft against Isaac L. Smith, owner; Johnson & Peterson, contractors 440

8TH ST, 319 to 325 East; John W. Rapp against George Hoffmann, owner and contractor 300

54TH ST, 147 to 153 East; John Kelly against Rosamond Herter, owner and contractor 3,000

92D ST, s w corner of Lexington Av, 30x100; the Eastern Hydraulic Press Brick Company against John Welcker, owner and contractor 500

Lis Pendens.

ESSEX ST, w s, Lot 109, map of the Leanderts farm, 17th Ward, 24.8x87.6; Martin Storz against Isaac Greenman and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, J. Wilkenfeld.

HARTLEY, Isaac, 33; Harriet Bartlett and others, executors, &c, against Robert Kelly and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorneys, Wells & Andrews.

LOTS 348, 363, 365, and 366, on map of the Arden property, East and West Chester; Matilda Fraser against William Herod, four actions, (foreclosure of four mortgages;) attorneys, Miller & Hartcorn.

MURRAY STREET PIER and the Barclay Street Pier; also all title to old Piers 25 and 28, N. R.; Arthur Smith against Frederick W. Rhinelander and others, (partition;) attorneys, Wells & Snedeker.

SPRING ST, s w corner of Mott St, 25.7x98.7x 25.1x93.9; Isabella M. Embury against John G. Norris and others, (amended foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, A. Embury.

SPRING ST, s s, Lots 904 and 906, on map of Bayard's east farm, 50.3x irregular; Virginia Glaser against Henry C. Glaser, individually and as executor, and others, (partition;) attorney, D. M. Neuberger.

VANDERBILT AV EAST, e s, 305 ft s of 171st St, 25x150.6; Isabella G. Francis against Edward D. Bertine and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorneys, Merrill & Rogers.

VANDERBILT AV EAST, e s, 290 ft s of 171st St, 15x150.5;, Elihu Thomson against Edward D. Bertine and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorneys, Merrill & Rogers.

3D AV, e s, 125 ft n of 171st St, 100x100; Felix Angelora against John C. Rodgers, (foreclosure of mechanic's lien;) attorney, B. J. Kelly.

1ST ST, e s, Lot 1,157, on map of village of Wakefield, one-quarter acre; Catherine E. Allison against Sarah McLight and others, (partition;) attorney, C. R. Allison.

50TH ST, n s, 546 ft w of 5th Av, 15x100; Edward H. Landon against Hugh H. Hagan and others, (amended foreclosure of two mortgages;) attorney, J. S. Darcy.

90TH ST, 44 and 46 West, and 35 West 98th St; John H. Stores against Peter G. Arnot and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorneys, Phillips & Avery.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

CASH PRICES FOR STAPLES.

Wheat, No. 2 red	.72¾
Corn, No. 2 mixed	.40¼
Oats, No. 2 mixed	.30
Flour, Minnesota patents	$3.90
Cotton, middling	.07¾
Coffee, No. 7 Rio	.07
Sugar, granulated	5.18
Molasses, O. K. prime	.36
Beef, family	12.75
Beef hams	24.00
Tallow, prime	.04¾
Pork, mess	9.25
Hogs, dressed, 100 lb	.05¾
Lard, prime	5.45
Iron, Northern No. 1 foundry	23.00
Butter, Western creamery	.27

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Flour, easy; Winter patents, $3.40@$3.50; straights, $3.@$3.20; clears, $2.90@$3.10; Spring specials, $3.90; patents, $3.20@$3.50; straights, $2.70@$3; baker's, $1.90@$2.10; No. 3 Spring wheat, 58@64c; No. 2 red, 66@66½c; No. 2 corn, 30¼@30¼c; No. 2 yellow corn, 30¼@34c; No. 2 oats, 22¾@23c; No. 2 white, 23¾c; No. 3 white, 24½@25½c; No. 2 rye, 49c; No. 2 barley, 37½@43c; No. 1 flax seed, $1.39; No. 1 Northwestern, $1.39; prime timothy seed, $2.60; mess pork, per bbl, $7.70@$8.50; lard, per 100 lb, $4.90@$5.10; short ribs sides, (loose,) $4.85@$5.15; dry-salted shoulders, (boxed,) 5¾@5¾c; short clear sides, (boxed,) $5.20@$5.30; whisky, high wines, per gallon, $1.23¾; clover, contract grade, $7.75@$8.05.

COTTON.—There was every promise when the market opened that the bull forces would score signal further gains, inasmuch as the cable news averaged up better than anticipated, the crop movement was light, while practically all data from the belt pointed to hardening views in spot markets, and a better feeling generally. Shorts were uneasy, and as soon as the market opened sought cover with something of a rush. Room bulls purchased the Spring and Summer months confidently. This combined demand, in conjunction with straggling orders from the south of Liverpool, sent prices up 3 to 5 points. Failure of Wall Street to come in on the upturn caused hesitation in the bull ranks soon after the opening, and, as matter of precaution, smaller holders began quietly to unload. The local market for spot cotton was quiet and lower, with the basis of 7¾c for middling upland and 8c for middling gulf. There were no sales. Southern markets were reported firm, with prices unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
December	7.40	7.41	7.40	7.40@7.41
January	7.57	7.58	7.46	7.47@7.48
February	7.51	7.52	7.49	7.49@7.50
March	7.62	7.67	7.51	7.51@7.52
April	7.63	7.63	7.54	7.52@7.53
May	7.66	7.67	7.54	7.54@7.55
June	7.67	7.68	7.53	7.54@7.55
July	7.67	7.67	7.54	7.55@7.57
August	7.63	7.63	7.52	7.52@7.53
September	7.18	7.18	7.16	7.06@7.10
October	7.01	7.01	7.01	6.92@6.94

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 2.—Spot cotton quiet; sales, 8,000 bales; speculation and export, 500 bales; American, 6,000 bales; receipts, 16,000 bales; American, 6,000 bales. Middling upland, 4 13-32d. Futures opened steady, buyers 1 point higher; closed steady, 2@3½ points net higher. December-January, 4.14s; January-February, 4.12b; February-March, 4.10½b; March-April, 4.09½s; April-May, 4.08b; May-June, 4.07b; June-July, 4.06b; July-August, 4.05½s; August-September, 4.02½s; September-October, 3.58, nominal; December, 4.16v.

WOOL.—LONDON, Dec. 2.—At the wool auction sales to-day 12,701 bales were offered. The utmost animation prevailed. Prices hardened 5 per cent. for the finest clips, and those taken for America were in the same condition and warranted the advance. Queensland and Geelong merinos were included in the well-grown greasies, suitable for America, which took freely. England, France, Germany, and Russia participating in the buying. Of coarse breds there was a large supply at hardening prices, largely bought for the home trade. French and Americans were eager buyers. The sale in detail was as follows: New South Wales, 70 obales; scoured, 1s 2¼d@2s 1½d; greasy, 6½d@1s 6d. Queensland, 3,100 bales; scoured, 1s 10½d@2s; greasy, 11½d@1s 3½d. Victoria, 1,700 bales; scoured, 9½d@17d; greasy, 5¾d@1s 5½d. South Australia, 600 bales; scoured, 2s ½d@2s 2d; greasy, 9¼d@1s 1¼. West Australia, 800 bales; greasy, 8d@1s 1½d. New Zealand, 5,400 bales; scoured, 6¼d@2s ½d; greasy, 6¼d@1s 1½d. Cape of Good Hope and Natal, 400 bales; scoured, 1s 10d@1s 10½d; greasy, 9½d@1s 1½d. The offerings for next week's sales number 71,500 bales. The arrivals for the series were 45,472, of which 8,000 were forwarded direct. The imports during the week were as follows: New South Wales, 10,319 bales; Queensland, 10,325 bales; Melbourne, 5,178 bales; South Australia, 9,496 bales; Port Victor, 1,181 bales; Cape of Good Hope and Natal, 8,826 bales, and elsewhere, 611 bales. A sale of sheep skins is scheduled for Dec. 14.

FUTURES.

NEW YORK PRICES.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
Wheat—
December	70 7-16	71⅛	70 7-16	70⅞
May	73 13-16	74⅛	73¾	73⅞
Corn—
December	....	....	....	38
May	38⅜	38⅜	38¼	38¼

CHICAGO PRICES.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
Wheat

HOW WING SHOT CHAMPION.

J. A. R. Elliott, the Kansan Expert, Wins the Title and Trophy by Defeating Doty.

J. A. R. Elliott, the Kansas City expert wing shot, defeated Aaron T. Doty of Paterson, N. J., in the 100-bird match for the Republic Cup, a trophy representing the championship of America, and $100 a side. The match was decided yesterday afternoon at the traps of the Lyndhurst Gun Club, and the score at the finish stood, ninety-one kills for Elliott and eighty-one for his younger opponent. Of the birds returned as misses, Elliott grassed two dead out of bounds and Doty one.

The match was shot in the presence of 250 spectators, among whom were many of the best known wing shots in the country. Among the prominent club members present were Herman B. Duryea, Capt. A. W. Money, and Harold Money of the Cartaret Gun Club, Dr. Thomas Cannon, and Charles Feigenspan of the East Side Gun Club, Herman Otten, Jeannette Gun Club; Edward E. Collins and Charles Hedden, Climax Gun Club; S. M. Van Allen, Emerald Gun Club; J. S. S. Remsen, Crescent Gun Club; Frederick E. Elliott, Kansas City Gun Club; Police Justice Senior of Paterson, Frank Class, and Thomas Morbey.

Elliott led from the start. His opponent went to pieces after the thirty-fifth round. His principal misses were a fast driver that he drew for his tenth, a left quarterer that was his twenty-fourth selection, his fortieth a screaming right driver, and a towering right quartering drive that he drew for his seventieth.

Doty lost his first bird, a right quarterer, dead out of bounds, and his sixth, another fast bird in the same direction. His eleventh, forty-third, forty-sixth, forty-eighth, and sixtieth were all right quarterers. He failed to stop them as they rose from the traps, and as a result they became fast, and some of them twisted completely out of the second load. The hardest bird of the day was a towering straightway driver that Elliott killed just inside the fifty-yard boundary fence amid a salvo of applause. The score:

J. A. R. Elliott, Kansas City, (30 yards:)		K. M.
2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	20 2—23 2
2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 0	22—24 1
2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	24—24 1
2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	0 2 0 2 2 2 2 2 0 2	20—20 5
Total		91 9

A. T. Doty, Paterson, N. J., (30 yards:)
•2 2 2 2 0 2 2 2 2 2	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	23 2
2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 0	2 2 2 2 0 2 0 2 0 2	22—21 4
0 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 0	2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2 2	22 3
0 2 0 0 2 0 2 0 0 2	2 2 2 0 0 2 2 0 2 2	22—15 10
Total		81 19

•Signifies dead out of bounds.

Two sweepstake events, all shooters, at thirty yards, followed the match. The result of the first, five birds, $5 entrance, birds extra, follows: Harold Money, Dr. Cannon, and Jeffrey, 5 each; Morfey, Van Allen, and Lee 4 each; Hefflick, 3, and Capt. Money, 0.

Second event, miss and out, $5 entrance, birds extra: Hefflick and Van Allen, 5 each; Harold Money, 4; Lee, 3, and Morfey, Capt. Money, Cannon, and Jeffrey, 0.

PLANS FOR COLUMBIA.

Departure for Europe Dec. 6 of Mr. and Mrs. Iselin Makes Talk of a Mediterranean Season.

The definite announcement that Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin have fixed the date for their departure for England on Dec. 6, and that their visit abroad will be prolonged over several months, was a fruitful theme for comment among yachtsmen during the past week, and the impression prevails in and about the Madison Avenue clubhouse that he will leave instructions to fit out the Columbia for the Mediterranean season. It is said that he will complete arrangements for her entry into many of the prominent races as soon as he arrives on the other side.

"Mr. Iselin will doubtless meet Sir Thomas Lipton," said a member of the New York Yacht Club, "and it is possible that another series of races between Columbia and Shamrock will be arranged. Credence is given the report that such a series of races may be arranged, for the reason that Commodore J. Pierpont Morgan will spend part of the Winter in Europe, and there will doubtless be a conference between Messrs. Morgan, Iselin, and Lipton."

The Columbia was hauled out on the marine railway at Hawkins's yard, City Island, two weeks ago. She lies alongside the Defender, and a visit to the yard last week showed that preparations were being made to build a roof over her and protect her thoroughly from the inclemency of the weather while she remains there.

As she appears at present a splendid opportunity is offered of comparing her lines with those of Defender, a few feet away. As a whole it must be confessed that the lines of the older boat are more pleasing. The midship section is a continuous "S" curve, with no tangent between the bilge and hollow of the floor. Columbia's bilge is harder than Defender's, and below it is a marked flat to the floor, with a sharp line downward joining it to the fin. A noticeable point of difference between the two boats is the manner in which the fore and aft lines are carried out. In Columbia these lines are much more easy and smooth, those of the counter being especially long and fine. Her whole form is fairer when the speed lines are considered. Columbia's plating is in excellent condition, but the aluminium topsides of Defender again exhibit signs of corrosion.

On the beach beside the two big single stickers are several yachts that have done their share to make history in the sport. Colonia, Navahoe, and Emerald are there snugly stowed away for the Winter, and but a short distance away from these modern flyers is the old cutter Vindex. She is of a type that in its heyday was the subject of sages. She was condemned and sold several years ago, and she was hauled up to await the convenience of her owner in breaking her up which time is close at hand.

Just when the time for fitting out Columbia is arranged cannot be learned, and neither Capt. Barr nor Mr. Iselin will consent to talk on the subject. The rumor prevails, however, at City Island that when the Deer Is and crew was paid off instructions were given to hold themselves in readiness for a call at any time.

AMERICAN BOWLING CONGRESS.

The Annual Assembly Will Be Held in Baltimore, Jan. 9, 1900.

The annual assembly of the American Bowling Congress, organized in 1895 for the purpose of elevating the game, and whose rules have been adopted to govern all the tournaments now in progress throughout the country, will be held in Baltimore on Jan. 9, 1900. All leagues and tournaments have been requested to send three delegates.

In addition to the annual election of officers, several important changes in the rules will be discussed. An attempt will be made to revise the rules so as to eliminate the present custom of the so-called professional bowling, or of a good bowler competing on different teams in the various tournaments. Some of the present cracks are members of three different teams, but are in active membership of but one club, that is, they attend the regular weekly meeting of one club, but never appear with the other club only when its team is scheduled to bowl in some tournament. Those opposed to this custom maintain that it gives some of the tournaments a professional aspect, intimating that these bowlers who are secured for tournament work only do not pay regular dues.

The officers of the American Bowling Congress are: President—Dr. H. Timm, New York City; Vice Presidents—W. V. Thompson, Chicago, and J. J. Clingen, Passaic, N. J.; Corresponding Secretary—Samuel Karpf, Dayton, Ohio; Recording Secretary—Thomas Curtis, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Treasurer—G. P. Strack, Astoria, L. I.; Executive Committee—Julius Meyers, Boston; George P. Weed, Dayton, Ohio; T. C. Johansmeyer, New York; Valentine Theisen, Brooklyn; H. A. Kerr, Brooklyn; J. H. Zwanzger, Baltimore.

TRAP SHOOTING GOSSIP.

John S. Wright, Treasurer of the Brooklyn Gun Club, is arranging the details of an all-day club shoot at live birds at Dexter Park. It will be held Tuesday, Dec. 12.

***

The Emerald Gun Club will not hold its regular monthly shoot at the Dexter Park traps during December. On the day regularly for the club, however, Dec. 19, Mr. Letchworth will give an all-day invitation shoot and will arrange sweepstakes to suit the contestants.

***

A two days' tournament at live birds is scheduled for Dec. 5 and 6 at Rahway, N. J., under the auspices of the Rahway Gun Club. Clarence Lambert will manage the details of the event.

FIGHT MAY END FATALLY.

Italian Partners Quarrel Over Prices and One Is Stabbed.

An Italian partnership in the sale of vegetables caused a possibly fatal quarrel last night. One of the men engaged in the dispute was stabbed in the abdomen and he will probably die. He is Nito Zina, twenty-four years old, of 327 East Eleventh Street. He was stabbed by Antonio Agnona, twenty-one years old, of 151 Elizabeth Street, who escaped. Zina and his brother and Agnona were in the partnership.

The brothers accused Agnona last night at Eleventh Street and First Avenue of trying to undersell them, and a fight started. Agnona stabbed Zina, who fell. Agnona fled. Zina was removed to Bellevue Hospital.

NEW ENGINE IS TOO LARGE.

Monster Erie Locomotive Cannot Enter Chicago's Subway.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The first of the monster Erie engines arrived from Marion, Ohio, and it was found that its smokestack was three inches too high to allow it to pass through the subway under the Western Indiana tracks at Sixteenth Street. It went back to have the stack cut down.

The Erie incident means a great deal to the six tenant railroads using this subway. All the big engines now being built, many of which are more than sixteen feet high, must be cut down if they are to be run into the Dearborn Station. The Erie's big engine is the first of five of the same class and size to go into service soon on the Chicago Division of this line, extending from Chicago to Marion.

EX-STATE SECRETARY ILL.

John Palmer, Stricken Here with Pleurisy, Taken to Albany.

John Palmer, ex-Commander in Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic and ex-Secretary of State, has been suffering at the Grand Union Hotel from a severe attack of pleurisy. For about ten days he was confined to his rooms in the hotel. His home is in Albany, but as he has large business interests in Manhattan, he resides here a good part of the year.

He had had three previous attacks of the grip. On Nov. 22 he was taken ill with pleurisy and went to bed. The next day his condition was worse. Dr. G. L. Kessler, who was called in, pronounced the case serious, and Mrs. Palmer was summoned from Albany. A trained nurse was also called in. The invalid's condition slightly improved and he was removed to his home in Albany on Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Palmer is fifty-seven years old and a native of Stapleton, S. I. He enlisted in the civil war when only nineteen years old and was severely injured at the battle of Five Forks. He was elected Commander in Chief of the Grand Army in 1891 and Secretary of State in 1893 and 1895.

FATHER MALONE SERIOUSLY ILL.

The Rev. Sylvester Malone, pastor of SS. Peter and Paul's Roman Catholic Church, in Brooklyn, is seriously ill at his home, 69 South Third Street. He is over eighty years of age, and has not been in good health of late.

He was to have been one of the speakers at the dinner given the other evening in honor of Register-elect James R. Howe at the Hotel Andrews by the Nineteenth Ward Republican Club and the Amphion Musical Society. At the suggestion of the toastmaster, Henry A. Powell, a former clergyman, a message was sent from the assemblage to Father Malone, telling him of its love and esteem, and expressing the hope for his speedy recovery.

The Rev. James H. Darlington, pastor of Christ Church, said that he had visited Father Malone's sick room, and found evidence that the good priest's long and useful life was about to be completed. On Thanksgiving Day Dr. Darlington in his church offered up prayers for Father Malone's speedy recovery.

CAT CAUSES TENEMENT FIRE.

Mother and Babe and Two Other Persons Are Rescued.

A cat jumping on a window sill and upsetting an oil lamp started a fire last night on the third floor of the four-story tenement at 232 East Third Street. The floor and window curtains were ablaze when Andrew Fancher and his wife, who occupied the apartment, ran into the hall and outdoors, shouting an alarm.

On the floor where the fire started lived Otto Behl and his wife, Sophia, whose child, a day old, was in bed with her. Policeman William Haler sent in an alarm and rushed into the house. He took Mrs. Behl and baby in his arms and carried them to the roof in safety. Both of them had to be taken to Bellevue Hospital.

On the top floor lived Katrina Reed and George Schwab, boarders, and both elderly. The flames prevented them from going down stairs. James Bolzler of 44 East Third Street got to their floor by means of a fire-escape and then guided both of them down in safety to the ground. The fire did not do more than $300 damage. The cat responsible for it has disappeared.

KNOCKED FROM HIS ENGINE.

Painful Injuries Do Not Dull Hoehlein's Sense of Duty.

WHITESTONE, L. I., Dec. 2.—Charles Hoehlein, an engineer on the Long Island Railroad, while running the passenger train which left this place at 11:27 this morning, was knocked from his engine by the breaking of a driving rod, and had a narrow escape from death. The accident occurred between Woodside and Long Island City.

The train was running at the rate of thirty miles an hour, when the driving rod broke, swung around, and smashed through the floor. Hoehlein threw back the lever and put on the brakes. Then he climbed outside of the cab on the guard rail, where he was struck by the flying rod and knocked to the ground.

After going a short distance the train stopped and the trainmen ran back, expecting to find the engineer dead. To their surprise he was alive, and requested the men to help him back to the engine. He was placed in the cab, and under his direction Fireman O'Neil continued the trip to Long Island City.

Hoehlein was assisted to the train dispatcher's office, and from there he was taken aboard a train for this place. When he arrived here Hoehlein visited the office of Dr. Kaufman, who found the engineer had sustained a broken leg and several slight bruises by his fall. Hoehlein lives with his wife and two children at Seventh Avenue and Twelfth Street, Whitestone. He was taken to his residence.

Book Publishing and Book Selling.

From The Philadelphia Press.

The old comfortable idea about a $1.50 book was that it was made for about 75 cents, sold to a jobber for about $1, passed on by him to a retailer for about $1.12, and then, neatly wrapped by itself, with a pleasant remark about the weather thrown in, sold to a waiting customer for $1.50, and he took it home under his arm. To-day the same book is made for about 50 cents; but it is sold to the customer for 90 cents or a dollar, and it is handled by the thousand, delivered to the purchaser, and its sale is only an incident of a vast traffic. More books are sold. Where 5,000 copies were a giddy success, no one begins to talk sales now much under 100,000; but the percentage of success is no bigger and the original risk on the new book is equally big for success or failure. The practical result is that more books have to be sold for the old profit, and the chance of a publisher getting a good book is no better. The "standard classics" have to be sold by the carload to make a profit. There are no stocks which sell year after year. No one can afford to carry them. The fag ends of editions are cleared out as "remainders." The $1.50 book that makes a failure, which was once decorously allowed to die out through the slow sale of 1,000 copies over a decade, is cleared out in fifteen or twenty months, and the able book which the reviewer assured you was worth buying and reading at $1.50 stares you in the face after a year or so in a pile labeled "25 cents."

Cruiser New York in Trim Again.

The cruiser New York, flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron, which has been undergoing repairs at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, is now in trim for any service the Navy Department may assign her to. The North Atlantic Squadron is usually sent South at this time of the year for Winter manoeuvres, but the ships of the squadron are at present so scattered that it is regarded as doubtful that the manoeuvres will be undertaken.

PROFESSIONAL ETHICS.

Connecticut Supreme Court on a Deputy Judge's Appearance as Attorney.

From The Hartford (Conn.) Courant.

The Supreme Court, in its opinion in the case of William H. French against the town of Waterbury, gives expression to its views regarding professional ethics, which will be of interest to every lawyer as well as to many laymen. The opinion is by Judge Hamersley and the rest of the Judges concur.

The point in the case was this: The suit was tried before Judge Cowell in the District Court of Waterbury, and Albert P. Bradstreet, Deputy Judge of the Court, appeared as the attorney for the plaintiff. Greene Kendrick, counsel for the defendant, demurred, and claimed that the Deputy Judge of the Court should not appear as counsel in a case tried in his own court, before his associate, the Judge of the court. The Supreme Court found no error on this account, but in its opinion says:

"The other errors assigned depend on the claim that the Court possessed the power and was charged with the duty of preventing Mr. Bradstreet from acting as attorney in this case. The Court had no such power. It is not claimed that there is any law which forbids an attorney to conduct a case tried before a court of which he is also a member. The claim made is that such conduct, where the Judge presiding at the trial and the attorney trying the case are both Judges of the court, is an impropriety in violation of sound professional ethics. That is true. While it is possible that a Judge may as an attorney try a particular case before his associate Judge without injury to any party, yet if such practice were common, if the two occupants of the bench were in the habit of constant mutual interchange of the relative positions of Judge and attorney, it is obvious that there would be a professional impropriety which might become intolerable.

"It may, therefore, well be considered improper for a Judge in any case to appear as attorney before his own court held by his associates. Thus with that rule of professional ethics which prevents one from acting as witness in a case he is conducting as attorney, a single instance of such conduct might be harmless, but if regarded as allowable the possibilities of injury are great; and so every instance is an impropriety. But such improprieties on the part of an attorney do not of themselves make a mistrial. The law has heretofore considered the restraining influence of a professional education and of the opinion of the bar and bench, and the liability to discipline for persistent misconduct, as competent to suppress evils of this character; and this expectation has ordinarily been fully justified."

The opinion on this phase says the claim that the judge who presided at the trial was disqualified because of his relations to the attorney, his associate on the bench, is unsound. "It certainly would be difficult, perhaps impracticable, to properly provide for the administration of justice if every condition which might tempt the untrained layman to favor one side or the other should be made by law a judicial disqualification. A Judge must be able to follow the line marked out by judicial duty uninfluenced by the side issues that of necessity attend most trials; this ability is of the essence of judicial qualification. If the ability of the Judges in this respect cannot on the whole be trusted, the bench can never be trusted."

Large Sum for School Doctors.

From The Philadelphia Record.

A delegation from the Public Education Association appealed to the Council's Finance Committee Tuesday to make an appropriation of $45,000 to provide daily medical inspection for the school children of the city. The plan provides for about 135 physicians, who will examine the children each day. By this means, it was urged, much sickness on the part of individuals could be prevented and the spread of contagion averted. Chairman Seeds of the Finance Committee suggested that a voluntary service had been spoken of, but this was declared by the delegation to be insufficient. The matter was referred to the sub-committee for examination and report.

What He Is.

"What is a specialist?"

"He's a man who has discovered which of his talents will bring him in the most money."—Chicago Record.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

A. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Sun rises...7:26	Sun sets...7:56	Moon sets.....

High Water This Day.

A. M.	A. M.	A. M.
S. Hook....7:26	Gov. Isl'd...7:45	H. Gate....9:41
P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
S. Hook....7:56	Gov. Isl'd...8:09	H. Gate....10:05

Outgoing Steamships.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Lincoln, Nassau.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Trojan Prince, Azores....	7:00 A. M.	9:00 A. M.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Aller, Bremen.....	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Beverly, Inagua, &c.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Comanche, Charleston.....	.....	3:00 P. M.
El Paso, New Orleans....	.....	3:00 P. M.
Hevelius, Pernambuco, &c.	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Prins Willem IV., Haiti, &c.	10:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Caracas, La Guayra.....	11:00 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Finance, La Guayra.....	9:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Germanic, Liverpool.....	9:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Matanzas, Tampico.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Noordland, Antwerp.....	10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Orizaba, Havara.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Patria, Naples.....	.....	3:00 P. M.
San Marcos, Galveston...	.....	3:00 P. M.
St. Paul, Southampton....	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Trinidad, Bermuda.....	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for Hawaii, Japan, and China, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Coptic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Australia. Mails for Australasian Colonies, (except West Australia, which go via Europe, and New Zealand, which go via San Francisco,) Hawaii, and Fiji Islands, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Nov. 25 and up to Dec. 9, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Warrimoo.

Registered mail closes at 6 P. M. previous day.

Incoming Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SUNDAY,) DEC. 3.

British Empire, Antwerp, Nov. 19.
El Norte, New Orleans, Nov. 28.
La Champagne, Havre, Nov. 25.
Marquette, London, Nov. 23.
Ohio, Hull, Nov. 20.
Rotterdam, Rotterdam, Nov. 23.
Salerno, Newcastle, Nov. 16.
San Marcos, Galveston, Nov. 27.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

Boyic, Liverpool, Nov. 24.
Canadid, Stettin, Nov. 18.
Mayfield, St. Michael, Nov. 24.
Seminole, Jacksonville, Dec. 1.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Chalmette, New Orleans, Nov. 30.
Friesland, Antwerp, Nov. 25.
Knickerbocker, New Orleans, Nov. 29.
Lyell, Gibraltar, Nov. 21.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Indraghira, London? Nov. 22.
Jerseymoor, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Pawnee, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Willehad, Bremen, Nov. 25.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7.

Charing Cross, Gibraltar, Nov. 28.
El Dorado, New Orleans, Dec. 2.
Galilee, Hull, Nov. 25.
Manica, Shields, Nov. 23.
Trave, Bremen, Nov. 28.

FRIDAY, DEC. 8.

Palatia, Hamburg, Nov. 27.
St. Cuthbert, Antwerp, Nov. 26.

Arrived.

SS Pretoria, (Ger.,) Karlowa, Hamburg Nov. 19 and Plymouth 22d, with mdse. and passengers to the Hamburg-American Line. Southeast of Fire Island at 12:32 A. M. 3d.

SS Tallahassee, Askins, Savannah Nov. 30, with mdse. and passengers to the Ocean Steamship Co.

SS Regusa, (Ger.,) Selmers, Santos Nov. 9, with coffee to Funch, Edye & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 3:45 P. M.

SS Horton, (Br.,) McGregor, Tilt Cove, N. F., with copper ore to the American Metal Refining Company. Arrived at the Bar at 6 P. M.

Ship (supposed) Hainaut, (Dutch,) Jacobs, Antwerp Oct. 14, passed Fire Island at 3:35 P. M.

SS Orizaba, Downs, Campeachy Nov. 18, Vera Cruz 23d, Progreso 26th, and Havana 28th, with mdse. and passengers to James E. Ward & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 12:35 A. M.

SS Saratoga, Johnson, Cienfuegos Nov. 22, Santiago 25th, and Nassau 28th, with mdse. and passengers to James E. Ward & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 3:13 A. M.

SS Lassell, (Br.,) Lewis, Santos Nov. 10, with coffee to Busk & Jevons. Arrived at the Bar at 9:15 A. M.

SS Trinidad, (Br.,) Frazer, Bermuda Nov. 30, with mdse. and passengers to A. E. Outerbridge & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 12:45 P. M.

SS Comanche, Pennington, Jacksonville Nov. 29, and Charleston 30th, with mdse. and passengers to William P. Clyde & Co.

SS Jamestown, Davis, Norfolk and Newport News, with mdse. and passengers to the Old Dominion Steamship Company.

SS City of Macon, Savage, Savannah Nov. 29, with mdse. and passengers to the Ocean Steamship Co.

Bark Eudora, (Br.,) Bougher, Turk's Island, 22 days, with salt to J. P. Robinson & Co.; vessel to J. F. Whitney & Co.

Bark Harry Merryday, James, Jacksonville Nov. 23, with lumber to Robert R. Sizer & Co.; vessel to Ray & Fickett.

SS Umbria, (Br.,) Dutton, Liverpool Nov. 25, and Queenstown 26th, with mdse. and passengers to Vernon H. Brown & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 3:57 P. M.

WIND—Sandy Hook, N. J., Dec. 2, 9:30 P. M., N. W. W., light, clear.

Sailed.

SS Alsenborn, for Baltimore.
SS Nethergate (Br.,) for Gloucester, England.
SS Spaarndam, (Dutch,) for Rotterdam.
SS Algonquin, for Charleston and Jacksonville.
SS Ems, (Ger.,) for Naples, &c.
SS Adirondack (Br.,) for Kingston, &c.
SS Andes, (Br.,) for Cape Haitien, &c.
SS Catania, for Mobile.
SS Mexico, for Havana.
SS Colorado, (Br.,) for Hull.
SS British Queen, (Br.,) for Antwerp.
SS Campania, (Br.,) for Liverpool.
SS Caribbee, (Br.,) for St. Croix, &c.
SS Georgian, (Br.,) for London.
SS Masilia, (Fr.,) for Naples, &c.
SS El Rio, for New Orleans.
SS Sarmatian, (Br.,) for Glasgow.
SS Hamilton, for Norfolk and Newport News.
SS Guyandotte, for Newport News and Richmond.
SS Exeter City, (Br.,) for Bristol.
SS Louisiana, for New Orleans.
SS Eller, (Nor.,) for Barbados, &c.
SS Katahdin, with a barge.
SS Saginaw, for Wilmington, N. C., and Georgetown, S. C.
SS City of Macon, for Savannah.
SS Benefactor, for Philadelphia.

Spoken.

Bark Lota, (Br.,) Capt. Nash, from New York for Sydney, N. S. W., was spoken Nov. 13, on the equator, longitude 31.

Notice to Mariners.

DEER ISLAND THOROUGHFARE, LONG LEDGE BEACAON.—Notice is hereby given by order of the Lighthouse Board that a white, triangular, pyramidal structure, 60 feet high, and 30 feet wide on each side of its base, the upper half covered with horizontal slats, has been erected on the southerly part of the ledge, which is bare at about half tide, at the easterly entrance to Deer Island Thoroughfare from Jericho Bay. Bearings and distances of prominent objects from the beacon, as taken from Chart No. 308 of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, are: Egg Rock Beacon, E. 7-16 S., 1 11-16 miles; tangent to West Point, Swan Island, SSE. ¾ E., 2 9-16 miles; Haycock Rock Spindle, W. ⅜ S., 1⅞ miles.

SHEEPSCOT BAY, THE SISTERS BEACON.—Notice is hereby given that a white, triangular, pyramidal structure, 65 feet high, and 30 feet wide on each side of its base, the upper half covered with horizontal slats, has been erected, about 10 feet above high water, on the easterly of the three ledges, in the southwesterly part of Sheepscot Bay. Bearings and distances of prominent objects from the beacon, as taken from Chart No. 314 of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, are: Cuckold's Fog Signal Station, ENE., 2 13-16 miles; Seguin Lighthouse, SW. 13-16 W., 2 11-16 miles; Pond Island Lighthouse, WNW. 15-16 W., nearly 1¼ miles. Bearings are magnetic and given approximately; miles are nautical miles.

This notice affects the "List of Beacons and Buoys, First Lighthouse District, 1898," Pages 44, 89, and 91.

By Cable.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—SS Etruria, (Br.,) Capt. Ferguson, from New York, arr. at Liverpool yesterday.

SS La Gascogne, (Fr.,) Capt. Simon, for New York, sld. from Havre at 11 A. M. to-day.

SS St. Regulus, (Br.,) Capt. McMullen, from New York for Singapore, &c., passed Malta today.

SS Westernland, (Belg.,) Capt. Mills, from New York for Antwerp, passed Prawle Point to-day.

SS Grangenes, (Br.,) Capt. Spedding, from New York, arr. at Para Nov. 30.

SS Asama, (Br.,) Capt. Bement, from New York, via Singapore, arr. at Shanghai to-day.

SS Planet Mercury, (Br.,) Capt. Pye, from Dundee for New York, arr. at Moville to-day.

SS Paraense, (Br.,) Capt. Hikens, for New York, sld. from Ceara Nov. 28.

SS Cuzco, (Br.,) for New York, sld. from Greenock yesterday.

SS Liv. (Nor.,) Capt. Rasmussen, for New York, sld. from Fowey yesterday.

SS Paula, (Ger.,) Capt. Hettmeyer, for New York, sld. from Shields yesterday.

SS Georgic, (Br.,) Capt. Thompson, from New York for Liverpool, passed Brow Head to-day.

SS Powhatan, (Br.,) Capt. Harndon, from New York for Trieste, arr. at Venice Nov. 29.

SS Bellanoch, (Br.,) Capt. Robertson, from New York, arr. at Manchester yesterday.

SS Kaiser Wilhelm II., (Ger.,) Capt. Hogemann, for New York, sld. from Genoa Nov. 29.

SS Alsatia, (Br.,) Capt. Wards, for New York, sld. from Naples yesterday.

SS Lucania, (Br.,) Capt. McKay, for New York, sld. from Liverpool to-day.

SS Southwark, (Br.,) Capt. Bence, for New York, sld. from Antwerp to-day.

SS St. Louis, Capt. Passow, from Southampton for New York, sld. from Cherbourg at 6:40 P. M. to-day.

SS Oldenburg, (Ger.,) Capt. Von Borell, from New York for Bremen, passed Prawle Point today.

SS Ontario, (Br.,) Capt. Huby, from New York for Hull, passed the Lizard to-day.

SS Genesee, (Br.,) Capt. Scott, from New York for Manchester, passed Brow Head to-day.

SS Pocahontas, (Br.,) Capt. James, from New York for Venice, &c., arr. at Palermo to-day.

SS Thorvalla, (Dan.,) Capt. Laub, from New York for Stettin, arr. at Copenhagen to-day.

THE DEAF CURED FREE

next Friday, 2 and 8 P. M., at Carnegie Lyceum, 57th St. and 7th Av.

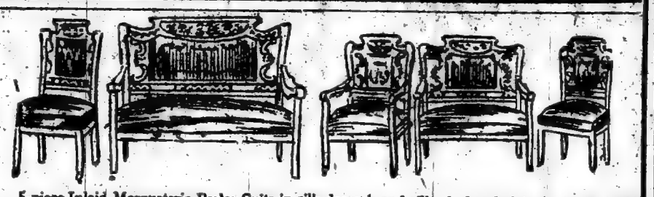
BOARDERS WANTED.

1.—65 PARK AV.—Large hall room, steam heated; parlor dining room; reference.

40 EAST 38TH ST.—Large and hall rooms, (second floor,) with board; parlor dining room; references.

THE NIBLOCK, 37 AND 39 WEST 32D.—Very desirable rooms, with board, near Broadway.

A HOME COMPLETELY FURNISHED AT $125.00



5-piece Inlaid Marqueterie Parlor Suits in silk damask and silk plush upholstery; worth $28.00 16.75

ONE DOLLAR A WEEK OPENS AN ACCOUNT.

Cobbler Seat Rocker, oak, imt. mahogany, 2.75

Parlor Tables, in oak, 89c.

Pier Mirror, as cut, 8.25

Ladies' Desk in oak, 3.50

Morris Chair, upholstered, 3.75

J. BAUMANN & BRO.

1479-1481-1483 THIRD AVENUE, AT 84TH ST.

Open Saturday until 10 P. M. 84th St. "L" Station.

S. BAUMANN & CO.

Velour Couches like cut, in all colors, 4.98 worth $10.

5-piece inlaid Marqueterie Parlor Suits in silk damask and silk plush upholstery; worth $40.00..... 19.98

Elegant Lady's Desk in oak, with mirror, 4.98

CALL AND MAKE YOUR OWN TERMS.

Cor. 46th St. & 8th Ave.

OPEN SATURDAY TILL 10 P. M.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

A. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Sun rises...7:26	Sun sets...7:56	Moon sets.....

High Water This Day.

A. M.	A. M.	A. M.
S. Hook....7:26	Gov. Isl'd...7:45	H. Gate....9:41
P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
S. Hook....7:56	Gov. Isl'd...8:09	H. Gate....10:05

Outgoing Steamships.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Lincoln, Nassau.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Trojan Prince, Azores....	7:00 A. M.	9:00 A. M.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Aller, Bremen.....	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Beverly, Inagua, &c.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Comanche, Charleston.....	.....	3:00 P. M.
El Paso, New Orleans....	.....	3:00 P. M.
Hevelius, Pernambuco, &c.	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Prins Willem IV., Haiti, &c.	10:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Caracas, La Guayra.....	11:00 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Finance, La Guayra.....	9:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Germanic, Liverpool.....	9:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Matanzas, Tampico.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Noordland, Antwerp.....	10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Orizaba, Havara.....	1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Patria, Naples.....	.....	3:00 P. M.
San Marcos, Galveston...	.....	3:00 P. M.
St. Paul, Southampton....	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Trinidad, Bermuda.....	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for Hawaii, Japan, and China, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Coptic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Dec. 8, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Australia. Mails for Australasian Colonies, (except West Australia, which go via Europe, and New Zealand, which go via San Francisco,) Hawaii, and Fiji Islands, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Nov. 25 and up to Dec. 9, inclusive, for dispatch per steamship Warrimoo.

Registered mail closes at 6 P. M. previous day.

Incoming Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SUNDAY,) DEC. 3.

British Empire, Antwerp, Nov. 19.
El Norte, New Orleans, Nov. 28.
La Champagne, Havre, Nov. 25.
Marquette, London, Nov. 23.
Ohio, Hull, Nov. 20.
Rotterdam, Rotterdam, Nov. 23.
Salerno, Newcastle, Nov. 16.
San Marcos, Galveston, Nov. 27.

MONDAY, DEC. 4.

Boyic, Liverpool, Nov. 24.
Canadid, Stettin, Nov. 18.
Mayfield, St. Michael, Nov. 24.
Seminole, Jacksonville, Dec. 1.

TUESDAY, DEC. 5.

Chalmette, New Orleans, Nov. 30.
Friesland, Antwerp, Nov. 25.
Knickerbocker, New Orleans, Nov. 29.
Lyell, Gibraltar, Nov. 21.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 6.

Indraghira, London? Nov. 22.
Jerseymoor, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Pawnee, Gibraltar, Nov. 22.
Willehad, Bremen, Nov. 25.

THURSDAY, DEC. 7.

Charing Cross, Gibraltar, Nov. 28.
El Dorado, New Orleans, Dec. 2.
Galilee, Hull, Nov. 25.
Manica, Shields, Nov. 23.
Trave, Bremen, Nov. 28.

FRIDAY, DEC. 8.

Palatia, Hamburg, Nov. 27.
St. Cuthbert, Antwerp, Nov. 26.

Arrived.

SS Pretoria, (Ger.,) Karlowa, Hamburg Nov. 19 and Plymouth 22d, with mdse. and passengers to the Hamburg-American Line. Southeast of Fire Island at 12:32 A. M. 3d.

SS Tallahassee, Askins, Savannah Nov. 30, with mdse. and passengers to the Ocean Steamship Co.

SS Regusa, (Ger.,) Selmers, Santos Nov. 9, with coffee to Funch, Edye & Co. Arrived at the Bar at 3:45 P. M.

SS Horton, (Br.,) McGregor, Tilt Cove, N. F., with copper ore to the American Metal Refining Company. Arrived at the Bar at 6 P. M.

Ship (supposed) Hainaut, (Dutch,) Jacobs, Antwerp Oct. 14, passed Fire Island at 3:35 P. M.

SS Orizaba, Downs,

THE HEAVENS IN DECEMBER

Partial Eclipse of the Moon to be Seen on the 16th.

VERY UNUSUAL OCCURRENCES

Conjunctions Between Moon and Planet Not Visible Owing to Sun's Rays.

The eclipse of the sun that took place yesterday was the last of its kind for the year, and was not visible to us in this part of the world. Neither was any portion of our new dominion included. The other principal event in which December's sun plays a part is his arrival at his furthest point south which occurs on the 21st, on which day astronomical Winter begins. On that day Old Sol leaves the sporting realm of the Archer and crosses over to Capricornus, after which he sojourns for a month in Aquarius and another with the Fishes, and then we shall have him once again north of the line.

On the 16th we have an eclipse of the moon, which if the night be clear we shall have much pleasure in watching, although it will not be more than a partial eclipse, although considering the moon's diameter as 1 the amount of his face that will be hidden is expressed by 0.996, so we shall get almost the whole face. From the time of entering the penumbra, or outer shadow, until leaving it there will be an interval of about five and three-quarters hours. Of course we know now that these eclipses of the moon can only take place at the time of full moon, when sun, earth, and moon are in line, and the last named enters the shadow cast by our planet. We can also tell that the phase of the moon on the 2d, the day of solar eclipse is the period of new moon, when sun, moon, and earth are in line in the order named. We here see that the moon was on the other side of the earth from what it will be on the 16th.

There is a luminous envelope about the sun which seems to contain in it the "eternal fires" to warm and light the earth, which, we are told, is a secret of incandescent clouds floating in an atmosphere of vapor. Surrounding this shining surface is a layer of flaming gas—chiefly hydrogen and helium—and from this sea of flame spurt out the solar prominences in jets sometimes 100,000 miles in height, and with velocities frequently so great as 100 miles per second. Beyond these, and extending completely around the sun, is the solar corona, a soft, irregular halo of light, clear as an aureola, and merging into the lackness of space at a distance of more than 1,000,000 miles.

Neither the corona, nor the prominences, nor the scarlet layer from which they rise, are, unfortunately, seen when the sun is shining. The fact is to be deplored, both for aesthetic and scientific reasons. To be able to see the sun with a flaming rim around it, from which jets and masses of brilliantly colored gas were continually projected, the whole being set in a frame of pearly sheen, would add to the beauties of nature, and astronomers would be given abundant opportunity to determine their characteristics.

CLOUD AND AIR A DRAWBACK.

The inhabitants of the moon, if there be any, enjoy this glorious view, for they are not troubled with an atmosphere. The shifting veil of cloud and air in which we live is an unmixed evil, from an astronomical point of view. But for this barrier the sun and all its appendages would be visible every day; whereas under the present terrestrial conditions the solar surroundings can only be seen during the few seconds when the sun is totally eclipsed. No wonder, then, that astronomers are so eager to utilize these precious moments when the luminous ball of the sun is hidden behind the moon.

Our new citizens in the Philippines have a somewhat original and curious way of their own of regarding eclipses. In the southwestern islands an eclipse of the sun is in the Malay dialect known as gerhana-mata-ari and of the moon gerhana-bulan. Eclipses of they speak of the "sickness of the sun" or both luminaries represent them as sick, and the "sickness of the moon." An eclipse of the moon is also expressed by a native phrase which means the moon eaten by the dragon. During the eclipse the natives engaged in "stamping" rice make a terrible clattering at their mortars, in order to frighten the monster from his meditated mischief.

There are very unusual occurrences this month in the conjunctions between moon and planet, as there are so many duplicates. Jupiter, Uranus, Mercury, and Saturn celebrate the Christmas holidays by duplicating the meeting in the earlier part of the month. Unhappily, a bare statement of these interesting phenomena is all that we can give, as the heavenly bodies referred to are so near the sun that his all-powerful rays completely shut them from view.

MEETS THE OLD MOON AGAIN.

It is interesting to state, though, that while Mercury and Saturn are in conjunction with the new moon in the early part of the month, and they are evening stars, their second meeting is with the old moon, and they have become in the interim morning stars. On the first we have Jupiter so close to the old moon that the sight would have been well worth seeing, although not as fine a display as that on the following day, when Uranus and Luna were only a degree apart.

Some hours after the eclipse on the 2d the brand-new moon and Mercury come within less than a degree of one another; then follow Mars, Saturn, and Venus, all within a day. Possibly we may catch a bit of a glimpse of the last meeting—'twill be well worth trying for, at all events, although neither body is as brilliant as it will be when they meet during the coming year. We pass on to the date of full moon before there are any other meetings, and then we have Neptune; but a full moon is always too brilliant an object to admit of a planet showing off his fine points. On the 29th comes Jupiter's second turn, followed in the course of the next two days by Uranus, Mercury, and Saturn, the last having his turn on the last day of the old year.

REIGNING MORNING PLANET.

Jupiter has already hoisted his flag as the reigning planet in the morning, and early risers will soon be able to see him floating majestically in the bright blue depths of the eastern sky about two hours before sun up. Jupiter has rivals among the stars, such as Alpha Lyrae, Aldebaran, and others, which are undoubtedly beautiful, but they are small and glittering diamonds, so to speak, in comparison with the great and grand opalescent sphere of Jupiter, which, when at opposition, the most favorable position for observation, gives us one of the most superb sights ever vouchsafed to human vision. We are promised this beautiful spectacle the coming year, and it will be well worth our waiting to see.

Uranus joined the morning stars last month soon after Jupiter, so we are not surprised at finding the two not yet very far separated. This distance is somewhat lessened as the month progresses, as we have them seven hours nearer each other when for a second time they are in conjunction with the moon during the last two or three days of the month.

Mercury twice passes within friendly hailing distance of Uranus, as he swings out on the western arc of his travel from the sun. We also find that Mercury has two meetings with the moon in December. We can almost discern the planet during the second one, for he will have but recently completed his western elongation from the sun, and this we know is one of the times when we are permitted to see him.

